29:8 Reuben and Gad and . . . the half-tribe of Manasseh were granted their request to settle in the area east of the Jordan (see 3:12–13).

29:11 foreigners (literally sojourners): See note on 10:18. • The saying chop your wood and carry your water was a cliché for any servile work (see Josh 9:22–27).

29:12 The technical phrase to enter into the covenant meant subscribing to the terms of the agreement.

29:15 future generations: The covenant made with Moses' generation was also for generations yet to be born. Abraham's descendants of the future would have the privileges of the covenant, but they would also need to obey it personally to enjoy its blessings (see 4:9).

29:17 The detestable practices were abominable manifestations of paganism, especially regarding worship (see 7:25–26; 12:31; 13:14). • idols: The Hebrew term, meaning round things, probably alludes to dung. These objects were so reprehensible that they were compared to excrement.

29:18 This metaphor describes idolatry (the root), which, if cultivated, would result in idol worship (the fruit).

29:19 An attitude of nonchalance or smugness regarding God's judgment would lead to utter ruin.

29:20 jealousy: See note on 4:24. • erase their names: To forget the name of a people resulted in eventually forgetting their very existence. The most unspeakable tragedy would be for God to treat the people of Israel as though they had never existed (see 7:24; Exod 32:32–33; 2 Kgs 14:27).

to pour out on them all the curses of the covenant recorded in this Book of Instruction.

²²Then the generations to come, both your own descendants and the foreigners who come from distant lands, will see the devastation of the land and the diseases the LORD inflicts on it. ²³They will exclaim, 'The whole land is devastated by sulfur and salt. It is a wasteland with nothing planted and nothing growing, not even a blade of grass. It is like the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah, Admah and Zeboiim, which the LORD destroyed in his intense anger.'

²⁴And all the surrounding nations will ask, 'Why has the LORD done this to this land? Why was he so angry?'

²⁵And the answer will be, 'This happened because the people of the land abandoned the covenant that the LORD, the God of their ancestors, made with them when he brought them out of the land of Egypt. ²⁶Instead, they turned away to serve and ^aworship gods they had not known before, gods that were not from the LORD. ²⁷That is why the LORD's anger has burned against this land, bringing down on it every curse recorded in this book. ²⁸In great anger and fury the LORD uprooted his people from their land and banished them to another land, where they still live today!'

²⁹'The LORD our God has secrets known to no one. We are not accountable for them, but we and our children are accountable forever for all that he has revealed to us, so that we may obey all the terms of these instructions.

A Call to Return to the LORD

30 'In the future, when you experience all these blessings and curses I have listed for you, and when you are living among the nations to which the LORD your God has exiled you, take to heart all these instructions. ²If at that time you and your children return to the LORD your God, and if you obey with all your heart and all your soul all the commands I have given you today, ³then the LORD your God will restore your fortunes. He will have mercy on you and gather you back from all the nations where he has scattered you. ⁴Even though you are banished to the ends of the earth, the LORD your God will gather you from there and bring you back again. ⁵The LORD your God will return you to the land that belonged to your ancestors, and you will possess that land again. Then he will make you even more prosperous and numerous than your ancestors!

⁶'The LORD your God will change your heart and the hearts of all your descendants, so that you will love him with all your heart and soul and so you may live! ⁷The LORD your God will inflict all these curses on your enemies and on those who hate and persecute you. ⁸Then you will again obey the LORD and keep all his commands that I am giving you today.

⁹'The LORD your God will then make you successful in everything you do. He will give you many children and numerous livestock, and he will cause your fields to produce abundant harvests, for the LORD will again delight in being good to you as he was to your ancestors. ¹⁰The LORD your God will delight in you if you ^aobey his voice and keep the commands and decrees written in this Book of ^bInstruction, and if you ^cturn to the LORD your God with all your heart and soul.

The Choice of Life or Death

¹¹'This command I am giving you today is not too difficult for you, and it is not beyond

29:21 Book of Instruction (literally book of the torah): Here, this phrase refers to all of Deuteronomy, of which the list of curses (ch 28) is a part (see 27:3).

29:23 like . . . Sodom and Gomorrah, Admah and Zeboiim: In the days of Abraham and Lot, these cities were destroyed because of their gross immorality; their destruction was associated with sulfur and salt (Gen 19:23-28).

29:25-28 This explanation anticipates a future when people would look back at Israel's history of rebellion and easily understand why they were in exile.

29:27 The phrase this book refers at least to Deuteronomy and perhaps to the first five books of the OT (the Pentateuch).

29:29 secrets known to no one: There is an apparent contradiction between God's covenant promises to Israel on the one hand and Israel's being sent into exile on the other. What purpose could there be in such a mysterious turn of events? Only God knows. • the terms of these instructions (literally the words of this torah): See 4:44; 27:3.

30:1-10 Repentance was the only solution to the threat of judgment. The possibility of blessing and the prevention of judgment both depended on a proper relationship with the Lord.

30:1 These blessings and curses: See 27:1-28:68.

30:2-3 with all your heart and all your soul: The expectation of these verses was clearly articulated in the Shema, Israel's great statement of covenant faith and commitment (cp. 6:4).

30:4 ends of the earth: Literally ends of the heavens.

30:6 change your heart (literally circumcise your heart): This work of God, initiated by his grace, would result in Israel's regeneration and identify the nation as the Lord's true people (see 10:16; Jer 4:4; Rom 4:1-12).

30:11-20 Adherence to the covenant terms that Moses had outlined would give life; disobedience would surely bring death. Life and death refer to physical, mortal life in the land—of individuals and of the community of Israel.

30:11 This command refers to the whole covenant text, all of Deuteronomy (see 4:2; 5:29; 7:9).

your reach. ¹²It is not kept in heaven, so distant that you must ask, 'Who will go up to heaven and bring it down so we can hear it and obey?' ¹³It is not kept beyond the sea, so far away that you must ask, 'Who will cross the sea to bring it to us so we can hear it and obey?' ¹⁴No, the message is very close at hand; it is on your lips and in your heart so that you can obey it.

¹⁵"Now listen! Today I am giving you a choice between life and death, between prosperity and disaster. ¹⁶For I command you this day to love the LORD your God and to keep his commands, decrees, and regulations by walking in his ways. If you do this, you will live and multiply, and the LORD your God will bless you and the land you are about to enter and occupy.

¹⁹"Today I have given you the choice between life and death, between ^ablessings and curses. Now I call on heaven and earth to witness the choice you make. Oh, that you would choose life, so that you and your descendants might live! ²⁰You can make this choice by loving the LORD your God, obeying him, and committing yourself firmly to him. This is the key to your life. And if you love and obey the LORD, you will live long in the land the LORD swore to give your ancestors Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob."

6. MOSES' FAREWELL (31:1-34:12) Deposit of the Text and Provision for Implementation (31:1-29)

Joshua Becomes Israel's Leader

31 When Moses had finished giving these instructions to all the people of Israel, ²he said, "I am now 120 years old, and I am no longer able to lead you. The LORD has told me, 'You will not cross the Jordan River.' ³But the LORD your God himself will cross over ahead of you. He will destroy the nations living there, and you will take possession of their land. Joshua will lead you across the river, just as the LORD promised.

⁴"The LORD will destroy the nations living in the land, just as he destroyed Sihon and Og, the kings of the Amorites. ⁵The LORD will hand over to you the people who live there, and you must deal with them as I have commanded you. ⁶So be strong and courageous! Do not be afraid and do not panic before them. For the LORD your God will personally go ahead of you. He will neither fail you nor abandon you."

⁷Then Moses called for Joshua, and as all Israel watched, he said to him, "Be strong and courageous! For you will lead these people into the land that the LORD swore to their ancestors he would give them. You are the one who will divide it among them as their grants of land. ⁸Do not be afraid or discouraged, for the LORD will personally go ahead of you. He will be with you; he will neither fail you nor abandon you."

30:13 not kept beyond the sea: God's purposes are not in the custody of faraway nations but are available to his people (see Rom 10:6-8).

30:14 The message of salvation is objectively close (on your lips) and subjectively near (in your heart). It is capable of being taught and learned (see 6:6-7).

30:16 love the LORD your God: This paraphrases the Shema, Israel's central covenant affirmation (see 6:5). To love God means to obey him in every respect, which results in divine blessing.

30:19 life and death . . . blessings and curses: This grammatical structure suggests an equivalence between life and blessing and between death and curses. The essence of a blessing is life, and the essence of a curse is death. • I call on heaven and earth to witness: See note on 4:26.

30:20 This is the key: Or He is the key. • the key to your life: In its most meaningful sense, life consists of absolute commitment to the Lord.

31:1-29 For covenant documents to have abiding authority and relevance, they must be kept perpetually in a place where both parties could have easy access to them. The book of Deuteronomy had to be preserved for future reference so that Israel would always be reminded to submit to the Lord's sovereignty.

31:1-8 Moses' impending death meant that his role as covenant administrator would soon be over. Joshua had to be properly and publicly introduced as his successor with the same authority.

31:1 Moses had finished giving these instructions: As in Dead Sea Scrolls and Greek version; Masoretic Text reads

Moses went and spoke. Based on the context, these instructions refers to all of Deuteronomy (see 1:1).

31:3 The LORD . . . will cross over ahead of you: The conquest would be God's war. The conflict would be commanded, initiated, and led by the Divine Warrior, the Lord God of Israel (see 1:30). • From the earliest days of the Sinai wandering (Exod 17:8) to the present, Joshua had served as Moses' attendant; now he was divinely appointed as Moses' successor (see 1:38; 3:23-29; Num 27:15-23).

31:4 Sihon and Og: See note on 2:24; Num 21:21-35.

31:6 He will neither fail you nor abandon you: This encouragement for Israel on the verge of taking possession of the Promised Land also states a general principle of God's care for his people (see also Heb 13:5).

carried the Ark of the LORD's Covenant, and to the elders of Israel. ¹⁰Then Moses gave them this command: "At the end of every seventh year, the Year of Release, during the Festival of Shelters, ¹¹you must read this Book of Instruction to all the people of Israel when they assemble before the LORD your God at the place he chooses. ¹²Call them all together—men, women, children, and the foreigners living in your towns—so they may hear this Book of Instruction and learn to fear the LORD your God and carefully obey all the terms of these instructions. ¹³Do this so that your children who have not known these instructions will hear them and will learn to fear the LORD your God. Do this as long as you live in the land you are crossing the Jordan to occupy."

Israel's Disobedience Predicted

¹⁴Then the LORD said to Moses, "The time has come for you to die. Call Joshua and present yourselves at the Tabernacle, so that I may commission him there." So Moses and Joshua went and presented themselves at the Tabernacle. ¹⁵And the LORD appeared to them in a pillar of cloud that stood at the entrance to the sacred tent.

¹⁶The LORD said to Moses, "You are about to die and join your ancestors. After you are gone, these people will begin to worship foreign gods, the gods of the land where they are going. They will abandon me and break my covenant that I have made with them. ¹⁷Then my anger will blaze forth against them. I will abandon them, hiding my face from them, and they will be devoured. Terrible trouble will come down on them, and on that day they will say, 'These disasters have come down on us because God is no longer among us!' ¹⁸At that time I will hide my face from them on account of all the evil they commit by worshipping other gods.

¹⁹"So write down the words of this song, and teach it to the people of Israel. Help them learn it, so it may serve as a witness for me against them. ²⁰For I will bring them into the land I swore to give their ancestors—a land flowing with milk and honey. There they will become prosperous, eat all the food they want, and become fat. But they will begin to worship other gods; they will despise me and break my covenant. ²¹And when great disasters come down on them, this song will stand as evidence against them, for it will never be forgotten by their descendants. I know the intentions of these people, even now before they have entered the land I swore to give them."

²³Then the LORD commissioned Joshua son of Nun with these words: "Be strong covenant obligations, the covenant text was to be read publicly. Doing so was a practical necessity in an era when personal copies of documents were not generally available.

31:9 Ark of the LORD's Covenant: This gold-plated wooden chest contained the two stone tablets bearing the text of the Ten Commandments. It was also the LORD's throne, as he sat there invisibly among his people (see note on 10:1).

31:10 The Year of Release was the seventh year of the calendar, not the seventh year of a given transaction between individuals. All debts were to be cancelled and Hebrew bond servants released from obligation to their creditors (see 15:1-3). • Festival of Shelters (also known as the Feast of Tabernacles): The people observed this celebration in the seventh month (Tishri, September/October) of every year to commemorate God's miraculous preservation of Israel in the wilderness. It also celebrated the fall harvest (see 16:13-15).

31:11 the place he chooses: See note on 12:18.

31:12 Even foreigners living among the Israelites were to submit to the requirements of the covenant law. Despite their disadvantaged status, the Lord would provide for them (see 10:18).

31:14 Tabernacle (literally Tent of Meeting): At first, the Tent of Meeting was a provisional place of encounter between God and his people (especially Moses). Later, the term became synonymous with the Tabernacle (see Exod 28:43; 33:7-11; 40:2; Num 11:16, 24, 26; 12:4). See note on Lev 1:1.

31:15 Since God is spirit, he cannot be seen unless he chooses to manifest his glory physically. The pillar of cloud was such a manifestation, sometimes called a theophany (see note on 1:33). When the pillar appeared, those who saw it recognized in it the presence of God (see Exod 33:9; Num 12:5).

31:18 I will hide my face: The invisible God used this figure of speech (see note on 8:2) to communicate the breaking of fellowship between himself and his people. He turned away to indicate his rejection and repudiation.

31:19-22 When sung by the collective community in days to come, this song (32:1-43) would remind the people of God's faithfulness in the past and of their too-frequent disloyalty. The major blessings for obedience and curses for disobedience were implicit in the song. The people of Israel would sing it as a sign that they had placed themselves under these promises and threats. Through music, they would be reminded of God's blessings for obedience and would invoke God's judgment should they prove unfaithful.

31:19 a witness: See note on 4:26.

31:20 land flowing with milk and honey: See note on 6:3. • become fat: Fatness did not imply obesity or self-indulgence but blessing and prosperity. • despise me: Israel would disregard the Lord and treat him lightly by falsely assuming that their prosperity had come through their own efforts or through the false gods of the land.

31:22 Moses wrote down the words: This statement is good evidence for the traditional view that Moses wrote Deuteronomy (see Deuteronomy Introduction, "Authorship," p. 313).

31:23 I will be with you: These words given to Joshua were the same words God spoke to Moses at the burning bush, when he called him to lead Israel out of Egypt (Exod 3:12). The same God, with the same assurance, was able to guarantee the same results.

and courageous, for you must bring the people of Israel into the land I swore to give them. I will be with you."

²⁴When Moses had finished writing this entire body of instruction in a book, ²⁵he gave this command to the Levites who carried the Ark of the LORD's Covenant: ²⁶"Take this Book of Instruction and place it beside the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD your God, so it may remain there as a witness against the people of Israel. ²⁷For I know how rebellious and stubborn you are. Even now, while I am still alive and am here with you, you have rebelled against the LORD. How much more rebellious will you be after my death!

²⁸"Now summon all the elders and officials of your tribes, so that I can speak to them directly and call heaven and earth to witness against them. ²⁹I know that after my death you will become utterly corrupt and will turn from the way I have commanded you to follow. In the days to come, disaster will come down on you, for you will do what is evil in the LORD's sight, making him very angry with your actions."

The Song of Moses (31:30–32:47)

³⁰So Moses recited this entire song publicly to the assembly of Israel:

32 ¹"Listen, O heavens, and I will speak!

Hear, O earth, the words that I say!

²Let my teaching fall on you like rain;
let my speech settle like dew.

Let my words fall like rain on tender grass, like gentle showers on young plants.

³I will proclaim the name of the LORD;
how glorious is our God!

⁴He is the 'Rock; his deeds are *perfect.
Everything he does is just and fair.

He is a faithful God who does no wrong;
how just and upright he is!

⁵"But they have acted corruptly toward him;
when they act so perversely, are they really his children?

They are a deceitful and twisted generation.

⁶Is this the way you repay the LORD, you foolish and senseless people?

Isn't he your Father who created you?

Has he not made you and established you?

⁷Remember the days of long ago;
think about the generations past.

Ask your father, and he will inform you.

Inquire of your ^helders, and they will tell you.

⁸When the ^lMost High assigned lands to the nations, when he divided up the human race, he established the boundaries of the peoples according to the number in his heavenly court.

⁹"For the people of Israel belong to the LORD;

Jacob is his special possession.

31:26 beside the Ark: Unlike the stone tablets, the scroll of Deuteronomy was not to be placed in the Ark but near it, in the inner sanctuary of the Tabernacle and, later, of the Temple (see 31:9; Exod 25:16; 26:33). • a witness: Like the song that the Israelites were to sing (see 31:19), the presence of the scroll of Deuteronomy would be a perpetual reminder of Israel's covenant obligations and privileges (see 31:10, 19).

31:28 call heaven and earth to witness: See note on 4:26; see also 30:19.

31:30–32:47 In ancient times, the validity of a treaty arrangement between individuals or nations was secured by both parties' vows. Israel's promise was in the song of witness that Moses composed under divine inspiration (31:19–22). When Israel sang the song (presumably as part of a regular covenant-renewal ceremony; 31:21), they invoked upon themselves the covenant's judgments and reminded themselves of its promises.

32:1 Listen, O heavens. . . . Hear, O earth: Moses appealed to the witnesses of the covenant to note Israel's confession and commitment as well as its anticipated disobedience and disloyalty (see 30:19).

32:2 like rain . . . like dew: This simile shows the refreshing gentleness of Moses' teaching. It should produce the fruit of obedience in the hearts of God's people.

32:4 The Rock: This metaphor represents the Lord as strong, stable, and reliable; he is more than capable of providing righteousness and justice (see 32:15, 18, 30; Hab 1:12).

32:5 are they really his children? The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

32:7 Ask your father: History instructs those who are willing to learn from it. In the wisdom tradition of the OT, the father was given the task of teaching his children the lessons that had previously been transmitted to him (see, e.g., Prov 1:8; 2:1; 3:1).

32:8 the Most High (Hebrew ^lElyon): Abraham learned this name for God when he encountered Melchizedek (Gen 14:19). This ancient name describes God's universal sovereignty. • assigned lands: One evidence of God's sovereignty was his distribution of lands to the nations (see Gen 10). • the number in his heavenly court: As in Dead Sea Scrolls, which read the number of the sons of God, and Greek version, which reads the number of the angels of God; Masoretic Text reads the number of the sons of Israel. These different translations reflect different textual traditions. The point is clear: God is sovereign over and concerned with all nations and has allotted their land in accord with his own purposes (see Ps 74:17; Acts 17:26).

32:9 his special possession (literally his inheritance): God declared Israel to be his son, whom he redeemed from bondage in Egypt (see Exod 4:22–23; 13:15; Deut 7:6).

He gave them choice rams from Bashan, and goats,
together with the choicest wheat.
You drank the finest wine, made from the juice of grapes.

15 "But Israel soon became fat and unruly; the people grew heavy, plump, and stuffed!

Then they abandoned the God who had made them;
they made light of the Rock of their salvation.

16 They stirred up his jealousy by worshiping foreign gods; they provoked his fury with detestable deeds.

17 They offered sacrifices to demons, which are not God,
to gods they had not known before,

to new gods only recently arrived, to gods their ancestors had never feared.

18 You neglected the ^kRock who had fathered you;
you forgot the God who had given you birth.

19 "The LORD saw this and drew back, provoked to anger by his own sons and daughters.

20 He said, 'I will abandon them;
then see what becomes of them.
For they are a twisted generation, children without integrity.

21 They have roused my jealousy by worshiping things that are not God;
they have provoked my anger with their useless idols.
Now I will rouse their jealousy through people who are not even a people;
I will provoke their anger through the foolish Gentiles.

22 For my anger blazes forth like fire and burns to the depths of the grave.
It devours the earth and all its crops and ignites the foundations of the mountains.

23 I will heap disasters upon them and shoot them down with my arrows.

24 I will weaken them with famine, burning fever, and deadly disease.
I will send the fangs of wild beasts and poisonous snakes that glide in the dust.

25 Outside, the sword will bring death, and inside, terror will strike both young men and young women, both infants and the aged.

32:10 as he would guard his own eyes:
Literally as the pupil of his eye.

32:14 rams from Bashan, and goats:
This high plateau east of the Sea of Galilee was famous for such livestock (see note on 1:4; see also Ps 22:12; Ezek 39:18; Amos 4:1).

32:15 Israel: Hebrew Jeshurun, a term of endearment for Israel that demonstrates the Lord's strong affection for his people. The name appears to be derived from a verb meaning "to be upright" (see 33:5, 26; Isa 44:2). • the Rock:
This metaphor describes God's strength and reliability, especially regarding salvation (see 32:4).

32:16 his jealousy: See note on 4:24.
Just as a husband is properly jealous when another man tries to draw his wife away (Prov 6:34), God was jealous when Israel worshiped other gods.

32:17 demons: In the ancient Near East, the gods were thought to protect individuals and places from harm, but worshiping these pagan deities actually amounted to worshiping evil spirits (cp.
1 Cor 10:20-21; Rev 9:20). • New gods: were false deities that Israel had never before encountered.

32:18 the Rock: This expression draws attention to God's reliability as Father (see 32:4, 9).

32:20 The phrase without integrity indicates disloyalty to the covenant. Israel had promised to be true to the Lord but had consistently been unfaithful (see Exod 19:8).

32:21 roused my jealousy: The Lord was not petulant because of attention paid to false gods. Rather, Israel had broken their covenant with him by worshiping other gods, demonstrating their disdain for him and his sovereignty (see 32:16). • people who are not even a people: God's purpose for Israel was not just to redeem them, but through them to redeem all nations of the earth.

In Israel's eyes, other peoples were worthless, but through God's attention to other nations, Israel would be drawn back to obedience (see Hos 1:9; 2:23; Rom 9:25; 10:19).

32:22 of the grave (Hebrew of Sheol):
The realm of the dead was thought to be in the depths beneath the earth, and the entrance to that world was the grave. God is omnipresent, and his judgment reaches the most inaccessible places (see Ps 139:7-12).

- 26 I would have annihilated them, wiping out even the memory of them.
- 27 But I feared the taunt of Israel's enemy, who might misunderstand and say,
"Our own power has triumphed!
The LORD had nothing to do with this!"
- 28 "But Israel is a senseless nation; the people are foolish, without understanding.
- 29 Oh, that they were wise and could understand this!
Oh, that they might know their fate!
- 30 How could one person chase a thousand of them, and two people put ten thousand to flight, unless their Rock had sold them, unless the LORD had given them up?
- 31 But the ^arock of our enemies is not like our ^aRock,
as even they recognize.
- 32 Their vine grows from the vine of Sodom, from the vineyards of Gomorrah.
Their grapes are poison, and their clusters are bitter.
- 33 Their wine is the venom of serpents, the deadly poison of cobras.
- 34 "The LORD says, 'Am I not storing up these things, sealing them away in my treasury?
- 35 I will take revenge; I will pay them back.
In due time their feet will slip.
Their day of disaster will arrive, and their destiny will overtake them.'
- 36 "Indeed, the LORD will give justice to his people, and he will change his mind about his servants, when he sees their strength is gone and no one is left, slave or free.
- 37 Then he will ask, 'Where are their gods, the rocks they fled to for refuge?
- 38 Where now are those gods, who ate the fat of their sacrifices and drank the wine of their offerings?
Let those gods arise and help you!
Let them provide you with shelter!
- 39 Look now; I myself am he!
There is no other god but me!
I am the one who kills and gives life;
I am the one who wounds and heals;
no one can be rescued from my powerful hand!
- 40 Now I raise my hand to heaven and declare, "As surely as I live, 41 when I sharpen my flashing sword and begin to carry out justice,
I will take revenge on my enemies and repay those who reject me.
- 42 I will make my arrows drunk with blood, and my sword will devour flesh—the blood of the slaughtered and the captives, and the heads of the enemy leaders."

32:27 I feared: God is never terrified or intimidated. This fear is concern that Israel's enemies would attribute their success to their own efforts rather than to God's sovereign judgment of his people (see Exod 32:11-14).

32:29 their fate (literally their latter end): Israel's future had not been pre-determined; this statement expresses how things would turn out if Israel continued on its rebellious course.

32:30 How could one person chase a thousand: When God gives his people over to destruction, they are vulnerable against all odds. • their Rock: Here the metaphor is used ironically. The very one upon whom Israel should stand as the source of their strength will desert them because of their own wickedness and unfaithfulness (see 32:4).

32:31 the rock of our enemies: In this sarcastic comparison between the pagan gods and the Lord God of Israel, the false deities come up woefully short. • as even they recognize: The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. Greek version reads our enemies are fools. Either way, those gods are inadequate.

32:32 Sodom . . . Gomorrah: These cities were the epitome of evil (see Gen 18:16–19:38). Pagan perversity and godlessness found their inspiration and source in these cities, and because they were unrepentant, they were utterly destroyed (see 29:23).

32:34 Metaphorically, my treasury is the place where God, as Divine Warrior, lays up his implements of war and judgment until the time comes for them to be put to use (see 1:30).

32:36 will change his mind about (or will take revenge for, or will be sorry for): When speaking of God, the OT frequently uses figurative language (see note on 8:2). Human beings cannot understand God's mind (Isa 55:8), so God uses human language and gives himself human physical characteristics and feelings. Although the Bible frequently speaks of God's eyes, arms, hands, and feet, he is invisible and has no body; these metaphors describe his activity. Similarly, when the Bible says that God fears (32:27) or changes his mind, it expresses how God's actions appear to humans. See also "God's Change of Mind" at 1 Sam 15:11, 29, 35, p. 493.

32:37 the rocks: This sarcastic metaphor concerns the impotence of pagan gods (see 32:31).

32:38 ate the fat . . . drank the wine: Most polytheistic religious systems that practice sacrifice include the notion that the gods find nourishment in the sacrifices made to them. Israel fell victim to this superstitious belief for a time before the Lord graciously taught them otherwise and restored them to himself (32:36).

32:40 I raise my hand to heaven: This anthropomorphism (see notes on 4:34 and 8:2) asserts God's solemn intention to keep his covenant promises to deliver his people from their enemies. When God makes an oath, he is not bound to some course of action in the event that he proves undependable. Rather, the statement emphasizes the reliability of God's promises above and beyond his character alone (see Num 14:21, 28; Isa 49:18; Ezek 20:5-6).

32:42 The phrase arrows drunk with blood combines personification and hyperbole to show the extent of the carnage that will result from God's judgment of the nations.

he will take revenge against his

He will repay those who hate him and cleanse his people's land."

44 So Moses came with Joshua son of Nun and recited all the words of this song to the people.

45 When Moses had finished reciting all these words to the people of Israel, 46 he added: "Take to heart all the words of warning I have given you today. Pass them on as a command to your children so they will obey every word of these instructions. 47 These instructions are not empty words—they are your life! By obeying them you will enjoy a long life in the land you will occupy when you cross the Jordan River."

Moses' Impending Death (32:48-52)

48 That same day the LORD said to Moses, 49 "Go to Moab, to the mountains east of the river, and climb Mount Nebo, which is across from Jericho. Look out across the land of Canaan, the land I am giving to the people of Israel as their own special possession.

50 Then you will die there on the mountain.
You will join your ancestors, just as Aaron, your brother, died on Mount Hor and joined his ancestors. 51 For both of you betrayed me with the Israelites at the waters of Meribah at Kadesh in the wilderness of Zin. You failed to demonstrate my holiness to the people of Israel there. 52 So you will see the land from a distance, but you may not enter the land I am giving to the people of Israel."

Moses Blesses the People (33:1-29)

33 This is the blessing that Moses, the man of God, gave to the people of Israel before his death:

- 2 "The LORD came from Mount Sinai and dawned upon us from Mount Seir; he shone forth from Mount Paran and came from Meribah-kadesh with flaming fire at his right hand.
- 3 Indeed, he loves his people;
all his holy ones are in his hands.
They follow in his steps and accept his teaching.
- 4 Moses gave us the LORD's instruction, the special possession of the people of Israel.
- 5 The LORD became king in Israel—when the leaders of the people assembled, when the tribes of Israel gathered as one."

32:43 Rejoice with him, you heavens . . . angels worship him: As in Dead Sea Scrolls and Greek version; Masoretic Text lacks the first two lines (cp. Heb 1:6). • and let all the angels be strengthened in him: As in Greek version; Hebrew text lacks this sentence. Compare Rom 15:10. • his children: As in Dead Sea Scrolls and Greek version; Masoretic Text reads his servants. • He will repay those who hate him: As in Dead Sea Scrolls and Greek version; Masoretic Text lacks this line.

32:44 Joshua: Hebrew Hoshea, a variant name for Joshua.

32:47 they are your life: Obeying the Lord's words brings life (see 8:3; 30:20). • long life: This promise does not guarantee individual longevity and certainly not immortality; it is about Israel's long tenure in the Land of Promise.

32:49 The mountains east of the river (Hebrew the mountains of Abarim) are a range of mountains overlooking the Jordan Valley. Mount Nebo, a prominent peak in this range, was the point from which Moses could view Canaan to the west and also where he died (32:50; see 3:17).

32:50 The location of Mount Hor is uncertain, but the traditional location (Jebel Haroun) is within sight of the Nabatean city of Petra (see 1:19; Num 20:22-29). • The phrase joined his ancestors is a euphemism for burial.

32:51 you betrayed me: During the wilderness sojourn, Moses dishonored the Lord by striking a water-producing rock. This fit of impatient anger disqualified Moses from entering the Promised Land (Num 20:1-13; see Deut 1:37; 3:26-27). • waters of Meribah at Kadesh: Hebrew waters of Meribath-kadesh.

33:2 upon us: As in Greek and Syriac versions; Hebrew reads upon them. • Mount Seir: See notes on 1:2 and 2:1; also see Judg 5:4. • Mount Paran is the highlands of Paran in the northeast region of the Sinai Peninsula (see 1:1). • came from Meribah-kadesh with flaming fire at his right hand (Or came from myriads of holy ones, from the south, from his mountain slopes. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain): This poetic account does not establish an itinerary that God followed. Instead, it portrays God in his splendor as he came at certain times and places to lead his people against their foes in God's war.

33:3 Indeed, he loves his people: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads Indeed, lover of the peoples. In covenant contexts, to love is frequently synonymous with to choose. The Lord does indeed love his people, but here it means that he chooses them as his special possession (4:20). • his hands: This phrase figuratively conveys the security that Israel (his holy ones) had in the Lord. • his steps: Following the Lord requires adopting his lifestyle and going where he goes. • His teaching refers particularly and pertinently to the Torah in all its fullness.

33:4 of Israel: Literally of Jacob. The names "Jacob" and "Israel" are often interchanged throughout the Old Testament, referring sometimes to the individual patriarch and sometimes to the nation. Hebrew probably uses Jacob because the tribes descended from Jacob's twelve sons are here listed by name as recipients of God's blessing (33:6-25; cp. Gen 49:1-28).

33:5 in Israel: Hebrew in Jeshurun, a term of endearment for Israel showing God's great love for his people. The noun is derived from a verb meaning "to be upright" (see 32:15).

"Let the tribe of Reuben live and not die out, though they are few in number."

"O LORD, hear the cry of Judah

⁸Moses said this about the tribe of Levi:

"O LORD, you have given your Thummim and Urim—the sacred lots—to your faithful servants the Levites.
You put them to the test at Massah and struggled with them at the waters of Meribah.

⁹The Levites obeyed your word and guarded your ^ccovenant.

They were more loyal to you than to their own parents.
They ignored their relatives and did not acknowledge their own children.

¹⁰They teach your regulations to Jacob;
they give your instructions to Israel.
They present incense before you and offer whole burnt offerings on the altar.

¹¹Bless the ministry of the Levites, O LORD, and accept all the work of their hands.

Hit their enemies where it hurts the most;
strike down their foes so they never rise again."

¹²Moses said this about the tribe of Benjamin:

"The people of Benjamin are loved by the
and live in safety beside him.
He surrounds them continuously

¹³Moses said this about the tribes of Joseph:

"May their land be blessed by the LORD with the precious gift of dew from the and water from beneath the earth; and the rich harvest produced each month;

¹⁵with the finest crops of the ancient mountains,
and the abundance from the ^eeverlasting hills;

¹⁶with the best gifts of the earth and its bounty, and the favor of the one who appeared in the burning bush.

33:7 Judah was Jacob's fourth son by Leah (Gen 29:35). The anticipated messianic ruler would come through this tribe. This promise was fulfilled first in David (Ruth 4:18-22; 1 Chr 2:3-15) and then in Jesus Christ (Matt 1:1-6a; see Gen 49:10).

33:8 Levi was Jacob's third son by Leah (Gen 29:34). The Levites, particularly those descended from Aaron, were entrusted with the priesthood (see Exod 28:1; 32:29; Num 3:9). • Thummim and Urim were precious stones embedded in or suspended from the breastpiece of the ephod, a garment worn by the chief priest. These stones could be consulted to determine God's will. Their names may be translated "perfections" and "lights," respectively (see note on Exod 28:30). • to your faithful servants the Levites: As in Greek version; Hebrew lacks the Levites. • Massah means

"[place of] testing," referring to an incident when the people ran out of water and tested the Lord (see note on 6:16; Exod 17:1-7). • Meribah means "[place of] contention," referring to another occasion when the people of Israel fought with the Lord until he brought them water from a rock (Num 20:13, 24).

33:9 guarded your covenant: The verse alludes to the incident of the gold calf at Mount Sinai (Exod 32:25-29) and to the affair at Baal-peor (Num 25:6-9). The Levites' love for the Lord and loyalty to his covenant eclipsed their devotion to their own families, averted God's judgment, and brought them the honor expressed here.

33:10 They teach your regulations . . . instructions: In addition to carrying out priestly duties such as sacrifices and otherwise assisting at the Tabernacle and the Temple, the Levites had the task of teaching the Torah (31:9-13). • present incense: This ministry was limited to Levitical priests (Num 16:39-40). Later, when King Uzziah entered the Temple to offer incense, he was roundly condemned for his arrogant breach of the priests' privilege and was afflicted by a skin disease for the rest of his life (2 Chr 26:16-21).

33:12 Benjamin was Jacob's youngest son (Gen 35:18; 49:27). Because Rachel was Jacob's favorite wife, Benjamin was also favored. His tribe was blessed by the Lord's special protection.

33:13-17 Joseph was Jacob's eleventh son (Gen 30:23-24) and his favorite child (Gen 37:3). Joseph and his two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, received Jacob's special blessing (Gen 48:1-22; 49:22-26). As a result, the tribes of Joseph prospered and multiplied, becoming two separate tribes.

33:16 the one who appeared in the burning bush: See Exod 3:2-4. The same Lord who favored Israel by rescuing them from bondage blessed the tribes of Joseph.

• the prince among his brothers: Joseph's dream that he would rule over his siblings was fulfilled when they submitted to him in Egypt (Gen 37:5-11; 42:6).

33:17 Ephraim is listed first because he received the blessing of the firstborn over Manasseh (Gen 48:8-22). Manasseh, the firstborn, would normally have received the double portion belonging to

Often in the Bible, God's love is understood in the ordinary sense that God has strongly affectionate feelings toward humankind. In certain contexts, such as the covenant document of Deuteronomy, love refers to God's commitment to his people.

In the ancient Near East, a conquering king would characteristically speak of his relationship to vassal peoples as a relationship of love, meaning that he had chosen those people to enjoy his favor and to benefit from his protection in exchange for their loyal service. Similarly, God chose Israel to be his servant nation not because the Israelites deserved it but because he loved them (7:6-11). Put another way, he loved them because he had chosen them.

The strongest affirmation of God's love-choice can be found in Mal 1:2-3. God chose Jacob but rejected Esau (Rom 9:13-26). God loves the entire world (John 3:16), but only those he chooses experience his saving grace (Eph 1:4; 2 Thes 2:13).

the firstborn (cp. 21:17), but Jacob gave it to Ephraim, Joseph's younger son. Moses' blessing reflects Jacob's blessing by listing the tribe of Ephraim as numbering in multitudes (literally tens of thousands) and Manasseh in thousands. After the conquest and establishment of the nation, Ephraim became the dominant tribe of the north; later, after the kingdom was divided following Solomon's death (1 Kgs 12), the name Ephraim was used interchangeably with Israel in speaking of the northern kingdom.

33:18 Zebulun and Issachar (Hebrew lacks and Issachar; the NLT adds it for clarity) were the sixth and fifth sons of Jacob by Leah (Gen 30:18, 20). • in their travels . . . in their tents: This figure of speech (a merism) encompasses life in all its fullness for both tribes, from activity (travels) to inactivity (tents).

33:19 to the mountain: Issachar was allotted much of the plains of Jezreel or Esdraelon. Mount Tabor, a prominent landmark of this region, was probably the mountain in view because later tradition knows this as a place of worship (Hos 5:1). The nature of that worship is unclear, but it was probably proper even though it was not carried out at the Temple (see 1 Kgs 18:30, 32). • The phrase riches of the sea might refer to the maritime industry of the people of Zebulun when their western border extended to the Mediterranean Sea (see Gen 49:13).

33:20 Gad was the elder of two sons of Jacob by Leah's servant Zilpah (Gen 30:10-11). His name means "good fortune," but the message is that the one who enables the tribe to enlarge its territory is the fortunate one. That territory was east of the Jordan and the Sea of Galilee.

33:21 the best land: Gad chose this territory prior to the conquest. It was the famously rich and productive land of Bashan (Num 32:1-5). The commendation of Gad for carrying out the Lord's justice and obeying his regulations probably refers to the tribe's faithfulness in assisting the western tribes in their conquest of Canaan (Josh 22:1-3).

33:22 Dan was the elder of two sons of Jacob by Rachel's servant Bilhah (Gen 30:5-6). The name means "he judged." The tribe of Dan was originally given territory between Judah and the Mediterranean. However, because of fierce hostility in that region, they were unable to settle there (Josh 19:40-48). The tribe then moved to the far north, destroyed the people who lived there, and settled in their place near Mount Hermon, north of the Sea of Galilee and adjacent to Bashan. The historical record doesn't mention Dan's staging area from which an attack was made against Laish, but the phrase leaping out from Bashan might suggest that Dan would attack from Bashan (Judg 18:27-28; see Gen 49:16-17).

33:23 Naphtali was the younger of two sons of Jacob by Rachel's servant Bilhah (Gen 30:7-8). The name means something like "my struggle." • the west and the south (or southward to the sea): The Hebrew word (yam) can mean either "west" or "sea." This phrase might refer to the region this tribe settled in near the Sea of Galilee (see Matt 4:12-17), known for its fishing and farming.

²⁴Moses said this about the tribe of Asher:

"May Asher be blessed above other sons;
may he be esteemed by his brothers;
may he bathe his feet in olive oil.

²⁵May the bolts of your gates be of iron and bronze;
may you be secure all your days."

²⁶"There is no one like the God of Israel. He rides across the heavens to help you, across the skies in majestic splendor.

²⁷The eternal God is your refuge, and his everlasting arms are under you.

He drives out the enemy before you; he cries out, 'Destroy them!'

²⁸So Israel will live in safety, prosperous Jacob in security, in a land of grain and new wine, while the heavens drop down dew.

²⁹How blessed you are, O Israel! Who else is like you, a people saved by the LORD?

He is your protecting 'shield and your triumphant sword!
Your enemies will cringe before you, and you will stomp on their backs!"

Narrative Epilogue: Moses' Death (34:1-12)

34 Then Moses went up to Mount Nebo from the plains of Moab and climbed Pisgah Peak, which is across from Jericho. And the LORD showed him the whole land, from Gilead as far as Dan; ²all the land of Naphtali; the land of Ephraim and Manasseh; all the land of Judah, extending to the Mediterranean Sea; ³the Negev; the Jordan Valley with Jericho—the city of palms—as far as Zoar. ⁴Then the LORD said to Moses, "This is the land I promised on oath to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob when I said, 'I will give it to your 'descendants.' I have now allowed you to see it with your own eyes, but you will not enter the land."

⁵So Moses, the servant of the LORD, died there in the land of Moab, just as the LORD had said. ⁶The LORD buried him in a valley near Beth-peor in Moab, but to this 33:27 God's everlasting arms suggest his eternal nature (he has always existed and always will), omnipotence (power), and care. God's power would evict the Canaanites from the Promised Land so that Israel could enter and occupy it.

33:29 stomp on their backs: Treading on an enemy's back figuratively meant having complete victory over him. The word backs can also be translated "high places," meaning the heights of the land and the traditional places of pagan worship—a way of suggesting total physical and spiritual conquest. The LORD promised to lead the way and guarantee success in the forthcoming conquest (see 11:24-25; Josh 1:3; 14:9; cp. Amos 4:13; Mic 1:3; Hab 3:15).

34:1-12 Moses fell short of entry into the land of promise (see note on 32:51), but God did permit him to share a moment of glory in the land at Jesus' transfiguration (Luke 9:28-36).

34:1 Mount Nebo is a high elevation in the Abarim hills east of the Jordan River. Virtually the whole land west of the Jordan can be seen from this vantage point (32:49). • Nebo was part of Pisgah Peak (see note on 3:17). • Gilead as far as Dan was the northernmost part of the land. The Sea of Galilee and Mount Hermon lie straight north from Nebo.

Gilead is just east of the Sea, and Dan (Laish; Judg 18:29) was south and west of Hermon.

34:2 The land of Naphtali was northwest of Nebo and west of the Sea of Galilee. • The land of Ephraim and Manasse was a large area to the west-northwest of Nebo, the present West Bank area of Palestine. • The land of Judah lay to the immediate west-southwest of Nebo, from the Jordan River to the Mediterranean Sea (literally the western sea).

34:3 The desert region of the Negev (meaning "desert" or "south") extends south from Judah to the Gulf of Eilat (or Aqaba) and thus to the far southwest of Mount Nebo. • Jericho . . . as far as Zoar: These two sites marked the northern and southern ends of the Jordan Valley from the viewpoint of Mount Nebo. Zoar was a city of the plain that was not destroyed in the days of Abraham and Lot (see Gen 19:21-22, 30).

34:4 you will not enter: See note on 32:51.

34:6 The LORD buried him: Literally He buried him; Samaritan Pentateuch and some Greek manuscripts read They buried him. • Beth-peor was where Israel engaged in pagan ritual (see 3:29; 4:3; Num 25) and where Moses presented his farewell address (see 4:44-46). • The phrase to this day refers to the time of Deuteronomy's final composition (see Introduction to the Pentateuch, "Authorship," p. 11).

33:24 Asher was the younger of two sons of Jacob by Leah's servant Zilpah (Gen 30:12-13). The name means "happy" or "blessed," evident in the abundance of olive oil from the orchards that cover the lower Galilean hills and Mount Carmel, as well as the security from danger that these hills and other natural formations provided (33:25).

33:26 of Israel: Hebrew of Jeshurun; see note on 32:15. • He rides across the heavens: Moses' blessing of the tribes climaxes with praise to the LORD. Like a mighty warrior, God rides triumphantly through the skies on chariots of cloud (see 1:30).

day no one knows the exact place. ⁷Moses was 120 years old when he died, yet his eyesight was clear, and he was as strong as ever. ⁸The people of Israel mourned for Moses on the plains of Moab for thirty days, until the customary period of mourning was over.

⁹Now Joshua son of Nun was full of the ^hspirit of wisdom, for Moses had laid his hands on him. So the people of Israel obeyed him, doing just as the LORD had commanded Moses.

¹⁰There has never been another prophet in Israel like Moses, whom the LORD knew face to face. ¹¹The LORD sent him to perform all the miraculous signs and wonders in the land of Egypt against Pharaoh, and all his servants, and his entire land. ¹²With mighty power, Moses performed terrifying acts in the sight of all Israel.

34:7 At age 120, Moses was as strong as ever and in full possession of his faculties. He did not fail to enter Canaan because he died; he died because he failed to enter Canaan.

34:9 full of the spirit of wisdom: When Joshua was selected as Moses' successor, he had to be invested with the Spirit of God to fill the office (Num 27:15-23; cp. Num 11:16-30). Now that Moses had died, God showed that Joshua was Moses' divinely appointed successor by giving continuing evidence of the Spirit's power and blessing.

34:10 face to face: Moses and the Lord had an intimate relationship, and there was no need for an intercessor between them. Aaron and Miriam once challenged Moses' leadership and were severely rebuked by the Lord (Num 12:8), who reminded them that they were ordinary prophets that received revelation by dreams and visions. Moses was not such a prophet. God said, "I speak to him face to face, clearly, and not in riddles" (Num 12:8). No other prophet in OT times could rival Moses' relationship with God (see note on 18:15).

34:11 signs and wonders: See note on 6:22.

34:12 terrifying acts in the sight of all Israel: The people of Israel as well as the Egyptians were impressed by the power of God. They needed a constant reminder to submit to him in reverential fear (see 4:10; 5:29; 6:2; Prov 1:7).

INTRODUCTION TO THE OLD TESTAMENT HISTORICAL BOOKS

*"Believers will be persuaded that they hold in their hands an absolutely unique literary creation. . . .
It must be addressed as the word of God with all that implies concerning its worth and authority as historical source."*

Eugene H. Merrill, Kingdom of Priests, p. 16

The Old Testament books from Joshua to Esther tell the story of the ancient nation of Israel from its entrance into the Promised Land to its return from exile during the era of Zerubbabel, Ezra, and Nehemiah. We meet illustrious leaders of Israel such as Joshua, Gideon, Samuel, David, and Solomon. We meet notable prophets such as Elijah and Elisha, and godly women such as Ruth, Hannah, and Esther. We read of spectacular events such as the fall of the walls of Jericho, the day the sun stood still, David's slaying of the giant Goliath, and the building of Solomon's Temple.

These books illustrate that people who forsake God will experience his judgment and failure, whereas those who honor and serve God will receive his blessings, fulfillment, and satisfaction. In our own age, when the study of history is often seen as irrelevant compared to great technical advances, the OT historical books remind us that those who ignore the past are doomed to repeat its errors.

SETTING AND SUMMARY

The OT historical books (Joshua—Esther) tell Israel's story from the conquest of Canaan to the time of Israel's exile and return.

Conquest and Settlement

Israel's conquest and settling in Canaan are recorded in the book of Joshua. Joshua encountered only a group of disorganized Canaanite city-states. With God's help, Israel was able to take possession of the land they had been promised.

Tribal Fragmentation, Oppression, and Period of the Judges

Following Joshua's death, Israel's loss of vital worship led to growing political fragmentation, which allowed nearby nations to gain sufficient strength to harass God's people. The surrounding Arameans, Moabites, and Canaanites each launched a series of oppressions against the Israelite tribes, as recorded in the book of Judges. By the mid-1100s BC, other small nations became oppressive—the Midianites to the south, the Ammonites to the east, and the Philistines to the west. The Philistines remained a threat until David's time.

In addition to oppression, the people of Israel also experienced natural disasters such as famines. One such famine forms the background for events in the book of Ruth. By the end of the Judges era, Israel's degraded situation was characterized by chaos and brutality (Judg 21:25; see Judg 19–21; cp. 1 Sam 2:12–36).

United Kingdom (1050~931 BC)

During the time of Samuel, Israel's last judge (1 Sam 1–7), Israel made a decisive change: The people asked Samuel to give them a king. The Lord responded by appointing Saul as Israel's first king (1 Sam 8–10).

Saul's reign as king was characterized by disobedience to the Lord and ongoing conflict with the Philistines to the west. After Saul was killed by the Philistines (1 Sam 31; 2 Sam 1), David began reigning in Judah, while Saul's son Ishbosheth ruled Israel's northern tribes. After seven years of conflict, Ishbosheth was killed and David was crowned king of a united Israel (2 Sam 5, about 1004 BC). During his reign, David brought many of the surrounding peoples into subjection, including the Philistines (2 Sam 5:17–25; 8:1–14).

Israel became a recognized power in the ancient Near East during the reign of David, and especially during the reign of his son Solomon (971–931 BC; 1 Kgs 1–11). With the traditional superpowers in decline and the lesser nearby states in subjection, Solomon's strong kingdom and commercial ventures brought prosperity at home and good relations abroad.

Divided Kingdom (931–722 bc)

After Solomon's death and as a result of his sins (1 Kgs 11:29-39), internal tensions between the north and south erupted, and the kingdom was divided (1 Kgs 12). In the north, Jeroboam son of Nebat founded the kingdom of Israel, while in the south, Solomon's son Rehoboam retained rule over the kingdom of Judah. The early part of this era was marked by skirmishes between the two kingdoms and an invasion by the Egyptian Pharaoh Shishak (Shoshenq I) in 926 bc.

Beginning with Israel's third dynasty (Omri-Joram, 885–841 bc), the two Israelite kingdoms were increasingly caught up in political turmoil that grew with the rising power and expansion of Assyria. By 841 bc, Assyrian king Shalmaneser III (858–824 bc) extended Assyria's dominance westward into Aram, bringing some stability to the area. When Shalmaneser was occupied elsewhere, however, Israel was plagued by renewed Aramean incursions under Hazael (2 Kgs 13:3). Relief came only with the intervention of an Assyrian king, probably Adad-nirari III (810–783 bc; see 2 Kgs 13:4-5). After Adad-nirari's death, weak kings ruled Assyria, so Assyrian domination declined, and the twin kingdoms of Israel and Judah were able to gather their strength and expand their influence. Israel under Jeroboam II (793–753 bc, 2 Kgs 14:23-25) and Judah under Uzziah (792–740 bc, 2 Chr 26:1-15) achieved their greatest power since Solomon.

After Jeroboam II died in 752 bc, kings of lesser ability often vied with one another for supremacy, and the northern kingdom fell into chaos. Judah's spiritual fiber also went into decline with the accession of Uzziah's grandson Ahaz (743–715 bc).

External conditions were changing also. In Assyria, a usurper named Tiglath-pileser III (744–727 bc) occupied the throne. During his reign Assyria blossomed into the mighty Neo-Assyrian empire. His successor, Shalmaneser V, destroyed the northern kingdom of Israel (722 bc) and took its people into exile.

Kingdom of Judah (722–586 bc)

Although Judah survived for over a century after the kingdom of Israel fell in 722 bc, only two good kings reigned during this period: Hezekiah (728–686 bc) and Josiah (640–609 bc). Judah was plagued by apostasy and caught in the web of international intrigue involving the declining Assyria, the growing Neo-Babylonian empire, and a strengthened Egypt. With Josiah's death, Judah's fate was already sealed. Judah and Jerusalem suffered a series of Babylonian invasions (605, 597, 588 bc) that brought the southern kingdom to an end in 586 bc. Jerusalem was sacked, the Temple was destroyed, and many of the people were taken to Babylon in exile.

Exile and Return (605–400 bc)

The period of exile is described by several Israelite prophets (Jer 39:11–44:30; Ezekiel; Daniel). Judah's exile lasted until Cyrus II of Persia conquered Babylon in October, 539 bc, and brought the Neo-Babylonian empire to an end.

After Cyrus defeated Babylon, Persia became the dominant power. Cyrus issued decrees that allowed exiled peoples to return to their native lands and rebuild them. This included a decree allowing the Jews to return to Jerusalem (538 bc, Ezra 1:1-4), which they did (Ezra 1:5–2:70). By early autumn of 537 bc, the altar in Jerusalem was rebuilt and the sacrificial service was reestablished (Ezra 3:1-6). With the prophetic encouragement of Haggai and Zechariah, the rebuilt Temple was completed in 515 bc despite opposition (Ezra 3–6).

Several decades later, the Jewish people were rescued from possible extermination. Many of the Jews had remained in foreign lands, and around 480 bc one of them, named Esther, became queen of Persia. While she was queen, she intervened to save the Jewish people (Esth 1–10). The Festival of Purim was celebrated at that time and became one of the traditional Jewish feasts.

A couple decades later, Ezra the priest returned to Jerusalem in 458 bc to stimulate civil and spiritual reform (Ezra 7–10). In 445 bc, Nehemiah returned from Persia to oversee rebuilding Jerusalem's walls and to effect further reforms. The last books of the OT were also written during this time: Malachi sometime in the 400s bc, 1–2 Chronicles around 400 bc, and Ezra—Esther around the same time. Judea remained under Persian control until Alexander the Great defeated the Persian empire in 331 bc.

HISTORICAL AND LITERARY ISSUES

The historical chronology of the OT is covered in separate articles (see "The Chronology of Israel's Monarchy," p. 562; "The Historical Background of Israel's Exile and Return," p. 782). Specific historical issues are also examined in the introductions to the various books.

Narrative as History

The OT historical books contain all the usual elements of narrative, such as plot, characterization, and point of view. In writing history, the authors portray people in ways that reveal their personal character and their roles in events.

Modern historians who take pride in their analytic, factual approach sometimes look askance at the biblical histories, which tell a compelling story rather than presenting a dispassionate record. This difference may be misleading, however. Modern historians are confronted with the distance between themselves and the time they study; they are dependent upon the accuracy of their sources, and they are often faced with gaps in the materials. They also sometimes select sources so as to harmonize with their particular view of historiography. Using an objective voice does not guarantee greater objectivity or truthfulness. "The modern writer's purpose in writing a history, then, is important, and it is usually inseparable from his or her own background, experience, philosophies, and so on."¹ Modern historians are just as likely to shape their work around their own perspective as the ancients were. Wisdom and insight are always needed to interpret the factual data of history and write an accurate and compelling account.

The use of narrative techniques and the existence of perspective in the writing do not in themselves cast doubt on reliability. In fact, appreciating a biblical author's point of view helps us to understand his purpose in writing the account.

Date and Sources of Writing

Although the existing OT historical books were compiled and edited much later than the events they describe, they need not be assumed to be inaccurate, because they are based on earlier records. Both Kings and Chronicles, for example, cite many of their sources (see, e.g., "Sources Consulted by the Chronicler," p. 742). Their sources include such documents as the annals and court memoirs of various kings (e.g., 1 Kgs 11:41) and short historical abstracts (e.g., 2 Kgs 25:22-30).

Ideally, historical sources can be supported by other sources, which validate and authenticate them as reliable records. As it turns out, all of the historical books of the OT can be supported by a host of texts from the nations of the ancient Near East as well as by archaeological data.² These sources are of immense importance in helping to build a coherent picture of the history of Israel and the surrounding nations. With the help of these sources, it is reasonable to conclude that "we have a consistent level of good, fact-based correlations right through from circa 2000 BC . . . to 400 BC. In terms of general reliability . . . the Old Testament comes out remarkably well."³ Moreover, a growing body of archaeological data, both textual and material, illumines and authenticates the historical, linguistic, literary, and cultural background of the Bible.

INTERPRETATION

All available evidence suggests that the OT historical books faithfully and accurately reflect the history of ancient Israel, so readers should approach them as history. Within that basic guideline, readers should follow several important steps:

- Examine any individual historical account by noting its literary boundaries as well as its function within the full historical presentation.

- Compare the data recorded with other scriptural passages covering the same event(s).
- Use relevant material from the records of other ancient Near Eastern peoples.
- Look for the author's purpose and goals in recording the event(s) he has selected.
- Apply the meaning of the text to contemporary issues and personal needs.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Fidelity to God

The unifying theme of the OT historical books is fidelity to God. Individual and national success in Israel was directly attributable to the people's commitment to God. Times of obedience brought blessing; disobedience brought judgment and failure. Faithfulness and surrender to God enabled Israel to enter the Promised Land and divide it among its twelve tribes (Joshua). Deepening apostasy in the era of the judges brought moral failure, political and civil upheaval, and incursions from hostile nations. In those troubled times, Ruth shines as an example of how God blesses his people's faithfulness.

Israel's demand for a king did little to alleviate conditions, for Saul's establishment of a monarchy brought scant spiritual progress, and Saul failed to meet God's standards (1 Samuel). David stands in contrast to Saul. Despite his occasional moral lapses, David's heart for God earned God's approval, and political stability emerged (2 Sam 5-24; 1 Chr 1-21). God also made an unconditional covenant with David to bless Israel through his heirs (2 Sam 7; 1 Chr 17). David also prepared for the building of the Temple (1 Chr 22-29).

Faithfulness to God brought widespread success (1 Kgs 1-11), but spiritual decay occasioned the division of the kingdom (1 Kgs 12) and eventually brought the demise of both Israel and Judah and the deportation of many of God's people (1 Kgs 12-2 Kgs 25). When his people again became obedient and mindful of him, God directed international affairs so that his people could return to their land with a new potential for experiencing his blessings (Ezra, Nehemiah).

The Importance of Godly Leadership

A second theme of the OT historical books is the importance of godly leadership. Joshua guided the people in the conquest and division of the land. Judges such as Deborah, Gideon, and Samuel stemmed the advance of apostasy. When David and Solomon committed themselves to God, God blessed the people and had Solomon build the Lord's Temple in Jerusalem. Ungodly leaders led the people into moral and political failure, while godly kings such as Jehoshaphat, Hezekiah, and Josiah prolonged God's blessings. The people could also look to prophets such as Elijah, Elisha, and Isaiah during the divided monarchy, and to Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi after Israel returned to the land.

God's Faithfulness to His Promises

A third theme is that God is faithful to his covenant promises. The conquest of the Promised Land bore testimony to God's covenant keeping (Josh 21:43-45). Israel's periods of success and judgment bore further witness to God's upholding of the covenant formed at Sinai. Additional blessings came through God's covenant with David, in which the earlier covenant with Abraham would be channeled through David's line. From that line an everlasting King would emerge—the Messiah who would establish God's Kingdom. In the Messiah the anticipated messianic kingship, redemption, righteousness, and blessing would be realized (Gen 49:10; Num 24:17-19; Deut 17:15; cp. 2 Chr 6:42).

THE BOOK OF Joshua

The account of Israel's soldiers walking around Jericho until its walls came tumbling down is one of the most famous in the Bible. Joshua had served as Moses' apprentice, so when God appointed Joshua as Israel's leader, he was ready. He led the Israelites across the Jordan River and through two campaigns that enabled them to settle the hill country of Canaan. As they began to live there, Joshua divided the land among Israel's twelve tribes. The book of Joshua reveals much about God, who judges sin and faithfully keeps his promises.

SETTING

When Israel left Egypt, they left a nation that had been the most powerful, prosperous, and secure on earth. But God intervened on Israel's behalf, and Egypt was devastated. Then the Israelites spent forty years in the wilderness because they refused to believe that God could do for them in Canaan what he had already done in bringing them out of Egypt. The disbelieving generation died and a new generation came of age. The new generation believed God's promises and was ready to invade the land of Canaan.

Ancient Canaan was subdivided by geographical features into four narrow north-south strips. (1) The eastern border of Israel's settlement was on the plateau of Transjordan (the land "across the Jordan"). (2) Looking westward from Transjordan, the land drops steeply into the deep cut of the Great Rift Valley, where the Jordan River valley lies. The deepest dry point of this valley, the shores of the Dead Sea, marks the lowest dry land on the surface of the earth. (3) Continuing westward, the central hill country runs from the mountains and hills of Galilee in the north to the Negev in the south. (4) The Coastal Plain lies along the Mediterranean, interrupted near its northern end by the ridge of Mount Carmel that juts into the sea.

◀ The Setting of Joshua. The geography of the Promised Land is defined by several north-south regions: the plateau of TRANSJORDAN (the area "across the Jordan"); the deep Jordan River valley; the central HILL COUNTRY; the SHEPHELAH ("western foothills"); and the COASTAL PLAIN along the MEDITERRANEAN SEA. In the narrative of Joshua, Israel began at ACACIA GROVE in Transjordan, crossed the JORDAN RIVER, conquered JERICO and the central hill country, and took up settlements in the regions that had been cleared.

Much of Canaan was organized into small city-states, each with its own king. These city-states were grouped in ever-shifting coalitions. The assembling of a southern and then a northern coalition against the invading Israelites was as close to total unity as these city-states ever came. However, even these coalitions were not enough to save the Canaanites.

SUMMARY

The story told in the first half of Joshua (chs 1–12) is among the most dramatic in the Bible. In preparing Israel to cross the Jordan, Joshua sent two young men to scout out Jericho, a town Israel would have to conquer in order to enter the hill country. The young scouts were aided by Rahab, and they promised to spare her and her family in return for her help (ch 2). As the priests stepped into the waters of the Jordan, the river's flow temporarily ceased so that the Israelites could cross (ch 3). Israel did not conquer Jericho; God gave them the city by causing its walls to fall (ch 6).

Possession of Jericho opened the routes that ascended westward into the hill country. Yet God was displeased when a man named Achan disobeyed his instructions, and Israel suffered a setback before Achan's sin was discovered and judged (ch 7). God then gave Joshua a resounding victory over the hastily gathered coalition of southern Canaanite city-states; God even granted Joshua's request for the sun and moon to stand still until the victory was complete (ch 10). Joshua then turned northward, where he gained a similarly decisive victory over a northern coalition of city-states (ch 11). The entire hill country, from the Negev in the south to Upper Galilee in the north, now lay open for Israelite settlement.

The second half of Joshua (chs 13–24) is not as heart-thumping as the first half, yet its account of the allotment of territory to Israel's twelve tribes is informative and inspiring. The narrator describes in detail the territories given to Judah, Benjamin, and Joseph (chs 15–19); these tribes became the central tribes of Israel throughout its history. Caleb's and Joshua's inheritances begin and end this section of territorial allotments (chs 15, 19). The designation of six cities of refuge (ch 20) and the assignment of towns to the Levites within each tribal territory (ch 21) complete the process of allotting the land to the tribes. The 2½ tribes given the land on the east side of the Jordan River were then free to return home, but they had to work with the western tribes to clear up a misunderstanding about the building of a memorial (ch 22). Joshua's farewell (ch 23), his convening of the people to renew their covenant with God, and three important funerals (ch 24) conclude the narrative of Joshua.

AUTHOR AND DATE

Nowhere does the book of Joshua claim that Joshua was its author. Both the frequent occurrence of the phrase "to this day" and the reference to The Book of Jashar as a source for Joshua indicate that the book was written after Joshua's death. Yet the occurrence of the pronoun "we" in portions of the narrative provides evidence that at least some of the book is based on personal recollections of Joshua and of those under his command. It is likely that the book of Joshua existed in more or less its present form no later than Israel's early monarchy (the time of David and Solomon). The human author or authors of Joshua remain anonymous.

JOSHUA AS HISTORY

In the last two centuries, some scholars have attempted to discredit the historical validity of Joshua by arguing that Transjordan (the area east of the Jordan River) and the cities of Jericho and Ai were not occupied when Israel entered Canaan, so Israel could not have conquered them. However, archaeological surveys show that Transjordan was occupied when Israel entered Canaan and that Jericho was indeed destroyed as Joshua describes.

Other scholars argue that accounts having an explanatory purpose (such as those explaining the origin of a name) cannot be historical. However, although some explanatory accounts found in ancient texts are mythical or false, many others are historically accurate. The book of Joshua was probably first written down near the time of the events it includes. It shows every indication of being historically accurate, even though it does not answer every historical question readers might bring to it.

An air of joyful optimism pervades the book of Joshua. Its keynote is the fulfillment of the promise made to the forefathers regarding the possession of the land of Canaan.

Marten Woudstra

Joshua, p. 32

For most of the time that it has been part of the Scriptures, the book of Joshua has been regarded as reliable history. Joshua records only the broad outlines of Israel's entry into Canaan. As the world's earliest history writings, the books of Joshua, Judges, Samuel, and Kings stand in contrast with the epic, mythical, and royal self-congratulatory literature produced by surrounding cultures. These biblical books provide a selective history of ancient Israel in the land where God placed them. They were written from a prophetic perspective—from the same point of view as Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and the twelve Minor Prophets—which regarded Israel as living in a covenant relationship with God.

The book of Joshua neither states nor implies that Israel destroyed all of the Canaanites and their cities. Many Canaanites remained, as the following book of Judges also makes clear. The multi-generation history of Israel recorded in Judges shows that Israel gradually became stronger and absorbed the Canaanites. By the time of King David, most people of the land regarded themselves as Israelites, although some distinct groups still remained (e.g., 2 Sam 5:6-8; 24:16-18).

MEANING AND MESSAGE

The book of Joshua emphasizes the fulfillment of God's covenant promises to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. The patriarchs had traversed the land as resident aliens; now their descendants occupied it as the beneficiaries of God's faithfulness to his promise. Even the burials at the close of the book emphasize that point. Whereas Abraham had to buy a small parcel of land to bury Sarah, now Joseph, Joshua, and Eleazar were honored with burials in the territory God had given to their descendants.

God desires and pursues relationships with people. God began to bring the human race back to himself by calling out a man (Abraham), his family, and finally the nation descended from him (Israel), through whom he could bring redemption to the world. The book of Joshua demonstrates how God brought the Israelites into the land promised to their ancestors. The book proves that God speaks and acts with integrity, and it shows that God can be trusted to fulfill his promises.

The book of Joshua conveys this message in both subtle and obvious ways. The scouts' faithfulness to Rahab and her family reflects and affirms the faithfulness of the God who had brought them to her house. Caleb's inheritance at the beginning of the tribal allotments and Joshua's at the end bear testimony to God's recognition of those who remain faithful to him throughout their lifetime.

Joshua records that Israel constructed stone memorials throughout the country. These monuments served as visual aids for teaching generations of Israelite children about God's absolute faithfulness. These stone monuments crumbled or were carried away for use in construction, but the book of Joshua itself remains as an enduring memorial, still giving testimony of God's goodness and faithfulness.

The book of Joshua records disturbing events. Israel destroyed Jericho and Ai and all their people. Many Israelites, including Achan and his family, died because of Achan's sin. God fought the Canaanite coalitions that tried to prevent Israel from establishing themselves in the land. These and other episodes remind readers of the deadly seriousness of sin.

In a culture where women and their rights were held with little or no regard, Joshua records divine enlightenment. When the land was allocated among the clans of Manasseh, the daughters of Zelophehad received their father's inheritance, as God had instructed. Rahab's saving of the two young scouts in the dramatic opening episode of the book also provides a radically positive assessment of a woman's place in God's economy.

The book of Joshua has much for contemporary readers to ponder—about God himself, the consequences of human good and evil, and God's passionate commitment to human redemption and the restoration of the divine-human relationship.

Joshua Assumes Command in Israel (1:1-18)
The Lord's Charge to Joshua

1 After the death of Moses the LORD's servant, the LORD spoke to Joshua son of Nun, Moses' assistant. He said, ²"Moses my servant is dead. Therefore, the time has come for you to lead these people, the Israelites, across the Jordan River into the land I am giving them. ³I promise you what I promised Moses: 'Wherever you set foot, you will be on land I have given you—⁴from the Negev wilderness in the south to the Lebanon mountains in the north, from the Euphrates River in the east to the Mediterranean Sea in the west, including all the land of the Hittites.' ⁵No one will be able to stand against you as long as you live. For I will be with you as I was with Moses. I will not fail you or ^aabandon you.

⁶"Be strong and courageous, for you are the one who will lead these people to possess all the land I swore to their ancestors I would give them. ⁷Be strong and very courageous. God made Abraham a specific promise to bring his descendants into possession of the land of Canaan (Gen 12:7; 15:7; 17:8). God repeated his promise to Moses (Exod 3:6-8; 13:3-5; Deut 1:6-8; 6:10-19). Now God was ready to fulfill his promise, using Moses' successor, Joshua, to begin the process.

God always keeps his unconditional promises. Joshua led Israel's first generation of settlers into the Promised Land, and his victories against two Canaanite coalitions—first in the south and then in the north—opened the hill country for settlement by the Israelites.

Whether or not an individual or a whole generation benefits from God's faithfulness depends on obedience. The history of God's people in the OT era alternates between their partnering with God—and enjoying the fulfillment of his generous promises—and their turning from God and reaping the harvests of defeat, dispersion, and death.

Just as God fulfilled through Joshua the promise of land to Abraham and Moses, he later fulfilled through Jesus the promise of an unfailing dynasty to David (2 Sam 7:11-16; see Matt 21:9; Rev 11:15). God's fulfillment of his promises will continue into eternity.

1:1-9 God confirmed Joshua as Israel's leader and Moses' successor.

1:1-2 Moses had died on Mount Nebo east of the Jordan (Deut 34:1-5).

1:3 Moses' death did not end God's presence with or guidance of Israel.

1:4 Ancient Israel's southernmost settlement was in the Negev, in the vicinity of Beersheba (15:28). Israel's northernmost tribes settled in portions of the Lebanon mountains, which made them neighbors of the Sidonians. • the Mediterranean Sea: Literally the Great Sea. • The Hittites were one of the subgroups that made up Canaan's population (see note on 3:10).

1:5 God promised never to fail or abandon Joshua, just as he had promised Moses (cp. Deut 31:6-8).

1:6-9 For emphasis, God told Joshua three times that he would need to be strong and courageous in order to be successful against the Canaanites, who outnumbered Israel. The people would also need to be careful to obey all the instructions Moses had given them if Israel were to settle the land, establish productive farms, and build homes, villages, and cities. The land is God's land, as is the whole earth (Ps 24:1); God brought Israel into Canaan as tenants, not as owners (Lev 25:23).

1:6 you are the one: God delegated Joshua as the primary agent to fulfill the promise he had given to their ancestors (see Exod 6:8).

1:8 This Book of Instruction (Hebrew torah) probably refers to the book of Deuteronomy (see Deut 4:44; 29:21; 30:10; 31:9-12). It includes Israel's foundational law codes as well as God's moral and spiritual instructions (see Introduction to the Pentateuch, "Literary Genres," p. 11). • God commanded Joshua to think and speak of God's instruction day and night—i.e., continually (cp. Deut 6:6-7; 17:18-20).

1:9 As the Israelites entered Canaan, they would fight the worshipers of the Canaanite gods, but they were afraid these gods would grant the Canaanites victory in battle. In reassuring Joshua, God used his personal name the LORD (Hebrew Yahweh; see note on Exod 3:15) to remind Joshua that the Lord was more powerful than any false gods the Canaanites might invoke. • your God is with you: God's continuous presence made it possible for Joshua to heed God's instruction.

1:10 commanded: Joshua now began leading God's people.

Joshua, son of Nun, was Moses' assistant and successor as Israel's leader. Joshua brought the young nation across the Jordan River into Canaan. He faithfully followed God's leadership.

Before Israel reached Mount Sinai, Joshua led Israel's warriors when Amalek attacked Israel (Exod 17:8-13). Shortly thereafter, he was among the twelve men Moses sent to scout the Promised Land (Num 13:8, 16). Joshua and Caleb urged Israel to occupy Canaan immediately (Num 14:6-9), and only they entered Canaan (Num 14:30, 38).

God directed Moses to designate Joshua as his successor (Num 27:15-23; Deut 34:9). After Moses died, Joshua led Israel across the Jordan River (1:1-18; 3:1-4:24) to the conquest of Jericho (6:1-27). When Israel suffered defeat at Ai, Joshua turned to the Lord and followed his instructions to purge Israel of sin (7:1-26); then Israel conquered Ai (8:1-29). Following God's instructions to Moses (Deut 11:29-32; 27:1-28:68), Joshua built an altar on Mount Ebal (8:30-32) and read the blessings and curses of the covenant (8:33-35). Joshua conducted campaigns against two coalitions of Canaanite kings, a southern and a northern coalition (10:1-43; 11:1-15). Joshua's victories in these campaigns opened the hill country to settlement by the Israelites.

After supervising the allotment of territories to the tribes of Israel, Joshua received his own portion in Ephraim (19:49-50). He established the cities of refuge (ch 20) and Levitical cities (ch 21) and released the 2½ tribes that had settled east of the Jordan River to return home (ch 22). As he grew old, Joshua charged Israel to remain faithful to God (chs 23-24). His farewell message at Shechem summarized God's dealings with Israel and concluded with the familiar challenge, "Choose today whom you will serve. . . . But as for me and my family, we will serve the LORD" (24:15). Joshua died at the age of 110 and was buried in Timnath-serah (24:29-30; see also Judg 2:8-9).

Joshua demonstrated exceptional faithfulness throughout his life, except in dealing with the Gibeonites (ch 9). Israel served God faithfully under Joshua and the elders Joshua trained (24:31; Judg 2:7). Stephen mentions Joshua in his martyr's sermon (Acts 7:45), and the writer of Hebrews uses Joshua's conquest of Jericho as an illustration of faith (Heb 11:30). It is fitting that Joshua and Jesus are the same name in Hebrew: Joshua led Israel into physical salvation in Canaan; Jesus leads all who believe him into eternal salvation.

13-14). The current generation would now enter from the east, across the Jordan River.

1:12-15 Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh had requested and received from Moses the conquered land east of the Jordan (Num 32:33).

1:13 God wanted the people of Israel to experience the spiritual, cultural, and emotional rest of a right relationship with him and each other, not just the physical rest of living in a secure and abundant land (see Heb 4:1-11).

1:14 The warriors of the 2½ tribes had promised to cross the Jordan with the rest of Israel to help them conquer their land (Num 32:16-19). Joshua reminded them of their obligation.

1:17 Israel often did not obey . . . Moses. However, the tribes living east of the Jordan did cross with the rest of Israel, and they did not return to their own land and homes until Joshua dismissed them (22:6).

1:18 Disobeying God's chosen ruler was treason against God himself.

Joshua Sends Spies into Jericho (2:1-24)Rahab Hides Two Israelite Spies

2 Then Joshua secretly sent out two spies from the Israelite camp at Acacia Grove. He instructed them, "Scout out the land on the other side of the Jordan River, especially around Jericho." So the two men set out and came to the house of a prostitute named Rahab and stayed there that night.

²But someone told the king of Jericho, "Some Israelites have come here tonight to spy out the land." ³So the king of Jericho sent orders to Rahab: "Bring out the men who have come into your house, for they have come here to spy out the whole land."

⁴Rahab had hidden the two men, but she replied, "Yes, the men were here earlier, but I didn't know where they were from. ⁵They left the town at dusk, as the gates were about to close. I don't know where they went. If you hurry, you can probably catch up with them." ⁶(Actually, she had taken them up to the roof and hidden them beneath bundles of flax she had laid out.) ⁷So the king's men went looking for the spies along the road leading to the shallow crossings of the Jordan River. And as soon as the king's men had left, the gate of Jericho was shut.

Rahab Asks That Her Family Be Spared

⁸Before the spies went to sleep that night, Rahab went up on the roof to talk with them. ⁹"I know the LORD has given you this land," she told them. "We are all afraid of you. Everyone in the land is living in terror. ¹⁰For we have heard how the LORD made a dry path for you through the Red Sea when Rahab, a prostitute and a woman of faith, remains enigmatic centuries after her brief appearance in Israel's history. Because she placed her faith in Israel's God and helped the two young Israelite scouts who came to her house, her life was spared when Israel captured Jericho. Because Rahab's house stood on the wall of the city, Joshua's scouts went there when they entered Jericho. Rahab might have been an innkeeper as well as a prostitute; other documents from the OT era record women innkeepers who were also prostitutes. If Rahab's house was in fact an inn, it would have been a reasonable destination; Joshua's scouts could hope they would not attract unwanted attention.

Rahab's arrangement with the scouts was a stirring declaration of faith in Yahweh, Israel's God (2:8-21). As a Canaanite woman, Rahab would have practiced the fertility cult of Baal, god of the storm and life-giving rain, and of his consort Asherah, the mother earth goddess. Yet based on reports of Israel's progress toward her land, Rahab recognized that Yahweh, the God of Israel, is "the supreme God of the heavens above and the earth below" (2:11).

After Joshua's conquest of Jericho, Rahab married Salmon of the tribe of Judah; she gave birth to a son, whom they named Boaz (Ruth 4:21; Matt 1:5). Thus, Rahab was the mother-in-law of Ruth, another foreign woman adopted into Israel. Rahab was King David's great-great-grandmother. She is listed with Moses, David, Samson, and Samuel as examples of faith demonstrated by good deeds (Heb 11:31; Jas 2:25). She is one of five women (including Mary) mentioned in Matthew's genealogy of Jesus, the human family tree of God's Son (Matt 1:5). Along with these outsiders and their stories, Rahab bears especially poignant witness to the breathtaking scope of God's grace.

2:1-24 Like any good military commander, Joshua sent out spies or scouts to get information about his objective. • Because Israel planned to approach Canaan from the east, they could not bypass Jericho.

2:1 Acacia Grove (Hebrew Shittim) was about eight miles east of the Jordan River on the plains of Moab, across from Jericho (see Num 25:1). • In the house of a prostitute strangers could avoid unwanted attention. According to tradition, Rahab was an innkeeper as well as a prostitute (Josephus, Antiquities 5.1.2). Other evidence from the ancient Near East suggests that women who owned and operated inns were often prostitutes.

2:2 The spies' speech probably gave them away. Hebrew and Canaanite were both dialects of the same language but with differences in vocabulary and grammar.

2:3 Jericho's king assumed Rahab was both loyal to the city and unaware of the men's mission.

2:4-5 It is not necessary either to condone or condemn Rahab's lying to the king's messengers. She might have had no concept of any ethical standards God had given Israel. Or the higher ethical value of saving lives might supersede the normal requirement to be truthful.

2:6 The inner fibers of flax were processed to make linen. The first step involved laying out the flax stems to dry on the flat rooftop.

2:7 Medium-sized towns such as Jericho had one main gate made of two very large wooden doors reinforced with bronze. The gate was barred for the night and opened again in the morning. By shutting the gate immediately after the pursuers departed, the authorities took a sensible precaution: If the spies had not left the town as Rahab implied, they might still be found in Jericho during the night.

2:9-10 Rahab began to declare her you left Egypt. And we know what you did to Sihon and Og, the two Amorite kings east of the Jordan River, whose people you completely destroyed. ¹¹No wonder our hearts have melted in fear! No one has the courage to fight after hearing such things. For the LORD your God is the supreme God of the heavens above and the earth below.

¹²"Now swear to me by the LORD that you will be 'kind to me and my family since I have 'helped you. Give me some guarantee that ¹³when Jericho is conquered, you will let me live, along with my father and mother, my brothers and sisters, and all their families."

The Scarlet Cord Becomes the Sign

¹⁴"We offer our own lives as a guarantee for your safety," the men agreed. "If you don't betray us, we will keep our promise and be kind to you when the LORD gives us the land."

¹⁵Then, since Rahab's house was built into the town wall, she let them down by a rope through the window. ¹⁶"Escape to the hill country," she told them. "Hide there for three days from the men searching for you. Then, when they have returned, you can go on your way."

¹⁷Before they left, the men told her, "We will be bound by the oath we have taken only if you follow these instructions. ¹⁸When we come into the land, you must leave this scarlet rope hanging from the window through which you let us down. And all your family members—your father, mother, brothers, and all your relatives—must be here inside the house. ¹⁹If they go out into the street and are killed, it will not be our fault. But if anyone lays a hand on people inside this house, we will accept the responsibility for their death. ²⁰If you betray us, however, we are not bound by this oath in any way."

²¹"I accept your terms," she replied. And she sent them on their way, leaving the scarlet rope hanging from the window.

²²The spies went up into the hill country and stayed there three days. The men who were chasing them searched everywhere along the road, but they finally returned without success.

²³Then the two spies came down from the hill country, crossed the Jordan River, and reported to Joshua all that had happened to them. ²⁴"The LORD has given us the whole land," they said, "for all the people in the land are terrified of us."

Israel Crosses the Jordan River (3:1–5:1) Israel Prepares to Cross the Jordan

3 Early the next morning Joshua and all the Israelites left Acacia Grove and arrived at the banks of the Jordan River, where they camped before crossing. ²Three days later the Israelite officers went through the camp, ³giving these instructions to the people: "When you see the Levitical priests carrying the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD your God, move out from your positions and follow them. ⁴Since you have never traveled this way before, they will guide you. Stay about half a mile behind them, keeping a clear distance between you and the Ark. Make sure you don't come any closer."

◀ Spies Sent to Jericho (2:1-24). From Israel's camp at ACACIA GROVE, the two spies traveled to JERICHO, where they hid for the night, then went on into the hill country (probably near BETHEL and Ai) before returning to Israel's camp.

2:12-13 Rahab's request demonstrated her faith in Israel and Israel's God.

2:14 When Israel attacked Jericho, Joshua and the two spies kept their promise to spare Rahab (6:22).

2:15 Because Rahab's house stood on the town wall, she could hide the men on the flat roof of her house (2:6) and let them out through the window, down the outer side of the wall.

2:16 The hill country of central Canaan began its steep rise just west of Jericho. Thinking that the two spies would head directly to Israel's camp across the Jordan, the pursuers from Jericho would naturally head eastward. When the pursuers gave up, the spies could slip across the Jordan unhindered.

2:19 it will not be our fault. But . . . we will accept the responsibility: The spies used a standard formula to accept responsibility for any of Rahab's family remaining with her in her house, but not for those who did not.

2:23-24 The spies' report surely raised the spirits and morale of the Israelites.

3:1 Israel had camped at Acacia Grove (Hebrew Shittim; see note on 2:1) since before Balaam's oracles (Num 22-24).

3:3 The Ark of the Covenant of the LORD was God's dwelling place among the Israelites and symbolized his throne. Whenever Israel moved, a contingent of priests carried the Ark before them (Exod 25:13-15; Num 10:33-36).

3:4 Stay about half a mile (Hebrew about 2,000 cubits [920 meters]) behind them: God did not want his people to take his presence for granted. They were to acknowledge his holiness with reverence, respect, and awe.

faith in the LORD. • made a dry path: God had parted the waters of the Red Sea (literally sea of reeds) for Israel (Exod 14:21-28). • Israel had defeated Sihon and Og (Num 21:21-35). • completely destroyed: The Hebrew term used here refers to the complete consecration of things or people to the LORD, either by destroying them or by giving them as an offering. See Lev 27:28-29; 1 Sam 15:3.

2:11 Although the people of Canaan incurred God's judgment, Rahab's declaration of faith (proven genuine by her aid to the spies) brought her into the people of God (Heb 11:31).

⁵Then Joshua told the people, "Purify yourselves, for tomorrow the LORD will do great wonders among you."

⁶In the morning Joshua said to the priests, "Lift up the Ark of the Covenant and lead the people across the river." And so they started out and went ahead of the people.

⁷The LORD told Joshua, "Today I will begin to make you a great leader in the eyes of all the Israelites. They will know that I am with you, just as I was with Moses. ⁸Give this command to the priests who carry the Ark of the Covenant: 'When you reach the banks of the Jordan River, take a few steps into the river and stop there.'"

Joshua Promises a Miracle

⁹So Joshua told the Israelites, "Come and listen to what the LORD your God says. ¹⁰Today you will know that the living God is among you. He will surely drive out the Canaanites, Hittites, Hivites, Perizzites, Girgashites, Amorites, and Jebusites ahead of you. ¹¹Look, the Ark of the Covenant, which belongs to the Lord of the whole earth, will lead you across the Jordan River! ¹²Now choose twelve men from the tribes of Israel, one from each tribe. ¹³The priests will carry the Ark of the LORD, the Lord of all the earth. As soon as their feet touch the water, the flow of water will be cut off upstream, and the river will stand up like a wall."

Israel Crosses on Dry Ground

¹⁴So the people left their camp to cross the Jordan, and the priests who were carrying the Ark of the Covenant went ahead of them. ¹⁵It was the harvest season, and the Jordan was overflowing its banks. But as soon as the feet of the priests who were carrying the Ark touched the water at the river's edge, ¹⁶the water above that point began backing up a great distance away at a town called Adam, which is near Zarethan. And the water below that point flowed on to the Dead Sea until the riverbed was dry. Then all the people crossed over near the town of Jericho.

¹⁷Meanwhile, the priests who were carrying the Ark of the LORD's Covenant stood on dry ground in the middle of the riverbed as the people passed by. They waited there until the whole nation of Israel had crossed the Jordan on dry ground.

Israel Erects Memorials of the Crossing

4 When all the people had crossed the Jordan, the LORD said to Joshua, ²"Now choose twelve men, one from each tribe. ³Tell them, 'Take twelve stones from the very place where the priests are standing in the middle of the Jordan. Carry them out and pile them up at the place where you will camp tonight.'"

⁴So Joshua called together the twelve men he had chosen—one from each of the tribes of Israel. ⁵He told them, "Go into the middle of the Jordan, in front of the Ark of the LORD your God. Each of you must pick up one stone and carry it out on your shoulder—twelve stones in all, one for each

3:5 Purify yourselves: They had to separate themselves from anything unclean that would bar an Israelite from coming into God's presence (cp. Exod 19:9-20; Lev 11:44).

3:7 To reassure the people that he had not brought them this far to abandon them, God made Joshua a great leader like Moses.

3:8 As they crossed the Jordan River, the Ark led the way until the feet of the priests entered the water; the priests were to stand in the Jordan, not on the dry land. By carrying the Ark into the water first, the obedient priests would show their faith (cp. Jas 2:18).

3:10 Today you will know: The Israelites who were adults when Moses led Israel out of Egypt had died. The people now entering Canaan with Joshua had taken their place. The events about to unfold would signify God's presence with them and demonstrate his intention to fulfill his promises. • In Canaan, the Israelites would be living among pagan neighbors and might be tempted to join them in worshiping their gods and goddesses. None of these false gods were worthy of worship. By contrast, the Lord is the living God, and he was present among the Israelites. • The Canaanites and Amorites were distinct peoples, but their names sometimes indicated all the pre-Israelite peoples of Canaan. The Hittites were related to the earlier Hittite Empire of Asia Minor that controlled much of Canaan. The Jebusites were from the city-state of Jerusalem, which Israel did not conquer permanently until David's time. Little is known about the other three groups.

3:11 Because the Ark of the Covenant went ahead of the Israelites, they knew that the Lord of the whole earth was leading them into Canaan. Their God was not a limited local deity.

3:12 Joshua told the people to choose twelve men but did not reveal what this group of men would be doing (4:2-8).

3:13 Even though the Jordan was in its spring flood stage, the water stopped abruptly, an obvious miracle.

3:15 The Jordan was overflowing its banks as a result of the spring runoff of the winter's rainfall and snowfall, especially from Mount Hermon.

3:16 Two wonders occurred. First, the water . . . began backing up above Adam (about twenty-five miles away). Second, the entire bed of the river was dry, as remaining water drained to the Dead Sea (Hebrew the sea of the Arabah, the Salt Sea).

3:17 The repetition of the phrase on dry ground emphasizes that God performed a miracle.

4:2 The twelve men (see note on 3:12) represented Jacob's twelve sons. The tribe of Levi was not counted because the Levites settled in designated cities among the other tribes (Gen 49:5-7; Num 1:49-52; 18:20). However, the number of tribes remained at twelve because Joseph's two sons (Ephraim and Manasseh) were accounted as separate tribes (Gen 48:5).

4:5 Carrying the stone on a shoulder implies that the men each chose stones weighing some 100 pounds.

of the twelve tribes of Israel. ⁶We will use these stones to build a memorial. In the future your children will ask you, 'What do these stones mean?' ⁷Then you can tell them, 'They remind us that the Jordan River stopped flowing when the Ark of the LORD's Covenant went across.' These stones will stand as a memorial among the people of Israel forever."

⁸So the men did as Joshua had commanded them. They took twelve stones from the middle of the Jordan River, one for each tribe, just as the LORD had told Joshua. They carried them to the place where they camped for the night and constructed the memorial there.

⁹Joshua also set up another pile of twelve stones in the middle of the Jordan, at the place where the priests who carried the Ark of the Covenant were standing. And they are there to this day.

The Jordan Resumes Its Flow

¹⁰The priests who were carrying the Ark stood in the middle of the river until all of the LORD's commands that Moses had given to Joshua were carried out. Meanwhile, the people hurried across the riverbed. ¹¹And when everyone was safely on the other side, the priests crossed over with the Ark of the LORD as the people watched.

¹²The armed warriors from the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh led the Israelites across the Jordan, just as Moses had directed. ¹³These armed men—about 40,000 strong—were ready for battle, and the LORD was with them as they crossed over to the plains of Jericho.

¹⁴That day the LORD made Joshua a great leader in the eyes of all the Israelites, and for the rest of his life they revered him as much as they had revered Moses.

¹⁵The LORD had said to Joshua, ¹⁶"Command the priests carrying the Ark of the Covenant to come up out of the riverbed." ¹⁷So Joshua gave the command. ¹⁸As soon as the priests carrying the Ark of the LORD's Covenant came up out of the riverbed and their feet were on high ground, the water of the Jordan returned and overflowed its banks as before.

The Meaning of the Stone Memorials

¹⁹The people crossed the Jordan on the tenth day of the first month. Then they camped at Gilgal, just east of Jericho. ²⁰It was there at Gilgal that Joshua piled up the twelve stones taken from the Jordan River.

²¹Then Joshua said to the Israelites, "In the future your children will ask, 'What do these stones mean?' ²²Then you can tell them, 'This is where the Israelites crossed the Jordan on dry ground.' ²³For the LORD your God dried up the river right before your eyes, and he kept it dry until you were all across, just as he did at the Red Sea when he dried it up until we had all crossed over. ²⁴He did this so all the nations of the earth might know that the LORD's hand is powerful, and so you might fear the LORD your God forever."

◀ Israel's Entry into Canaan (3:1-9:27). When Israel left ACACIA GROVE (see map on 2:1-24, p. 379), they crossed the JORDAN RIVER (chs 3-4) then camped at GILGAL (4:19-20), where the Lord renewed his covenant with them (5:2-15). Israel then fought against JERICHO (ch 6) and AI (chs 7-8). The ambassadors from GIBEON traveled only a few miles to GILGAL in their successful bid for peace (ch 9).

These events could not occur without God's intervention.

4:19-20 the tenth day of the first month: This day in the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar occurred in late March, April, or early May, a few days before Passover (see chart, "Israel's Annual Calendar" at Exod 12:2, p. 145). • Gilgal became an important worship center for early Israel. Although its location is uncertain, it was somewhere just east or northeast of Jericho. Its name (which means "wheel of a cart," cp. Isa 28:28) implies that Joshua set the twelve stones in a circle (cp. note on 5:9).

4:23 Red Sea: Literally sea of reeds.

4:24 In addition to future generations of Israelites, all the nations of the earth were to understand God's power. At least some individuals in every group respond to the God who cares for them (Rev 7:9-10).

4:6 Joshua twice (see 4:21) told the Israelites to prepare to answer future generations. The stone memorial would serve as a teaching aid.

4:9 A second memorial of twelve stones in the middle of the Jordan was submerged as soon as the river resumed its flow. The monument's top would be visible in the dry summer seasons. • Their existence to this day indicates that the memorials stood for generations, until the final editing of the book (see Introduction to Joshua, "Author and Date," p. 374).

4:12 Reuben, Gad, and . . . Manasse: See note on 1:12-15.

4:14 Now that God had brought the Israelites safely across the Jordan River, Israel recognized God's presence with Joshua as a great leader and revered him as much as they had revered Moses. Their confidence in Joshua would be crucial in the years ahead.

4:16 Ark of the Covenant: Literally Ark of the Testimony.

4:18 After Israel crossed the river, the Jordan overflowed its banks as before.

5 When all the Amorite kings west of the Jordan and all the Canaanite kings who lived along the Mediterranean coast heard how the LORD had dried up the Jordan River so the people of Israel could cross, they lost heart and were paralyzed with fear because of them.

Israel Reestablishes Covenant Ceremonies (5:2-12)

Joshua Circumcises Israel's Males

2 At that time the LORD told Joshua, "Make flint knives and circumcise this second generation of Israelites." 3 So Joshua made flint knives and circumcised the entire male population of Israel at Gibeath-haaraloth.

4 Joshua had to circumcise them because all the men who were old enough to fight in battle when they left Egypt had died in the wilderness. 5 Those who left Egypt had all been circumcised, but none of those born after the Exodus, during the years in the wilderness, had been circumcised. 6 The Israelites had traveled in the wilderness for forty years until all the men who were old enough to fight in battle when they left Egypt had died. For they had disobeyed the LORD, and the LORD vowed he would not let them enter the land he had sworn to give us—a land flowing with milk and honey.

7 So Joshua circumcised their sons—those who had grown up to take their fathers' places—for they had not been circumcised on the way to the Promised Land. 8 After all the males had been circumcised, they rested in the camp until they were healed.

9 Then the LORD said to Joshua, "Today I have rolled away the shame of your slavery in Egypt." So that place has been called Gilgal to this day.

Israel Celebrates the First Passover in the Land

10 While the Israelites were camped at Gilgal on the plains of Jericho, they celebrated 8 Passover on the evening of the fourteenth day of the first month. 11 The very next day they began to eat unleavened bread and roasted grain harvested from the land. 12 No ^hmanna appeared on the day they first ate from the crops of the land, and it was never seen again. So from that time on the Israelites ate from the crops of Canaan.

5:1 After news of Israel's crossing of the Jordan River spread, all of southern Canaan was in a state of alert awaiting Israel's expected invasion. • Amorite kings . . . Canaanite kings: See note on 3:10. • along the Mediterranean coast: Literally along the sea. • With Israel's impossible crossing of the Jordan, the Canaanites lost heart and were paralyzed with fear. They knew they faced the people of a God more powerful than any they worshiped.

5:2 Before the Israelites turned their attention to Jericho, God directed Joshua to perform the covenant renewal ceremony of circumcising all the males born in the forty years since the exodus from Egypt (see "Circumcision" at Gen 17:9-14, p. 54). Because the land was part of the covenant promise, Israel's men needed to demonstrate their personal participation in the covenant through circumcision in order to enter into the land. • Flint is found in a natural state, so flint knives were mandated for circumcision as a symbol of purity or holiness. • circumcise this second generation of Israelites: Or circumcise the Israelites a second time.

5:4-7 This unexpected detour in the narrative provides an important reminder of Israel's earlier refusal to believe that God would bring them safely into the land of Canaan (Num 14). This summary of God's judgment upon their fathers reminded the present generation that trusting in God was still necessary if they were to occupy the land their ancestors had forfeited. Further, it signaled the completion of God's judgment upon the earlier generation.

5:8 until they were healed: Recovery from circumcision, a relatively minor surgery, usually takes about three days if no complications occur.

5:9 Gilgal sounds like the Hebrew word galal, meaning "to roll," indicating that this place was where God rolled away the reproach of Egypt.

5:10 The Passover lamb was slain on the evening of the fourteenth day of the first month (see note on 4:19-20). Just as the Passover in Egypt marked the exodus from slavery, the celebration of this Passover in Canaan marked the attainment of the goal God had been leading the Israelites toward. This Passover also anticipated God's promised rest for his people in their new land. • This was apparently the first Passover Israel had celebrated since they had been encamped at Sinai (Num 9:1-5). For the younger Israelites, it was their first Passover ever; for the older ones, their first since childhood. Celebrating the Passover after such a long lapse, particularly on the eve of the campaign to take the Promised Land, heightened both the joy and the solemnity of the occasion.

5:11-12 God's daily provision of manna (Exod 16:31; Num 11:9) could cease because the produce from the land was now available.

5:11 Israel reinstituted the Festival of Unleavened Bread, observed for seven days following Passover (Lev 23:6). The people ate unleavened bread and roasted grain, a favorite food of the harvest season (see Ruth 2:14).

5:12 Israel harvested the crops that the people of Jericho did not have time to harvest before Israel crossed the Jordan.

5:13-15 The commander of the LORD's army gave Joshua instructions for conducting the siege of Jericho (6:2-5). Like God's earlier message to Joshua (1:1-9), this encounter was to encourage Joshua on the eve of action against the enemy.

5:13 Joshua was scouting the land and the city's defenses near the town of Jericho to follow up on the report of the two spies (2:23-24). Joshua demonstrated personal courage when he approached the unknown figure whose sword was already drawn.

At this, Joshua fell with his face to the ground in reverence. "I am at your command," Joshua said. "What do you want your servant to do?"

¹⁵The commander of the LORD's army replied, "Take off your sandals, for the place where you are standing is holy." And Joshua did as he was told.

God's Strategy for Taking Jericho

6 Now the gates of Jericho were tightly shut because the people were afraid of the Israelites. No one was allowed to go out or in. ²But the LORD said to Joshua, "I have given you Jericho, its king, and all its strong warriors. ³You and your fighting men should march around the town once a day for six days. ⁴Seven priests will walk ahead of the Ark, each carrying a ram's horn. On the seventh day you are to march around the town seven times, with the priests blowing the horns. ⁵When you hear the priests give one long blast on the rams' horns, have all the people shout as loud as they can. Then the walls of the town will collapse, and the people can charge straight into the town."

The Israelites Circle Jericho

⁶So Joshua called together the priests and said, "Take up the Ark of the LORD's Covenant, and assign seven priests to walk in front of it, each carrying a ram's horn." ⁷Then he gave orders to the people: "March around the town, and the armed men will lead the way in front of the Ark of the LORD."

⁸After Joshua spoke to the people, the seven priests with the rams' horns started marching in the presence of the LORD, blowing the horns as they marched. And the Ark of the LORD's Covenant followed behind them. ⁹Some of the armed men marched in front of the priests with the horns and some behind the Ark, with the priests continually blowing the horns. ¹⁰"Do not shout; do not even talk," Joshua commanded. "Not a single word from any of you until I tell you to shout. Then shout!" ¹¹So the Ark of the LORD was carried around the town once that day, and then everyone returned to spend the night in the camp.

¹²Joshua got up early the next morning, and the priests again carried the Ark of the LORD. ¹³The seven priests with the rams' horns marched in front of the Ark of the LORD, blowing their horns. Again the armed men marched both in front of the priests with the horns and behind the Ark of the LORD. All this time the priests were blowing their horns. ¹⁴On the second day they again marched around the town once and returned to the camp. They followed this pattern for six days.

Jericho Falls on the Seventh Day

¹⁵On the seventh day the Israelites got up at dawn and marched around the town as they had done before. But this time they went around the town seven times. ¹⁶The seventh time around, as the priests sounded the long blast on their horns, Joshua commanded the people, "Shout! For the LORD has given you the town!" ¹⁷Jericho and everything in it must be completely destroyed

5:14 Joshua fell with his face to the ground in reverence when he understood who stood before him. Joshua's action demonstrated that he was available for God's service, wholeheartedly and without reservation. • Scholars disagree whether the commander was an appearance of God, the pre-incarnate Christ, or an angel. His reference to himself as commander of the LORD's army might imply that he was an angel. However, he did not prevent Joshua from worshipping him, as angels usually did (e.g., Rev 22:8-9; cp. Acts 10:25-26).

5:15 Take off your sandals, for the place . . . is holy: This was what God told Moses at the burning bush (Exod 3:5). Joshua certainly recognized the similarity. This encounter would have encouraged Joshua of God's blessing on Israel's first action against Canaan.

6:1 Jericho guarded two important entrances into the heart of the hill country. If the Israelites did not conquer the city first, they would leave a well-armed enemy at their back, standing between the Israelite forces and their families encamped at Gilgal. They had to conquer Jericho first.

6:2 God's reassuring words, "I have given you Jericho," must have lifted Joshua's spirits. All Joshua had to do was obey God, and he had a lifetime of practice at that.

6:4 Seven is a biblical number of perfection. • The seven priests were to precede the Ark, the emblem of God's presence, at the head of Israel's forces. This arrangement symbolized that God himself fought against the town. Israel had only to march and observe, then shout and observe, and finally mop up after God delivered the town into their hands. • The ram's horn (Hebrew shofar) could sound several pitches to signal either battle or worship. In battle, the shofar alerted troops or townsfolk to an enemy's approach or sounded the call to advance or retreat.

6:6-9 The Ark, the priests blowing the horns, and the military honor guard all symbolized God's presence and his leadership of the siege.

6:10-11 Warriors would often shout in battle to lift their morale and intimidate the enemy. • Until I tell you: After thirteen circuits of Jericho by Israel's army with only the sound of trumpets, the psychological shock when Jericho's defenders heard shouting would be devastating.

6:15 Marching around Jericho seven times on the seventh day again symbolized that this was God's battle.

6:16 Joshua's command, "Shout! For the LORD has given you the town!" was not a device to cause Jericho's walls to fall. Rather, Joshua exhorted the Israelites to celebrate God's victory.

6:17 completely destroyed: See note on 2:9-10; similarly in 6:18, 21. Joshua reminded his troops that the town and as an offering to the LORD. Only Rahab the prostitute and the others in her house will be spared, for she protected our spies.

¹⁸“Do not take any of the things set apart for destruction, or you yourselves will be completely destroyed, and you will bring trouble on the camp of Israel. ¹⁹Everything made from silver, gold, bronze, or iron is sacred to the LORD and must be brought into his treasury.”

²²Meanwhile, Joshua said to the two spies, “Keep your promise. Go to the prostitute’s house and bring her out, along with all her family.”

²³The men who had been spies went in and brought out Rahab, her father, mother, brothers, and all the other relatives who were with her. They moved her whole family to a safe place near the camp of Israel.

Joshua Burns and Curses Jericho

²⁴Then the Israelites burned the town and everything in it. Only the things made from silver, gold, bronze, or iron were kept for the treasury of the LORD’s house. ²⁵So Joshua spared Rahab the prostitute and her relatives who were with her in the house, because she had hidden the spies Joshua sent to Jericho. And she lives among the Israelites to this day.

²⁶At that time Joshua invoked this curse:

“May the curse of the LORD fall on anyone who tries to rebuild the town of Jericho.

At the cost of his firstborn son, he will lay its foundation.

At the cost of his youngest son, he will set up its gates.”

²⁷So the LORD was with Joshua, and his reputation spread throughout the land.

2. GOD GIVES ISRAEL VICTORY (7:1–12:24) Achan’s Sin, Israel’s Judgment (7:1–26) Achan’s Sin

7 But Israel violated the instructions about the things set apart for the LORD. A man named Achan had stolen some of these dedicated things, so the LORD was very angry with the Israelites. Achan was the son of Carmi, a descendant of Zimri son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah.

everything in it belonged to God as the firstfruits of their inheritance in the land of Canaan. • Rahab: See 2:12–21.

6:19 See note on 6:24.

6:20 Following Joshua’s last-minute commands, a final blast of the rams’ horns signaled the climax.

6:22–23 The two spies fulfilled Joshua’s command and their oath to Rahab. Through the actions of God’s people, a pagan household saw that God is trustworthy. • the prostitute’s house: See note on 2:1. • Moving Rahab and her family near the camp of Israel provided security.

6:24–27 Jericho’s citizens had already been executed (6:21). Now Joshua destroyed the town and its contents. The firstfruits of the spoils of war, as with all else, belonged to God.

6:24 The fire melted and purified the silver, gold, bronze, and iron. These metals had probably been used for the figures of pagan gods. As these images melted, the metals were purified and made fit for dedication to God.

6:25 The statement that Rahab lives among the Israelites to this day affirms the breadth and depth of God’s grace. Rahab was not only accepted into Israel;

she ultimately was an ancestor of the Messiah (see Matt 1:5).

6:26 Joshua placed a curse upon the site because Jericho was the first Canaanite town to resist God’s purposes in bringing Israel into the land. Jericho was also the first town to experience God’s judgment upon Canaan’s great wickedness. As the firstfruits of Israel’s conquest of Canaan, it belonged to God (Exod 13:2; 23:19). God executed Joshua’s curse on the first man to defy it (1 Kgs 16:34; cp. 7:1–26).

6:27 As the first chapter in Israel’s conquest of Canaan closed, both the Israelites and the Canaanites could see that the LORD was with Joshua, as he had promised (1:5, 9; cp. 4:14). Crossing the Jordan and taking Jericho established Israel’s presence in the land, causing the people of Canaan to fear Israel and Israel’s God.

7:1–12:24 This second major section of the book records Joshua’s southern and northern campaigns against two coalitions of Canaanite kings. Joshua’s victories enabled Israel to settle the hill country from Galilee in the north to the Negev in the south.

7:1–26 Now that Jericho belonged to Israel, Joshua’s first military problem involved securing a foothold in the hill country. The conquest of Jericho inspired Israel’s confidence and consigned the people of Canaan to discouragement and despair. Yet everything hinged on Israel’s obedience to God. One man’s sin and its consequences demonstrate how serious was the command to destroy Jericho (see “Complete Dedication” at Lev 27:28–29, p. 244).

7:1 things set apart for the LORD: The Hebrew term used here refers to the complete consecration of things or people to the LORD, either by destroying them or by giving them as an offering; similarly in 7:11, 12, 13, 15. Also see note on 2:9–10. • Zimri (as in parallel text at 1 Chr 2:6; Hebrew reads Zabdi; also in 7:17, 18) son of Zerah: Achan belonged to a prominent family (Num 26:19–20) and was a leader or a potential leader, so his actions would be influential.

7:2 As he did before the battle for Jericho, Joshua sent some of his men to assess the situation at Ai. This town stood about ten miles west of Jericho at the entrance to a plateau north of Jerusalem called the Plateau of Benjamin; near Beth-aven. ³When they returned, they told Joshua, "There's no need for all of us to go up there; it won't take more than two or three thousand men to attack Ai. Since there are so few of them, don't make all our people struggle to go up there."

⁴So approximately 3,000 warriors were sent, but they were soundly defeated. The men of Ai ⁵chased the Israelites from the town gate as far as the quarries, and they killed about thirty-six who were retreating down the slope. The Israelites were paralyzed with fear at this turn of events, and their courage melted away.

Joshua Prays, God Responds

⁶Joshua and the elders of Israel tore their clothing in dismay, threw dust on their heads, and bowed face down to the ground before the Ark of the LORD until evening. ⁷Then Joshua cried out, "Oh, ^aSovereign LORD, why did you bring us across the Jordan River if you are going to let the Amorites kill us? If only we had been content to stay on the other side! ⁸Lord, what can I say now that Israel has fled from its enemies? ⁹For when the Canaanites and all the other people living in the land hear about it, they will surround us and wipe our name off the face of the earth. And then what will happen to the honor of your great name?"

¹⁰But the LORD said to Joshua, "Get up! Why are you lying on your face like this? ¹¹Israel has sinned and broken my covenant! They have stolen some of the things that I commanded must be set apart for me. And they have not only stolen them but have lied

Why did so many of Israel's soldiers die at Ai because of Achan's sin? Why did the Israelites stone Achan's family along with him? A significant part of the answer to these questions comes by understanding the concept of communal responsibility.

If Achan's family knew of his theft, they were accomplices and shared Achan's guilt. A community becomes responsible for sin when people either actively participate in an act of sin or silently condone sinful actions or attitudes.

But what about Achan's children who were too young to understand or those who had no knowledge of his theft? What about Israel's soldiers who died at Ai because Achan stole what belonged to God?

To understand, we have to go back to the beginning. The sin of our first parents, Adam and Eve (Gen 3), was at least twofold. First, they chose not to trust God, even though he was their true and intimate friend. Instead, they listened to the voice of a stranger. Second, though they were unsuccessful, they declared their independence from God by trying to become gods themselves. Because we all make that same choice for ourselves, no one is truly innocent.

Thus, we are all subject to the consequences of sin in the world. We may die as the result of another's sin, carelessness, or ignorance, or as a result of our own. Because one person drives under the influence of alcohol, someone else might die on the highway. Because one person wants to maximize profits, others can suffer in wretched conditions. And because Achan sinned, others in Israel died at Ai. None of this is "fair." However, God promises to bring perfect justice in his own time. God's justice will be mediated through his grace and mercy, brought to us through Jesus' death in our place.

conquering Ai would open the way for Israel to control the hill country. • Beth-aven, "house of iniquity," was probably an intentionally derogatory wordplay on the name Bethel, the "house of God." A pagan shrine stood on this site later in Israel's history (1 Kgs 12:28-33).

7:3-4 God's provision of victory at Jericho apparently bred complacency and overconfidence; Joshua did not even consult with God before sending a small contingent of troops to Ai.

7:5 Ai's defenders left through the town gate and attacked Israel's troops directly (see 8:5). • as far as the quarries: Or as far as Shebarim, an otherwise unknown place.

7:6 Israel's leaders tore their clothing and threw dust on their heads, common public gestures of grief or despair in the ancient Near East. By falling face down before the Ark of the LORD, Joshua belatedly acknowledged that Israel needed God's direction in the battle against Ai.

7:7 Joshua expressed his anger toward God; this explains the sharp tone of God's reply (7:10-15). Though the battle had been lost because of Achan's sin, Joshua and Israel's elders had neglected to seek God's guidance (7:3). • Joshua did not really believe that Israel should have stayed on the other side of the Jordan. Rather, he used hyperbole to show that he was at a loss over what to do next.

7:8-9 Joshua's fears were realistic. All Canaan had thought that Israel was invincible. However, because tiny Ai had defeated Israel, the Canaanites might think it could happen again. • If God allowed the wicked to wipe his people off the face of the earth, the nations would not have a witness that God continues to be involved with his world. • your great name: Cp. Exod 32:11-12; Num 14:13-19.

7:10-11 Get up! God's command was abrupt, stern, and outwardly unsympathetic. For Israel to regain God's favor, Joshua needed to act swiftly and decisively.

about it and hidden the things among their own belongings. ¹²That is why the Israelites are running from their enemies in defeat. For now Israel itself has been set apart for ^bdestruction. I will not remain with you any longer unless you destroy the things among you that were set apart for ^bdestruction.

¹³"Get up! Command the people to purify themselves in preparation for tomorrow. For this is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: Hidden among you, O Israel, are things set apart for the LORD. You will never defeat your enemies until you remove these things from among you.

¹⁴"In the morning you must present yourselves by tribes, and the LORD will point out the tribe to which the guilty man belongs. That tribe must come forward with its clans, and the LORD will point out the guilty clan. That clan will then come forward, and the LORD will point out the guilty family. Finally, each member of the guilty family must come forward one by one. ¹⁵The one who has stolen what was set apart for destruction will himself be burned with fire, along with everything he has, for he has broken the covenant of the LORD and has done a horrible thing in Israel."

Achan's Judgment

¹⁶Early the next morning Joshua brought the tribes of Israel before the LORD, and the tribe of Judah was singled out. ¹⁷Then the clans of Judah came forward, and the clan of Zerah was singled out. Then the families of Zerah came forward, and the family of Zimri was singled out. ¹⁸Every member of Zimri's family was brought forward person by person, and Achan was singled out.

¹⁹Then Joshua said to Achan, "My son, give glory to the LORD, the God of Israel, by ^ctelling the truth. Make your confession and tell me what you have done. Don't hide it from me."

²⁰Achan replied, "It is true! I have sinned against the LORD, the God of Israel. ²¹Among the plunder I saw a beautiful robe from Babylon, 200 silver coins, and a bar of gold weighing more than a pound. I wanted them so much that I took them. They are hidden in the ground beneath my tent, with the silver buried deeper than the rest."

²²So Joshua sent some men to make a search. They ran to the tent and found the stolen goods hidden there, just as Achan had said, with the silver buried beneath the rest. ²³They took the things from the tent and brought them to Joshua and all the Israelites. Then they laid them on the ground in the presence of the LORD.

²⁴Then Joshua and all the Israelites took Achan, the silver, the robe, the bar of gold, his sons, daughters, cattle, donkeys, sheep, goats, tent, and everything he had, and they brought them to the valley of Achor.

²⁵Then Joshua said to Achan, "Why have you brought trouble on us? The LORD will now bring trouble on you." And all the Israelites stoned Achan and his family and burned their bodies. ²⁶They piled a great heap of stones over Achan, which remains to this day. That is why the place has been called the Valley of Trouble ever since. So the LORD was no longer angry.

7:13 Command the people to purify themselves: See note on 3:5.

7:14 Israel's twelve tribes were descendants of Jacob's sons. A clan represented a smaller unit within the tribes; later, as Israel's allotments in the land were distributed, a clan usually received possession of a town and its surrounding fields, forest, and pastureland. A man's family included his sons and their dependents.

7:15 God had commanded that all the stolen goods were to be destroyed by fire. Now they would be, because Achan and everything he had would be burned with fire. Breaking the covenant of the LORD was treason, a capital offense (e.g., Exod 22:20; Deut 4:25-27).

7:16-18 Achan might have been singled out by use of the Urim and Thummim, a God-given system of sacred lots. These items remained in the care of the high priest, probably in a bag or a pouch (see Exod 28:30; Num 27:21). They might have been two different-colored objects, perhaps stones or gems. Inquiries were phrased as "yes" or "no" questions.

7:19-20 My son: This gentle, compassionate form of address reveals Joshua as a caring leader, sorry for this young man trapped by impulsive greed. Although Joshua and Achan both knew that Achan would die for his crime, Joshua entreated him to repent. Achan responded with a full confession.

7:21 The robe should have been burned with the rest of Jericho's goods. It was from Babylon (Hebrew Shinar), evidence that long-distance trade was a significant part of life in the ancient Near East. • 200 silver coins (Hebrew 200 shekels of silver, about 5 pounds or 2.3 kilograms in weight): Achan took pieces or lumps of silver that functioned as money; coinage was not invented until the 600s BC. • more than a pound: Hebrew 50 shekels, about 20 ounces or 570 grams in weight. • I wanted them so much is translated "covet" in the tenth commandment (Exod 20:17). Achan's coveting had prompted his theft.

7:22 Because the matter was urgent, Joshua's messengers ran to the tent to confirm Achan's confession.

7:24 This careful listing of Achan's relatives and possessions, including the stolen items, has the tone of a legal statement. Achan compromised all that pertained to him through his contact with the stolen items; thus, all had to be included in his judgment.

7:25 Stoning was one prescribed means of execution (see, e.g., Exod 19:13).

The Israelites Defeat Ai (8:1-35)
Joshua Lays an Ambush against Ai

8 Then the LORD said to Joshua, "Do not be afraid or discouraged. Take all your fighting men and attack Ai, for I have given you the king of Ai, his people, his town, and his land. ²You will destroy them as you destroyed Jericho and its king. But this time you may keep the plunder and the livestock for yourselves. Set an ambush behind the town."

³So Joshua and all the fighting men set out to attack Ai. Joshua chose 30,000 of his best warriors and sent them out at night ⁴with these orders: "Hide in ambush close behind the town and be ready for action. ⁵When our main army attacks, the men of Ai will come out to fight as they did before, and we will run away from them. ⁶We will let them chase us until we have drawn them away from the town. For they will say, 'The Israelites are running away from us as they did before.' Then, while we are running from them, ⁷you will jump up from your ambush and take possession of the town, for the LORD your God will give it to you. ⁸Set the town on fire, as the LORD has commanded. You have your orders."

⁹So they left and went to the place of ambush between Bethel and the west side of Ai. But Joshua remained among the people in the camp that night. ¹⁰Early the next morning Joshua roused his men and started toward Ai, accompanied by the elders of Israel. ¹¹All the fighting men who were with Joshua marched in front of the town and camped on the north side of Ai, with a valley between them and the town. ¹²That night Joshua sent about 5,000 men to lie in ambush between Bethel and Ai, on the west side of the town. ¹³So they stationed the main army north of the town and the ambush west of the town. Joshua himself spent that night in the valley.

Joshua Captures and Destroys Ai

¹⁴When the king of Ai saw the Israelites across the valley, he and all his army hurried out early in the morning and attacked the Israelites at a place overlooking the Jordan Valley. But he didn't realize there was an ambush behind the town. ¹⁵Joshua and the Israelite army fled toward the wilderness as though they were badly beaten. ¹⁶Then all the men in the town were called out to chase after them. In this way, they were lured away from the town. ¹⁷There was not a man left in Ai or Bethel who did not chase after the Israelites, and the town was left wide open.

¹⁸Then the LORD said to Joshua, "Point the spear in your hand toward Ai, for I will hand the town over to you." Joshua did as he was commanded. ¹⁹As soon as Joshua gave this signal, all the men in ambush jumped up from their position and poured into the town. They quickly captured it and set it on fire.

²⁰When the men of Ai looked behind them, smoke from the town was filling the sky, and they had nowhere to go. For the Israelites who had fled in the direction of the wilderness now turned on their pursuers. ²¹When Joshua and all the other Israelites rebellion against God, and such sin always brings trouble ('akor') upon God's people. Achan's sin brought disaster on Israel, so the severe punishment he received was just.

8:1-13 The first attempt to conquer Ai had been done without consulting God; the second attempt would be made at God's command and direction. Before the second attempt, God spoke to Joshua again and gave him a strategy. More importantly, in light of Israel's recent disaster, God gave him encouragement and a promise.

8:1 Do not be afraid or discouraged: God gave Joshua similar encouragement before sending him against Jericho (6:2).

8:2 Unlike other ancient nations, who went to war to gain wealth, Israel served as God's agent of judgment upon the Canaanites; the plunder and the livestock were incidental. • The strategy for capturing Ai was to plan an ambush. Joshua executed God's simple instructions well. • behind the town: On its west side (see 8:12).

8:3 set out to attack Ai: This first sentence provides a summary; details are filled in over the next several paragraphs. • The Hebrew words translated 30,000 might mean 30 units (see note on Exod 12:37) or 30 chieftains. As the battle developed, this group would wait in ambush until Joshua called them out (8:18-19).

8:4-9 Joshua told the select squad what to expect from Israel's main army. Because this special unit would be separated from Joshua's command for nearly forty-eight hours, they needed to understand exactly what to do. Israel's success in this second attempt on Ai depended on the precise timing of their rush into the town.

8:11-13 That the main army marched in front of the town indicates that Joshua did not try to hide them from the defenders of Ai. The main army came from the east and ended the day camped on the north side of Ai. The men in ambush were west of Ai, between Ai and Bethel. • 5,000 men: See note on 8:3.

8:14 The king of Ai . . . and all his army were recklessly eager to repeat their heroics of the previous battle. As Joshua and Israel had learned, such overconfidence is dangerous. • the Jordan Valley: Hebrew the Arabah, the desert plain north of the Dead Sea.

8:15 Joshua and the Israelite army fled as in the first attack (7:4-5).

8:17 not a man left in Ai or Bethel: Much of an individual soldier's gain from warfare was his share of the spoils taken from the defeated enemy or a reward given by his king for each enemy he killed. • The warriors of Bethel likely joined those of Ai because they also feared Israel's advance. • Some manuscripts lack or Bethel.

8:18-19 Israel succeeded in this second attack on Ai because this time God directed the battle.

saw that the ambush had succeeded and that smoke was rising from the town, they turned and attacked the men of Ai. ²²Meanwhile, the Israelites who were inside the town came out and attacked the enemy from the rear. So the men of Ai were caught in the middle, with Israelite fighters on both sides. Israel attacked them, and not a single person survived or escaped. ²³Only the king of Ai was taken alive and brought to Joshua.

²⁴When the Israelite army finished chasing and killing all the men of Ai in the open fields, they went back and finished off everyone inside. ²⁵So the entire population of Ai, including men and women, was wiped out that day—12,000 in all. ²⁶For Joshua kept holding out his spear until everyone who had lived in Ai was completely destroyed. ²⁷Only the livestock and the treasures of the town were not destroyed, for the Israelites kept these as plunder for themselves, as the LORD had commanded Joshua. ²⁸So Joshua burned the town of Ai, and it became a permanent mound of ruins, desolate to this very day.

²⁹Joshua impaled the king of Ai on a sharpened pole and left him there until evening. At sunset the Israelites took down the body, as Joshua commanded, and threw it in front of the town gate. They piled a great heap of stones over him that can still be seen today.

Joshua Leads Israel in Renewing God's Covenant

³⁰Then Joshua built an altar to the LORD, the God of Israel, on Mount Ebal. ³¹He followed the commands that Moses the LORD's servant had written in the Book of Instruction: "Make me an altar from stones that are uncut and have not been shaped with iron tools." Then on the altar they presented burnt offerings and peace offerings to the LORD. ³²And as the Israelites watched, Joshua copied onto the stones of the altar the instructions Moses had given them.

³³Then all the Israelites—foreigners and native-born alike—along with the elders, officers, and judges, were divided into two groups. One group stood in front of Mount Gerizim, the other in front of Mount Ebal. Each group faced the other, and between them stood the Levitical priests carrying the Ark of the LORD's Covenant. This was all done according to the commands that Moses, the servant of the LORD, had previously given for blessing the people of Israel.

³⁴Joshua then read to them all the blessings and curses Moses had written in the Book of Instruction. ³⁵Every word of every command that Moses had ever given was read to the entire assembly of Israel, including the women and children and the foreigners who lived among them.

8:28 a permanent mound of ruins: Ai means "ruin." Prior to its destruction, the town was called by an unknown name. For clarity, the writer of Joshua always referred to the town as Ai, the name it was given after its destruction.

8:29 The public executions of the kings (see also 10:26; 11:10, 12) emphasized that Israel was God's agent in the judgment of the leaders and people of Canaan for their wickedness. • at sunset: See Deut 21:22-23. • that can still be seen today: See Introduction to Joshua, "Author and Date," p. 374.

8:30-31 Archaeologists have recently discovered an altar . . . on Mount Ebal built of uncut stones and not shaped with iron tools (see Exod 20:25; Deut 27:5-6). However, no inscription was found with it (8:32). • Burnt offerings and peace offerings were prescribed in the laws of sacrifice that God gave Moses while Israel was still at Mount Sinai (Lev 1; 3). Moses gave specific commands for this ceremony (see Deut 11:26-32; 27:1-28:68).

8:32 onto the stones of the altar (literally onto the stones): Joshua fulfilled Moses' command to set up stones and coat them with plaster (Deut 27:2-8). After the plaster hardened, the instructions (Hebrew torah) would permanently be on public display at the first location where Israel formally worshiped the Lord after entering the land. The public display of laws occurred in other places; the best-known example is the famous Code of Hammurabi, which that king set up in Babylon.

8:33-35 This ceremony marked the formal possession of the land, even though major campaigns against the Canaanites were still to come. The ritual of sacrifice and reading of the law highlighted the promises and obligations of God's covenant with them and anticipated the eventual possession of all of Canaan.

8:33 The town of Shechem, located between Mount Gerizim to the south and Mount Ebal to the north, guarded the pass between the two mountains. Although the covenant renewal ceremony took place at Shechem, neither Joshua nor Judges records that Israel conquered the town. • With every Israelite involved and the Ark positioned in the valley between the two groups, this ceremony was a promise to keep the covenant God had made with Israel at Sinai.

8:34 blessings . . . curses: See Deut 27:1-28:68.

8:35 OT religion was not just for the men of Israel; the entire assembly included the women and children. • The foreigners who lived among the Israelites included people who came out of Egypt with Israel in the Exodus (Exod 12:38, 48-49). These converts had accepted the Lord as their God and joined Israel when they saw the great things God had done for Israel.

the western foothills, and along the coast of the Mediterranean Sea as far north as the Lebanon mountains. ²These kings combined their armies to fight as one against Joshua and the Israelites.

³But when the people of Gibeon heard what Joshua had done to Jericho and Ai, ⁴they resorted to deception to save themselves. They sent ambassadors to Joshua, loading their donkeys with weathered saddlebags and old, patched wineskins. ⁵They put on worn-out, patched sandals and ragged clothes. And the bread they took with them was dry and moldy. ⁶When they arrived at the camp of Israel at Gilgal, they told Joshua and the men of Israel, "We have come from a distant land to ask you to make a peace treaty with us."

⁷The Israelites replied to these Hivites, "How do we know you don't live nearby? For if you do, we cannot make a treaty with you."

⁸They replied, "We are your servants."

"But who are you?" Joshua demanded. "Where do you come from?"

⁹They answered, "Your servants have come from a very distant country. We have heard of the might of the LORD your God and of all he did in Egypt. ¹⁰We have also heard what he did to the two Amorite kings east of the Jordan River—King Sihon of Heshbon and King Og of Bashan (who lived in Ashtaroth). ¹¹So our elders and all our people instructed us, 'Take supplies for a long journey. Go meet with the people of Israel and tell them, "We are your servants; please make a treaty with us."'"

¹²"This bread was hot from the ovens when we left our homes. But now, as you can see, it is dry and moldy. ¹³These wineskins were new when we filled them, but now they are old and split open. And our clothing and sandals are worn out from our very long journey."

¹⁴So the Israelites examined their food, but they did not consult the LORD. ¹⁵Then Joshua made a peace treaty with them and guaranteed their safety, and the leaders of ancient Near Eastern accounts tell only of a leader's triumphs; this author also recorded the shortcomings of Joshua and Israel's elders. The real hero of the story is God, whose accomplishments the author wished to tell.

9:1 Hittites . . . Jebusites: See note on 3:10. • The fertile region of lower hills between the highlands of Judah and the southern coastal plain was known as the western foothills (Hebrew the Shephelah). • Although not all of the coastal plain of the Mediterranean Sea (literally the Great Sea) was occupied during this period, several important cities did exist. The kings of those small city-states, as far north as Mount

Mount Ebal and Mount Gerizim (8:30-35). After Israel's victories over Jericho and Ai, the Israelites traveled north to Shechem, and Joshua followed the instructions given in the law for renewing the covenant at MOUNT EBAL and MOUNT GERIZIM (see also 24:1-28; see Deut 11:26-32).

Carmel, joined the southern coalition to resist Israel's advances.

9:2 Chapter 10 provides a more complete description of these kings and their reasons for forming a coalition to fight . . . the Israelites.

9:3 The people of Gibeon deceitfully attempted to make a covenant with Israel. The town of Gibeon was on the plateau just north of Jerusalem (see note on 7:2), not more than fifteen miles from Israel's camp at Gilgal.

9:4-6 Long-distance travel was difficult, dirty, and dangerous in those days. If they were to carry off their deception, the Gibeonite supplies, clothes, and even food had to look the part.

9:7-8 The name Hivites is known only from the Bible and refers to a non-Semitic ethnic group that lived in various parts of Canaan (see Gen 34:2; 36:2; Exod 23:23, 28). • How do we know you don't live nearby? Israel's leaders raised the possibility of deception. Joshua followed the Gibeonites' evasive reply by asking two direct questions. However, Joshua could have received a direct answer by consulting the Lord (9:14).

9:9-10 in Egypt: See Exod 7-14. • kings . . . Sihon . . . Og: See Num 21.

9:11-13 Distracted by the flattering words about God and the notion that a foreign people wanted to make a treaty with them, none of Israel's leaders noticed that the Gibeonites had failed to answer Joshua's questions.

• If the Israelites spared their lives, the Gibeonites were willing to be Israel's servants and swear to a treaty with Israel. This request should have raised suspicions among Israel's leaders: Why would people from a distant land be concerned about a treaty of protection?

9:14 Israel's leaders examined the bread to verify the Gibeonites' story, but Joshua neglected to consult the LORD. This same oversight had cost lives at Ai, whereas the victories at Jericho and Ai had both been won when Israel followed God's instructions precisely.

9:15 Israel entered into a peace treaty with the Gibeonites. The Israelites were God's vassals, having entered into a suzerain-vassal treaty with God at Sinai (see note on Exod 20:1-23:33). Israel did not have authority to enter into treaties without the approval of their own suzerain. • guaranteed their safety (literally cut with them a covenant for their lives): Nations ratified covenants by a ceremony that involved cutting sacrificial animals in half. The parties to the covenant walked between the two animal halves (cp. Gen 15:9-18) to symbolize their commitment to be cut in two like the sacrifice if one violated the terms of the covenant. Covenants also were written documents, sometimes chiseled in stone and set up in a public area for all to see and remember (see note on 8:32). • In Israel, a binding oath was sworn in the name of the Lord. Violating the oath invited the Lord's judgment for swearing falsely (Exod 20:7).

Israel Sets the Gibeonites to Menial Labor

¹⁶Three days after making the treaty, they learned that these people actually lived nearby! ¹⁷The Israelites set out at once to investigate and reached their towns in three days. The names of these towns were Gibeon, Kephirah, Beeroth, and Kiriath-jearim. ¹⁸But the Israelites did not attack the towns, for the Israelite leaders had made a vow to them in the name of the LORD, the God of Israel.

The people of Israel grumbled against their leaders because of the treaty. ¹⁹But the leaders replied, "Since we have sworn an oath in the presence of the LORD, the God of Israel, we cannot touch them. ²⁰This is what we must do. We must let them live, for divine anger would come upon us if we broke our oath. ²¹Let them live." So they made them woodcutters and water carriers for the entire community, as the Israelite leaders directed.

²²Joshua called together the Gibeonites and said, "Why did you lie to us? Why did you say that you live in a distant land when you live right here among us? ²³May you be cursed! From now on you will always be servants who cut wood and carry water for the house of my God."

²⁴They replied, "We did it because we—your servants—were clearly told that the LORD your God commanded his servant Moses to give you this entire land and to destroy all the people living in it. So we feared greatly for our lives because of you. That is why we have done this. ²⁵Now we are at your mercy—do to us whatever you think is right."

²⁶So Joshua did not allow the people of Israel to kill them. ²⁷But that day he made the Gibeonites the woodcutters and water carriers for the community of Israel and for the altar of the LORD—wherever the LORD would choose to build it. And that is what they do to this day.

Coalition (10:1-43)

Gibeon Calls on Joshua for Help

10 Adoni-zedek, king of Jerusalem, heard that Joshua had captured and completely destroyed Ai and killed its king, just as he had destroyed the town of Jericho and killed its king. He also learned that the Gibeonites had made peace with Israel and were now their allies. ²He and his people became very afraid when they heard all this because Gibeon was a large town—as large as the royal cities and larger than Ai. And the Gibeonite men were strong warriors.

³So King Adoni-zedek of Jerusalem sent messengers to several other kings: Hoham of Hebron, Piram of Jarmuth, Japhia of Lachish, and Debir of Eglon. "Come and help me destroy Gibeon," he urged them, "for they have made peace with Joshua and the people of Israel." ⁵So these five Amorite kings combined their armies for a united attack. They moved all their troops into place and attacked Gibeon.

9:16 lived nearby! In reporting Israel's discovery, the author repeated the word the Israelites had used to voice their suspicion of the Gibeonites (9:7).

9:17 Gibeon, Kephirah, Beeroth, and Kiriath-jearim were on the plateau northwest of Jerusalem and southwest of Bethel and Ai (see note on 7:2).

9:18-21 Israel was not entitled to break this treaty even though the Gibeonites deceived the Israelites into making it. Breaking a covenant sworn by an oath in the presence of the LORD would have made light of God's name and honor (cp. Gen 27:30-38).

9:22 As the leader of Israel, Joshua was within his rights when he called together the Gibeonites to question them. • you live right here among us? See notes on 9:7-8 and 9:16. Joshua's use of this phrase tacitly acknowledged that he should not have accepted the word of the Gibeonites without consulting the Lord.

9:23 The Gibeonites were cursed, meaning they were diminished to the status of servants. • At that time, the house of . . . God was the Tabernacle; later, it was the Temple at Jerusalem.

9:24-25 The response of the Gibeonites amounted to a statement of faith in the Lord: They acted deceptively because they believed that God would enable Israel to conquer Canaan.

9:26-27 This summary closes the account of Joshua's second and last major mistake in leadership. • to this day: See note on 4:9.

10:1-43 Gibeon and its neighboring cities occupied a plateau north of Jerusalem (see note on 7:2). With Gibeon now allied to Israel, control of the plateau and of the central hill country in the vicinity of Gibeon belonged to Israel. Throughout history, whoever has controlled the plateau has, in general, also controlled the hill country. The Canaanite kings had to conquer Gibeon or their cause was lost.

10:1 Adoni-zedek means "master of righteousness" or "my master is righteous." An earlier king of Jerusalem named Melchizedek ("king of righteousness" or "my king is righteous") had been "a priest of God Most High" and a friend of Abraham (Gen 14:18-20; cp. note on Ps 76:2). However, Adoni-zedek was not a friend to Joshua or a believer in the Lord. • completely destroyed: See note on 2:9-10; also in 10:28, 35, 37, 39, 40.

10:2 Gibeon was apparently not one of the royal cities. Gibeon might have been subservient to Canaan-controlled Jerusalem before making the covenant with Joshua, or it might have been an independent town controlled by a few leading families.

10:5 When the OT makes a distinction between Amorites and Canaanites (see note on 3:10), the Amorite kings controlled the hill country, while the Canaanites occupied the valleys and the coastal plain.

⁶The men of Gibeon quickly sent messengers to Joshua at his camp in Gilgal. "Don't abandon your servants now!" they pleaded. "Come at once! Save us! Help us! For all the Amorite kings who live in the hill country have joined forces to attack us."

⁷So Joshua and his entire army, including his best warriors, left Gilgal and set out for Gibeon. ⁸"Do not be afraid of them," the LORD said to Joshua, "for I have given you victory over them. Not a single one of them will be able to stand up to you."

The Sun and Moon Stand Still

⁹Joshua traveled all night from Gilgal and took the Amorite armies by surprise. ¹⁰The LORD threw them into a panic, and the Israelites slaughtered great numbers of them at Gibeon. Then the Israelites chased the enemy along the road to Beth-horon, killing them all along the way to Azekah and Makkedah. ¹¹As the Amorites retreated down the road from Beth-horon, the LORD destroyed them with a terrible hailstorm from heaven that continued until they reached Azekah. The hail killed more of the enemy than the Israelites killed with the sword.

¹²On the day the LORD gave the Israelites victory over the Amorites, Joshua prayed to the LORD in front of all the people of Israel. He said,

"Let the sun stand still over Gibeon, and the moon over the valley of Aijalon."

¹³So the sun stood still and the moon stayed in place until the nation of Israel had defeated its enemies.

Is this event not recorded in The Book of Jashar? The sun stayed in the middle of the sky, and it did not set as on a normal day. ¹⁴There has never been a day like this one before or since, when the LORD answered such a prayer. Surely the LORD fought for Israel that day!

¹⁵Then Joshua and the Israelite army returned to their camp at Gilgal.

Joshua Executes the Five Southern Kings

²⁰So Joshua and the Israelite army continued the slaughter and completely crushed the enemy. They totally wiped out the five armies except for a tiny remnant that managed to reach their fortified towns. ²¹Then the Israelites returned safely to Joshua in the camp at Makkedah. After that, no one dared to speak even a word against Israel.

²²Then Joshua said, "Remove the rocks covering the opening of the cave, and bring the five kings to me." ²³So they brought the five kings out of the cave—the kings of Jerusalem, Hebron, Jarmuth, Lachish, and Eglon. ²⁴When they brought them out, Joshua told the commanders of his army, "Come and 10:7 Joshua had sworn to rescue Gibeon, so now he set out to do it.

10:8 God once again urged Joshua not to be afraid, assuring him of victory over Israel's enemies (see also 1:9; 8:1).

10:9 Joshua's army walked all night to travel the fifteen miles up the rugged passes and steep slopes and across the plateau. By attacking the Amorite armies from the east at sunrise, Joshua's army came out of the sun, blinding the Amorites as they faced eastward to fight. • Israel's covenant required the nation to respond to Gibeon's plea for help, but Joshua responded more promptly than any treaty required. Defeating the Canaanite force with a swift strike gave Israel a tremendous advantage.

10:10-13 Three miracles—supernatural panic, a terrible hailstorm, and a lengthened day—demonstrated that the destruction of the Canaanites was entirely God's doing.

10:10 It was about forty miles from Gibeon, down the Beth-horon road, then south through the western foothills to Azekah and Makkedah.

10:12 Joshua prayed to have the day lengthened so the Israelites could finish the task without allowing the Amorite forces time to organize a new defense against Israel. • The sun and moon, two of Canaan's most powerful gods, proved powerless against the Lord. • Aijalon was a city near the western end of the Beth-horon road.

10:13 God caused the sun to stay in the middle of the sky and it did not set as on a normal day (or did not set for about a whole day). Not all miracles can be understood, whether in purpose, in scope, or in mechanism. • The Book of Jashar (or The Book of the Upright) served as one of the ancient sources for Israel's historians. While well known in ancient Israel, it did not survive as a separate document.

10:16 The five kings (see 10:3) had led the southern coalition against God's people. • Although the location of Makkedah is uncertain, it was in the same district as Lachish (15:39-41) in the southern part of the western foothills, about twenty-five miles southwest of Jerusalem. Limestone caves are numerous in that region.

10:18-19 By blocking the opening of the cave, Joshua reduced the number of guards needed to keep the kings from escaping. This also eliminated danger to the guards and freed more men to pursue the fleeing people.

10:21 The armies returned safely, indicating that Israel suffered few or no casualties in this battle, a sign of God's presence in the battle. • no one dared: The Canaanites in the south now had firsthand experience that Israel's powerful God was fighting them.

10:24 Victorious commanders in the ancient Near East would commonly put their feet on defeated kings' necks to symbolize their subjugation.

put your feet on the kings' necks." And they did as they were told.

²⁷As the sun was going down, Joshua gave instructions for the bodies of the kings to be taken down from the poles and thrown into the cave where they had been hiding. Then they covered the opening of the cave with a pile of large rocks, which remains to this very day.

Joshua Destroys the Southern Towns

²⁸That same day Joshua captured and destroyed the town of Makkedah. He killed everyone in it, including the king, leaving no survivors. He destroyed them all, and he killed the king of Makkedah as he had killed the king of Jericho. ²⁹Then Joshua and the Israelites went to Libnah and attacked it. ³⁰There, too, the LORD gave them the town and its king. He killed everyone in it, leaving no survivors. Then Joshua killed the king of Libnah as he had killed the king of Jericho.

³⁴Then Joshua and the Israelite army went on to Eglon and attacked it. ³⁵They captured it that day and killed everyone in it. He completely destroyed everyone, just as he had done at Lachish. ³⁶From Eglon, Joshua and the Israelite army went up to Hebron and attacked it. ³⁷They captured the town and killed everyone in it, including its king, leaving no survivors. They did the same thing to all of its surrounding villages. And just as he had done at Eglon, he completely destroyed the entire population.

³⁸Then Joshua and the Israelites turned back and attacked Debir. ³⁹He captured the town, its king, and all of its surrounding villages. He completely destroyed everyone in it, leaving no survivors. He did to Debir and its king just what he had done to Hebron and to Libnah and its king.

Summary of the Southern Campaign

⁴⁰So Joshua conquered the whole region—the kings and people of the hill country, the Negev, the western foothills, and the mountain slopes. He completely destroyed everyone in the land, leaving no survivors, just as the LORD, the God of Israel, had commanded. ⁴¹Joshua slaughtered them from Kadesh-barnea to Gaza and from the region around the town of Goshen up to Gibeon. ⁴²Joshua conquered all these kings and their land in a single campaign, for the LORD, the God of Israel, was fighting for his people.

⁴³Then Joshua and the Israelite army returned to their camp at Gilgal.

10:25 Joshua encouraged his men at Makkedah, using the same words God had used to encourage him before Israel crossed the Jordan and again before the battle of Ai (1:9; 8:1).

10:26-27 Joshua's execution of the five kings followed the pattern established with the king of Ai (see note on 8:29).

10:28-39 Joshua led the Israelites throughout southern Canaan, where they captured but did not burn a number of important cities. God had promised that Israel would dwell in cities they had not built (Deut 6:10).

10:28 He destroyed them all: See note on 2:9-10.

10:29-30 Libnah was probably about six miles north of Lachish. Because the location of Makkedah is uncertain, how far it was from Libnah is also unknown.

10:31-33 Lachish, by far the most important of the six cities taken at this time, was defended so well that it took Joshua until the second day to capture it. • Gezer was about twenty-five miles north of Lachish. Lachish and Gezer might have had a mutual aid treaty.

10:38-39 Because settlement in the hill country was sparse, the surrounding villages—walled towns that could not maintain their independence—depended on the kingdoms of the dominant cities for protection.

10:40 Joshua's southern campaign cleared the way for the southern tribes to occupy this whole region when the settlement process began. • the western foothills: Hebrew the Shephelah; see map, facing page; note on Deut 1:7.

10:41 This Goshen was not the region in Egypt's Nile delta (Gen 47:27) but a town in the hill country (15:51) south of Jerusalem. From Goshen up to Gibeon describes the eastern reach of Joshua's southern campaign.

10:43 Joshua and his army were free to return to their camp at Gilgal in the Jordan Valley and turn their thoughts to the northern region of Canaan.

11:1-16 Through the more detailed accounts of Joshua's campaign in southern Canaan (chs 6-10), the narrator established firmly that the Israelites needed God's help to succeed. Because what had been true in the southern campaign would also be true in the northern (ch 11), those details were unnecessary here.

11:1-3 Hazor lay along the international trade route and was by far the largest and most important inland city of Canaan (see 11:10). • Virtually all of Acshaph; ²all the kings of the northern hill country; the kings in the Jordan Valley south of Galilee; the kings in the Galilean foothills; the kings of Naphoth-dor on the west; ³the kings of Canaan, both east and west; the kings of the Amorites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites in the hill country, and the Hivites in the towns on the slopes of Mount Hermon in the land of Mizpah.

⁴All these kings came out to fight. Their combined armies formed a vast horde. And with all their horses and chariots, they covered the landscape like the sand on the seashore. ⁵The kings joined forces and established their camp around the water near Merom to fight against Israel.

⁶Then the LORD said to Joshua, "Do not be afraid of them. By this time tomorrow I will hand all of them over to Israel as dead men. Then you must cripple their horses and burn their chariots."

¹⁰Joshua then turned back and captured Hazor and killed its king. (Hazor had at one time been the capital of all these kingdoms.)

¹¹The Israelites completely destroyed every living thing in the city, leaving no survivors. Not a single person was spared. And then Joshua burned the city.

◀ Israel's Conquest of Canaan (10:1–12:24). Israel's initial conquest took place in two major campaigns, a southern campaign and a northern one. The southern campaign began when a coalition of armies, led by the king of JERUSALEM, attacked GIBEON and were defeated by Israelite forces in a surprise attack (10:1-15). Then, after killing the kings of the defeated armies (10:16-27), the Israelites swept through and destroyed a number of southern towns (10:28-42), effectively clearing the hill country of Judea for settlement before returning to camp at GILGAL. The northern campaign, too, was instigated by Canaanites, with the king of HAZOR in the lead (11:1-5). Joshua defeated the northern coalition, also in a surprise attack, then destroyed the great city of Hazor (11:6-15). This 11:4 In the ancient Near East at this time, horses only pulled chariots; cavalry and mounted bowmen did not appear until centuries later. • Israel probably faced chariots for the first time in this battle against the northern coalition, where the land was flatter than in southern Canaan. As the heavy weapons of the battlefield, chariots easily overpowered foot soldiers. Scythes were often attached to the axles, and charioteers drove at opposing infantry to mow them down.

11:5 The location of Merom is unclear. The most likely site was in Upper Galilee a few miles west of Hazor.

11:6 God again urged Joshua not to be afraid, promising Israel the victory, even against horses and chariots. • cripple their horses and burn their chariots: God wanted Israel to rely on him rather than weaponry and equipment (cp. Deut 17:16; Isa 31:1).

11:7 Joshua . . . traveled: Jabin might have planned to move from Merom out of Upper Galilee to meet Israel on a more advantageous battlefield when all his forces were assembled. However, Joshua attacked suddenly, before Jabin could choose the battleground.

11:8 The Canaanites scattered widely, fleeing north and west into the territory of Greater Sidon on the Mediterranean coast and eastward into the valley of Mizpah.

11:11 completely destroyed: See note on 2:9-10; also in 11:12, 20, 21. • Archaeological excavation confirms that the city of Hazor was destroyed by fire during this period.

victory cleared the way for Israel to conquer the rest of the hill country and Jordan Valley (11:16-22). Chapter 12 summarizes all the kings Israel defeated, both east of the Jordan and within Canaan.

northern Canaan joined the coalition of King Jabin against Israel. This region stretched from the Mediterranean Sea in the west to the desert in the east and from the borders of Phoenicia in the north to the hill country and the Jordan Valley in the south. • The term Jebusites typically refers to the people of Jerusalem and surrounding towns under its control. Perhaps men from Jebus were mercenaries to Jabin. • Mizpah means "watchtower" or "lookout." Several places had this name; this one was the extensive region of the lower slopes of Mount Hermon, the highest peak of the Promised Land.

11:2 in the Jordan Valley south of Galilee: Hebrew in the Arabah south of Kinnereth. • the Galilean foothills: Hebrew the Shephelah; also in 11:16.

¹²Joshua slaughtered all the other kings and their people, completely destroying them, just as Moses, the servant of the LORD, had commanded. ¹³But the Israelites did not burn any of the towns built on mounds except Hazor, which Joshua burned. ¹⁴And the Israelites took all the plunder and livestock of the ravaged towns for themselves. But they killed all the people, leaving no survivors. ¹⁵As the LORD had commanded his servant Moses, so Moses commanded Joshua. And Joshua did as he was told, carefully obeying all the commands that the LORD had given to Moses.

Summary of Joshua's Campaigns (11:16-23)

²¹During this period Joshua destroyed all the descendants of Anak, who lived in the hill country of Hebron, Debir, Anab, and the entire hill country of Judah and Israel. He killed them all and completely destroyed their towns. ²²None of the descendants of Anak were left in all the land of Israel, though some still remained in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

²³So Joshua took control of the entire land, just as the LORD had instructed Moses. He gave it to the people of Israel as their special possession, dividing the land among the tribes. So the land finally had rest from war.

List of Defeated Canaanite Kings (12:1-24) Kings Defeated East of the Jordan

12 These are the kings east of the Jordan River who had been killed by the Israelites and whose land was taken. Their territory extended from the Arnon Gorge to Mount Hermon and included all the land east of the Jordan Valley.

⁴King Og of Bashan, the last of the Rephaites, lived at Ashtaroth and Edrei. ⁵He ruled a territory stretching from Mount Hermon

11:13 the towns built on mounds: In the ancient Near East it was common practice to rebuild cities on the same sites after they had been destroyed. All the elements that made a city site advantageous remained after a city's destruction. Many cities were rebuilt numerous times, slowly rising in height as more debris accumulated after each destruction. • Joshua burned only Hazor in the north, just as he had destroyed Jericho (6:24) and Ai (8:28) in the center of the land.

11:15 God commanded Joshua to exercise faithfulness to Moses' torah, or "Book of Instruction" (1:7-10). At the conclusion of the two major campaigns to occupy Canaan, the narrator reported that Joshua had obeyed all the commands faithfully.

11:16 the western foothills, the Jordan Valley: Hebrew the Shephelah, the Arabah.

11:18 Although the initial victories in both the southern and the northern campaigns were quick and decisive, it took a long time to take fortified cities. After Israel crossed the Jordan River, the total campaign for Canaan lasted perhaps five years (see 14:10).

11:19-20 The judgment on Canaan was God's, not Israel's. God had extended mercy to the Canaanites for several generations. Now, however, God determined that "the sin of the Amorites" had "reached its full measure" (Gen 15:16), and he hardened their hearts. God used Israel as the instrument and agent of his judgment, just as in later centuries God used other nations to execute judgment upon Israel and Judah for their sins.

12:4 King Og of Bashan: See Num 21:33-35. • The Rephaites were an indigenous people who lived on both sides of the Jordan. Many scholars have concluded that the Rephaites were unusually tall (see Deut 3:11). • Ashtaroth and Edrei: Many rulers of large kingdoms had

Kings Defeated West of the Jordan

⁷The following is a list of the kings that Joshua and the Israelite armies defeated on the west side of the Jordan, from Baal-gad in the valley of Lebanon to Mount Halak, which leads up to Seir. (Joshua gave this land to the tribes of Israel as their possession, ⁸including the hill country, the western foothills, the Jordan Valley, the mountain slopes, the Judean wilderness, and the Negev. The people who lived in this region were the Hittites, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites.) These are the kings Israel defeated:

- ⁹The king of Jericho
- The king of Ai, near Bethel
- ¹⁰The king of Jerusalem
- The king of Hebron
- ¹¹The king of Jarmuth
- The king of Lachish
- ¹²The king of Eglon
- The king of Gezer
- ¹³The king of Debir
- The king of Geder

- ¹⁴The king of Hormah
- The king of Arad
- ¹⁵The king of Libnah
- The king of Adullam
- ¹⁶The king of Makedah
- The king of Bethel
- ¹⁷The king of Tappuah
- The king of Hopher
- ¹⁸The king of Aphek
- The king of Lasharon
- ¹⁹The king of Madon
- The king of Hazor
- ²⁰The king of Shimron-meron
- The king of Acshaph
- ²¹The king of Taanach
- The king of Megiddo
- ²²The king of Kedesh
- The king of Jokneam in Carmel
- ²³The king of Dor in the town of Naphoth-dor
- The king of Goyim in Gilgal
- ²⁴The king of Tirzah.

In all, thirty-one kings were defeated.

3. JOSHUA DISTRIBUTES THE LAND

The Land Yet to Be Conquered (13:1-7)

13 When Joshua was an old man, the LORD said to him, "You are growing old, and much land remains to be conquered. ²This is the territory that remains: all the regions of the Philistines and the Geshurites, ³and the larger territory of the Canaanites, extending from the stream of Shihor on the border of Egypt, northward to the boundary palaces in more than one of their cities. The fact that Joshua credits only Og with more than one capital indicates that his kingdom was much larger than others Israel encountered, except for Sihon's.

12:6 Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh: See Num 32. The author of Joshua reminded the Israelites that their kin who lived east of the Jordan also belonged to Israel.

12:7-24 Joshua and the Israelite armies faithfully carried out the tasks God gave them. This summary showcases their successes, providing proper recognition for their faithfulness. God gave the Israelites their promised inheritance while bringing about the long-delayed judgment of the Canaanites. This roster of defeated kings, identified by their city-states, provides evidence of God's accomplished purposes. A solemn yet joyful recital for Israel, the list symbolizes God's mighty acts for his people and exalts his own great name.

Joshua's conquests west of the Jordan.

• The valley of Lebanon divided the coastal Lebanon range and the inland Anti-Lebanon range. • Mount Halak, which leads up to Seir (i.e., Edom), marked the southern limit of Joshua's conquests.

12:8 the western foothills: Hebrew the Shephelah. • Hittites . . . Jebusites: See note on 3:10.

13:1–21:45 As he had promised, God brought Israel into the land. Joshua next turned his attention to the allotment of the land to Israel's tribes. • The tribal allotments gave geographical reality to the Israelites' covenant with God and expressed the fulfillment of God's promise to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Because God owned the land, the apportionment to the tribes was a gift. God gave them the land to dwell in and directed its distribution. • In these lists of tribal allotments, the author describes some borders in such detail that they can be plotted on a map while others were far less well defined.

13:1-7 Israel did not conquer the entire land of Canaan while Joshua was alive. The unconquered areas, lying mostly in the valleys and plains, were the most populous regions. Several generations passed before Israel became strong enough to absorb or subjugate these regions and their peoples.

13:2 The Philistines were one of several groups in the great migration of the Sea Peoples from the Aegean region within a few decades after Israel's entry into Canaan. They settled along the southwestern Mediterranean coast, west and southwest of Judah. They came from Caphtor or Crete (Deut 2:23; Amos 9:7). • These Geshurites were people from a southern territory, not the northern Geshurites (cp. 12:5).

13:3 The stream of Shihor probably marked the traditional boundary between Canaan and Egypt, bisecting of Ekron. It includes the territory of the five Philistine rulers of Gaza, Ashdod, Ashkelon, Gath, and Ekron. The land of the Avvites ⁴in the south also remains to be conquered. In the north, the following area has not yet been conquered: all the land of the Canaanites, including Mearah (which belongs to the Sidonians), stretching northward to Aphek on the border of the Amorites; ⁵the land of the Gebalites and all of the Lebanon mountain area to the east, from Baal-gad below Mount Hermon to Lebo-hamath; ⁶and all the hill country from Lebanon to Misrephoth-maim, including all the land of the Sidonians.

"I myself will drive these people out of the land ahead of the Israelites. So be sure to give this land to Israel as a special possession, just as I have commanded you. ⁷Include all this territory as Israel's possession when you divide this land among the nine tribes and the half-tribe of Manasseh."

The Land East of the Jordan (13:8-33)

The Land Divided East of the Jordan

⁸Half the tribe of Manasseh and the tribes of Reuben and Gad had already received their grants of land on the east side of the Jordan, for Moses, the servant of the LORD, had previously assigned this land to them.

⁹Their territory extended from Aroer on the edge of the Arnon Gorge (including the town in the middle of the gorge) to the plain beyond Medeba, as far as Dibon. ¹⁰It also included all the towns of King Sihon of the Amorites, who had reigned in Heshbon, and extended as far as the borders of Ammon. ¹¹It included Gilead, the territory of the kingdoms of Geshur and Maacah, all of Mount Hermon, all of Bashan as far as Salecah, ¹²and all the territory of King Og of Bashan, who had reigned in Ashtaroth and Edrei. King Og was the last of the Rephaites, for Moses had attacked them and driven them out. ¹³But the Israelites failed to drive out the people of Geshur and Maacah, so they continue to live among the Israelites to this day.

Is the material world evil? Are spirit, soul, and energy the pure good toward which we are striving on our earthly journey? Will we only be truly spiritual and truly happy when we are finally free from the prison of this earth-bound flesh?

The Bible answers these and similar questions with an emphatic "No!" The universe, including this earth and all its bodily creatures, came perfect and holy from the skilled and expert hand of the loving Creator (Gen 1:31). As a result of our sin, this material world needs redeeming, and by God's grace, it will have its share in God's redemption at the end of time.

One of the ways Scripture affirms this is by a prominent theology of land. All land belongs to God. God evicted the Canaanite peoples from the Promised Land because of their wickedness. He brought Israel into that land because of his promises to the patriarchs and because he wants the earth to be under human stewards who are attuned to its Maker.

In ancient Israel, this stewardship was provided through the allotment of a livable portion to each household. Strictly speaking, the allotment of the land, rather than the land itself, was the stewardship trust. The allotment passed down from fathers to sons as the main part of most family inheritances. Following these principles and God's specific instruction, Joshua divided the land among the tribes, and the tribes divided it among their clans, families, and individual households. God's gift of stewardship over a specific portion of land was the gift of life to each household (see also note on 17:3-6).

the northern Sinai peninsula. • The Philistine territory included five main cities: Gaza, Ashdod, and Ashkelon were on the Mediterranean coast, and Gath and Ekron were a few miles inland. • The Philistines displaced the Avvites (Deut 2:23).

13:4-6a The Sidonians (that is, Phoenicians; see Isa 23:11; Obad 1:20; Acts 11:19) lived in the north along the coast, from north of Mount Carmel to above Gebal (Byblos). They also apparently occupied the Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon mountain ranges. Sidon was the dominant Phoenician city when Israel entered Canaan. • Baal-gad: See note on 12:7.

13:6b-7 The lands just listed had not yet been conquered, but God directed Joshua to show his faith by allotting them to the tribes against the future, when they would be taken.

13:8-14 Half the tribe of Manasseh and the tribes of Reuben and Gad had asked Moses for their inheritance on the east side of the Jordan in the land that had been the kingdoms of Sihon and Og (Num 21:21-35; 32:1-42). In return, they had helped the rest of Israel take possession of their inheritance west of the Jordan (1:12-18; 4:12-13). Here, the author confirmed their possession of these lands.

promised them, their allotment came from the offerings burned on the altar to the LORD, the God of Israel.

The Land Given to the Tribe of Reuben

¹⁵Moses had assigned the following area to the clans of the tribe of Reuben.

¹⁶Their territory extended from Aroer on the edge of the Arnon Gorge (including the town in the middle of the gorge) to the plain beyond Medeba. ¹⁷It included Heshbon and the other towns on the plain—Dibon, Bamoth-baal, Beth-baal-meon, ¹⁸Jahaz, Kedemoth, Mephaath, ¹⁹Kiriathaim, Sibmah, Zereth-shahar on the hill above the valley, ²⁰Beth-peor, the slopes of Pisgah, and Beth-jeshimoth.

²¹The land of Reuben also included all the towns of the plain and the entire kingdom of Sihon. Sihon was the Amorite king who had reigned in Heshbon and was killed by Moses along with the leaders of Midian—Evi, Rekem, Zur, Hur, and Reba—princes living in the region who were allied with Sihon. ²²The Israelites had also killed Balaam son of Beor, who used magic to tell the future.

²³The Jordan River marked the western boundary for the tribe of Reuben. The towns and their surrounding villages in this area were given as a homeland to the clans of the tribe of Reuben.

The Land Given to the Tribe of Gad

²⁴Moses had assigned the following area to the clans of the tribe of Gad.

²⁵Their territory included Jazer, all the towns of Gilead, and half of the land of Ammon, as far as the town of Aroer just west of Rabbah. ²⁶It extended ◀ Allotment of the Land (13:1–21:45). After Joshua and the Israelites had conquered the hill country, the land was divided among the twelve tribes, as shown. Much of this land remained unconquered, however (see map, p. 416), and the tribe of Dan later moved to a completely different area (19:47; Judg 18).

13:14 The tribe of Levi inherited no tribal land of its own (see Deut 18:1-8). Levitical cities were located in the territories of the other tribes (ch 21).

13:15-23 Because Reuben, Jacob's firstborn son by Leah (Gen 29:32), forfeited his birthright by sleeping with his father's concubine (Gen 35:22), the inheritance of his tribe was not of central importance. Although the tribe received a fertile portion of land, it was difficult to defend from neighboring nations. The tribe of Reuben eventually lost the southern portion to Moab.

13:21 The leaders of Midian were apparently kings (Num 31:8) or sheiks of small city-states south of Sihon's kingdom. The nomadic Midianites depended mostly on sheep and goats for their livelihood.

13:22 Balaam son of Beor had initiated a successful plan to seduce Israel into sexually expressed idolatry (Num 31:16), even though God had forbidden Balaam to curse Israel (Num 22–25).

13:24-28 Gad was Jacob's seventh son, born to Zilpah, Leah's servant. Just as Gad's position in his family was peripheral, the tribe of Gad was peripheral to Israel.

13:25 just west of: Literally in front of.

from Heshbon to Ramath-mizpeh and Betonim, and from Mahanaim to the territory of Lo-debar. ²⁷In the valley were Beth-haram, Beth-nimrah, Succoth, Zaphon, and the rest of the kingdom of King Sihon of Heshbon. The western boundary ran along the Jordan River, extended as far north as the tip of the Sea of Galilee, and then turned eastward. ²⁸The towns and their surrounding villages in this area were given as a homeland to the clans of the tribe of Gad.

The Land Given to the Half-Tribe of Manasseh

²⁹Moses had assigned the following area to the clans of the half-tribe of Manasseh.

³⁰Their territory extended from Mahanaim, including all of Bashan, all the former kingdom of King Og, and the sixty towns of Jair in Bashan. ³¹It also included half of Gilead and King Og's royal cities of Ashtaroth and Edrei. All this was given to the clans of the descendants of Makir, who was Manasseh's son.

³²These are the allotments Moses had made while he was on the plains of Moab, across the Jordan River, east of Jericho. ³³But Moses gave no allotment of land to the tribe of Levi, for the LORD, the God of Israel, had promised that he himself would be their allotment.

Caleb's Inheritance and the Allotment for Judah (14:1–15:63)

The Land Divided West of the Jordan

14 The remaining tribes of Israel received land in Canaan as allotted by Eleazar the priest, Joshua son of Nun, and the tribal leaders. ²These nine and a half tribes received their grants of land by means of sacred lots, in accordance with the LORD's command through Moses. ³Moses had already given a grant of land to the two and a half tribes on the east side of the Jordan River, but he had given the Levites no such allotment. ⁴The descendants of Joseph had become two separate tribes—Manasseh and Ephraim. And the Levites were given no land at all, only towns to live in with surrounding pasturelands for their livestock and all their possessions. ⁵So the land was distributed in strict accordance with the LORD's commands to Moses.

Caleb Requests His Land

⁶A delegation from the tribe of Judah, led by Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite, came to Joshua at Gilgal. Caleb said to Joshua, "Remember what the LORD said to Moses, the man of God, about you and me when we were at Kadesh-barnea. ⁷I was forty years old when Moses, the servant of the LORD, sent me from Kadesh-barnea to explore the land of Canaan. I returned and gave an honest report, ⁸but my brothers who went with me frightened the people from entering the Promised Land. For my part, I wholeheartedly followed the LORD my God. ⁹So that day Moses solemnly promised me, 'The land of Canaan on which you were just walking will be your grant of land and that of your descendants forever, because you wholeheartedly followed the LORD my God.'

¹⁰Now, as you can see, the LORD has kept me alive and well as he promised for all these forty-five years since Moses made this promise—even while Israel wandered in the wilderness. Today I am eighty-five years old. ¹¹I am as strong now as I was when Moses sent me on that journey, and I can still travel and fight as well as I could then. ¹²So give me the hill country that the 13:29-33 Manasseh was Joseph's elder son. Jacob gave Joseph's sons each a full inheritance, thus giving Joseph a double portion of the birthright (see 14:4).

13:30-31 Jair was a great-grandson of Manasseh (1 Chr 2:21-22). Makir was one of Manasseh's sons. It is unclear whether the land allotted to these tribes in north Gilead was distinguished from the land that the tribe of Gad received there.

14:1–19:51 The allotment of land to the tribes on the west side of the Jordan describes what God intended for each tribe to possess. • The narrator frames this section with the assignment of land to Caleb at the beginning (14:6-15) and to Joshua at the end (19:49-51). Only Caleb and Joshua had expressed faith in God that Israel could conquer the land (Num 13:30; 14:6-9).

14:1 Eleazar . . . Joshua . . . and the tribal leaders supervised the distribution of the land to ensure that the process was honest and just.

14:4 Joseph, the elder son of Jacob's favorite wife Rachel, received a double portion of land through his sons Manasseh and Ephraim (see note on Gen 48:5-7). Because the Levites did not receive a separate tribal territory (13:14), the total number of tribes with land remained at twelve.

14:6 The Kenizzite people were not originally Israelites (Gen 15:19); how they became attached to Judah is unknown. • about you and me: Only Caleb and Joshua were faithful to God at the first opportunity to enter the land, so God promised them that they would possess it (Num 14:24).

14:9 Moses . . . promised: See Num 14:24.

14:11 Caleb judged himself to be as strong at eighty-five as he had been at forty. He still felt equipped to travel and fight—to continue both ordinary and extraordinary pursuits.

14:12 Israel had stayed out of Canaan forty-five years earlier because they ¹³So Joshua blessed Caleb son of Jephunneh and gave Hebron to him as his portion of land. ¹⁴Hebron still belongs to the descendants of Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite because he wholeheartedly followed the LORD, the God of Israel. ¹⁵(Previously Hebron had been called Kiriath-arba. It had been named after Arba, a great hero of the descendants of Anak.)

And the land had rest from war.

The Land Given to the Tribe of Judah

15 The allotment for the clans of the tribe of Judah reached southward to the border of Edom, as far south as the wilderness of Zin.

²The southern boundary began at the south bay of the Dead Sea, ³ran south of Scorpion Pass into the wilderness of Zin, and then went south of Kadesh-barnea to Hezron. Then it went up to Addar, where it turned toward Karka. ⁴From there it passed to Azmon until it finally reached the Brook of Egypt, which it followed to the Mediterranean Sea. This was their southern boundary.

⁵The eastern boundary extended along the Dead Sea to the mouth of the Jordan River.

The northern boundary began at the bay where the Jordan River empties into the Dead Sea, ⁶went up from there to Beth-hoglah, then proceeded north of Beth-arabah to the Stone of Bohan. (Bohan was Reuben's son.)

⁷From that point it went through the valley of Achor to Debir, turning north

Caleb stands as an inspiring example of faith in God. He was the son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite (14:6; Num 32:12). The Kenizzites lived in the Negev, the southern desert region of Canaan (see Gen 15:18-21). Jephunneh apparently married into the tribe of Judah a generation before Israel left Egypt.

Caleb first appears as one of twelve spies Moses sent to scout out the land of Canaan. Upon returning, all twelve confirmed the land's magnificence, but ten of the scouts focused on the land's fearsome inhabitants (Num 13:31-33). Only Joshua and Caleb believed that God would enable Israel to conquer the Canaanites (Num 14:6-9), advising that the Israelites immediately take the land (Num 13:30). Although the people wanted to stone both Caleb and Joshua (Num 14:1-4, 10), God protected them and punished the people (Num 14:11-38). God ultimately rewarded Caleb and Joshua for their faithfulness. Among all the adults who left Egypt, they were the only ones to enter the Promised Land.

After many years in the wilderness, Joshua and Caleb received their personal inheritance in the land. Caleb's faith did not diminish in the intervening forty-five years; his testimony reveals his character and rock-solid faith in God. Although Caleb was eighty-five years old, he was still strong and able to fight. Caleb drove out the Anakites to acquire Hebron. Caleb's city of Hebron, about twenty miles south of Jerusalem (not far from Kenizzite territory), was occupied by giant Anakites who had terrified the earlier scouts (14:6-15; Num 13:28, 33). Hebron later became a Levitical city of refuge (21:13; 1 Chr 6:55-57).

Caleb looked beyond serious obstacles to God's unbreakable promise that Israel would occupy Canaan. With unabated vigor, he stood ready to conquer the territory Joshua assigned him. Caleb's staunch confidence in God's reliable promises earned him an honored place among the faithful. Even when outnumbered by enemies, Caleb trusted God, and God richly rewarded him.

feared the descendants of Anak, a tall, strong people who lived in the hill country of Judah (Num 13:32-33).

14:15 rest from war: See note on 1:13.

15:1-63 Judah's tribal allotment is described in greater detail than that of the other tribes. The failures of Judah's elder brothers (Gen 34:25-31; 35:22) put him in line to receive the mantle of leadership. Thus, the tribe of Judah received a central geographical position among the tribes, guaranteeing its leadership in the nation (Gen 49:8-12; Deut 33:7).

15:2-4 Judah's southern boundary extended well into the desert of the Negev, which had little if any settled population throughout the OT period.

15:3 Scorpion Pass: Hebrew Akrabbim.

toward Gilgal, which is across from the slopes of Adummim on the south side of the valley. From there the boundary extended to the springs at En-shemesh and on to En-rogel. ⁸The boundary then passed through the valley of Ben-Hinnom, along the southern slopes of the Jebusites, where the city of Jerusalem is located. Then it went west to the top of the mountain above the valley of Hinnom, and on up to the northern end of the valley of Rephaim. ⁹From there the boundary extended from the top of the mountain to the spring at the waters of Nephtoah, and from there to the towns on Mount Ephron. Then it turned toward Baalah (that is, Kiriath-jearim). ¹⁰The boundary circled west of Baalah to Mount Seir, passed along to the town of Kesalon on the northern slope of Mount Jearim, and went down to Beth-shemesh and on to Timnah. ¹¹The boundary then proceeded to the slope of the hill north of Ekron, where it turned toward Shikkeron and Mount Baalah. It passed Jabneel and ended at the Mediterranean Sea.

¹²The western boundary was the shoreline of the Mediterranean Sea.

These are the boundaries for the clans of the tribe of Judah.

The Land Given to Caleb

¹³The LORD commanded Joshua to assign some of Judah's territory to Caleb son of Jephunneh. So Caleb was given the town of Kiriath-arba (that is, Hebron), which had been named after Anak's ancestor. ¹⁴Caleb drove out the three groups of Anakites—the descendants of Sheshai, Ahiman, and Talmai, the sons of Anak.

¹⁵From there he went to fight against the people living in the town of Debir (formerly called Kiriath-sepher). ¹⁶Caleb said, "I will give my daughter Acsah in marriage to the one who attacks and captures Kiriath-sepher." ¹⁷Othniel, the son of Caleb's brother Kenaz, was the one who conquered it, so Acsah became Othniel's wife.

¹⁸When Acsah married Othniel, she urged him to ask her father for a field. As she got down off her donkey, Caleb asked her, "What's the matter?"

¹⁹She said, "Give me another gift. You have already given me land in the Negev; now please give me springs of water, too." So Caleb gave her the upper and lower springs.

15:8 The valley of Ben-Hinnom marked Judah's northern border. Jerusalem occupied a ridge rising northward from the lower end of this valley within the tribe of Benjamin's territory. Neither tribe occupied Jerusalem, so when David captured it, it became the royal city of his dynasty rather than just another tribal city.

15:9 the spring at the waters of Nephtoah: Or the spring at Me-nephtoah; also in 18:15. It is possible that the place name is a reference to Egyptian Pharaoh Merneptah (late 1200s BC); an Egyptian papyrus refers to the "wells of Merneptah" on the mountain ridges of Canaan.

15:12 the Mediterranean Sea: Literally the Great Sea; also in 15:47. • These were the boundaries of Judah when the settlement process began. Later, the tribes of Simeon and Dan received their allotments from some of Judah's southern and western territories, and within a few decades the Philistines came from the Greek islands, settling all the southern coastal plain allotted to Judah (see note on 13:2).

15:16 Cp. 1 Sam 17:25; 18:27.

15:17 Othniel, Caleb's nephew, became Israel's first judge (Judg 3:9-11).

15:18-19 she urged him: Some Greek manuscripts read he urged her. • What's the matter? No water source existed for the town Othniel conquered in the Negev ("dry land"), the southernmost of Judah's districts, which was semi-arid.

• The upper and lower springs were close together but too far from Debir to belong to it naturally, so Acsah asked for the rights to the water.

15:20-63 Not all of these locations can be identified with certainty. Many are unknown except for their occurrence in this and other lists. Some receive passing reference in other texts.

15:21 in the extreme south: Or in the Negev (see note on 1:4). The Hebrew word negev can refer either to the general direction ("south") or the desert region named "Negev." • The location of Eder is otherwise unknown. Some propose translating this word as "Arad" because Arad should be about here in the list and was too important to have been left out. This translation would simply reverse two Hebrew letters that are very similar in shape.

15:33 From the perspective of the highlanders of the Judean hill country, the lower hills between them and the coastal plain were the western foothills (Hebrew the Shephelah). These hills were separated geologically from the hill country by a series of north-south valleys. In this list, the western foothills are divided into four districts.

⁴²Besides these, there were Libnah, Ether, Ashan, ⁴³Iphtah, Ashnah, Nezib, ⁴⁴Keilah, Aczib, and Mareshah—nine towns with their surrounding villages.

⁴⁵The territory of the tribe of Judah also included Ekron and its surrounding settlements and villages. ⁴⁶From Ekron the boundary extended west and included the towns near Ashdod with their surrounding villages. ⁴⁷It also included Ashdod with its surrounding settlements and villages and Gaza with its settlements and villages, as far as the Brook of Egypt and along the coast of the Mediterranean Sea.

⁴⁸Judah also received the following towns in the hill country: Shamir, Jattir, Socoh, ⁴⁹Dannah, Kiriath-sannah (that is, Debir), ⁵⁰Anab, Eshtemoh, Anim, ⁵¹Goshen, Holon, and Giloh—eleven towns with their surrounding villages.

⁵²Also included were the towns of Arab, Dumah, Eshan, ⁵³Janim, Beth-tappuah, Apekah, ⁵⁴Humtah, Kiriath-arba (that is, Hebron), and Zior—nine towns with their surrounding villages.

⁵⁵Besides these, there were Maon, Carmel, Ziph, Juttah, ⁵⁶Jezreel, Jokdeam, Zanoah, ⁵⁷Kain, Gibeah, and Timnah—ten towns with their surrounding villages.

⁵⁸In addition, there were Halhul, Beth-zur, Gedor, ⁵⁹Maarath, Beth-anoth, and Eltekon—six towns with their surrounding villages.

⁶¹In the wilderness there were the towns of Beth-arabah, Middin, Secacah, ⁶²Nibshan, the City of Salt, and En-gedi—six towns with their surrounding villages.

⁶³But the tribe of Judah could not drive out the Jebusites, who lived in the city of Jerusalem, so the Jebusites live there among the people of Judah to this day.

The Western Allotments for Ephraim and Manasseh (16:1–17:18)
The Land Given to Ephraim and West Manasseh

16 The allotment for the descendants of Joseph extended from the Jordan River near Jericho, east of the springs of Jericho, through the wilderness and into the hill country of Bethel. ²From Bethel (that is, Luz) it ran over to Ataroth in the territory of the Arkites. ³Then it descended westward to the territory of the Japhletites as far as Lower Beth-horon, then to Gezer and over to the Mediterranean Sea.

⁴This was the homeland allocated to the families of Joseph's sons, Manasseh and Ephraim.

15:45–47 The fourth district of the western foothills included most of the territory soon to be occupied by the Philistines—the tribe of Judah held it only briefly.

15:48 The hill country was in the central highlands of Judah from Jerusalem in the north to just past Debir (15:15) in the south. It was divided into five districts.

15:56 This Jezreel in Judah was not the northern Jezreel. This city was the hometown of Ahinoam, David's wife and the mother of his eldest son, Amnon (2 Sam 3:2).

15:59 Following this verse, the Greek OT includes another district of 11 cities: Tekoa, Ephrathah (that is, Bethlehem), Phagor, Etam, Kulon, Tatam, Saris, Kareem, Gallim, Bether, Manoch—eleven towns with their surrounding villages. The inclusion of this district accounts for Bethlehem; this town's omission would be surprising. Perhaps an early copyist of the Hebrew text accidentally omitted this twelfth district.

15:61 The wilderness of Judea included the eastern slopes of the central mountain highlands and extended to the western shore of the Dead Sea; three of its six towns were on or near that shoreline.

15:63 Even though Jerusalem was assigned to the tribe of Benjamin (18:28), it was not conquered in Joshua's day. • to this day: The Jebusites' continued presence later caused Judah trouble (Judg 1:21).

16:1–17:18 Joseph had two sons, Manasseh and Ephraim (Gen 41:50–52). Half of Manasseh's descendants had received their inheritance east of the Jordan River. The tribe of Ephraim and the rest of the tribe of Manasseh now received their allotments. This brought the total number of allotments to twelve and fulfilled the blessing Jacob had pronounced upon Joseph (Gen 49:22–26). Like Judah in the south, Joseph's tribes exercised leadership from their central position in the north.

16:1 Jericho was assigned to the tribe of Benjamin (18:21).

16:2 From Bethel (that is, Luz): As in Greek version (also see 18:13); Hebrew reads From Bethel to Luz.

16:3 Ephraim's border followed the ascent from lower to upper Beth-horon (see 16:5), giving this tribe control of one of the two main roads to Jerusalem from the west. • Gezer, a large and important Canaanite town at the juncture of the coastal plain and the hill country, apparently did not come into Israel's possession until the time of Solomon (see Judg 1:29; 1 Kgs 9:16). • the Mediterranean Sea: Literally the sea; also in 16:6, 8.

The Land Given to Ephraim

⁵The following territory was given to the clans of the tribe of Ephraim.

The boundary of their homeland began at Ataroth-addar in the east. From there it ran to Upper Beth-horon, ⁶then on to the Mediterranean Sea. From Micmethath on the north, the boundary curved eastward past Taanath-shiloh to the east of Janoah. ⁷From Janoah it turned southward to Ataroth and Naarah, touched Jericho, and ended at the Jordan River. ⁸From Tappuah the boundary extended westward, following the Kanah Ravine to the Mediterranean Sea. This is the homeland allocated to the clans of the tribe of Ephraim.

⁹In addition, some towns with their surrounding villages in the territory allocated to the half-tribe of Manasseh were set aside for the tribe of Ephraim.

¹⁰They did not drive the Canaanites out of Gezer, however, so the people of Gezer live as slaves among the people of Ephraim to this day.

The Land Given to West Manasseh

17 The next allotment of land was given to the half-tribe of Manasseh, the descendants of Joseph's older son. Makir, the firstborn son of Manasseh, was the father of Gilead. Because his descendants were experienced soldiers, the regions of Gilead and Bashan on the east side of the Jordan had already been given to them. ²So the allotment on the west side of the Jordan was for the remaining families within the clans of the tribe of Manasseh: Abiezer, Helek, Asriel, Shechem, Hepher, and Shemida. These clans represent the male descendants of Manasseh son of Joseph.

³However, Zelophehad, a descendant of Hepher son of Gilead, son of Makir, son of Manasseh, had no sons. He had only daughters, whose names were Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. ⁴These women came to Eleazar the priest, Joshua son of Nun, and the Israelite leaders and said, "The LORD commanded Moses to give us a grant of land along with the men of our tribe."

So Joshua gave them a grant of land along with their uncles, as the LORD had commanded. ⁵As a result, Manasseh's total allocation came to ten parcels of land, in addition to the land of Gilead and Bashan across the Jordan River, ⁶because the female descendants of Manasseh received a grant of land along with the male descendants. (The land of Gilead was given to the rest of the male descendants of Manasseh.)

⁷The boundary of the tribe of Manasseh extended from the border of Asher to Micmethath, near Shechem. Then the boundary went south from Micmethath to the settlement near the spring of Tappuah. ⁸The land surrounding Tappuah belonged to Manasseh, but the town of Tappuah itself, on the border of Manasseh's territory, belonged to the tribe of Ephraim. ⁹From the spring of Tappuah, the boundary of Manasseh followed the Kanah Ravine to the Mediterranean Sea. Several towns south of the ravine were inside Manasseh's territory, but they actually belonged to the tribe of Ephraim. ¹⁰In general, however, the land south of the ravine belonged to Ephraim, and the land north of the ravine belonged to Manasseh. Manasseh's boundary ran along the northern side of the ravine and ended at the Mediterranean Sea. North of Manasseh was the territory of Asher, and to the east was the territory of Issachar.

¹¹The following towns within the territory of Issachar and Asher, however, were given to Manasseh: Beth-shan, Ibleam, Dor (that is, Naphoth-dor), Endor, 17:1 See 13:29-33 and notes.

17:3-6 In ancient Israel, inheritance usually passed from a father to his sons. Without sons, a man's name could pass into oblivion. However, Zelophehad's daughters had petitioned Moses, Moses had inquired of God, and God had ruled that they should inherit their father's portion (see Num 27:1-11). God's ruling established a general principle, declaring that no family would be excluded from a portion of God's material blessings (see "Inheriting the Land" at 13:1-21:45, p. 396).

17:7-13 As with the tribe of Ephraim, Manasseh's territory was defined by a general description of its borders.

17:7 Asher was north-northwest of Manasseh, across the Jezreel Valley.

17:8-10 This general description of Manasseh's southern border with the land given to the tribe of Ephraim provides more detail than the description of Ephraim's northern border in 16:8.

17:9 the Mediterranean Sea: Literally the sea; also in 17:10.

17:11-13 All the towns mentioned here except Endor were important, but the military strength of the Canaanites prevented the tribe of Manasseh from inhabiting them for a time.

17:11 Beth-shan: Hebrew Beth-shean, a variant spelling of Beth-shan; also in 17:16. • Dor (that is, Naphoth-dor): The meaning of the Hebrew here is uncertain.

¹²But the descendants of Manasseh were unable to occupy these towns because the Canaanites were determined to stay in that region. ¹³Later, however, when the Israelites became strong enough, they forced the Canaanites to work as slaves. But they did not drive them out of the land.

¹⁴The descendants of Joseph came to Joshua and asked, "Why have you given us only one portion of land as our homeland when the LORD has blessed us with so many people?"

¹⁵Joshua replied, "If there are so many of you, and if the hill country of Ephraim is not large enough for you, clear out land for yourselves in the forest where the Perizzites and Rephaites live."

¹⁶The descendants of Joseph responded, "It's true that the hill country is not large enough for us. But all the Canaanites in the lowlands have iron chariots, both those in Beth-shan and its surrounding settlements and those in the valley of Jezreel. They are too strong for us."

¹⁷Then Joshua said to the tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh, the descendants of Joseph, "Since you are so large and strong, you will be given more than one portion. ¹⁸The forests of the hill country will be yours as well. Clear as much of the land as you wish, and take possession of its farthest corners. And you will drive out the Canaanites from the valleys, too, even though they are strong and have iron chariots."

The Allotments for the Remaining Seven Tribes (18:1-19:51)

Survey of the Remaining Land

18 Now that the land was under Israelite control, the entire community of Israel gathered at Shiloh and set up the Tabernacle. ²But there remained seven tribes who had not yet been allotted their grants of land.

³Then Joshua asked them, "How long are you going to wait before taking possession of the remaining land the LORD, the God of your ancestors, has given to you? ⁴Select three men from each tribe, and I will send them out to explore the land and map it out. They will then return to me with a written report of their proposed divisions of their new homeland. ⁵Let them divide the land into seven sections, excluding Judah's territory in the south and Joseph's territory in the north. ⁶And when you record the seven divisions of the land and bring them to me, I will cast sacred lots in the presence of the LORD our God to assign land to each tribe.

⁷"The Levites, however, will not receive any allotment of land. Their role as priests of the LORD is their allotment. And the tribes of Gad, Reuben, and the half-tribe of Manasseh won't receive any more land, for they have already received their grant of land, which Moses, the servant of the LORD, 17:13 Throughout the period of the judges and beyond, the Israelites gradually grew stronger and the Canaanite people weaker. After the time of Joshua, the Israelites forced the Canaanites to work as slaves. They eventually absorbed these people and were influenced to worship the Canaanite gods. This idolatry ultimately cost them the land.

17:14 Joseph's one portion is described in 16:1-4. The descendants of Ephraim and Manasseh received portions that, when combined, were larger than the allotment of any other tribe.

17:15 The Perizzites lived in Canaan when Israel's conquest began. • Rephaites: See note on 12:4; see also Deut 2:10-11, 20-21; 3:11.

17:16 As a result of the Canaanites' iron chariots, Ephraim and Manasseh were restricted to the hill country in the early part of the settlement period (see note on 11:4). • The valley of Jezreel, a geological interruption of the hill country, separated Lower Galilee to the north from the hill country of Manasseh to the south. The Canaanites living in and near it and the valley of Beth-shan restricted Manasseh's expansion and apparently Ephraim's as well. Most of the towns named in 17:11-12 were on the edges of these valleys.

17:17-18 Rather than rebuke the people for their fear, Joshua repeated his instructions to clear forest land for settlement. His promise that the tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh would eventually drive out the Canaanites gave them a hope by which they could enlarge their faith and conquer their fear. • Much of the hill country was forested, and Canaanite settlement was sparse there. If Ephraim and Manasseh had contented themselves with land already cleared, they would have had little room for settlement. With the introduction of iron technology at about this time, including iron axe heads, the people of these tribes could clear the virgin forests and open up new land for settlement. Joshua might have set an example by being the first to clear his own homestead at Timnath-serah (19:50), a forested region in the Ephraimite hill country.

18:1 Israel had been encamped at Gilgal in the Jordan Valley (14:6). Shiloh was about twenty miles north of Jerusalem, in the hill country of Ephraim. By setting up the Tabernacle (literally Tent of Meeting) there, Joshua made Shiloh Israel's religious and political center. The Tabernacle remained at Shiloh until the Philistines captured the Ark (1 Sam 4:10-11).

18:4 The three selected representatives from each tribe came from the seven tribes that had not yet received their allotments. • a written report: Israel was not an entirely oral society. If an event or record was important enough to be remembered over time, leaders ordered that it be written down.

18:5 The remaining land was divided into seven sections, one for each tribe not yet assigned its territory.

18:6 Joshua publicly cast sacred lots to eliminate envy or suspicion (see also note on 7:16-18).

18:7 The Levites: See ch 21. • Gad . . . Manasseh: See 13:15-33.

gave them on the east side of the Jordan River."

⁸As the men started on their way to map out the land, Joshua commanded them, "Go and explore the land and write a description of it. Then return to me, and I will assign the land to the tribes by casting sacred lots here in the presence of the LORD at Shiloh."⁹The men did as they were told and mapped the entire territory into seven sections, listing the towns in each section. They made a written record and then returned to Joshua in the camp at Shiloh.¹⁰And there at Shiloh, Joshua cast sacred lots in the presence of the LORD to determine which tribe should have each section.

The Land Given to Benjamin

¹¹The first allotment of land went to the clans of the tribe of Benjamin. It lay between the territory assigned to the tribes of Judah and Joseph.

¹⁵The southern boundary began at the outskirts of Kiriath-jearim. From that western point it ran to the spring at the waters of Nephtoah,¹⁶and down to the base of the mountain beside the valley of Ben-Hinnom, at the northern end of the valley of Rephaim. From there it went down the valley of Hinnom, crossing south of the slope where the Jebusites lived, and continued down to En-rogel.

¹⁷From En-rogel the boundary proceeded in a northerly direction and came to En-shemesh and on to Geliloth (which is across from the slopes of Adummim). Then it went down to the Stone of Bohan. (Bohan was Reuben's son.)¹⁸From there it passed along the north side of the slope overlooking the Jordan Valley. The border then went down into the valley,¹⁹ran past the north slope of Beth-hoglah, and ended at the north bay of the Dead Sea, which is the southern end of the Jordan River. This was the southern boundary.

²⁰The eastern boundary was the Jordan River.

These were the boundaries of the homeland allocated to the clans of the tribe of Benjamin.

The Towns Given to Benjamin

²¹These were the towns given to the clans of the tribe of Benjamin.

Jericho, Beth-hoglah, Emek-keziz,²²Beth-arabah, Zemaraim, Bethel,²³Avvim, Parah, Ophrah,²⁴Kephart-ammoni, Ophni, and Geba—twelve towns with their surrounding villages.²⁵Also Gibeon, Ramah, Beeroth,²⁶Mizpah, Kephirah, Mozah,²⁷Rekem, Irpeel, Taralah,²⁸Zela, Haeleph, the Jebusite town (that is, Jerusalem), Gibeah, and Kiriath-jearim—fourteen towns with their surrounding villages.

This was the homeland allocated to the clans of the tribe of Benjamin.

The Land Given to Simeon

19 The second allotment of land went to the clans of the tribe of Simeon. Their homeland was surrounded by Judah's territory.

18:9 The Canaanites of the hill country now feared Israel and allowed twenty-one men (18:4) to walk through these territories and return unharmed. • The written record was probably a scroll, which might have provided the original source for the descriptions of the tribal allotments in chs 18–19.

18:11 Benjamin was Jacob's twelfth and last son, and the second son of Rachel, Jacob's favorite wife. The land received by his descendants reflected this favored position; they received a small but central portion between . . . Judah and Joseph.

18:15 From that western point it ran:

Or From there it went to Mozah. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. • the spring at the waters of Nephtoah: Or the spring at Me-nephtoah. See note on 15:9.

18:18 overlooking the Jordan Valley: Hebrew overlooking the Arabah, or overlooking Beth-arabah.

18:19 Dead Sea: Literally Salt Sea.

18:21-28 While Judah's land included eleven or twelve districts (see note on 15:59), the tribe of Benjamin had two, totaling twenty-six towns. However, the location between the lands of Judah and Joseph gave Benjamin an economic and military importance significantly greater than its size.

18:28 Jerusalem: See note on 15:8. • Kiriath-jearim (as in Greek version; Hebrew reads Kiriath): The Kiriath-jearim of 18:14 belonged to Judah; another town with this name might have existed but is otherwise unknown. The word Kiriath here was probably originally followed by a word that has been lost in the process of copying.

19:1 Simeon, Jacob and Leah's second son, was older than Judah. However, he had forfeited a leading role with his violent actions against Shechem (Gen 34:25-26). The tribal inheritance of his ²Simeon's homeland included Beersheba, Sheba, Moladah, ³Hazar-shual, Balah, Ezem, ⁴Eltolad, Bethul, Hormah, ⁵Ziklag, Beth-marcaboth, Hazar-susah, ⁶Beth-lebaoth, and Sharuhin—thirteen towns with their surrounding villages. ⁷It also included Ain, Rimmon, Ether, and Ashan—four towns with their villages, ⁸including all the surrounding villages as far south as Baalath-beer (also known as Ramah of the Negev).

This was the homeland allocated to the clans of the tribe of Simeon. ⁹Their allocation of land came from part of what had been given to Judah because Judah's territory was too large for them. So the tribe of Simeon received an allocation within the territory of Judah.

The Land Given to Zebulun

¹⁰The third allotment of land went to the clans of the tribe of Zebulun.

The boundary of Zebulun's homeland started at Sarid. ¹¹From there it went west, going past Maralah, touching Dabbesheth, and proceeding to the brook east of Jokneam. ¹²In the other direction, the boundary went east from Sarid to the border of Kisloth-tabor, and from there to Daberath and up to Japhia. ¹³Then it continued east to Gath-hepher, Eth-kazin, and Rimmon and turned toward Neah. ¹⁴The northern boundary of Zebulun passed Hannathon and ended at the valley of Iphtah-el. ¹⁵The towns in these areas included Kattath, Nahalal, Shimron, Idalah, and Bethlehem—twelve towns with their surrounding villages.

¹⁶The homeland allocated to the clans of the tribe of Zebulun included these towns and their surrounding villages.

The Land Given to Issachar

¹⁷The fourth allotment of land went to the clans of the tribe of Issachar.

¹⁸Its boundaries included the following towns: Jezreel, Kesulloth, Shunem, ¹⁹Hapharaim, Shion, Anaharath,

²⁰Rabbith, Kishion, Ebez, ²¹Remeth, Engannim, En-haddah, and Beth-pazzez.

²²The boundary also touched Tabor, Shahazumah, and Beth-shemesh, ending at the Jordan River—sixteen towns with their surrounding villages.

²³The homeland allocated to the clans of the tribe of Issachar included these towns and their surrounding villages.

The Land Given to Asher

²⁴The fifth allotment of land went to the clans of the tribe of Asher.

²⁵Its boundaries included these towns: Helkath, Hali, Beten, Acshaph,

²⁶Allammelech, Amad, and Mishal. The boundary on the west touched Carmel and Shihor-libnath, ²⁷then it turned east toward Beth-dagon, and ran as far as Zebulun in the valley of Iphtah-el, going north to Beth-emek and Neiel. It then continued north to Cabul, ²⁸Abdon,

Rehob, Hammon, Kanah, and as far as Greater Sidon. ²⁹Then the boundary turned toward Ramah and the fortress of Tyre, where it turned toward Hosah and came to the Mediterranean Sea. The territory also included Mehebel, Aczib, descendants reflected this; their land was carved out of Judah's territory on the southern periphery of the Negev. This arid land was far from any centers of influence and power (see also 19:9).

19:2-9 Some of the towns given to the tribe of Simeon were also part of Judah's allocation because Judah's territory was too large for them (cp. 17:14-18). Judah apparently absorbed most of Simeon's territory into its own before the end of the OT period.

19:10-18 The five small remaining tribes received land on the edges of the Israelite territory and had little national influence.

19:10-23 The lands given to the tribes of Zebulun and Issachar were strategically located; the major international trading route from Egypt to Mesopotamia ran through their territories. When Israel was strong, this position brought prosperity. However, when Israel was weak, these tribes were vulnerable both to the armies of Egypt and the successive Mesopotamian powers that fought for control of the ancient Near East.

19:10-16 The tribe of Zebulun received land partly in the valley of Jezreel and partly in the hills of Lower Galilee.

19:13 Gath-hepher was the hometown of the prophet Jonah (2 Kgs 14:25).

19:15 This Bethlehem was not the birthplace of David and Jesus in Judah.

• More than twelve towns are named; some apparently did not belong to Zebulun but were on its borders.

19:16 Both by number of towns and by size of its territory, Zebulun was smallest of all the tribes. However, the NT village of Nazareth, where Jesus grew up, was in the tribal territory of Zebulun (Matt 2:19-23; 4:13-16).

19:17-23 The land given to the tribe of Issachar included much of the fertile Jezreel Valley. During OT times, this valley was largely a swamp surrounded by prosperous and important cities. This area was a center of Canaanite strength, so this small tribe had trouble gaining a foothold at first.

19:24-31 The land allocated to the tribe of Asher included the Plain of Acco on the Mediterranean coast and western Galilee. To the southwest, Asher touched Carmel, sharing at least a short common border with land allotted to the tribe of Manasseh. To the north, the Phoenician cities of Tyre and Sidon limited Asher's expansion.

19:28 Abdon: As in some Hebrew manuscripts (see also 21:30); most Hebrew manuscripts read Ebron.

19:29 the Mediterranean Sea: Literally the sea.

³⁰Ummah, Aphek, and Rehob—twenty-two towns with their surrounding villages.

³¹The homeland allocated to the clans of the tribe of Asher included these towns and their surrounding villages.

The Land Given to Naphtali

³²The sixth allotment of land went to the clans of the tribe of Naphtali.

³⁹The homeland allocated to the clans of the tribe of Naphtali included these towns and their surrounding villages.

The Land Given to Dan

⁴⁰The seventh allotment of land went to the clans of the tribe of Dan.

⁴¹The land allocated as their homeland included the following towns: Zorah, Eshtaol, Ir-shemesh, ⁴²Shaalabbin, Aijalon, Ithlah, ⁴³Elon, Timnah, Ekron, ⁴⁴Eltekeh, Gibbethon, Baalath, ⁴⁵Jehud, Bene-berak, Gath-rimmon, ⁴⁶Me-jarkon, Rakkon, and the territory across from Joppa.

⁴⁷But the tribe of Dan had trouble taking possession of their land, so they attacked the town of Laish. They captured it, slaughtered its people, and settled there. They renamed the town Dan after their ancestor.

⁴⁸The homeland allocated to the clans of the tribe of Dan included these towns and their surrounding villages.

The Land Given to Joshua

⁴⁹After all the land was divided among the tribes, the Israelites gave a piece of land to Joshua as his allocation. ⁵⁰For the LORD had said he could have any town he wanted. He chose Timnath-serah in the hill country of Ephraim. He rebuilt the town and lived there.

⁵¹These are the territories that Eleazar the priest, Joshua son of Nun, and the tribal leaders allocated as grants of land to the tribes of Israel by casting sacred lots in the presence of the LORD at the entrance of the Tabernacle at Shiloh. So the division of the land was completed.

The Cities of Refuge

20 The LORD said to Joshua, ²“Now tell the Israelites to designate the cities of refuge, as I instructed Moses. ³Anyone who kills another person accidentally and unintentionally can run to one of these cities; they will be places of refuge from relatives seeking revenge for the person who was killed.

19:32–39 The tribe of Naphtali occupied eastern Galilee and overlooked the Sea of Galilee. Because a branch of an international trade route from Egypt to Mesopotamia ran through the territory of Naphtali, this tribe enjoyed periods of prosperity when Israel's kings were strong. The city of Hazor was within Naphtali's territory, guarding a section of that route. Naphtali is mentioned in Matt 4:13–16 in connection with Jesus' ministry in Galilee.

19:40–48 The original allotment given to the tribe of Dan lay west of Judah and southwest of Ephraim's main territory, between Judah and Philistia.

19:43 About fifty years after Israel came into Canaan under Joshua, the Philistines moved into the southern coastal plain and occupied the cities of Timnah and Ekron (Judg 14:1–2; 1 Sam 5:1–10). The Philistines were among the Sea Peoples who had perhaps been driven out of the Greek mainland and the Greek islands by an invasion from the north. The Sea Peoples also invaded and destroyed the Hittite Empire to the north of Israel. (Some scholars think that Homer's Iliad reflects this movement.)

19:47 The tribe of Dan had trouble taking possession of their land (or had trouble holding on to their land) because of the Philistines, so a group of Danites moved northward (see Judg 18). • Laish (Hebrew Leshem, a variant spelling of Laish) was later renamed Dan, on the northern border of Israel's territory.

19:49–50 The piece of land given to Joshua closes the section on the allocation of land to the tribes of Israel (see note on 14:1–19:51).

19:51 the Tabernacle: Literally Tent of Meeting. • After Joshua received his inheritance, the division of the land was completed. Joshua served God and led Israel faithfully for many years, and God was gracious to Joshua.

20:1–21:45 Before the land was fully allotted, Joshua needed to establish six cities of refuge and assign cities for the Levites to live in.

20:1–6 These verses contain a review of the law concerning cities of refuge (see also Num 35:6–34).

20:3 The relatives of a murder or manslaughter victim had the responsibility of seeking revenge for the death. If the avenger (Hebrew go'el) found the killer outside a city of refuge, he could kill him without punishment.

They must allow him to enter the city and give him a place to live among them. 5If the relatives of the victim come to avenge the killing, the leaders must not release the slayer to them, for he killed the other person unintentionally and without previous hostility. 6But the slayer must stay in that city and be tried by the local assembly, which will render a judgment. And he must continue to live in that city until the death of the high priest who was in office at the time of the accident. After that, he is free to return to his own home in the town from which he fled."

7The following cities were designated as cities of refuge: Kedesh of Galilee, in the hill country of Naphtali; Shechem, in the hill country of Ephraim; and Kiriath-arba (that is, Hebron), in the hill country of Judah. 8On the east side of the Jordan River, across from Jericho, the following cities were designated: Bezer, in the wilderness plain of the tribe of Reuben; Ramoth in Gilead, in the territory of the tribe of Gad; and Golan in Bashan, in the land of the tribe of Manasseh. 9These cities were set apart for all the Israelites as well as the foreigners living among them. Anyone who accidentally killed another person could take refuge in one of these cities. In this way, they could escape being killed in revenge prior to standing trial before the local assembly.

The Towns Given to the Levites

21 Then the leaders of the tribe of Levi came to consult with Eleazar the priest, Joshua son of Nun, and the leaders of the other tribes of Israel. 2They came to them at Shiloh in the land of Canaan and said, "The LORD commanded Moses to give us towns to live in and pasturelands for our livestock." 3So by the command of the LORD the people of Israel gave the Levites the following towns and pasturelands out of their own grants of land.

4The descendants of Aaron, who were members of the Kohathite clan within the tribe of Levi, were allotted thirteen towns that were originally assigned to the tribes of Judah, Simeon, and Benjamin. 5The other families of the Kohathite clan were allotted ten towns from the tribes of Ephraim, Dan, and the half-tribe of Manasseh.

6The clan of Gershon was allotted thirteen towns from the tribes of Issachar, Asher, Naphtali, and the half-tribe of Manasseh in Bashan.

7The clan of Merari was allotted twelve towns from the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and Zebulun.

8So the Israelites obeyed the LORD's command to Moses and assigned these towns and pasturelands to the Levites by casting sacred lots.

13The following towns with their pasturelands were given to the descendants of Aaron the priest: Hebron (a city of refuge for those who accidentally killed someone), Libnah, 14Jattir, Eshtemoa, 15Holon, Debir, 20:7-9 Joshua designated six cities of refuge: three on the east side of the Jordan, and three on the west. From anywhere in the land, one of these six well-known Levitical cities was no more than two days' travel away.

20:9 The treatment of foreigners in Israel was a great advance in human relations. Resident aliens were to receive every justice offered to native Israelites (see Exod 22:21; Lev 19:33-34; 24:22; Num 15:15-16).

21:1-8 The towns given to the tribe of Levi were determined by lot (see note at 7:16-18) by Israel's leaders.

21:2-3 The LORD commanded Moses: See Num 35:1-7. One of the priestly duties was to teach God's torah (see note at 1:8) to Israel. The Levites could accomplish this better by living throughout the tribal territories.

21:4 The descendants of Aaron served as Israel's priests. The cities they received were allotted by sacred lots. The priestly towns were in the tribal territories closest to Jerusalem, where the Temple was later built.

21:5 The remaining families of the Kohathite clan received cities in the central part of the hill country, north of Jerusalem.

21:6 The clan of Gershon received cities among the four northernmost tribes in Israel.

21:7 The clan of Merari did not stay together as other Levitical clans did.

21:8 The pasturelands were grazing ground surrounding the cities. The repetition of this word throughout the list (21:8-42) gave the allotment the character of a legal record, guaranteeing the Levites access to lands immediately surrounding each of the Levitical cities (Num 35:4-5).

21:9-42 The descendants of Aaron received thirteen cities, the rest of the Kohathite clan received ten, the descendants of Gershon received thirteen, and the Merari clan received twelve. There were a total of forty-eight Levitical cities. Each tribe had four Levitical cities, except Judah had eight, Simeon had one, and Naphtali had three. Six of the Levitical cities were also cities of refuge (20:7-8).

¹⁶Ain, Juttah, and Beth-shemesh—nine towns from these two tribes.

¹⁷From the tribe of Benjamin the priests were given the following towns with their pasturelands: Gibeon, Geba, ¹⁸Anathoth, and Almon—four towns. ¹⁹So in all, thirteen towns with their pasturelands were given to the priests, the descendants of Aaron.

²³The following towns and pasturelands were allotted to the priests from the tribe of Dan: Eltekeh, Gibbethon, ²⁴Aijalon, and Gath-rimmon—four towns.

²⁵The half-tribe of Manasseh allotted the following towns with their pasturelands to the priests: Taanach and Gath-rimmon—two towns. ²⁶So in all, ten towns with their pasturelands were given to the rest of the Kohathite clan.

²⁸From the tribe of Issachar they received the following towns with their pasturelands: Kishion, Daberath, ²⁹Jarmuth, and En-gannim—four towns.

³⁰From the tribe of Asher they received the following towns with their pasturelands: Mishal, Abdon, ³¹Helkath, and Rehob—four towns.

³²From the tribe of Naphtali they received the following towns with their pasturelands: Kedesh in Galilee (a city of refuge for those who accidentally killed someone), Hammoth-dor, and Kartan—three towns. ³³So in all, thirteen towns with their pasturelands were allotted to the clan of Gershon.

³⁴The rest of the Levites—the Merari clan—were given the following towns with their pasturelands from the tribe of Zebulun: Jokneam, Kartah, ³⁵Dimnah, and Nahalal—four towns.

³⁶From the tribe of Reuben they received the following towns with their pasturelands: Bezer, Jahaz, ³⁷Kedemoth, and Mephaath—four towns.

⁴¹The total number of towns and pasturelands within Israelite territory given to the Levites came to forty-eight. ⁴²Every one of these towns had pasturelands surrounding it.

⁴³So the LORD gave to Israel all the land he had sworn to give their ancestors, and they took possession of it and settled there. ⁴⁴And the LORD gave them rest on every side, just as he had solemnly promised their ancestors. None of their enemies could stand against them, for the LORD helped them conquer all their enemies. ⁴⁵Not a single one of all the good promises the LORD had given to the family of Israel was left unfulfilled; everything he had spoken came true.

21:45 God had made Israel many good promises, and not one had failed. He kept his promise to give Israel possession of the land and to save them from their surrounding enemies.

22:1–24:33 Israel completed the conquest and allotment of the land, but much of the hard work of actually settling it still lay ahead. However, all that remained for Joshua in his role as leader of Israel was to say farewell.

22:1–34 Joshua's first farewell was to the tribes east of the Jordan as he sent them home. Characteristically, he exhorted them to remain faithful.

22:2–3 Joshua commended the eastern tribes for their faithful obedience and the fulfillment of their promise to help the rest of Israel inhabit Canaan (see 1:12–18; Num 32:1–32).

22:4–6 Joshua's words recall God's words to Joshua at the beginning of the conquest (1:1–9). In order to live in the land, Israel needed to be faithful to God by being very careful to obey all the commands and the instructions given to Moses.

session on the east side of the Jordan River. ⁵But be very careful to obey all the commands and the instructions that Moses gave to you. Love the LORD your God, walk in all his ways, obey his commands, hold firmly to him, and serve him with all your heart and all your soul." ⁶So Joshua blessed them and sent them away, and they went home.

⁷Moses had given the land of Bashan, east of the Jordan River, to the half-tribe of Manasseh. (The other half of the tribe was given land west of the Jordan.) As Joshua sent them away and blessed them, ⁸he said to them, "Go back to your homes with the great wealth you have taken from your enemies—the vast herds of livestock, the silver, gold, bronze, and iron, and the large supply of clothing. Share the plunder with your relatives."

⁹So the men of Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh left the rest of Israel at Shiloh in the land of Canaan. They started the journey back to their own land of Gilead, the territory that belonged to them according to the LORD's command through Moses.

The Eastern Tribes Build an Altar

¹⁰But while they were still in Canaan, and when they came to a place called Geliloth near the Jordan River, the men of Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh stopped to build a large and imposing altar.

¹¹The rest of Israel heard that the people of Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh had built an altar at Geliloth at the edge of the land of Canaan, on the west side of the Jordan River. ¹²So the whole community of Israel gathered at Shiloh and prepared to go to war against them. ¹³First, however, they sent a delegation led by Phinehas son of Eleazar, the priest, to talk with the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh. ¹⁴In this delegation were ten leaders of Israel, one from each of the ten tribes, and each the head of his family within the clans of Israel.

¹⁵When they arrived in the land of Gilead, they said to the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh, ¹⁶"The whole community of the LORD demands to know why you are betraying the God of Israel. How could you turn away from the LORD and build an altar for yourselves in rebellion against him? ¹⁷Was our sin at Peor not enough? To this day we are not fully cleansed of it, even after the plague that struck the entire community of the LORD. ¹⁸And yet today you are turning away from following the LORD. If you rebel against the LORD today, he will be angry with all of us tomorrow.

¹⁹"If you need the altar because the land you possess is defiled, then join us in the LORD's land, where the Tabernacle of the LORD is situated, and share our land with us. But do not rebel against the LORD or against us by building an altar other than the one true altar of the LORD our God. ²⁰Didn't divine anger fall on the entire community of 22:5 all your heart and all your soul: See Deut 6:5.

22:7 Moses had given: The author takes great care to emphasize that the tribes east of the Jordan were part of Israel.

22:8 The great wealth represented these tribes' share of the spoils from the cities Israel had taken. • Share . . . with your relatives: While most of the fighting men assisted the rest of Israel, some men had remained to protect the women, children, and herds.

22:10-20 Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh built their own altar, triggering a confrontation with the rest of Israel.

22:10 to a place called Geliloth (or to the circle of stones; similarly in 22:11): It is reasonable to presume that Geliloth and the altar were on the west bank of the Jordan (see note on 22:19).

22:11 The tribes referred to here as the rest of Israel (literally the sons of Israel) consisted of the tribes given land west of the Jordan River, in Canaan proper. They already referred to themselves as Israel, excluding the tribes east of the Jordan (see 22:24-25).

22:12 The western tribes were ready to go to war because they saw the altar as violating Lev 17:8-9 and Deut 13:12-15.

22:13-14 delegation: See Deut 13:14.

• The ten tribes west of the Jordan included Ephraim and the western half of Manasseh but not the tribe of Levi.

22:15-20 The direct and hard-hitting statements and questions of the delegation made sure that God's wrath would not come upon the nation because of rebellion like Achan's (7:1-15) or the episode at Peor (Num 25).

22:15 The delegation crossed the Jordan River to meet the leaders of the eastern tribes in the land of Gilead, probably in southern Gad.

22:16 The delegation brought the message the ten tribes had agreed upon when they met at Shiloh. • The whole community of the LORD demands to know (literally Thus says the whole congregation of the LORD): The formula using "thus says" was a typical introduction to a messenger's report (e.g., Ezra 1:2; Isa 28:16).

22:17 The sin at Peor was Israel's idolatrous rebellion in Moab, just at the point of entering the Promised Land (Num 25). Phinehas, now the leader of this delegation, had acted to save Israel from complete destruction at that time. He did not want to see any part of Israel turn away from God again.

22:19 Being defiled was not necessarily the result of rebellion or a moral lapse, but it did prevent persons or groups from participating in regular worship activities, including the offering of sacrifices. If the eastern tribes had defiled the land itself, the Israelites could not offer sacrifices to the Lord within it. This concern provides evidence that the eastern tribes had built their altar on the western bank of the Jordan. • The land west of the Jordan was considered the LORD's land. The delegation from the western tribes made a very generous offer, inviting the eastern tribes to share their land. This demonstrated their commitment to national unity in faithfulness to God.

22:20 Achan: See ch 7. The delegation of western tribes feared that Achan's Israel when Achan, a member of the clan of Zerah, sinned by stealing the things set apart for the LORD? He was not the only one who died because of his sin."

²¹Then the people of Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh answered the heads of the clans of Israel: ²²"The LORD, the Mighty One, is God! The LORD, the Mighty One, is God! He knows the truth, and may Israel know it, too! We have not built the altar in treacherous rebellion against the LORD. If we have done so, do not spare our lives this day. ²³If we have built an altar for ourselves to turn away from the LORD or to offer burnt offerings or grain offerings or peace offerings, may the LORD himself punish us.

²⁴"The truth is, we have built this altar because we fear that in the future your descendants will say to ours, 'What right do you have to worship the LORD, the God of Israel?' ²⁵The LORD has placed the Jordan River as a barrier between our people and you people of Reuben and Gad. You have no claim to the LORD.' So your descendants may prevent our descendants from worshipping the LORD.

²⁶"So we decided to build the altar, not for burnt offerings or sacrifices, ²⁷but as a memorial. It will remind our descendants and your descendants that we, too, have the right to worship the LORD at his sanctuary with our burnt offerings, sacrifices, and peace offerings. Then your descendants will not be able to say to ours, 'You have no claim to the LORD.'

²⁸"If they say this, our descendants can reply, 'Look at this copy of the LORD's altar that our ancestors made. It is not for burnt offerings or sacrifices; it is a reminder of the relationship both of us have with the LORD.' ²⁹Far be it from us to rebel against the LORD or turn away from him by building our own altar for burnt offerings, grain offerings, or sacrifices. Only the altar of the LORD our God that stands in front of the Tabernacle may be used for that purpose."

³⁰When Phinehas the priest and the leaders of the community—the heads of the clans of Israel—heard this from the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh, they were satisfied. ³¹Phinehas son of Eleazar, the priest, replied to them, "Today we know the LORD is among us because you have not committed this treachery against the LORD as we thought. Instead, you have rescued Israel from being destroyed by the hand of the LORD."

³²Then Phinehas son of Eleazar, the priest, and the other leaders left the tribes of Reuben and Gad in Gilead and returned to the land of Canaan to tell the Israelites what had happened. ³³And all the Israelites were satisfied and praised God and spoke no more of war against Reuben and Gad.

³⁴The people of Reuben and Gad named the altar "Witness," for they said, "It is a witness between us and them that the LORD is our God, too."

Joshua's Farewell to Israel (23:1–24:33)

Joshua's Final Words to Israel

23 The years passed, and the LORD had given the people of Israel rest from all their enemies. Joshua, who was now very old, ²called together all the elders, leaders, judges, and officers of Israel. He said to them, "I am now a very old man. ³You have seen everything the LORD your God has done for you during my lifetime. The LORD your God has fought for you against your enemies. ⁴I have allotted to you as your homeland all sin and its consequences would be repeated. • set apart for the LORD: The Hebrew term used here refers to the complete consecration of things or people to the LORD, either by destroying them or by giving them as an offering.

22:21-34 The eastern tribes defended their action.

22:22 The LORD . . . is God! The two-fold repetition of this dramatic affirmation indicated how shocked the eastern tribes were when accused of rebellion.

22:23 The eastern tribes swore by the name of the LORD that they were not guilty. • The instructions for sacrifices prescribed burnt offerings or grain offerings or peace offerings (Lev 1–3). At this time, Israel's worship was centered at the Tabernacle in Shiloh. To offer sacrifices anywhere but the central sanctuary was a violation of God's covenant (see note on 22:12).

22:24-29 The eastern tribes feared exclusion from Israel at a later time because the Jordan River divided them from the western tribes.

22:27 The altar near the bank of the Jordan would stand as a memorial (literally witness) through the generations that the eastern tribes were also part of Israel.

22:28 This altar was a copy, intended to be seen, not used.

22:31 you have rescued: In his reply to the eastern tribes, Phinehas used very similar language to the words God had spoken when Phinehas turned God's anger from Israel at Peor (Num 25:11).

22:33 Both the eastern and western tribes were relieved that the crisis had been averted, and they joyfully praised God to renew their affirmation of national unity in faithfulness to God.

22:34 Witness: Some manuscripts lack this word. Hebrew texts that include it interpret the last statement as an explanation of the name. Texts that omit the word understand the last quotation to be the name of the altar.

23:1-11 Joshua urged Israel's leaders to be faithful.

23:2-3 The leaders . . . of Israel had experienced what God had done for them and to their enemies. Throughout the lifetimes of these leaders who outlived Joshua, Israel continued to be faithful to God (Judg 2:7).

⁹“For the LORD has driven out great and powerful nations for you, and no one has yet been able to defeat you. ¹⁰Each one of you will put to flight a thousand of the enemy, for the LORD your God fights for you, just as he has promised. ¹¹So be very careful to love the LORD your God.

for certain that the LORD your God will no longer drive them out of your land. Instead, they will be a snare and a trap to you, a whip for your backs and thorny brambles in your eyes, and you will vanish from this good land the LORD your God has given you.

¹⁴“Soon I will die, going the way of everything on ^eearth. Deep in your hearts you know that every promise of the LORD your God has come true. Not a single one has failed! ¹⁵But as surely as the LORD your God has given you the good things he promised, he will also bring disaster on you if you disobey him. He will completely destroy you from this good land he has given you. ¹⁶If you break the covenant of the LORD your God by worshiping and serving other gods, his anger will burn against you, and you will quickly vanish from the good ^hland he has given you.”

The Lord's Covenant Renewed

24 Then Joshua summoned all the tribes of Israel to Shechem, including their elders, leaders, judges, and officers. So they came and presented themselves to God.

²Joshua said to the people, “This is what the LORD, the ¹God of Israel, says: Long ago remained unconquered. Israel's gradual occupation of the land had an ecological reason (see Exod 23:29-30), a military reason (see Judg 1:19), and a theological reason (see Judg 2:20-3:4). Israel's ensuing unfaithfulness delayed the settlement process by several centuries; instead of driving out the remaining Canaanites, Israel absorbed them, bringing God's people even greater temptations to unfaithfulness. Joshua knew this to be a real danger (23:15-16). • the Mediterranean Sea: Literally the Great Sea.

23:6 Since before crossing the Jordan River to take the land of Canaan, Joshua's guiding principle had been to be very careful to follow everything Moses wrote and not deviate. Now he passed on these instructions to the leaders who would succeed him in leading Israel.

23:7 Do not even mention . . . swear by . . . serve . . . or worship them: These four actions describe progressive involvement with idolatry.

23:8 To cling tightly or passionately to God would render impotent the temptation to stray off toward other gods. This same verb described a man clinging to his wife (Gen 2:24) and Ruth clinging to Naomi (Ruth 1:14).

23:9 Examples of great and powerful nations included the Anakim (11:21-22) and the city of Hazor (11:10).

23:10 God fights for you: Just as God had fought for the Israelites in the past (e.g., 10:11-14), he would continue to fight for them in the future.

23:11 be very careful to love: Love is a function of will and intention. Emotion and attraction are the results, not the essence, of love. Because love is (or is not) willed, love can be commanded but not coerced.

23:12-16 Apostasy—turning away from the true God—is fatal. • Because God is holy, Joshua could speak with optimism regarding God's promises and the good land into which God had brought them. God will not change his holy character even if his people change. The rebellion of God's people cannot damage his holiness, but rebellion will destroy those who rebel.

23:12 Joshua warned God's people not to intermarry with their polytheistic neighbors because such an intimate relationship would lead the Israelites astray (Deut 7:3-4). However, Canaanites who desired to worship the Lord and join God's people were welcomed (6:25; Ruth 4:10). Race, language, and ethnicity had no bearing on God's prohibition of intermarriage; it was a matter of faithfulness to the Lord (cp. 2 Cor 6:14-15).

23:13 will no longer drive them out: If Israel associated with the Canaanite remnant, God would oblige the Israelites by not driving out that remnant. God ultimately gives people what they seek.

23:15-16 God had blessed the Israelites, and he would also certainly judge them if they turned away from him. Joshua's warning against apostasy was prophetic; Israel did turn away, and God did not drive out the remaining Canaanites (Judg 2:20-23).

24:1-27 In both form and content, this statement of covenant resembled an ancient Near Eastern suzerain-vassal treaty. It begins with a preamble (24:2) and continues with a historical prologue relating the suzerain's (God's) gracious acts on behalf of the people (24:3-13), followed by a list of stipulations (24:14-15) and curses and blessings (24:19-20). It then notes where the text was to be deposited for periodic reading and renewal (implied, 24:26) and lists witnesses to the covenant (24:22, 27). See also note on Exod 20:1-23:33.

24:1-13 Joshua recounted God's grace toward Israel.

24:1 Shechem was the location of the first affirmation of the covenant shortly after Israel had entered the land of Canaan (see 8:30-35 and notes).

24:2 Terah: See Gen 11:27-32. • the Euphrates River: Literally the river; also in 24:3, 14, 15.

your ancestors, including Terah, the father of Abraham and Nahor, lived beyond the Euphrates River, and they worshiped other gods.³ But I took your ancestor Abraham from the land beyond the Euphrates and led him into the land of Canaan. I gave him many descendants through his son Isaac.⁴ To Isaac I gave Jacob and Esau. To Esau I gave the mountains of Seir, while Jacob and his children went down into Egypt.

⁵ Then I sent Moses and Aaron, and I brought terrible plagues on Egypt; and afterward I brought you out as a free people.⁶ But when your ancestors arrived at the Red Sea, the Egyptians chased after you with chariots and charioteers.⁷ When your ancestors cried out to the LORD, I put darkness between you and the Egyptians. I brought the sea crashing down on the Egyptians, drowning them. With your very own eyes you saw what I did. Then you lived in the wilderness for many years.

⁸ Finally, I brought you into the land of the Amorites on the east side of the Jordan. They fought against you, but I destroyed them before you. I gave you victory over them, and you took possession of their land.⁹ Then Balak son of Zippor, king of Moab, started a war against Israel. He summoned Balaam son of Beor to curse you,¹⁰ but I would not listen to him. Instead, I made Balaam bless you, and so I rescued you from Balak.

¹¹ When you crossed the Jordan River and came to Jericho, the men of Jericho fought against you, as did the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Girgashites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites.

But I gave you victory over them.¹² And I sent terror ahead of you to drive out the two kings of the Amorites. It was not your swords or bows that brought you victory.¹³ I gave you land you had not worked on, and I gave you towns you did not build—the towns where you are now living. I gave you vineyards and olive groves for food, though you did not plant them.

¹⁶ The people replied, "We would never abandon the LORD and serve other gods.¹⁷ For the LORD our God is the one who rescued us and our ancestors from slavery in the land of Egypt. He performed mighty miracles before our very eyes. As we traveled through the wilderness among our enemies, he preserved us.¹⁸ It was the LORD who drove out the Amorites and the other nations living here in the land. So we, too, will serve the LORD, for he alone is our God."

¹⁹ Then Joshua warned the people, "You are not able to serve the LORD, for he is a holy and jealous God. He will not forgive your rebellion and your sins.²⁰ If you abandon the LORD and serve other gods, he will turn against you and destroy you, even though he has been so good to you."

24:5-7 The Exodus, which culminated with the crossing of the Red Sea, was the climactic salvation event of ancient Israel's history. A number of psalms, several of the later prophets, and several NT writers all celebrated this defining event.

24:13 The Israelites received wealth, including land . . . towns and food, that they had not earned or created.

24:14 Put away forever the idols: Israel had not yet broken with the old polytheistic traditions of Mesopotamia beyond the Euphrates River, and some Israelites had added to their supply of gods while living in Egypt.

24:15 Joshua threw the influence of his leadership and accomplishments behind his declaration to serve the LORD.

24:16-18 The people recognized that it was God who rescued them, preserved them, and drove out the Amorites.

24:16 The people responded emphatically, reflecting their determination to follow Joshua's lead in following the LORD.

24:19-24 Joshua pressed the Israelites from a different perspective to underscore the seriousness of their commitment and to ensure that they were not merely responding to the enthusiasm of the moment.

²¹But the people answered Joshua, "No, we will serve the LORD!"

²²"You are a witness to your own decision," Joshua said. "You have chosen to serve the LORD."

"Yes," they replied, "we are witnesses to what we have said."

²³"All right then," Joshua said, "destroy the idols among you, and turn your hearts to the LORD, the God of Israel."

²⁴The people said to Joshua, "We will serve the LORD our God. We will obey him alone."

²⁵So Joshua made a ^bcovenant with the people that day at Shechem, committing them to follow the decrees and regulations of the LORD. ²⁶Joshua recorded these things in the Book of God's Instructions. As a reminder of their agreement, he took a huge stone and rolled it beneath the terebinth tree beside the Tabernacle of the LORD.

²⁷Joshua said to all the people, "This stone has heard everything the LORD said to us. It will be a witness to testify against you if you go back on your word to God."

²⁸Then Joshua sent all the people away to their own homelands.

Leaders Buried in the Promised Land

²⁹After this, Joshua son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died at the age of 110. ³⁰They buried him in the land he had been allocated, at Timnath-serah in the hill country of Ephraim, north of Mount Gaash.

³¹The people of Israel served the LORD throughout the lifetime of Joshua and of the elders who outlived him—those who had personally experienced all that the LORD had done for Israel.

³²The bones of Joseph, which the Israelites had brought along with them when they left Egypt, were buried at Shechem, in the plot of land Jacob had bought from the sons of Hamor for 100 pieces of silver. This land was located in the territory allotted to the descendants of Joseph.

³³Eleazar son of Aaron also died. He was buried in the hill country of Ephraim, in the town of Gibeah, which had been given to his son Phinehas.

24:22 a witness to your own decision: Joshua pressed the people to repeat their declaration as a legal affirmation and commitment.

24:23 Some Israelites had continued to worship idols since they left Egypt and after experiencing forty years of God's love and power. Joshua directed them to destroy the idols and turn their hearts to the LORD to serve him alone.

24:25 made a covenant: Literally cut a covenant (see note at 9:15).

24:26 The Book of God's Instructions was a scroll containing the writings of Moses (see note on 1:8). It was probably carried to Shiloh and stored with other documents of national importance.
• The huge stone was probably a stela, a standing stone monument. Joshua might have had a memorial inscription chiseled into this stone monument.

24:27 This stone has heard: See note at 22:27.

24:29-33 The tombs of a venerated ancestor and two revered leaders provided the final notice that Canaan was indeed Israel's land. However, significant work, vigilance, and even fighting still lay ahead.

24:29 Joshua's ancestor Joseph had also attained the age of 110, which was considered the ideal lifespan by ancient Egyptians.

24:30 Timnath-serah: See 19:49-51.

24:31 Joshua's legacy was so strong that Israel remained faithful to God even throughout the lifetime . . . of the elders who outlived him.

24:32 Israel had carried the bones of

Joseph out of Egypt, through the years of their journeys, and into Canaan to honor Joseph's last request to be buried in the land God had promised Israel (Gen 50:25; Exod 13:19). • Shechem was part of the inheritance of Joseph's descendants, at the border between Ephraim and Manasseh. Jacob had purchased it centuries before for 100 pieces of silver (Hebrew 100 kesitahs; the value or weight of the kesitah is no longer known).

24:33 Eleazar the high priest had stood beside Joshua during the process of allotting portions of the land to the tribes of Israel. • Joshua, Joseph, and Eleazar were all buried in Ephraim, in the central part of the newly conquered land. Their burial served as a final sign that God had fulfilled his promise to give Israel the land.

THE CHRONOLOGY OF THE TIME OF THE JUDGES

The time of the judges marks the period after Joshua down through Samuel's ministry, to the beginning of Saul's reign as the first king of Israel (1 Sam 10). The judges were men and women whom God used during this period to rescue his people from their enemies. One long-standing question has been how to fit these stories into the chronology of this period.

The people of Israel entered the Promised Land of Canaan in either 1406 or 1230 BC, depending on the date of the Exodus (see "The Chronology of Abraham to Joshua," pp. 118–121). The people of Israel then lived in the land and experienced cycles of oppression by neighboring countries and rescue through various judges until the prophet Samuel anointed Saul as king of all Israel around 1050 BC.

The stories of the judges themselves are told as a sequence, giving the impression that one judge followed another. Most of the accounts of judges also provide chronological indications, specifying how long oppressors dominated God's people and the period of peace that followed their rescue by each judge (see chart, facing page). However, simply adding these numbers produces a sum of years that significantly exceeds the time available in this period of history.

A solution to this difficulty is to realize that the judges did not always work sequentially, but sometimes they overlapped with one another. For example, Judges 10:7 states, "So the LORD burned with anger against Israel, and he turned them over to the Philistines and the Ammonites." Jephthah freed his people from the Ammonite threat in the northeast while Samson began to rescue Israel from Philistia in the southwest.

In certain cases, the text does point to a sequence between judges. For instance, Shamgar judged "after Ehud" (Judg 3:31) and Deborah "after Ehud's death" (Judg 4:1; see also Judg 5:6). Nonetheless, Judges does not provide these types of connections between most of the judges. Indeed, in at least one case, it is explicit that two judges overlapped. Most of the judges held influence over only a limited part of the land of Israel. The period of the judges was characterized not only by moral depravity and spiritual darkness but also by political fragmentation. It is worth noting that none of the judges had a national following—each was followed only by a few tribes, usually those in the vicinity of the judge's hometown.

The period of the judges can thus be seen as fitting into history when we realize that the judges were local and often overlapped. Indeed, there is no reason to think that we have a full list of Israel's judges, only a representative number (cp. "Bedan" in 1 Sam 12:11; see Judges Introduction, "Summary," pp. 417–418).

▲ Years of Oppression and Peace in Judges. Simply adding up the years of oppression and peace recorded in Judges leads to a total of 450 years from the death of Joshua's generation (about 1350 or 1175 BC) to the beginning of Saul's reign (about 1050 BC). Clearly, there had to be overlap between the judges, whose leadership was local and tribal rather than nationwide.

THE BOOK OF

The book of Judges tells the stories of the judges, the inspired leaders who rescued Israel time after time. During this period, the people were unfaithful to God's covenant, and God allowed their enemies to oppress them. Israel repeatedly turned to the Lord for help, and the Lord repeatedly sent charismatic judges to lead Israel. These powerful leaders did amazing things, but they were unable to transcend Israel's anarchy and lawlessness. Israel needed a leader whose authority could give them national coherence and unity.

SETTING

The period of the judges is best understood against the backdrop of its own age. Historians and sociologists have compared the book of Judges with the epics of Homer, the sagas of old Iceland, and the French La Chanson de Roland, each of which represents the "Heroic Age" in a civilization's adolescence. During these times, unorthodox men and women marched to a different drum, exhibiting behavior at odds with accepted norms.

◀ Setting of the Judges (about 1200 BC). Israel's approximate border during the time of the judges is shown. Israel had conquered Transjordan during the time of Moses, and the hill country of Canaan during the time of Joshua (see Josh 11:16–12:24), but the rest of the land remained largely unconquered (Josh 13:1–7). Open circles on this map designate the cities still dominated by Canaanites (see 1:19–36). In addition, the cities of PHILISTIA were under Philistine control. The people who were not driven out of the land became a source of both temptation and oppression to the Israelites (2:11–3:6).

After Moses died, the Israelites' campaigns under Joshua provided the desert nomads with a settled land, but hardly a settled society. That would take hundreds of years and the emergence of a stable monarchy under King David. But Moses and Joshua did leave the Israelites with an organized society. According to the biblical text, the tribal structure was well-established and the lands were clearly apportioned. A few central shrines (Gilgal, Shiloh) had emerged, with leaders that included priests, Levites, and tribal elders who brought Israel a degree of order. The people continued to remember the old traditions—the covenant promise to Abraham, the sojourn in Egypt from which Israel had been rescued by divine strength, the desert wanderings, and the ratification of the covenant—but something was still lacking.

According to Judges, Israel's shortcomings had two sources. First, the prologues (1:1–2:5 and 2:6–3:6) explain that the tribes failed to possess their allotted territories because they capitulated to the norms of Canaan rather than adhering to the divine covenant given under Moses. The second issue looms large in the epilogues (17:1–21:25) and is summarized in the repeated sentence, "In those days Israel had no king; all the people did whatever seemed right in their own eyes" (17:6; 18:1; 19:1; 21:25). The prologues highlight Israel's unfaithfulness to God; the epilogues are concerned with a failed social structure. The age of heroes could not produce the stable political institutions required for implementing God's rule over the children of Israel.

The book of Judges does not, however, reject the principle of charismatic leadership embodied in the judges. The judges' inspiration came at God's initiative and fulfilled God's purpose in leading and saving Israel (see 2:16–19). The stories celebrate the principle of heroic leadership, making it clear that the Achilles' heel of the era was not in the divinely inspired leaders but in the sinfulness of the people's hearts, which had to be addressed by a different form of governance. "In those days" something was missing.

SUMMARY

Judges follows an A-B-A structure, beginning with two prologues. Each is introduced by the death of Joshua, thus picking up the narrative from Josh 24:28–31 by means of this pivotal event in Israel's national life. The first prologue (1:1–2:5) recalls the failures of individual tribes to follow through on God's covenant. By contenting themselves with partial occupation of the land, they demonstrated their disregard for the Lord's promise and provoked the withdrawal of his protection (2:1–3).

The second prologue (2:6–3:6) turns from the failures of the tribes to introduce the individuals whom the Lord used to keep the flame of conquest and settlement alive in a chaotic time. The story moves from Joshua to the elders who outlived him but had experienced God's power in the wilderness and conquest, and finally to the third generation “who did not acknowledge the LORD or remember the mighty things he had done for Israel” (2:10). The account then introduces the central feature of the book, the judges (2:16) whom God raised up to rescue Israel and call them back to covenant obedience, the evidence of which would be faithful occupation of the Promised Land. Judges 3:1-6, like the close of the earlier prologue, informs readers in advance that the effort will end in failure.

The central section (3:7-16:31) contains “cycles”—longer accounts of the six major judges (Othniel, Ehud, Deborah, Gideon, Jephthah, and Samson), and shorter accounts of the six minor judges (Shamgar, Tola, Jair, Ibzan, Elon, and Abdon). The section is punctuated by the rise of an anti-charismatic leader, Abimelech (ch 9), whose rule was like that of a king. Following Abimelech, the spiral is clearly downward. The figures at the beginning of the story are more ideal (Othniel to Gideon), while the characters toward the end are more questionable (Jephthah, Samson). In all, there were twelve leaders, apparently representing each of the twelve tribes of Israel (see note on 12:8). The inexorable march toward chaos throughout the book points to their need for a more centralized society.

Judges culminates in two epilogues (chs 17-18; 19-21) that highlight the historical and theological failure of Israel under the judges, and the ensuing spiritual and social chaos. The epilogues are marked by the summary refrain, “In those days Israel had no king,” to which is twice added, “all the people did whatever seemed right in their own eyes” (see 17:6; 18:1; 19:1; 21:25). This conclusion begs for a sequel in which a new tribal covenant reverses the declining effectiveness of individual charismatic leaders.

AUTHORS AND DATE OF COMPOSITION

Nothing is known about the author(s) or compiler(s) of Judges. The historical books (Joshua—2 Kings) are a connected narrative. Tradition tells us that various sources were combined into a theological narrative under the influence of Israel’s prophetic schools.

Evidence from the last chapter of this history (2 Kgs 25:27-30) suggests the Exile to Babylon as a final date for the composition or collection of this material. Judges may have received its final form at the same time, although there is little in the book of Judges itself that points beyond the early monarchy. Judges knows nothing of a central shrine or national capital in Jerusalem; the social structures reflected in the book indicate a nation still struggling with issues of settlement and governance.

CHRONOLOGY OF THE JUDGES

Dating and ordering the judges is notoriously difficult; the results depend to a great extent on whether one adopts the long or short chronology of the period, which in turn depends on whether the Exodus is seen as having occurred in the 1400s or in the 1200s BC (see “Chronology: Abraham to Joshua,” p. 118). The long chronology harmonizes well with 1 Kgs 6:1 and Judg 11:26 and allows for the possibility that the cycles of judges occurred sequentially. The shorter chronology seems to fit better with external evidence (such as archaeological findings), but it forces the period of the judges into a short time frame and makes overlaps in the story inevitable. See further “Chronology: The Time of the Judges,” p. 414.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

What kind of leadership does God's work require, and where can God's people find such leaders? Judges gives a partial answer to both questions but stops short of providing the final word.

Judges celebrates charismatic (gifted) leadership while recognizing its limitations. One enduring biblical principle of leadership is that God raises up heroes and fills them with his Spirit to rescue his people. Moses and Joshua had been such rescuer-leaders, and Saul and David would be. The heroes of Judges had flaws, but God used them. The true charismatic is a man or woman who is given a divine gift (Greek charisma) to lead. Following this kind of leader is part of the divine order.

A second kind of leadership, often called "official," has authority that does not come directly from God but flows from an office or appointment. Just as the Israelite judges were classic charismatic leaders, the kings represented official authority in the military and political sphere. Prophets and priests presented the same contrast in Israel's spiritual life—the prophets were inspired leaders while the priests were official leaders.

Which type of leader has God's approval? How do those who want to follow the Lord faithfully know which structures of leadership are worthy of obedience? The book of Judges demonstrates God's unmistakable commitment to raise up powerfully endowed, spirit-filled leaders appropriate for the occasion. The principle of charismatic leadership, despite its limitations, is never set aside in biblical narrative.

Even in the transition to kingship in 1 and 2 Samuel, there is ambivalence toward the new form of official leadership. Kingship began with Saul, a charismatic judge-king in whom the weaknesses of both systems combined to bring about his downfall. The charismatic principle is then affirmed and renewed in the life of David, a great hero-king. David was so distinctly a charismatic king that it is initially difficult to distinguish him from a successful judge. What answers the plaintive cry of Judges is not the rejection of charismatic leaders but the addition of God's covenant with his chosen king, David (2 Sam 7). God's ideal is in the combination of inspired and official leadership. Israel's judges and kings, with all their limitations, look forward to Jesus, the perfect charismatic king, who combines in his person all the perfections so lacking in each of his predecessors.

Old Israel's narrative art survives in its purest form in the Book of Judges.

1. PROLOGUES (1:1–3:6) Partial Conquest and Tribal Unfaithfulness (1:1–2:5)

Judah and Simeon Conquer the Land

1 After the death of Joshua, the Israelites asked the LORD, "Which tribe should go first to attack the Canaanites?"

²The LORD answered, "Judah, for I have given them victory over the land."

³The men of Judah said to their relatives from the tribe of Simeon, "Join with us to fight against the Canaanites living in the territory allotted to us. Then we will help you

1:1–3:6 Two prologues (1:1–2:5 and 2:6–3:6) preface the body of the book. Both begin with the death of Joshua (1:1; cp. 2:8), thus connecting Judges with the preceding narrative (Josh 24:29–33; cp. Josh 1:1; 2 Sam 1:1).

1:1–2:5 The first prologue describes the unfaithfulness of the tribes in their failure to carry out Joshua's farewell charge (Josh 23).

1:1 The request for divine guidance (see Exod 28:30; Num 27:21; 1 Sam 14:41; 28:6; cp. Josh 7:14) is a reminder that the Lord's covenant with Israel included the taking of the land.

1:2 This verse, which is paralleled in the epilogues (20:18), shows the primacy of Judah. This tribe did not figure in the downward cycles of the judges (cp. 15:9–13) after Othniel, the model judge who was linked to Judah through Caleb (Josh 14:6; 15:13, 17).

1:3 The tribe of Simeon virtually disappeared within the land assigned to Judah (Josh 19:1). • fight against the Canaanites . . . help you conquer: See Josh 16:10; 17:13; 23:4–13.

conquer your territory." So the men of Simon went with Judah.

⁴When the men of Judah attacked, the LORD gave them victory over the Canaanites and Perizzites, and they killed 10,000 enemy warriors at the town of Bezek. ⁵While at Bezek they encountered King Adoni-bezek and fought against him, and the Canaanites and Perizzites were defeated. ⁶Adoni-bezek escaped, but the Israelites soon captured him and cut off his thumbs and big toes.

⁷Adoni-bezek said, "I once had seventy kings with their thumbs and big toes cut off, eating scraps from under my table. Now God has paid me back for what I did to them." They took him to Jerusalem, and he died there.

⁸The men of Judah attacked Jerusalem and captured it, killing all its people and setting the city on fire. ⁹Then they went down to fight the Canaanites living in the hill country, the Negev, and the western foothills. ¹⁰Judah marched against the Canaanites in Hebron (formerly called Kiriath-arba), defeating the forces of Sheshai, Ahiman, and Talmi.

¹¹From there they went to fight against the people living in the town of Debir (formerly called Kiriath-sepher). ¹²Caleb said, "I will give my daughter Acsah in marriage to the one who attacks and captures Kiriath-sepher." ¹³Othniel, the son of Caleb's younger brother, Kenaz, was the one who conquered it, so Acsah became Othniel's wife.

¹⁴When Acsah married Othniel, she urged him to ask her father for a field. As she got down off her donkey, Caleb asked her, "What's the matter?"

¹⁵She said, "Let me have another gift. You have already given me land in the Negev; now please give me springs of water, too." So Caleb gave her the upper and lower springs.

¹⁷Then Judah joined with Simeon to fight against the Canaanites living in Zephath, and they completely destroyed the town. So the town was named Hormah. ¹⁸In addition, Judah captured the towns of Gaza, Ashkelon, and Ekron, along with their surrounding territories.

Israel Fails to Conquer the Land

¹⁹The LORD was with the people of Judah, and they took possession of the hill country. But they failed to drive out the people living in the plains, who had iron chariots. ²⁰The town of Hebron was given to Caleb as Moses had promised. And Caleb drove out the people living there, who were descendants of the three sons of Anak.

²¹The tribe of Benjamin, however, failed to drive out the Jebusites, who were living in Jerusalem. So to this day the Jebusites live in Jerusalem among the people of Benjamin.

²²The descendants of Joseph attacked the town of Bethel, and the LORD was with them. ²³They sent men to scout out Bethel

1:10 Hebron was the city nearest to Abraham's dwelling by the oaks of Mamre (Gen 13:18); the patriarchs later lived and were buried there (Gen 23:19; 35:27; 49:29-32). It was originally called Kiriath-arba ("City of Arba"), after the legendary Arba, who was "a great hero of the descendants of Anak" and "Anak's ancestor" (Josh 14:15; 15:13). The Anakites, in turn, are identified with the dreaded Nephilites (Num 13:33; see Gen 6:4).

1:11 Debir or Kiriath-sepher ("City of the Book"): This major Anakite town of the hill country (Josh 11:21) is not firmly identified, but was traditionally understood as being either southwest or east of Hebron.

1:14 she urged him: Greek version and Latin Vulgate read he urged her. See note on Josh 15:18-19.

1:16 The Kenites were a southern desert tribe associated with Moses' in-laws, who were also called Midianites (Exod 18:1; Num 10:29). Moses offered them a share in the covenant blessing (Num 10:29-32). At least one clan of Kenites accepted the offer and was adopted into Judah, though members of the clan later shifted allegiance to King Jabin of Hazor (4:11, 17).

1:17 completely destroyed: The Hebrew term used here refers to the complete consecration of things or people to the LORD, either by destroying them or by giving them as an offering. See Lev 27:28-29. • Hormah means "destruction." See note on Num 21:2-3.

1:18 Gaza, Ashkelon, and Ekron, with Gath and Ashdod, later made up the five main cities of the Philistines (3:3).

1:19-20 Despite the Lord's presence, the conquest was not completed because of iron chariots and lack of obedience (see Josh 23:12-13; 24:14).

1:21-26 The tribes of Israel failed to keep the covenant; their complacency was rebellion against the Lord, as the rest of the book of Judges shows.

1:21 Though the tribe of Benjamin produced more than its share of heroes (e.g., Ehud, Saul), it was also the nadir of covenant unfaithfulness, in contrast to Judah (see 20:18). Like Judah in its first battle (1:4-8), Benjamin faced challenges from a great people dwelling in a great city, but Benjamin settled for sharing the city with them. Reference to the Lord's personal presence is absent (cp. 1:19, 22). The Jebusite city remained in Canaanite hands until David's day. • The phrase to this day highlights either ongoing historical circumstances (here and 6:24) or the survival of certain customs to a later time (1:26; 10:4; 15:19; 18:12).

1:22-26 Two references to the descendants of Joseph (1:22, 35) frame this litany of the northern tribes' failures to drive out the enemy.

1:22 The LORD was with the descendants of Joseph (the tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh), but only in their united attack on Bethel, a place sacred to Israelite memories from the days of Jacob (Gen 28:19). They failed in attacks made separately (1:27-29). • Bethel is associated (formerly known as Luz). ²⁴They confronted a man coming out of the town and said to him, "Show us a way into the town, and we will have mercy on you." ²⁵So he showed them a way in, and they killed everyone in the town except that man and his family. ²⁶Later the man moved to the land of the Hittites, where he built a town. He named it Luz, which is its name to this day.

²⁷The tribe of Manasseh failed to drive out the people living in Beth-shan, Taanach, Dor, Ibleam, Megiddo, and all their surrounding settlements, because the Canaanites were determined to stay in that region. ²⁸When the Israelites grew stronger, they forced the Canaanites to work as slaves, but they never did drive them completely out of the land.

²⁹The tribe of Ephraim failed to drive out the Canaanites living in Gezer, so the Canaanites continued to live there among them.

³⁰The tribe of Zebulun failed to drive out the residents of Kitron and Nahalol, so the Canaanites continued to live among them. But the Canaanites were forced to work as slaves for the people of Zebulun.

³¹The tribe of Asher failed to drive out the residents of Acco, Sidon, Ahlab, Aczib, Helbah, Aphik, and Rehob. ³²Instead, the people of Asher moved in among the Canaanites, who controlled the land, for they failed to drive them out.

³³Likewise, the tribe of Naphtali failed to drive out the residents of Beth-shemesh and Beth-anath. Instead, they moved in among the Canaanites, who controlled the land. Nevertheless, the people of Beth-shemesh and Beth-anath were forced to work as slaves for the people of Naphtali.

³⁴As for the tribe of Dan, the Amorites forced them back into the hill country and would not let them come down into the plains. ³⁵The Amorites were determined to stay in Mount Heres, Aijalon, and Shaal-bim, but when the descendants of Joseph became stronger, they forced the Amorites to work as slaves. ³⁶The boundary of the Amorites ran from Scorpion Pass to Sela and continued upward from there.

The Lord's Messenger Comes to Bokim

2 The angel of the LORD went up from Gilgal to Bokim and said to the Israelites, "I brought you out of Egypt into this land that I swore to give your ancestors, and I said I would never break my covenant with you. ²For your part, you were not to make any covenants with the people living in this land; instead, you were to destroy their altars. But you disobeyed my command. Why did you do this? ³So now I declare that I will no longer drive out the people living in your land. They will be thorns in your sides, and their gods will be a constant temptation to you."

⁴When the angel of the LORD finished speaking to all the Israelites, the people wept loudly. ⁵So they called the place Bokim (which means "weeping"), and they offered sacrifices there to the LORD.

Leadership Failure and the Raising Up of Judges (2:6-3:6)

The Death of Joshua

⁶After Joshua sent the people away, each of the tribes left to take possession of the land allotted to them. ⁷And the Israelites served the LORD throughout the lifetime of Joshua and the leaders who outlived him—those who had seen all the great things the LORD had done for Israel.

⁸Joshua son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died at the age of 110. ⁹They buried him in the land he had been allocated, at with the battle against Ai (Josh 7:2) and is listed in the summary statement of kings that Israel had defeated (Josh 12:16).

1:24 To have mercy (Hebrew khesed) has the overtones of making a covenant (see also 8:35, "loyalty").

1:26 The land of the Hittites was probably a general name for North Syria, not the Hittite Kingdom of Anatolia (now Turkey). Nothing is known of the new Luz.

1:27 This chain of Canaanite cities stretched from Dor on the Mediterranean to Beth-shan (Hebrew Beth-shean, a variant spelling of Beth-shan) in the Jordan Valley and effectively cut off the northern tribes from those south of the Jezreel Valley. Likewise, a number of the cities listed in the south (1:35) probably cut Judah off from the northern tribes.

1:34 Dan's failure to take the land represents total infidelity and led to the complete abandonment of a portion of the Promised Land (chs 17-18).

1:36 Scorpion Pass: Hebrew Akrabbim.

2:1-5 The sanctuary had been set up at Gilgal (Josh 4:19-20; 5:10); Bokim is an unknown place, where the angel of the LORD gave an announcement that led to weeping and an attempt to reverse the judgment by offering sacrifice.

2:1 Even when Israel was unfaithful, God's covenant, originally given to Abraham, remained unconditional (Gen 12:1-3; 17:1-22; cp. 2 Tim 2:13).

2:2 The gods of the nations were not a neutral force, so destroying the pagan altars was basic to covenant obedience. Not doing so would inevitably involve social and religious compromise, and the people of the land would oppress Israel (see Deut 20:17-18).

2:3 They will be thorns in your sides: Literally They will be in your sides; cp. Num 33:55.

2:6-3:6 The second prologue also follows from the events of Josh 23-24 (see note on 1:1-3:6), adding the element of a third generation (2:10) who had no personal experience of the Lord's mighty acts.

2:8 Cp. 1:1; Josh 24:29-31.

2:9 Timnath-serah: As in parallel text at Josh 24:30; Hebrew reads Timnath-heres, a variant spelling of Timnath-serah.

Timnath-serah in the hill country of Ephraim, north of Mount Gaash.

Israel Disobeys the LORD

¹⁰After that generation died, another generation grew up who did not acknowledge the LORD or remember the mighty things he had done for Israel.

¹¹The Israelites did evil in the LORD's sight and served the images of Baal. ¹²They abandoned the LORD, the God of their ancestors, who had brought them out of Egypt. They went after other gods, worshiping the gods of the people around them. And they angered the LORD. ¹³They abandoned the LORD to serve Baal and the images of Ashtoreth. ¹⁴This made the LORD burn with anger against Israel, so he handed them over to raiders who stole their possessions. He turned them over to their enemies all around, and they were no longer able to resist them. ¹⁵Every time Israel went out to battle, the LORD fought against them, causing them to be defeated, just as he had warned. And the people were in great distress.

The LORD Rescues His People

¹⁶Then the LORD raised up judges to rescue the Israelites from their attackers. ¹⁷Yet Israel did not listen to the judges but prostituted themselves by worshiping other gods. How quickly they turned away from the path of their ancestors, who had walked in obedience to the LORD's commands.

¹⁸Whenever the LORD raised up a judge over Israel, he was with that judge and rescued the people from their enemies throughout the judge's lifetime. For the LORD took pity on his people, who were burdened by oppression and suffering. ¹⁹But when the judge died, the people returned to their corrupt ways, behaving worse than those who had lived before them. They went after other gods, serving and worshiping them. And God does not want his people to be oppressed. From the Exodus under Moses to Joshua's conquest and David's battles, God's goal for Israel was complete victory over their enemies (Josh 1:1-9). The NT, too, consistently speaks of freedom from the oppression of sin (Rom 6:1-14; Gal 5:1-15) as an inalienable blessing of a relationship with Christ.

Why, then, does oppression exist? The book of Judges suggests that it is because of human disobedience to God's covenant. Israel was promised victory in the conquest if they would obey God, but the reality (1:19-36) was partial obedience, at best. With the rewards of victory in view, why did God's people of old—and why does the church today—fall short?

In Judges, the answer was that “another generation” arose that had not participated in the Exodus or the conquest under Joshua, so their faith was increasingly based on stories of divine intervention “in the olden days.” They had not personally “seen all the great things the LORD had done for Israel” (2:7). This generation failed to “acknowledge the LORD or remember the mighty things he had done for Israel” (2:10). God had left enemies in the land to test the Israelites (3:1-4), but it was Israel who failed to drive out these enemies as God had commanded. The rest of the book of Judges illustrates the tragic results of that failure.

God only turns away from his people when they have turned away from him (2:12-14); he never abandons people who truly worship him (see “God's Grief over Apostasy” at 10:6-16, p. 439). Yet grace notes are sounded even in divine retribution: God turned his anger to a beneficial purpose: to teach his people obedience. The very foes who robbed Israel of its divine inheritance and blessing became part of God's gracious testing. We can learn from oppression, as both physical and spiritual warfare require discipline. The experience can produce a “peaceful harvest of right living” (see Heb 12:5-11).

2:10-19 Joshua was dead, the new generation had not experienced God's saving power, and the Canaanites continued to live in the land. What resulted was the cycle of rebellion and partial restoration. This section introduces that cycle, which the body of the book exemplifies.

2:11-13 Israel rebelled against the Lord and began serving the gods of their neighbors, especially the Canaanite deities of Baal and Asherah. • Baal means “lord”; Ashtoreth (most likely the plural form of Asherah) might be a Hebrew form of the Canaanite “Astarte,” a goddess with various manifestations. See also 6:25-32 and notes.

2:14-15 As Israel served other gods, God withdrew his support. Their rebellion brought great distress from military defeat by their enemies.

2:15 God was not simply absent; he was actively involved in Israel's defeat, and the outcome of the battle belonged to the Lord (cp. 2 Chr 20:15).

2:16-19 The LORD raised up judges whose leadership brought partial, temporary restoration. They were later described as “judging” Israel (e.g., 3:10; 4:4; 10:2-3), but they were primarily known for their military victories.

2:20-23 The remaining Canaanites and their religion would become a source of temptation to the Israelites, offering an alternative to faithfully following they refused to give up their evil practices and stubborn ways.

²⁰So the LORD burned with anger against Israel. He said, "Because these people have violated my covenant, which I made with their ancestors, and have ignored my commands, ²¹I will no longer drive out the nations that Joshua left unconquered when he died. ²²I did this to test Israel—to see whether or not they would follow the ways of the LORD as their ancestors did." ²³That is why the LORD left those nations in place. He did not quickly drive them out or allow Joshua to conquer them all.

3 These are the nations that the LORD left in the land to test those Israelites who had not experienced the wars of Canaan. ²He did this to teach warfare to generations of Israelites who had no experience in battle. ³These are the nations: the Philistines (those living under the five Philistine rulers), all the Canaanites, the Sidonians, and the Hivites living in the mountains of Lebanon from Mount Baal-hermon to Lebo-hamath. ⁴These people were left to test the Israelites—to see whether they would obey the commands the LORD had given to their ancestors through Moses.

⁵So the people of Israel lived among the Canaanites, Hittites, Amorites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites, ⁶and they intermarried with them. Israelite sons married their daughters, and Israelite daughters were given in marriage to their sons. And the Israelites served their gods.

The judges are often described as charismatic (gifted) because their authority did not come from an office or a structure but from personal qualities. These qualities came from the inspiration of God's Spirit. Charismatic leaders arose in troubled and unsettled times and in response to a crisis. In Judges, the crisis was that "Again the people did evil in the LORD's sight" (10:6; 13:1; cp. 3:12; 4:1; 6:1), with enemy oppression as the inevitable result.

The inspired leadership of the judges fits a pattern. The judges were "raised up" by the Spirit and were sustained by prophetic affirmation. What might have led to prophetic utterance in other periods of Israel's history (e.g., 1 Sam 10:6; 2 Sam 23:2; Isa 61:1; Ezek 11:5; Mic 3:8), in the times of the judges led to physical prowess (e.g., Samson, 14:6, 19; 15:14), skill (1 Sam 16:13-18), or commanding authority (3:10; 6:34; 11:29).

In the NT, Jesus is clearly a Spirit-inspired leader, especially in the Gospel of Luke; and as the Jewish authorities were fond of pointing out, he had no "official" authority. Although the apostles were appointed to what we might consider to be an "office," there was virtually no structure to back up the office; when they exercised authority, it was purely charismatic leadership. Peter's healing of the beggar (Acts 3:6) provides the classic contrast between the accoutrements of office, such as "silver and gold," and true spiritual power.

Charisma has been a powerful tool for effective leadership from the heroes of Israel to the present time. Along with its successes, charismatic leadership is subject to tragic failure when the Spirit has departed (16:20; 1 Sam 16:14; Isa 63:10).

the Lord and his covenant ways. This result was known and even planned by God (cp. 3:4). God does not deliberately set his people up to sin (Jas 1:12-15). Temptations abound, but the choice to obey God or yield to temptation rests with those who claim to know him. Israel had a duty to possess the land fully, but God, not humankind, determines victory or failure.

3:1-4 The ongoing presence of the Philistines and Canaanites in the land had an instructional purpose. Skills in warfare were necessary for survival in the ancient world. God allowed a continuing presence of enemies, but they would become his provision for Israel's training and well-being.

3:3 The Philistines were never listed with the native Canaanite tribes; they were invaders from the sea who settled on the southwest coast of Israel in about 1200 BC. The Philistines were organized into five cities, each with its own ruler (cp. 1 Sam 6:16-17). They are included here with the Canaanites, anticipating the prominent role they would have as Israel's major foe from Samson's time onward. • The text includes Sidonians and northern Hivites to show that Israel's ideal boundaries were well to the north and east of what they actually possessed. • The Hivites were Canaanite (Hamitic) peoples (Gen 10:17); little is known about them. The Gibeonites, who tricked Joshua (Josh 9:3-27) were Hivites. • Baal-hermon is possibly the largest of the three peaks that make up Mount Hermon in the northeast corner of Israel; Lebo-hamath, in southern Lebanon, marks Israel's northernmost ideal boundary (1 Kgs 8:65).

3:5-6 Israel failed God's test (3:1-4). Intermarriage led Israel to worship in the fertility cult of the Canaanite gods.

3:7-11 The account of Othniel is typical of the cycles in Judges. Evil doing led to apostasy, most frequently in the Baal and Asherah cults (see notes on 2:11-13; 6:25-32). Apostasy provoked the Lord they served the images of Baal and the Asherah poles. ⁸Then the LORD burned with anger against Israel, and he turned them over to King Cushan-rishathaim of Aram-naharaim. And the Israelites served Cushan-rishathaim for eight years.

⁹But when the people of Israel cried out to the LORD for help, the LORD raised up a rescuer to save them. His name was Othniel, the son of Caleb's younger brother, Kenaz.

¹⁰The Spirit of the LORD came upon him, and he became Israel's judge. He went to war against King Cushan-rishathaim of Aram, and the LORD gave Othniel victory over him.

¹¹So there was peace in the land for forty years. Then Othniel son of Kenaz died.

Ehud Becomes Israel's Judge

¹²Once again the Israelites did evil in the LORD's sight, and the LORD gave King Eglon of Moab control over Israel because of their evil. ¹³Eglon enlisted the Ammonites and Amalekites as allies, and then he went out and defeated Israel, taking possession of Jericho, the city of palms. ¹⁴And the Israelites served Eglon of Moab for eighteen years.

¹⁵But when the people of Israel cried out to the LORD for help, the LORD again raised up a rescuer to save them. His name was Ehud son of Gera, a left-handed man of the tribe of Benjamin. The Israelites sent Ehud to deliver their tribute money to King Eglon of Moab. ¹⁶So Ehud made a double-edged dagger that was about a foot long, and he strapped it to his right thigh, keeping it hidden under his clothing. ¹⁷He brought the tribute money to Eglon, who was very fat.

¹⁸After delivering the payment, Ehud started home with those who had helped carry the tribute. ¹⁹But when Ehud reached the stone idols near Gilgal, he turned back. He came to Eglon and said, "I have a secret message for you."

So the king commanded his servants, "Be quiet!" and he sent them all out of the room.

²⁰Ehud walked over to Eglon, who was sitting alone in a cool upstairs room. And Ehud said, "I have a message from God for you!" As King Eglon rose from his seat,

²⁴After Ehud was gone, the king's servants returned and found the doors to the upstairs room locked. They thought he might be using the latrine in the room, and resulted in foreign oppression. Then the cry of the people evoked divine compassion and the raising up of a rescuer-judge as the agent of God's Spirit. The rescuer ended the oppression, and the land enjoyed a period of peace before the cycle started again. Othniel depicts an ideal judge.

3:8 Cushan-rishathaim means "Cushan of Double Wickedness." • Aram-naharaim means "Aram of the two rivers," thought to have been located between the Euphrates and Balih Rivers in northwestern Mesopotamia. Some scholars, however, think that Aram-naharaim is equivalent to all of Mesopotamia (a word that means "Midst of the Two Rivers," the region between the Tigris and the Euphrates).

3:12-13 In this epic account of intrigue and cunning, Ehud manifested heroic qualities when a coalition of nations from east of the Jordan penetrated the hill country of Ephraim and Benjamin. The cycle follows formulaic language, and highlights the repeated apostasy of the people once again.

3:12-13 The people of Moab and the Ammonites were descendants of Lot's incestuous relationship with his daughters (Gen 19:30-38). Despite their kinship with Israel, both nations were Israel's enemies. • The Amalekites were nomads who had attacked Israel in the desert, and toward whom unbroken hostility had been commanded (Num 24:20; Deut 25:17-19). That the three nations joined in coalition probably reflected their growing fear of Israelite expansion.

3:15 left-handed (literally restricted in the right hand): This characteristic enabled Ehud to hide his weapon on the right hip. The Greek OT translates this phrase to mean "ambidextrous." The term used here is associated with the tribe of Benjamin ("son of my right hand," Gen 35:18; see Judg 20:16) and was connected with heroic military skills (cp. 1 Chr 12:1-2). • The tribute money was either pieces of metal or, more likely, agricultural goods requiring a team of bearers (3:18).

3:16 A knife for cutting would have a single blade. This doubled-edged dagger was fashioned to facilitate driving it into a victim. • foot: Hebrew gomed, the length of which is uncertain.

3:19-21 The message had to be secret to ensure that Ehud would be left alone with the king; it had to be from God to guarantee that the ploy would be effective. Eglon probably stood up because he expected some kind of message from the Lord, which is precisely what he received.

3:19 Gilgal became the Israelites' initial base of operations after they crossed the Jordan and was the site of important events associated with the conquest (Josh 4-6). The stone idols may have been a pagan shrine created from the twelve stones that Joshua set up (Josh 4:20). Later, Gilgal was still an important center for the faithful (1 Sam 7:16) and for idolaters (Hos 4:15; 9:15; 12:11; Amos 4:4; 5:5).

3:20 The cool upstairs room was probably some kind of rooftop chamber, a common summer meeting place in hot countries.

3:22 and the king's bowels emptied: Or and it came out behind, which could refer to the dagger.

3:23 and escaped down the latrine: Or and went out through the porch; the meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. The latrine might have been similar to those in medieval Europe, where it was not uncommon for a latrine to extend out from the wall of a building, with an external chute not unlike today's laundry or chimney ash chutes.

3:24-25 While the king's servants, perhaps reacting to familiar odors, dithered over protocol for a king with bowel problems, Ehud made his escape.

²⁶While the servants were waiting, Ehud escaped, passing the stone idols on his way to Seirah. ²⁷When he arrived in the hill country of Ephraim, Ehud sounded a call to arms. Then he led a band of Israelites down from the hills.

²⁸"Follow me," he said, "for the LORD has given you victory over Moab your enemy." So they followed him. And the Israelites took control of the shallow crossings of the Jordan River across from Moab, preventing anyone from crossing.

²⁹They attacked the Moabites and killed about 10,000 of their strongest and most able-bodied warriors. Not one of them escaped. ³⁰So Moab was conquered by Israel that day, and there was peace in the land for eighty years.

Shamgar Becomes Israel's Judge

³¹After Ehud, Shamgar son of Anath rescued Israel. He once killed 600 Philistines with an ox goad.

Deborah Becomes Israel's Judge

4 After Ehud's death, the Israelites again did evil in the LORD's sight. ²So the LORD turned them over to King Jabin of Hazor, a Canaanite king. The commander of his army was Sisera, who lived in Harosheth-haggoyim. ³Sisera, who had 900 iron chariots, ruthlessly oppressed the Israelites for twenty years. Then the people of Israel cried out to the LORD for help.

⁴Deborah, the wife of Lappidoth, was a prophet who was judging Israel at that time. ⁵She would sit under the Palm of Deborah, between Ramah and Bethel in the hill country of Ephraim, and the Israelites would go to her for judgment. ⁶One day she sent for Barak son of Abinoam, who lived in Kedesh in the land of Naphtali. She said to him, "This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, commands you: Call out 10,000 warriors from the tribes of Naphtali and Zebulun at Mount Tabor. ⁷And I will call out Sisera, commander of Jabin's army, along with his chariots and warriors, to the Kishon River. There I will give you victory over him."

⁸Barak told her, "I will go, but only if you go with me."

◀ Ehud Defeats the Moabites (3:12-30). MOAB was normally located further south than shown here (see map, p. 416; cp. Num 21:21-34; 32:33), but the Moabites had encroached on Israelite territory even to the point of capturing JERICHO. King Eglon's location when Ehud met him is uncertain.

Joshua along with a vast northern coalition, and Hazor was burned (see Josh 11:1-15). Although Josh 11 and Judg 4-5 have often been compared, there are too many differing details to consider them to be parallel records of the same battle. Instead, Jabin is probably a dynastic name; the name occurs in the Mari texts for an even earlier king of Hazor, around 1800 BC.

4:1 The opening of ch 4 provides chronological continuity with Ehud and reinforces the cyclical nature of Israel's experience during this period.

4:2 Hazor, located north of the Sea of Galilee, dominated the intersection of major trade routes running north-south and east-west. References to Hazor appear frequently in ancient Near Eastern documents, and the site has been extensively excavated. Its position as a one-time "capital of all [those] kingdoms" (Josh 11:10) is confirmed by history and archaeology. • Harosheth-haggoyim ("Forest/Farmland of the Nations") was possibly a staging area for the battle; its location and history are debated.

4:3 Contemporary records confirm that armies like Sisera's had large numbers of iron chariots. Such a force would have expected overwhelming victory over the lightly-armed Israelite infantry.

4:4-7 Deborah was a prophet (Hebrew 'ishah nebi'ah, "a woman, a female prophet") who was judging (shoptah, a feminine verb; see note on 2:16-19). She is the protagonist of this story, though much of the action surrounds her surrogate, Barak. Unlike most of the characters in the book of Judges, Deborah fulfilled both the judicial and the military functions implied by the label "judge." As a prophet, she foreshadowed Samuel's later work (1 Sam 7:15-17). Deborah called for a holy war in which the Lord would fight for his people (4:6-7; see notes on Deut 1:30; 2 Chr 20:20-21).

4:6 Though Barak appears in a list of Israelite heroes (Heb 11:32), Judges never gives him more than an equal place with Deborah. • Mount Tabor was in the territory of Issachar, just north of the Jezreel Valley.

4:7 The Kishon River formed the Jezreel Valley, which runs northwest into the Mediterranean just north of Mount Carmel.

4:8 The theme of the reluctant rescuer surfaces again with Gideon (6:15; cp. Exod 3:11).

3:26 Seirah is unknown, but it was accessible to the hill country, from which Ephraim and Benjamin could be rallied.

3:27-28 sounded a call to arms (literally blew a trumpet): The trumpet blast and the call "Follow me" were accompanied by the assurance of divine victory through the God-appointed rescuer.

3:31 Shamgar is nowhere specifically identified as an Israelite or as a judge (see 5:6-7). • son of Anath: Anath was perhaps a Canaanite goddess or shrine (cp. 1:33, "Beth-anath"); from similar references in ancient literature, some have seen him as part of a Canaanite warrior class.

4:1-5:31 The account of Deborah and Barak, given in both prose (ch 4) and poetry (ch 5), is the only large-scale military operation recorded against a major Canaanite foe after the initial conquest. Another king named Jabin, who also ruled in the city of Hazor, was defeated in an earlier battle against ⁹"Very well," she replied, "I will go with you. But you will receive no honor in this venture, for the LORD's victory over Sisera will be at the hands of a woman." So Deborah went with Barak to Kadesh. ¹⁰At Kadesh, Barak called together the tribes of Zebulun and Naphtali, and 10,000 warriors went up with him. Deborah also went with him.

¹¹Now Heber the Kenite, a descendant of Moses' brother-in-law Hobab, had moved away from the other members of his tribe and pitched his tent by the oak of Zaanan-nim near Kadesh.

¹²When Sisera was told that Barak son of Abinoam had gone up to Mount Tabor, ¹³he called for all 900 of his iron chariots and all of his warriors, and they marched from Harosheth-haggoyim to the Kishon River.

¹⁴Then Deborah said to Barak, "Get ready! This is the day the LORD will give you victory over Sisera, for the LORD is marching ahead of you." So Barak led his 10,000 warriors down the slopes of Mount Tabor into battle.

¹⁵When Barak attacked, the LORD threw Sisera and all his chariots and warriors into a panic. Sisera leaped down from his chariot and escaped on foot. ¹⁶Then Barak chased the chariots and the enemy army all the way to Harosheth-haggoyim, killing all of Sisera's warriors. Not a single one was left alive.

¹⁷Meanwhile, Sisera ran to the tent of Jael, the wife of Heber the Kenite, because Heber's family was on friendly terms with King Jabin of Hazor. ¹⁸Jael went out to meet Sisera and said to him, "Come into my tent, sir. Come in. Don't be afraid." So he went into her tent, and she covered him with a blanket.

²⁰"Stand at the door of the tent," he told her. "If anybody comes and asks you if there is anyone here, say no."

²¹But when Sisera fell asleep from exhaustion, Jael quietly crept up to him with a hammer and tent peg in her hand. Then she drove the tent peg through his temple and into the ground, and so he died.

²²When Barak came looking for Sisera, Jael went out to meet him. She said, "Come, and I will show you the man you are looking

Deborah (4:1–5:31)

Deborah the prophet was one of the early judges, a woman of integrity and devotion to the Lord. As a prophet, she received divine revelation; as a judge, she arbitrated legal disputes.

Deborah's interaction with Barak, the military leader, illustrates the problems of this period of Israel's history. The period of the judges was a time of increasing moral depravity, spiritual blindness, and political fragmentation. Israel was doing "evil in the LORD's sight" (4:1), so God once again turned Israel over to an oppressor, Jabin of Canaan. Once again, Israel "cried out to the LORD for help" (4:3).

Through Deborah, God called Barak to fight against Sisera. But Barak did not receive God's call with enthusiasm and courage. Instead, he set a condition: Deborah must go with him. Deborah agreed, but with a cost: The glory for the victory would not go to Barak but to a woman. And so it happened: Barak defeated Sisera and his army, but the glory went to Jael, the woman who killed Sisera and fulfilled Deborah's prophecy. Barak's lack of courage and leadership contrasts with the courage and leadership of these two women.

4:9 Honor for the victory would go to a woman, which meant a loss of face for Barak. • This Kadesh appears to have been near Mount Tabor (cp. 4:6, 12), a different location than the Kadesh in Naphtali (4:6), which would have been too far north for the action described.

4:10 The warriors came from Barak's tribe of Naphtali and its southern neighbor, Zebulun.

4:11 Kenites related to Moses' father-in-law had settled in Judah (1:16), in the southern desert (Exod 2:16–22) near the Amalekites in the mountainous country near Moab (Num 24:21–22). Part of the tribe had apparently migrated north and settled near the Sea of Galilee.

• brother-in-law: Or father-in-law.

4:12–13 Upon hearing of Barak's muster of troops, Sisera fell into the trap set by the Lord. He headed for the Jezreel Valley with his chariots, marching along the Kishon River where wheeled vehicles could operate freely.

4:14–16 Mount Tabor, with its forest cover, was a strategic location, and the rush down the hill must have surprised the unsuspecting Canaanites. The battle was won, however, because it was the Lord's war, not because of human strategy and tactics. • Nothing is said here about why the chariots were so ineffective; this awaits the poetic version of the account (5:21).

4:17–20 Sisera felt that he was back in friendly circles (cp. 4:11). A woman whose husband was absent would normally invite a man into her tent only for sex, but Sisera would have interpreted this invitation as an opportunity for safe haven. Jael did nothing to shake his confidence as she concealed and refreshed him.

4:19 The milk was probably the curds so favored by the Arabs (cp. "yogurt," 5:25); many believe that it is soporific.

4:21–22 Jael completed what seems to have been her intention all along. There is a more graphic description of the event in 5:26–27.

for." So he followed her into the tent and found Sisera lying there dead, with the tent peg through his temple.

²³So on that day Israel saw God defeat Jabin, the Canaanite king. ²⁴And from that time on Israel became stronger and stronger against King Jabin until they finally destroyed him.

The Song of Deborah

5 On that day Deborah and Barak son of Abinoam sang this song:

²"Israel's leaders took charge, and the people gladly followed.
Praise the LORD!

³"Listen, you kings!
Pay attention, you mighty rulers!
For I will sing to the LORD.
I will make music to the LORD, the God of Israel.

⁴"LORD, when you set out from Seir and marched across the fields of Edom,

the earth trembled,
and the cloudy skies poured down rain.

⁵ The mountains quaked in the presence of the LORD, the God of Mount Sinai—in the presence of the LORD, the God of Israel.

⁶ "In the days of Shamgar son of Anath, and in the days of Jael, people avoided the main roads, and travelers stayed on winding pathways.

⁷ There were few people left in the villages of Israel—until Deborah arose as a mother for Israel.

⁸ When Israel chose new gods, war erupted at the city gates.
Yet not a shield or spear could be seen among forty thousand warriors in Israel!

⁹ My heart is with the commanders of Israel, with those who volunteered for war.
Praise the LORD!

◀ Barak Defeats Sisera at Mount Tabor (4:1–5:31). One reconstruction of this battle is as shown: Deborah met Barak and the armies of NAPHTALI and ZEBULUN at KEDESH near MOUNT TABOR (see note on 4:9). Then Barak stationed himself on Mount Tabor. Sisera and his army marched down from near HAZOR and were passing Mount Tabor on their way to the KISHON RIVER when Barak attacked (4:12–16). Then Sisera fled north toward the OAK AT ZAAANNIM, where he met Jael. His forces fled south toward TAANACH, only to be intercepted and crushed by the armies of Ephraim, Benjamin, and Manasseh (4:16; 5:14–21).

wisdom psalms do (see "Wisdom Psalms" at Ps 37, p. 937).

5:4–5 In the poem, the LORD is on the march from his home in the mountains of Edom (cp. Hab 3:3), or Mount Sinai (one tradition places Sinai east of the Jordan Valley, in the region of Edom; cp. Gal 4:25). The fire and earthquake that had so terrified Israel at the giving of the law (Exod 19:18) here symbolize God's power and fury on the battlefield against his enemies. • Torrential rain would have created a quagmire, making Sisera's chariots a liability rather than an asset (4:15–16).

5:6 During this period of chaos and uncertainty, there was little security for those living outside the main walled cities. Even Shamgar (see 3:31) did little to alleviate the misery of the common people, who suffered under the hand of the Canaanites and their cruel commander, Sisera.

5:7 There were few people left in the villages of Israel: The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. • Deborah was God's agent in bringing relief during this general social breakdown. Deborah did not muster or command the troops, but she was Israel's spiritual and emotional pillar; she is described as a mother in Israel.

5:8 Israel was in social chaos and also lacked defensive weapons. • Forty thousand warriors: The Hebrew word translated thousand could also be translated clans (see note on Exod 12:37).

4:23 God defeated Jabin by orchestrating people and events.

4:24 Sisera's army was gone, but Jabin and his kingdom were subdued more gradually.

5:1–31 This song, a victory hymn usually credited to Deborah, presents a second, more poetic account of the entire battle with various details that supplement the prose account. It is one of the most ancient Hebrew poems. It blesses the Lord, those tribes who responded to the muster, and Jael. It curses those who remained at home, Sisera, and his mother's entourage. It contrasts conditions before Barak's victory, when the Lord's curse was on the land, with the life of blessing in the wake of the warriors' righteous acts. It ends with a prayer that the Lord's enemies will perish like Sisera (5:31).

5:3 The victory song is primarily a hymn to the Lord, the God of Israel. It is also a wisdom song that gives instruction to kings and rulers, as other and the victories of his villagers in Israel.

Then the people of the LORD marched down to the city gates.
12 "Wake up, Deborah, wake up!
Wake up, wake up, and sing a song!
Arise, Barak!
Lead your captives away, son of Abinoam!
13 "Down from Tabor marched the few

The people of the LORD marched down against mighty warriors.
14 They came down from Ephraim—a land that once belonged to the Amalekites; they followed you, Benjamin, with from Zebulun came those who carry a 15 The princes of Issachar were with Deborah and Barak.

They followed Barak, rushing into the

But in the tribe of Reuben
there was great indecision.
16 Why did you sit at home among the sheepfolds—to hear the shepherds whistle for their flocks?

Yes, in the tribe of Reuben
there was great indecision.
17 Gilead remained east of the Jordan.
And why did Dan stay home?
Asher sat unmoved at the seashore, remaining in his harbors.
18 But Zebulun risked his life, as did Naphtali, on the heights of the battlefield.
19 "The kings of Canaan came and fought, at Taanach near Megiddo's springs, but they carried off no silver treasures.
20 The stars fought from heaven.
The stars in their orbits fought against Sisera.
21 The Kishon River swept them away—that ancient torrent, the Kishon.
March on with courage, my soul!
22 Then the horses' hooves hammered the ground, the galloping, galloping of Sisera's mighty steeds.
23 'Let the people of Meroz be cursed,' said the angel of the LORD.
'Let them be utterly cursed, because they did not come to help the LORD—to help the LORD against the mighty warriors.'

the wife of Heber the Kenite.
May she be blessed above all women who live in tents.
25 Sisera asked for water, and she gave him milk.
In a bowl fit for nobles,
she brought him yogurt.

5:10 Both the rich (those who ride) and the poor (those who walk) were to listen and spread the song, which would have both a spiritual and a social impact as it was disseminated.

5:11 Listen to the village musicians: The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain, but the picture is of divine exploits being recited where people gathered. Much OT narrative and psalmody probably took shape in this way. "Remembering" in song and poetry is foundational to both Jewish and Christian worship.

5:13 The few were Barak's army, marching down against the mighty warriors of Sisera's army.

5:14-18 These verses honor those who volunteered and shame those who did not. • Ephraim, Benjamin, and Manasseh (represented by Makir) came from the south. Issachar, the territory where the battle actually took place, was joined by Zebulun and Naphtali, the two tribes closest to Barak's home base. • The tribes that were too irresolute and fainthearted to join the fight included Reuben, Gad (represented by Gilead), Dan, and Asher.

5:15 indecision: As in some Hebrew manuscripts and Syriac version, which read searchings of heart; Masoretic Text reads resolve of heart.

5:19 Taanach was southeast of the great administrative center of Megiddo, so the battle took place in the lower part of the Jezreel Valley. The references to Taanach and Megiddo are probably poetic allusions to well-known places in the Jezreel Valley, rather than exact locations of any fighting, which appears to have taken place between Mount Tabor and the lowlands around the Kishon stream.

5:23 The location of Meroz is unknown, but it should not be confused with Merom (Josh 11:5), which was approximately twenty miles to the north in the hills of Galilee.

5:24-27 Sisera's end is described in a brief celebration of Jael.

Why don't we hear the sound of chariot wheels?'

29 "Her wise women answer, and she repeats these words to herself:

30 "They must be dividing the captured plunder—
with a woman or two for every man.
There will be colorful robes for Sisera, and colorful, embroidered robes for me.

Yes, the plunder will include colorful robes embroidered on both sides.'

31 "LORD, may all your enemies die like Sisera!

But may those who love you rise like the sun in all its power!"

Then there was peace in the land for forty years.

Gideon Becomes Israel's Judge

6 The Israelites did evil in the LORD's sight.
So the LORD handed them over to the Midianites for seven years. ²The Midianites were so cruel that the Israelites made hiding places for themselves in the mountains, caves, and strongholds. ³Whenever the Israelites planted their crops, marauders from Midian, Amalek, and the people of the east would attack Israel, ⁴camping in the land and destroying crops as far away as Gaza.

They left the Israelites with nothing to eat, taking all the sheep, goats, cattle, and donkeys. ⁵These enemy hordes, coming with their livestock and tents, were as thick as ⁶locusts; they arrived on droves of camels too numerous to count. And they stayed until the land was stripped bare. ⁶So Israel was reduced to starvation by the Midianites. Then the Israelites cried out to the LORD for help.

⁷When they cried out to the LORD because of Midian, ⁸the LORD sent a prophet to the Israelites. He said, "This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: I brought you up out of slavery in Egypt. ⁹I rescued you from the Egyptians and from all who oppressed you.
I drove out your enemies and gave you their land. ¹⁰I told you, 'I am the LORD your God.
You must not worship the gods of the Amorites, in whose land you now live.' But you have not listened to me."

¹¹Then the angel of the LORD came and sat beneath the great tree at Ophrah, which belonged to Joash of the clan of Abiezer.
Gideon son of Joash was threshing wheat at the bottom of a winepress to hide the grain from the Midianites. ¹²The angel of the LORD appeared to him and said, "Mighty hero, the LORD is with you!"

¹³"Sir," Gideon replied, "if the LORD is with us, why has all this happened to us?
And where are all the miracles our ancestors told us about? Didn't they say, 'The LORD brought us up out of Egypt'? But now

5:28 The natural confidence of Sisera's mother was beginning to crumble.

5:29-30 The wise women betrayed Sisera's evil intentions as they tried to encourage his mother. • The poet didn't need to tell how the story concluded.

5:31 Sisera typifies the Lord's enemies; Jael represents those who love the Lord. • there was peace in the land: Rest followed the Lord's rescue.

6:1-8:35 Gideon's judgeship brings to a close the first period of judges.

6:1-6 After forty years of peace, religious syncretism had brought about political instability, and marauding nomads had reduced the Israelites to living as fugitives. • The Midianites were once thought to be a purely nomadic tribe centered in northwest Arabia, but they are now understood to have built cities and for a time to have dominated much of the Arabian peninsula and southern Transjordan (the area east of the Jordan). They are joined here by Amalekites (who earlier were part of a Moabite coalition; see note on 3:12-13) and the mysterious people of the east (cp. 1 Kgs 4:30; Ezek 25:4, 10). The pattern of attack was seasonal but devastating.

6:5 Camels, known in some contexts from as early as 3000 BC, are frequently associated with eastern nomads and their raids. This may be one of the first recorded instances of camels being used in a large military force.

6:8-10 This unnamed prophet and Deborah are the only prophets to appear in Judges. This prophet rebuked Israel's apostasy in language familiar from Deuteronomy onward.

6:11-32 Gideon encountered the angel of the LORD and emerged as a hero. He overthrew the syncretistic Baal cult of his family and town and called his people to fight in the Lord's name.

6:12 Mighty hero translates a Hebrew term that is elsewhere translated as "strong warriors" (Josh 6:2), pointing to Gideon's potential military heroism, and as "the rich" (2 Kgs 15:20), pointing to his social standing as a member of a leading family. • the LORD is with you: A commission to fight God's war is usually accompanied by assurance of his presence (see Deut 1:30; Josh 1:1-9).

6:13-15 Like others called to be prophets or judges, Gideon was reluctant to obey. He questioned God's presence and his own adequacy (see note on 4:8; Exod 3:1-4:17; Jer 1:4-19).

the LORD has abandoned us and handed us over to the Midianites."

¹⁴Then the LORD turned to him and said, "Go with the strength you have, and rescue Israel from the Midianites. I am sending you!"

¹⁵"But Lord," Gideon replied, "how can I rescue Israel? My clan is the weakest in the whole tribe of Manasseh, and I am the least in my entire family!"

¹⁶The LORD said to him, "I will be with you. And you will destroy the Midianites as if you were fighting against one man."

¹⁷Gideon replied, "If you are truly going to help me, show me a sign to prove that it is really the LORD speaking to me. ¹⁸Don't go away until I come back and bring my offering to you."

He answered, "I will stay here until you return."

¹⁹Gideon hurried home. He cooked a young goat, and with a basket of flour he baked some bread without yeast. Then, carrying the meat in a basket and the broth in a pot, he brought them out and presented them to the angel, who was under the great tree.

²⁰The angel of God said to him, "Place the meat and the unleavened bread on this rock, and pour the broth over it." And Gideon did as he was told. ²¹Then the angel of the LORD touched the meat and bread with the tip of the staff in his hand, and fire flamed up from the rock and consumed all he had brought. And the angel of the LORD disappeared.

²²When Gideon realized that it was the angel of the LORD, he cried out, "Oh, Sovereign LORD, I'm doomed! I have seen the angel of the LORD face to face!"

²³"It is all right," the LORD replied. "Do not be afraid. You will not die." ²⁴And Gideon built an altar to the LORD there and named it Yahweh-Shalom (which means "the LORD is 'peace'"). The altar remains in Ophrah in the land of the clan of Abiezer to this day.

²⁵That night the LORD said to Gideon, "Take the second bull from your father's herd, the one that is seven years old. Pull down your father's altar to Baal, and cut down the Asherah pole standing beside it. ²⁶Then build an altar to the LORD your God here on this hilltop sanctuary, laying the stones carefully. Sacrifice the bull as a burnt offering on the altar, using as fuel the wood of the Asherah pole you cut down."

²⁷So Gideon took ten of his servants and did as the LORD had commanded. But he did it at night because he was afraid of the other members of his father's household and the people of the town.

²⁸Early the next morning, as the people of the town began to stir, someone discovered that the altar of Baal had been broken down and that the Asherah pole beside it had been cut down. In their place a new altar had been built, and on it were the remains of the bull that had been sacrificed. ²⁹The people said to each other, "Who did this?" And after asking around and making a careful search, they learned that it was Gideon, the son of Joash.

³⁰"Bring out your son," the men of the town demanded of Joash. "He must die for destroying the altar of Baal and for cutting down the Asherah pole."

³¹But Joash shouted to the mob that confronted him, "Why are you defending Baal? Will you argue his case? Whoever pleads his case will be put to death by morning! If Baal truly is a god, let him defend himself and destroy the one who broke down his altar!"

³²From then on Gideon was called Jerubbaal, which means "Let Baal defend himself," because he broke down Baal's altar.

Gideon Asks for a Sign

³³Soon afterward the armies of Midian, Amalek, and the people of the east formed an alliance against Israel and crossed the Jordan, camping in the valley of Jezreel. ³⁴Then the Spirit of the LORD clothed Gideon with power. He blew a ram's horn as a call to arms, and the men of the clan of Abiezer came to him. ³⁵He also sent messengers

6:19 a basket: Hebrew an ephah [20 quarts or 22 liters].

6:22 Encounters with divine holiness are inherently dangerous (cp. Gen 32:30; Deut 5:4-5).

6:24 The symbolically named altar commemorates the divine presence and favor. By the time the account was written down (to this day), the altar had probably become a pilgrimage site.

6:25-32 In a provocative act that was commanded by God, Gideon destroyed and desecrated a community altar to Baal and its Asherah pole.

6:25 In Canaanite worship, Baal was a storm and fertility god, while Asherah was often represented as a sacred tree.

6:31 The first person to follow Gideon's inspired act of leadership and abandon Baal for the Lord was Gideon's father Joash, who was, ironically, the keeper of the Baal shrine.

6:33 The nomadic coalition (6:1-6) set up camp at the eastern end of the valley of Jezreel, which divided Israel's central tribes from the Galilean hills.

6:34 As is typical of the inspired leaders in Judges, the Spirit clothed Gideon with power. This Hebrew expression points to an individual being filled by the Spirit. A similar metaphor is frequent in Paul's letters (e.g., Rom 13:12; Gal 3:27; Eph 4:24; 6:11; Col 3:10, 12, 14).

throughout Manasseh, Asher, Zebulun, and Naphtali, summoning their warriors, and all of them responded.

³⁶Then Gideon said to God, "If you are truly going to use me to rescue Israel as you promised, ³⁷prove it to me in this way. I will put a wool fleece on the threshing floor tonight. If the fleece is wet with dew in the morning but the ground is dry, then I will know that you are going to help me rescue Israel as you promised." ³⁸And that is just what happened. When Gideon got up early the next morning, he squeezed the fleece and wrung out a whole bowlful of water.

³⁹Then Gideon said to God, "Please don't be ⁴⁰angry with me, but let me make one more request. Let me use the fleece for one more test. This time let the fleece remain dry while the ground around it is wet with dew." ⁴⁰So that night God did as Gideon asked. The fleece was dry in the morning, but the ground was covered with dew.

Gideon Defeats the Midianites

7 So Jerub-baal (that is, Gideon) and his army got up early and went as far as the spring of Harod. The armies of Midian were camped north of them in the valley near the hill of Moreh. ²The LORD said to Gideon, "You have too many warriors with you. If I let all of you fight the Midianites, the Israelites will boast to me that they saved themselves by their own strength. ³Therefore, tell the people, 'Whoever is timid or afraid may leave this mountain and go home.'" So 22,000 of them went home, leaving only 10,000 who were willing to fight.

⁴But the LORD told Gideon, "There are still too many! Bring them down to the spring, and I will test them to determine who will go with you and who will not." ⁵When Gideon took his warriors down to the water, the LORD told him, "Divide the men into two groups. In one group put all those who cup water in their hands and lap it up with their tongues like dogs. In the other group put all those who kneel down and drink with their mouths in the stream." ⁶Only 300 of the men drank from their hands. All the others got down on their knees and drank with their mouths in the stream.

⁷The LORD told Gideon, "With these 300 men I will rescue you and give you victory over the Midianites. Send all the others home." ⁸So Gideon collected the provisions and rams' horns of the other warriors and sent them home. But he kept the 300 men with him.

The Midianite camp was in the valley just below Gideon. ⁹That night the LORD said, "Get up! Go down into the Midianite camp, for I have given you victory over them! ¹⁰But if you are afraid to attack, go down to the camp with your servant Purah. ¹¹Listen to what the Midianites are saying, and you will be greatly encouraged. Then you will be eager to attack."

of Moreh were just east of the town of Jezreel; they guarded the pass that connects the valley of Jezreel to the fords of the Jordan near Beth-shan. Gideon's army was located on the north slope of Mount Gilboa. The Midianite hosts were in the valley below, with the hill behind them.

7:2 The LORD does not require a large force to save his people (cp. 1 Sam 14:6). A large number might even have hindered success because the element of surprise was crucial to the Lord's battle plan. Gideon was to pare down the army to maintain godly humility, not for reasons of military strategy.

7:3 The first reduction sorted out those who initially responded with enthusiasm but then had second thoughts. • may leave this mountain: Literally may leave Mount Gilead. The identity of Mount Gilead is uncertain in this context. It is perhaps used here as another name for Mount Gilboa.

7:4-8 The choice of those who lapped from their hands over those who knelt was apparently arbitrary, but it enabled the Lord to reduce the size of the army.

7:8 The jars (in which the men carried provisions) and trumpets borrowed from the warriors who were sent home would be used in the coming battle.

7:10-15 The Lord encouraged Gideon with a third sign (see 6:17-21, 36-40).

7:11 With the enemy camp (next page) spread out across the valley (7:1, 12), it was easy for Gideon and his servant to sneak undetected into the camp.

6:36-40 The fleece incident was not a confirmation of God's intention to use Gideon (which had already been established, 6:17-24), but God's indulgence in responding to the reluctant hero's uncertainty.

7:1 The spring of Harod and the hill

So Gideon took Purah and went down to the edge of the enemy camp. ¹²The armies of Midian, Amalek, and the people of the east had settled in the valley like a swarm of locusts. Their camels were like grains of sand on the seashore—too many to count! ¹³Gideon crept up just as a man was telling his companion about a dream. The man said, “I had this dream, and in my dream a loaf of barley bread came tumbling down into the Midianite camp. It hit a tent, turned it over, and knocked it flat!”

¹⁴His companion answered, “Your dream can mean only one thing—God has given Gideon son of Joash, the Israelite, victory over Midian and all its allies!”

¹⁵When Gideon heard the dream and its interpretation, he bowed in worship before the LORD. Then he returned to the Israelite camp and shouted, “Get up! For the LORD has given you victory over the Midianite hordes!” ¹⁶He divided the 300 men into three groups and gave each man a ram’s horn and a clay jar with a torch in it.

¹⁷Then he said to them, “Keep your eyes on me. When I come to the edge of the camp, do just as I do. ¹⁸As soon as I and those with me blow the rams’ horns, blow your horns, too, all around the entire camp, and shout, ‘For the LORD and for Gideon!’”

²³Then Gideon sent for the warriors of Naphtali, Asher, and Manasseh, who joined in chasing the army of Midian. ²⁴Gideon also sent messengers throughout the hill country of Ephraim, saying, “Come down to attack the Midianites. Cut them off at the shallow crossings of the Jordan River at Beth-barah.”

So all the men of Ephraim did as they were told. ²⁵They captured Oreb and Zeeb, the two Midianite commanders, killing Oreb at the rock of Oreb, and Zeeb at the winepress of Zeeb. And they continued to chase the Midianites. Afterward the Israelites brought the heads of Oreb and Zeeb to Gideon, who was by the Jordan River.

Gideon Kills Zebah and Zalmunna

8 Then the people of Ephraim asked Gideon, “Why have you treated us this way? Why didn’t you send for us when you first went out to fight the Midianites?” And they argued heatedly with Gideon.

²But Gideon replied, “What have I accomplished compared to you? Aren’t even the leftover grapes of Ephraim’s harvest better than the entire crop of my little clan of Abiezer? ³God gave you victory over Oreb and Zeeb, the commanders of the Midianite army. What have I accomplished compared 7:13-14 Dreams and their interpretations were often discussed in Egypt and Babylonia. The OT teaches that dreams are inspired by God and are best interpreted by his revelation (see Gen 41:15-16, 25; Dan 2:28). The point of this dream is clear: Gideon’s band, represented as a rounded loaf of barley bread, would come tumbling down and overturn the Midianite camp.

7:15 he bowed in worship before the LORD: As in Greek version. Hebrew reads he bowed.

7:16 Dividing the small band into three groups created the impression of a much larger force.

7:17-20 Surprise and deception took the place of a massive army. The war cry, the sudden blast of 300 trumpets, and the torches bursting into light created the impression of a large force.

7:19 just after midnight: Literally at the beginning of the second watch.

7:21 The warriors stood in place while God fought the battle (cp. Exod 14:13; 1 Sam 12:16; Rev 19:11-16). • The Midianites’ camels (6:5) might have contributed to the panic. Camels usually provided a military advantage, but in this situation they would have been a liability. They had probably been hobbled for the night, and camels themselves are subject to panic.

7:22 The fugitives fled in a southeasterly direction, past Beth-shan and toward the fords of the Jordan, trying to reach more friendly and favorable surroundings.

7:24 The shallow crossings of the Jordan were key to cutting off the escape of an army (cp. 3:28; 12:4-6).

7:25 Oreb (“raven”) and Zeeb (“wolf”) were military leaders, in contrast to Zebah and Zalmunnah, who were kings (8:5). This capture was commemorated in the subsequent names of the rock and winepress where they were captured.

8:1-3 Ephraim, the dominant tribe of the north-central hill country, produced only a minor judge, Tola (10:1). The Ephraimites resented their omission from the battle, if only because they hoped for a share of the booty. When summoned, they did the job at hand. Gideon gave a gracious and humble answer, which turned away Ephraim’s anger (see Prov 15:1; contrast Jephthah, 12:1-4). Gideon’s and Ephraim’s victories over Oreb and Zeeb and their armies became the stuff of legend (cp. Ps 83:11-12; Isa 10:26).

to that?" When the men of Ephraim heard Gideon's answer, their anger subsided.

⁴Gideon then crossed the Jordan River with his 300 men, and though exhausted, they continued to chase the enemy. ⁵When they reached Succoth, Gideon asked the leaders of the town, "Please give my warriors some food. They are very tired. I am chasing Zebah and Zalmunna, the kings of Midian."

⁶But the officials of Succoth replied, "Catch Zebah and Zalmunna first, and then we will feed your army."

⁷So Gideon said, "After the LORD gives me victory over Zebah and Zalmunna, I will return and tear your flesh with the thorns and briars from the wilderness."

⁸From there Gideon went up to Peniel and again asked for food, but he got the same answer. ⁹So he said to the people of Peniel, "After I return in victory, I will tear down this tower."

¹⁰By this time Zebah and Zalmunna were in Karkor with about 15,000 warriors—all that remained of the allied armies of the east, for 120,000 had already been killed. ¹¹Gideon circled around by the caravan route east of Nobah and Jogbehah, taking the Midianite army by surprise. ¹²Zebah and Zalmunna, the two Midianite kings, fled, but Gideon chased them down and captured all their warriors.

¹³After this, Gideon returned from the battle by way of Heres Pass. ¹⁴There he Gideon (6:1–8:35)

Judg 8:33–9:57
1 Sam 12:11
Isa 10:26
Heb 11:32

Gideon, an Israelite judge, was son of Joash, from the tribe of Manasseh. Gideon described his clan as the least powerful in Manasseh and himself as the least important in the clan. His story tells how God can take a weak person and use him for great purposes.

At the time, Israel was being oppressed by Midian and cried to God for relief (6:6). In response, God sent a prophet to chastise them for neglecting the Lord and worshipping other gods. He also sent his angel to call Gideon to rescue Israel.

Gideon's first appearance is not promising. He was threshing wheat in the bottom of a winepress because he did not want the Midianites to know what he was doing. When the angel of the Lord appeared to Gideon in the winepress, Gideon questioned why God had not rescued his people as at the Exodus. God said that Gideon was chosen to be Israel's deliverer, and that God himself would be with him. Gideon was slow to believe, so he brought an offering; when the angel touched the sacrifice, fire came from the rock beneath it.

This sign gave Gideon enough faith to act locally. God told him to knock down his father's altar to Baal, cut down the Asherah pole, and build an altar to the Lord instead. Gideon did what God had commanded. Gideon became a warrior for God against false gods.

Then the Spirit of God came on Gideon, and he raised an army to fight the Midianites and their allies. Gideon was still cautious. He put out a fleece on two nights and asked God to confirm Gideon's calling. God did, and Gideon now knew God was calling him.

No army recruiter had greater success than Gideon as 32,000 men responded to his call. God, though, directed him to pare down the numbers to 300 men. Gideon led these 300 men against an overwhelming force and defeated them.

Gideon rightly resisted the people's call to be their ruler, but then he made an ephod from the earrings of the defeated soldiers, and the ephod became an idol (8:22–27). Gideon, weak in faith and dependent on visible signs, eventually turned away from worshipping the invisible God and worshiped idols. Israel enjoyed peace during his time, but his lack of faith bore bitter fruit after his death (8:33–9:57).

8:4–12 At this point, Gideon seemed as bent on revenge as on victory, and there is an abrupt cessation of his earlier dialogue with the Lord. The core of 300 men made this final run against the Midianites. • Gideon pursued the fleeing kings of Midian through the Jabbok gorge, then southward toward Rabbah (see map, p. 441), following the caravan route onto the Transjordan plateau. • Succoth and Peniel were Israelite cities, but their loyalty to Gideon, an upstart general, was thin. The tribes east of the Jordan were continually exposed to the Midianites pressure and apparently feared the Midianites.

8:7 It was a common practice in the ancient Near East to tear the flesh of a defeated foe (cp. Amos 1:3; Mic 4:13).

8:8–9 Peniel: Hebrew Penuel, a variant spelling of Peniel; also in 8:9, 17. • this tower: Towers were common in the period and have been excavated at both Succoth and Shechem (see 9:46–49).

8:10–12 Apparently the Midianite remnant with its two kings felt reasonably secure, having reached the Transjordan plateau en route to their traditional desert haunts. This put them well beyond typically Israelite territory. As he had done before (7:19–22), Gideon took the Midianite army by surprise. He captured the two kings and routed the army, thus eliminating the threat of Midianite retribution feared by the leaders of Succoth and Peniel.

8:13–17 The return journey was probably a straight course (through the captured a young man from Succoth and demanded that he write down the names of all the seventy-seven officials and elders in the town. ¹⁵Gideon then returned to Succoth and said to the leaders, "Here are Zebah and Zalmunna. When we were here before, you taunted me, saying, 'Catch Zebah and Zalmunna first, and then we will feed your exhausted army.'" ¹⁶Then Gideon took the elders of the town and taught them a lesson, punishing them with thorns and briars from the wilderness. ¹⁷He also tore down the tower of Peniel and killed all the men in the town.

¹⁸Then Gideon asked Zebah and Zalmunna, "The men you killed at Tabor—what were they like?"

"Like you," they replied. "They all had the look of a king's son."

¹⁹"They were my brothers, the sons of my own mother!" Gideon exclaimed. "As surely as the LORD lives, I wouldn't kill you if you hadn't killed them."

²¹Then Zebah and Zalmunna said to Gideon, "Be a man! Kill us yourself!" So Gideon killed them both and took the royal ornaments from the necks of their camels.

Gideon's Sacred Ephod

²²Then the Israelites said to Gideon, "Be our ruler! You and your son and your grandson will be our rulers, for you have rescued us from Midian."

²³But Gideon replied, "I will not rule over you, nor will my son. The LORD will rule over you! ²⁴However, I do have one request—that each of you give me an earring from the plunder you collected from your fallen enemies." (The enemies, being Ishmaelites, all wore gold earrings.)

²⁷Gideon made a sacred ephod from the gold and put it in Ophrah, his hometown. But soon all the Israelites prostituted themselves by worshiping it, and it became a trap for Gideon and his family.

²⁸That is the story of how the people of Israel defeated Midian, which never recovered. Throughout the rest of Gideon's lifetime—about forty years—there was peace in the land.

²⁹Then Gideon son of Joash returned home. ³⁰He had seventy sons born to him, for he had many wives. ³¹He also had a concubine in Shechem, who gave birth to a son, whom he named Abimelech. ³²Gideon died when he was very old, and he was buried in the grave of his father, Joash, at Ophrah in the land of the clan of Abiezer.

³³As soon as Gideon died, the Israelites prostituted themselves by worshiping the images of Baal, making Baal-berith their god. ³⁴They forgot the LORD their God, who had rescued them from all their enemies surrounding them. ³⁵Nor did they show any loyalty to the family of Jerub-baal (that is, Gideon), despite all the good he had done for Israel.

unknown Heres Pass) rather than the circular approach needed for the ambush. • That a typical young man from Succoth could write down the names is evidence that the newly developed alphabetic writing system had taken root in Israel. • Gideon's practice of retribution and execution was the norm in his time, though Gideon's reputation as the Lord's servant was better served by his skillful diplomacy (8:1-3) than by vindictive punishment.

8:18-21 It is not clear just when the slaughter at Tabor took place; it may have occurred during the earlier battle.

8:20-21 Matters of honor dominated this interaction. Death at the hand of a woman or a child was considered dishonorable (5:24-27; 9:54).

8:21 royal ornaments (or "crescent necklaces," Isa 3:18): Desert nomads tended to carry their wealth with them; jewelry maximized value for weight.

8:24 Ishmaelites and Midianites were both descendants of Abraham (Gen 16:15; 25:2).

8:26 forty-three pounds: Hebrew 1,700 [shekels] [19.4 kilograms].

8:27 An ephod was normally considered part of the priestly garments (Exod 28:6-30); one was also worn by Samuel and David (1 Sam 2:18; 2 Sam 6:14; 1 Chr 15:27). But here, as in 17:5 and 18:14-18, the ephod appears to have been some kind of gold image, which in turn became an object of idolatrous worship.

8:28 When there was peace in the land (see note on 3:7-11) before Abimelech, it was for multiples of twenty years (3:11, 30; 5:31). After Gideon, the lengths were shorter. Israel's ongoing apostasy led to increased social instability (cp. chs 17-21).

8:29-32 Advanced age is generally a sign of divine blessing, but Gideon was tarnished by a decline of spiritual blessing and leadership.

8:29 Gideon: Hebrew Jerub-baal; see 6:32.

8:31 concubine: See note on 19:1.

8:33-35 Gideon's ephod (8:27) quickly became part of a pagan shrine honoring images of the ever-present Canaanite deity Baal, here called Baal-berith ("Baal of the covenant"). Fundamental to this apostasy were the twin themes of forgetting the Lord and his works and disloyalty to godly leadership. Remembering is basic to biblical, covenantal worship, from the time of the Exodus (Exod 12:14, 24) to the ongoing Christian celebration of the Lord's Supper (1 Cor 11:25). • loyalty: See note on 1:24.

Abimelech: the "Anti-Judge" (9:1-57)

Abimelech Rules over Shechem

9 One day Gideon's son Abimelech went to Shechem to visit his uncles—his mother's brothers. He said to them and to the rest of his mother's family, "Ask the leading citizens of Shechem whether they want to be ruled by all seventy of Gideon's sons or by one man. And remember that I am your own flesh and blood!"

³So Abimelech's uncles gave his message to all the citizens of Shechem on his behalf. And after listening to this proposal, the people of Shechem decided in favor of Abimelech because he was their relative. ⁴They gave him seventy silver coins from the temple of Baal-berith, which he used to hire some reckless troublemakers who agreed to follow him. ⁵He went to his father's home at Ophrah, and there, on one stone, they killed all seventy of his half brothers, the sons of Gideon. But the youngest brother, Jotham, escaped and hid.

⁶Then all the leading citizens of Shechem and Beth-millo called a meeting under the oak beside the pillar at Shechem and made Abimelech their king.

Jotham's Parable

⁷When Jotham heard about this, he climbed to the top of Mount Gerizim and shouted,

"Listen to me, citizens of Shechem!

Listen to me if you want God to listen to you!

⁸ Once upon a time the trees decided to choose a king.

First they said to the olive tree, 'Be our king!'

⁹ But the olive tree refused, saying, 'Should I quit producing the olive oil that blesses both God and people, just to wave back and forth over the trees?'

¹⁰ "Then they said to the fig tree, 'You be our king!'

¹¹ But the fig tree also refused, saying, 'Should I quit producing my sweet fruit just to wave back and forth over the trees?'

¹² "Then they said to the grapevine, 'You be our king!'

¹³ But the grapevine also refused, saying, 'Should I quit producing the wine that cheers both God and people, just to wave back and forth over the trees?'

¹⁴ "Then all the trees finally turned to the thornbush and said, 'Come, you be our king!'

¹⁵ And the thornbush replied to the trees, 'If you truly want to make me your king, come and take shelter in my shade. If not, let fire come out from me and devour the cedars of Lebanon.' "

¹⁶ Jotham continued, "Now make sure you have acted honorably and in good faith by 9:1-57 The reign of Abimelech was the turning point between the comparative rest of the early period of judges (3:7-8:35) and the decline of the later years (10:1-16:31).

9:1-3 Abimelech, son of a concubine (8:31; see note on 19:1), now argued that he could fulfill Israel's desire for the kind of royal dynasty rejected by his father. • The lack of any account of a conquest of Shechem, despite Israel's covenant activities in the city (Josh 24), suggests that Shechem's inhabitants were assimilated into Israel. Abimelech's uncles and his mother might thus have been of non-Israelite heritage (see also note on 9:28).

9:1 Gideon's: Hebrew Jerub-baal's (see 6:32); also in 9:2, 24.

9:3-5 Abimelech's appeal raised funding from the local temple of Baal-berith, the worship center for a mixed Canaanite-Israelite religious cult.

9:4 True leaders do not buy loyalty and they appeal to the noble in society, not to reckless troublemakers like Abimelech's mercenary followers.

9:5 The murder of the seventy . . . sons of Gideon . . . on one stone was probably some kind of ritual slaying. • Gideon: Hebrew Jerub-baal (see 6:32); also in 9:16, 19, 28, 57. • youngest brother . . . escaped: Cp. 2 Kgs 11:1-3.

9:6 Beth-millo ("house of filling") was probably an elevated terrace on which an inner keep or tower was built (cp. 2 Sam 5:9; 1 Kgs 9:15, 24). The irony is thick: Abimelech—empty of divine appointment, priestly anointing, and popular acclaim—met at the "house of filling." His kingship was a sham. • under the oak beside the pillar: The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

9:7-21 Jotham told a fable (a story in which plants and animals take on human attributes to make a moral point) to show what was happening (9:7-15). He then cursed Abimelech and the leading citizens of Shechem (9:16-21). If they had acted in bad faith, it would become evident (see 9:56-57).

9:7 Mount Gerizim was the mountain of blessing opposite Mount Ebal, the mountain of cursing (Deut 11:29). Gerizim, situated immediately south of Shechem, was a natural stage for Jotham's speech and also allowed him to escape when he was finished (see map, p. 389).

9:8-13 Olives, figs, and grapes were fundamental to the agriculture of Canaan, yielding important produce and adding to the beauty of the landscape. • To wave back and forth over the trees implied being visible and active while accomplishing nothing.

9:14-15 The trees, preferring an evil king to none at all (cp. 1 Sam 8:18-19), called on the thornbush, who, though neither useful nor pleasing to the eye, accepted the job. The person who had agreed to be king did not have more profitable work to do. • Shade from the burning Middle Eastern sun was precisely what the thornbush could not produce. Accepting such an offer was both futile and foolish.

9:16-18 The people of Shechem had chosen to follow an unworthy man; they had also acted in bad faith by conspiring with Abimelech against Gideon's family.

making Abimelech your king, and that you have done right by Gideon and all of his descendants. Have you treated him with the honor he deserves for all he accomplished? ¹⁷For he fought for you and risked his life when he rescued you from the Midianites. ¹⁸But today you have revolted against my father and his descendants, killing his seventy sons on one stone. And you have chosen his slave woman's son, Abimelech, to be your king just because he is your relative.

¹⁹"If you have acted honorably and in good faith toward Gideon and his descendants today, then may you find joy in Abimelech, and may he find joy in you. ²⁰But if you have not acted in good faith, then may fire come out from Abimelech and devour the leading citizens of Shechem and Beth-millo; and may fire come out from the citizens of Shechem and Beth-millo and devour Abimelech!"

²¹Then Jotham escaped and lived in Beer because he was afraid of his brother Abimelech.

Shechem Rebels against Abimelech

²²After Abimelech had ruled over Israel for three years, ²³God sent a spirit that stirred up trouble between Abimelech and the leading citizens of Shechem, and they revolted. ²⁴God was punishing Abimelech for murdering Gideon's seventy sons, and the citizens of Shechem for supporting him in this treachery of murdering his brothers. ²⁵The citizens of Shechem set an ambush for Abimelech on the hilltops and robbed everyone who passed that way. But someone warned Abimelech about their plot.

²⁶One day Gaal son of Ebed moved to Shechem with his brothers and gained the confidence of the leading citizens of Shechem. ²⁷During the annual harvest festival at Shechem, held in the temple of the local god, the wine flowed freely, and everyone began cursing Abimelech. ²⁸"Who is Abimelech?" Gaal shouted. "He's not a true son of Shechem, so why should we be his servants? He's merely the son of Gideon, and this Zebul is merely his deputy. Serve the true sons of Hamor, the founder of Shechem. Why should we serve Abimelech?" ²⁹If I were in charge here, I would get rid of Abimelech. I would say to him, 'Get some soldiers, and come out and fight!'"

³⁰But when Zebul, the leader of the city, heard what Gaal was saying, he was furious. ³¹He sent messengers to Abimelech in Arumah, telling him, "Gaal son of Ebed and his brothers have come to live in Shechem, and now they are inciting the city to rebel against you. ³²Come by night with an army and hide out in the fields. ³³In the morning, as soon as it is daylight, attack the city. When Gaal and those who are with him come out against you, you can do with them as you wish."

³⁷But again Gaal said, "No, people are coming down from the hills. And another group is coming down the road past the Diviners' Oak."

9:19-20 The Shechemites were invited to decide whether their actions merited blessing or cursing. The implication was that they had acted in bad faith, so they and Abimelech would destroy each other. The Lord is a devouring fire (Heb 12:29), and those who act unfaithfully prove his justice.

9:22-57 Theological statements in 9:23-24 and 9:56-57 frame the account of the civil strife that led to the destruction of Abimelech and Shechem, which was divine fulfillment of the curse set out by Jotham (9:19-20).

9:22-25 As prophesied in the fable (9:8-15), Abimelech was unable to live up to the Shechemites' expectations, so they conspired against him.

9:22-23 It took three years to bring about what God had decreed. The spirit that stirred up trouble found willing hearts. Those condemned for their folly participated fully in their own demise; they brought it on themselves.

9:25 An informer foiled the plot against Abimelech, but social conditions were deteriorating as God's curse played out.

9:26-41 Gaal son of Ebed ("vile son of a slave") led an unsuccessful rebellion against Abimelech in which many of Shechem's citizens were killed. This partially fulfilled Jotham's curse (9:20).

9:27-29 Disillusionment with Abimelech, social unrest, and lots of wine and loose talk made it easy for Gaal to gain initial acceptance.

9:28 Who is Abimelech? . . . He's not a true son of Shechem (literally Who is Abimelech? And who is Shechem?): Gaal focused on Abimelech's pedigree through his father, Gideon (a non-Shechemite) rather than through his mother (8:31; 9:2). • Serve the true sons of Hamor: Gaal's pedigree apparently went back to Hamor, the founder of Shechem (Gen 33:18–34:31).

9:29 I would say: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads And he said.

9:30-41 The second plot, like the first (9:22-25), was foiled by an informer, in this case probably an official appointed by the absent Abimelech. Zebul proposed a bold morning ambush, in which he would presumably help to draw Gaal and his followers out into the open country where they could be engaged. The plan worked. Perhaps because of his boasting and possibly in response to Zebul's mocking challenge, Gaal and his men ventured out only to be driven from town by the faithful Zebul, the agent for cleansing the city.

9:31 in Arumah: Or in secret; Hebrew reads in Tormah; cp. 9:41.

9:37 the hills: Or the center of the land. • the Diviners' Oak: Hebrew Elon-meonenim.

³⁸Then Zebul turned on him and asked, "Now where is that big mouth of yours? Wasn't it you that said, 'Who is Abimelech, and why should we be his servants?' The men you mocked are right outside the city! Go out and fight them!"

⁴²The next day the people of Shechem went out into the fields to battle. When Abimelech heard about it, ⁴³he divided his men into three groups and set an ambush in the fields. When Abimelech saw the people coming out of the city, he and his men jumped up from their hiding places and attacked them. ⁴⁴Abimelech and his group stormed the city gate to keep the men of Shechem from getting back in, while Abimelech's other two groups cut them down in the fields. ⁴⁵The battle went on all day before Abimelech finally captured the city. He killed the people, leveled the city, and scattered salt all over the ground.

⁴⁶When the leading citizens who lived in the tower of Shechem heard what had happened, they ran and hid in the temple of Baal-berith. ⁴⁷Someone reported to Abimelech that the citizens had gathered in the temple, ⁴⁸so he led his forces to Mount Zalmon. He took an ax and chopped some branches from a tree, then put them on his shoulder. "Quick, do as I have done!" he told his men. ⁴⁹So each of them cut down some branches, following Abimelech's example. They piled the branches against the walls of the temple and set them on fire. So all the people who had lived in the tower of Shechem died—about 1,000 men and women.

⁵⁰Then Abimelech attacked the town of Thebez and captured it. ⁵¹But there was a strong tower inside the town, and all the men and women—the entire population—fled to it. They barricaded themselves in and climbed up to the roof of the tower. ⁵²Abimelech followed them to attack the tower. But as he prepared to set fire to the entrance, ⁵³a woman on the roof dropped a millstone that landed on Abimelech's head and crushed his skull.

⁵⁴He quickly said to his young armor bearer, "Draw your sword and kill me! Don't let it be said that a woman killed Abimelech!" So the young man ran him through with his sword, and he died. ⁵⁵When Abimelech's men saw that he was dead, they disbanded and returned to their homes.

⁵⁶In this way, God punished Abimelech for the evil he had done against his father by murdering his seventy brothers. ⁵⁷God also punished the men of Shechem for all their evil. So the curse of Jotham son of Gideon was fulfilled.

The Period of Decline (10:1–16:31) Tola Becomes Israel's Judge

10 After Abimelech died, Tola son of Puah, son of Dodo, was the next person to rescue Israel. He was from the tribe

9:42 The NLT supplies the words to battle, with the understanding that the Shechemites went out into the fields to keep Abimelech from reasserting power over them. Others think that the Shechemites returned to the fields to continue the harvest (9:27), believing that Abimelech would be satisfied now that Gaal had been driven out.

9:43–45 Abimelech forfeited any claim he might have had to being an inspired leader; he turned his men on the people of Shechem, slaughtered them all, and destroyed the city.

9:45 Scattering salt prevented anything from growing and ensured destruction.

9:46–49 The leading citizens (literally lords) of Shechem who had first plotted against Abimelech now crowded into the temple of Baal-berith (Hebrew El-berith, another name for Baal-berith; cp. 9:4) only to have it burn around them. This destruction has been confirmed by archaeologists at the site.

9:48 Mount Zalmon is probably another name for Mount Ebal, the mountain opposite Gerizim and next to Shechem (see note on 9:7).

9:50 Thebez was a stronghold a few miles northeast of Shechem. Abimelech was probably reclaiming Thebez, but he might have been attempting an initial takeover.

9:53 Women frequently ground grain on a stationary lower millstone, on which the lighter upper millstone was turned by hand. This incident is referenced in the story of David's murder of Uriah (2 Sam 11:21).

9:54–55 To die at the hands of a woman or a child was shameful (see note on 8:20–21). Abimelech was not given a peace formula or burial notice, because his reign was not legitimate.

9:56–57 The theological summary returns to the theme of Jotham's fable (9:24). Abimelech had no divine charisma, and his death as a result of divine vengeance meant that justice was finally served for Gideon's family. Israel's experiment with uninspired kingship was a stark example of leadership that was not from God.

10:1–5 Each of the five minor judges (see also 12:8–15) judged Israel for a specific number of years; in this period of decline after Gideon, the formula "there was peace in the land" (3:11, 30; 5:31; 8:28) never recurs. The details given for these enigmatic figures include their places of origin and burial, and perhaps a brief genealogy or something notable about their families. Four of the five names appear in other genealogical records: Tola and Puah as clans of Issachar (Gen 46:13; Num 26:23), Elon as a descendant of Zebulun (Gen 46:14; Num 26:26), and Jair at various points (see Num 32:41; Deut 3:14; Josh 13:30; 1 Kgs 4:13). The lack of specific military exploits and the common reference to "judging" suggests that they had some kind of administrative or judicial function.

of Issachar but lived in the town of Shamir in the hill country of Ephraim. ²He judged Israel for twenty-three years. When he died, he was buried in Shamir.

Jair Becomes Israel's Judge

³After Tola died, Jair from Gilead judged Israel for twenty-two years. ⁴His thirty sons rode around on thirty donkeys, and they owned thirty towns in the land of Gilead, which are still called the Towns of Jair. ⁵When Jair died, he was buried in Kamon.

The Ammonites Oppress Israel

⁶Again the Israelites did evil in the LORD's sight. They served the images of Baal and Ashtoreth, and the gods of Aram, Sidon, Moab, Ammon, and Philistia. They abandoned the LORD and no longer served him at all. ⁷So the LORD burned with anger against Israel, and he turned them over to the Philistines and the Ammonites, ⁸who began to oppress them that year. For eighteen years they oppressed all the Israelites east of the Jordan River in the land of the Amorites (that is, in Gilead). ⁹The Ammonites also crossed to the west side of the Jordan and attacked Judah, Benjamin, and Ephraim.

The Israelites were in great distress. ¹⁰Finally, they cried out to the LORD for help, saying, "We have sinned against you because we have abandoned you as our God and have served the images of Baal."

¹¹The LORD replied, "Did I not rescue you from the Egyptians, the Amorites, the Ammonites, the Philistines, ¹²the Sidonians, the Amalekites, and the Maonites? When they oppressed you, you cried out to me for help, and I rescued you. ¹³Yet you have abandoned me and served other gods. So I will not rescue you anymore. ¹⁴Go and cry out to the gods you have chosen! Let them rescue you in your hour of distress!"

¹⁵But the Israelites pleaded with the LORD and said, "We have sinned. Punish us as you see fit, only rescue us today from our enemies." ¹⁶Then the Israelites put aside their foreign gods and served the LORD. And he was grieved by their misery.

¹⁷At that time the armies of Ammon had gathered for war and were camped in Gilead, and the people of Israel assembled and camped at Mizpah. ¹⁸The leaders of Gilead said to each other, "Whoever attacks the Ammonites first will become ruler over all the people of Gilead."

Jephthah Becomes Israel's Judge

11 Now Jephthah of Gilead was a great warrior. He was the son of Gilead, but his mother was a prostitute. ²Gilead's wife also had several sons, and when these half brothers grew up, they chased Jephthah off the land. "You will not get any of our father's inheritance," they said, "for you are the son of a prostitute." ³So Jephthah fled from his brothers and lived in the land of Tob. Soon he had a band of worthless rebels following him.

⁴At about this time, the Ammonites began their war against Israel. ⁵When the Ammonites attacked, the elders of Gilead sent for Jephthah in the land of Tob. ⁶The

10:1 Tola was the first of five minor judges; little is known about him. Of the five, only Tola was said to rescue Israel. He came after Abimelech died, when Israel was in need of rescue, though not from a foreign enemy.

10:3-4 Jair was apparently a descendant of an earlier Jair of the tribe of Manasseh (see Num 32:41; Deut 3:14; cp. 1 Kgs 4:13). The Towns of Jair (Hebrew Havvoth-jair) that Jair and his sons controlled had been conquered by the earlier Jair.

10:6-16 The Lord responded to his people's total apostasy by allowing crushing oppression (10:8). As usual, Israel cried out to the Lord for help (10:10) only after experiencing great distress (10:9). Normally, Israel's cry led to divine intervention, but God's decision to leave them to their chosen gods marks a shift in the cycle described in 2:10-19. Only when the Israelites put aside their foreign gods and served the LORD did he again act to redeem them (10:17-11:33).

10:6 Again the Israelites did evil. . . . They abandoned the LORD: This period of apostasy was more complete than any described earlier—it included the worship of Baal and Ashtoreth along with other local gods.

10:7-8 The Philistines: See notes on 3:3; 13:1. • The Ammonites lived east of the Jordan (see note on 3:12-13), and they began by oppressing the Israelite tribes of Transjordan (see map, p. 397); then they attacked the tribes west of the Jordan as well.

10:17-18 The narrative returns to the Ammonite oppression, which sets the stage for Jephthah's story.

10:18 The leaders of Gilead, in their desperation for leadership, did not consult the Lord (cp. 1:1; 20:18) but said that whoever stepped up to lead would become ruler over Gilead.

11:1-3 In Jephthah, inspired leadership took a new turn. He had humble origins, attracted followers, was eloquent in debate, and had Spirit-filled military prowess, but all of these were overshadowed by the fatal flaws of his untimely vow (11:30-31, 34-35) and his petulant civil war with Ephraim (12:1-6). Even his victory was short-lived (six years, 12:7). The period of decline was underway, which increased the demand for kingship.

11:1-2 great warrior: Jephthah had military prowess and possibly social prominence (see note on 6:12, where great warrior is translated "mighty hero"). Gilead was a descendant of Manasseh (Num 26:29-33; 32:39-40; 1 Chr 7:14-17). Jephthah's social standing raised his visibility despite the ignominy of his prostitute mother. His half brothers had no obligation to accept Jephthah's status or leadership.

11:3 Jephthah's worthless rebels are reminiscent of Abimelech's "reckless troublemakers" (see 9:4), but Jephthah had no need to buy their loyalty.

11:4 Ammonites . . . war: See 10:17.

11:5-6 These elders were apparently distinct from Jephthah's brothers, elders said, "Come and be our commander! Help us fight the Ammonites!"

⁷But Jephthah said to them, "Aren't you the ones who hated me and drove me from my father's house? Why do you come to me now when you're in trouble?"

⁸"Because we need you," the elders replied. "If you lead us in battle against the Ammonites, we will make you ruler over all the people of Gilead."

⁹Jephthah said to the elders, "Let me get this straight. If I come with you and if the LORD gives me victory over the Ammonites, will you really make me ruler over all the people?"

¹⁰"The LORD is our witness," the elders replied. "We promise to do whatever you say."

¹¹So Jephthah went with the elders of Gilead, and the people made him their ruler and commander of the army. At Mizpah, in the presence of the LORD, Jephthah repeated what he had said to the elders.

¹²Then Jephthah sent messengers to the king of Ammon, asking, "Why have you come out to fight against my land?"

¹³The king of Ammon answered Jephthah's messengers, "When the Israelites came out of Egypt, they stole my land from the Arnon River to the Jabbok River and all the way to the Jordan. Now then, give back the land peaceably."

¹⁴Jephthah sent this message back to the Ammonite king:

¹⁵"This is what Jephthah says: Israel did not steal any land from Moab or Ammon.

¹⁶When the people of Israel arrived at Kadesh on their journey from Egypt after crossing the Red Sea, ¹⁷they sent messengers to the king of Edom asking for permission to pass through his land. But their request was denied. Then they asked the king of Moab for similar permission, but he wouldn't let them pass through either. So the people of Israel stayed in Kadesh.

God's Grief over Apostasy (10:6-16)

Gen 6:5-7
Isa 5:1-7; 53:3-12;
63:10
Hos 11:8-9
Eph 4:30

The entire era of the judges shows what happens in God's heart when his people repeatedly spurn him. In the psalms, God asked, "How long will you people ruin my reputation? How long will you make groundless accusations? How long will you continue your lies?" (Ps 4:2). There will be a time, as in the time of Noah (Gen 6:5-7), when God's patience runs out. For the Israelites who inhabited the land of the judges, that time had come. God's verdict was, "Go and cry out to the gods you have chosen! Let them rescue you" (10:14). Israel repeated its plea for mercy (10:10, 15-16), but this time they rid themselves of the foreign gods who were powerless to help them and submitted to the Lord's justice.

The God of the universe is grieved by his people's misery (10:16; Hos 11:8-9). Even when repeatedly spurned, God's love is more powerful than his wrath, and his compassion exceeds his indignation. God's love does not negate his justice, however, "for he himself is fair and just, and he declares sinners to be right in his sight when they believe in Jesus" (Rom 3:26). He has taken upon himself the grievous weight of our sin (see Isa 53:3-12; 2 Cor 5:19-21).

although Jephthah's initial response (11:7) appears to equate the two groups. They had promised (10:18) that whoever took the military initiative and attacked the Ammonites would become the ruler. Here, in typical Middle Eastern bargaining style, they only offered the status of commander, trying to diminish their initial promise.

11:7-8 When Jephthah challenged the offer, the elders returned to the stronger word, ruler.

11:9-10 Jephthah made sure that the elders really were offering him the position of ruler, not just "commander."

11:11 At the end of the negotiations, Jephthah was sworn in as both ruler and commander. • This Mizpah ("watchtower") was a shrine east of the Jordan in Gilead, which was Jephthah's home (10:17; 11:29, 34); it should not be confused with Mizpah in Benjamin, the place near Bethel where the tribes later assembled and swore oaths for the final battle of Judges (20:1; 21:1). • The ceremony at Mizpah in the presence of the LORD appears to have been the making of a suzerain-vassal covenant, in which a ruler (the suzerain) promises to protect and defend a vassal people in exchange for authority over them (see note on Exod 20:1-23:33; see Deuteronomy Introduction, "Literary Form," p. 314).

11:12-28 Jephthah initially tried to solve the problem by diplomatic rather than military means (cp. Deut 20:10-11).

• Unlike the nomadic, marauding Midianites of Gideon's day, the Ammonites were a settled tribe whose territory lay to the east of Israel's holdings in Transjordan (east of the Jordan); Rabbah was the Ammonite capital. The Ammonites, like the Moabites (both descendants of Lot) and the Edomites (Esau's descendants), were to be left alone, as their territories were assigned to them by the Lord (Deut 2:16-23). • Contrary to the Ammonite king's contention, the Amorites, not Ammon or Moab, lived between the Arnon and Jabbok rivers at the time of the conquest. In response to Sihon's refusal to let Israel pass, the Lord had given the land of the Amorite kings Sihon and Og to Israel. The Ammonite king had no legitimate quarrel with Israel.

11:16 Red Sea: Literally sea of reeds.

11:17 Kadesh had been Israel's base for spying out the land (Num 32:8; Deut 1:19; 2:14). The name comes from the Hebrew root qadesh ("holy") and presumably is named for a shrine.

²³So you see, it was the LORD, the God of Israel, who took away the land from the Amorites and gave it to Israel. Why, then, should we give it back to you? ²⁴You keep whatever your god Chemosh gives you, and we will keep whatever the LORD our God gives us. ²⁵Are you any better than Balak son of Zippor, king of Moab? Did he try to make a case against Israel for disputed land? Did he go to war against them?

²⁶Israel has been living here for 300 years, inhabiting Heshbon and its surrounding settlements, all the way to Aroer and its settlements, and in all the towns along the Arnon River. Why have you made no effort to recover it before now? ²⁷Therefore, I have not sinned against you. Rather, you have wronged me by attacking me. Let the LORD, who is judge, decide today which of us is right—Israel or Ammon."

²⁸But the king of Ammon paid no attention to Jephthah's message.

Jephthah's Vow

²⁹At that time the Spirit of the LORD came upon Jephthah, and he went throughout the land of Gilead and Manasseh, including Mizpah in Gilead, and from there he led an army against the Ammonites. ³⁰And Jephthah made a vow to the LORD. He said, "If you give me victory over the Ammonites, ³¹I will give to the LORD whatever comes out of my house to meet me when I return in triumph. I will sacrifice it as a burnt offering."

³²So Jephthah led his army against the Ammonites, and the LORD gave him victory. ³³He crushed the Ammonites, devastating about twenty towns from Aroer to an area near Minnith and as far away as Abel-keramim. In this way Israel defeated the Ammonites.

³⁴When Jephthah returned home to Mizpah, his daughter came out to meet him, playing on a tambourine and dancing for joy. She was his one and only child; he had no other sons or daughters. ³⁵When he saw her, he tore his clothes in anguish. "Oh, my daughter!" he cried out. "You have completely destroyed me! You've brought disaster on me! For I have made a vow to the LORD, and I cannot take it back."

³⁶And she said, "Father, if you have made a vow to the LORD, you must do to me what 11:24 Chemosh was the god of the related tribe of Moabites. If the land occupied by Israel east of the Jordan originally belonged to Moab (see note on 11:25), the Ammonite king would still have regarded Chemosh as the god of that land. Whether Jephthah regarded Chemosh as a god or was accommodating himself to the king's belief system is not clear.

11:25 Moab and Ammon were related (descendants of Lot). Moab, as opposed to Ammon, may have had a legitimate claim to the land that Israel occupied north of the Arnon, which was taken from them earlier by Sihon, king of the Amorites (Num 21:24). The Israelites had conquered Sihon and annexed the disputed territory, but Moab had not attempted to claim it. Neither should Ammon, because the land in question had never belonged to them.

11:26 Whether the conquest and settlement took place in the 1400s BC or the 1200s BC (see Chronology: The Time of the Judges, p. 414), Jephthah's 300 years is probably a round figure.

11:27 Jephthah appealed to the LORD, the great judge, to decide between Israel and Ammon. The Lord's response (11:29-33) was his answer.

11:29-31 The Spirit of the LORD, a consistent sign of inspired authority, came upon Jephthah, and he journeyed through the tribal lands of Gilead and Manasseh, including his hometown of Mizpah in Gilead, gathering troops. During this time leading up to battle, he made his infamous vow.

11:31 Nowhere does the Lord demand such bargaining for his favor. Vows were made under a variety of circumstances and usually involved some gift (offering) dedicated to the Lord in response to his aid (cp. Gen 28:20-22). The more common preparation for battle was priestly sacrifice (1 Sam 13:8-12). Jephthah's vow created the possibility that some person in his household would become a human sacrifice, an act strictly forbidden in Israelite law (Deut 18:10).

11:32 No connection is drawn between the victory, which was the Lord's gift, and Jephthah's vow.

11:35 Having made an impulsive vow, Jephthah now compounded his folly by blaming the result on his daughter and by failing to respond in light of Scripture. Vows taken were usually inviolable (Num 30:2), though the OT recognizes a few circumstances under which an unwise vow could be set aside (Num 30:6-8). Since human sacrifice was forbidden in the law, a substitute could have been made (see Lev 27:1-8). Jephthah was apparently unaware of these principles in God's law, perhaps because of his upbringing in an area far from Israel's major centers.

you have vowed, for the LORD has given you a great victory over your enemies, the Ammonites. ³⁷But first let me do this one thing: Let me go up and roam in the hills and weep with my friends for two months, because I will die a virgin."

³⁸"You may go," Jephthah said. And he sent her away for two months. She and her friends went into the hills and wept because she would never have children. ³⁹When she returned home, her father kept the vow he had made, and she died a virgin.

So it has become a custom in Israel ⁴⁰for young Israelite women to go away for four days each year to lament the fate of Jephthah's daughter.

Ephraim Fights with Jephthah

12 Then the people of Ephraim mobilized an army and crossed over the Jordan River to Zaphon. They sent this message to Jephthah: "Why didn't you call for us to help you fight against the Ammonites? We are going to burn down your house with you in it!"

²Jephthah replied, "I summoned you at the beginning of the dispute, but you refused to come! You failed to help us in our struggle against Ammon. ³So when I realized you weren't coming, I risked my life and went to battle without you, and the LORD gave me victory over the Ammonites. So why have you now come to fight me?"

⁴The people of Ephraim responded, "You men of Gilead are nothing more than fugitives from Ephraim and Manasseh." So Jephthah gathered all the men of Gilead and attacked the men of Ephraim and defeated them.

⁵Jephthah captured the shallow crossings of the Jordan River, and whenever a fugitive from Ephraim tried to go back across, the men of Gilead would challenge him. "Are you a member of the tribe of Ephraim?" they would ask. If the man said, "No, I'm not," ⁶they would tell him to say "Shibboleth." If he was from Ephraim, he would say "Sibboleth," because people from Ephraim cannot pronounce the word correctly. Then they would take him and kill him at the shallow crossings of the Jordan. In all, 42,000 Ephraimites were killed at that time.

⁷Jephthah judged Israel for six years. When he died, he was buried in one of the towns of Gilead.

Ibzan Becomes Israel's Judge

⁸After Jephthah died, Ibzan from Bethlehem judged Israel. ⁹He had thirty sons and thirty daughters. He sent his daughters to marry men outside his clan, and he brought

1 Jephthah Defeats the Ammonites and Ephraimites (11:1–12:7). When the Ammonites attacked GILEAD, the elders of Gilead convinced Jephthah to come from the LAND OF TOB (location uncertain), where he had been living. At MIZPAH, the people of Gilead made him their ruler (11:1–11). Then Jephthah attacked and defeated the Ammonites from AROER to ABEL KERAMIM (11:12–33). Afterward, Ephraim mobilized to ZAPHON to attack Gilead, so Jephthah met and defeated them there (12:1–7).

Gilead. Perhaps they resented or looked down on the Israelites who lived east of the Jordan River.

12:5 The Jordan River could only be forded at shallow crossings where tributaries had deposited silt, as was probably the case where the Jabbok flowed into the Jordan.

12:6 The term Shibboleth has come to mean any password used to identify imposters. Such linguistic litmus tests have been used by armies throughout history. • 42,000 Ephraimites: This number could possibly be translated as "42 troops" (see note on Exod 12:37).

12:7 six years: Like all the judges after Gideon, Jephthah's years as judge were specific and short (see note on 8:28). Jephthah was buried honorably, so despite his limitations he was an inspired and successful warrior (11:29; contrast Abimelech, note on 9:54–55).

12:8–15 The account continues with these minor judges (see note on 10:1–5).

12:8 If this was the northern Bethlehem located in Zebulun (see map, p. 397), it can be understood as part of the structure of Judges, in which each of the tribes supply one of the twelve judges (see Judges Introduction, "Summary," p. 417).

11:39 Jephthah kept the vow by sacrificing his daughter—there is no evidence that he merely kept her permanently celibate (cp. 11:37). Jephthah's folly demonstrates just how far Israel's society had descended into lawlessness and apostasy.

12:1–6 Ephraim once again felt neglected (cp. 8:1–3) and sought revenge. In contrast to Gideon's policy, Jephthah's response blamed Ephraim and resulted in civil war.

12:1 Zaphon was just east of the Jordan River, across from the tribal area of Ephraim (see map above).

12:2 There is no record of Jephthah's earlier appeal.

12:4 It is unclear why the people of Ephraim were taunting the men of in thirty young women from outside his clan to marry his sons. Ibzan judged Israel for seven years. ¹⁰When he died, he was buried at Bethlehem.

Elon Becomes Israel's Judge

¹¹After Ibzan died, Elon from the tribe of Zebulun judged Israel for ten years.

¹²When he died, he was buried at Aijalon in Zebulun.

Abdon Becomes Israel's Judge

¹³After Elon died, Abdon son of Hillel, from Pirathon, judged Israel. ¹⁴He had forty sons and thirty grandsons, who rode on seventy donkeys. He judged Israel for eight years.

¹⁵When he died, he was buried at Pirathon in Ephraim, in the hill country of the Amalekites.

The Birth of Samson

13 Again the Israelites did evil in the LORD's sight, so the LORD handed them over to the Philistines, who oppressed them for forty years.

²In those days a man named Manoah from the tribe of Dan lived in the town of Zorah. His wife was unable to become pregnant, and they had no children. ³The angel of the LORD appeared to Manoah's wife and said, "Even though you have been unable to have children, you will soon become pregnant and give birth to a son. ⁴So be careful; you must not drink wine or any other alcoholic drink nor eat any forbidden food. ⁵You will become pregnant and give birth to a son, and his hair must never be cut. For he will be dedicated to God as a Nazirite from birth. He will begin to rescue Israel from the Philistines."

⁶The woman ran and told her husband, "A man of God appeared to me! He looked like one of God's angels, terrifying to see. I didn't ask where he was from, and he didn't tell me his name. ⁷But he told me, 'You will become pregnant and give birth to a son. You must not drink wine or any other alcoholic drink nor eat any forbidden food. For your son will be dedicated to God as a Nazirite from the moment of his birth until the day of his death.'"

⁸Then Manoah prayed to the LORD, saying, "Lord, please let the man of God come back to us again and give us more instructions about this son who is to be born."

⁹God answered Manoah's prayer, and the angel of God appeared once again to his wife as she was sitting in the field. But her husband, Manoah, was not with her. ¹⁰So she quickly ran and told her husband, "The man who appeared to me the other day is here again!"

¹¹Manoah ran back with his wife and asked, "Are you the man who spoke to my wife the other day?"

"Yes," he replied, "I am."

¹²So Manoah asked him, "When your words come true, what kind of rules should govern the boy's life and work?"

¹³The angel of the LORD replied, "Be sure your wife follows the instructions I gave her. ¹⁴She must not eat grapes or raisins, drink wine or any other alcoholic drink, or eat any forbidden food."

¹⁵Then Manoah said to the angel of the LORD, "Please stay here until we can prepare a young goat for you to eat."

¹⁶"I will stay," the angel of the LORD replied, "but I will not eat anything. However, you may prepare a burnt offering as a sacrifice to the LORD." (Manoah didn't realize it was the angel of the LORD.)

12:15 The Amalekites had earlier occupied parts of Ephraim (5:14).

13:1–16:31 Samson, who receives more attention in the book of Judges than any other judge, is even more of an enigma than Jephthah. Samson reflects a high level of inspiration as a leader. He also personifies the inexorable march toward chaos that highlights the need for a more centralized society under a godly ruler.

13:1 Though mentioned earlier, the Philistines (3:3; 10:7) were a relatively new presence in the territory of Canaan, which would later be named for them (Palestine). This warlike race of sea people were of Greek rather than Canaanite ancestry and settled into the southwestern coastal areas about 1200 BC. From then on, Philistia was Israel's natural enemy and increasingly threatened its national existence. Israel's institutions, such as kingship, developed partly in response to the Philistine challenge.

13:2 Prior to their migration to the extreme north (ch 18), the tribe of Dan attempted to settle in Israel's southwest (Josh 19:40-48). This put them in direct conflict with the incoming Philistines. • Zorah was west of Judah, in the area newly occupied by the Philistines. Both Dan and neighboring Judah submitted to Philistine dominance (14:4; 15:11).

13:3-5 Manoah's wife was promised a son who was to be set aside from his birth as a Nazirite (see Num 6:1-21; cp. 1 Sam 1:11). The requirement that Samson's hair must never be cut would be central to his story.

13:4 any forbidden food: Literally any unclean thing; also in 13:7, 14. See Lev 11.

13:6-7 Several times in Scripture, an angel appeared to women who were unable to become pregnant (13:2) to announce divine intervention through the birth of a child (see Luke 1:5-25; cp. Gen 18; 1 Sam 1).

13:12-13 In light of 13:4-5, Manoah's question may seem redundant, but from 13:8 it is apparent that Manoah felt a keen personal responsibility for raising such a child. The angel responded graciously, but again stressed the wife's responsibility, which explains why it was she, not Manoah, who was first approached.

13:15-16 Manoah would only send a visitor on his way after providing a meal, in accord with eastern hospitality. The ¹⁷Then Manoah asked the angel of the LORD, "What is your name? For when all this comes true, we want to honor you."

¹⁸"Why do you ask my name?" the angel of the LORD replied. "It is too wonderful for you to understand."

²¹The angel did not appear again to Manoah and his wife. Manoah finally realized it was the angel of the LORD, ²²and he said to his wife, "We will certainly die, for we have seen God!"

²³But his wife said, "If the LORD were going to kill us, he wouldn't have accepted our burnt offering and grain offering. He wouldn't have appeared to us and told us this wonderful thing and done these miracles."

²⁴When her son was born, she named him Samson. And the LORD blessed him as he grew up. ²⁵And the Spirit of the LORD began to stir him while he lived in Mahaneh-dan, which is located between the towns of Zorah and Eshtaol.

Samson's Riddle

14 One day when Samson was in Timnah, one of the Philistine women caught his eye. ²When he returned home,

Samson (13:1–16:31)

Samson, Israel's best-known judge, is a prime illustration of God's using a person for good in spite of that person's indifference and sin. Samson was a rescuer of Israel without even trying or caring. He did not care about his people, his family, or his God. All he cared about was himself. God, though, put him in situation after situation where he brought harm to the Philistines, whom God had allowed to oppress Israel because they had sinned against him.

The first example of how God used Samson occurred when he told his shocked parents that he wanted to marry a Philistine girl. Israelites were commanded not to intermarry with the people of the land (Deut 7:3; Josh 23:12-13; cp. 2 Cor 6:14-17), but Samson persisted over his parents' objections. As he was on his way to the wedding party, he scooped honey out of the dead lion he had earlier killed. He was born a Nazirite (Num 6:1-21), and Nazirites were absolutely forbidden from touching a dead body, but Samson didn't care. He then made up a riddle about the lion (14:14) and bet thirty young Philistine men that they could not solve his riddle. The men pestered his wife into telling them the answer. Samson became so angry that he killed thirty Philistine men and took their clothing to pay off the bet. God used the self-serving hero to "begin to rescue Israel from the Philistines" (13:5).

In the final, climactic story of Samson's life (16:4-31), Samson's lover, the infamous Delilah, nagged Samson until he revealed the secret of his strength and thus betrayed his Nazirite vow. She cut his hair, and the Philistines were finally able to overpower him. They blinded him, tied him up securely, and loaded him with menial work. While in captivity, Samson's hair began to grow again. One day, when the Philistines were celebrating and making fun of him, he asked to be led to the two central pillars of the pagan temple. He then prayed to God to give him the strength to kill the Philistines and take his own life. So he pulled the temple down on the heads of about 3,000 Philistines as well as himself. Even this act, however, was not done for his people or his God, but to "pay back the Philistines for the loss of [his] two eyes" (16:28). Even though it was all in God's plan, the story of Samson makes the reader long for a better savior.

angel insisted that any food be given as a sacrifice to the LORD. That and his reluctance to eat (cp. Gideon's visitor, 6:17-22) suggest that this was a theophany (an appearance of God). To that point, Manoah had failed to recognize his visitor's divinity.

13:17-18 The Lord's name is a divine secret (Gen 32:29; Exod 3:13-14). God knows our names, but in addressing him we are limited to terms of wonder and adoration, for the true essence of the infinite cannot be expressed or understood by the finite.

13:19-22 It is not possible for human beings to take in the full revelation of God's holy presence and still live (cp. 6:20-24; Exod 19:21; 33:20). The OT frequently reports divine visitations on earth in human form; these visitations foreshadow the full appearance of God on earth in the incarnation of Jesus.

13:25 Inspired leaders are filled with the divine Spirit. In spite of Samson's evident failures, the Spirit's presence was powerfully at work in him.

• Mahaneh-dan (literally camp of Dan) is mentioned again in 18:12; the phrase could describe a temporary settlement rather than a fixed location. • Zorah (13:2) and Eshtaol were in the valley of Sorek, about fifteen miles west of Jerusalem at the pass that leads down to Philistine territory.

14:1–15:20 Samson's choice to marry a Philistine woman was the Lord's he told his father and mother, "A young Philistine woman in Timnah caught my eye. I want to marry her. Get her for me."

³His father and mother objected. "Isn't there even one woman in our tribe or among all the Israelites you could marry?" they asked. "Why must you go to the pagan Philistines to find a wife?"

But Samson told his father, "Get her for me! She looks good to me." ⁴His father and mother didn't realize the LORD was at work in this, creating an opportunity to work against the Philistines, who ruled over Israel at that time.

⁵As Samson and his parents were going down to Timnah, a young lion suddenly attacked Samson near the vineyards of Timnah. ⁶At that moment the Spirit of the LORD came powerfully upon him, and he ripped the lion's jaws apart with his bare hands. He did it as easily as if it were a young goat. But he didn't tell his father or mother about it. ⁷When Samson arrived in Timnah, he talked with the woman and was very pleased with her.

⁸Later, when he returned to Timnah for the wedding, he turned off the path to look at the carcass of the lion. And he found that a swarm of bees had made some honey in the carcass. ⁹He scooped some of the honey into his hands and ate it along the way. He also gave some to his father and mother, and they ate it. But he didn't tell them he had taken the honey from the carcass of the lion.

¹⁰As his father was making final arrangements for the marriage, Samson threw a party at Timnah, as was the custom for elite young men. ¹¹When the bride's parents saw him, they selected thirty young men from the town to be his companions.

¹²Samson said to them, "Let me tell you a riddle. If you solve my riddle during these seven days of the celebration, I will give you thirty fine linen robes and thirty sets of festive clothing. ¹³But if you can't solve it, then you must give me thirty fine linen robes and thirty sets of festive clothing."

"All right," they agreed, "let's hear your riddle."

¹⁴So he said:

"Out of the one who eats came something to eat; out of the strong came something sweet."

Three days later they were still trying to figure it out. ¹⁵On the fourth day they said to Samson's wife, "Entice your husband to explain the riddle for us, or we will burn down your father's house with you in it. Did you invite us to this party just to make us poor?"

¹⁶So Samson's wife came to him in tears and said, "You don't love me; you hate me! You have given my people a riddle, but you haven't told me the answer."

"I haven't even given the answer to my father or mother," he replied. "Why should I tell you?" ¹⁷So she cried whenever she was with him and kept it up for the rest of the celebration. At last, on the seventh day he told her the answer because she was tormenting him with her nagging. Then she explained the riddle to the young men.

¹⁸So before sunset of the seventh day, the men of the town came to Samson with their answer:

"What is sweeter than honey?
What is stronger than a lion?"

Samson replied, "If you hadn't plowed with my heifer, you wouldn't have solved my riddle!"

¹⁹Then the Spirit of the LORD came powerfully upon him. He went down to the town means (14:4) of beginning to confront the Philistine challenge (see 13:5). One thing led to another, punctuated by three occasions when the Spirit came powerfully upon him (14:6, 19; 15:14). Throughout these events, Samson was a powerful but flawed hero.

14:1 Timnah was probably about four miles down the valley of Sorek from Mahaneh-dan, at the intersection of the Israelite and Philistine territories.

14:2 Samson's choice of a bride was informed only by his pleasure in her appearance. Intermarriage was a significant mark of covenant infidelity (Josh 23:12-13), but God is able to work through human sinfulness.

14:3 The epithet pagan (literally uncircumcised) was regularly applied to Philistines, who, unlike many nations in the Middle East, did not practice any form of circumcision.

14:5-6 Samson was first explicitly empowered by the Spirit (cp. 13:25) when he was attacked by a lion.

14:11 the bride's parents: Literally they. • The reason for thirty . . . companions is not clear (cp. 2 Sam 23:13). Companions, a word that normally means "friends," may lend a touch of irony here (14:12-20).

14:12 Riddles were common tests of skill or a form of entertainment that usually employed double meanings. Despite some evidence for bees building hives in the bodies of dead animals, there was no apparent way to crack the mystery apart from knowing what Samson knew.

14:14-19 Israel's hero, like Sisera, was defeated by a woman (4:21; see note at 8:20-21).

14:15 fourth: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads seventh.

14:18 It was common to answer a riddle with another riddle. In this case, the Philistines used a similar poetic couplet, not to reveal all they knew, but simply to win the contest.

14:19 Samson kept his side of the deal (cp. 1 Sam 18:20-27). He apparently returned home without consummating his marriage, which traditionally would have happened at the end of the seven days of feasting.

of Ashkelon, killed thirty men, took their belongings, and gave their clothing to the men who had solved his riddle. But Samson was furious about what had happened, and he went back home to live with his father and mother. ²⁰So his wife was given in marriage to the man who had been Samson's best man at the wedding.

Samson's Vengeance on the Philistines

15 Later on, during the wheat harvest, Samson took a young goat as a present to his wife. He said, "I'm going into my wife's room to sleep with her," but her father wouldn't let him in.

³Samson said, "This time I cannot be blamed for everything I am going to do to you Philistines." ⁴Then he went out and caught 300 foxes. He tied their tails together in pairs, and he fastened a torch to each pair of tails. ⁵Then he lit the torches and let the foxes run through the grain fields of the Philistines. He burned all their grain to the ground, including the sheaves and the uncut grain. He also destroyed their vineyards and olive groves.

⁶"Who did this?" the Philistines demanded.

"Samson," was the reply, "because his father-in-law from Timnah gave Samson's wife to be married to his best man." So the Philistines went and got the woman and her father and burned them to death.

⁷"Because you did this," Samson vowed, "I won't rest until I take my revenge on you!"

⁸So he attacked the Philistines with great fury and killed many of them. Then he went to live in a cave in the rock of Etam.

⁹The Philistines retaliated by setting up camp in Judah and spreading out near the town of Lehi. ¹⁰The men of Judah asked the Philistines, "Why are you attacking us?"

The Philistines replied, "We've come to capture Samson. We've come to pay him back for what he did to us."

¹¹So 3,000 men of Judah went down to get Samson at the cave in the rock of Etam. They said to Samson, "Don't you realize the Philistines rule over us? What are you doing to us?"

But Samson replied, "I only did to them what they did to me."

¹²But the men of Judah told him, "We have come to tie you up and hand you over to the Philistines."

"All right," Samson said. "But promise that you won't kill me yourselves."

¹³"We will only tie you up and hand you over to the Philistines," they replied. "We won't kill you." So they tied him up with two new ropes and brought him up from the rock.

¹⁴As Samson arrived at Lehi, the Philistines came shouting in triumph. But the Spirit of the LORD came powerfully upon Samson, and he snapped the ropes on his arms as if they were burnt strands of flax, and they fell from his wrists. ¹⁵Then he found the jawbone of a recently killed donkey. He picked it up and killed 1,000 Philistines with it. ¹⁶Then Samson said,

"With the jawbone of a donkey,
I've piled them in heaps!

14:20 According to some ancient customs, giving the bride to the best man, even if the marriage was not consummated, was forbidden. The father's action appears to have been treacherous (cp. 15:2-3, 6).

15:1 Wheat harvest came at the end of May; how long this was after the wedding feast is not known. There was some precedent for a bride's remaining in her parents' home for a few months before moving to the groom's home, while allowing conjugal visits.

15:2 The father may have thought that his daughter had been abandoned (see note on 14:20). The father's offer of the younger sister might have been an attempt to remedy his own treachery.

15:3-5 In revenge, Samson devastated the harvest of grain, wine (vineyards), and cooking oil (olive groves).

15:6-10 The chain of revenge was complicated (cp. 9:7-21). First, Samson took revenge on the community of Philistines, not on his in-laws. Next, the Philistines accepted that Samson was a victim of injustice (see note on 14:20) and took revenge on Samson's in-laws, which then led Samson to avenge his in-laws by attacking the Philistines. It all triggered a potential war with Israel. God was beginning to rescue Israel through Samson (13:5; cp. 1 Sam 7:3).

15:11 Completely missing what might have been a divine opportunity to throw off Philistine oppression, the tribe of Judah showed itself ready to continue living under foreign occupation. We can only wonder what might have happened if the Judeans had been fully committed to the Lord's covenant, which provided for them to take the land and drive out the inhabitants (see note on 1:1).

15:12 promise that you won't kill me: Samson's superhuman abilities might have been limited to use against the enemies of Israel; he broke these ropes only after the Spirit of the Lord came upon him (15:14).

15:13 New ropes were stronger, more pliable, and less brittle than older ones.

15:14-15 Both Samson and the Judeans seem to have been satisfied with this relatively small victory and did not follow up by overthrowing Philistine oppression. This failure reflects Israel's declining confidence in God's promises.

15:16 Like other warrior-heroes (e.g., Moses, Deborah, and David), Samson celebrated his victory in poetry, a

With the jawbone of a donkey,
I've killed a thousand men!"

¹⁷When he finished his boasting, he threw away the jawbone; and the place was named Jawbone Hill.

¹⁸Samson was now very thirsty, and he cried out to the LORD, "You have accomplished this great victory by the strength of your servant. Must I now die of thirst and fall into the hands of these pagans?" ¹⁹So God caused water to gush out of a hollow in the ground at Lehi, and Samson was revived as he drank. Then he named that place "The Spring of the One Who Cried Out," and it is still in Lehi to this day.

²⁰Samson judged Israel for twenty years during the period when the Philistines dominated the land.

Samson Carries Away Gaza's Gates

16 One day Samson went to the Philistine town of Gaza and spent the night with a prostitute. ²Word soon spread that Samson was there, so the men of Gaza gathered together and waited all night at the town gates. They kept quiet during the night, saying to themselves, "When the light of morning comes, we will kill him."

³But Samson stayed in bed only until midnight. Then he got up, took hold of the doors of the town gate, including the two posts, and lifted them up, bar and all. He put them on his shoulders and carried them all the way to the top of the hill across from Hebron.

Samson and Delilah

⁴Some time later Samson fell in love with a woman named Delilah, who lived in the valley of Sorek. ⁵The rulers of the Philistines went to her and said, "Entice Samson to tell you what makes him so strong and how he can be overpowered and tied up securely. Then each of us will give you 1,100 pieces of silver."

⁶So Delilah said to Samson, "Please tell me what makes you so strong and what it would take to tie you up securely."

⁷Samson replied, "If I were tied up with seven new bowstrings that have not yet been dried, I would become as weak as anyone else."

¹⁰Afterward Delilah said to him, "You've been making fun of me and telling me lies! Now please tell me how you can be tied up securely."

¹¹Samson replied, "If I were tied up with brand-new ropes that had never been used, I would become as weak as anyone else."

¹²So Delilah took new ropes and tied him up with them. The men were hiding in the inner room as before, and again Delilah cried out, "Samson! The Philistines have short couplet that combines colorful speech with word-play. "Lehi" (15:9) and jawbone are the same Hebrew word (lekhi), as are heaps and donkey (Hebrew khamor). • piled them in heaps! Or made donkeys of them.

15:17 Jawbone Hill: Hebrew Ramath-Lehi.

15:18 Samson cried out to the Lord, as he feared dying of thirst and falling prey to the defeated pagans (literally uncircumcised ones; see note on 14:3). Samson twice prayed deep and passionate prayers, once when he feared being attacked, and once when he was attacking others (16:28-30).

15:19 The Spring of the One Who Cried Out: Hebrew En-hakkore.

15:20 Though this summary formula is repeated in 16:31, its occurrence here indicates that Samson's period as judge was effectively over (cp. 10:2, 3; 12:7). He had done little more than show Israel the potential of rescue; the Philistines still dominated the land.

16:1-31 There is nothing of judgeship in this last chapter of Samson's checkered history. Samson effectively abandoned his calling and was eventually stripped of his gifting as well. Only in his final encounter, when he again turned to the Lord in prayer, did any of his heroic stature revive.

16:2-3 City gates of the period were locked during the night to prevent passage in or out, and the men of the city, having seen the gates locked, probably slept (kept quiet) in one of the gate houses, thinking that they could resume their vigil in the morning.

16:2 This verse is translated as in the Greek and Syriac versions and Latin Vulgate; Hebrew lacks word soon spread.

16:3 Samson had to pick up the entire six- to twelve-foot-wide gate system and take it to the hills across from Hebron, a town about forty miles distant. Samson humiliated the Philistines but did nothing to defeat them.

16:4-22 Samson's dissipation and defeat by Delilah the temptress has the universal appeal of great tragedy.

16:5 The Philistine rulers knew that direct confrontation with Samson would not succeed, so they resorted to subterfuge. The generous offer by the rulers (literally lords) of the five Philistine cities (3:3) shows how seriously the Philistines took this matter. • 1,100 pieces: Hebrew 1,100 [shekels], about 28 pounds or 12.5 kilograms in weight.

16:6 The desire for silver rather than self-preservation (cp. 14:15) seems to have motivated Delilah; she apparently did not reciprocate Samson's love.

16:7 Bowstrings were commonly made of dried animal tendons or gut. Seven was a symbolic number, perhaps connected with the Philistines' sense of magical power. Samson seems more at home in a Philistine cultural setting than in keeping his Israelite vows that bound him as a Nazirite.

16:11 Brand-new ropes had already been tried (15:13-14).

come to capture you!" But again Samson snapped the ropes from his arms as if they were thread.

¹³Then Delilah said, "You've been making fun of me and telling me lies! Now tell me how you can be tied up securely."

Samson replied, "If you were to weave the seven braids of my hair into the fabric on your loom and tighten it with the loom shuttle, I would become as weak as anyone else."

So while he slept, Delilah wove the seven braids of his hair into the fabric. ¹⁴Then she tightened it with the loom shuttle. Again she cried out, "Samson! The Philistines have come to capture you!" But Samson woke up, pulled back the loom shuttle, and yanked his hair away from the loom and the fabric.

¹⁵Then Delilah pouted, "How can you tell me, 'I love you,' when you don't share your secrets with me? You've made fun of me three times now, and you still haven't told me what makes you so strong!" ¹⁶She tormented him with her nagging day after day until he was sick to death of it.

¹⁷Finally, Samson shared his secret with her. "My hair has never been cut," he confessed, "for I was dedicated to God as a Nazirite from birth. If my head were shaved, my strength would leave me, and I would become as weak as anyone else."

¹⁸Delilah realized he had finally told her the truth, so she sent for the Philistine rulers. "Come back one more time," she said, "for he has finally told me his secret." So the Philistine rulers returned with the money in their hands. ¹⁹Delilah lulled Samson to sleep with his head in her lap, and then she called in a man to shave off the seven locks of his hair. In this way she began to bring him down, and his strength left him.

²⁰Then she cried out, "Samson! The Philistines have come to capture you!"

When he woke up, he thought, "I will do as before and shake myself free." But he didn't realize the Lord had left him.

²¹So the Philistines captured him and gouged out his eyes. They took him to Gaza, where he was bound with bronze chains and forced to grind grain in the prison.

²²But before long, his hair began to grow back.

Samson's Final Victory

²³The Philistine rulers held a great festival, offering sacrifices and praising their god, Dagon. They said, "Our god has given us victory over our enemy Samson!"

²⁴When the people saw him, they praised their god, saying, "Our god has delivered our enemy to us! The one who killed so many of us is now in our power!"

²⁵Half drunk by now, the people demanded, "Bring out Samson so he can amuse us!" So he was brought from the prison to amuse them, and they had him stand between the pillars supporting the roof.

²⁶Samson said to the young servant who was leading him by the hand, "Place my hands against the pillars that hold up the temple. I want to rest against them." ²⁷Now the temple was completely filled with people. All the Philistine rulers were there, and there were about 3,000 men and women on the roof who were watching as Samson amused them.

²⁸Then Samson prayed to the Lord, "Sovereign Lord, remember me again. O God, please strengthen me just one more time. With one blow let me pay back the Philistines for the loss of my two eyes." ²⁹Then Samson put his hands on the two center pillars that held up the temple. Pushing against them with both hands, ³⁰he prayed, "Let me die with the Philistines." And the temple crashed down on the Philistine rulers and all the people. So he killed more people when he died than he had during his entire lifetime.

16:13-14 These verses are translated as in the Greek version and Latin Vulgate; Hebrew lacks I would become as weak as anyone else. / So while he slept, Delilah wove the seven braids of his hair into the fabric. ¹⁴*Then she tightened it with the loom shuttle*. Possibly Samson's hair was actually woven into the fabric, perhaps as weft on the loom's warp, which was then tightened as in normal weaving.

16:16 Samson should have recognized his danger (cp. 14:17), but spiritual blindness had led to mental exhaustion.

16:17-19 Samson's hair was the sign of his vow to the Lord; when his hair was shorn, his vow would be broken. The seven braided locks were only a sign; the Lord's presence was the reality behind his strength.

16:18 After being fooled three times, the rulers had given up and left. Now, however, they returned with the money in their hands—they knew that this was the moment they had dreamed of.

16:19 she began to bring him down: Or she began to torment him. Greek version reads He began to grow weak.

16:20 Like the remorseful but presumptuous earlier Israelites (Num 14:40-45), Samson didn't realize that his hair was gone and that the divine presence had departed (cp. Hos 7:9).

16:22 There was no certainty that the Lord would revive Samson's strength when his hair began to grow back; there was only the hope that the Lord's earlier promise—that he would begin to rescue Israel through this strange and now broken hero—still stood.

16:23-24 In their boundless rejoicing, the Philistines gave all the credit to their god, Dagon. In the pagan mind, the relative strength of nations reflected the power of their gods.

16:28-30 Though only for personal revenge, Samson furthered God's purpose of rescuing his people.

³¹Later his brothers and other relatives went down to get his body. They took him back home and buried him between Zorah and Eshtaol, where his father, Manoah, was buried. Samson had judged Israel for twenty years.

3. EPILOGUES (17:1–21:25)

Micah and the Tribe of Dan (17:1–18:31)
Micah's Idols

17 There was a man named Micah, who lived in the hill country of Ephraim. ²One day he said to his mother, "I heard you place a curse on the person who stole 1,100 pieces of silver from you. Well, I have the money. I was the one who took it."

"The LORD bless you for admitting it," his mother replied. ³He returned the money to her, and she said, "I now dedicate these silver coins to the LORD. In honor of my son, I will have an image carved and an idol cast."

⁴So when he returned the money to his mother, she took 200 silver coins and gave them to a silversmith, who made them into an image and an idol. And these were placed in Micah's house. ⁵Micah set up a shrine for the idol, and he made a sacred ephod and some household idols. Then he installed one of his sons as his personal priest.

⁶In those days Israel had no king; all the people did whatever seemed right in their own eyes.

⁷One day a young Levite, who had been living in Bethlehem in Judah, arrived in that area. ⁸He had left Bethlehem in search of another place to live, and as he traveled, he came to the hill country of Ephraim. He happened to stop at Micah's house as he was traveling through. ⁹"Where are you from?" Micah asked him.

He replied, "I am a Levite from Bethlehem in Judah, and I am looking for a place to live."

¹⁰"Stay here with me," Micah said, "and you can be a father and priest to me. I will give you ten pieces of silver a year, plus a change of clothes and your food." ¹¹The Levite agreed to this, and the young man became like one of Micah's sons.

¹²So Micah installed the Levite as his personal priest, and he lived in Micah's house.

¹³"I know the LORD will bless me now," Micah said, "because I have a Levite serving as my priest."

Idolatry in the Tribe of Dan

18 Now in those days Israel had no king. And the tribe of Dan was trying to find a place where they could settle, for they had not yet moved into the land assigned to them when the land was divided among the tribes of Israel. ²So the men of Dan chose from their clans five capable warriors from the towns of Zorah and Eshtaol to scout out a land for them to settle in.

17:1–21:25 These two epilogues (17:1–18:31 and 19:1–21:25) attest that inspired but unstructured leadership cannot endure. During the relentless march toward social disintegration and civil war, the refrain, "In those days Israel had no king," occurs four times, and "all the people did whatever seemed right in their own eyes" is added twice (17:6; 18:1; 19:1; 21:25). The era of inspired leadership spiraled downward and culminated in chaos. Something was clearly missing.

17:1 Micah is the short form of a name that means "Who is like the LORD?" The name highlights the contrast between the Lord and a carved image or cast idol. • The hill country of Ephraim was a natural gathering place in central Israel (17:7-8; 18:2, 13; 19:1, 16).

17:2-3 Micah's mother was indulgent and idolatrous, yet she invoked the Lord's name in both cursing and blessing. • I heard you place a curse: The words uttered in curses and blessings were understood to have power, particularly if the speaker had the authority to utter such pronouncements (cp. Gen 27; Isa 55:11). • 1,100 pieces: Hebrew 1,100 [shekels], about 28 pounds or 12.5 kilograms in weight. This same large number was given to Delilah (16:5). It was probably Micah's mother's life savings or dowry. • The LORD bless you: Micah's mother was hoping that the blessing would effectively neutralize her earlier curse.

17:4-5 We are not told what Micah's mother did with the other 900 shekels. Perhaps they went to pay for the shrine (literally house of gods).

17:5 ephod: See note on 8:27.

• household idols: Cp. Gen 31:19-32; 2 Kgs 23:24; Zech 10:2. The Bible mocks the inabilities of these personal deities. Micah's installing one of his sons as his personal priest was triply irregular: The father was meant to be the religious head of the household (Deut 6:7; Job 1:5), only descendants of Aaron were to be priests (Exod 28:1–29:37; 30:30-33; 40:12-15), and priests were for the whole community of Israel, not for individuals or families.

17:7-8 Not much about this Levite fits into orthodox biblical categories. Some Levites were priests, while others were temple servants (cp. Num 3-4). Levites were scattered throughout Israel (Gen 49:5-7; Josh 21). This young man, apparently a descendant of Gershom (18:30; cp. Exod 2:21-22), was based in Judah, but not in a Levitical town, and was looking for another place to live.

17:10 ten pieces: Hebrew 10 [shekels], about 4 ounces or 114 grams in weight.

17:13 The contract priest, in Micah's view, conferred some additional legitimacy on the shrine, though his expectation that the LORD would bless him was based on superstition rather than obedience to the Lord. Micah's abandonment of God's covenant would bring a curse on him that no unemployed Levite could ward off. Micah was not the last Israelite to seek out a priest or Levite in an attempt to legitimize irregular religious practices (cp. 1 Kgs 12:28-31; 2 Kgs 16:10-18).

18:1-31 The migration of the Danites (cp. Josh 19:40-48) is the story of that tribe's failure to obey God's covenant, and it is indicative of Israel's decline. What began as Micah's private heresy (17:4-5) would become the apostasy of an entire tribe (18:30-31). What began as covenant failure (1:19-36) turned into social breakdown in the days of Jephthah and Samson (chs 11–16). In the end, law and order were replaced by banditry and pillaging (18:27-28).

Why are you here?" ⁴He told them about his agreement with Micah and that he had been hired as Micah's personal priest.

⁵Then they said, "Ask God whether or not our journey will be successful."

⁶"Go in peace," the priest replied. "For the LORD is watching over your journey."

⁷So the five men went on to the town of Laish, where they noticed the people living carefree lives, like the Sidonians; they were peaceful and secure. The people were also wealthy because their land was very fertile. And they lived a great distance from Sidon and had no allies nearby.

⁸When the men returned to Zorah and Eshtaol, their relatives asked them, "What did you find?"

⁹The men replied, "Come on, let's attack them! We have seen the land, and it is very good. What are you waiting for? Don't hesitate to go and take possession of it. ¹⁰When

The book of Judges celebrates divine rescue through heroes while chronicling the inadequacy of the status quo. A decline in individual piety throughout the period was accompanied by a rise in social dysfunction, powerfully expressed in ch 5 (e.g., 5:6-8). Three features of the times stand out: First, the tribes had little ability to function in unison, even when faced by a common enemy—as in the Gideon and Jephthah stories (chs 8, 12). The civil strife within and between tribes constantly recalls the results of covenant disobedience.

Jael's cunning assassination of Sisera, though it was part of God's plan to deliver Israel, illustrates the breakdown of civil society. The words of Sisera's mother and her circle (5:28-30) show that they expected a normal social order to be dominated by murder, rape, and plunder. Jephthah's apparent sacrifice of his daughter and Samson's revenge on his in-laws and their town similarly bespeak a world in which "might makes right."

Religious apostasy was widespread in those days. The altar to Baal and the Asherah pole in Gideon's town of Ophrah (6:23-27) indicate flagrant abandonment of the Lord. Gideon's ephod (8:22-27) was no innocent mistake in judgment; Gideon was hypocritical, rejecting human kingship while trying to establish it. Samson's intermarriage with the Philistines also directly contradicted the covenant commands (Deut 7:3).

Social chaos culminates in the closing chapters (chs 17–21). The incident of Micah, the Levite, and the Danites (chs 17–18) combines religious irregularities with lawless marauding, theft, and violence. The climactic final epilogue (chs 19–21) describes a tragic civil war and the abandonment of civility. Marital breakdown, inhospitality, rape, and murder (ch 19) led to the virtual elimination of the Benjamites (ch 20), who were spared only by the complete decimation of a historic city (Jabesh-gilead) and a sham ceremony in which maidens were seized as concubines (21:19-23). Little wonder that the book concludes, "In those days Israel had no king; all the people did whatever seemed right in their own eyes" (21:25).

18:2 Zorah and Eshtaol: Scouts were selected from the area where the Spirit of the Lord began to stir Samson (13:25). The mention of the two towns is a grim reminder that what began with Samson had not been completed, either by his own tribe (Dan) or by their powerful neighbor (Judah). These capable warriors, rather than fighting the Lord's battles, bullied their fellow Israelites (18:24-25) and attacked a defenseless city (18:27; cp. Gen 49:17).

18:3-4 The Danites either recognized the young Levite's accent (literally voice) as belonging to the region of Judah (17:7) or recognized his voice because they had known him personally. Their line of questioning went beyond simply establishing his credentials to providing them with a bit of divine guidance (18:5). His reply (18:6) established his willingness to be a mercenary priest.

18:5-6 The LORD had already promised to give Dan an allotment in the southwest that they had failed to possess (see 1:34; Josh 19:40-48). Now they were asking God's blessing from a hired priest whose "blessing," like that of Micah's mother (17:2), sounded religious while having no basis in Israel's covenant with the Lord.

18:7 Laish has been extensively excavated and was an impressive city at this time. • they were peaceful and secure: The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. The description of Laish and its relationship to the port of Sidon is not entirely clear in the text or from recorded history. Perhaps the people of Laish expected, as a Phoenician outpost, to be exempt from Israel's attack on the Canaanites. This language is substantially repeated in 18:28.

18:9-10 The language resembles the report following the mission to spy out the land (Num 14:7-8; Deut 1:25), but the context is sharply different. Joshua and Caleb overcame their fear and acted in faith by remembering the Lord's promise (cp. Josh 2:9, 24; 6:2; 10:19, 30). The Danite warriors invoked God's blessing and recognized the value of the land, but their cocky self-assurance contrasts sharply with the godly faith of Joshua and Caleb.

you get there, you will find the people living carefree lives. God has given us a spacious and fertile land, lacking in nothing!"

¹¹So 600 men from the tribe of Dan, armed with weapons of war, set out from Zorah and Eshtaol. ¹²They camped at a place west of Kiriath-jearim in Judah, which is called Mahaneh-dan to this day. ¹³Then they went on from there into the hill country of Ephraim and came to the house of Micah.

¹⁸When the priest saw the men carrying all the sacred objects out of Micah's shrine, he said, "What are you doing?"

¹⁹"Be quiet and come with us," they said. "Be a father and priest to all of us. Isn't it better to be a priest for an entire tribe and clan of Israel than for the household of just one man?"

²⁰The young priest was quite happy to go with them, so he took along the sacred ephod, the household idols, and the carved image. ²¹They turned and started on their way again, placing their children, livestock, and possessions in front of them.

²²When the people from the tribe of Dan were quite a distance from Micah's house, the people who lived near Micah came chasing after them. ²³They were shouting as they caught up with them. The men of Dan turned around and said to Micah, "What's the matter? Why have you called these men together and chased after us like this?"

²⁵The men of Dan said, "Watch what you say! There are some short-tempered men around here who might get angry and kill you and your family." ²⁶So the men of Dan continued on their way. When Micah saw that there were too many of them for him to attack, he turned around and went home.

²⁷Then, with Micah's idols and his priest, the men of Dan came to the town of Laish, whose people were peaceful and secure. They attacked with swords and burned the town to the ground. ²⁸There was no one to rescue the people, for they lived a great distance from Sidon and had no allies nearby. This happened in the valley near Beth-rehob.

Then the people of the tribe of Dan rebuilt the town and lived there. ²⁹They renamed the town Dan after their ancestor, Israel's son, but it had originally been called Laish.

18:12 Kiriath-jearim: In this town northwest of Jerusalem the Ark rested for twenty years (1 Sam 7:1-2) on its return from Philistine captivity. It lay on the border of Judah and Benjamin, and was given a memorial name associated with Dan's wanderings (cp. the different site of 13:25). The name Mahaneh-dan means "the camp of Dan."

18:14-26 The perfidy and insincerity of this exchange expose the ignoble values of all concerned.

18:14 sacred ephod . . . household idols . . . carved image . . . cast idol: See notes on 8:27 and 17:5.

18:15 Bypassing the host, the five unscrupulous scouts went straight to their target, the naive and unprincipled young Levite.

18:16 The 600 armed warriors were prepared to attack the single Levite. In contrast to Gideon's army of 300 arrayed against the Midianite hordes (7:2-11), the Danites were merely armed bullies.

18:18 The priest's rhetorical question was less an attempt to stop the theft than an expression of concern about his own future (cp. 18:20).

18:19 Using Micah's language (be a father and priest, 17:10), but without its generosity, the Danites' question was moot in light of the 600 men standing at the door.

18:20 The young priest was receptive to the offer; ignoring his generous benefactor, he joined in absconding with Micah's prized objects. The blessing of Micah's mother (17:3) was becoming ever more tarnished.

18:22 Some of Micah's neighbors had apparently become converts to the cult of his shrine.

18:23 The question was only intended to cow Micah into abandoning the fight.

18:24 Micah's last speech is pathetic and pitiful. He began by stealing from his own mother and ended by losing it all to worse thieves than himself. The narrative drips with irony, including Micah's loss of the gods I have made.

His fate was that of all who forsake the Lord's covenant: I have nothing left!

18:25 short-tempered (literally bitter of soul; "in deep anguish," 1 Sam 1:10; "discontented," 1 Sam 22:2; "enraged," 2 Sam 17:8): This term describes those whose bitter disappointment with life has made their actions unpredictable.

18:28 Beth-rehob was perhaps an Aramean kingdom to the north (2 Sam 10:6). Nothing heroic, and no holy war, accrued to these Danite warriors who captured this defenseless city. Dan fulfilled Jacob's mixed blessing by turning from the high calling of governing his people (Gen 49:16) to becoming "a snake beside the road, a poisonous viper along the path that bites the horse's hooves so its rider is thrown off" (Gen 49:17).

18:29-31 The city of Dan became the northernmost landmark of Israel's territory (e.g., 20:1; 2 Sam 3:10; 1 Kgs 4:25; 2 Chr 30:5). Its identity as a center of idolatry continued throughout its history (see 1 Kgs 12:28-30; Amos 8:14).

³⁰Then they set up the carved image, and they appointed Jonathan son of Gershom, son of Moses, as their priest. This family continued as priests for the tribe of Dan until the Exile. ³¹So Micah's carved image was worshipped by the tribe of Dan as long as the Tabernacle of God remained at Shiloh.

The Levite and the Tribe of Benjamin (19:1–21:25)

The Levite and His Concubine

19 Now in those days Israel had no king. There was a man from the tribe of Levi living in a remote area of the hill country of Ephraim. One day he brought home a woman from Bethlehem in Judah to be his concubine. ²But she became angry with him and returned to her father's home in Bethlehem.

After about four months, ³her husband set out for Bethlehem to speak personally to her and persuade her to come back. He took with him a servant and a pair of donkeys. When he arrived at her father's house, her father saw him and welcomed him. ⁴Her father urged him to stay awhile, so he stayed three days, eating, drinking, and sleeping there.

⁵On the fourth day the man was up early, ready to leave, but the woman's father said to his son-in-law, "Have something to eat before you go." ⁶So the two men sat down together and had something to eat and drink. Then the woman's father said, "Please stay another night and enjoy yourself." ⁷The man got up to leave, but his father-in-law kept urging him to stay, so he finally gave in and stayed the night.

⁸On the morning of the fifth day he was up early again, ready to leave, and again the woman's father said, "Have something to eat; then you can leave later this afternoon." So they had another day of feasting. ⁹Later, as the man and his concubine and servant were preparing to leave, his father-in-law said, "Look, it's almost evening. Stay the night and enjoy yourself. Tomorrow you can get up early and be on your way."

¹⁰But this time the man was determined to leave. So he took his two saddled donkeys and his concubine and headed in the direction of Jebus (that is, Jerusalem). ¹¹It was late in the day when they neared Jebus, and the man's servant said to him, "Let's stop at this Jebusite town and spend the night there."

¹²"No," his master said, "we can't stay in this foreign town where there are no Israelites. Instead, we will go on to Gibeah. ¹³Come on, let's try to get as far as Gibeah or Ramah, and we'll spend the night in one of those towns."

18:30 The wandering Levite is now called Jonathan; he was a descendant of Moses through Gershom (Exod 2:21–22). • son of Moses: As in an ancient Hebrew tradition, some Greek manuscripts, and Latin Vulgate; Masoretic Text reads son of Manasseh. Later Hebrew scribes inserted a letter "n" into the Hebrew text, changing Moses to Manasseh, probably to preserve Moses' memory by distancing him from Jonathan's behavior. • The Exile is traditionally understood to have begun with the fall of the northern kingdom in 722 bc. In light of the reference to Shiloh (18:31), the exile of the Ark from Shiloh (1 Sam 4–6) might be in view.

18:31 The religious infidelity of the tribe of Dan continued at least through the period of the judges; whether it was corrected by Samuel, Saul, or David is nowhere stated. • Joshua took Shiloh, a town in the hill country of Ephraim, as his command post and central shrine (Josh 18:1) during the conquest and distribution of the land (Josh 18–22). The priest Eli and his sons ministered before the Lord at Shiloh (1 Sam 1:3). The town and sanctuary were probably destroyed by Philistines about 1050 bc (see 1 Sam 4:1–11). Shiloh was later remembered as an example of God's judgment on false worship conducted in his name (see Jer 7:12–14; 26:6; cp. Ps 78:60).

19:1–21:25 This second epilogue (see note on 17:1–21:25) shifts the focus from individuals to whole tribes. Beginning with the outrage in the Benjamite town of Gibeah (ch 19), which led to civil war (ch 20) and the decimation of Benjamin, and moving on to the attempt to rescue the tribe from oblivion (ch 21), the book concludes with the now-familiar refrain, in those days Israel had no king; all the people did whatever seemed right in their own eyes. This was perhaps the low point in Israel's own remembered history; these are the "days of Gibeah" that Hosea, 400 years later, would liken to the depths to which Ephraim had sunk (Hos 9:9; 10:9). • The way had been cleared for a transition from charismatic leadership to what might be called "covenant-charismatic kingship," i.e., kingship that combined living under the Lord's covenant (Deut 17:14–20) with the anointing of the Spirit for the task of ruling, as with Saul and David.

19:1 A concubine was a second-class wife. In a society where polygamy was common, a concubine could be purchased, acquired as repayment of debt, or taken in war. A concubine was sometimes added to make up for a deficiency in a legitimate wife (e.g., Gen 16:1–4; 30:3–13; 35:22), but in the case of the Levite there appears to have been no other wife.

19:2 she became angry with him: Or she was unfaithful to him.

19:3 When he arrived at: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads When she brought him to.

19:4 The woman's father demonstrated typical Near Eastern hospitality, in contrast to what would later transpire in Gibeah (19:14–28). The scene in Bethlehem offers reconciliation and the promise of a new beginning.

19:5–7 Although some have suggested that the delay in leaving was analogous to Samson's seven-day bridal feast (14:10–20), the picture may reflect nothing more than the father's reluctance to bid his daughter farewell.

19:10 Jebus: See note on 1:21. The city's old name and its foreign status in Israel persisted until its capture by David (2 Sam 5:6–10).

19:13 The two Benjamite towns of Gibeah and Ramah have a prominent place in Israelite history, connected as they are with judges (Deborah, 4:5), priests (Elezar, Josh 24:33), prophets (Samuel, 1 Sam 8:4), and kings (Saul, 1 Sam 10:26). The account of Gibeah's noble history compounds the tragedy of the events that followed.

¹⁴So they went on. The sun was setting as they came to Gibeah, a town in the land of Benjamin, ¹⁵so they stopped there to spend the night. They rested in the town square, but no one took them in for the night.

¹⁶That evening an old man came home from his work in the fields. He was from the hill country of Ephraim, but he was living in Gibeah, where the people were from the tribe of Benjamin. ¹⁷When he saw the travelers sitting in the town square, he asked them where they were from and where they were going.

¹⁸"We have been in Bethlehem in Judah," the man replied. "We are on our way to a remote area in the hill country of Ephraim, which is my home. I traveled to Bethlehem, and now I'm returning home. But no one has taken us in for the night, ¹⁹even though we have everything we need. We have straw and feed for our donkeys and plenty of bread and wine for ourselves."

²⁰"You are welcome to stay with me," the old man said. "I will give you anything you might need. But whatever you do, don't spend the night in the square." ²¹So he took them home with him and fed the donkeys. After they washed their feet, they ate and drank together.

²²While they were enjoying themselves, a crowd of ^ktroublemakers from the town surrounded the house. They began beating at the door and shouting to the old man, "Bring out the man who is staying with you so we can have sex with him."

²³The old man stepped outside to talk to them. "No, my brothers, don't do such an evil thing. For this man is a guest in my house, and such a thing would be shameful.

²⁴Here, take my virgin daughter and this man's concubine. I will bring them out to you, and you can abuse them and do whatever you like. But don't do such a shameful thing to this man."

²⁵But they wouldn't listen to him. So the Levite took hold of his concubine and pushed her out the door. The men of the town abused her all night, taking turns raping her until morning. Finally, at dawn they let her go. ²⁶At daybreak the woman returned to the house where her husband was staying. She collapsed at the door of the house and lay there until it was light.

²⁹When he got home, he took a knife and cut his concubine's body into twelve pieces. Then he sent one piece to each tribe throughout all the territory of Israel.

³⁰Everyone who saw it said, "Such a horrible crime has not been committed in all the time since Israel left Egypt. Think about it! What are we going to do? Who's going to speak up?"

Israel's War with Benjamin

20 Then all the Israelites were united as one man, from Dan in the north to Beersheba in the south, including those from across the Jordan in the land of Gilead. The entire community assembled in the presence of the LORD at Mizpah. ²The leaders of all the people and all the tribes of Israel—400,000 warriors armed with swords—took their positions in the assembly of the people of God. ³(Word soon reached the land of Benjamin that the other tribes had gone up to Mizpah.) The Israelites then asked how this terrible crime had happened.

19:15 The normal rules of hospitality in Israel and the rest of the Near East obligated a citizen of the town to take them in (cp. Isa 58:7; Luke 14:13-14; Rom 12:13; 1 Tim 3:2; 5:10; Heb 13:2; 1 Pet 4:9). The Levite had funds and provisions (19:19), so there was even less excuse. This erosion of common civility is yet another evidence of social dysfunction at the time of Judges.

19:16 The old man was from the hill country of Ephraim rather than the territory of Benjamin. The natives of Gibeah were all unwilling to help.

19:18 now I'm returning home: As in Greek version (see also 19:29); Hebrew reads now I'm going to the Tabernacle of the LORD. The Levite said nothing about his own status, or about why he was traveling.

19:20 The note of urgency in the old man's response foreshadowed the coming trouble (cp. Gen 19:2-3).

19:22 troublemakers: Hebrew sons of Belial; see notes on 1 Kgs 21:10; 1 Sam 1:16; 2 Cor 6:15. Their goal was homosexual rape. Cp. Gen 19:4-5.

19:23 For this man is a guest in my house: It was shameful to be inhospitable to a visitor, but the evil demands of the crowd went beyond lack of hospitality. They intended violence against the visitor (see 20:5).

19:24 The old man attempted to preserve the social obligation of hospitality at the cost of handing over the vulnerable to be harmed (cp. Jas 1:27).

There is no way, for our age or theirs, to soften the horror of what followed. The period of the judges was coming to an end in deepest depravity. Something was fundamentally amiss.

19:25 Contrast the instruction to husbands in Eph 5:25-28.

19:28-29 The Levite's actions exemplify the horror of a corrupt culture.

19:28 Greek version adds for she was dead.

20:1 This was not the Mizpah east of the Jordan associated with Jephthah (10:17; 11:11, 29, 34), but a place in central Israel. This common name means "watchtower."

20:3 The tribe of Benjamin had probably received the summons (19:29), so they knew that trouble was brewing.

⁴The Levite, the husband of the woman who had been murdered, said, "My concubine and I came to spend the night in Gibeah, a town that belongs to the people of Benjamin. ⁵That night some of the leading citizens of Gibeah surrounded the house, planning to kill me, and they raped my concubine until she was dead. ⁶So I cut her body into twelve pieces and sent the pieces throughout the territory assigned to Israel, for these men have committed a terrible and shameful crime. ⁷Now then, all of you—the entire community of Israel—must decide here and now what should be done about this!"

⁸And all the people rose to their feet in unison and declared, "None of us will return home! No, not even one of us! ⁹Instead, this is what we will do to Gibeah; we will draw lots to decide who will attack it. ¹⁰One-tenth of the men from each tribe will be chosen to supply the warriors with food, and the rest of us will take revenge on Gibeah of Benjamin for this shameful thing they have done in Israel." ¹¹So all the Israelites were completely united, and they gathered together to attack the town.

¹²The Israelites sent messengers to the tribe of Benjamin, saying, "What a terrible thing has been done among you! ¹³Give up those evil men, those troublemakers from Gibeah, so we can execute them and purge Israel of this evil."

But the people of Benjamin would not listen. ¹⁴Instead, they came from their towns and gathered at Gibeah to fight the Israelites. ¹⁵In all, 26,000 of their warriors armed with swords arrived in Gibeah to join the 700 elite troops who lived there. ¹⁶Among Benjamin's elite troops, 700 were left-handed, and each of them could sling a rock and hit a target within a hairsbreadth without missing. ¹⁷Israel had 400,000 experienced soldiers armed with swords, not counting Benjamin's warriors.

¹⁸Before the battle the Israelites went to Bethel and asked God, "Which tribe should go first to attack the people of Benjamin?"

The LORD answered, "Judah is to go first."

¹⁹So the Israelites left early the next morning and camped near Gibeah. ²⁰Then they advanced toward Gibeah to attack the men of Benjamin. ²¹But Benjamin's warriors, who were defending the town, came out and killed 22,000 Israelites on the battlefield that day.

²²But the Israelites encouraged each other and took their positions again at the same place they had fought the previous day. ²³For they had gone up to Bethel and wept in the presence of the LORD until evening. They had asked the LORD, "Should we fight against our relatives from Benjamin again?"

And the LORD had said, "Go out and fight against them."

◀ Israel's War with Benjamin (20:1-48). In response to the episode of the Levite and his concubine (ch 19), the forces of Israel assembled at Mizpah on the border of Benjamin. They then attacked and destroyed GIBEAH and most of the men of Benjamin. The remaining 600 Benjamites escaped to the Rock of RIMMON, where they were captured. The people of Israel then assembled at BETHEL (21:1-25).

10 men from every hundred, 100 men from every thousand, and 1,000 men from every 10,000. • Gibeah: Hebrew Geba, in this case a variant spelling of Gibeah; also in 20:33.

20:12-13 Israel recognized corporate responsibility. The leading citizens of Gibeah were guilty (20:5), and all of Gibeah became an accessory to their crimes by failing to discipline them. The tribe of Benjamin, in turn, had a responsibility to bring Gibeah to justice; failing that, they all shared the guilt. Had Israel not done something about Benjamin's sin, the guilt would then have extended to the entire nation.

20:13-17 Benjamin's response was consistent with its independent and warlike character (cp. Gen 49:27). The tribe had justifiable confidence in the warriors for which it was famous (3:12-30; 1 Chr 12:2). Though outnumbered almost three to one, they defeated the rest of Israel twice and inflicted heavy casualties (20:18-24).

20:16 left-handed: See note on 3:15.

• The sling was of the same type as the one David used to kill Goliath (1 Sam 17:40-51). The slinger buried a stone in a small pouch attached to a leather thong, then swung it around his head to gain momentum before releasing one end of the thong to shoot the missile. A slinger had the advantage of distance over a swordsman.

20:18 To go first means to lead, not necessarily to precede (Gen 49:10).

20:19-21 The three battles took place around the guilty city. Despite superior numbers and having asked the Lord for guidance, the Israelite troops facing the defenders behind their walls were soundly beaten back the first day.

20:22-23 Following a time of weeping and probably confession (cp. Josh 7) the Israelite troops received divine guidance and regained confidence.

20:5 The "troublemakers" (19:22) were leading citizens (literally lords). • planning to kill me: The death of his concubine convinced the Levite that the men of Gibeah intended his death.

20:9 The lots may have been the Urim and Thummim on the priest's breastplate (Exod 28:30; cp. Josh 14:2; 1 Sam 14:41; Ezra 2:63).

20:10 One tenth of the men: Literally

²⁴So the next day they went out again to fight against the men of Benjamin, ²⁵but the men of Benjamin killed another 18,000 Israelites, all of whom were experienced with the sword.

²⁶Then all the Israelites went up to Bethel and wept in the presence of the LORD and fasted until evening. They also brought burnt offerings and peace offerings to the LORD.

²⁷The Israelites went up seeking direction from the LORD. (In those days the Ark of the Covenant of God was in Bethel, ²⁸and Phinehas son of Eleazar and grandson of Aaron was the priest.) The Israelites asked the LORD, "Should we fight against our relatives from Benjamin again, or should we stop?"

The LORD said, "Go! Tomorrow I will hand them over to you."

²⁹So the Israelites set an ambush all around Gibeah. ³⁰They went out on the third day and took their positions at the same place as before. ³¹When the men of Benjamin came out to attack, they were drawn away from the town. And as they had done before, they began to kill the Israelites. About thirty Israelites died in the open fields and along the roads, one leading to Bethel and the other leading back to Gibeah.

³²Then the warriors of Benjamin shouted, "We're defeating them as we did before!" But the Israelites had planned in advance to run away so that the men of Benjamin would chase them along the roads and be drawn away from the town.

³³When the main group of Israelite warriors reached Baal-tamar, they turned and took up their positions. Meanwhile, the Israelites hiding in ambush to the west of Gibeah jumped up to fight. ³⁴There were 10,000 elite Israelite troops who advanced against Gibeah. The fighting was so heavy that Benjamin didn't realize the impending disaster. ³⁵So the LORD helped Israel defeat Benjamin, and that day the Israelites killed 25,100 of Benjamin's warriors, all of whom were experienced swordsmen. ³⁶Then the men of Benjamin saw that they were beaten.

The Israelites had retreated from Benjamin's warriors in order to give those hiding in ambush more room to maneuver against Gibeah. ³⁷Then those who were hiding rushed in from all sides and killed everyone in the town. ³⁸They had arranged to send up a large cloud of smoke from the town as a signal. ³⁹When the Israelites saw the smoke, they turned and attacked Benjamin's warriors.

By that time Benjamin's warriors had killed about thirty Israelites, and they shouted, "We're defeating them as we did in the first battle!" ⁴⁰But when the warriors of Benjamin looked behind them and saw the smoke rising into the sky from every part of the town, ⁴¹the men of Israel turned and attacked. At this point the men of Benjamin became terrified, because they realized disaster was close at hand. ⁴²So they turned around and fled before the Israelites toward the wilderness. But they couldn't escape the battle, and the people who came out of the nearby towns were also killed. ⁴³The Israelites surrounded the men of Benjamin and chased them relentlessly, finally overtaking them east of Gibeah. ⁴⁴That day 18,000 of Benjamin's strongest warriors died in battle. ⁴⁵The survivors fled into the wilderness toward the rock of Rimmon, but Israel killed 5,000 of them along the road. They continued the chase until they had killed another 2,000 near Gidom.

⁴⁶So that day the tribe of Benjamin lost 25,000 strong warriors armed with swords, ⁴⁷leaving only 600 men who escaped to the rock of Rimmon, where they lived for four months. ⁴⁸And the Israelites returned and slaughtered every living thing in all the towns—the people, the livestock, and everything they found. They also burned down all the towns they came to.

Israel Provides Wives for Benjamin

21 The Israelites had vowed at Mizpah, "We will never give our daughters in marriage to a man from the tribe of Benjamin." ²Now the people went to Bethel and sat in the presence of God until evening, weeping loudly and bitterly. ³"O LORD, God of Israel," they cried out, "why has this happened in Israel? Now one of our tribes is missing from Israel!"

⁴Early the next morning the people built an altar and presented their burnt offerings and peace offerings on it. ⁵Then they said, "Who among the tribes of Israel did not join us at Mizpah when we held our assembly in the presence of the LORD?" At that time they had taken a solemn oath in the LORD's presence, vowing that anyone who refused to come would be put to death.

⁶The Israelites felt sorry for their brother Benjamin and said, "Today one of the tribes of Israel has been cut off. ⁷How can we find wives for the few who remain, since we have sworn by the LORD not to give them our daughters in marriage?"

⁸So they asked, "Who among the tribes of Israel did not join us at Mizpah when we assembled in the presence of the LORD?" And they discovered that no one from Jabesh-gilead had attended the assembly. ⁹For after they counted all the people, no one from Jabesh-gilead was present.

¹⁰So the assembly sent 12,000 of their best warriors to Jabesh-gilead with orders to kill everyone there, including women and children. ¹¹"This is what you are to do," they said. "Completely destroy all the males and every woman who is not a virgin." ¹²Among the residents of Jabesh-gilead they found 400 young virgins who had never slept with a man, and they brought them to the camp at Shiloh in the land of Canaan.

¹³The Israelite assembly sent a peace delegation to the remaining people of Benjamin who were living at the rock of Rimmon. ¹⁴Then the men of Benjamin returned to their homes, and the 400 women of Jabesh-gilead who had been spared were given to them as wives. But there were not enough women for all of them.

¹⁵The people felt sorry for Benjamin because the LORD had made this gap among the tribes of Israel. ¹⁶So the elders of the assembly asked, "How can we find wives for the few who remain, since the women of the tribe of Benjamin are dead? ¹⁷There must be heirs for the survivors so that an entire tribe of Israel is not wiped out. ¹⁸But we cannot give them our own daughters in marriage because we have sworn with a solemn oath that anyone who does this will fall under God's curse."

²³So the men of Benjamin did as they were told. Each man caught one of the women as she danced in the celebration and carried her off to be his wife. They returned to their own land, and they rebuilt their towns and lived in them.

²⁵In those days Israel had no king; all the people did whatever seemed right in their own eyes.

21:3 The concept of a twelve-tribe league was deeply rooted in Israel, having survived the separation of Levi from the secular tribes, the virtual disappearance of Simeon and Asher, and the division of Joseph into two (Manasseh and Ephraim). The loss of one tribe would have suggested that God's covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob was coming unglued.

21:8-9 Jabesh-gilead was an important town east of the Jordan whose failure to participate in the war against Benjamin made a grievous break in solidarity (see 21:5).

21:11 Completely destroy: The Hebrew term used here refers to the complete consecration of things or people to the LORD, either by destroying them or by giving them as an offering. See Lev 27:28-29.

21:15-17 The people felt sorry for Benjamin: Israel was concerned about the brokenness of the nation. • The gap in Israel was an act of the LORD, because the war against Benjamin had been a response to the LORD's covenant.

21:19 The annual grape harvest festival . . . in Shiloh may originally have been a Canaanite feast.

21:23 Their own land was the land allotted to the tribe of Benjamin by the LORD's covenant (2:6).

21:24 The people of Israel pulled through despite the lack of inspired leadership (chs 17-18) and the failure of the tribal league (chs 19-21). Tribes and families were intact; Israel and all its tribes would survive.

21:25 The conclusion of chs 17-21 gives the reason for the social disorder of the time. Following the period of the judges, God would make a new covenant with Israel involving King David (2 Sam 7) and the promise of messianic rule. The fulfillment of that promise would go far beyond anything that could be imagined in the time when Israel had no king.

THE BOOK OF Ruth

Ruth was a dedicated daughter-in-law to Naomi, her bereaved mother-in-law. Boaz was the kindly owner of a busy farm and the second-nearest family redeemer. In their story, there is loss and loyalty, a homecoming, a secret midnight meeting, a public transfer of property, a marriage, and a child. The book of Ruth records no miracles, but it is full of God's love.

SETTING

The events in Ruth took place during Israel's period of the judges, about 1100 BC. The book of Judges records violent, momentous events, but Ruth shows a peaceful, ordinary side of life at the time.

During this period, Israel had few political structures. The average person focused more on tribal and clan ties than on national identity. Virtually every family in Israel depended on their own crops and animals for food and for most other necessities. Israel's hill country was fertile, but the water supply was variable. Two or three years of low rainfall could cause famine.

SUMMARY

When drought and famine came to Bethlehem, Elimelech moved to Moab with his wife, Naomi, and their two sons, who married Moabite women. Elimelech died in Moab, then the young men also died, leaving Naomi destitute. Hearing that the famine in Bethlehem had ended, Naomi decided to return home. Ruth, one of Naomi's Moabite daughters-in-law, declared her loyalty to Naomi, so the two of them set out together and arrived in Bethlehem at the beginning of the spring barley harvest. To obtain food for the coming year, Ruth went out to glean, beginning in Boaz's field. When he learned who she was, Boaz instructed his workers to be generous to Ruth.

Hearing of Boaz's kindness, Naomi sent Ruth to the threshing floor one night to meet him for a private conversation. Ruth asked Boaz to act as her family redeemer by marrying her. Boaz knew that a closer relative had the first right to act as family redeemer, but Boaz promised to do so if that man refused. He went to the town gate and arranged the matter so that the first man would decline. So, Boaz married Ruth, who bore a son named Obed.

Having a grandson guaranteed Naomi's security in old age and brought back what she thought she had lost forever. Eventually, Obed became the grandfather of David, Israel's first great king. The book of Ruth ends with a genealogy of ten generations, from Perez, the son of Judah, to David.

AUTHORSHIP AND DATE

In recent years, some biblical scholars have questioned the historicity of early Israelite stories, including Ruth, and proposed that they might be fictional. As biblical scholars discover more about ancient history, ancient writing conventions, and everyday life in the ancient Near East, however, we see more fully that Ruth and other stories from Israel's early periods are firmly grounded in history. We don't know who wrote Ruth, and archaeologists may never recover direct physical evidence of Ruth, Boaz, and Naomi, but the story rings true to its time and place and gives genealogical details

MEANING AND MESSAGE

God usually works in the ordinary events of everyday life. Miracles do happen, but God regularly accomplishes his purposes and blesses his people through routine occurrences. If we learn faithfulness in the everyday, we are equipped to be faithful when crises come.

Ruth contains at least nine spoken blessings. God's people have the privilege of blessing each other in God's name. We often help fulfill those blessings, as Naomi and Boaz fulfilled the blessings they gave to Ruth.

Naomi felt abandoned by God; but God had not abandoned Naomi, and by the end of the book Naomi knew that God had restored more to her than she could have dreamed. God is trustworthy in our darkest hours.

Faith in God involves willingness to take risks. The unnamed family redeemer who wanted to preserve his good name through his own heirs lost an opportunity to be generously faithful. Boaz, by contrast, took the risk of faithfulness and generosity, and he was richly rewarded.

The everyday and the ordinary can have breathtaking eternal results. Ruth's and Boaz's daily faithfulness in the unremarkable rhythms of farming, marriage, childbirth, and parenthood resulted in eternal blessings that still multiply through King David and his descendant Jesus Christ.

1. PROLOGUE: ELIMELECH MOVES HIS FAMILY TO MOAB (1:1-5)

1 In the days when the ^ajudges ruled in Israel, a severe famine came upon the land. So a man from Bethlehem in Judah left his home and went to live in the country of Moab, taking his wife and two sons with him. ²The man's name was Elimelech, and his wife was Naomi. Their two sons were Mahlon and Kilion. They were Ephrathites from Bethlehem in the land of Judah. And when they reached Moab, they settled there.

³Then Elimelech died, and Naomi was left with her two sons. ⁴The two sons married Moabite women. One married a woman named Orpah, and the other a woman named Ruth. But about ten years later, ⁵both Mahlon and Kilion died. This left Naomi alone, without her two sons or her husband.

2. NAOMI AND RUTH RETURN TO BETHLEHEM (1:6-22)

⁶Then Naomi heard in Moab that the LORD had blessed his people in Judah by giving them good crops again. So Naomi and her daughters-in-law got ready to leave Moab to return to her homeland. ⁷With her two daughters-in-law she set out from the place where she had been living, and they took the road that would lead them back to Judah.

⁸But on the way, Naomi said to her two daughters-in-law, "Go back to your mothers' homes. And may the LORD reward you for your ^bkindness to your husbands and to me. ⁹May the LORD bless you with the security of another marriage." Then she kissed them good-bye, and they all broke down and wept.

¹⁰"No," they said. "We want to go with you to your people."

¹¹But Naomi replied, "Why should you go on with me? Can I still give birth to other sons who could grow up to be your husbands? ¹²No, my daughters, return to your parents' homes, for I am too old to marry again. And even if it were possible, and I were to get married tonight and bear sons, then what? ¹³Would you wait for them to grow up and refuse to marry someone else? No, of course not, my daughters! Things are far more bitter for me than for you, because the LORD himself has raised his fist against me."

¹⁴And again they wept together, and Orpah kissed her mother-in-law good-bye. But Ruth clung tightly to Naomi. ¹⁵"Look," Naomi said to her, "your sister-in-law has gone back to her people and to her gods. You should do the same."

¹⁶But Ruth replied, "Don't ask me to leave you and turn back. Wherever you go, I will go; wherever you live, I will live. Your people will be my people, and your God will be my God. ¹⁷Wherever you die, I will die, and there I will be buried. May the LORD punish me severely if I allow anything but death to separate us!" ¹⁸When Naomi saw that Ruth was determined to go with her, she said nothing more.

¹⁹So the two of them continued on their journey. When they came to Bethlehem, the entire town was excited by their arrival. "Is it really Naomi?" the women asked.

²⁰"Don't call me Naomi," she responded. "Instead, call me Mara, for the Almighty has made life very bitter for me. ²¹I went away full, but the LORD has brought me home empty. Why call me Naomi when the LORD has caused me to suffer and the Almighty has sent such tragedy upon me?"

1:1 The judges ruled from the death of Joshua (about 1376 or 1200 BC) to the beginning of Saul's reign as king (about 1050 BC). The events in Ruth occurred around 1100 BC. • Famine in Israel's hill country was usually caused by drought. • Bethlehem was a small town in the hill country of northern Judah. • Moab, the land southeast of Judah, sometimes received sufficient rain when Judah did not.

1:2 Ephrathites were from the clan of Ephrathah, centered in Bethlehem of Judah (see Gen 35:19; 1 Chr 4:4).

1:4 Kilion married . . . Orpah; Mahlon married Ruth (see 4:10).

1:5 This left Naomi alone (literally the woman was bereft): Naomi suffered devastating emotional losses. She was also without economic support, and with the loss of heirs, she had no hope for the future of her family.

1:6 giving: This same Hebrew verb is used in 4:13 ("enabled"). These two notices of God's acts enclose the story between similar phrases (an inclusio, literary "bookends"). God gives good things, such as food and children, and he works providentially behind the scenes in the ordinary course of things.

1:8 But on the way: They had probably gone only a short distance when Naomi released Ruth and Orpah to return to their mothers' homes.

1:9 Naomi here speaks the first of the book's several blessings.

1:14 Ruth clung tightly to Naomi: The Hebrew verb used here emphasizes the strength of Ruth's love for her mother-in-law; it is the same word used to describe a man being "joined to" his wife (Gen 2:24) and to describe a person staying faithful to the Lord (Deut 4:4; 10:20; Josh 22:5).

1:15 to her gods: Every nation believed in its own territorial god. Naomi assumed that Ruth would continue to worship Moabite gods.

1:16-17 Ruth swore an oath in the name of the LORD to seal her firm commitment to Israel's God (cp. 2:11-12) and to Naomi.

1:20 Naomi means "pleasant"; Mara means "bitter." • Almighty translates the Hebrew shadday, which pictures God's strength and provision. Naomi's complaint was real, but God provided exactly what she needed (see 4:14-17).

²²So Naomi returned from Moab, accompanied by her daughter-in-law Ruth, the young Moabite woman. They arrived in Bethlehem in late spring, at the beginning of the barley harvest.

3. RUTH WORKS IN BOAZ'S FIELD (2:1-23)

2 Now there was a wealthy and influential man in Bethlehem named Boaz, who was a relative of Naomi's husband, Elimelech.

²One day Ruth the Moabite said to Naomi, "Let me go out into the harvest fields to pick up the stalks of grain left behind by anyone who is kind enough to let me do it."

Naomi replied, "All right, my daughter, go ahead." ³So Ruth went out to gather grain behind the harvesters. And as it happened, she found herself working in a field that belonged to Boaz, the relative of her father-in-law, Elimelech.

⁴While she was there, Boaz arrived from Bethlehem and greeted the harvesters. "The LORD be with you!" he said.

"The LORD bless you!" the harvesters replied.

⁵Then Boaz asked his foreman, "Who is that young woman over there? Who does she belong to?"

⁶And the foreman replied, "She is the young woman from Moab who came back with Naomi. ⁷She asked me this morning if she could gather grain behind the harvesters. She has been hard at work ever since, except for a few minutes' rest in the shelter."

⁸Boaz went over and said to Ruth, "Listen, my daughter. Stay right here with us when you gather grain; don't go to any other

Ruth (1:4-4:13)

The story of Ruth tells of a kind and loyal woman and of the hidden providence of God, who makes all things work together for the good of those who love him (Rom 8:28). This story, part of the history that leads to the Messiah himself, starts with sadness but ends happily.

Ruth lived during the turbulent period of the judges. A foreigner from Moab, she married into an Israelite family from Bethlehem when that family was in Moab. All the men of this Israelite family died in Moab, leaving behind three widows—Ruth, her mother-in-law Naomi, and her sister-in-law Orpah. When Naomi decided to return to her hometown of Bethlehem, Ruth cast her lot with her mother-in-law. Ruth's declaration of love, loyalty, and faith in the LORD (Naomi's God) has few equals (1:16-17).

As Naomi had expected, the situation in Bethlehem was difficult for her and her daughter-in-law. Ruth, by her own initiative, undertook solving the problem of food for herself and Naomi through the hard and risky task of gleaning in the grain fields (2:2). She acted with modesty, grace, and courtesy, but also with determination, focus, and endurance.

On Naomi's encouragement, Ruth then took the initiative in asking Boaz, the wealthy landowner who was supporting Ruth's gleaning, to marry her and to act as the family redeemer (3:9). In doing this, Ruth was exercising great "family loyalty" (3:10); Ruth's generous and diligent care for Naomi and her family is a major theme throughout this little book. Boaz responded to Ruth's proposal by calling her a "virtuous woman" (3:11), and she certainly embodied the characteristics of a virtuous and capable wife (cp. Prov 31:10-31, which uses the same Hebrew phrase and is placed immediately before Ruth in the Hebrew Bible).

Boaz settled legal matters and then married Ruth. The book ends by announcing the birth of a baby boy, Obed. With this ending we see an important purpose of the book of Ruth. Obed became the grandfather of King David. The NT includes Ruth as one of only five women mentioned in the genealogy of Jesus Christ (Matt 1:5). The everyday faithfulness of Ruth and Boaz had eternal significance as God worked out his purposes through them.

1:22 The beginning of the barley harvest was between late March and mid-April by our calendar.

2:1 Boaz was a relative of . . . Elimelech and thus was qualified to be a family redeemer for the two widows, Ruth and Naomi (see note on 2:20).

2:2 to pick up the stalks of grain left behind: Harvesters were to leave some grain for the poor to glean (see Lev 19:9-10; 23:22; Deut 24:19-22). God provided the poor with food.

2:3 as it happened, she found herself: Ruth seemingly selected at random the field in which she would glean; God works through ordinary choices to provide for those who trust him.

2:5 Boaz recognized Ruth as a marriageable young woman (Hebrew na'arah).

2:7 in the shelter: Many farmers in Israel's hill country erected shelters beside their fields for use during the harvest. Workers used these shelters for shade during lunch or other break times during the long, hard workday. Such shelters can still be seen in parts of the hill country.

2:8-9 Boaz gave Ruth the special privilege of gleaning right behind the young women. After the men cut the grain and tied it in small bundles, the women gathered the bundles into larger sheaves. The Torah did not fields. Stay right behind the young women working in my field. ⁹See which part of the field they are harvesting, and then follow them. I have warned the young men not to treat you roughly. And when you are thirsty, help yourself to the water they have drawn from the well."

¹⁰Ruth fell at his feet and thanked him warmly. "What have I done to deserve such kindness?" she asked. "I am only a foreigner."

¹¹"Yes, I know," Boaz replied. "But I also know about everything you have done for your mother-in-law since the death of your husband. I have heard how you left your father and mother and your own land to live here among complete strangers. ¹²May the LORD, the God of Israel, under whose wings you have come to take refuge, reward you fully for what you have done."

¹³"I hope I continue to please you, sir," she replied. "You have comforted me by speaking so kindly to me, even though I am not one of your workers."

¹⁴At mealtime Boaz called to her, "Come over here, and help yourself to some food. You can dip your bread in the sour wine." So she sat with his harvesters, and Boaz gave her some roasted grain to eat. She ate all she wanted and still had some left over.

¹⁵When Ruth went back to work again, Boaz ordered his young men, "Let her gather grain right among the sheaves without stopping her. ¹⁶And pull out some heads of barley from the bundles and drop them on purpose for her. Let her pick them up, and don't give her a hard time!"

¹⁷So Ruth gathered barley there all day, and when she beat out the grain that evening, it filled an entire basket. ¹⁸She carried it back into town and showed it to her mother-in-law. Ruth also gave her the roasted grain that was left over from her meal.

¹⁹"Where did you gather all this grain today?" Naomi asked. "Where did you work? May the LORD bless the one who helped you!"

So Ruth told her mother-in-law about the man in whose field she had worked. She said, "The man I worked with today is named Boaz."

²¹Then Ruth said, "What's more, Boaz even told me to come back and stay with his harvesters until the entire harvest is completed."

²²"Good!" Naomi exclaimed. "Do as he said, my daughter. Stay with his young women right through the whole harvest. You might be harassed in other fields, but you'll be safe with him."

²³So Ruth worked alongside the women in Boaz's fields and gathered grain with them until the end of the barley harvest. Then she continued working with them through the wheat harvest in early summer. And all the while she lived with her mother-in-law.

4. MEETING AT THE THRESHING FLOOR (3:1-18)

3 One day Naomi said to Ruth, "My daughter, it's time that I found a permanent home for you, so that you will be provided for. ²Boaz is a close relative of ours, and he's been very kind by letting you gather grain with his young women. Tonight he

2:13 your workers (literally your maid-servants): By her use of this term, Ruth placed herself lower on the social scale than Boaz.

2:14 By sharing his meal with Ruth, Boaz extended hospitality far beyond the call of duty.

2:15-16 Boaz's instructions to his reapers as they returned to work after lunch made Ruth's gleaning a great deal more productive. Boaz provided for Ruth much more than the law of gleaning required of him.

2:17 it filled an entire basket: Hebrew it was about an ephah [20 quarts or 22 liters].

2:18 In giving Naomi the roasted grain that was left over, Ruth was conscientious and generous.

2:19 all this grain: Ruth could not normally have gleaned nearly as much as an ephah of barley (about two-thirds of a bushel).

2:20 family redeemers (Hebrew go'el): The law specified that the go'el, the nearest male kinsman, was to help a relative who fell into economic difficulty (see "The Family Redeemer," facing page; see also note on Lev 25:25).

• to us as well as to your dead husband: Literally to the living and to the dead.

2:21 Ruth: Literally Ruth the Moabite. The author refers to Ruth as "the Moabite" five times (1:22; 2:2, 21; 4:5, 10), reminding us repeatedly that Ruth was not an Israelite.

3:1 a permanent home (literally a resting place): Naomi used a related word in 1:9 when she prayed for Ruth and Orpah. Now she suggested a course of action that might encourage Boaz to act on Ruth's behalf.

3:2 As a close relative, Boaz might act as a redeemer for Ruth and Naomi (see notes on 2:20; 3:9). • The threshing floor was a flat surface of stone or hardened earth. The farmer spread sheaves of grain over its surface and beat them to separate the grain from the straw. Then the farmer would begin winnowing by will be winnowing barley at the threshing floor. ³Now do as I tell you—take a bath and put on perfume and dress in your nicest clothes. Then go to the threshing floor, but don't let Boaz see you until he has finished eating and drinking. ⁴Be sure to notice where he lies down; then go and uncover his feet and lie down there. He will tell you what to do."

⁵"I will do everything you say," Ruth replied. ⁶So she went down to the threshing floor that night and followed the instructions of her mother-in-law.

⁷After Boaz had finished eating and drinking and was in good spirits, he lay down at the far end of the pile of grain and went to sleep. Then Ruth came quietly, uncovered his feet, and lay down. ⁸Around midnight Boaz suddenly woke up and turned over. He was surprised to find a woman lying at his feet! ⁹"Who are you?" he asked.

"I am your servant Ruth," she replied. "Spread the corner of your covering over me, for you are my ⁴family redeemer."

¹⁰"The LORD bless you, my daughter!" Boaz exclaimed. "You are showing even more family loyalty now than you did before, for you have not gone after a younger man, whether rich or poor. ¹¹Now don't worry about a thing, my daughter. I will do what is necessary, for everyone in town knows you are a virtuous woman. ¹²But while it's true that I am one of your family redeemers, there is another man who is more closely

In the book of Ruth, the phrase "family redeemer" has a specific, technical meaning. Elsewhere, the underlying Hebrew term go'el is translated "nearest relative" (Num 27:11; 35:19, 24). According to the law, family redeemers had three main responsibilities in Israel:

1. Leviticus 25:23-34 stipulates that if an Israelite became so poor that he had to sell his land, a family member was to pay off the debt so the land would remain in the family. If no relative could purchase the land and the seller was unable to buy it back, the land still reverted to the seller or his heirs in the Jubilee (fiftieth) Year. Two examples of family redeemers buying land for their relatives are Boaz (4:1-12) and Jeremiah (Jer 32:6-15).

2. Similarly, if an Israelite became so poor he had to sell himself into debt-slavery, a family redeemer was to buy his relative from service to a non-relative (Lev 25:35-55). The poor Israelite would pay off his debt by working for his relative, who could be expected to treat him better than a stranger would.

3. The family redeemer was to pursue justice for an Israelite killed by another's hand, under conditions described in Numbers 35:9-34.

The concept of the family redeemer reminds us that God is the true owner of all things, and he commands us to love our neighbor as ourselves (Lev 19:18; Matt 22:39-40). The NT presents Jesus as the perfect family redeemer, buying us from the slavery to sin and death into which we had sold ourselves (Matt 20:28; Rom 3:24-25; Eph 1:7; Titus 2:14; Rev 5:9; cp. Exod 6:6; 15:13; Ps 130:8; Isa 44:22; 59:20; 63:9; Jer 31:11). In the spirit of the OT family redeemer (such as Boaz) and following the example of our great Redeemer, we, too, are commanded to act with love and compassion toward others (Lev 19:11-18; Matt 5:43-48; 19:19; 22:37-40; Rom 13:8-10; Gal 5:14; Jas 2:8-9).

throwing the mixed straw and grain into the air with a wooden fork or shovel. The breeze carried the lighter straw and chaff downwind, while the heavier grains fell to the threshing floor.

3:3 take a bath (literally wash yourself): Ruth probably bathed herself with a cloth dipped in water (only the wealthy had facilities for immersing themselves). Bathing was not an everyday expectation; this was a special occasion.

3:4 Ruth was to uncover Boaz's feet to ensure that he would waken.

3:7 he lay down: The owner slept at the threshing floor to deter petty theft.

3:8 He was surprised (literally He was terrified): Boaz knew that a female lay at his feet, but he did not know who she was or why she was there.

3:9 your servant: Ruth deliberately identified herself with the female workers.

 Spread . . . your covering over me: This was a way of asking Boaz to marry her (cp. Ezek 16:8).  Ruth appealed to Boaz's status as a family redeemer (Hebrew go'el; see "The Family Redeemer," above) to persuade him to marry her (see 4:5).

3:10 You are showing even more family loyalty: Ruth was not obligated to come to Bethlehem with Naomi, nor did she have to marry within Elimelech's family or provide them with an heir to the land (see 4:5).

3:11 what is necessary (literally what you are asking): Boaz agreed to act on Ruth's behalf. Some interpreters understand Boaz's statement as an unconditional agreement to marry Ruth (see also note on 4:5); most take it to mean that Boaz would act to provide for Ruth and Naomi by presenting to the nearer kinsman the opportunity to act as family redeemer before taking the opportunity himself (4:1-12). By voluntarily taking on the role of the family redeemer for Ruth and Naomi, Boaz became a forerunner of Jesus (see "The Family Redeemer," above).

3:12-13 Another man was more closely related to Elimelech than Boaz. He had the first right of refusal to act as related to you than I am. ¹³Stay here tonight, and in the morning I will talk to him. If he is willing to redeem you, very well. Let him marry you. But if he is not willing, then as surely as the LORD lives, I will redeem you myself! Now lie down here until morning."

¹⁴So Ruth lay at Boaz's feet until the morning, but she got up before it was light enough for people to recognize each other. For Boaz had said, "No one must know that a woman was here at the threshing floor."

¹⁵Then Boaz said to her, "Bring your cloak and spread it out." He measured six scoops of barley into the cloak and placed it on her back. Then he returned to the town.

¹⁶When Ruth went back to her mother-in-law, Naomi asked, "What happened, my daughter?"

Ruth told Naomi everything Boaz had done for her, ¹⁷and she added, "He gave me these six scoops of barley and said, 'Don't go back to your mother-in-law empty-handed.'"

¹⁸Then Naomi said to her, "Just be patient, my daughter, until we hear what happens. The man won't rest until he has settled things today."

5. TRANSACTION AT THE CITY GATE (4:1-12)

4 Boaz went to the town gate and took a seat there. Just then the family redeemer he had mentioned came by, so Boaz called out to him, "Come over here and sit down, friend. I want to talk to you." So they sat down together. ²Then Boaz called ten leaders from the town and asked them to sit as witnesses. ³And Boaz said to the family redeemer, "You know Naomi, who came back from Moab. She is selling the land that belonged to our relative Elimelech. ⁴I thought I should speak to you about it so that you can redeem it if you wish. If you want the land, then buy it here in the presence of these witnesses. But if you don't want it, let me know right away, because I am next in line to redeem it after you."

The man replied, "All right, I'll redeem it."

⁵Then Boaz told him, "Of course, your purchase of the land from Naomi also requires that you marry Ruth, the Moabite widow. That way she can have children who will carry on her husband's name and keep the land in the family."

⁶"Then I can't redeem it," the "family family redeemer and (according to most interpreters) to marry Ruth.

3:15 six scoops: Literally six measures, an unknown quantity. There were two scoop sizes. The smaller measure (the omer) was $\frac{1}{10}$ of an ephah (about 2 quarts); the larger measure (the seah) was $\frac{1}{2}$ of an ephah (about 6 $\frac{2}{3}$ quarts). The latter quantity is more likely and indicates a very generous gift, twice the amount that Ruth gleaned on her first day (2:17); it was a significant token of good faith. • Then he: Most Hebrew manuscripts read he; many Hebrew manuscripts, Syriac version, and Latin Vulgate read she.

4:1 Most legal transactions, including property transfers, were carried out at the town gate. • friend: Boaz might or might not have used the man's name, but the author of Ruth avoided doing so (see note on 4:6).

4:3 Naomi . . . is selling the land: Naomi probably did not have control of Elimelech's ancestral land, though she did have legal title. She was selling the right to redeem it, or buy it back, from whoever was currently using it (see 4:4).

4:4 redeem it: The law called for a near relative, the family redeemer, to buy land when a landowner had to sell it (see Lev 25:23-34). This practice kept land in the family; the redeemer was a conservator for the land until the destitute landowner could recover economically and buy it back. • All right,

I'll redeem it: The kinsman could see a great opportunity—there was no male heir and no apparent likelihood that there would be one, so he could add the land to his own estate while doing his social duty for the family.

4:5 your purchase . . . requires that you marry Ruth (literally on the day you purchase . . . you acquire Ruth): In the Hebrew manuscripts that we have, the body of this verse reads I acquire, but a scribal correction in the margin reads you acquire, a difference of one letter. (The scribe believed you acquire was the original reading and that the body of the text contained an error.) Some interpreters believe the body of the Hebrew text (I acquire) is the original reading of the text, indicating that the marriage between Boaz and Ruth was already set to occur (see note on 3:11). Most translators, however, believe that the marginal correction (you acquire) represents the original reading of the text because: (1) The scribe who made the marginal correction believed that you acquire was the original reading; (2) most ancient translations of Ruth, which predate our oldest copies of the Hebrew text, also read you acquire; and (3) it is easy to envision that an earlier Hebrew scribe (working before our earliest manuscript copies) substituted the word I acquire—as it appears in 4:10—in place of you acquire. • That way she can have children who will carry on her husband's name and keep the land in the family: This sentence draws heavily on Deut 25:7. Boaz connected the duties of a family redeemer (see notes on 2:20; Lev 25:25) with the duties of a brother-in-law (Latin levir) to provide an heir for a deceased brother (see Deut 25:5-10 for a description of levirate marriage; cp. Gen 38). There is no precise precedent for Boaz's legal maneuver. The duty of the levir as stated in Deut 25:5-10 was not binding in this situation (neither Boaz nor the other kinsman was Elimelech's brother, and Ruth was not Elimelech's widow). Boaz was apparently using the spirit of the law concerning the go'el (family redeemer) to establish a moral, if not a legal, obligation to serve as levir and provide the deceased with an heir to inherit the land (see note on Lev 25:25). The concepts of land ownership and provision for an heir were intimately connected in ancient Israel (cp. Num 27:1-11). Because Naomi was beyond childbearing age, Ruth, the widow of Elimelech's son, would be the mother for such an heir. This maneuver apparently surprised the other kinsman (4:6), but it is clear from what follows that Boaz's argument, while perhaps novel, was accepted as valid.

4:6 Then I can't redeem it: The addition of Ruth to the transaction completely changed the equation for the other kinsman. • this might endanger my own estate: If he bought the land, married Ruth, and raised an heir for Elimelech, redeemer replied, "because this might endanger my own estate. You redeem the land; I cannot do it."

⁷Now in those days it was the custom in Israel for anyone transferring a right of purchase to remove his sandal and hand it to the other party. This publicly validated the transaction. ⁸So the other family redeemer drew off his sandal as he said to Boaz, "You buy the land."

⁹Then Boaz said to the elders and to the crowd standing around, "You are witnesses that today I have bought from Naomi all the property of Elimelech, Kilion, and Mahlon. ¹⁰And with the land I have acquired Ruth, the Moabite widow of Mahlon, to be my wife. This way she can have a son to carry on the family name of her dead husband and to inherit the family property here in his hometown. You are all witnesses today."

¹¹Then the elders and all the people standing in the gate replied, "We are witnesses! May the LORD make this woman who is coming into your home like Rachel and Leah, from whom all the nation of Israel descended! May you prosper in Ephrathah and be famous in Bethlehem. ¹²And may the LORD give you descendants by this young woman who will be like those of our ancestor Perez, the son of Tamar and Judah."

6. BOAZ MARRIES RUTH (4:13-17)

¹³So Boaz took Ruth into his home, and she became his wife. When he slept with her, the LORD enabled her to become pregnant, and she gave birth to a son. ¹⁴Then the women of the town said to Naomi, "Praise the LORD, who has now provided a redeemer for your family! May this child be famous in Israel. ¹⁵May he restore your youth and care for you in your old age. For he is the son of your daughter-in-law who loves you and has been better to you than seven sons!"

¹⁶Naomi took the baby and cuddled him to her breast. And she cared for him as if he were her own. ¹⁷The neighbor women said, "Now at last Naomi has a son again!" And they named him Obed. He became the father of Jesse and the grandfather of David.

7. EPILOGUE: DESCENDANTS OF PEREZ (4:18-22)

¹⁸This is the genealogical record of their ancestor Perez:

Perez was the father of Hezron.

Ram was the father of Amminadab.

²⁰Amminadab was the father of Nahshon.

Nahshon was the father of Salmon.

Boaz was the father of Obed.

he might invest many resources only to lose control of the new land, and he might not have enough to maintain his own land. If he then failed to have a second son with Ruth as his own heir, his land would be inherited by Elimelech's heir, and his own name would die out. Even if this kinsman had acquired the land and not Ruth (see notes on 3:11; 4:5), he still might lose his investment in the land to the heir born to Ruth. By acting to preserve his own name, this man became the no-name who refused to help his close relative.

4:7 in those days: The book of Ruth was not written immediately after these events. By the time Ruth was written, most people had forgotten this custom of removing a sandal and what it meant. The transfer of a sandal symbolized transferring a right of purchase to redeem the land. See also Deut 25:9 for a similar (but not identical) custom in relation to levirate marriage; in both cases, the sandal apparently signified the right of redemption.

4:10 And with the land (literally And besides): Boaz intended to raise an heir for Mahlon, the first son, who would carry on the family name of her dead husband and inherit his land.

4:11 Rachel and Leah, Jacob's two wives, were the mothers of Israel.
• Ephrathah: See note on 1:2.

4:12 Like Ruth, Tamar had been a foreigner; she became the mother of Perez and Zerah, through whom Judah's descendants came.

4:13 the LORD enabled: See note on 1:6.

4:14 This child replaced the family

Naomi had lost when her own two sons died in Moab. The women of the town recognized that this child completed the circle of redemption for Naomi.

4:15 care for you in your old age (literally cause your old age to be full): With the birth of Obed, Naomi's life was full again (cp. 1:21).

4:18-22 The book of Ruth ends with a genealogy of ten generations, from Perez, the son of Judah (Jacob's son), to David, the grandson of Obed. Besides being one of the world's great stories, this tale concerns the family history of David, Israel's greatest king. That Ruth and Boaz were ancestors of Israel's greatest king is a major reason for the inclusion of this small book in the OT.

4:20 Salmon: As in some Greek manuscripts (see also 4:21); Hebrew reads Salma.

THE FIRST BOOK OF Samuel

When neighboring nations are hostile, the right leadership can give people a sense of safety. In Samuel's time, Israel faced external threats and internal discord, and the judges did not satisfy the people's desire for leadership and security. Israel wanted a king. The book of 1 Samuel records Israel's transition from a federation of tribes to a centralized kingdom. Israel's first king, Saul, was not faithful to God. However, God's plan to save Israel—and the world—began to unfold in the person of King David.

SETTING

As early as Moses' final address on the plains of Moab (Deut 17:14-20), God had said that the people of Israel would ask for a king to reign over them. God spelled out the requirements for a king (Deut 17:15) but also warned of the evils commonly associated with human kings. A king would want many horses, numerous wives, and large amounts of gold and silver (Deut 17:16-17). To correct these tendencies, God required that each king of Israel immerse himself in God's law (Deut 17:18-20).

Throughout the days of the judges, discontent grew over the lack of unity among Israel's tribes (see Judg 17-21). By Samuel's time, Israel was looking for a king to unite the nation and protect it from internal and external threats.

Samuel, Saul, and David were all instrumental in overcoming these enemies and establishing Israel in the region. Gideon, who judged Israel about 100 years before the time of Samuel, had acted a lot like a monarch. Gideon rejected the invitation to inaugurate a hereditary dynasty (Judg 8:22-23), but he began to act like a king: He accumulated gold and used it to build a religious idol (Judg 8:24-27), he took many wives (Judg 8:30), and he even named one of his sons Abimelech, which means "my father is king" (Judg 8:31). Gideon acted like the kind of king God wanted Israel never to have. A monarchy would give an imperfect human even more control than the judges exercised. This book records the trouble that surrounded Israel's first king, Saul, as well as God's unfolding plan to establish an eternal kingship through the line of David.

SUMMARY

In 1 Sam 1-7, Samuel emerges as one of God's key servants. Samuel was born to a devout woman who had been barren (1:1-23). He became an apprentice in the Tabernacle as a young child under the supervision of Eli the priest

(1:24-3:18). It is possible that Samuel, a Levite (1 Chr 6:33-34), was originally being groomed to be a Tabernacle assistant. Instead, he became a prophet with a growing national reputation (3:19-4:1a). When the Philistines harassed the Israelites and captured the Ark of the Covenant (4:1b-7:2), Samuel is absent from the narrative—he was not yet prominent in Israel's national life. In ch 7, Samuel reappears strongly. He called Israel to repentance and, acting as a judge, drove out the Philistine oppressors, something Samson had failed to do.

Samuel's leadership as Levite, prophet, and judge spanned religious, spiritual, and political spheres. However, his sons did not prove worthy of carrying on in his place (8:1-3). Israel asked Samuel to appoint a king to lead them and make them like other nations. Samuel was outspoken in his opposition (8:10-21), yet the Lord instructed Samuel to anoint Saul as king (chs 9-10). In Samuel's farewell address (ch 12), he reminded the Israelites of God's power and care for them. He wanted them to realize their sin in asking for a king rather than trusting in the Lord.

Initially, Saul was a good king. He defeated the neighboring Ammonites and saved a city east of the Jordan from doom (ch 11). But by his disobedience to God, Saul soon proved that he was unworthy to be Israel's king (chs 13, 15). By contrast, Saul's noble son Jonathan (ch 14) seemed to be an ideal successor to his father. God, however, had different plans (chs 16-31). Jonathan would not succeed Saul. Instead, God instructed Samuel to anoint David secretly as Saul's successor while Saul was still king (16:1-13).

Saul's relationship with David was good at first, thanks in part to David's musical gifts (16:14-23). However, David's success with Goliath (ch 17) made Saul jealous (18:6-16), and their relationship turned sour. Saul then tried to eliminate the threat David posed to his kingship. He brought David into his family through marriage to have him nearby so it would be easier to kill him (18:17-29). He attacked David directly (19:1-10) and executed anybody who harbored David (chs 21-22). All of Saul's attempts to get rid of David proved unsuccessful.

Both Saul and Jonathan died in battle against the Philistines (31:1-6). This paved the way for David to begin his reign, though not without further difficulties (2 Sam 1:1-5:5).

AUTHOR

The title "Samuel" comes from the important role Samuel played in Israel's transition to a monarchy, not from the book's authorship. Samuel could have written parts of 1 Samuel, but he could not have written any part of 2 Samuel, as his death is recorded in 1 Sam 25:1. As with many OT books, the author of 1 Samuel is never identified.

COMPOSITION

1-2 Samuel were originally one book, the book of Samuel. The translators of the Septuagint (the Greek OT) divided it into two books, 1-2 Kingdoms. Later Hebrew tradition also divided the book but retained the name Samuel, as do most English versions.

Some scholars contend that 1-2 Samuel (along with 1-2 Kings, also one book originally) were created from a variety of sources during or after the Babylonian exile (586-538 BC). It is indeed possible that multiple sources were used in 1-2 Samuel. We know from 1 Chr 29:29, for example, that Samuel and the prophets Nathan and Gad chronicled events from the life of David. There is no reason to insist that the inspired author of 1-2 Samuel could not have made use of such information. However, the book could have been near its final form during or shortly after the reign of Solomon (971-931 BC).

Shortly after the exile to Babylon, the book of Samuel was incorporated into the larger body of material that includes Joshua, Judges, 1-2 Samuel, and 1-2 Kings. This section of Scripture has a clear purpose: It traces Israel's sacred history, beginning with blessing (conquering the land) and ending with judgment (losing the land). It explains to an audience in exile how their grave misfortune came about.

TEXT

The text of 1-2 Samuel that is found in the Greek OT (the Septuagint, 200s BC) is different in many places from the Hebrew (Masoretic) text (about AD 1000). The Hebrew texts of Samuel in the Dead Sea Scrolls (about 250-50 BC) found at Qumran agree in some places with the Septuagint, in other places with the Masoretic Text. In still other places they have their own readings. Readers will encounter notes such as "Hebrew lacks . . ." or "Greek reads . . ." more frequently in 1-2 Samuel than in other OT books. However, few of these textual variants significantly alter the book's meaning.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

The emphasis on kingship in 1 Samuel first appears in Hannah's Prayer of Praise (see 2:10). Hannah is the first person in Scripture to announce Israel's coming kingship. However, the idea that Israel would have a king was as old as God's promise to Abraham and Sarah (Gen 17:6, 16).

Simply as a source of stories to hold children spellbound [the books of Samuel] are incomparable, and moreover they provide an abundance of raw material from which to study the human condition, for they present real life with all its ambiguities. . . . The theology in these books is . . . an offer to those who will respond to the invitation to read and ponder the lives of those depicted here.

God neither mandated nor forbade a monarchy but only spelled out the excesses from which Israel's kings must abstain (see Deut 17:14-20).

During the period of the judges, Israel changed dramatically for the worse—both spiritually and nationally. This steady disintegration reaches a horrible climax in Judg 17–21. To help correct this decline, the book of Judges hints, Israel needed a king. Israel's greatest threat was not the Philistines or any other predatory neighbor but Israel itself and its breaking of the covenant. Israel needed a king to guard the covenant, which the pre-monarchical order had put at risk.

If the king's responsibility was to administer the covenant (Deut 17:18-20), the prophet's duty was to interpret its stipulations. For this reason, a prophet such as Samuel protected his divinely authorized claim over kings with a holy zeal. Not only did Samuel anoint Israel's first two kings (10:1; 16:13), but he was compelled to censure the king when he stepped outside of covenantal boundaries (13:8-15; 15:10-33).

Saul did not have the character or integrity needed to lead Israel into a successful, God-honoring monarchy. Saul was not fated to fall, as though he had no control over his decisions. In fact, God wanted him to be a good king and made every provision for that to happen (such as changing his heart and giving him his Spirit). But God does not force righteousness, holiness, or obedience. His grace is persuasive but not coercive.

Despite the deep disappointments of the era of the judges and the early monarchy, God's sovereign control over Israel's history is demonstrated in several ways: (1) A once-barren woman gave birth to Samuel, God's agent for the transition to monarchy (ch 1); (2) a devastating Philistine victory became a Philistine defeat without human help (chs 4–6); (3) the king whom the people demanded became God's anointed (chs 8–10); (4) this king was rejected for his unfaithfulness (chs 13, 15); and (5) the eighth son of an obscure family, a man after God's own heart, was chosen as the future king of Israel (ch 16).

Unlike Saul's rule, David's kingship over Israel lasted, and one of his descendants later became the sovereign and eternal King of the whole world. Jesus is the final heir to David's throne (John 7:42; Rev 5:5; 11:15). He perpetuates his ancestor's virtues but never exhibits his flaws. Jesus is the world's perfect and eternal Shepherd and King.

1. ESTABLISHMENT OF SAMUEL'S LEADERSHIP (1:1–7:17)

Samuel and the Word of the Lord (1:1–4:1a)
The Birth and Dedication of Samuel

1 There was a man named Elkanah who lived in Ramah in the region of Zuph in the hill country of Ephraim. He was the son of Jeroham, son of Elihu, son of Tohu, son of Zuph, of Ephraim. ²Elkanah had two wives, Hannah and Peninnah. Peninnah had children, but Hannah did not.

³Each year Elkanah would travel to Shiloh to worship and sacrifice to the LORD of Heaven's Armies at the Tabernacle. The

1:1 Elkanah was a Levite (1 Chr 6:22-27). After the conquest of the Promised Land, the Levites were given towns in the territories of the other Israelite tribes, including Ephraim (Josh 21:20). • Elkanah's hometown was Ramah (as in Greek version; Hebrew reads Ramathaim-zophim; cp. 1:19; 2:11). This location should not be confused with the Ramah in the tribal area of Benjamin (see Josh 18:25; Judg 19:13; Matt 2:18). • The region of Zuph was named after one of Elkanah's ancestors, a Levite of the clan of Kohath (1 Chr 6:35). Saul first met Samuel in Zuph while searching for his father's donkeys (9:5). • Elkanah's lengthy genealogy suggests he was socially prominent.

1:2 Hardly an instance exists in Scripture where a man's simultaneous marriage to two wives did not produce serious friction (1:6-7; Gen 16; 21; 29).

1:3 Elkanah made this trip each year;

the law required that people attend three annual festivals (Exod 23:14-17).

• According to God's law, Israelites were to sacrifice at God's chosen sanctuary (Deut 12:1-28). From the days of Joshua (Josh 18:1) through Samuel's era, God's sanctuary—the Tabernacle—was at Shiloh, a town in Ephraim some 8.5 miles north of Bethel en route to Shechem. King David eventually moved it to Jerusalem (2 Sam 6). • the LORD of Heaven's Armies: Throughout the Hebrew OT, God priests of the LORD at that time were the two sons of Eli—Hophni and Phinehas. ⁴On the days Elkanah presented his sacrifice, he would give portions of the meat to Peninnah and each of her children. ⁵And though he loved Hannah, he would give her only one choice portion because the LORD had given her no children. ⁶So Peninnah would taunt Hannah and make fun of her because the LORD had kept her from having children. ⁷Year after year it was the same—Peninnah would taunt Hannah as they went to the Tabernacle. Each time, Hannah would be reduced to tears and would not even eat.

⁸"Why are you crying, Hannah?" Elkanah would ask. "Why aren't you eating? Why be downhearted just because you have no children? You have me—isn't that better than having ten sons?"

⁹Once after a sacrificial meal at Shiloh, Hannah got up and went to pray. Eli the priest was sitting at his customary place beside the entrance of the Tabernacle. ¹⁰Hannah was in deep anguish, crying bitterly as she ^aprayed to the LORD. ¹¹And she made this vow: "O LORD of Heaven's Armies, if you will look upon my sorrow and answer my prayer and give me a son, then I will give him back to you. He will be yours for his entire lifetime, and as a sign that he has been dedicated to the LORD, his hair will never be cut."

¹²As she was praying to the LORD, Eli watched her. ¹³Seeing her lips moving but hearing no sound, he thought she had been drinking. ¹⁴"Must you come here drunk?" he demanded. "Throw away your wine!"

¹⁵"Oh no, sir!" she replied. "I haven't been drinking wine or anything stronger. But I am very discouraged, and I was pouring out my heart to the LORD. ¹⁶Don't think I am a ^bwicked woman! For I have been praying out of great anguish and sorrow."

¹⁷"In that case," Eli said, "go in peace! May the God of Israel grant the request you have asked of him."

¹⁸"Oh, thank you, sir!" she exclaimed.

The essence of a vow to God is, "If God will do X, then I will dedicate Y" to God or his sanctuary. Examples include Jacob's tithing (Gen 28:20-22), the Israelites' dealing with the Canaanite spoils of war (Num 21:2), Hannah's dedicating her son as a lifelong servant of the Lord (1:11), and Absalom's sacrificing to God at Hebron (2 Sam 15:8).

Guidelines for vows are frequently mentioned in the sacrificial laws. Israelites made vows conditional upon God's granting their requests. Then they would pay or fulfill their vows to God, often by giving offerings (e.g., Lev 7:16; 22:23; Deut 12:11).

However, vows could be abused. The law itself warns against this (Deut 23:21-23), as do the wisdom teachings (e.g., Prov 7:10-14; 20:25) and the books of the prophets (see, e.g., Jer 44:25). Saul was prone both to make foolish vows (14:24-28) and not to keep the vows he made (19:6). Impulsive vows might go unfulfilled and never paid, arousing God's anger. Not making a vow is better than backing out of one (Eccl 5:3-5). Jesus counsels us not to make vows, but simply to keep our word (Matt 5:33-37; cp. Jas 5:12).

is often referred to as Yahweh Tseba'oth or Elohim Tseba'oth. Traditionally, these titles have been translated "LORD of hosts" and "God of hosts." The term "hosts" (Hebrew tseba'oth, traditionally "sabaoth") usually means "armies." It can refer to human armies, such as the armies of Israel (e.g., 17:45) or foreign armies sent to fulfill the Lord's purposes (e.g., Isa 9:11-13). However, most often it refers to God's angelic armies sent from heaven to do his bidding and wage war on earth (e.g., 2 Kgs 6:17). This designation anticipates God's role as a mighty warrior in the episode involving the Ark of the Covenant and the Philistines (chs 4-6).

1:4 sacrifice . . . portions of the meat: Certain sacrifices involved sharing part of the sacrificial animal in a communal meal (see Lev 7:11-34).

1:5 And though he loved Hannah, he would give her only one choice portion: Or And because he loved Hannah, he would give her a choice portion. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

1:7 the Tabernacle: Literally the house of the LORD; also in 1:24. Also called "the Temple of the LORD" in 1:9. These designations reflect that the Tabernacle, a portable structure, served as the central sanctuary at Shiloh.

1:11 Hannah's vow was a promise to give the child back to the Lord as a Nazirite (see Num 6:1-21). Hannah might have hoped that her child would be another Samson (cp. Judg 13), a deliverer of God's people. * Some manuscripts add He will drink neither wine nor intoxicants at the end of the verse.

1:13-14 Some people might have used the feast times at Shiloh as an occasion to get drunk rather than to worship. Eli mistakenly assumed Hannah was another drunken reveler (cp. Acts 2:13-15).

1:16 wicked woman (Hebrew a daughter of Belial): An expression used to describe a worthless person. Belial ("worthlessness") is later used as a name for Satan (2 Cor 6:15). In Hebrew, a son of or daughter of a quality is a person who exemplifies that quality.

1:17-18 A blessing was more than mere wishful thinking. It was often God's means of conferring a real benefit (see, e.g., Gen 27:1-40; 28:1-4; 32:22-32; 48:1-49:28). Because this blessing from God's high priest provided assurance that Hannah's prayer would be answered, she was no longer sad.

Then she went back and began to eat again, and she was no longer sad.

¹⁹The entire family got up early the next morning and went to worship the LORD once more. Then they returned home to Ramah. When Elkanah slept with Hannah, the LORD “remembered her plea,”²⁰ and in due time she gave birth to a son. She named him Samuel, for she said, “I asked the LORD for him.”

²¹The next year Elkanah and his family went on their annual trip to offer a sacrifice to the LORD and to keep his vow. ²²But Hannah did not go. She told her husband, “Wait until the boy is weaned. Then I will take him to the Tabernacle and leave him there with the LORD permanently.”

²³“Whatever you think is best,” Elkanah agreed. “Stay here for now, and may the LORD help you keep your promise.” So she stayed home and nursed the boy until he was weaned.

²⁴When the child was weaned, Hannah took him to the Tabernacle in Shiloh. They brought along a three-year-old bull for the sacrifice and a basket of flour and some wine. ²⁵After sacrificing the bull, they brought the boy to Eli. ²⁶“Sir, do you remember me?” Hannah asked. “I am the very woman who stood here several years ago praying to the LORD. ²⁷I asked the LORD to give me this boy, and he has granted my request. ²⁸Now I am giving him to the LORD, and he will belong to the LORD his whole life.” And they worshiped the LORD there.

Samuel lived at the end of the period of the judges and ushered in the period of kingship. He was Israel's last judge (7:6, 15–17) and first prophet (3:20; Acts 3:24; 13:20). He functioned as a priest (2:18) and was a great man of faith (Heb 11:32).

Annually from Ramah to the Shiloh sanctuary (1:3). While at the sanctuary, Hannah, who was barren, prayed for a son and promised him to God for full-time service (1:9–11). God answered the prayer, and Samuel was born (1:19–20). When Samuel was weaned, Hannah took him to serve in the sanctuary with Eli, the high priest (1:24–28).

Eli's sons were wicked and pagan, but Samuel served the Lord. Soon it became clear that God spoke more intimately with Samuel than with Eli. God spoke to Samuel (3:1–18) to warn Eli of the coming disaster when the Philistines defeated Israel, killed Eli's sons, and took the Ark of the Covenant (chs 4–6). Later, under Samuel's leadership, the people repented of their sin of idolatry and succeeded in winning an important battle against the Philistines (7:3–17).

But as Samuel grew older, it became obvious that he suffered from the same weakness as Eli did before him. Samuel's sons were evil (8:1–3), and the people did not want them to assume leadership over the nation. So the people saw the need for a king who could lead them in battle against their enemies (8:4–5).

The transition from the era of the judges to kingship was turbulent. As priest, Samuel prayed for the people; as prophet, he reproved Saul for impatience and disobedience (13:5–14; 15:20–23). When God rejected Saul as king, Samuel anointed David as God's chosen one (16:1–13) and protected David from Saul (19:18–24).

Through prayer and perseverance, Samuel was a faithful leader (Jer 15:1; Acts 13:20; Heb 11:32) who cherished his people's well-being and courageously rebuked kings and elders. He led Israel from tribal disunity to national solidarity and established the monarchy. He wrote The Record of Samuel the Seer (1 Chr 29:29) and defined ideal kingship (10:25). When he died, he was mourned by all Israel. He was buried in Ramah, his hometown (25:1).

Hannah's Prayer of Praise (2:1-10)

Exod 15:21
Luke 1:46-55, 67-79

Hannah's Prayer of Praise (2:1-10) and Mary's Song of Praise (Luke 1:46-55) both emphasize God bringing down the rich and powerful and exalting the poor and the downtrodden (2:7-8; Luke 1:52-53). The rich, unrighteous rulers of the land (Eli, Saul, Herod) will be brought down, while the leaders who fulfill God's purposes (Samuel, David, Jesus) will be exalted.

Like Samuel, Jesus was dedicated at God's Temple (Luke 2:22-38). As Samuel had anointed David for service (16:13), John the Baptist and the Holy Spirit anointed Jesus (Matt 3:13-17; Mark 1:9-11; Luke 3:21-22). Samuel and David were the God-ordained means of fulfilling God's purposes for Israel. Hannah's song gives us a key to understanding God's purposes for Jesus; like Samuel and David, he would be a ruler and the Savior of God's people.

At the births of Samuel and Jesus, their mothers' songs represented the right response of all of God's people. God, who works decisively and redemptively, is worthy of praise.

(2:3-9), and his ability to strengthen his chosen king (2:10). David's prayer in 2 Sam 22 is another beautiful proclamation of God's saving power as it relates to his chosen king (2:10).

2:1 made me strong (literally has exalted my horn; cp. 2:10): The horn of a powerful animal, such as an ox or bull, was a symbol of strength that was held high in triumph after defeating an enemy (cp. 1 Kgs 22:11).

2:2 no one besides you: David responded similarly after receiving God's promises concerning his kingship (2 Sam 7:22). • Rock (cp. 2 Sam 22:2-3, 32): God provides stability and security for those who trust in him.

2:3 proud and haughty: Peninnah typified this attitude (see 1:6-7). Hannah, by contrast, was humbly dependent on God.

2:4-8 Hannah celebrated God's sovereign ability to radically reverse human circumstances.

2:5 those who were starving are now full: Cp. 1:7, 18. • The phrase seven children poetically means that the childless woman would be blessed with a house full of children (cp. 2:21).

2:6 to the grave: Hebrew to Sheol.

2:7-8 Cp. Ps 113:7-9.

2:8 all the earth is the LORD's: God, the creator and ruler of all things, is able to change circumstances (2:4-8), protect the faithful (2:9), judge the wicked, and empower his anointed king (2:10).

2:10 The king was to fulfill the descriptions of 2:4-9 by using his God-given power to care for the oppressed, the hungry, and the barren (see Ps 72:1-4, 12-14; Prov 31:8-9). • he increases the strength: Literally he exalts the horn.

See note on 2:1. • anointed one (Hebrew Messiah): This climax to Hannah's prayer is prophetic both of Israel's anointed kings and of God's supreme Anointed King—the Messiah, Jesus Christ (see 12:3-5; 24:6, 10; Ps 132:17; Dan 9:25-26).

2:12 scoundrels (Hebrew sons of Belial): See note on 1:16. • had no respect for (literally did not know) the LORD: Although they were priests among God's people, they did not acknowledge God or seek to abide by his will (cp. Jer 2:8).

2:13-17 The priests were supposed to receive their portion of the meat only after it had been boiled (see Num 6:19). Eli's sons disregarded God's instructions (2:13-14, 17).

duties as priests. Whenever anyone offered a sacrifice, Eli's sons would send over a servant with a three-pronged fork. While the meat of the sacrificed animal was still boiling, ¹⁴the servant would stick the fork into the pot and demand that whatever it brought up be given to Eli's sons. All the Israelites who came to worship at Shiloh were treated this way. ¹⁵Sometimes the servant would come even before the animal's fat had been burned on the altar. He would demand raw meat before it had been boiled so that it could be used for roasting.

¹⁶The man offering the sacrifice might reply, "Take as much as you want, but the fat must be burned first." Then the servant would demand, "No, give it to me now, or I'll take it by force." ¹⁷So the sin of these young men was very serious in the LORD's sight, for they treated the LORD's offerings with contempt.

¹⁸But Samuel, though he was only a boy, served the LORD. He wore a linen garment like that of a priest. ¹⁹Each year his mother made a small coat for him and brought it to him when she came with her husband for the sacrifice. ²⁰Before they returned home, Eli would bless Elkanah and his wife and say, "May the LORD give you other children to take the place of this one she gave to the LORD." ²¹And the LORD blessed Hannah, and she conceived and gave birth to three sons and two daughters. Meanwhile, Samuel grew up in the presence of the LORD.

²²Now Eli was very old, but he was aware of what his sons were doing to the people of Israel. He knew, for instance, that his sons were seducing the young women who assisted at the entrance of the Tabernacle. ²³Eli said to them, "I have been hearing reports from all the people about the wicked things you are doing. Why do you keep sinning? ²⁴You must stop, my sons! The reports I hear among the LORD's people are

Eli (2:11–4:22)

1 Sam 1:9-18, 25-28
1 Kgs 2:27

Eli was Israel's chief priest at the Tabernacle at Shiloh, Israel's central shrine, during the period of the judges. Eli apparently descended from Ithamar, Aaron's youngest son (cp. 1 Kgs 2:27; 1 Chr 18:16; 24:3). Eli was sincere and devout, but he was weak and indulgent in parenting his wicked sons, Hophni and Phinehas.

When Eli encountered Hannah at the Tabernacle, he accused her of drunkenness as she fervently but silently asked God for a child. Upon realizing his mistake, Eli blessed Hannah, and God answered Hannah's prayer by giving her Samuel.

Samuel "grew in favor with the LORD and with the people" (2:26), but Eli's sons "were scoundrels who had no respect for the LORD" (2:12). They stole from the offerings and seduced women who served at the Tabernacle. When Eli reproached them, they disregarded him. God sent a prophet to denounce Eli's weakness and his sons' wickedness and to announce that God would withdraw the priesthood from Eli's family (2:27-36). This oracle was confirmed when God spoke to Samuel at night, telling him that he would soon punish Eli's family (3:1-14). Shortly thereafter, Israel's army was defeated in battle against the Philistines, the Ark of the Covenant was captured, and Eli's sons were killed (4:1-11). When Eli heard the news, he fell over backward and broke his neck (4:12-18). Eli was ninety-eight years old when he died. His daughter-in-law went into labor and died delivering Eli's grandson, named Ichabod ("where is the glory?" 4:19-22) because the glory had departed from Israel.

Eli's priestly line survived, however, until David's reign ended. Abiathar was Eli's last descendant to serve as chief priest. Since he supported Adonijah's attempt to usurp David's throne, Solomon removed Abiathar from office and replaced him with Zadok (1 Kgs 2:27).

2:15 God's law stipulated that the sacrificial animal's fat was the Lord's portion and had to be burned on the altar first (Lev 3:3-17).

2:18 The clause Samuel . . . served the LORD describes the ritual service of Levites and priests (see, e.g., Num 3:4; 8:19, 24; Deut 18:7). Like Eli's sons, Samuel was a Levite (see note on 1:1). But unlike Eli's sons, he lived up to his calling. • He wore a linen garment like that of a priest: Literally He wore a linen ephod, as did the priests who ministered in the sanctuary (see 22:18, "priestly garments").

2:20 Eli would bless: Blessing was one of the functions of a priest (Num 6:23-27; Deut 10:8; 1 Chr 23:13). See note on 1:17-18. • this one she gave to the LORD: As in Dead Sea Scrolls and Greek version; Masoretic Text reads this one he requested of the LORD.

2:21 Samuel grew up: See note on 2:26.

2:22-25 Eli's weak attempts to change his sons' behavior (cp. 2:29) indicate that he had raised them without discipline (3:13).

2:22 seducing . . . women: Eli's sons had probably been influenced by Canaanite religious practices, which included sex as part of the ritual. • who assisted at the entrance: See Exod 38:8. • Tabernacle: Literally Tent of Meeting. Some manuscripts lack this entire sentence.

not good. ²⁵If someone sins against another person, God can mediate for the guilty party. But if someone sins against the LORD, who can intercede?" But Eli's sons wouldn't listen to their father, for the LORD was already planning to put them to death.

²⁷One day a man of God came to Eli and gave him this message from the LORD: "I revealed myself to your ancestors when they were Pharaoh's slaves in Egypt. ²⁸I chose your ancestor Aaron from among all the tribes of Israel to be my priest, to offer sacrifices on my altar, to burn incense, and to wear the priestly vest as he served me. And I assigned the sacrificial offerings to you priests. ²⁹So why do you scorn my sacrifices and offerings? Why do you give your sons more honor than you give me—for you and they have become fat from the best offerings of my people Israel!

³⁰"Therefore, the LORD, the God of Israel, says: I promised that your branch of the tribe of Levi would always be my priests. But I will honor those who honor me, and I will despise those who think lightly of me. ³¹The time is coming when I will put an end to your family, so it will no longer serve as my priests. All the members of your family will die before their time. None will reach old age. ³²You will watch with envy as I pour out prosperity on the people of Israel. But no members of your family will ever live out their days. ³³The few not cut off from serving at my altar will survive, but only so their eyes can go blind and their hearts break, and their children will die a violent death. ³⁴And to prove that what I have said will come true, I will cause your two sons, Hophni and Phinehas, to die on the same day!

³⁵"Then I will raise up a faithful priest who will serve me and do what I desire. I will establish his family, and they will be priests to my anointed kings forever. ³⁶Then all of your surviving family will bow before him, begging for money and food. 'Please,' they will say, 'give us jobs among the priests so we will have enough to eat.'"

Samuel's Call to God's Service

3 Meanwhile, the boy Samuel served the LORD by assisting Eli. Now in those days messages from the LORD were very rare, and visions were quite uncommon.

²One night Eli, who was almost blind by now, had gone to bed. ³The lamp of God had not yet gone out, and Samuel was sleeping in the Tabernacle near the Ark of God. ⁴Suddenly the LORD called out, "Samuel!" "Yes?" Samuel replied. "What is it?" ⁵He got up and ran to Eli. "Here I am. Did you call me?" "I didn't call you," Eli replied. "Go back to bed." So he did.

"I didn't call you, my son," Eli said. "Go back to bed."

2:25 God (or the judges; Hebrew 'elohim): The Hebrew verb translated mediate is plural here, and when 'elohim means "God," it often appears with a singular verb. In addition, some ancient translations render 'elohim as "judges" here. If that is the correct translation, then the judges would mediate for the guilty party in a common human court. However, many Hebrew scholars believe that 'elohim should never be translated "judges." If this is the case, in what sense could God mediate for the guilty party? Possibly Eli considered the court verdict to come directly from God. God might work through his revealed law or other circumstances to either acquit or convict an individual charged with wrongdoing. Or Eli might have been referring to the sacrificial system. • The sexual immorality (2:22) and gluttony (2:12-17) of Eli's sons were sins against the LORD because they were corrupting Israel's worship of him. No one can intercede for sinners who rebel so completely against God's will (cp. Matt 12:31). • Eli's sons did not listen to their father because the Lord had already begun to punish them by hardening their hearts (cp. Exod 4:21; 7:3; 8:15-32; 10:27; 11:10).

2:26 As children, both Samuel and Jesus possessed extraordinary qualities (2:21; see also Luke 2:40, 52). Samuel was one of Christ's forerunners.

2:27 Man of God is another name for a prophet (9:6; 1 Kgs 13:1; 2 Kgs 1:9). • I revealed myself: As in Greek and Syriac versions; Hebrew reads Did I reveal myself.

2:28 your ancestor Aaron: Literally your father. • the priestly vest: Literally an ephod (see note on 2:18).

2:29 By failing to stop his sons' wickedness, Eli showed contempt for God's sacrifices and offerings. Eli benefited from his sons' activities, and God held Eli responsible for letting them continue.

2:30 that your branch of the tribe of Levi (literally that your house and your father's house) would always be my priests: See Exod 29:9; Num 25:13. God would honor another of Aaron's descendants (see note on 2:35) and despise Eli's family, removing them from the priesthood (2:31-35).

2:32-33 live out their days . . . their hearts break: In the OT, a short life often expresses God's disfavor, while long life represents God's blessing (cp. Gen 15:15; 1 Kgs 3:14; Ps 91:16).

2:33 die a violent death: As in Dead Sea Scrolls and Greek version, which read die by the sword; Masoretic Text reads die like mortals.

2:35 a faithful priest: Zadok and his descendants later replaced Eli's family in the priesthood (1 Kgs 2:26-27, 35).

3:1 messages . . . were very rare . . . visions were quite uncommon: God was not disclosing his will through prophets or priests, so the period was spiritually dark. However, that darkness was about to end when God communicated with Samuel (3:2-4:1a).

3:2 Eli was almost blind, both physically and spiritually (3:1).

3:3 The priests were responsible for keeping the lamp of God burning through the night (Exod 27:20-21; 30:7-8). • That Samuel was sleeping in the Tabernacle (literally the Temple of the LORD; see note on 1:7) near the Ark symbolizes his nearness to God's presence and purpose, in contrast to Eli and his sons.

⁷Samuel did not yet know the LORD because he had never had a message from the LORD before. ⁸So the LORD called a third time, and once more Samuel got up and went to Eli. "Here I am. Did you call me?"

Then Eli realized it was the LORD who was calling the boy. ⁹So he said to Samuel, "Go and lie down again, and if someone calls again, say, 'Speak, LORD, your servant is listening.'" So Samuel went back to bed.

¹⁰And the LORD came and called as before, "Samuel! Samuel!"

And Samuel replied, "Speak, your servant is listening."

¹¹Then the LORD said to Samuel, "I am about to do a shocking thing in Israel. ¹²I am going to carry out all my threats against Eli and his family, from beginning to end. ¹³I have warned him that judgment is coming upon his family forever, because his sons are blaspheming God and he hasn't disciplined them. ¹⁴So I have vowed that the sins of Eli and his sons will never be forgiven by sacrifices or offerings."

Samuel Speaks for the LORD

¹⁵Samuel stayed in bed until morning, then got up and opened the doors of the Tabernacle as usual. He was afraid to tell Eli what the LORD had said to him. ¹⁶But Eli called out to him, "Samuel, my son."

"Here I am," Samuel replied.

¹⁷"What did the LORD say to you? Tell me everything. And may God strike you and even kill you if you hide anything from me!" ¹⁸So Samuel told Eli everything; he didn't hold anything back. "It is the LORD's will," Eli replied. "Let him do what he thinks best."

¹⁹As Samuel grew up, the LORD was with him, and everything Samuel said proved to be reliable. ²⁰And all Israel, from Dan in the north to Beersheba in the south, knew that Samuel was confirmed as a prophet of the LORD. ²¹The LORD continued to appear at Shiloh and gave messages to Samuel there at the Tabernacle. ^{4:1}And Samuel's words went out to all the people of Israel.

The Ark in Exile (4:1b–7:17)

The Philistines Capture the Ark

4 At that time Israel was at war with the Philistines. The Israelite army was camped near Ebenezer, and the Philistines were at Aphek. ²The Philistines attacked and defeated the army of Israel, killing 4,000 men. ³After the battle was over, the troops retreated to their camp, and the elders of Israel asked, "Why did the LORD allow us to be defeated by the Philistines?" Then they said, "Let's bring the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD from Shiloh. If we carry it into battle with us, it will save us from our enemies."

⁴So they sent men to Shiloh to bring the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD of Heaven's

3:7 Samuel did not yet know the LORD: He lacked direct experience of the Lord. In contrast, Eli's sons did not know the Lord (see note on 2:12) in that they were morally and spiritually deficient.

3:8 Eli realized: Despite his many shortcomings, Eli was not completely without spiritual insight.

3:10 The doubling of the name calls attention to the seriousness of the moment (cp. Gen 22:11; Exod 3:4; Matt 27:46; Luke 22:31; Acts 9:4). • Samuel omits "LORD" (see 3:9) from his response either out of reverence for the name or because of a lingering uncertainty about who was speaking.

3:11 The phrase a shocking thing conveys the magnitude and severity of God's judgment. God's actions would also be of national significance for Israel (cp. 2 Kgs 21:12; Jer 19:3).

3:12 my threats: See 2:27-36.

3:13 his sons are blaspheming God: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads his sons have made themselves contemptible. They were expressing contempt for God through their actions. • hasn't disciplined them: Eli rebuked his sons (2:23-25), but he did not restrain them.

3:14 Neither blood sacrifices nor offerings would be acceptable on behalf of Eli and his sons. The offerings of Lev 4–5 were for sins committed inadvertently or unintentionally, whereas the sins of Eli and his sons were deliberate and rebellious.

3:15 the Tabernacle: Literally the house of the LORD. See note on 1:7. • Samuel was afraid to tell Eli of God's plans for him and his family either because he respected Eli's position or he feared for his own safety.

3:19 proved to be reliable: Samuel was an authentic prophet (3:20; see Deut 18:21-22).

3:20 The whole nation, from Dan in the north to Beersheba in the south, acknowledged that Samuel was God's prophet. • confirmed as a prophet: The reliability of Samuel's message (3:19) made it evident that God was speaking through him.

3:21–4:1a The LORD continued to appear: God reopened the lines of communication with Israel through Samuel (cp. 3:1). • Shiloh: See note on 1:3.

4:1b–7:2 The crisis surrounding the Ark of the Covenant demonstrated Israel's need for Samuel's leadership and fulfilled prophecies about Eli and his sons (3:11-14).

4:1b the Philistines: See "The Philistines" at 5:1–6:18, p. 477. • The exact location of Ebenezer is unknown. It was probably just east of Aphek (see also 7:12 and note). • Aphek was west of Shiloh, well inland and well north of Philistine territory. By camping there, the Philistines might have been trying to seize more Israelite territory.

4:3 The Israelites were often defeated in war because of the sin of one individual or the entire nation (Josh 7). In this defeat, no one inquired whether sin was the cause; apparently no one had even asked the Lord whether they should engage the Philistines in the first place (cp. 1 Chr 14:13-16). Instead, the Israelites treated the Ark, the most sacred symbol of the Lord's presence, as a charm to ward off misfortune. Carrying the Ark into battle was not necessarily wrong (cp. Josh 6:2-21), but neither would this act ensure God's blessing and victory. • it will save us: Or he will save us.

4:4 LORD of Heaven's Armies: See note on 1:3. • enthroned between the cherubim: A representation of God's glorious Armies, who is enthroned between the ^dcherubim. Hophni and Phinehas, the sons of Eli, were also there with the Ark of the Covenant of God. ⁵When all the Israelites saw the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD coming into the camp, their shout of joy was so loud it made the ground shake!

⁶"What's going on?" the Philistines asked. "What's all the shouting about in the Hebrew camp?" When they were told it was because the Ark of the LORD had arrived, ⁷they panicked. "The gods have come into their camp!" they cried. "This is a disaster! We have never had to face anything like this before! ⁸Help! Who can save us from these mighty gods of Israel? They are the same gods who destroyed the Egyptians with plagues when Israel was in the wilderness. ⁹Fight as never before, Philistines! If you don't, we will become the Hebrews' slaves just as they have been ours! Stand up like men and fight!"

¹⁰So the Philistines fought desperately, and Israel was defeated again. The slaughter was great; 30,000 Israelite soldiers died that day. The survivors turned and fled to their tents. ¹¹The Ark of God was captured, and Hophni and Phinehas, the two sons of Eli, were killed.

The Death of Eli

¹²A man from the tribe of Benjamin ran from the battlefield and arrived at Shiloh later that same day. He had torn his clothes and put dust on his head to show his grief. ¹³Eli was waiting beside the road to hear the news of the battle, for his heart trembled for the safety of the Ark of God. When the messenger arrived and told what had happened, an outcry resounded throughout the town.

¹⁴"What is all the noise about?" Eli asked.

The messenger rushed over to Eli, ¹⁵who was ninety-eight years old and blind. ¹⁶He said to Eli, "I have just come from the battlefield—I was there this very day."

"What happened, my son?" Eli demanded.

¹⁷"Israel has been defeated by the Philistines," the messenger replied. "The people have been slaughtered, and your two sons, Hophni and Phinehas, were also killed. And the Ark of God has been captured."

¹⁸When the messenger mentioned what had happened to the Ark of God, Eli fell backward from his seat beside the gate. He

The Ark of the Covenant (4:3, 6-11)

The Ark was "The Ark of the LORD's Covenant" (Num 10:33; Deut 10:8; 31:9, 25-26). Its contents included the tablets of the covenant (the Ten Commandments). The Ark reminded Israel of God's covenant with them and was placed within the Most Holy Place in the sanctuary.

The Ark served as a sign of God's presence. It was carried around Jericho before that city was invaded (Josh 6:6-7). It also appeared when Israel headed out into the wilderness (Num 10:33-36) and crossed the Jordan River into the Promised Land (Josh 3:4-6), and in the siege of the Ammonite city of Rabbah during David's time (2 Sam 11:11).

The Philistines equated the Ark with Israel's God (4:6-8). This is understandable, because the Philistines brought images of their own gods into battle (2 Sam 5:21). The Israelites were not to use images of the divine, so they viewed the Ark as the Lord's footstool and temporary residence rather than his image. However, the Israelites developed an idolatrous, pagan point of view. They treated the sacred symbol as a fetish and tried to manipulate God's presence for their own benefit. They reasoned, "If the Ark is with us, then God's presence and favor in battle will also be with us." As their defeat that day showed, God cannot be manipulated—he is the ruler of his people, and he must be obeyed and trusted (cp. Josh 5:13-15).

presence hovered over the Ark in the Most Holy Place (God's "throne room"). • The involvement of Eli's sons, Hophni and Phinehas, foreshadows the disaster that ensued (see 3:11-14).

4:6-7 Like the Israelites, the Philistines regarded the Ark as a powerful talisman (see 4:2-3) and believed that its presence in battle would mean sure disaster for them. • the gods have come: Or A god has come.

4:8 the same gods who destroyed the Egyptians: The Philistines, who worshipped many gods, knew of the Lord's power. Yet they knew nothing of his nature as the one true God. • destroyed . . . with plagues: The Lord later showed his power against the Philistines similarly (see 5:6-6:6).

4:10 30,000 was more than seven times as many as had died previously without the Ark (4:2). The Israelites learned the hard way that the Ark was not a talisman to ward off misfortune.

4:11 That the Ark . . . was captured was devastating to the Israelites (4:12-22). • The deaths of Hophni and Phinehas fulfilled the Lord's word to Eli (2:34).

Although they are the only casualties named, they were not the only Israelites who had sinned (see 7:3-6).

4:12 had torn his clothes and put dust on his head: This phrase indicates grief and loss (e.g., Josh 7:6; 2 Sam 1:2; 15:32; Job 2:12).

4:15 blind: See 3:2 and note.

4:18 Eli fell backward: Either he was startled or he had a heart attack when he heard the message. Eli's fatal fall symbolizes his family's fall from the priesthood and the end of the abomination that his sons began (2:12-17).

broke his neck and died, for he was old and overweight. He had been Israel's judge for forty years.

¹⁹Eli's daughter-in-law, the wife of Phinehas, was pregnant and near her time of delivery. When she heard that the Ark of God had been captured and that her father-in-law and husband were dead, she went into labor and gave birth. ²⁰She died in childbirth, but before she passed away the midwives tried to encourage her. "Don't be afraid," they said. "You have a baby boy!" But she did not answer or pay attention to them.

²¹She named the child Ichabod (which means "Where is the glory?"), for she said, "Israel's 'glory' is gone." She named him this because the Ark of God had been captured and because her father-in-law and husband were dead. ²²Then she said, "The glory has departed from Israel, for the Ark of God has been captured."

The Ark in Philistine Territory

5 After the Philistines captured the Ark of God, they took it from the battleground at Ebenezer to the town of Ashdod. ²They carried the Ark of God into the temple of Dagon and placed it beside an idol of Dagon. ³But when the citizens of Ashdod went to see it the next morning, Dagon had fallen with his face to the ground in front of the Ark of the LORD! So they took Dagon and put him in his place again. ⁴But the next morning the same thing happened—Dagon had fallen face down before the Ark of the LORD again. This time his head and hands had broken off and were lying in the doorway. Only the trunk of his body was left intact. ⁵That is why to this day neither the priests of Dagon nor anyone who enters the temple of Dagon in Ashdod will step on its threshold.

⁶Then the LORD's heavy hand struck the people of Ashdod and the nearby villages with a plague of tumors. ⁷When the people realized what was happening, they cried out, "We can't keep the Ark of the God of Israel here any longer! He is against us! We will all be destroyed along with Dagon, our god." ⁸So they called together the rulers of the Philistine towns and asked, "What should we do with the Ark of the God of Israel?"

The rulers discussed it and replied, "Move it to the town of Gath." So they moved the

◀ The Ark of the Covenant in Philistia (4:1-11; 5:1-7:2). The arrows show the route that the Ark traveled. Israel carried the Ark into battle thinking it had magical powers to protect them (4:1-5). The Philistines, however, captured the Ark (4:6-11) and took it along the GREAT TRUNK ROAD to ASHDOD, then to GATH and EKRON (5:1-12). The Ark itself was no talisman, but it represented the Lord's holy presence. The Philistine idol fell before it, and in each city, the Lord's holiness brought a plague against the Philistines themselves. Finally, the Philistines sent the Ark back to the Israelites, who took it with joy to KIRIATH-JEARIM (6:1-7:2).

• Israel's judge: See Judges Introduction, p. 416. Priesthood and judgeship were not incompatible (cp. Exod 18:13-26; Deut 17:8-13). Samuel replaced Eli as Israel's judge and provided leadership that Eli had failed to provide (see 7:12-17). • The phrase for forty years incorporates Eli's career into the conceptual and temporal framework of the book of Judges (cp. Judg 3:11; 5:31; 8:28; 13:1).

4:20-21 The name Ichabod contains the Hebrew word kabod (glory; see Exod 24:15-17). A similar word is used to describe Eli in 4:18 (Hebrew kabed, "heavy"). The disappearance of the Ark parallels the demise of Eli's house. Although the Israelites experienced a stunning loss of divine glory and protection (cp. Ezek 8-10; Luke 19:41-44; 21:20-24), God's glorious presence would subsequently return to his people (ch 6; cp. Ezek 43:1-8).

5:1 Ebenezer: See note on 4:1b. • Ashdod, one of the five important Philistine cities (see 6:17), was located along the same major trade highway (the Great Trunk Road) as Aphek.

5:2 Dagon was one of the Philistines' gods (see Judg 16:23-24). The name could be related to the Hebrew dag ("fish"), an appropriate name for a god of seafaring people. More likely, it reflects the Hebrew dagan ("grain"), suggesting a fertility or agriculture god.

5:4 his head and hands had broken off: A symbol of God's supremacy over the idol (5:7; see also 17:51).

5:5 step on its threshold: While the Philistines might have believed that Dagon's amputations resulted from their failure to honor the god properly, the true failure was in worshiping an idol rather than honoring the one true God (Isa 44:6-20).

5:6 tumors: Greek version and Latin Vulgate read tumors; and rats appeared in their land, and death and destruction were throughout the city (cp. 6:4). The Hebrew term can mean simply "swellings." A possible alternative translation is "hemorrhoids." They were possibly the fatal buboes of bubonic plague, which attack the lower body, especially the rectal area. Rats are known carriers of the plague.

5:8 rulers (or overlords): Each of the five major Philistine cities had its own ruler (6:16-18). • Move it: Despite the obvious danger, the Philistines relished their captured trophy enough to relocate it rather than return it. • Gath, one of the five major Philistine cities, was nearby.

Ark of the God of Israel to Gath. ⁹But when the Ark arrived at Gath, the LORD's heavy hand fell on its men, young and old; he struck them with a plague of tumors, and there was a great panic.

¹⁰So they sent the Ark of God to the town of Ekron, but when the people of Ekron saw it coming they cried out, "They are bringing the Ark of the God of Israel here to kill us, too!" ¹¹The people summoned the Philistine rulers again and begged them, "Please send the Ark of the God of Israel back to its own country, or it will kill us all." For the deadly plague from God had already begun, and great fear was sweeping across the town. ¹²Those who didn't die were afflicted with tumors; and the cry from the town rose to heaven.

The Return of the Ark to Israel

6 The Ark of the LORD remained in Philistine territory seven months in all. ²Then the Philistines called in their priests and diviners and asked them, "What should we do about the Ark of the LORD? Tell us how to return it to its own country."

³"Send the Ark of the God of Israel back with a gift," they were told. "Send a guilt offering so the plague will stop. Then, if you are healed, you will know it was his hand that caused the plague."

⁴"What sort of guilt offering should we send?" they asked.

And they were told, "Since the plague has struck both you and your five rulers, make five gold tumors and five gold rats, just like those that have ravaged your land. ⁵Make these things to show honor to the God of Israel. Perhaps then he will stop afflicting you, your gods, and your land. ⁶Don't be stubborn and rebellious as Pharaoh and the Egyptians were. By the time God was finished with them, they were eager to let Israel go.

¹⁰So these instructions were carried out. Two cows were hitched to the cart, and their newborn calves were shut up in a pen. ¹¹Then the Ark of the LORD and the chest containing the gold rats and gold tumors were placed on the cart. ¹²And sure enough, without veering off in other directions, the cows went straight along the road toward Beth-shemesh, lowing as they went. The Philistine rulers followed them as far as the border of Beth-shemesh.

¹³The people of Beth-shemesh were harvesting wheat in the valley, and when they saw the Ark, they were overjoyed! ¹⁴The cart came into the field of a man named Joshua and stopped beside a large rock. So the people broke up the wood of the cart for a fire and killed the cows and sacrificed them to the LORD as a burnt offering. ¹⁵Several men of the tribe of Levi lifted the Ark of the LORD and the chest containing the gold rats and gold tumors from the cart and placed them on the large rock. Many sacrifices and burnt offerings were offered to the LORD that day by the people of Beth-shemesh. ¹⁶The five Philistine rulers watched all this and then returned to Ekron that same day.

¹⁷The five gold tumors sent by the Philistines as a guilt offering to the LORD were 5:9 God often used great panic to incapacitate and overwhelm Israel's enemies (14:15, 20; Deut 7:23; Ezek 22:5; Amos 3:9).

5:10 Ekron, another of the five major Philistine cities (see 6:17), was just five miles north of Gath.

5:11 it will kill us: Or he will kill us.

6:2 priests and diviners: Divination was a part of Philistine religion (cp. 28:7; Deut 18:10-14).

6:3 It is unlikely the Philistines were aware of Israelite worship regulations. A Philistine guilt offering would have been a payment to the deity in an attempt to avert his wrath (contrast "Atonement" at Lev 16:1-34, p. 223).

6:4 rats: See note on 5:6.

6:6 The Philistines had thought they could overcome the Lord by fighting harder (4:9). They had defeated the Israelites, but they now realized that they could not defeat Israel's God.

6:7 shut their calves away: If the cows went against their maternal nature and left their calves to take the Ark to Israel, it would prove that the plague was from Israel's God (6:9).

6:9 Beth-shemesh was the closest Israelite town to Ekron (5:10).

6:13 Harvesting wheat was usually done in May or June.

6:14 This burnt offering could have been for forgiveness of sin (see 7:9-10; Lev 1:3-17), but it was more likely a freewill expression of love or thanksgiving (see Lev 22:18-22).

6:15 Providentially, the Ark had arrived in Beth-shemesh (6:13), which was a Levite city (Josh 21:13-16). The men of the tribe of Levi who lived there could safely move the Ark (see Num 4:15).

gifts from the rulers of Ashdod, Gaza, Ashkelon, Gath, and Ekron. ¹⁸The five gold rats represented the five Philistine towns and their surrounding villages, which were controlled by the five rulers. The large rock at Beth-shemesh, where they set the Ark of the LORD, still stands in the field of Joshua as a witness to what happened there.

¹⁹But the LORD killed seventy men from Beth-shemesh because they looked into the Ark of the LORD. And the people mourned greatly because of what the LORD had done. ²⁰"Who is able to stand in the presence of the LORD, this holy God?" they cried out. "Where can we send the Ark from here?"

²¹So they sent messengers to the people at Kiriath-jearim and told them, "The Philistines have returned the Ark of the LORD. Come here and get it!"

7 So the men of Kiriath-jearim came to get the Ark of the LORD. They took it to the hillside home of Abinadab and ordained Eleazar, his son, to be in charge of it. ²The Ark remained in Kiriath-jearim for a long time—twenty years in all. During that time all Israel mourned because it seemed the LORD had abandoned them.

Samuel, the Last of Israel's Judges

³Then Samuel said to all the people of Israel, "If you want to return to the LORD with all your hearts, get rid of your foreign gods and your images of Ashtoreth. Turn your hearts to the LORD and obey him alone; then he will rescue you from the Philistines." ⁴So the Israelites got rid of their images of Baal and Ashtoreth and worshiped only the LORD.

⁵Then Samuel told them, "Gather all of

The Philistines, situated on the southeast coastal plain of the Mediterranean, were part of a larger group of maritime immigrants from the Aegean area known by the Egyptians as the "Sea Peoples." They settled on Palestine's lower coastal plain around 1200 BC and established the five cities of Ashdod, Ashkelon, Ekron, Gaza, and Gath. Far from being unenlightened and unsophisticated, the Philistines were politically capable and technologically advanced.

The Philistines were fierce warriors. Their advances in iron technology made them an almost invincible foe (13:19-22). They were constant adversaries of the Israelites in the days of the judges (approximately 1350~1050 BC) and the early united monarchy (approximately 1050~970 BC). Saul eventually died at the hands of the Philistines (ch 31). David vanquished them before becoming king (18:20-30; 19:8; 23:1-5) and after (2 Sam 5:17-25; 8:1; 21:15, 18-22). While the Philistines never completely disappeared while Israel was a nation (2 Kgs 18:8; 2 Chr 17:11; 21:16-17; 26:6-7; 28:18), David effectively ended this menacing threat.

In 1 Samuel, God used the Philistines to eliminate the sinful family of Eli (4:10-22). The Philistines were also God's tool for building David's military and political career (17:32-58; 18:20-29). They distracted Saul when he was about to capture David (23:26-28), provided David with refuge from Saul (21:10-15; 27:1-12), prevented David from having to fight his own people (ch 29), and by killing Saul and his sons (ch 31), opened the way for David to become king. In the end, the Philistines experienced God's judgment (see Ezek 25:15-16; Amos 1:6-8).

Ekron: These five major Philistine cities were located on or near the Great Trunk Road. This major ancient trade route connected Egypt with Mesopotamia via the coastal plain of Canaan. Each city was governed by a kinglike ruler (6:16).

6:19 seventy men: As in a few Hebrew manuscripts; most Hebrew manuscripts read 70 men, 50,000 men. Perhaps the text should be understood to read the LORD killed 70 men and 50 oxen. The smaller death toll is more likely than 50,070 because Beth-shemesh was a small village. • because they looked into the Ark: Physical contact with the Ark was prohibited (Num 4:15; 2 Sam 6:6-8), as was looking inside it (Num 4:20). Those who were killed lacked reverence for God's holiness.

6:20 Who is able to stand? Even God's people were not immune to his wrath when his holiness was violated. • Where can we send the Ark? When faced with God's holiness, the Israelites echoed the distress of the pagan Philistines (6:2).

6:21 Kiriath-jearim was nearby, about ten miles northeast of Beth-shemesh.

7:1 The men of Kiriath-jearim who transported the Ark and Eleazar were probably Levites (see 6:15; Num 1:47-51). • in charge of it: The same verb describes the Levites' duty of guarding the Tabernacle (Num 1:53; 3:7).

7:2 Twenty years covers the time until Samuel assembled the people at Mizpah (7:5-6). David later brought the Ark to Jerusalem (2 Sam 6:1-19).

7:3-10 The change in the people's standing with God, not the presence of the Ark (see 4:3-11), led Israel to victory against the Philistines.

7:3 People cannot expect God's blessing unless they get rid of what is contrary to his will (see Gen 35:2; Josh 24:14).

• Ashtoreth (also called Asherah) was the Canaanite goddess of fertility associated with Baal (7:4). Worship of Asherah was an ongoing problem throughout Israel's history (e.g., Deut 12:3; 1 Kgs 16:33). The people started worshiping idols during the twenty-year period mentioned in 7:2, or perhaps they had done so ever since the days of the judges (8:8; Judg 6:25; cp. Amos 5:25-26). Israel's devastating defeat by the Philistines was due not only to the sins of Eli's two sons but to several generations of unfaithfulness to God.

Israel to Mizpah, and I will pray to the LORD for you." ⁶So they gathered at Mizpah and, in a great ceremony, drew water from a well and poured it out before the LORD. They also went without food all day and confessed that they had sinned against the LORD. (It was at Mizpah that Samuel became Israel's judge.)

⁷When the Philistine rulers heard that Israel had gathered at Mizpah, they mobilized their army and advanced. The Israelites were badly ⁸frightened when they learned that the Philistines were approaching. ⁹"Don't stop pleading with the LORD our God to save us from the Philistines!" they begged Samuel. ¹⁰So Samuel took a young lamb and offered it to the LORD as a whole burnt offering. He pleaded with the LORD to help Israel, and the LORD answered him.

¹¹Just as Samuel was sacrificing the burnt offering, the Philistines arrived to attack Israel. But the LORD spoke with a mighty voice of thunder from heaven that day, and the Philistines were thrown into such confusion that the Israelites defeated them. ¹²The men of Israel chased them from Mizpah to a place below Beth-car, slaughtering them all along the way.

¹³Samuel then took a large stone and placed it between the towns of Mizpah and Jeshanah. He named it Ebenezer (which means "the stone of help"), for he said, "Up to this point the LORD has helped us!"

¹⁴So the Philistines were subdued and didn't invade Israel again for some time. And throughout Samuel's lifetime, the LORD's powerful hand was raised against the Philistines. ¹⁵The Israelite villages near Ekron and Gath that the Philistines had captured were restored to Israel, along with the rest of the territory that the Philistines had taken. And there was peace between Israel and the Amorites in those days.

¹⁶Samuel continued as Israel's judge for the rest of his life. ¹⁷Each year he traveled around, setting up his court first at Bethel, then at Gilgal, and then at Mizpah. He judged the people of Israel at each of these places. ¹⁸Then he would return to his home at Ramah, and he would hear cases there, too. And Samuel built an altar to the LORD at Ramah.

2. ESTABLISHMENT OF SAUL'S KINGSHIP (8:1–12:25)

The People's Demand for a King (8:1–22)

¹As Samuel grew old, he appointed his sons to be ²judges over Israel. ³Joel and Abijah, his oldest sons, held court in Beersheba. ⁴But they were not like their father, for they were greedy for money. They accepted bribes and perverted justice.

⁵Finally, all the elders of Israel met at Ramah to discuss the matter with Samuel. ⁶"Look," they told him, "you are now old, and your sons are not like you. Give us a king to judge us like all the other nations have."

7:5 Mizpah was an administrative center and rallying point for the nation (see 7:16; 10:17; Judg 20:1). • I will pray . . . for you: Eli's question in 2:25 is answered here; Samuel was the intercessor Israel needed.

7:6 drew water . . . poured it out: This type of ceremony is not mentioned elsewhere in the OT. • At times Israelites went without food to express grief or to seek the Lord's favor (2 Sam 1:12; 12:22-23; 1 Kgs 21:27; Ezra 8:21-23; Neh 9:1; Esth 4:3, 16; Joel 2:12; cp. Luke 2:37; Acts 13:2-3; 14:23). • To have Samuel as Israel's judge was refreshing compared to Eli's failed leadership (see 4:18 and note) and the leadership of some other judges (e.g., Gideon, Judg 8:22-27; Jephthah, Judg 11:30-12:7; and Samson, Judg 13:1-16:21).

7:9 The whole burnt offering was probably for forgiveness of sin (see Lev 1:1-4). • The LORD answered with a forceful thunderclap (7:10).

7:10 voice of thunder: See 2:10. God often used similar tactics to throw Israel's enemies into confusion and defeat them (e.g., Exod 14:24; 23:27; Josh 10:10; Judg 4:15).

7:12 Ebenezer: The location of this stone memorial is unknown. The Philistines had defeated Israel and captured the Ark at a place with the same name (4:1; 5:1). Samuel erected this memorial to commemorate God's help in turning the tide against the Philistine attacks. • Jeshanah: As in Greek and Syriac versions; Hebrew reads Shen.

7:13 The Philistines were quiet for some time—until Saul became king (see 13:5). • God's powerful hand, not Samuel's giftedness, was the key factor in Israel's deliverance from the Philistines.

7:14 The Amorites had inhabited Canaan and the region east of the Jordan before Israel's conquest of the Promised Land (see Gen 15:16; Deut 3:8; Josh 2:10). Some Amorites remained in the area after the conquest (see 2 Sam 21:2).

7:15 judge for the rest of his life: Once Saul became king (ch 10), Samuel's role was more judicial than military.

7:16 Bethel and Mizpah were places of national assembly in the judges era (Judg 20:1, 18, 26; 21:1-2). Bethel's significance went back to the days of Abraham (Gen 12:8; 13:3-4; 28:10-22; 35:1-15). • Gilgal, located near Jericho, had been a sacred place since Joshua's day (Josh 4:19-24; 5:2-10). From this circuit, Samuel influenced "all the people of Israel" (10:17).

7:17 Ramah was Samuel's hometown (see 1:1).

8:1–12:25 During Israel's transition to a monarchy, neither God (8:7-9) nor Samuel (12:1-25) was pleased by the people's demand for a king. Saul, the first king (chs 9–11), failed in his role (chs 13–31) and fulfilled Samuel's warnings (see 8:10-18; cp. 16:1-13).

8:2 Samuel's two oldest sons functioned as judges in Beersheba, fifty miles south of their father's home.

8:3 they were not like their father: They were more like Eli's two sons (2:12-17). Their corruption was a primary reason the era of the judges ended.

8:5 you are now old, and your sons are not like you: Judges tended to be local leaders; kings, as national leaders, were more capable of uniting a whole nation

They don't want me to be their king any longer. ⁸Ever since I brought them from Egypt they have continually abandoned me and followed other gods. And now they are giving you the same treatment. ⁹Do as they ask, but solemnly warn them about the way a king will reign over them."

¹⁰So Samuel passed on the LORD's warning to the people who were asking him for a king. ¹¹"This is how a king will reign over you," Samuel said. "The king will draft your sons and assign them to his chariots and his charioteers, making them run before his chariots. ¹²Some will be generals and captains in his army, some will be forced to plow in his fields and harvest his crops, and some will make his weapons and chariot equipment. ¹³The king will take your daughters from you and force them to cook and bake and make perfumes for him. ¹⁴He will take away the best of your fields and vineyards and olive groves and give them to his own officials. ¹⁵He will take a tenth of your grain and your grape harvest and distribute it among his officers and attendants. ¹⁶He will take your male and female slaves and demand the finest of your cattle and donkeys for his own use. ¹⁷He will demand a tenth of your flocks, and you will be his slaves. ¹⁸When that day comes, you will beg for relief from this king you are demanding, but then the LORD will not help you."

¹⁹But the people refused to listen to Samuel's warning. "Even so, we still want a king," they said. ²⁰"We want to be like the nations around us. Our king will judge us and lead us into battle."

²¹So Samuel repeated to the LORD what the people had said, ²²and the LORD replied, "Do as they say, and give them a king." Then Samuel agreed and sent the people home.

One reason the nation of Israel wanted a king was to be "like all the other nations." The institution of kingship in other ancient Near Eastern nations was almost 2,000 years old by the time of Saul and David, especially in the Egyptian and Babylonian empires. Other much smaller nations—such as Philistia, Moab, and Edom—also had kings with permanent bureaucracies and standing armies. Kings were believed to be the chosen instruments through which deities governed human affairs, so kings reigned either as gods or for the gods.

The Israelites envied other nations and were not interested in the long-term implications of monarchy, in spite of Samuel's warnings (8:10-18). Several hundred years of monarchy would prove that Samuel's apprehensions were justified: Wicked kings eventually led God's chosen nation into foreign domination and exile. Yet the monarchy would also provide the Messiah through David and his dynasty, and God established the Messiah's kingdom forever (see 2 Sam 7:8-16; Matt 21:1-11; Rev 5:5; 11:15). God used monarchy to fulfill his purposes.

in times of crisis (8:20). However, a spiritual problem underlay the request for a king (8:7-8). • Other nations, such as Egypt and Sumer, had monarchies for almost 2,000 years before Samuel's time.

8:6 Samuel was displeased: He probably felt personally rejected (8:7).

8:7 Do everything they say: God rarely instructed a prophet to heed the voice of the errant populace. The will of the people and the will of God would converge in King David (see 2 Sam 7:8-17). • they are rejecting me: Their rejection of judgeship was a deeper rejection of God's rule and sovereignty (see also 12:1-17).

8:8 followed other gods: The people's request for a king was tantamount to idolatry. Israel's monarchy was a divine concession rather than a divine gift. Kingship or any other human institution becomes idolatrous when it replaces trust in God.

8:10-18 These verses list the disadvantages of kingship. Each sentence begins with something the king would take. A king would be a confiscator, not just a protector.

8:11 While the people wanted a king to judge them, Samuel warned that the king would reign over them. They wanted a leader but received a ruler.

8:12-17 The king would take people as well as possessions.

8:12 generals and captains in his army: Literally commanders of thousands and commanders of fifties.

8:15 A tenth of the harvest was already required as a sacred donation to support God's Temple and servants (Deut 12:6, 17-18; 14:22-29; 26:12-15). The king would demand an additional tenth, a burdensome amount given the uncertainties of agriculture.

8:16 cattle: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads young men.

8:17 you will be his slaves: By demanding a king, the people whose ancestors had once been slaves in Egypt were risking a new enslavement (cp. 1 Kgs 12:1-20).

8:18 The people would beg for relief as their ancestors had done in Egypt under another punishing and exacting ruler (see Exod 3:7).

8:20 God had set Israel apart from the nations (Lev 20:26; Num 23:9). By insisting on a king and desiring to be like the nations, they were rejecting God's plan (see 8:5-7; cp. Deut 17:14). • judge us and lead us into battle: Kings performed three basic functions: (1) waging offensive and defensive war, (2) administering law, and (3) ensuring economic well-being.

8:21 repeated to the LORD: The role of a prophet included bringing the people's case before God (cp. Num 27:5).

8:22 give them a king: See note on 8:7; cp. Rom 1:24-26.

Saul Becomes an Effective King (9:1–12:25)
Samuel Anoints Saul

9 There was a wealthy, influential man named Kish from the tribe of Benjamin. He was the son of Abiel, son of Zeror, son of Becorath, son of Aphiah, of the tribe of Benjamin. ²His son Saul was the most handsome man in Israel—head and shoulders taller than anyone else in the land.

³One day Kish's donkeys strayed away, and he told Saul, "Take a servant with you, and go look for the donkeys." ⁴So Saul took one of the servants and traveled through the hill country of Ephraim, the land of Shalishah, the Shalim area, and the entire land of Benjamin, but they couldn't find the donkeys anywhere.

⁵Finally, they entered the region of Zuph, and Saul said to his servant, "Let's go home. By now my father will be more worried about us than about the donkeys!"

⁶But the servant said, "I've just thought of something! There is a man of God who lives here in this town. He is held in high honor by all the people because everything he says comes true. Let's go find him. Perhaps he can tell us which way to go."

⁷"But we don't have anything to offer him," Saul replied. "Even our food is gone, and we don't have a thing to give him."

⁸"Well," the servant said, "I have one small silver piece. We can at least offer it to the man of God and see what happens!" ⁹(In those days if people wanted a message from God, they would say, "Let's go and ask the seer," for prophets used to be called seers.)

¹⁰"All right," Saul agreed, "let's try it!" So they started into the town where the man of God lived.

¹¹As they were climbing the hill to the town, they met some young women coming out to draw water. So Saul and his servant asked, "Is the seer here today?"

¹⁴So they entered the town, and as they passed through the gates, Samuel was coming out toward them to go up to the place of worship.

¹⁵Now the LORD had told Samuel the previous day, ¹⁶"About this time tomorrow I will send you a man from the land of Benjamin. Anoint him to be the leader of my people, Israel. He will rescue them from the Philistines, for I have looked down on my people in mercy and have heard their cry."

¹⁷When Samuel saw Saul, the LORD said, "That's the man I told you about! He will rule my people."

¹⁸Just then Saul approached Samuel at the gateway and asked, "Can you please tell me where the seer's house is?"

¹⁹"I am the seer!" Samuel replied. "Go up to the place of worship ahead of me. We will eat there together, and in the morning I'll tell you what you want to know and send you on your way. ²⁰And don't worry about those donkeys that were lost three days ago, for they have been found. 9:1–11:15 Saul's rise to power involved a threefold sequence: (1) his secret anointing by Samuel (9:1–10:16), (2) his selection by lot (10:17–27), and (3) his victory over the Ammonites (11:1–15). See also note on 13:1–16:13.

9:1 influential man named Kish: Saul came from a wealthy family.

9:2 Saul's mere appearance—most handsome . . . taller than anyone else—inspired loyalty among the people (see 10:23; cp. 16:12; 2 Sam 14:25–26).

9:5 Zuph, which was probably located in Ephraim, was Samuel's home region (1:1). God's providence led Saul there.

9:6 The phrase man of God was used to describe a prophet (2:27; also Deut 33:1; Josh 14:6; 1 Kgs 13:1–32).

9:7 anything to offer him: Evidently, it was customary to take a gift when one sought the help of a prophet (cp. 1 Kgs 14:2–3; 2 Kgs 5:5, 15; 8:8). Some false prophets demanded gifts in return for their services (Mic 3:11). Saul's concern might reflect the spiritual ignorance of thinking that advice from a prophet of God could be purchased (Acts 8:20).

9:8 one small silver piece: Hebrew $\frac{1}{4}$ shekel of silver, about 0.1 ounces or 3 grams in weight.

9:12 Leaders of a community would normally convene for business at the town gates (cp. Ruth 4:1–2). • take part in a public sacrifice: Samuel is one of very few individuals in whom prophetic and priestly ministries unite (also Moses, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and Jesus). • place of worship (literally high place): An open-air altar or platform on a hill near the city gate. High places easily became sites for pagan idolatry (see Num 33:52; 1 Kgs 15:14; 22:43; 2 Kgs 12:3; 14:4; 15:4, 35).

9:13 to eat: Part of a sacrifice made during worship was burned on the altar, while the remainder was eaten in a ceremonial feast by the guests (see also 1:4). • to bless the food: As a Levite, Samuel's priestly role included offering blessings (see Deut 10:8; 21:5).

9:16 God's directive to anoint him (by pouring olive oil on the head) marked Saul's elevation in status and consecration for a special purpose (see Exod 30:22–33; Lev 8:12; 1 Kgs 19:16; Isa 45:1). • He will rescue them: As they had requested (8:20; cp. Judg 13:5). David eventually subdued the Philistines (2 Sam 5:17–25; 8:1; 21:15, 18–22). • for I have . . . heard their cry (cp. Exod 3:7–9): The Philistines were again threatening to conquer Israel and demand homage from them as vassals.

9:21 the smallest tribe: Saul tried to downplay Benjamin's prominence, but they were powerful warriors (Judg 20:14–31; cp. note on 10:17). What better tribe to lead in battle? • least important of all the families: Cp. 9:1.

my family is the least important of all the families of that tribe! Why are you talking like this to me?"

²²Then Samuel brought Saul and his servant into the hall and placed them at the head of the table, honoring them above the thirty special guests. ²³Samuel then instructed the cook to bring Saul the finest cut of meat, the piece that had been set aside for the guest of honor. ²⁴So the cook brought in the meat and placed it before Saul. "Go ahead and eat it," Samuel said. "I was saving it for you even before I invited these others!" So Saul ate with Samuel that day.

²⁵When they came down from the place of worship and returned to town, Samuel took Saul up to the roof of the house and prepared a bed for him there. ²⁶At daybreak the next morning, Samuel called to Saul, "Get up! It's time you were on your way." So Saul got ready, and he and Samuel left the house together. ²⁷When they reached the edge of town, Samuel told Saul to send his servant on ahead. After the servant was gone, Samuel said, "Stay here, for

I have received a special message for you from God."

10 Then Samuel took a flask of olive oil and poured it over Saul's head. He kissed Saul and said, "I am doing this because the LORD has appointed you to be the ruler over Israel, his special possession. ²When you leave me today, you will see two men beside Rachel's tomb at Zelzah, on the border of Benjamin. Saul (9:1–11:15)

1 Sam 13:1–31:13
2 Sam 1:1–27
1 Chr 9:35–10:14

Saul was the first king of Israel. He was chosen by God and the people, but he failed tremendously because he lacked confidence in himself and in God. Saul was a very complex character who sometimes elicits our sympathy. He was also the source of his own problems, especially as he brought heartache and trouble into the lives of those close to him.

Saul, the son of a wealthy landowner, became king unexpectedly and reluctantly. The people had requested a king to help them fight their battles, so they were happy with Saul, who was a head taller than anyone else (10:23). Their military problems were overwhelming, however, and Saul was not a confident military leader. Had it not been for the prophet Samuel and Saul's son Jonathan, Saul's reign might have been marked by complete disaster.

Saul offended God by taking rash vows during wartime (14:16–46) and wrongly performing sacrifices before battle rather than waiting for Samuel (13:7b–14). He also failed to obey God's instruction to destroy all the people and plunder of the Amalekites (ch 15). So God determined to remove Saul from the kingship and sent Samuel to anoint David. Soon Saul was deeply suspicious of David, his son's best friend and his own most loyal servant. The reluctant king became a despot, clinging to power at all costs.

Saul was wounded in battle against the Philistines, then fell on his own sword. His death was a result of God's judgment. Although David had spent considerable time fleeing from Saul, he honored the first king and his son Jonathan with a moving eulogy (2 Sam 1:17–27).

9:25 A typical house had a flat roof that was used for a variety of purposes, such as sleeping in warm weather (see Deut 22:8; 2 Kgs 4:10). • and prepared a bed for him there: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads and talked with him there.

10:1 Samuel later repeated this process by anointing David with olive oil (16:13). • The people of Israel did not belong to the king but to the Lord. The king was to act as manager rather than owner (cp. 8:10–18). • over Israel, his special possession: Greek version reads over Israel. And you will rule over the LORD's people and save them from their enemies around them. This will be the sign to you that the LORD has appointed you to be leader over his special possession.

10:2–6 These three "signs" were to convince a reluctant Saul (9:21) that he had in fact been chosen to be king.

10:2 Rachel's tomb at Zelzah: See Gen 35:16–20; the precise location is unknown.

10:3 oak of Tabor: This location, somewhere in Benjamin, is not to be confused with the village of the same name in Zebulun (1 Chr 6:77). • Bethel: See note on 7:16.

10:5 Gibeah of God (Hebrew Gibeath-haelohim), Saul's hometown (10:26), had been a lawless city (Judg 19–21). Nowhere else is it described as being "of God." This description might point to God's ownership of the town despite the occupation of the Philistines. • band: Prophets often lived in groups located, you will meet a band of prophets coming down from the place of worship. They will be playing a harp, a tambourine, a flute, and a lyre, and they will be prophesying. ⁶At that time the Spirit of the LORD will come powerfully upon you, and you will prophesy with them. You will be changed into a different person. ⁷After these signs take place, do what must be done, for God is with you. ⁸Then go down to Gilgal ahead of me. I will join you there to sacrifice burnt offerings and peace offerings. You must wait for seven days until I arrive and give you further instructions."

⁹As Saul turned and started to leave, God gave him a new heart, and all Samuel's signs were fulfilled that day. ¹⁰When Saul and his servant arrived at Gibeah, they saw a group of prophets coming toward them. Then the Spirit of God came powerfully upon Saul, and he, too, began to prophesy. ¹¹When those who knew Saul heard about it, they exclaimed, "What? Is even Saul a prophet? How did the son of Kish become a prophet?"

¹²And one of those standing there said, "Can anyone become a prophet, no matter who his father is?" So that is the origin of the saying "Is even Saul a prophet?"

¹³When Saul had finished prophesying, he went up to the place of worship. ¹⁴"Where have you been?" Saul's uncle asked him and his servant.

"We were looking for the donkeys," Saul replied, "but we couldn't find them. So we went to Samuel to ask him where they were."

¹⁵"Oh? And what did he say?" his uncle asked.

¹⁶"He told us that the donkeys had already been found," Saul replied. But Saul didn't tell his uncle what Samuel said about the kingdom.

Saul Publicly Proclaimed King

¹⁷Later Samuel called all the people of Israel to meet before the LORD at Mizpah. ¹⁸And he said, "This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, has declared: I brought you from Egypt and rescued you from the Egyptians and from all of the nations that were oppressing you. ¹⁹But though I have rescued you from your misery and distress, you have rejected your God today and have said, 'No, we want a king instead!' Now, therefore, present yourselves before the LORD by tribes and clans."

²⁰So Samuel brought all the tribes of Israel before the LORD, and the tribe of Benjamin was chosen by lot. ²¹Then he brought each family of the tribe of Benjamin before the LORD, and the family of the Matrites was chosen. And finally Saul son of Kish was chosen from among them. But when they looked for him, he had disappeared! ²²So they asked the LORD, "Where is he?"

And the LORD replied, "He is hiding among the baggage." ²³So they found him and brought him out, and he stood head and shoulders above anyone else.

²⁴Then Samuel said to all the people, "This is the man the LORD has chosen as your king. No one in all Israel is like him!"

And all the people shouted, "Long live the king!"

²⁵Then Samuel told the people what the rights and duties of a king were. He wrote them down on a scroll and placed it before the LORD. Then Samuel sent the people home again.

(e.g., 2 Kgs 2:3). • harp . . . lyre: Ancient prophets sometimes used musical instruments to stimulate and accompany prophesying (e.g., 2 Kgs 3:15).

10:6 prophesy: Cp. 2 Sam 23:2; Acts 2:29-31. • different person: Saul would become a spiritual and charismatic national leader (cp. 16:14).

10:7 for God is with you: God's presence empowered Saul to carry out his responsibilities.

10:8 Gilgal: See note on 7:16. • wait for seven days: Saul apparently fulfilled this instruction in 11:14-15 (cp. 13:8).

10:9 a new heart: God gave Saul courage and strength, helping him overcome his hesitancy and enabling him to be king (10:6).

10:10 the Spirit of God came powerfully upon Saul: See "The Spirit's Presence" at 16:13-23, p. 494; see also 11:6; Judg

14:6, 19; 15:14; cp. Acts 2:17-18, 39).

• When Saul . . . began to prophesy, it was a clear sign that he had been chosen to lead Israel (see also 19:18-23).

10:11 Those who knew Saul might have known him to be nonreligious and thus an unlikely candidate for prophet. Their surprise might indicate disappointment at receiving a prophet instead of a king (cp. John 6:14-15).

10:12 "Can anyone become a prophet, no matter who his father is?" (literally "Who is their father?"): Unlike priests and kings, prophets never inherited their office. Possibly the people were asking why Saul, whose well-to-do father was well known, would associate himself with a group of people who had no pedigree.

10:16 Perhaps Saul didn't tell his uncle because he had lingering uncertainty about what had transpired.

10:17 An earlier generation had gathered at Mizpah to decimate the tribe of Benjamin (Judg 20:1-4), making the city an ironic place to inaugurate a man of Benjamin as king.

10:18 rescued you . . . from all of the nations: Israel did not need a human king to rescue them; they needed God, but they had rejected him (10:19).

10:19 rejected your God: See also 8:7. Israel was rejecting God's ability to protect and save them. • Clans are subdivisions of tribes.

10:20 chosen by lot: Cp. Lev 16:8; Josh 18:6; 1 Chr 26:12-16; Acts 1:26.

10:25 rights and duties of a king: See Deut 17:14-20. • He wrote them: Cp. Exod 24:4; Josh 24:26. • Samuel placed the document before the LORD—presumably in the Tabernacle. This position showed that God would honor those who lived by the covenant and punish those who violated it.

²⁶When Saul returned to his home at Gibeah, a group of men whose hearts God had touched went with him. ²⁷But there were some scoundrels who complained, "How can this man save us?" And they scorned him and refused to bring him gifts. But Saul ignored them.

[Nahash, king of the Ammonites, had been grievously oppressing the people of Gad and Reuben who lived east of the Jordan River. He gouged out the right eye of each of the Israelites living there, and he didn't allow anyone to come and rescue them. In fact, of all the Israelites east of the Jordan, there wasn't a single one whose right eye Nahash had not gouged out. But there were 7,000 men who had escaped from the Ammonites, and they had settled in Jabesh-gilead.]

Saul Saves Jabesh-gilead from Destruction

11 About a month later, King Nahash of Ammon led his army against the Israelite town of Jabesh-gilead. But all the citizens of Jabesh asked for peace. "Make a treaty with us, and we will be your servants," they pleaded.

²"All right," Nahash said, "but only on one condition. I will gouge out the right eye of every one of you as a disgrace to all Israel!"

³"Give us seven days to send messengers throughout Israel!" replied the elders of Jabesh. "If no one comes to save us, we will agree to your terms."

⁴When the messengers came to Gibeath of Saul and told the people about their plight, everyone broke into tears. ⁵Saul had been plowing a field with his oxen, and when he returned to town, he asked,

"What's the matter? Why is everyone crying?" So they told him about the message from Jabesh.

⁶Then the Spirit of God came powerfully upon Saul, and he became very angry. ⁷He took two oxen and cut them into pieces and sent the messengers to carry them throughout Israel with this message: "This is what will happen to the oxen of anyone who refuses to follow Saul and Samuel into battle!" And the LORD made the people afraid of Saul's anger, and all of them came out together as one. ⁸When Saul mobilized them at Bezek, he found that there were 300,000 men from Israel and 30,000 men from Judah.

⁹So Saul sent the messengers back to Jabesh-gilead to say, "We will rescue you by noontime tomorrow!" There was great joy throughout the town when that message arrived!

¹⁰The men of Jabesh then told their enemies, "Tomorrow we will come out to you, and you can do to us whatever you wish."

¹¹But before dawn the next morning, Saul arrived, having divided his army into three detachments. He launched a surprise attack against the Ammonites and slaughtered them the whole morning. The remnant of their army was so badly scattered that no two of them were left together.

¹²Then the people exclaimed to Samuel, "Now where are those men who said, 'Why should Saul rule over us?' Bring them here, and we will kill them!"

¹³But Saul replied, "No one will be executed today, for today the LORD has rescued Israel!"

¹⁴Then Samuel said to the people, "Come,

10:26–11:13 Saul proved his capacity for leadership by tolerating opposition and rescuing the town of Jabesh-gilead.

10:26 whose hearts God had touched: God gave people confidence in Saul's ability to lead (cp. 10:9).

10:27 These men were scoundrels (cp. 2:12) because they scorned God's chosen king. • Gifts were given to show homage (Gen 32:13, 18, 20), political friendship (2 Kings 20:12), or submission (Judg 3:15, 17). • ignored them: Saul's self-restraint while being insulted was a sign of maturity. In contrast, Prov 16:14 speaks of a king's potentially explosive rage when somebody crosses him. See also 11:12-13. • [Nahash . . . Jabesh-gilead]: This paragraph, which is not included in the Masoretic Text, is found in Dead Sea Scroll 4QSam^a. Whether it was part of the original text is uncertain.

11:1-15 Saul's kingship was confirmed through a military victory, the very reason the people wanted a king (8:20).

11:1 This paragraph begins as in Dead Sea Scroll 4QSam^a and Greek version; Masoretic Text lacks About a month later. • Ammon (see Gen 19:38), located on the east side of the Jordan, represented a threat to Israel similar to the Philistines to the southwest (see also Judg 10:6–11:33). • Make a treaty with us: Cp. Josh 9; 2 Sam 10:19.

11:2 gouge out the right eye: Mutilation of captured soldiers was a common practice in the ancient Near East. These disfigured soldiers would have lost all depth perception, seriously curtailing their potential for fighting in a revolt.

11:3 Nahash agreed to grant a reprieve of seven days, reflecting his arrogant confidence of victory and his desire to humiliate Israel as much as possible.

11:6 Spirit of God: See note on 10:10.

11:7 Not to participate would indicate rejection of the leadership of both Saul as king and Samuel as prophet.

11:8 Bezek was about fourteen miles west of Jabesh-gilead. • The narrator's use of the terms Israel and Judah anticipates the later division of the kingdom (1 Kgs 12). • 30,000: Dead Sea Scrolls and Greek version read 70,000.

11:13 No one will be executed: This was a time for rejoicing, not revenge.

11:14 renew the kingdom: "Renew" indicates that someone or something had deteriorated or had been damaged (cp. Ps 51:10). Whatever effect the scoundrels (10:27; 11:12) might have had in undermining the people's confidence was now rectified by Saul's victory over the Ammonites.

let us all go to Gilgal to ^brenew the kingdom.”
¹⁵So they all went to Gilgal, and in a solemn ceremony before the LORD they made Saul king. Then they offered peace offerings to the LORD, and Saul and all the Israelites were filled with joy.

Samuel's Farewell Address to Israel

12 Then Samuel addressed all Israel: “I have done as you asked and given you a king. ²Your king is now your leader. I stand here before you—an old, gray-haired man—and my sons serve you. I have served as your leader from the time I was a boy to this very day. ³Now testify against me in the presence of the LORD and before his anointed one. Whose ox or donkey have I stolen? Have I ever cheated any of you? Have I ever oppressed you? Have I ever taken a bribe and perverted justice? Tell me and I will make right whatever I have done wrong.”

“No,” they replied, “you have never cheated or oppressed us, and you have never taken even a single bribe.”

“The LORD and his anointed one are my witnesses today,” Samuel declared, “that my hands are clean.”

“Yes, he is a witness,” they replied.

“It was the LORD who appointed Moses and Aaron,” Samuel continued. “He brought your ancestors out of the land of Egypt. ⁷Now stand here quietly before the LORD as I remind you of all the great things the LORD has done for you and your ancestors.

⁸“When the Israelites were in Egypt and cried out to the LORD, he sent Moses and Aaron to rescue them from Egypt and to bring them into this land. ⁹But the people soon forgot about the LORD their God, so he handed them over to Sisera, the commander of Hazor’s army, and also to the Philistines and to the king of Moab, who fought against them.

¹⁰“Then they cried to the LORD again and confessed, ‘We have sinned by turning away from the LORD and worshiping the images of Baal and Ashtoreth. But we will worship you and you alone if you will rescue us from our enemies.’ ¹¹Then the LORD sent Gideon, Bedan, Jephthah, and Samuel to save you, and you lived in safety.

¹²“But when you were afraid of Nahash, the king of Ammon, you came to me and said that you wanted a king to reign over you, even though the LORD your God was already your king. ¹³All right, here is the king you have chosen. You asked for him, and the LORD has granted your request.

¹⁴“Now if you fear and worship the LORD and listen to his voice, and if you do not rebel against the LORD’s commands, then both you and your king will show that you recognize the LORD as your God. ¹⁵But if you rebel against the LORD’s commands and refuse to listen to him, then his hand will be as heavy upon you as it was upon your ancestors.

¹⁶“Now stand here and see the great thing the LORD is about to do. ¹⁷You know

11:15 The solemn ceremony before the LORD acknowledged Saul’s sovereignty as king while affirming that the Lord was Israel’s true King. • Peace offerings were common on historic occasions that inaugurated important institutions (see Exod 24:5; Lev 9:4, 18, 22; 1 Kgs 8:63-64).

12:1-25 The reaffirmation of Saul’s kingship at Gilgal (11:12-15) was the final step in his installation as king. The event was a fitting occasion for Samuel’s farewell address as leader of Israel.

12:3 God’s anointed one was Saul (see 9:16). • Whose ox or donkey: Cp. Num 16:15. • have I stolen? In contrast to the behavior of kings (8:11-16). • Have I ever taken a bribe and perverted justice? No, but Samuel’s sons did (8:3).

12:5 my hands are clean: Samuel’s life and leadership before Israel had been above reproach (cp. 1 Cor 9:1-14; 2 Cor 7:2; 11:7-9; 1 Thes 2:1-12). Saul, David, and Solomon—kings rather than prophetic judges—would not be able to make this claim.

12:6-25 In 12:1-5, Samuel put himself on trial and was found innocent. In 12:6-25, he put the nation on trial and found it guilty.

12:6 Moses and Aaron were not self-made leaders but were appointed by God as leaders.

12:8 When the Israelites were: Literally When Jacob was. The names “Jacob” and “Israel” are often interchanged throughout the OT, referring sometimes to the individual patriarch and sometimes to the nation.

12:9 handed them over: See Judg 3:8; 4:1-3. • the king of Moab: See Judg 3:12. Not all of Israel’s enemies in the era of the judges are listed (e.g., the Ammonites and Midianites). This list is representative to emphasize the highs and lows of that era.

12:10 Then they cried to the LORD: Sometimes only suffering turns people’s hearts toward God. During the period of the judges, Israel repeatedly went through cycles of sin, oppression, repentance, and rescue. • Baal and Ashtoreth: When people turn away from God, they inevitably turn to idols (see 7:3; Judg 2:13; 10:6). • An attitude such as if you will rescue us turns worship into a debased bargain, in which God must perform some action to a person’s liking. God deserves obedience and worship because he is God, not because of favors he can perform.

12:11 As in 12:9, this list of leaders is representative. • Gideon: Literally Jerubbaal, another name for Gideon (see Judg 6:32). • Bedan: Greek and Syriac versions read Barak (see Judg 4:6-24; 5:1, 12, 15). The identity of this judge remains unknown. • Samuel: Greek and Syriac versions read Samson.

12:12 you were afraid of Nahash: Israel’s trouble with Nahash apparently preceded 11:1-11 (cp. 8:5, 20; 10:27).

12:13 Even though the Israelites’ request amounted to a rejection of God as king, the LORD . . . granted it (see notes on 8:7-8).

12:14-15 To show that even under a monarchy Israel must still keep its covenant with the Lord—who was always to be their true king—Samuel echoed language from the Sinai covenant (e.g., Exod 19:5-6; Lev 26; Deut 30:11-20).

12:14 Worship is meaningless if it does not result in obedience.

¹⁸So Samuel called to the LORD, and the LORD sent thunder and rain that day. And all the people were terrified of the LORD and of Samuel. ¹⁹"Pray to the LORD your God for us, or we will die!" they all said to Samuel. "For now we have added to our sins by asking for a king."

²⁰"Don't be afraid," Samuel reassured them. "You have certainly done wrong, but make sure now that you worship the LORD with all your heart, and don't turn your back on him. ²¹Don't go back to worshiping worthless idols that cannot help or rescue you—they are totally useless! ²²The LORD will not abandon his people, because that would dishonor his great name. 3. REJECTION OF SAUL'S KINGSHIP

Saul's Exploits and Rejection (13:1–15:35)

Samuel Rebukes Saul for His Disobedience

13 Saul was thirty years old when he became king, and he reigned for forty-two years.

²Saul selected 3,000 special troops from the army of Israel and sent the rest of the men home. He took 2,000 of the chosen men with him to Micmash and the hill country of Bethel. The other 1,000 went with Saul's son Jonathan to Gibeah in the land of Benjamin.

³Soon after this, Jonathan attacked and defeated the garrison of Philistines at Geba. The news spread quickly among the Philistines. So Saul blew the ram's horn throughout the land, saying, "Hebrews, hear ◀ Saul's Victory at Jabesh-gilead (11:1-15). Saul and his army traveled from GIBEAH and mobilized at BEZEK before attacking the Ammonites at JABESH-GILEAD. After defeating the Ammonites, they traveled at Samuel's instruction to GILGAL, where Saul's kingship was confirmed.

• his very own people: Israel is God's treasured possession (see Exod 19:5; Deut 9:25-29). He will never abandon them (see Rom 11:1-5, 25-32).

12:23 I will continue to teach you: Samuel was both intercessor and educator. • Although this address marked the end of Samuel's political leadership, he continued his spiritual ministry for some time (e.g., 19:24).

12:25 swept away: David later used this same Hebrew verb for Saul's death (26:10, "die . . . in battle") and for his own possible death at Saul's hands (27:1, "get me"). The warning would remain in force throughout Israel's history as a monarchy.

13:1–16:13 Saul's fall from power involved a threefold sequence, as had his rise to power (see note on 9:1–11:15): (1) He offered the sacrifices himself and did not wait for Samuel (13:1-14); (2) he made a rash oath that put Jonathan's life in danger (14:1-46); and (3) he failed to obey God by eliminating the Amalekites and their belongings (15:1-35).

13:1 For the kings of Israel and Judah, Scripture normally records the age of ascension and the length of reign (e.g., 2 Sam 5:4-5; 1 Kgs 14:21). • thirty years old: As in a few Greek manuscripts; the number is missing in the Hebrew. The number represents a plausible age for Saul's ascension. The Hebrew text and most Greek manuscripts omit the number, making it difficult to know the original wording. • reigned for forty-two years: Literally reigned . . . and two; the number is incomplete in the Hebrew. Cp. Acts 13:21. Most scholars agree that something has fallen out of the original manuscript, most likely due to a copyist's error. The majority of English translations have forty-two based on the approximate number in Acts 13:21.

13:2 Earlier, Saul had employed 330,000 troops to fight against a much less formidable foe (11:8). The selection here of 3,000 special troops probably does not reflect overconfidence (cp. Josh 7:3-4). Rather, Saul likely recognized the need for a smaller, highly trained, elite militia to deal with the troublesome Philistines (see 14:52). • Micmash was located in Benjamin about two miles northwest of Saul's home in Gibeah.

13:3 Geba was located between Jonathan's forces at Gibeah and Saul's forces at Micmash. A deep gorge separated Geba and Micmash (see 13:23; 14:5). • The ram's horn (Hebrew shofar) was used to raise a signal—e.g., to muster an army (Judg 3:27). For other uses, see Lev 25:9; 2 Sam 6:15; 15:10; 18:16; 20:1; Hos 5:8; Joel 2:15. • Non-Israelites often used the term Hebrews disdainfully (see 14:11; 29:3; see also Gen 39:14; 43:32). Saul might have used it to strike a nerve and arouse the people's pride in their identity.

12:17 The wheat harvest occurred in late spring or early summer, when little or no rain fell in Israel. Thunder and rain would thus demonstrate God's power as a sign of the people's wickedness in asking for a king.

12:18 terrified: Cp. Exod 19:16.

12:19 The people asked Samuel to intercede for them (see also 7:8) rather than praying themselves probably because they were out of fellowship with God (note the use of your God rather than "our God"). • added to our sins: The sins included idol worship (12:21; see note on 8:8).

12:21 worthless . . . totally useless: Israel was slow to learn this lesson (e.g., Isa 40:18-26; 44:9-20).

12:22 because that would dishonor his great name: God will never contradict his own character and detract from his glory (see also Isa 37:35; 43:25; 48:9-11). Therefore, he always keeps his covenant promises, even if his people do not.

this! Rise up in revolt!" ⁴All Israel heard the news that Saul had destroyed the Philistine garrison at Geba and that the Philistines now hated the Israelites more than ever. So the entire Israelite army was summoned to join Saul at Gilgal.

⁵The Philistines mustered a mighty army of 3,000 chariots, 6,000 charioteers, and as many warriors as the grains of sand on the seashore! They camped at Micmash east of Beth-aven. ⁶The men of Israel saw what a tight spot they were in; and because they were hard pressed by the enemy, they tried to hide in caves, thickets, rocks, holes, and cisterns. ⁷Some of them crossed the Jordan River and escaped into the land of Gad and Gilead.

Meanwhile, Saul stayed at Gilgal, and his men were trembling with fear. ⁸Saul waited there seven days for Samuel, as Samuel had instructed him earlier, but Samuel still didn't come. Saul realized that his troops were rapidly slipping away. ⁹So he demanded, "Bring me the burnt offering and the peace offerings!" And Saul sacrificed the burnt offering himself.

¹⁰Just as Saul was finishing with the burnt offering, Samuel arrived. Saul went out to meet and welcome him, ¹¹but Samuel said, "What is this you have done?"

Saul replied, "I saw my men scattering from me, and you didn't arrive when you said you would, and the Philistines are at Micmash ready for battle. ¹²So I said, 'The Philistines are ready to march against us at Gilgal, and I haven't even asked for the LORD's help!' So I felt compelled to offer the burnt offering myself before you came."

¹³"How foolish!" Samuel exclaimed. "You have not kept the command the LORD your God gave you. Had you kept it, the LORD would have established your kingdom over Israel forever. ¹⁴But now your kingdom must end, for the LORD has sought out a man after his own heart. The LORD has already appointed him to be the leader of his people, because you have not kept the LORD's command."

¹⁵Samuel then left Gilgal and went on his way, but the rest of the troops went with Saul to meet the army. They went up from Gilgal to Gibeah in the land of Benjamin. When Saul counted the men who were still with him, he found only 600 were left!

¹⁶Saul and Jonathan and the troops with them were staying at Geba in the land of Benjamin. The Philistines set up their camp at Micmash. ¹⁷Three raiding parties soon left the camp of the Philistines. One went north toward Ophrah in the land of Shual, ¹⁸another went west to Beth-horon, and the third moved toward the border above the valley of Zeboim near the wilderness.

¹⁹There were no blacksmiths in the land of Israel in those days. The Philistines wouldn't allow them for fear they would make swords and spears for the Hebrews. ²⁰So whenever 13:4 Saul had destroyed: The commander in chief often got credit for what his soldiers accomplished. • Saul's kingship had been reaffirmed at Gilgal (11:15). Now the Lord would reject his kingship there because of his disobedience (13:7-14).

13:5 The Israelites were massively outnumbered, hence their fearful responses. • The Philistine army's 3,000 chariots (as in Greek and Syriac versions; Hebrew reads 30,000 chariots) and 6,000 charioteers indicate Israel's underdog status. Nowhere in 1 Samuel is Israel said to have had any chariots (see note on 13:19-22; see also "The Philistines" at 5:1-6:18, p. 477).

13:7 The land of Gad and Gilead ran the length of Transjordan (the region just east of the Jordan River).

13:8 seven days . . . as Samuel had instructed: This instruction most likely was not the instruction in 10:8 but an unrecorded instruction on a separate occasion (see note on 10:8).

13:9 the burnt offering and the peace offerings: These general-purpose offerings (see Exod 24:5; 32:6; Num 10:10; 15:8; Deut 27:6-7) were always offered on a solemn occasion filled with either danger or joy. Typically, only priests were to offer these sacrifices (but see note on 13:13).

13:10 meet and welcome: Saul seemed unaware he had done anything wrong.

13:11 What is this you have done? Samuel's question was a rebuke, not a request for information (cp. Gen 3:13).

13:12 asked for the LORD's help: The purpose of the burnt offering was to entreat God to grant victory in battle. Samuel himself had offered a similar sacrifice, which did lead to victory in battle (see 7:7-11). But Samuel, unlike Saul, served in a priestly role.

13:13 the command the LORD . . . gave you: Other kings offered sacrifices without censure (David, 2 Sam 6:13, 17-18; Solomon, 1 Kgs 3:15; 8:64; Ahaz, 2 Kgs 16:12-13), as did judges (Gideon, Judg 6:26), illustrating that on occasion non-priests could conduct sacrifices in a way that pleased the Lord. However, Samuel, God's prophet, had given Saul the order to wait (see note on 13:8).

13:14 a man after his own heart: This prophecy pertains to David (see also Acts 13:22) rather than to Saul's son Jonathan. The rejection of Saul was also the rejection of his family dynasty.

13:15 Samuel then left Gilgal . . . land of Benjamin: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads Samuel then left Gilgal and went to Gibeah in the land of Benjamin. • only 600 were left: Most of the 3,000 troops (13:2) had abandoned Saul (13:6-7).

13:17-18 Armies would send out raiding parties to plunder and sow panic among the enemy. These raiders embarked north (Ophrah), west (Beth-horon), and east (Zeboim), but not south, where Israelite strength was consolidated and where the terrain did not allow easy movement of forces (see note on 13:23).

13:19-22 no blacksmiths: The Philistines kept the Israelites unarmed by gaining a monopoly on the iron necessary to make weapons. Iron technology had not existed long in Canaan; it might have developed in the Aegean area, and metalworking skills were possibly introduced into Canaan through seafaring peoples, including the Philistines.

the Israelites needed to sharpen their plowshares, picks, axes, or sickles, they had to take them to a Philistine blacksmith. ²¹The charges were as follows: a quarter of an ounce of silver for sharpening a plowshare or a pick, and an eighth of an ounce for sharpening an ax or making the point of an ox goad. ²²So on the day of the battle none of the people of Israel had a sword or spear, except for Saul and Jonathan.

²³The pass at Micmash had meanwhile been secured by a contingent of the Philistine army.

Saul and Jonathan Fight the Philistines

14 One day Jonathan said to his armor bearer, "Come on, let's go over to where the Philistines have their outpost." But Jonathan did not tell his father what he was doing.

²Meanwhile, Saul and his 600 men were camped on the outskirts of Gibeah, around the pomegranate tree at Migron. ³Among Saul's men was Ahijah the priest, who was wearing the ephod, the priestly vest. Ahijah was the son of Ichabod's brother Ahitub, son of Phinehas, son of Eli, the priest of the LORD who had served at Shiloh.

No one realized that Jonathan had left the Israelite camp. ⁴To reach the Philistine outpost, Jonathan had to go down between two rocky cliffs that were called Bozez and Seneh. ⁵The cliff on the north was in front of Micmash, and the one on the south was in front of Geba. ⁶"Let's go across to the outpost of those pagans," Jonathan said to his armor bearer. "Perhaps the LORD will help us, for nothing can hinder the LORD. He can win a battle whether he has many warriors or only a few!"

Jonathan (13:1–14:46)

2 Sam 1:1-27; 4:4

Jonathan, the oldest son of King Saul, was in line to be the next king. Yet when God rejected Saul and chose David, Jonathan welcomed and supported his rise to power (18:1-5; 19:1-7).

Jonathan was a magnificent military leader. He led his father's army to victory over the Philistine garrison at Geba (13:3-4). In another daring move, Jonathan and his armor bearer attacked a Philistine outpost by themselves; the ensuing confusion threw the Philistine army into disarray, allowing the main Israelite army to attack and win the day (14:1-23; see also David's eulogy of Jonathan, 2 Sam 1:22). Saul had unwisely taken an oath that no one should eat until victory had been won. Jonathan did not know of the vow and ate some honey. When he learned of Saul's vow, Jonathan criticized it harshly, and Saul would have executed Jonathan after the battle he had helped to win if the people had not intervened.

When Jonathan and David met, they became fast friends (18:1-4). Jonathan expressed his deep love for David by giving him his robe, tunic, sword, bow, and belt, which may have represented Jonathan's belief that David should be the next ruler. When Saul tried to have David killed, Jonathan interceded for him and finally helped David slip away unharmed.

Jonathan remained with his father even after the Lord had made it clear that he had abandoned Saul. As a result, Jonathan died with Saul as they fought the Philistines (31:2; 1 Chr 10:2). Jonathan was a virtuous, daring, and selfless man who always spoke and acted with integrity. His love and courage helped David survive the demented attacks of King Saul.

13:20 sickles: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads or plowshares.

13:21 a quarter of an ounce of silver: Hebrew 1 pim [8 grams] of silver. • an eighth of an ounce: Hebrew $\frac{1}{8}$ [of a shekel] [4 grams].

13:23 The pass at Micmash was a strategic passage through the canyon that separated Micmash from Geba, Gibeah, and other towns to the south.

14:1-52 Saul's behavior in this chapter further justifies his dismissal as king (13:8-14; see also ch 15). Saul was alienated from both Samuel and his heroic son Jonathan. Chapter 14 anticipates the significant role that Jonathan played in the transition from Saul's kingship to David's.

14:1-15 Jonathan again fought in his father's battles (see also 13:2-4; ch 31).

14:1 armor bearer: See note on 16:21. • Jonathan did not tell his father because he knew that Saul would not grant permission for the dangerous plan. But he also knew that Saul wanted no one—not even his own son—to upstage him.

14:2 camped: Saul's inactivity contrasts with Jonathan's initiative (see also 22:6). • around the pomegranate tree: Or around the rock of Rimmon; cp. Judg 20:45, 47; 21:13.

14:3 Ahijah the priest was an adviser who could give Saul divine guidance through the ephod (14:18-19; see also 2:18 and note; 23:9-10). • son of Eli: Saul, the rejected king (13:13-14), kept in his company a priest from the rejected priesthood (2:27-36). • Ichabod: See 4:21.

14:4-5 The Philistines had already secured this area (13:23), so Jonathan and his armor bearer had to move carefully.

14:6 pagans (literally uncircumcised): A disdainful term for enemies of Israel (see also 17:36; 31:4). • Perhaps: Jonathan had no guarantee of survival, but he was certain that God could grant them victory despite the odds. Victory was in God's hands; Jonathan offered himself as an instrument God could use. • many warriors or only a few: Jonathan knew what Gideon had learned many years earlier (see Judg 7:2-8).

⁷"Do what you think is best," the armor bearer replied. "I'm with you completely, whatever you decide."

¹¹When the Philistines saw them coming, they shouted, "Look! The Hebrews are crawling out of their holes!" ¹²Then the men from the outpost shouted to Jonathan, "Come on up here, and we'll teach you a lesson!"

"Come on, climb right behind me," Jonathan said to his armor bearer, "for the LORD will help us defeat them!"

¹³So they climbed up using both hands and feet, and the Philistines fell before Jonathan, and his armor bearer killed those who came behind them. ¹⁴They killed some twenty men in all, and their bodies were scattered over about half an acre.

¹⁵Suddenly, panic broke out in the Philistine army, both in the camp and in the field, including even the outposts and raiding parties. And just then an earthquake struck, and everyone was terrified.

¹⁶Saul's lookouts in Gibeath of Benjamin saw a strange sight—the vast army of Philistines began to melt away in every direction.

¹⁷"Call the roll and find out who's missing," Saul ordered. And when they checked, they found that Jonathan and his armor bearer were gone.

¹⁸Then Saul shouted to Ahijah, "Bring the ephod here!" For at that time Ahijah was wearing the ephod in front of the Israelites. ¹⁹But while Saul was talking to the priest, the confusion in the Philistine camp grew louder and louder. So Saul said to the priest, "Never mind; let's get going!"

²⁰Then Saul and all his men rushed out to the battle and found the Philistines killing each other. There was terrible confusion everywhere. ²¹Even the Hebrews who had previously gone over to the Philistine army revolted and joined in with Saul, Jonathan, and the rest of the Israelites. ²²Likewise, the men of Israel who were hiding in the hill country of Ephraim joined the chase when they saw the Philistines running away. ²³So the LORD saved Israel that day, and the battle continued to rage even beyond Beth-aven.

²⁴Now the men of Israel were pressed to exhaustion that day, because Saul had placed them under an oath, saying, "Let a curse fall on anyone who eats before evening—before I have full revenge on my enemies." So no one ate anything all day, ²⁵even though they had all found honeycomb on the ground in the forest. ²⁶They didn't dare touch the honey because they all feared the oath they had taken.

²⁷But Jonathan had not heard his father's command, and he dipped the end of his stick into a piece of honeycomb and ate the honey. After he had eaten it, he felt refreshed. ²⁸But one of the men saw him and said, "Your father made the army take a strict oath that anyone who eats food today will be cursed. That is why everyone is weary and faint."

²⁹"My father has made trouble for us all!" Jonathan exclaimed. "A command like that only hurts us. See how refreshed I am now that I have eaten this little bit of honey. ³⁰If the men had been allowed to eat freely from the food they found among our enemies, think how many more Philistines we could have killed!"

14:11 Hebrews: See note on 13:3.

• crawling out of their holes: See 13:6.

14:14 half an acre: Literally half a yoke; a "yoke" was the amount of land plowed by a pair of yoked oxen in one day.

14:15 panic broke out: This parallel with the Gideon story depicts Jonathan as a judge-like figure (cp. Judg 7:19-22). God had not anointed or expressly gifted Jonathan to be leader, yet God used him to rescue his people. • raiding parties: See note on 13:17-18.

14:18 Bring . . . Israelites: As in some Greek manuscripts; Hebrew reads "Bring the Ark of God." For at that time the Ark of God was with the Israelites. The Greek text is likely original: The Ark remained at Kiriath-jearim for twenty years (7:2), and it was never used for getting information about the future, as the ephod was (see note on 2:18).

14:19 Never mind; let's get going! Literally Withdraw your hand.

14:21-22 Previously, a large group of Israelites had gone into hiding out of fear (13:6-7). Others might have joined the Philistine army. However, the statement that they revolted when the opportunity arose suggests they might have been taken as prisoners of war and forced into the Philistines' service.

14:23 It was God, not Saul, who saved Israel; Jonathan was just a willing instrument in the Lord's hands. • Beth-aven was due west of Micmash (see 13:5). The Israelites forced the Philistines to retreat all the way to Ajialon that day (see 14:31).

14:24 With his oath, Saul forced abstinence from food on men who were already hungry and exhausted from battle. This oath was probably a pagan-like attempt to manipulate God into giving them a favorable result (cp. notes on Exod 23:26; 25:22; 32:4). • That Saul said my enemies rather than "our enemies" reflects his self-centered pride.

14:27 he felt refreshed: Or his eyes brightened; similarly in 14:29.

14:29 made trouble: Joshua had used this verb in speaking with Achan (Josh 7:25), and Jephthah had used it with his innocent daughter (Judg 11:35). Saul's foolish oath limited Israel's victory (14:30) and put his son's life at risk (see also Josh 6:18; 1 Chr 2:7).

Acts 27:34

³¹They chased and killed the Philistines all day from Micmah to Aijalon, growing more and more faint. ³²That evening they rushed for the battle plunder and butchered the sheep, goats, cattle, and calves, but they ate them without draining the blood. ³³Someone reported to Saul, "Look, the men are ^esinning against the LORD by eating meat that still has blood in it."

"That is very wrong," Saul said. "Find a large stone and roll it over here. ³⁴Then go out among the troops and tell them, 'Bring the cattle, sheep, and goats here to me. Kill them here, and drain the blood before you eat them. Do not sin against the LORD by eating meat with the blood still in it.'"

So that night all the troops brought their animals and slaughtered them there. ³⁵Then Saul built an altar to the LORD; it was the first of the altars he built to the LORD.

³⁶Then Saul said, "Let's chase the Philistines all night and plunder them until sunrise. Let's destroy every last one of them."

His men replied, "We'll do whatever you think is best."

But the priest said, "Let's ask God first."

³⁷So Saul asked God, "Should we go after the Philistines? Will you help us defeat them?" But God made no reply that day.

³⁸Then Saul said to the leaders, "Something's wrong! I want all my army commanders to come here. We must find out what sin was committed today. ³⁹I vow by the name of the LORD who rescued Israel that the sinner will surely die, even if it is my own son Jonathan!" But no one would tell him what the trouble was.

⁴⁰Then Saul said, "Jonathan and I will stand over here, and all of you stand over there."

And the people responded to Saul, "Whatever you think is best."

⁴¹Then Saul prayed, "O LORD, God of Israel, please show us who is guilty and who is innocent." Then they cast sacred lots, and Jonathan and Saul were chosen as the guilty ones, and the people were declared innocent.

⁴²Then Saul said, "Now cast lots again and choose between me and Jonathan." And Jonathan was shown to be the guilty one.

⁴³"Tell me what you have done," Saul demanded of Jonathan.

"I tasted a little honey," Jonathan admitted. "It was only a little bit on the end of my stick. Does that deserve death?"

⁴⁴"Yes, Jonathan," Saul said, "you must die! May God strike me and even kill me if you do not die for this."

⁴⁵But the people broke in and said to Saul, "Jonathan has won this great victory for Israel. Should he die? Far from it! As surely as the LORD lives, not one hair on his head will be touched, for God helped him do a great deed today." So the people rescued Jonathan, and he was not put to death.

⁴⁶Then Saul called back the army from chasing the Philistines, and the Philistines returned home.

⁴⁷Now when Saul had secured his grasp on Israel's throne, he fought against his enemies in every direction—against Moab, 14:31 Aijalon: If the Philistines fled along the likely route through Beth-horon, then the Israelites kept up the pursuit for close to twenty miles.

14:32-34 The men were famished, so they ate meat without draining the blood. This act violated God's law (see Lev 17:10-14) and thus constituted sinning against the LORD. To prevent more sin, Saul used a large rock as a field altar so that the animals' blood could be properly drained. The incident would never have occurred had it not been for Saul's foolish oath.

14:35 first of the altars: This altar is the only one mentioned. David later built an altar that would become the site of God's Temple (2 Sam 24:18-25).

14:37-38 God made no reply: Neither the "no" lot nor the "yes" lot of the Urim and Thummim appeared.

14:41 Casting sacred lots involved the Urim and Thummim (Exod 28:30; Lev 8:8), which David also used when soliciting God's guidance (23:2; 30:8; 2 Sam 2:1). The Urim and Thummim were two small objects (perhaps flat stones, sticks, or arrows) that may have been cast like dice. They would provide a positive answer, a neutral response, or a negative answer. • Greek version adds If the fault is with me or my son Jonathan, respond with Urim; but if the men of Israel are at fault, respond with Thummim.

14:45 The people, aware of God's blessing on the real hero of the day, were wiser than their king.

14:47-52 In contrast to the folly described in 14:1-46, these verses summarize Saul's military successes. A similar summary of achievements ends the description of each king's reign in 1 Samuel—2 Kings.

14:47 secured his grasp: Samuel had used this verb repeatedly when Ammon, Edom, the kings of Zobah, and the Philistines. And wherever he turned, he was victorious. ⁴⁸He performed great deeds and conquered the Amalekites, saving Israel from all those who had plundered them.

⁴⁹Saul's sons included Jonathan, Ishbosheth, and Malkishua. He also had two daughters: Merab, who was older, and Michal. ⁵⁰Saul's wife was Ahinoam, the daughter of Ahimaaz. The commander of Saul's army was Abner, the son of Saul's uncle Ner. ⁵¹Saul's father, Kish, and Abner's father, Ner, were both sons of Abiel.

⁵²The Israelites fought constantly with the Philistines throughout Saul's lifetime. So whenever Saul observed a young man who was brave and strong, he drafted him into his army.

The LORD Rejects Saul as King

15 One day Samuel said to Saul, "It was the LORD who told me to 'anoint you as king of his people, Israel. Now listen to this message from the LORD! ²This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies has declared: I have decided to settle accounts with the nation of Amalek for opposing Israel when they came from Egypt. ³Now go and completely ⁴destroy the entire Amalekite nation—men, women, children, babies, cattle, sheep, goats, camels, and donkeys."

⁴So Saul mobilized his army at Telaim. There were 200,000 soldiers from Israel and 10,000 men from Judah. ⁵Then Saul and his army went to a town of the Amalekites and lay in wait in the valley. ⁶Saul sent this warning to the Kenites: "Move away from where the Amalekites live, or you will die with them. For you showed kindness to all the people of Israel when they came up from Egypt." So the Kenites packed up and left.

¹⁰Then the LORD said to Samuel, ¹¹"I am sorry that I ever made Saul king, for he has not been loyal to me and has refused to obey my command." Samuel was so deeply moved when he heard this that he cried out to the LORD all night.

¹²Early the next morning Samuel went to find Saul. Someone told him, "Saul went to the town of Carmel to set up a monument to himself; then he went on to Gilgal."

¹³When Samuel finally found him, Saul greeted him cheerfully. "May the LORD speaking about what a king would do: "He will take . . . take . . . take" (8:10-18).

• Moab, Ammon, Edom, . . . Zobah: David confronted these same foes during his reign and expanded Israel's territory in the process (see 2 Sam 8:1-14). • he was victorious: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads he acted wickedly.

14:48 conquered the Amalekites: See ch 15. The Amalekites, a nomadic group in the south, periodically raided and pillaged Israel (see Exod 17:8-16; Num 14:45; Judg 3:13; 6:3, 33; 7:12; 10:12).

14:49-51 This information about Saul's family, placed here rather than at the end of his reign, hints that his reign was essentially over and he would not be succeeded by one of his sons.

14:49 Saul's sons included: Another of Saul's sons was named Abinadab (31:2). • Ishbosheth: Hebrew Ishvi, a variant name for Ishbosheth; also known as Esh-baal. Esh-baal means "man of Baal." Ishbosheth means "man of shame" (see note on 2 Sam 2:8). He served briefly as a rival king over the northern tribes during David's early years (2 Sam 2:8-11).

14:50 Ahinoam is mentioned only here in Saul's story. In 25:43, David marries a woman also called Ahinoam (who might or might not have been the same person; cp. 2 Sam 12:8).

14:52 Saul had easily defeated the Ammonites (11:11) but was having much less success with the Philistines, given their well-organized fighting machine and their monopoly on iron and bronze (13:19-22). • he drafted him: Samuel had warned earlier that the king would take people as well as possessions (8:11).

15:1-35 After Saul failed to obey God and completely destroy the Amalekites, God rejected him in even stronger terms than before (cp. 13:8-14).

15:2 LORD of Heaven's Armies: See note on 1:3. • to settle accounts: In Moses' time, the nation of Amalek had inhabited southern Judah and the Negev area south of Judah. As Israel traveled to Canaan, the Amalekites preyed on the sick and the weak and those traveling at the rear. They were the first people to attack Israel after the exodus from Egypt, for which God had promised to judge them (Exod 17:8-16; Deut 25:17-19).

15:3 completely destroy: The Hebrew term used here refers to the complete consecration of things or people to the LORD, either by destroying them or by giving them as an offering; also in 15:8, 9, 15, 18, 20, 21.

15:4 Telaim: Possibly Telem (Josh 15:24).

15:5 The unnamed town in the valley was located somewhere near a Negev wadi, a streambed or riverbed that fills with water only when rain falls.

15:6 The Kenites were nomadic metalworkers and descendants of Moses' father-in-law (Judg 1:16). • you showed kindness: See Exod 18:1-27; Num 10:29-32.

15:7 The area where the Amalekites lived stretched from Havilah in northern Sinai to Shur near the eastern border of Egypt.

15:8 Agag was probably the descendant of an earlier king by the same name (see Num 24:7; cp. Esth 3:1).

15:9 Saul and his men directly disobeyed the Lord's command to "completely destroy" the Amalekites (15:3). Though the entire army participated in the disobedience of God's command, Saul alone was responsible as their leader.

15:12 Carmel was a town near Hebron in southern Judah. • Saul commemorated his own accomplishments by erecting a monument to himself. In reality, he had earned shame (15:16-19). • Gilgal: See 13:4.

bless you," he said. "I have carried out the LORD's command!"

¹⁴"Then what is all the bleating of sheep and goats and the lowing of cattle I hear?" Samuel demanded.

¹⁵"It's true that the army spared the best of the sheep, goats, and cattle," Saul admitted. "But they are going to sacrifice them to the LORD your God. We have destroyed everything else."

¹⁶Then Samuel said to Saul, "Stop! Listen to what the LORD told me last night!"

"What did he tell you?" Saul asked.

¹⁷And Samuel told him, "Although you may think little of yourself, are you not the leader of the tribes of Israel? The LORD has ^aointed you king of Israel. ¹⁸And the LORD sent you on a mission and told you, 'Go and completely destroy the sinners, the Amalekites, until they are all dead.' ¹⁹Why haven't you obeyed the LORD? Why did you rush for the plunder and do what was evil in the LORD's sight?"

²⁰"But I did obey the LORD," Saul insisted. "I carried out the mission he gave me. I brought back King Agag, but I destroyed everyone else. ²¹Then my troops brought in the best of the sheep, goats, cattle, and plunder to sacrifice to the LORD your God in Gilgal."

²²But Samuel replied,

"What is more pleasing to the LORD: your burnt offerings and sacrifices or your ^bobedience to his voice?"

Listen! ^cObedience is better than sacrifice, and submission is better than offering the fat of rams.

²³Rebellion is as sinful as witchcraft, and stubbornness as bad as worshiping idols.

So because you have rejected the command of the LORD, he has rejected you as king."

²⁴Then Saul admitted to Samuel, "Yes, I have sinned. I have disobeyed your instructions and the LORD's command, for I was afraid of the people and did what they demanded. ²⁵But now, please ^dforgive my sin and come back with me so that I may worship the LORD."

²⁶But Samuel replied, "I will not go back with you! Since you have rejected the LORD's command, he has rejected you as king of Israel."

²⁷As Samuel turned to go, Saul tried to hold him back and tore the hem of his robe.

God instructed Saul to "completely destroy" the Amalekites, who had ambushed the Israelites after the Exodus (see Exod 17:8-16; Deut 25:17-19). The Hebrew word kharam ("completely destroy") often means dedicating something or someone completely to the Lord, either by destroying it (15:3; Josh 6:17-18) or by giving it as an offering (see Lev 27:28-29; Josh 6:19).

Complete destruction was called for in cases where those to be destroyed had committed a severe offense against God, such as worshiping false gods (Deut 7:1-6; 13:12-18). In 1 Sam 15:3, complete destruction is prescribed as God's judgment on a nation that mistreated his chosen people. Those who curse God's family are, in turn, cursed (Gen 12:3).

God still judges the godless and impenitent. But in the new covenant, Christians are not called to be agents of such judgment. God calls us to exercise his mercy toward those who wrong us (cp. Luke 9:51-56). We must completely destroy whatever within ourselves wars against Christ (Rom 8:13; Col 3:5). And we must overcome the enemies of Christ by our faith, by the Good News, and by our love (Eph 6:10-20; 1 Jn 2:9-17). God will mete out judgment according to his justice and in his time (Rom 12:19; 2 Thes 1:6-10).

15:13 I have carried out the LORD's command! Cp. 15:3. Saul apparently thought his actions were justified (15:15; cp. Lev 22:19). Samuel, however, cut through Saul's pretense (15:17-19) and carried out God's command himself (15:32-33).

15:15 Saul blamed the army even though he was the commander. Certainly, his real motivation was not spiritual (15:9).

15:17 As the anointed . . . king of Israel, Saul bore the responsibility for disobeying God, which neither false humility nor making excuses could diminish.

15:21 my troops: Saul persisted in blaming others (see 15:15). • Gilgal was a religious center. Saul tried to use religion to justify disobedience to God.

15:22 What is more pleasing: God values obedience much more than ritual (see also Ps 40:6; Hos 6:6; Matt 12:7). • the fat of rams: The choicest parts of the animal were offered to God.

15:23 Rebellion . . . and stubbornness, sins of the heart, are as bad as the sinful practices of idolatrous pagans.

• Scripture condemns witchcraft (see note on Deut 18:10).

15:24-30 Saul finally confessed his sin. But it was too little, too late—and still accompanied by excuses.

15:24 I was afraid of the people: Saul continued to blame others (see 15:15, 21). • what they demanded: There is no hint of such pressure in the chapter. Saul's confession appears dishonest (cp. David, 2 Sam 12:13; Ps 51).

15:28 Samuel soon discovered who this someone else was (18:8-9; cp. ch 16).

torn the kingdom of Israel from you today and has given it to someone else—one who is better than you.²⁹ And he who is the Glory of Israel will not lie, nor will he change his mind, for he is not human that he should change his mind!”

³⁰Then Saul pleaded again, “I know I have sinned. But please, at least honor me before the elders of my people and before Israel by coming back with me so that I may worship the LORD your God.”³¹ So Samuel finally agreed and went back with him, and Saul worshipped the LORD.

³²Then Samuel said, “Bring King Agag to me.” Agag arrived full of hope, for he thought, “Surely the worst is over, and I have been spared!”³³ But Samuel said, “As your sword has killed the sons of many mothers, now your mother will be childless.” And Samuel cut Agag to pieces before the LORD at Gilgal.

³⁴Then Samuel went home to Ramah, and Saul returned to his house at Gibeah of Saul.³⁵ Samuel never went to meet with Saul again, but he mourned constantly for him. And the LORD was sorry he had ever made Saul king of Israel.

David Anointed as King (16:1-13)

16 Now the LORD said to Samuel, “You have mourned long enough for Saul. I have rejected him as king of Israel, so fill your flask with olive oil and go to Bethlehem. Find a man named Jesse who lives there, for I have selected one of his sons to be my king.”

²But Samuel asked, “How can I do that? If Saul hears about it, he will kill me.”

“Take a heifer with you,” the LORD replied, “and say that you have come to make a sacrifice to the LORD. ³Invite Jesse to the sacrifice, and I will show you which of his sons to anoint for me.”

⁴So Samuel did as the LORD instructed. When he arrived at Bethlehem, the elders of the town came trembling to meet him. “What’s wrong?” they asked. “Do you come in peace?”

⁶When they arrived, Samuel took one look at Eliab and thought, “Surely this is the LORD’s anointed!”

⁷But the LORD said to Samuel, “Don’t judge by his appearance or height, for I have rejected him. The LORD doesn’t see things the way you see them. People judge by outward appearance, but the LORD looks at the heart.”

⁸Then Jesse told his son Abinadab to step forward and walk in front of Samuel. But Samuel said, “This is not the one the LORD has chosen.”⁹ Next Jesse summoned Shimea, 15:29 nor will he change his mind: Samuel spoke prophetically of God’s commitment to make David king and to preserve his dynasty. God had rejected Saul, but he would never reject David (see 2 Sam 7:8-17).

15:30 honor me before the elders: To help Saul save face.

15:32 Agag arrived full of hope, for he thought, “Surely the worst is over, and I have been spared!” Dead Sea Scrolls and Greek version read Agag arrived hesitantly, for he thought, “Surely this is the bitterness of death.”

15:35 The verb phrase mourned constantly is usually used for grieving over someone’s death. Although Saul was still living, his royalty was coming to an end. Samuel might have been grieving out of personal attachment to Saul, a sense of failure, or concern that Israel’s condition would be worse. • the LORD was sorry: See “God’s Change of Mind,” facing page.

16:1-23 David was Saul’s replacement. There are striking similarities between the two: Samuel anointed both. Neither was pursuing the position. Both were unlikely candidates (Saul was from the smallest tribe; David was the youngest son). Both were impressive in appearance (9:2; 16:12). And the Spirit came mightily on each when he was anointed king (10:10; 11:6; 16:13). The key difference was that David was a man “after [God’s] own heart” (13:14; cp. 16:7), while Saul was not.

16:1 mourned long enough: See note on 15:35. • Bethlehem was about five miles south of Jerusalem. It was later known as the City of David (Luke 2:11) and the birthplace of Jesus. • Jesse was the grandson of Boaz and Ruth (Ruth 4:22). • I have selected: This Hebrew verb implies that God had seen one of [Jesse’s] sons and based his choice on what he saw. God, the eternal king, knows better than the people of Israel how to choose a good king to serve the nation, and he provided a replacement for Saul that would lead Israel well.

16:2 say that you have come to make a sacrifice: God sometimes leads his servants into dangerous situations. He protects his own—sometimes by miracle, sometimes by strategy (cp. Exod 3:18-22). In Samuel’s role as a priestly judge, he would not have raised any suspicions by offering a sacrifice (see 10:8).

16:4 the elders . . . came trembling: News of Samuel’s rebuke of Saul and execution of Agag had likely reached Bethlehem.

16:5 purify yourselves: Self-purification included bathing and abstaining from sexual intercourse (see Exod 19:10-15; cp. Gen 35:2-4). • The sacrifice likely took place the following morning (see Num 11:18; Josh 3:5; 7:13-14). • Samuel performed the purification rite for Jesse and his sons to make sure they were ready for the sacrifice and for the anointing of the new king (cp. Exod 19:10; Josh 3:5).

16:6-7 his appearance or height: Like Saul, Eliab, Jesse’s oldest son, had an impressive outward appearance (cp. 9:2). Also like Saul, he was rejected (cp. 15:23). God had another man in mind to anoint as king. • the LORD looks at the heart: God can give a new heart (10:9), touch hearts (10:26), and peer into the deep motivations of the heart (Ps 139:1). God sees what people cannot see—a person’s true character. Eliab’s character comes out in 17:28.

16:9 Shimea: Hebrew Shammah, a variant spelling of Shimea; cp. 1 Chr 2:13; 20:7.

"There is still the youngest," Jesse replied. "But he's out in the fields ^kwatching the sheep and goats."

4. DISSOLUTION OF SAUL'S REIGN (16:14–31:13)

David's and Saul's Lives Interact (16:14–18:30)
David Serves as Court Musician

¹⁴Now the Spirit of the LORD had left Saul, and the LORD sent a tormenting spirit that filled him with depression and fear.

¹⁵Some of Saul's servants said to him, "A tormenting ^bspirit from God is troubling you. ¹⁶Let us find a good musician to play the harp whenever the tormenting spirit troubles you. He will play soothing music, and you will soon be well again."

¹⁷"All right," Saul said. "Find me someone who plays well, and bring him here."

¹⁸One of the servants said to Saul, "One of Jesse's sons from Bethlehem is a talented harp player. Not only that—he is a brave warrior, a man of war, and has good judgment. He is also a fine-looking young man, and the LORD is with him."

¹⁹So Saul sent messengers to Jesse to say, "Send me your son David, the shepherd." ²⁰Jesse responded by sending David to Saul, along with a young goat, a donkey loaded with bread, and a wineskin full of wine.

²¹So David went to Saul and began serving him. Saul loved David very much, and David became his armor bearer.

²²Then Saul sent word to Jesse asking, "Please let David remain in my service, for I am very pleased with him."

²³And whenever the tormenting spirit from God troubled Saul, David would play the harp. Then Saul would feel better, and the tormenting spirit would go away.

God's Change of Mind (15:10-11, 29, 35)

Thirty-four times in the OT, God is said to "change his mind" or "be sorry" (Hebrew nakhām). What could this mean? Did he relent, or did he have pity? Was he sorry, or did he grieve?

One thing is clear: God never repents of sin or moral failure, because he is perfect (see 15:29; Num 23:19). He may "change his mind" regarding calamity or judgment that he initiated—that is, he may decide to stop it—in response to prayers of repentance (Jer 18:7-10; Joel 2:14; Jon 3:9-10), a human intercessor (Exod 32:11-14; Amos 7:2-6), or with no apparent human mediation (Judg 2:18; 2 Sam 24:16). On a few occasions, God is "sorry" about something he has already done, such as choosing Saul to be king (15:11, 35; cp. Gen 6:6). God is not admitting past mistakes; he is expressing anguish over lives gone awry.

Theologians debate the degree to which God, who is all-wise and all-powerful, can "change his mind." In the Bible, any language that refers to a change in God's mind reflects a human perspective on God's activity. Any change in God, therefore, is a change as humans experience him—a reflection of his unchanging love, mercy, faithfulness, and holy will. It does not suggest a change in God's power, omniscience, foreknowledge, wisdom, or holiness.

David Defeats Goliath

17 The Philistines now mustered their army for battle and camped between Socoh in Judah and Azekah at Ephesdammim. ²Saul countered by gathering his Israelite troops near the valley of Elah. ³So the Philistines and Israelites faced each other on opposite hills, with the valley between them.

⁴Then Goliath, a Philistine champion from Gath, came out of the Philistine ranks to face the forces of Israel. He was over nine feet tall! ⁵He wore a bronze helmet, and his bronze coat of mail weighed 125 pounds. ⁶He also wore bronze leg armor, and he carried a bronze javelin on his shoulder. ⁷The shaft of his spear was as heavy and thick as a weaver's beam, tipped with an iron spearhead that weighed 15 pounds. His armor bearer walked ahead of him carrying a shield.

⁸Goliath stood and shouted a taunt across to the Israelites. "Why are you all coming out to fight?" he called. "I am the Philistine champion, but you are only the servants of Saul. Choose one man to come down here and fight me! ⁹If he kills me, then we will be your slaves. But if I kill him, you will be our slaves! ¹⁰I defy the armies of Israel today! Send me a man who will fight me!" ¹¹When Saul and the Israelites heard this, they were terrified and deeply shaken.

¹²Now David was the son of a man named Jesse, an Ephrathite from Bethlehem in the land of Judah. Jesse was an old man at that time, and he had eight sons. ¹³Jesse's three oldest sons—Eliab, Abinadab, and Shimea—had already joined Saul's army to fight the Philistines. ¹⁴David was the youngest son. David's three oldest brothers stayed with Saul's army, ¹⁵but David went back and forth so he could help his father with the sheep in Bethlehem.

¹⁶For forty days, every morning and evening, the Philistine champion strutted in front of the Israelite army.

¹⁷One day Jesse said to David, "Take this basket of roasted grain and these ten

In the OT, the Spirit of the Lord came upon a person or group when they were called to do a task or ordained for an office. The Spirit "came upon" the judges Othniel, Gideon, and Jephthah (Judg 3:10; 6:34; 11:29), empowering them for service. Saul and David both received the Spirit of God when they were anointed king (10:1, 9-10; 16:13). The Spirit would depart when the task had been completed or when the officeholder was removed from office. When Samuel anointed David as the next king (16:13), the Spirit left Saul (16:14), who was disobedient and had been rejected by God as king (13:7b-14; 15:10-29; cp. 28:15; Judg 16:20). After David had sinned with Bathsheba, he prayed to be spared this same judgment (Ps 51:11).

In the NT, God's Holy Spirit is given to all who put their faith in Christ for salvation, not just to individuals in specific roles (see Acts 2:14-21; Eph 1:13-14; 1 Cor 12:1-11). Still, the Spirit performs a similar role in equipping God's servants to do the work that God has called them to do (see "The Holy Spirit's Presence" at Acts 5:32, p. 1834). The OT departure of the Spirit from Saul also has a NT parallel, found in warnings not to sin against the Spirit and not to bring sorrow to the Holy Spirit (see Mark 3:28-29; Eph 4:30; Heb 6:1-8).

David illustrated what a king should be: one who brings relief. Later, David composed dozens of psalms that have brought comfort and relief through the ages. • the tormenting spirit would go away: Even those who are disobedient and rejected can receive relief and comfort through the Lord's servant.

17:1 The Philistines presented an ongoing threat throughout Saul's reign (see 14:47-52). • Socoh in Judah was fourteen miles west of Bethlehem toward Philistine territory. • Azekah was a few miles northwest of Socoh (the precise location of Ephesdammim is unknown). The Philistines were encroaching on Israelite territory.

17:2 The valley of Elah was a fertile area that ran east-west, fifteen miles southwest of Bethlehem.

17:4 champion: In ancient times, rival forces would sometimes agree to let selected individuals from each side decide a conflict. This reduced casualties and other costs. The same kind of combat is reflected in 2 Sam 2:12-17. • Gath was one of five Philistine cities with a reputation for having giants as citizens (2 Sam 21:15-22). • over nine feet: Hebrew 6 cubits and 1 span [which totals about 9.75 feet or 3 meters]; Dead Sea Scrolls and Greek version read 4 cubits and 1 span [which totals about 6.75 feet or 2 meters].

17:5-7 Although Goliath was a fully armored warrior of terrifying size, he did not have God—a far mightier warrior—on his side (17:45-47).

17:5 125 pounds: Hebrew 5,000 shekels

[57 kilograms].

17:7 15 pounds: Hebrew 600 shekels [6.8 kilograms].

17:12 Ephrathite: Ephrath is a name for Bethlehem (Gen 35:19; 1 Chr 4:4).

17:13 Shimea: Hebrew Shammah, a variant spelling of Shimea; cp. 1 Chr 2:13; 20:7.

17:15 went back and forth: David apparently served as a musician and armor bearer in Saul's court (see 16:19-23) while maintaining his duties at home. The intermittent nature of David's service might explain why Saul was unfamiliar with David during the encounter with Goliath (see 17:55-58).

17:17 basket: Hebrew ephah [20 quarts or 22 liters].

David is one of the monumental figures of biblical history. His reign was a high point in God's plan for Israel, and it had great and lasting significance.

David was born in Bethlehem as Jesse's youngest son; his lineage is traced back to Judah (Ruth 4:18–22; 1 Chr 2:3–15; Matt 1:3–6; Luke 3:31–33). At the time, Jerusalem was occupied by the Jebusites, and large parts of the Promised Land were still occupied by foreign people, most notably the Philistines. God would use David to complete the conquest of the land.

As a youth, David was a simple shepherd, watching his father's sheep (16:11; 17:15). His life took an unexpected turn when the prophet Samuel came to Jesse and anointed David as the next king of Israel. However, David's kingship was not initiated by a coup or an assassination. Indeed, David became a faithful servant to King Saul. David first entered Saul's service as a musician, playing songs that soothed Saul's tormented soul (16:14–23). This service anticipates David's role as the composer of many of the psalms. The youthful David also helped Saul by famously defeating the Philistine champion Goliath in individual combat (17:32–51). This victory anticipates David's role as a victorious military leader.

Although David was loyal, Saul grew deeply suspicious of him, and David had to flee. He was able to escape with help from Saul's own children, Jonathan and Michal. David led a virtual kingdom in exile. He had a standing army of 600 men. The prophet Gad and the priest Abiathar were also with him, providing direction and guidance from the Lord.

God's long-suffering patience finally ran out with Saul, and Saul was killed on the battlefield. Yet it was still not easy for David to establish his rule over all Israel. Judah immediately proclaimed him its king, but at first the northern tribes chose Ishbosheth, a son of Saul, to be their leader. Ishbosheth was not a powerful or good leader; he only stayed in power because of the protection of his father's military leader, Abner. However, Ishbosheth foolishly insulted Abner, so the general helped turn the kingdom over to David.

As king over a united Israel, David proceeded to solidify the kingdom. He and his men captured Jerusalem from the Jebusites and made this central city his capital. He also expelled the remaining Philistines from the land. He then brought the Ark of the Covenant into Jerusalem. David wanted to build a permanent temple to God in Jerusalem to replace the Tabernacle. God denied this wish, but he showed his love for David by entering into a covenant with him that established his descendants as a dynasty (2 Sam 7).

David's life soon took a turn for the worse, however (2 Sam 11–12). At a time when he probably should have been on the battlefield with his army, he was lounging around on the palace roof. He saw a beautiful woman named Bathsheba taking a bath. He wanted her, so, like a Near Eastern despot, he took her. She became pregnant, and his attempt to cover up his adultery failed. In a desperate attempt to keep things secret, he had her husband, Uriah, killed. But not even a great king like David can keep secrets from God, and God sent his prophet Nathan to confront David. David repented (see Pss 32, 51), but the consequences of his actions plagued his family and the rest of his reign.

From that point on, David's family fell apart. David's son Amnon raped his half sister Tamar (2 Sam 13:1–14). Her brother Absalom then murdered Amnon (2 Sam 13:20–22, 28–29). Absalom later created a civil war as he tried to steal the throne from his father (2 Sam 15–18). Another son, Adonijah, tried to take the throne from David by having himself proclaimed king while his father was still alive (1 Kgs 1:5–10). But David was able to muster enough strength to ensure that Solomon would succeed him (1 Kgs 1:28–40). David died, Solomon was proclaimed king, and David's long dynasty began (as promised in 2 Sam 7).

David's successors rarely measured up. Only rarely did his descendants lead the nation to worship God faithfully; the united monarchy did not even outlive Solomon. In the centuries that followed, the descendants of David ruled only Judah in the south. Finally, the kingdom of Judah was destroyed. Never again did a descendant of David reign as king in Israel.

What, then, of the promise to David that "your throne will be secure forever" (2 Sam 7:16)? The NT points to Jesus. He was the descendant of David, and God proclaimed him the Christ, or Messiah—the anointed king (see Matt 1:1; 9:27; 12:23; Mark 10:48; 11:10; 12:35; Luke 18:38–39; 20:41; John 7:42; Rev 5:5; 22:16). The life and rule of David foreshadows the messianic reign of Jesus Christ, which will last forever (see Luke 1:33; Rev 11:15).

loaves of bread, and carry them quickly to your brothers. ¹⁸And give these ten cuts of cheese to their captain. See how your brothers are getting along, and bring back a report on how they are doing.” ¹⁹David’s brothers were with Saul and the Israelite army at the valley of Elah, fighting against the Philistines.

²⁰So David left the sheep with another shepherd and set out early the next morning with the gifts, as Jesse had directed him. He arrived at the camp just as the Israelite army was leaving for the battlefield with shouts and battle cries. ²¹Soon the Israelite and Philistine forces stood facing each other, army against army. ²²David left his things with the keeper of supplies and hurried out to the ranks to greet his brothers. ²³As he was talking with them, Goliath, the Philistine champion from Gath, came out from the Philistine ranks. Then David heard him shout his usual taunt to the army of Israel.

²⁴As soon as the Israelite army saw him, they began to run away in fright. ²⁵“Have you seen the giant?” the men asked. “He comes out each day to defy Israel. The king has offered a huge reward to anyone who kills him. He will give that man one of his daughters for a wife, and the man’s entire family will be exempted from paying taxes!”

²⁶David asked the soldiers standing nearby, “What will a man get for killing this Philistine and ending his defiance of Israel? Who is this pagan Philistine anyway, that he is allowed to defy the armies of the living God?”

²⁷And these men gave David the same reply. They said, “Yes, that is the reward for killing him.”

²⁸But when David’s oldest brother, Eliab, heard David talking to the men, he was angry. “What are you doing around here anyway?” he demanded. “What about those few sheep you’re supposed to be taking care of? I know about your pride and deceit. You just want to see the battle!”

²⁹“What have I done now?” David replied. “I was only asking a question!” ³⁰He walked over to some others and asked them the same thing and received the same answer. ³¹Then David’s question was reported to King Saul, and the king sent for him.

³²“Don’t worry about this Philistine,” David told Saul. “I’ll go fight him!”

³³“Don’t be ridiculous!” Saul replied. “There’s no way you can fight this Philistine and possibly win! You’re only a boy, and he’s been a man of war since his youth.”

³⁴But David persisted. “I have been taking care of my father’s sheep and goats,” he said. “When a lion or a bear comes to steal a lamb from the flock, ³⁵I go after it with a club and rescue the lamb from its mouth. If the animal turns on me, I catch it by the jaw and club it to death. ³⁶I have done this to both lions and bears, and I’ll do it to this pagan Philistine, too, for he has defied the armies of the living God! ³⁷The LORD who rescued me from the claws of the lion and the bear will rescue me from this Philistine!”

Saul finally consented. “All right, go ahead,” he said. “And may the LORD be with you!”

³⁸Then Saul gave David his own armor—a bronze helmet and a coat of mail. ³⁹David put it on, strapped the sword over it, and took a step or two to see what it was like, for he had never worn such things before.

“I can’t go in these,” he protested to Saul. “I’m not used to them.” So David took them off again. ⁴⁰He ^dpicked up five smooth stones from a stream and put them into his shepherd’s bag. Then, armed only with his shepherd’s staff and sling, he started across the valley to fight the Philistine.

⁴¹Goliath walked out toward David with his shield bearer ahead of him, ⁴²sneering in contempt at this ruddy-faced boy. ⁴³“Am I a dog,” he roared at David, “that you come at me with a stick?” And he cursed David by the names of his gods. ⁴⁴"Come over here, and I'll give your flesh to the birds and wild animals!" Goliath yelled.

⁴⁵David replied to the Philistine, "You come to me with sword, spear, and javelin, but I come to you in the name of the LORD of Heaven's Armies—the God of the armies of Israel, whom you have defied. ⁴⁶Today the LORD will conquer you, and I will kill you and cut off your head. And then I will give the dead bodies of your men to the birds and wild animals, and the whole world will know that there is a God in Israel! ⁴⁷And everyone assembled here will know that the LORD rescues his people, but not with sword and spear. This is the LORD's battle, and he will give you to us!"

⁵⁰So David triumphed over the Philistine with only a sling and a stone, for he had no sword. ⁵¹Then David ran over and pulled Goliath's sword from its sheath. David used it to kill him and cut off his head.

When the Philistines saw that their champion was dead, they turned and ran. ⁵²Then the men of Israel and Judah gave a great shout of triumph and rushed after the Philistines, chasing them as far as Gath and the gates of Ekron. The bodies of the dead and wounded Philistines were strewn all along the road from Shaaraim, as far as Gath and Ekron. ⁵³Then the Israelite army returned and plundered the deserted Philistine camp. ⁵⁴(David took the Philistine's head to Jerusalem, but he stored the man's armor in his own tent.)

⁵⁵As Saul watched David go out to fight the Philistine, he asked Abner, the commander of his army, "Abner, whose son is this young man?"

"I really don't know," Abner declared.

⁵⁶"Well, find out who he is!" the king told him.

⁵⁷As soon as David returned from killing Goliath, Abner brought him to Saul with the Philistine's head still in his hand. ⁵⁸"Tell me about your father, young man," Saul said.

And David replied, "His name is Jesse, and we live in Bethlehem."

Saul Is Jealous of David's Success

18 After David had finished talking with Saul, he met Jonathan, the king's son. There was an immediate bond between them, for Jonathan loved David. ²From that day on Saul kept David with him exposed beneath his enormous helmet. • stumbled and fell face down: The stone only incapacitated Goliath; David killed him by decapitating him (17:51).

David vs. Goliath and the Battle of Elah (17:1-52). The bottom map shows a close-up view of the PHILISTINE CAMP, ISRAEL'S CAMP, and the VALLEY OF ELAH between them; the top map shows the wider region. After David crossed the valley and killed Goliath, the Philistines fled toward their homeland, and the Israelites chased them "as far as GATH and the gates of EKRON" (17:52), westward along the valley floor.

17:52 The Israelites chased the Philistines to Gath (as in some Greek manuscripts; Hebrew reads a valley), some six miles to the west. • Ekron was a Philistine city five miles north of Gath. • Shaaraim was a city of Judah near Azekah (17:1).

17:53 Unless expressly prohibited (e.g., 15:3; Josh 6:18), victory in battle allowed for the taking of war spoils (Deut 2:35; Josh 8:2).

17:54 Jerusalem became an Israelite city later, when David captured it from the Jebusites (2 Sam 5:6-7). Jerusalem was probably the final destination of Goliath's head, after David had become king. But David might have taken it to Jerusalem earlier to intimidate the non-Israelite occupants.

17:55-58 In light of 16:14-23, it is surprising that neither Saul nor Abner knew who David was. It is possible that the events of ch 17 happened either before or long after David's tenure of intermittent service mentioned in ch 16 (Saul probably served as king for forty-two years, 13:1).

18:1 David and Jonathan had much in common: both were young and capable, were military heroes, had a robust faith in God, and had a claim to the throne of Israel. It is a testimony to Jonathan's true character that he recognized and supported God's choice of David to be the next king of Israel (see 18:3-4; 20:12-17). • Jonathan loved David: See 20:17; 2 Sam 1:26. Others in this chapter are also said to love David: all Israel and Judah (18:16), Saul's daughter Michal (18:20), and Saul's servants (18:22). Some modern interpreters see a homosexual relationship between David and Jonathan, but the text implies nothing other than a deep and loyal friendship.

18:2 David had previously served Saul part-time (see 17:15 and note); now Saul kept David with him full-time.

17:44 A corpse left to scavengers such as birds and wild animals was grievously cursed (cp. Deut 21:23; 28:26).

17:45-47 the LORD of Heaven's Armies: See note on 1:3. Despite the Philistines' apparent military advantage, David knew that Israel had the supreme advantage in the one true God.

17:49 Goliath's forehead remained and wouldn't let him return home. ³And Jonathan made a solemn pact with David, because he loved him as he loved himself. ⁴Jonathan sealed the pact by taking off his robe and giving it to David, together with his tunic, sword, bow, and belt.

⁵Whatever Saul asked David to do, David did it successfully. So Saul made him a commander over the men of war, an appointment that was welcomed by the people and Saul's officers alike.

⁶When the victorious Israelite army was returning home after David had killed the Philistine, women from all the towns of Israel came out to meet ⁷King Saul. They sang and danced for joy with tambourines and cymbals. ⁷This was their song:

"Saul has killed his thousands,
and David his ten thousands!"

⁸This made Saul very angry. "What's this?" he said. "They credit David with ten thousands and me with only thousands. Next they'll be making him their king!" ⁹So from that time on Saul kept a jealous eye on David.

¹⁰The very next day a tormenting spirit from God overwhelmed Saul, and he began to rave in his house like a madman. David was playing the harp, as he did each day. But Saul had a spear in his hand, ¹¹and he suddenly hurled it at David, intending to pin him to the wall. But David escaped him twice.

¹²Saul was then afraid of David, for the LORD was with David and had turned away from Saul. ¹³Finally, Saul sent him away and appointed him commander over 1,000 men, and David faithfully led his troops into battle.

¹⁴David continued to succeed in everything he did, for the LORD was with him. ¹⁵When Saul recognized this, he became even more afraid of him. ¹⁶But all Israel and Judah loved David because he was so successful at leading his troops into battle.

¹⁷One day Saul said to David, "I am ready to give you my older daughter, Merab, as your wife. But first you must prove yourself to be a real warrior by fighting the LORD's battles." For Saul thought, "I'll send him out against the Philistines and let them kill him rather than doing it myself."

¹⁸"Who am I, and what is my family in Israel that I should be the king's son-in-law?" David exclaimed. "My father's family is nothing!" ¹⁹So when the time came for Saul to give his daughter Merab in marriage to David, he gave her instead to Adriel, a man from Meholah.

²⁰In the meantime, Saul's daughter Michal had fallen in love with David, and Saul was delighted when he heard about it.

²¹"Here's another chance to see him killed by the Philistines!" Saul said to himself. But to David he said, "Today you have a second chance to become my son-in-law!"

²²Then Saul told his men to say to David, "The king really likes you, and so do we. Why don't you accept the king's offer and become his son-in-law?"

²³When Saul's men said these things to David, he replied, "How can a poor man from a humble family afford the bride price for the daughter of a king?"

²⁴When Saul's men reported this back to the king, ²⁵he told them, "Tell David that all I want for the bride price is 100 Philistine foreskins! Vengeance on my enemies is all I really want." But what Saul had in mind was that David would be killed in the fight.

²⁶David was delighted to accept the offer. Before the time limit expired, ²⁷he and his men went out and killed 200 Philistines. Then David fulfilled the king's requirement by presenting all their foreskins to him. So 18:3-4 Out of his love for David and recognition that God had chosen David to be Israel's next king (see 20:13-17, 30-31; 23:17), Jonathan made a solemn pact of friendship with David. By giving David items that symbolized his official status as the king's son and crown prince, Jonathan symbolically gave David his right of succession to the throne.

18:6 The type of instrument represented by the word cymbals is uncertain.

18:7 thousands . . . ten thousands: This dramatic increase in number between two lines of Hebrew poetry was a way of intensifying the statement (cp. Deut 32:30; Ps 91:7). Because of his great military victories, David was beginning to eclipse Saul (18:16, 30; 21:11).

18:8-15 Saul came to view David as a threat rather than an ally and would do anything to get rid of him.

18:10 tormenting spirit (or an evil spirit): See note on 16:14.

18:11 In his jealousy and fear, Saul would have been happier with one dead David than with thousands of dead Philistines (18:7).

18:12 the LORD . . . had turned away from Saul as king as punishment for his disobedience. Saul's kingship would fail, and David's would succeed (18:14).

18:17-19 Saul offered his older daughter, Merab, to David. But it was an insincere gesture.

18:17 Saul had promised his daughter to anyone who could slay Goliath (17:25; cp. Josh 15:16; Judg 1:12), but he tacked on additional risks for David (see also 18:21, 25).

18:18 Who am I, and what is my family: An expression of humility (see also 2 Sam 7:18; cp. Exod 3:11). David's family could not afford the bride price to marry the king's daughter (18:23-25).

18:19 So: Or But. Either David declined the offer, or Saul reneged.

18:22 really likes you: The same Hebrew word describes Jonathan's love for David (18:3; 19:1-2, "strong affection"). Here, it was completely untrue.

18:23 The future son-in-law would give the bride price as a gift to his bride's father (see Gen 34:12; Exod 22:16-17).

Saul gave his daughter Michal to David to be his wife.

²⁸When Saul realized that the LORD was with David and how much his daughter Michal loved him, ²⁹Saul became even more afraid of him, and he remained David's enemy for the rest of his life.

³⁰Every time the commanders of the Philistines attacked, David was more successful against them than all the rest of Saul's officers. So David's name became very famous.

Saul's Anger Makes David a Fugitive

(19:1-23:29)

Jonathan and Michal Defend David

19 Saul now urged his servants and his son Jonathan to assassinate David. But Jonathan, because of his strong affection for David, ²told him what his father was planning. "Tomorrow morning," he warned him, "you must find a hiding place out in the fields. ³I'll ask my father to go out there with me, and I'll talk to him about you. Then I'll tell you everything I can find out."

⁴The next morning Jonathan spoke with his father about David, saying many good things about him. "The king must not sin against his servant David," Jonathan said. "He's never done anything to harm you. He has always helped you in any way he could. ⁵Have you forgotten about the time he risked his life to kill the Philistine giant and how the LORD brought a great victory to all Israel as a result? You were certainly happy about it then. Why should you murder an innocent man like David? There is no reason for it at all!"

⁶So Saul listened to Jonathan and vowed, "As surely as the LORD lives, David will not be killed."

⁷Afterward Jonathan called David and told him what had happened. Then he brought David to Saul, and David served in the court as before.

⁸War broke out again after that, and David led his troops against the Philistines. He attacked them with such fury that they all ran away.

⁹But one day when Saul was sitting at home, with spear in hand, the tormenting spirit from the LORD suddenly came upon him again. As David played his harp, ¹⁰Saul hurled his spear at David. But David dodged out of the way, and leaving the spear stuck in the wall, he fled and escaped into the night.

¹¹Then Saul sent troops to watch David's house. They were told to kill David when he came out the next morning. But Michal, David's wife, warned him, "If you don't escape tonight, you will be dead by morning."

¹²So she helped him climb out through a

Michal (18:17-30)

1 Sam 14:49;
19:11-17
2 Sam 3:13-16;
6:16-23

Michal was King Saul's younger daughter (14:49) and David's first wife (18:17-27). She played a significant role in the transition from Saul's reign to David's.

In the ancient Near East, marriages of leading families were often politically motivated. Saul baited David into a dangerous situation by promising him his older daughter Merab if he would fight the Philistines. As a powerful warrior, David was an emerging leader in Saul's kingdom. The king should have been happy to have such an ally, but he soon grew jealous of David's accomplishments and suspicious of his ambition. Saul hoped that David would die in the attempt, but the deal fell through. Later, Saul learned that his younger daughter, Michal, loved David (18:20), which gave the king another opportunity to bait David into fighting the Philistines. This time David agreed. When David returned victorious, Saul could not avoid giving David his daughter in marriage. This marriage alliance helped David establish his credentials with the northern tribes when he became king (2 Sam 3:13-16).

Michal loved David early in their relationship and even deceived her father to help David escape from a plot to kill him (19:11-17). After David left the court, Saul arranged another marriage for her (25:44), but David broke up that marriage to bolster his claim to the throne (2 Sam 3:13-16). Michal came to despise David, and she expressed her contempt when he danced joyfully before the Ark of the Covenant as it was being brought into Jerusalem (2 Sam 6:16-23). Because of her contempt for the king (1 Chr 15:29), Michal did not bear children.

18:29 even more afraid: Saul's fear was unfounded. Although he made himself David's enemy, David consistently honored Saul as king (see chs 24; 26).

19:4 Jonathan addressed his father as the king out of reverence.

19:6 vowed: Violating a vow is a serious offense against God (see Num 30:2; Deut 23:21-23; cp. Eccl 5:4-5). But Saul soon disregarded his promise and again sought to kill David (19:9-24).

19:9 tormenting spirit: Or evil spirit. See window, and he fled and escaped. ¹³Then she took an idol and put it in his bed, covered it with blankets, and put a cushion of goat's hair at its head.

¹⁴When the troops came to arrest David, she told them he was sick and couldn't get out of bed.

¹⁵But Saul sent the troops back to get David. He ordered, "Bring him to me in his bed so I can kill him!" ¹⁶But when they came to carry David out, they discovered that it was only an idol in the bed with a cushion of goat's hair at its head.

¹⁷"Why have you betrayed me like this and let my enemy escape?" Saul demanded of Michal.

"I had to," Michal replied. "He threatened to kill me if I didn't help him."

¹⁸So David escaped and went to Ramah to see Samuel, and he told him all that Saul had done to him. Then Samuel took David with him to live at Naioth. ¹⁹When the report reached Saul that David was at Naioth in Ramah, ²⁰he sent troops to capture him. But when they arrived and saw Samuel leading a group of prophets who were prophesying, the Spirit of God came upon Saul's men, and they also began to prophesy. ²¹When Saul heard what had happened, he sent other troops, but they, too, prophesied! The same thing happened a third time. ²²Finally, Saul himself went to Ramah and arrived at the great well in Secu. "Where are Samuel and David?" he demanded.

"They are at Naioth in Ramah," someone told him.

²³But on the way to Naioth in Ramah the Spirit of God came even upon Saul, and he, too, began to prophesy all the way to Naioth!

²⁴He tore off his clothes and lay naked on the ground all day and all night, prophesying in the presence of Samuel. The people who were watching exclaimed, "What? Is even Saul a prophet?"

David and Jonathan Part as Allies and Friends

20 David now fled from Naioth in Ramah and found Jonathan. "What have I done?" he exclaimed. "What is my crime? How have I offended your father that he is so determined to kill me?"

²²"That's not true!" Jonathan protested. "You're not going to die. He always tells me everything he's going to do, even the little things. I know my father wouldn't hide something like this from me. It just isn't so!"

³Then David took an oath before Jonathan and said, "Your father knows perfectly well about our friendship, so he has said to himself, 'I won't tell Jonathan—why should I hurt him?' But I swear to you that I am only a step away from death! I swear it by the LORD and by your own soul!"

⁴"Tell me what I can do to help you," Jonathan exclaimed.

⁵David replied, "Tomorrow we celebrate the new moon festival. I've always eaten with the king on this occasion, but tomorrow I'll hide in the field and stay there until the evening of the third day. ⁶If your father asks where I am, tell him I asked permission to go home to Bethlehem for an annual family sacrifice. ⁷If he says, 'Fine!' you will know all is well. But if he is angry and loses his temper, you will know he is determined to kill me. ⁸Show me this loyalty as my sworn friend—for we made a solemn pact before the LORD—or kill me yourself if I have sinned against your father. But please don't betray me to him!"

19:13 an idol (Hebrew teraphim; also in 19:16); Teraphim were household idols (see Gen 31:30; Judg 17:5; 2 Kgs 23:24). The presence of an idol in the home of David and Michal might show the pervasive influence of pagan idol worship among the Israelites; perhaps the idol belonged to Michal. Apparently David did not object to its presence. (Cp. Rachel's theft of her father's household idols in Gen 31:19.) • Siblings Jonathan (19:1-7) and Michal (19:11-18) saved David from their father and undermined their father's plans to eliminate him. Members of Saul's royal family played a significant role in David's rise, though David did not usurp Saul's throne.

19:18 Ramah: Samuel's hometown (1:1). • Naioth was a tiny village not far from the other Ramah in Benjamin.

19:20 Prophets often assembled in groups under a single leader (see 2 Kgs 2:15; 4:38; 6:1-7). • The Spirit of God came upon Saul's men to allow David to escape (20:1).

19:21 other troops . . . a third time: Each time Saul sent troops, David's would-be captors were captured by the Spirit. Prophesying diverted them from pursuing David.

19:24 When Saul tore off his clothes and lay naked, he unwittingly acted out his true spiritual condition of having been stripped of the kingship (13:14; 15:10-11, 23; see "Prophetic Sign Acts" at Ezek 4:1-17, p. 1319). • Is even Saul a prophet? In 10:9-13, Saul was rising as God's chosen king; here, he is descending under the weight of God's rejection.

20:2-3 Jonathan was naive about his father's intentions. David's willingness to swear . . . by the LORD showed how convinced he was about Saul's intentions.

20:5 new moon festival: The ancient Hebrews followed a lunar calendar, and the new moon marked the start of a new month (see "Israel's Annual Calendar" at Exod 12:2, p. 145). Every month was begun with a special sacrifice (Num 28:11-15), which became a monthly festival (see "Israel's Festivals" at Lev 23:1-44, p. 235).

20:6-7 Israelite families might designate one of the new moon festivals as an opportunity for an annual family sacrifice (see, e.g., 1:3).

20:8 Loyalty (Hebrew khesed) denotes faithfulness between covenant partners. • a solemn pact: See 18:3; 20:16.

father was planning to kill you, I would tell you at once."

¹⁰Then David asked, "How will I know whether or not your father is angry?"

¹¹"Come out to the field with me," Jonathan replied. And they went out there together. ¹²Then Jonathan told David, "I promise by the LORD, the God of Israel, that by this time tomorrow, or the next day at the latest, I will talk to my father and let you know at once how he feels about you. If he speaks favorably about you, I will let you know. ¹³But if he is angry and wants you killed, may the LORD strike me and even kill me if I don't warn you so you can escape and live. May the LORD be with you as he used to be with my father. ¹⁴And may you treat me with the faithful love of the LORD as long as I live. But if I die, ¹⁵treat my family with this faithful love, even when the LORD destroys all your enemies from the face of the earth."

¹⁶So Jonathan made a solemn pact with

David, saying, "May the LORD destroy all your enemies!" ¹⁷And Jonathan made David reaffirm his vow of friendship again, for Jonathan loved David as he loved himself.

¹⁸Then Jonathan said, "Tomorrow we celebrate the new moon festival. You will be missed when your place at the table is empty. ¹⁹The day after tomorrow, toward evening, go to the place where you hid before, and wait there by the stone pile. ²⁰I will come out and shoot three arrows to the side of the stone pile as though I were shooting at a target. ²¹Then I will send a boy to bring the arrows back. If you hear me tell him, 'They're on this side,' then you will know, as surely as the LORD lives, that all is well, and there is no trouble. ²²But if I tell him, 'Go farther—the arrows are still ahead of you,' then it will mean that you must leave immediately, for the LORD is sending you away. ²³And may the LORD make us keep our promises to each other, for he has witnessed them."

20:13 may the LORD strike me: Jonathan invoked a curse upon himself to reassure David that he would keep his promise. • as he used to be with my father: Jonathan recognized that David had received the blessing from God that his father had once had. The divine favor that had brought Saul into royal office (9:14–10:1) would bring David into royal office as Saul's replacement. Jonathan accepted this even though he was the natural successor to Saul.

20:14–16 faithful love: Hebrew khesed (see note on 20:8). Jonathan was reminding David to keep his commitment to him when he became king. It was reasonable for Jonathan to be concerned that David might kill any descendant of Saul who could make a rival claim to his throne. Saul later made a similar request of David (24:21).

20:15 treat my family: David later treated Jonathan's son, Mephibosheth, as one of his own sons (2 Sam 9:1–13).
20:16 with David: Literally with the house of David.
20:17 See 18:3; 23:16–18.
20:18–22 Jonathan's ruse would allow David to get the message even if there could be no face-to-face meeting; the boy's presence would allay suspicion and provide Jonathan an alibi for going to the field. As it happened, no one but the boy accompanied Jonathan to the field, so when the boy left, David was able to speak with Jonathan face to face (20:40–42).
20:19 the stone pile: Literally the stone Ezel. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

²⁴So David hid himself in the field, and when the new moon festival began, the king sat down to eat. ²⁵He sat at his usual place against the wall, with Jonathan sitting opposite him and Abner beside him. But David's place was empty. ²⁶Saul didn't say anything about it that day, for he said to himself, "Something must have made David ceremonially unclean." ²⁷But when David's place was empty again the next day, Saul asked Jonathan, "Why hasn't the son of Jesse been here for the meal either yesterday or today?"

²⁸Jonathan replied, "David earnestly asked me if he could go to Bethlehem. ²⁹He said, 'Please let me go, for we are having a family sacrifice. My brother demanded that I be there. So please let me get away to see my brothers.' That's why he isn't here at the king's table."

³⁰Saul boiled with rage at Jonathan. "You stupid son of a whore!" he swore at him. "Do you think I don't know that you want him to be king in your place, shaming yourself and your mother?" ³¹As long as that son of Jesse is alive, you'll never be king. Now go and get him so I can kill him!"

³⁴Jonathan left the table in fierce anger and refused to eat on that second day of the festival, for he was crushed by his father's shameful behavior toward David.

³⁵The next morning, as agreed, Jonathan went out into the field and took a young boy with him to gather his arrows. ³⁶"Start running," he told the boy, "so you can find the arrows as I shoot them." So the boy ran, and Jonathan shot an arrow beyond him. ³⁷When the boy had almost reached the arrow, Jonathan shouted, "The arrow is still ahead of you. ³⁸Hurry, hurry, don't wait." So the boy quickly gathered up the arrows and ran back to his master. ³⁹He, of course, suspected nothing; only Jonathan and David understood the signal. ⁴⁰Then Jonathan gave his bow and arrows to the boy and told him to take them back to town.

⁴¹As soon as the boy was gone, David came out from where he had been hiding near the stone pile. Then David bowed three times to Jonathan with his face to the ground. Both of them were in tears as they embraced each other and said good-bye, especially David.

⁴²At last Jonathan said to David, "Go in peace, for we have sworn loyalty to each other in the LORD's name. The LORD is the witness of a bond between us and our children forever." Then David left, and Jonathan returned to the town.

David Flees to Nob and Meets the Priest Ahimelech

21 David went to the town of Nob to see Ahimelech the priest. Ahimelech trembled when he saw him. "Why are you alone?" he asked. "Why is no one with you?"

20:25 Abner was Saul's cousin and served as commander of Saul's army (14:50; 17:55). His importance is indicated by his position beside the king at this festival. • with Jonathan sitting opposite him: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads with Jonathan standing.

20:26-27 A number of circumstances could render a person ceremonially unclean and thus unfit for attending a sacred festival (see Lev 7:20-21). Often, an unclean person was required to be excluded from such functions only until the evening of the same day (Lev 15:1-33). This explains why Saul became suspicious after David did not arrive the next day. • Saul referred to David as the son of Jesse (also in 20:31; 22:7), a description that functioned as David's surname.

20:29 get away: This verb also describes David's earlier escape from Saul (19:10, 11, 12, 17, 18).

20:30 You stupid son of a whore!

Literally You son of a perverse and rebellious woman. This epithet was as strong and insulting in Hebrew as it is in English. • shaming yourself: Saul was interested in the legacy of his own dynasty. He viewed David's actions as ultimately directed against Jonathan, the hereditary successor. To Saul, Jonathan was stupidly hurting and shaming himself by supporting David.

20:33 hurled his spear at Jonathan: See also 18:11; 19:10. • at last Jonathan realized: Jonathan had been reluctant to believe the truth about his own father (20:2-3), but he could no longer deny it.

20:41 near the stone pile: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads near the south edge. • David bowed: Jonathan had the higher social rank, so David's homage was fitting. • Both of them were in tears: For the first time, the record of the emotion between these two men shows mutuality (see 18:1, 3-4; 20:17).

20:42 sworn loyalty to each other in the LORD's name: See 18:3; 20:15-17; 23:16-18. • The last sentence of 20:42 is numbered 21:1 in the Hebrew text.

21:1-15 Verses 21:1-15 are numbered 21:2-16 in the Hebrew text.

21:1 Nob was just north of Jerusalem, in the southern part of the territory of Benjamin. • Ahimelech the priest was a descendant of the condemned family of Eli (14:3; 22:9). • The elders of Bethlehem had also trembled when Samuel unexpectedly came to their city to anoint David as Saul's replacement (16:4). On both occasions, a prominent individual who had strained relations with Saul showed up unannounced. Both Ahimelech and the Bethlehem elders were concerned about being suspected of supporting an enemy of the king, which could result in death. In this case, what was feared came about (see 22:9-19).

21:2 The king has sent me: David lied to conceal his outlaw status and to dispel Ahimelech's worries.

where to meet me later. ³Now, what is there to eat? Give me five loaves of bread or anything else you have."

"We don't have any regular bread," the priest replied. "But there is the holy bread, which you can have if your young men have not slept with any women recently."

"Don't worry," David replied. "I never allow my men to be with women when we are on a campaign. And since they stay clean even on ordinary trips, how much more on this one!"

⁶Since there was no other food available, the priest gave him the holy bread—the Bread of the Presence that was placed before the LORD in the Tabernacle. It had just been replaced that day with fresh bread.

⁷Now Doeg the Edomite, Saul's chief herdsman, was there that day, having been detained before the LORD.

⁸David asked Ahimelech, "Do you have a spear or sword? The king's business was so urgent that I didn't even have time to grab a weapon!"

⁹"I only have the sword of Goliath the Philistine, whom you killed in the valley of Elah," the priest replied. "It is wrapped in a cloth behind the ephod. Take that if you want it, for there is nothing else here."

"There is nothing like it!" David replied. "Give it to me!"

David Flees to Gath and Meets King Achish

¹⁰So David escaped from Saul and went to King Achish of Gath. ¹¹But the officers of Achish were unhappy about his being there. "Isn't this David, the king of the land?" they asked. "Isn't he the one the people honor with dances, singing,

'Saul has killed his thousands, and David his ten thousands?'"

¹²David heard these comments and was very afraid of what King Achish of Gath might do to him. ¹³So he pretended to be insane, scratching on doors and drooling down his beard.

¹⁴Finally, King Achish said to his men, "Must you bring me a madman? ¹⁵We already have enough of them around here! Why should I let someone like this be my guest?"

David Flees to a Cave in Adullam

22 So David left Gath and escaped to the cave of Adullam. Soon his brothers and all his other relatives joined him there. ²Then others began coming—men who were in trouble or in debt or who were just discontented—until David was the captain of about 400 men.

David Flees to Mizpeh in Moab

³Later David went to Mizpeh in Moab, where he asked the king, "Please allow my father and mother to live here with you until I know what God is going to do for me."

⁴So David's parents stayed in Moab with the king during the entire time David was living in his stronghold.

⁵One day the prophet Gad told David,

21:4 Only priests were permitted to partake of holy bread (see Exod 25:22-30; Lev 24:5-9), and only within the sacred precincts. • slept with any women: The consecrated bread was to be eaten only by the ritually pure, so the priest verified that David's men were free from ritual impurity caused by sexual activity (see Lev 15:16-18). Typically, such bread would not be available for consumption by laity. The priest made an exception in this case probably because he sensed the men's physical needs and he believed they were on a royal mission.

21:6 gave him the holy bread: Jesus referred to this incident to teach that meeting people's physical needs takes precedence over rigid adherence to sacred institutions (see Matt 12:1-8; Mark 2:23-28; Luke 6:1-5). • The Bread of the Presence consisted of twelve loaves (possibly one representing each tribe) that were laid out on a table in the Holy Place. They were replaced every Sabbath (see Exod 25:30; Lev 24:5-9).

21:7 having been detained before the LORD: The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. Ahimelech sought guidance from God on others' behalf (22:15), so it is possible that Doeg was awaiting a response to an inquiry.

21:9 The sword of Goliath, which David used to decapitate the giant (17:51), had been taken as war spoils, as had Goliath's head (17:54). • The ephod mentioned here might not have been the priestly garment of the same name; some passages give the impression that an ephod could also be a statue (Judg 8:27; 18:17).

21:10-15 Gath, a major Philistine city and the hometown of Goliath, was a clever but dangerous place for David to seek refuge from Saul.

21:11 the king of the land: David's reputation as a mighty warrior even greater than King Saul (see 18:7) had grown to the point where foreigners began referring to him as Israel's king.

21:12-13 The lengthy title of Ps 34 refers to this incident but names the Philistine king Abimelech rather than Achish. "Abimelech" might have been the common title for Philistine kings (in Hebrew it means "my father the king"). The name Abimelech also appears in Gen 20:2; 26:1.

22:1-23 Saul's character becomes evident here. Unable to exact revenge on David himself, Saul slaughtered those he believed to be guilty of giving aid and comfort to David.

22:1 Adullam was some sixteen miles southwest of Jerusalem, near Philistine territory. • Had David's brothers and all his other relatives stayed in Bethlehem, they would have been vulnerable to Saul's revenge.

22:2 in trouble . . . in debt . . . discontented: By attracting such down-and-out people to himself, David foreshadowed Jesus, who would attract to himself the hurting, the burdened, and the outcast (Matt 11:25-30).

22:3-4 Mizpeh in Moab lay east of the Dead Sea and the Jordan River—not an easy trip from Adullam, especially if the 400 men (22:2) accompanied David. • David's parents stayed in Moab: Jesse's grandmother was Ruth, a Moabite (Ruth 4:13-22).

22:5 The prophet Gad was David's special adviser (2 Sam 24:11). God was no longer communicating with Saul but was guiding David.

"Leave the stronghold and return to the land of Judah." So David went to the forest of Hereth.

Saul Massacres the Priests at Nob

⁶The news of his arrival in Judah soon reached Saul. At the time, the king was sitting beneath the tamarisk tree on the hill at Gibeah, holding his spear and surrounded by his officers.

⁷"Listen here, you men of Benjamin!" Saul shouted to his officers when he heard the news. "Has that son of Jesse promised every one of you fields and vineyards? Has he promised to make you all generals and captains in his army? ⁸Is that why you have conspired against me? For not one of you told me when my own son made a solemn pact with the son of Jesse. You're not even sorry for me. Think of it! My own son—encouraging him to kill me, as he is trying to do this very day!"

⁹Then Doeg the Edomite, who was standing there with Saul's men, spoke up. "When I was at Nob," he said, "I saw the son of Jesse talking to the priest, Ahimelech son of Ahitub. ¹⁰Ahimelech consulted the LORD for him. Then he gave him food and the sword of Goliath the Philistine."

¹¹King Saul immediately sent for Ahimelech and all his family, who served as priests at Nob. ¹²When they arrived, Saul shouted at him, "Listen to me, you son of Ahitub!"

"What is it, my king?" Ahimelech asked.

¹³"Why have you and the son of Jesse conspired against me?" Saul demanded. "Why did you give him food and a sword? Why have you consulted God for him? Why have you encouraged him to kill me, as he is trying to do this very day?"

¹⁴"But sir," Ahimelech replied, "is anyone among all your servants as faithful as David, your son-in-law? Why, he is the captain of your bodyguard and a highly honored member of your household! ¹⁵This was certainly not the first time I had consulted God for him! May the king not accuse me and my family in this matter, for I knew nothing at all of any plot against you."

¹⁶"You will surely die, Ahimelech, along with your entire family!" the king shouted. ¹⁷And he ordered his bodyguards, "Kill these priests of the LORD, for they are allies and conspirators with David! They knew he was running away from me, but they didn't tell me!" But Saul's men refused to kill the LORD's priests.

¹⁸Then the king said to Doeg, "You do it." So Doeg the Edomite turned on them and killed them that day, eighty-five priests in all, still wearing their priestly garments. ¹⁹Then he went to Nob, the town of the priests, and killed the priests' families—men and women, children and babies—and all the cattle, donkeys, sheep, and goats.

²⁰Only Abiathar, one of the sons of Ahimelech, escaped and fled to David. ²¹When he told David that Saul had killed the priests of the LORD, ²²David exclaimed, "I knew it! When I saw Doeg the Edomite there that day, I knew he was sure to tell Saul. Now I have caused the death of all your father's family. ²³Stay here with me, and don't be afraid. I will protect you with my own life, for the same person wants to kill us both."

David Fights the Philistines

23 One day news came to David that the Philistines were at Keilah stealing grain from the threshing floors. ²David asked the LORD, "Should I go and attack them?"

"Yes, go and save Keilah," the LORD told him.

³But David's men said, "We're afraid even here in Judah. We certainly don't want to go to Keilah to fight the whole Philistine army!"

22:7-8 men of Benjamin: Saul was suspicious of his own tribesmen, believing that David had bought their loyalty. Worse, Saul did not even trust his own son, convinced that he had joined the supposed conspiracy.

22:7 generals and captains in his army? Literally commanders of thousands and commanders of hundreds?

22:13 David had deceived Ahimelech into thinking he was on a mission for Saul (21:1-9), so Saul's accusations of conspiracy were baseless.

22:14 your son-in-law: David had married Saul's daughter (18:17-29).

22:18 Doeg the Edomite . . . killed them:

As a non-Israelite, Doeg had no concern for the sanctity of God-anointed priests. He knew he was executing innocent men. This evil foreigner partially fulfilled the prophecy about the condemned priestly line of Eli (2:27-34; see 1 Kgs 2:27). • still wearing their priestly garments: This incident illustrates how mad Saul had become. Not even those holding a sacred office were safe.

22:19 Saul had been unwilling to carry out God's orders to destroy completely the Amalekites and their possessions (15:3, 9). Yet now, in his rage, he did not hesitate to decimate the priests' families and their possessions (see Prov 14:29; 16:14; 27:4).

22:20 Abiathar became an adviser to David, providing guidance from the Lord through the ephod (23:2-12; 2 Sam 15:24-36). Later, he conspired with Adonijah against David and Solomon (1 Kgs 1-2).

23:1-29 Thanks to informants (23:7, 13), Saul was able to stay on David's trail. David also had informants, allowing him to keep one step ahead of Saul (23:1, 9, 15, 25). David's chief advantage was access to divine guidance and resources (23:2, 4, 12), which Saul lacked.

23:1 Keilah was near Adullam (22:1) at the western edge of Judah, not far from the Philistine border (see Josh 15:44; Neh 3:17-18).

⁴So David asked the LORD again, and again the LORD replied, "Go down to Keilah, for I will help you conquer the Philistines."

⁵So David and his men went to Keilah. They slaughtered the Philistines and took all their livestock and rescued the people of Keilah. ⁶Now when Abiathar son of Ahimelech fled to David at Keilah, he brought the ephod with him.

David Narrowly Escapes Saul

⁷Saul soon learned that David was at Keilah. "Good!" he exclaimed. "We've got him now! God has handed him over to me, for he has trapped himself in a walled town!" ⁸So Saul mobilized his entire army to march to Keilah and besiege David and his men.

⁹But David learned of Saul's plan and told Abiathar the priest to bring the ephod and ask the LORD what he should do. ¹⁰Then David prayed, "O LORD, God of Israel, I have heard that Saul is planning to come and destroy Keilah because I am here. ¹¹Will the leaders of Keilah betray me to him? And will Saul actually come as I have heard?

O LORD, God of Israel, please tell me."

And the LORD said, "He will come."

¹²Again David asked, "Will the leaders of Keilah betray me and my men to Saul?"

And the LORD replied, "Yes, they will betray you."

¹³So David and his men—about 600 of them now—left Keilah and began roaming the countryside. Word soon reached Saul that David had escaped, so he didn't go to Keilah after all. ¹⁴David now stayed in the strongholds of the wilderness and in the hill country of Ziph. Saul hunted him day after day, but God didn't let Saul find him.

¹⁵One day near Horesh, David received the news that Saul was on the way to Ziph to search for him and kill him. ¹⁶Jonathan went to find David and encouraged him to stay strong in his faith in God. ¹⁷"Don't be afraid," Jonathan reassured him. "My father will never find you! You are going to be the king of Israel, and I will be next to you, as my father, Saul, is well aware." ¹⁸So the two of them renewed their solemn pact before

Abiathar (22:20-23)

Abiathar was high priest during David's reign and into Solomon's reign. He first encountered David before David became king. When David fled from Saul, he stopped at the city of Nob. Pretending that he was acting on Saul's orders, David got food and supplies from the priests there. Saul discovered what had happened and was so angry that he killed all but one of the priests; only Abiathar escaped.

Abiathar was among the first people from Saul's administration to support David. His support was formidable; he represented the priesthood of Eli's line and brought with him the holy ephod containing the Urim and Thummim (Exod 28:29-30), which allowed him to seek God's will for David during crises (23:1-12; 30:7-8). After David became king, Abiathar served as priest along with Zadok, who was not a descendant of Eli (1 Chr 6:8; 18:16; 24:3; see "Zadok" at 2 Sam 15:23-37, p. 545). Both served David well; during Absalom's rebellion, for example, they reported to David what was happening in the capital (2 Sam 15:27-37; 17:15).

In David's old age, Abiathar wrongly supported Adonijah's attempt to become king in his father's place; Zadok remained loyal to David and supported Solomon (1 Kgs 1:5-8). As a result, once Solomon was on the throne, he removed Abiathar's priestly authority and banished him to his estate in Anathoth (1 Kgs 2:26-27), a village about four miles northeast of Jerusalem. Zadok became the high priest, and that role passed to Zadok's descendants rather than to Abiathar's. This removal fulfilled the "prophecy the LORD had given at Shiloh concerning the descendants of Eli" (1 Kgs 2:27; see 1 Sam 2:27-36).

23:4 David asked the LORD either directly in prayer or by using the ephod (see 23:6, 9; 2 Sam 2:1; 5:23-24). God's answers were a sign of his blessing and protection (cp. 28:6).

23:6 the ephod: Saul had slain eighty-five priests who were wearing their ephods (22:18; see note on 2:18), but the priest who escaped had the high priest's ephod, which contained the Urim and Thummim.

23:7 God has handed him over to me:

To the contrary, see 23:14.

23:11 Some manuscripts lack the first sentence of 23:11.

23:14 The strongholds of the wilderness were not man-made structures but natural rock formations that provided refuge. • Ziph was approximately ten miles southeast of Keilah (23:1).

23:16 Jonathan . . . encouraged David because he knew that God had chosen David to be king.

23:17 You are going to be the king. . . . I will be next to you (literally second to you): Jonathan recognized God's selection of David and renounced any personal ambition to the throne. Jonathan never occupied an official position in David's court but was killed in battle along with his father (31:2).

23:18 their solemn pact: See 18:3-4; 20:12-17. • Jonathan returned home: This was probably the last time David and Jonathan saw each other.

the LORD. Then Jonathan returned home, while David stayed at Horesh.

¹⁹But now the men of Ziph went to Saul in Gibeah and betrayed David to him. "We know where David is hiding," they said. "He is in the strongholds of Horesh on the hill of Hakilah, which is in the southern part of Jeshimon. ²⁰Come down whenever you're ready, O king, and we will catch him and hand him over to you!"

²¹"The LORD bless you," Saul said. "At last someone is concerned about me! ²²Go and check again to be sure of where he is staying and who has seen him there, for I know that he is very crafty. ²³Discover his hiding places, and come back when you are sure. Then I'll go with you. And if he is in the area at all, I'll track him down, even if I have to search every hiding place in Judah!" ²⁴So the men of Ziph returned home ahead of Saul.

Meanwhile, David and his men had moved into the wilderness of Maon in the Arabah Valley south of Jeshimon. ²⁵When David heard that Saul and his men were searching for him, he went even farther into the wilderness to the great rock, and he remained there in the wilderness of Maon. But Saul kept after him in the wilderness.

²⁶Saul and David were now on opposite sides of a mountain. Just as Saul and his men began to close in on David and his men, ²⁷an urgent message reached Saul that the Philistines were raiding Israel again. ²⁸So Saul quit chasing David and returned to fight the Philistines. Ever since that time, the place where David was camped has been called the Rock of Escape. ²⁹David then went to live in the strongholds of En-gedi.

David Shows Restraint (24:1–26:25)

David Spares Saul's Life at En-gedi

24 After Saul returned from fighting the Philistines, he was told that David had gone into the wilderness of En-gedi. ²So Saul chose 3,000 elite troops from all Israel and went to search for David and his men near the rocks of the wild goats.

³At the place where the road passes some sheepfolds, Saul went into a cave to relieve himself. But as it happened, David and his men were hiding farther back in that very cave!

⁵But then David's conscience began bothering him because he had cut Saul's robe. ⁶He said to his men, "The LORD forbid that I should do this to my lord the king. I shouldn't attack the LORD's anointed one, for the LORD himself has chosen him." ⁷So David restrained his men and did not let them kill Saul.

After Saul had left the cave and gone on his way, ⁸David came out and shouted after him, "My lord the king!" And when Saul looked around, David bowed low before him.

⁹Then he shouted to Saul, "Why do you listen to the people who say I am trying to harm you? ¹⁰This very day you can see with your own eyes it isn't true. For the LORD placed you at my mercy back there in the cave. Some of my men told me to kill you, but I spared you. For I said, 'I will never harm the king—he is the LORD's anointed one.' ¹¹Look, my father, at what I have in my hand. It is a piece of the hem of your robe!

23:19 Hakilah was a hill in the wilderness region of Ziph (23:14). • The term Jeshimon is sometimes translated as "wasteland" rather than as a place name. It refers here to a specific wasteland located north of the Dead Sea, on both banks of the Jordan River (see Num 21:20).

23:20 Both Keilah (23:12) and Ziph (23:14; Ps 54:TITLE) were located in Judah, but neither one provided sanctuary for David, a native of Judah. David's ascension to power was not the result of his own tribe's loyalty but because of the will of God.

23:24 Maon was about three miles directly south of the wilderness of Ziph (23:14), approximately ten miles south of Hebron. • The Arabah Valley is a deep rift stretching from above the Sea of Galilee down both sides of the Jordan River to the Dead Sea.

23:28 the Rock of Escape (Hebrew Sela-hammahlekoth): It is not uncommon for a place name to commemorate thankfulness to God (e.g., Gen 22:14; 28:19; 32:30). The exact rock formation that received this name is unknown.

23:29 Verse 23:29 is numbered 24:1 in the Hebrew text. • David traveled eastward from the area of Ziph (23:14) and took refuge in the strongholds of En-gedi. These rocky highlands were located on the western shore of the Dead Sea. There was an oasis in this region, making it an ideal place to find water and food.

24:1–22 Verses 24:1–22 are numbered 24:2–23 in the Hebrew text.

24:2 3,000 elite troops: David's force was outnumbered five to one (23:13).

24:4 David's men believed, as Saul did, that if the circumstances seem right, the LORD is telling you through those circumstances what to do (cp. 23:7). • Perhaps David was able to cut off a piece of the hem of Saul's robe without being apprehended because Saul had taken off the robe and laid it aside, or perhaps he fell asleep in the cave.

24:5 David's conscience began bothering him because he had dishonored God's anointed king.

24:6 The LORD's anointed one was not to be violated (26:9, 11, 16, 23; 2 Sam 1:14, 16; 19:21). David would not harm Saul even though God had anointed him to be the next king (16:13).

I cut it off, but I didn't kill you. This proves that I am not trying to harm you and that I have not sinned against you, even though you have been hunting for me to kill me.

¹²"May the LORD judge between us. Perhaps the LORD will punish you for what you are trying to do to me, but I will never harm you. ¹³As that old ^hproverb says, 'From evil people come evil deeds.' So you can be sure I will never harm you. ¹⁴Who is the king of Israel trying to catch anyway? Should he spend his time chasing one who is as worthless as a dead dog or a single flea? ¹⁵May the LORD therefore judge which of us is right and punish the guilty one. He is my advocate, and he will rescue me from your power!"

¹⁶When David had finished speaking, Saul called back, "Is that really you, my son David?" Then he began to cry. ¹⁷And he said to David, "You are a better man than I am, for you have repaid me good for evil. ¹⁸Yes, you have been amazingly kind to me today, for when the LORD put me in a place where you could have killed me, you didn't do it. ¹⁹Who else would let his enemy get away when he had him in his power? May the LORD reward you well for the kindness you have shown me today. ²⁰And now I realize that you are surely going to be king, and that the kingdom of Israel will flourish under your rule. ²¹Now swear to me by the LORD that when that happens you will not kill my family and destroy my line of descendants!"

²²So David promised this to Saul with an oath. Then Saul went home, but David and his men went back to their stronghold.

Abigail Prevents David from Committing Murder

25 Now Samuel died, and all Israel gathered for his funeral. They buried him at his house in Ramah.

Then David moved down to the wilderness of Maon. ²There was a wealthy man from Maon who owned property near the town of Carmel. He had 3,000 sheep and 1,000 goats, and it was sheep-shearing time. ³This man's name was Nabal, and his wife, Abigail, was a sensible and beautiful woman. But Nabal, a descendant of Caleb, was crude and mean in all his dealings.

⁴When David heard that Nabal was shearing his sheep, ⁵he sent ten of his young men to Carmel with this message for Nabal: ⁶"Peace and prosperity to you, your family, and everything you own! ⁷I am told that it is sheep-shearing time. While your shepherds stayed among us near Carmel, we never harmed them, and nothing was ever stolen from them. ⁸Ask your own men, and they will tell you this is true. So would you be kind to us, since we have come at a time of celebration? Please share any provisions you might have on hand with us and with your friend David." ⁹David's young men gave this message to Nabal in David's name, and they waited for a reply.

¹⁰"Who is this fellow David?" Nabal sneered to the young men. "Who does this son of Jesse think he is? There are lots of servants these days who run away from their masters. ¹¹Should I take my bread and my water and my meat that I've slaughtered for my shearers and give it to a band of outlaws who come from who knows where?"

¹⁴Meanwhile, one of Nabal's servants went to Abigail and told her, "David sent messengers from the wilderness to greet our master, but he screamed insults at them.

24:11 my father: Saul was, in fact, David's father-in-law (18:27). David was demonstrating his respect for the king and recalling a day when their relationship had been much friendlier.

24:12 May the LORD judge: There was no human authority to adjudicate between Saul and David (cp. Gen 16:5; 31:53; Exod 5:21; Judg 11:27). • Perhaps the LORD will punish you: David rested in God's will rather than trying to force God's hand.

24:13 The proverb vindicates David and indicts Saul. David refrained from evil deeds, such as killing Saul. Saul, however, repeatedly tried to kill David.

24:20 I realize that you are surely going to be king: This was Saul's first open admission of the truth (cp. 23:17).

24:21-22 Now swear to me . . . you will not kill my family: Having descendants was a way that Saul's name would endure among the living. David had already sworn such an oath with Jonathan (20:14-17).

25:1-44 This episode about Nabal falls between two accounts in which Saul pursued David and David spared Saul's life. Nabal was similar to Saul.

25:1 Maon: as in Greek version (see also 25:2); Hebrew reads Paran. This town in southern Judah (see note on 23:24) was likely Nabal's home. The wilderness of Paran, located in the northern half of the Sinai peninsula, was too far south.

The wilderness of Paran served as a place of refuge (Gen 21:21; 1 Kgs 11:18).

25:2 Carmel was a village near Maon, not to be confused with the famous mountain from the Elijah narrative in 1 Kgs 18. It was in this village that Saul had erected his monument to celebrate victory over the Amalekites (15:12).

25:3 Nabal: See 25:25 for insight into the irony of his name. • Unlike her husband, Abigail was a sensible and wise person, as the narrative shows.

25:8 Sheep-shearing time for herdsman was like harvest time for farmers, a time of celebration and thankfulness for blessings.

25:10 son of Jesse: Like Saul (20:27, 31; 22:7), Nabal used this designation disrespectfully.

¹⁵These men have been very good to us, and we never suffered any harm from them. Nothing was stolen from us the whole time they were with us. ¹⁶In fact, day and night they were like a wall of protection to us and the sheep. ¹⁷You need to know this and figure out what to do, for there is going to be trouble for our master and his whole family. He's so ill-tempered that no one can even talk to him!"

¹⁸Abigail wasted no time. She quickly gathered 200 loaves of bread, two wineskins full of wine, five sheep that had been slaughtered, nearly a bushel of roasted grain, 100 clusters of raisins, and 200 fig cakes. She packed them on donkeys ¹⁹and said to her servants, "Go on ahead. I will follow you shortly." But she didn't tell her husband Nabal what she was doing.

²⁰As she was riding her donkey into a mountain ravine, she saw David and his men coming toward her. ²¹David had just been saying, "A lot of good it did to help this fellow. We protected his flocks in the wilderness, and nothing he owned was lost or stolen. But he has repaid me evil for good. ²²May God strike me and kill me if even one man of his household is still alive tomorrow morning!"

²³When Abigail saw David, she quickly got off her donkey and bowed low before him. ²⁴She fell at his feet and said, "I accept all blame in this matter, my lord. Please listen to what I have to say. ²⁵I know Nabal is a wicked and ill-tempered man; please don't pay any attention to him. He is a fool, just as his name suggests. But I never even saw the young men you sent.

²⁶"Now, my lord, as surely as the LORD lives and you yourself live, since the LORD has kept you from murdering and taking vengeance into your own hands, let all your enemies and those who try to harm you be as cursed as Nabal is. ²⁷And here is a present that I, your servant, have brought to you and your young men. ²⁸Please forgive me if

I have offended you in any way. The LORD will surely reward you with a lasting dynasty, for you are fighting the LORD's battles. And you have not done wrong throughout your entire life.

²⁹"Even when you are chased by those who seek to kill you, your life is safe in the care of the LORD your God, secure in his treasure pouch! But the lives of your enemies will disappear like stones shot from a sling! ³⁰When the LORD has done all he promised and has made you leader of Israel, ³¹don't let this be a blemish on your record. Then your conscience won't have to bear the staggering burden of needless bloodshed and vengeance. And when the LORD has done these great things for you, please remember me, your servant!"

³²David replied to Abigail, "Praise the LORD, the God of Israel, who has sent you to meet me today! ³³Thank God for your good sense! Bless you for keeping me from murder and from carrying out vengeance with my own hands. ³⁴For I swear by the LORD, the God of Israel, who has kept me from hurting you, that if you had not hurried out to meet me, not one of Nabal's men would still be alive tomorrow morning." ³⁵Then David accepted her present and told her, "Return home in peace. I have heard what you said. We will not kill your husband."

³⁶When Abigail arrived home, she found that Nabal was throwing a big party and was celebrating like a king. He was very drunk, so she didn't tell him anything about her meeting with David until dawn the next day. ³⁷In the morning when Nabal was sober, his wife told him what had happened. As a result he had a stroke, and he lay paralyzed on his bed like a stone. ³⁸About ten days later, the LORD struck him, and he died.

³⁹When David heard that Nabal was dead, he said, "Praise the LORD, who has avenged the insult I received from Nabal and has kept me from doing it myself. Nabal has received the punishment for his sin." Then 25:18 nearly a bushel: Hebrew 5 seahs [36.5 liters].

25:21 he has repaid me evil for good: Cp. 24:17.

25:22 May God strike me and kill me: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads May God strike and kill the enemies of David. Like Saul, David was capable of extreme speech against enemies.

25:25 The name Nabal means "fool."

25:26 Abigail began and ended (25:31) her plea by declaring that God had kept you from murdering and taking ven- geance: David could have killed Nabal (and Saul), but he didn't.

25:28 a lasting dynasty: See 2 Sam 7. • fighting the LORD's battles: David was known and loved for his victories over Israel's enemies (18:7, 13, 16). • have not done wrong: This comment does not indicate that David was sinless, but rather that he was innocent in his quest for the throne (as 25:29-31 make clear).

25:29 The phrase like stones shot from a sling is a fitting metaphor for David, considering his defeat of Goliath with a sling (17:32-51).

25:36 like a king: Nabal was like Saul (see note on 25:1-44).

25:37 Nabal was so stunned by the revelation that he had a stroke or a heart attack (literally his heart failed him).

25:39 Nabal's death was God's punishment for his sin. David could not be accused of vengeful murder. • David lost no time in asking Abigail to become his wife. She had already shown herself to be a woman of good sense, and she was also beautiful (25:3).

David sent messengers to Abigail to ask her to become his wife.

⁴⁰When the messengers arrived at Carmel, they told Abigail, "David has sent us to take you back to marry him."

⁴¹She bowed low to the ground and responded, "I, your servant, would be happy to marry David. I would even be willing to become a slave, washing the feet of his servants!" ⁴²Quickly getting ready, she took along five of her servant girls as attendants, mounted her donkey, and went with David's messengers. And so she became his wife. ⁴³David also married Ahinoam from Jezreel, making both of them his wives. ⁴⁴Saul, meanwhile, had given his daughter Michal, David's wife, to a man from Gallim named Palti son of Laish.

David Spares Saul's Life Again

26 Now some men from Ziph came to Saul at Gibeah to tell him, "David is hiding on the hill of Hakilah, which overlooks Jeshimon."

²So Saul took 3,000 of Israel's elite troops and went to hunt him down in the wilderness of Ziph. ³Saul camped along the road beside the hill of Hakilah, near Jeshimon, where David was hiding. When David learned that Saul had come after him into the wilderness, ⁴he sent out spies to verify the report of Saul's arrival.

⁵David slipped over to Saul's camp one night to look around. Saul and Abner son of Ner, the commander of his army, were sleeping inside a ring formed by the slumbering warriors. ⁶"Who will volunteer to go in there with me?" David asked Ahimelech the Hittite and Abishai son of Zeruiah, Joab's brother.

"I'll go with you," Abishai replied. ⁷So David and Abishai went right into Saul's camp and found him asleep, with his spear stuck in the ground beside his head. Abner and the soldiers were lying asleep around him.

⁸"God has surely handed your enemy over to you this time!" Abishai whispered to David. "Let me pin him to the ground with one thrust of the spear; I won't need to strike twice!"

⁹"No!" David said. "Don't kill him. For who can remain innocent after attacking the LORD's anointed one? ¹⁰Surely the LORD will strike Saul down someday, or he will die of old age or in battle. ¹¹The LORD forbid that I should kill the one he has anointed! But take his spear and that jug of water beside his head, and then let's get out of here!"

¹²So David took the spear and jug of water that were near Saul's head. Then he and Abishai got away without anyone seeing them or even waking up, because the LORD had put Saul's men into a deep sleep.

¹³David climbed the hill opposite the camp until he was at a safe distance. ¹⁴Then he shouted down to the soldiers and to Abner son of Ner, "Wake up, Abner!"

"Who is it?" Abner demanded.

¹⁵"Well, Abner, you're a great man, aren't you?" David taunted. "Where in all Israel is there anyone as mighty? So why haven't you guarded your master the king when someone came to kill him? ¹⁶This isn't good at all! I swear by the LORD that you and your men deserve to die, because you failed to protect your master, the LORD's anointed! Look around! Where are the king's spear and the jug of water that were beside his head?"

¹⁷Saul recognized David's voice and called out, "Is that you, my son David?"

25:43 Ahinoam was also the name of Saul's wife (14:50). If she was the same woman, then David took Saul's widow after his death (ch 31), which would make another parallel between Nabal and Saul. However, see 27:3; 30:5. • This Jezreel was a village in the vicinity of Maon, Ziph, and Carmel in Judah (Josh 15:55-56) and not the better-known northern city of Jezreel.

25:44 Saul's motive for giving away Michal to another man was probably political, an attempt to remove any claim David might have on the throne by dissolving David's marriage with a member of the royal family.

26:1-25 This was the last time Saul and David were together. The Ziphites told Saul for the second time where David was hiding (see 23:19-20), and David spared Saul's life a second time as he did in the cave at En-gedi (see ch 24).

26:1 Men from Ziph had previously volunteered to capture David and hand him over to Saul (23:19-20). • Hakilah . . . Jeshimon is the same geographical location they had mentioned to Saul before (23:19). David had not moved far, probably because the hilly terrain was dotted with numerous caves, providing many good hiding places.

26:3 Saul had come after David again, despite his earlier remorse (24:17-21). Saul had become incapable of acting rationally or speaking truthfully.

26:5 Abner son of Ner: See note on 20:25.

26:6 This is the only reference to Ahimelech the Hittite. • Zeruiah was David's sister (1 Chr 2:16), so Abishai was David's nephew. The sons of Zeruiah (Abishai, Joab, and Asahel) were three of David's most faithful followers (e.g., 2 Sam 2:18), but they sometimes caused David difficulty (see 2 Sam 3:39; 16:10; 19:22).

26:8 God has surely handed your enemy over to you: Cp. 24:4.

26:9 the LORD's anointed: See note on 24:6.

26:10 David was confident that God would judge between him and Saul just as he had done between him and Nabal (see 25:38). Saul did die . . . in battle against the Philistines (31:6).

26:14 Abner: See note on 20:25.

26:16 deserve to die: Death was the punishment for dereliction of duty.

26:17 Is that you, my son David? Cp. 24:16.

And David replied, "Yes, my lord the king. ¹⁸Why are you chasing me? What have I done? What is my crime? ¹⁹But now let my lord the king listen to his servant. If the LORD has stirred you up against me, then let him accept my offering. But if this is simply a human scheme, then may those involved be cursed by the LORD. For they have driven me from my home, so I can no longer live among the LORD's people, and they have said, 'Go, worship pagan gods.' ²⁰Must I die on foreign soil, far from the presence of the LORD? Why has the king of Israel come out to search for a single flea? Why does he hunt me down like a partridge on the mountains?"

²¹Then Saul confessed, "I have sinned. Come back home, my son, and I will no longer try to harm you, for you valued my life today. I have been a fool and very, very wrong."

²²"Here is your spear, O king," David replied. "Let one of your young men come over and get it. ²³The LORD gives his own reward for doing good and for being loyal, and I refused to kill you even when the LORD placed you in my power, for you are the LORD's anointed one. ²⁴Now may the LORD value my life, even as I have valued yours today. May he rescue me from all my troubles."

²⁵And Saul said to David, "Blessings on you, my son David. You will do many heroic deeds, and you will surely succeed." Then David went away, and Saul returned home.

Saul's Life and Reign End in Disaster

(27:1–31:13)

David Serves with the Philistines

27 But David kept thinking to himself, "Someday Saul is going to get me. The best thing I can do is escape to the Philistines. Then Saul will stop hunting for me in Israelite territory, and I will finally be safe."

²So David took his 600 men and went over and joined Achish son of Maach, the king of Gath. ³David and his men and their families settled there with Achish at Gath. David brought his two wives along with him—Ahinoam from Jezreel and Abigail, Nabal's widow from Carmel. ⁴Word soon reached Saul that David had fled to Gath, so he stopped hunting for him.

⁵One day David said to Achish, "If it is all right with you, we would rather live in one of the country towns instead of here in the royal city."

⁶So Achish gave him the town of Ziklag (which still belongs to the kings of Judah to this day), ⁷and they lived there among the Philistines for a year and four months.

⁸David and his men spent their time raiding the Geshurites, the Girzites, and the Amalekites—people who had lived near Shur, toward the land of Egypt, since ancient times. ⁹David did not leave one person alive in the villages he attacked. He took the sheep, goats, cattle, donkeys, camels, and clothing before returning home to see King Achish.

¹⁰"Where did you make your raid today?" Achish would ask.

And David would reply, "Against the south of Judah, the Jerahmeelites, and the Kenites."

¹¹No one was left alive to come to Gath and tell where he had really been. This happened again and again while he was living among the Philistines. ¹²Achish believed David and thought to himself, "By now the people of Israel must hate him bitterly. Now he will have to stay here and serve me forever!"

26:19 If the LORD has stirred you up against me: David was perplexed by Saul's behavior and concerned with the possibility of unintentional sin on his part. • a human scheme: Possibly a reference to Doeg (22:9-10). • worship pagan gods: The sentiment parallels Ps 137:4. Anyone who was exiled from the holy land was unable to worship the Lord by participating in sacrifice at the central sanctuary.

26:20 a single flea: Cp. 24:14.

26:21 I have sinned: Saul had seen the error of his ways once before (24:16-19). David had no good reason to trust him this time (see 27:1). • I have been a fool: This Hebrew term (sakal, "play the fool," see also 13:13) is different from the word meaning "fool" (nabal) used in ch 25. However, the two words have parallel meanings. Saul and Nabal are parallel figures.

26:23 David did not harm Saul (24:6; 26:9) because Saul was the LORD's anointed one (see note on 24:6).

26:24 may the LORD value my life, even as I have valued yours: David could not count on Saul to reciprocate. Thus, his fate was in God's hands.

26:25 Saul returned home, and this may have been David's last personal encounter with him.

27:1-12 David fled to the Philistines to get away from Saul for good. Rather than killing Saul, David chose the dangerous life of a fugitive.

27:2 This was David's second sojourn with Achish, the Philistine king (see 21:10-15). On both occasions, David lied to him (see 27:10).

27:6 Ziklag was about twenty-two miles southwest of Gath. • still belongs to the kings of Judah: This note was written between Solomon's death (931 BC) and the start of the Babylonian exile (586 BC).

27:8 Geshurites . . . Girzites . . . Amalekites: These groups, who lived on the edges of the southern desert, had been troublesome to both Philistines and Israelites. (On the Amalekites, see 14:48; 15; on the Geshurites, see Josh 13:2, 13; 2 Sam 3:3.) • Shur was somewhere east of Egypt (15:7; Gen 16:7; 20:1; 25:18).

27:9 David did not leave one person alive: At least some of these people were among those whom God had commanded Israel to destroy (see 15:3; 28:18; Deut 25:17-19; Josh 13:13).

27:10 David misled Achish by claiming his attacks were against his own people of Judah and two other related groups. The text does not commend David for lying to the foreign king, but neither does

28 About that time the Philistines mustered their armies for another war with Israel. King Achish told David, "You and your men will be expected to join me in battle."

"Very well!" David agreed. "Now you will see for yourself what we can do."

Then Achish told David, "I will make you my personal bodyguard for life."

A Medium Summons Samuel's Ghost

Meanwhile, Samuel had died, and all Israel had mourned for him. He was buried in Ramah, his hometown. And Saul had banned from the land of Israel all mediums and those who ^aconsult the spirits of the dead.

⁴The Philistines set up their camp at Shunem, and Saul gathered all the army of Israel and camped at Gilboa. ⁵When Saul saw the vast Philistine army, he became frantic with fear. ⁶He asked the LORD what he should do, but the LORD refused to answer him, either by dreams or by sacred lots or by the prophets. ⁷Saul then said to his advisers, "Find a woman who is a medium, so I can go and ask her what to do."

His advisers replied, "There is a medium at Endor."

⁸So Saul disguised himself by wearing ordinary clothing instead of his royal robes. Then he went to the woman's home at night, accompanied by two of his men.

"I have to talk to a man who has died," he said. "Will you call up his spirit for me?"

⁹"Are you trying to get me killed?" the woman demanded. "You know that Saul has outlawed all the mediums and all who ^aconsult the spirits of the dead. Why are you setting a trap for me?"

¹⁰But Saul took an oath in the name of the LORD and promised, "As surely as the LORD lives, nothing bad will happen to you for doing this."

¹¹Finally, the woman said, "Well, whose spirit do you want me to call up?"

"Call up Samuel," Saul replied.

¹²When the woman saw Samuel, she screamed, "You've deceived me! You are Saul!"

¹³"Don't be afraid!" the king told her. "What do you see?"

"I see a god coming up out of the earth," she said.

¹⁴"What does he look like?" Saul asked.

"He is an old man wrapped in a robe," she replied. Saul realized it was Samuel, and he fell to the ground before him.

¹⁵"Why have you disturbed me by calling me back?" Samuel asked Saul.

"Because I am in deep trouble," Saul replied. "The Philistines are at war with me, and God has left me and won't reply by prophets or dreams. So I have called for you to tell me what to do."

¹⁶But Samuel replied, "Why ask me, since the LORD has left you and has become your enemy? ¹⁷The LORD has done just as he said he would. He has torn the kingdom from you and given it to your rival, David. ¹⁸The LORD has done this to you today because you refused to carry out his fierce anger against the Amalekites. ¹⁹What's more, the LORD will hand you and the army of Israel over to the Philistines tomorrow, and you and your sons will be here with me. The LORD will bring down the entire army of Israel in defeat."

it condemn him. • The Jerahmeelites were a Semitic tribe in southern Judah (1 Chr 2:9, 25-27, 33, 42). • Kenites: Moses' father-in-law was a Kenite (Judg 1:16; 4:11; see also note on 1 Sam 15:6).

28:1 another war: Hostilities between Israel and the Philistines were now routine. In exchange for providing refuge, Achish expected David's military involvement and cooperation.

28:3-14 Saul consulted the dead, a practice forbidden by God's law (see Lev 20:27; Deut 18:9-11).

28:3 banned from the land: Saul had either expelled or killed most mediums, or he had merely outlawed the practice of necromancy (see note on 28:9).

28:4 Shunem, a border town in the territory of Issachar (Josh 19:18), overlooked the valley of Jezreel. • Mount Gilboa is at the east end of the valley of Jezreel. The mountain took its name from a nearby village.

28:6 refused to answer: Earlier, Saul had consulted the Lord by sacred lots (literally by Urim) with mixed results (14:36-42). God's refusal to speak was a sign of his judgment (14:37; Lam 2:9; Ezek 7:26; Amos 8:11-12; Mic 3:6-7).

28:7 Excluded from God's counsel, Saul resorted to illegitimate methods for finding God's will. Saul had earlier prohibited the occult practice that he now engaged in himself (28:3). • Endor was on the boundary between Israel and Philistia; the area near Israel's border was probably a safer location for a banned practice.

28:9 outlawed: Literally cut off, suggesting that Saul might have had most of the mediums executed.

28:12 It is not clear why seeing Samuel caused the woman to recognize Saul.

28:13 Saul asked the medium to describe what she saw that caused her to scream. She described a divine being, a god (or gods; Hebrew 'elohim) coming up. Perhaps she observed a human figure with a godlike or angelic appearance, or her use of the term god might reflect a pagan belief that a person becomes a god—a spirit possessing supernatural abilities—after death.

28:15 God has left me: The same Hebrew term is used in 16:14 and Judg 16:20. • won't reply by prophets or dreams: Cp. 28:6.

28:16 Saul's enemy was not David but the Lord himself.

28:17 torn the kingdom from you: See 15:28.

28:18 you refused: Samuel's message to Saul had not changed (cp. 15:19).

28:19 here with me: In Sheol, the abode of the dead (cp. 2:6, "the grave"; see also Num 16:30-33; Job 17:1-16; Ps 49:11; Rev 1:18).

²⁰Saul fell full length on the ground, paralyzed with fright because of Samuel's words. He was also faint with hunger, for he had eaten nothing all day and all night.

²¹When the woman saw how distraught he was, she said, "Sir, I obeyed your command at the risk of my life. ²²Now do what I say, and let me give you a little something to eat so you can regain your strength for the trip back."

²³But Saul refused to eat anything. Then his advisers joined the woman in urging him to eat, so he finally yielded and got up from the ground and sat on the couch.

²⁴The woman had been fattening a calf, so she hurried out and killed it. She took some flour, kneaded it into dough and baked unleavened bread. ²⁵She brought the meal to Saul and his advisers, and they ate it. Then they went out into the night.

David Is Dismissed from the Philistine Army

29 The entire Philistine army now mobilized at Aphek, and the Israelites camped at the spring in Jezreel. ²As the Philistine rulers were leading out their troops in groups of hundreds and thousands, David and his men marched at the rear with King Achish. ³But the Philistine commanders demanded, "What are these Hebrews doing here?"

And Achish told them, "This is David, the servant of King Saul of Israel. He's been with me for years, and I've never found a single fault in him from the day he arrived until today."

⁴But the Philistine commanders were angry. "Send him back to the town you've given him!" they demanded. "He can't go into the battle with us. What if he turns against us in battle and becomes our adversary? Is there any better way for him to reconcile himself with his master than by handing our heads over to him? ⁵Isn't this the same David about whom the women of Israel sing in their dances,

'Saul has killed his thousands,
and David his ten thousands?'"

⁶So Achish finally summoned David and said to him, "I swear by the LORD that you have been a trustworthy ally. I think you should go with me into battle, for I've never found a single flaw in you from the day you arrived until today. But the other Philistine rulers won't hear of it. ⁷Please don't upset them, but go back quietly."

⁸"What have I done to deserve this treatment?" David demanded. "What have you ever found in your servant, that I can't go and fight the enemies of my lord the king?"

The OT forbids occult practices, such as spiritism, divination, and necromancy, in which someone attempts to contact the dead, usually to seek guidance about the future (see Deut 18:9-12). Practicing necromancy and consulting a necromancer were capital offenses (Lev 20:6, 27; cp. 1 Sam 28:9). God's people were instead to rely on God for divine guidance.

God buried Moses in an unmarked grave (Deut 34:6) because of Moses' stature and his role in mediating Israel's covenant with God. God did not want the Israelites to make Moses' grave a shrine, present offerings to his spirit, worship him, or attempt to consult his spirit.

The OT makes it plain that the dead cannot be contacted (cp. 2 Sam 12:23; Job 14:10-12; Ps 88:10; 115:17). Samuel is the only known exception; God apparently commanded him to return and speak (28:12-19). However, Saul's sin in consulting a medium was so severe that the Chronicler singles out this failure in commenting on Saul's downfall (see 1 Chr 10:13-14). There is never any justification for seeking advice from the dead when we have the living word of God to guide us (2 Tim 3:15-17; Heb 4:12-13).

28:24 fattening a calf . . . dough . . . bread: This meal was a major undertaking, a model of hospitality (cp. Gen 18:5-7). This meal the medium shared with Saul recalls the fine meal Samuel had shared with Saul (9:22-24) before he anointed Saul as king. That meal with God's prophet marked the beginning of Saul's kingship. This meal with a condemned spiritist came shortly before his death.

29:1-11 David was spared by divine providence from actually fighting against his own people.

29:1 Aphek was the site of an earlier confrontation between Israel and the Philistines (4:1). • Jezreel was about forty miles northeast of Aphek.

29:3 servant of King Saul: To Achish, David was a valued defector. The other Philistine rulers suspected that David was a plant, planning to mount an attack from within the Philistine defenses. • never found a single fault: This was the first of three times that Achish defended David (see also 29:6, 9). Yet David had been deceiving Achish the whole time (see 27:1-12).

29:4 handing our heads over: The commanders' fears were justified (cp. 17:51; 18:27).

29:5 This jingle referred to slain Philistines (18:7). It is remarkable that David could find refuge in their midst.

29:6 by the LORD: Achish used the unique name of Israel's God to prove his own sincerity. • a trustworthy ally: This assertion was not completely true, though Achish did not realize it (27:8-12).

⁹But Achish insisted, "As far as I'm concerned, you're as perfect as an angel of God. But the Philistine commanders are afraid to have you with them in the battle. ¹⁰Now get up early in the morning, and leave with your men as soon as it gets light."

¹¹So David and his men headed back into the land of the Philistines, while the Philistine army went on to Jezreel.

David Conducts a Holy War against the Amalekites

30 Three days later, when David and his men arrived home at their town of Ziklag, they found that the Amalekites had made a raid into the Negev and Ziklag; they had crushed Ziklag and burned it to the ground. ²They had carried off the women and children and everyone else but without killing anyone.

³When David and his men saw the ruins and realized what had happened to their families, ⁴they wept until they could weep no more. ⁵David's two wives, Ahinoam from Jezreel and Abigail, the widow of Nabal from Carmel, were among those captured. ⁶David was now in great danger because all his men were very bitter about losing their sons and daughters, and they began to talk of stoning him. But David found strength in the LORD his God.

⁷Then he said to Abiathar the priest, "Bring me the ephod!" So Abiathar brought it. ⁸Then David asked the LORD, "Should I chase after this band of raiders? Will I catch them?"

And the LORD told him, "Yes, go after them. You will surely recover everything that was taken from you!"

⁹So David and his 600 men set out, and they came to the brook Besor. ¹⁰But 200 of the men were too exhausted to cross the brook, so David continued the pursuit with 400 men.

¹¹Along the way they found an Egyptian man in a field and brought him to David. They gave him some bread to eat and water to drink. ¹²They also gave him part of a fig cake and two clusters of raisins, for he hadn't had anything to eat or drink for three days and nights. Before long his strength returned.

¹³"To whom do you belong, and where do you come from?" David asked him.

"I am an Egyptian—the slave of an Amalekite," he replied. "My master abandoned me three days ago because I was sick. ¹⁴We were on our way back from raiding the Kerethites in the Negev, the territory of Judah, and the land of Caleb, and we had just burned Ziklag."

¹⁵"Will you lead me to this band of raiders?" David asked.

The young man replied, "If you take an oath in God's name that you will not kill me or give me back to my master, then I will guide you to them."

David's Destruction of the Amalekites (29:1–30:31). When the Philistine army mobilized at APHEK to fight against Saul, David was sent back to ZIKLAG, his home in PHILISTIA. When he arrived, he found that the Amalekites had attacked and destroyed Ziklag, probably in retribution for David's earlier raids (27:8-9), and had carried everything and everyone away as plunder. David and his men chased the Amalekites into their territory and recovered everything. From Ziklag, David sent gifts from the plunder to many of the towns of Judah (shown as white circles; see note on 30:26; towns whose location is unknown are not shown).

anyone: The Amalekites were not being compassionate; women and children were more useful alive than dead.

30:5 Ahinoam: See note on 25:43.

Abigail: See 25:3-42.

30:6 in great danger: Saul had used the same expression about himself: When "in deep trouble" (28:15), Saul turned to necromancy, with disastrous results.

David, by contrast, found strength and success in the LORD his God.

30:7 the ephod: See notes on 2:18; 23:6.

30:8 Unlike Saul (28:6), David inquired of the LORD successfully (see 23:9-12; 2 Sam 2:1; 5:19, 23).

30:9 Besor was a large brook in Philistine territory that emptied into the Mediterranean southwest of Gaza.

30:10 too exhausted: David's men had traveled for three days (30:1) and were now in hot pursuit of the Amalekites without having rested. David did not upbraid them or drive them on mercilessly. See 30:23-25.

30:11-12 David had once received bread when he was famished (21:3-7). He and his men helped this Egyptian man before they even knew his identity or his ability to help their cause.

30:13 because I was sick: Only healthy and vigorous slaves were valuable to the Amalekites; the rest were expendable.

30:14 The land of Caleb was in the wilderness of Judah, south of Hebron (see Josh 14:6-15).

30:1 Ziklag: See note on 27:6. • Perhaps the Amalekites were retaliating for David's raids against them (27:8).

30:2 There were no fighting men left in Ziklag to protect the women and children. The Amalekites had a reputation for preying on the weak and vulnerable (see Deut 25:17-18). • without killing ¹⁶So he led David to them, and they found the Amalekites spread out across the fields, eating and drinking and dancing with joy because of the vast amount of plunder they had taken from the Philistines and the land of Judah. ¹⁷David and his men rushed in among them and slaughtered them throughout that night and the entire next day until evening. None of the Amalekites escaped except 400 young men who fled on camels. ¹⁸David got back everything the Amalekites had taken, and he rescued his two wives. ¹⁹Nothing was missing: small or great, son or daughter, nor anything else that had been taken. David brought everything back. ²⁰He also recovered all the flocks and herds, and his men drove them ahead of the other livestock. "This plunder belongs to David!" they said.

²¹Then David returned to the brook Besor and met up with the 200 men who had been left behind because they were too exhausted to go with him. They went out to meet David and his men, and David greeted them joyfully. ²²But some evil troublemakers among David's men said, "They didn't go with us, so they can't have any of the plunder we recovered. Give them their wives and children, and tell them to be gone."

²³But David said, "No, my brothers! Don't be selfish with what the LORD has given us. He has kept us safe and helped us defeat the band of raiders that attacked us. ²⁴Who will listen when you talk like this? We share and share alike—those who go to battle and those who guard the equipment." ²⁵From then on David made this a decree and regulation for Israel, and it is still followed today.

²⁶When he arrived at Ziklag, David sent part of the plunder to the elders of Judah, who were his friends. "Here is a present for you, taken from the LORD's enemies," he said.

²⁷The gifts were sent to the people of the following towns David had visited: Bethel, Ramoth-negev, Jattir, ²⁸Aroer, Siphmoth, Eshtemoa, ²⁹Racal, the towns of the Jerahmeelites, the towns of the Kenites, ³⁰Hormah, Bor-ashan, Athach, ³¹Hebron, and all the other places David and his men had visited.

◀ Saul's Death at Mount Gilboa (31:1-13).

The Philistine army marched from APHEK to JEZREEL (29:1, 11), where they attacked Saul's army. The bottom frame shows a southward elevation of the battle area, while the top frame shows the region. Before the battle, Saul sought counsel from Samuel through a medium at ENDOR (28:1-25). In the battle, Saul and his sons were killed on the slopes of MOUNT GILBOA as the Israelites fled from the Philistines (31:1-6).

exhausted to take part.

30:21 greeted them joyfully: David did not reprimand them for not participating in the battle.

30:22 tell them to be gone: This heartless group wanted to drive away the nonparticipants with no reward.

30:23 what the LORD has given: Some of David's men ascribed success to their own military prowess; David attributed victory to God and gave him the glory.

30:24 share and share alike: Cp. Num 31:25-47, where Moses divided the plunder of war between those who fought and the rest of the people.

30:26 elders of Judah . . . his friends: David extended his generosity to influential people throughout his own tribal area, possibly to secure their support for him as king.

30:27-30 The places mentioned here were all in southern Judah. David eventually emerged from this territory as king (see 2 Sam 2:1-4).

30:29 Racal: Greek version reads Carmel.

30:31 From Hebron, David reigned as king over Judah for 7½ years (2 Sam 2:1-7; 5:5).

31:1-13 While David was in the south successfully fighting the Amalekites (ch 30), Saul was in the north unsuccessfully fighting the Philistines.

30:17 The total number of Amalekite raiders must have been quite large if 400 young men escaped.

30:21-31 David generously divided the spoils among those who participated in the battle and those who were too of Mount Gilboa. ²The Philistines closed in on Saul and his sons, and they killed three of his sons—Jonathan, Abinadab, and Malkishua. ³The fighting grew very fierce around Saul, and the Philistine archers caught up with him and wounded him severely.

⁴Saul groaned to his armor bearer, "Take your sword and kill me before these pagan Philistines come to run me through and taunt and torture me."

But his armor bearer was afraid and would not do it. So Saul took his own sword and fell on it. ⁵When his armor bearer realized that Saul was dead, he fell on his own sword and died beside the king. ⁶So Saul, his three sons, his armor bearer, and his troops all died together that same day.

⁷When the Israelites on the other side of the Jezreel Valley and beyond the Jordan saw that the Israelite army had fled and that Saul and his sons were dead, they abandoned their towns and fled. So the Philistines moved in and occupied their towns.

31:1 The Israelites fled southeast from the Jezreel Valley (29:1) to higher and hillier ground. With their chariots, the Philistines had the advantage in the more level valley. • Mount Gilboa is southwest of the Sea of Galilee, far from the territory of the Philistines.

31:2 Jonathan . . . Malkishua: See 14:49. This is the first mention of Saul's son Abinadab (cp. 1 Chr 8:33; 9:39).

31:4 David had once held the position of armor bearer (16:21). • kill me: This is one of many parallels between the death of Abimelech in the time of the Judges (Judg 9) and Saul, Israel's first national king (cp. Judg 9:54).

31:8 The victorious army would strip the dead to search for anything valuable (such as clothing, weapons, or jewelry) on the corpses.

31:9 In the ancient world, the death of an enemy king was good news, for it meant that the enemy's god had been defeated. However, little did the Philistines know that their victory would be short lived and hollow. David, the Lord's true anointed king, would soon come to power and pay back the Philistines mightily. Far from defeating Israel's God, the Philistines were simply fulfilling his purpose.

31:10 the Ashtoreths: See 7:3. • fastened his body: This practice further degraded the executed person by depriving him of proper burial. It also served as a deterrent to other potential enemies (see also Gen 40:19; Deut 21:21-22; Josh 10:26; Esth 9:6-14). • Beth-shan was a short distance east of Mount Gilboa.

31:11 The people of Jabesh-gilead were returning the favor Saul had done for them when he saved them from the Ammonites and their king Nahash (11:1-13). Jabesh-gilead was about twelve miles southeast of Beth-shan and across the Jordan River.

31:12 burned the bodies: Cremation was rare. It is possible the bodies were burned because decomposition had already set in.

31:13 bones . . . Jabesh: This was not the final resting place of Saul's remains (see 2 Sam 21:12-14). • The ending of 1 Samuel brings Israel's history back to the situation at the end of Judges, when "there was no king in Israel." Once again, the Philistines were in control. David had God's anointing but no crown. He had wives but no sons. His affiliation with the hated Philistines might jeopardize his standing among his own people. David's future path would be challenging, but God was clearly with him.

THE SECOND BOOK OF Samuel

David's ascension to power over all the tribes of Israel was anything but smooth. Violence, politics, and intrigue lined the way. David was far from a perfect king—2 Samuel records his murder of the noble Uriah to cover up his adultery with Bathsheba and the political chaos that followed. Yet God was eternally committed to David and his dynasty. He protected David during the many challenges to his authority and mercifully forgave and restored him when he sinned.

SETTING

The book of 2 Samuel is a key part of the history of Israel's monarchy. It follows 1 Samuel as a unified composition that traces David's life and reign. While Saul was still reigning, Samuel anointed David as Israel's next king (1 Sam 16:1-13), but it was several years before David began to reign. Throughout most of this waiting period, David was the object of Saul's wrath and jealousy. Saul tried many times to kill David, but David never reciprocated. David trusted in the Lord's plan for him and in God's timing.

David's reign brought significant changes to Israel, both internally and externally. Internally, the nation began to develop a new awareness of itself as a unified nation. During Saul's reign and the early part of David's reign, the monarchy was not completely unified as it would be during Solomon's reign, and the twelve tribes still primarily found their identity at the tribal level rather than as a nation. By the end of David's reign, a sense of national unity was in place that set the stage for the glory days of King Solomon.

Externally, Israel's relationship with a number of its neighbors changed significantly during David's reign. Most notably, the constant threat posed by the Philistines, so obvious in the book of Judges and throughout Saul's reign, largely vanished as the result of David's skillful leadership (see, e.g., 5:17-25; 21:15-22; 23:9-17).

SUMMARY

For 7½ years after the deaths of Saul and Jonathan (ch 1), David reigned as king of Judah only. For two years of that time, Saul's only surviving son, Ishbosheth, was king of the northern tribes, and this led to a murderous civil war. David became progressively stronger while Ishbosheth became weaker. In the end, Ishbosheth and his top commander, Abner, were assassinated against David's wishes (3:22-4:12).

The Celebration of David's Reign

Following Ishbosheth's death, the leaders of the northern tribes pledged their loyalty to David. David immediately relocated his capital from Hebron to the more centrally located Jerusalem, driving out its Jebusite inhabitants (5:6-16).

Jerusalem was more than David's political capital. By bringing the Ark of the Covenant to Jerusalem, David made it Israel's spiritual capital as well (6:1-15). Shortly thereafter, God made an eternal covenant with David and his house (7:1-29). In these early years, David enjoyed success on every side (chs 8, 10) and fulfilled his vow to treat the descendants of Saul and Jonathan kindly (ch 9).

Then David made the worst mistake of his life: When he saw the beautiful Bathsheba, he brought her to his house for sexual intimacy (11:1-5). She became pregnant, and David arranged for her husband's murder (11:6-27). God was displeased with David's actions and chastised him (12:1-12). Although David repented and experienced God's forgiveness, the child conceived in the affair died (12:13-23). Yet David remained God's chosen king (12:24-31).

From this point forward, problems escalated for David. Amnon, one of David's sons, raped his half sister, Tamar, and her brother Absalom avenged the act (ch 13). Absalom tried to overthrow and replace David, but he was killed in the coup (chs 14-19). Sheba, a Benjamite, also led a revolt against David but was defeated and executed (ch 20).

As king, David was responsible for the nation's well-being and twice acted to allay God's wrath against the nation (chs 21, 24). In the second instance, David built an altar in Jerusalem (24:18-25) that became the site of the future Temple (see 1 Chr 21:18-22:1). Sandwiched between these

HISTORICAL ISSUES

Evidence for David. For a long time, David's name had not been discovered in any document from antiquity outside of the Bible. This led some critical scholars to claim that David and his story were fictitious. However, in 1993, archaeologists working at Tell Dan in northern Israel found an inscription in Aramaic about Hazael, king of Syria (about 842–800 BC), who was celebrating a military victory over Israel and Judah. The inscription reads, "I put Jeho . . . , son of . . . ruler of Israel, and . . . iahu, son of . . . g of the house of David to death" (ellipses represent portions of the text illegible in the inscription). This inscription provides evidence of David's existence and acknowledgment that he founded a dynasty in Judah.

Violence. To a greater degree than any other biblical book, 2 Samuel tells of murders and executions. Most notable are those involving David's political rivals and their supporters (Saul and Jonathan, 1:1–15; Abner, 3:30; Ishbosheth, 4:6–8; Absalom, 18:14–15; other male descendants of Saul, 21:8–9; Amasa, 20:10; Sheba, 20:21–22). However, the narrator is careful to show that David was not responsible for these murders. Contrary to the claims of some (see 16:5–8), David could not be accused of murderous political ambition. David was guilty of murder only in the case of Uriah. Without question, this was a horrible sin, but it was devoid of political motive.

David had no involvement in the many murders surrounding his rise to power. He was not a usurper who violently eliminated the previous royal family. In fact, he genuinely lamented the deaths of Saul and Jonathan and ordered the executions of those who killed Saul and Ishbosheth (1:1–16; 4:12). David had deep respect for Saul as the Lord's anointed king. Although David was aware that God had anointed him to replace Saul, he refused to take the matter into his own hands.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

The book of 2 Samuel reports how God brought the private anointing of David as king (1 Sam 16:1–13) to public fruition. Moreover, God solidified with a covenant his commitment to David's dynasty.

God's covenant with David bears significant similarities to the covenant with Abraham. Both include promises of great fame (Gen 12:2; 2 Sam 7:9) and of rest from their enemies (Gen 15:18–21; 2 Sam 7:10). Both are binding forever (Gen 13:15; 2 Sam 7:16), and the land God promised to Abraham and his descendants (Gen 15:18) was acquired through David's expansion of his empire (5:17–25; 8:1–14; 10:1–9).

God's commitment to David was crucial to David's successes despite civil war, revolts, the murderous ambition of some loyal to him, and his personal failures. His shortcomings—particularly his adultery with Bathsheba and the murder of Uriah—lead readers to wonder if David would become like Saul, rejected by God and replaced by another. God certainly did punish David when he sinned (chs 12–20; 24). Yet God's commitment to David and to his dynasty remained (see especially 7:14–16). God's commitment rather than David's merit explains his success.

Kingship was central in God's plan for his people and his creation. God's commitment to David points beyond David and his immediate descendants to a distant son, Jesus Christ. The NT both begins (Matt 1:1) and ends (Rev 22:16) by focusing on Jesus, the Eternal King, as the descendant of David.

1. INTRODUCTION: THE CLOSE OF SAUL'S ERA (1:1–27) The Report of Saul's Death

1 After the death of Saul, David returned from his victory over the Amalekites and spent two days in Ziklag. ²On the third day a man arrived from Saul's army camp. He had torn his clothes and put dirt on his head to show that he was in mourning. He fell to the ground before David in deep respect.

³"Where have you come from?" David asked.

"I escaped from the Israelite camp," the man replied.

⁴"What happened?" David demanded. "Tell me how the battle went."

The man replied, "Our entire army fled from the battle. Many of the men are dead, and Saul and his son Jonathan are also dead."

⁵"How do you know Saul and Jonathan are dead?" David demanded of the young man.

⁶The man answered, "I happened to be on Mount Gilboa, and there was Saul leaning on his spear with the enemy chariots and charioteers closing in on him. ⁷When he turned and saw me, he cried out for me to come to him. 'How can I help?' I asked him.

⁸"He responded, 'Who are you?'

"I am an Amalekite," I told him.

⁹"Then he begged me, 'Come over here and put me out of my misery, for I am in terrible pain and want to die.'

¹⁰"So I killed him," the Amalekite told David, "for I knew he couldn't live. Then I took his crown and his armband, and I have brought them here to you, my lord."

¹¹David and his men tore their clothes in sorrow when they heard the news. ¹²They mourned and wept and fasted all day for Saul and his son Jonathan, and for the LORD's army and the nation of Israel, because they had died by the sword that day.

¹³Then David said to the young man who had brought the news, "Where are you from?"

And he replied, "I am a foreigner, an Amalekite, who lives in your land."

¹⁴"Why were you not afraid to kill the LORD's anointed one?" David asked.

¹⁵Then David said to one of his men, "Kill him!" So the man thrust his sword

1:1–27 The forty years of Saul's reign came to a painful end. The Philistines inflicted a crushing blow on Saul's people, killing his sons and dismembering Saul's body after his suicide (1 Sam 31). On the heels of these tragedies, David's career as leader came into focus.

1:1–16 An unnamed Amalekite sought out David, claiming to have killed Saul. This was a lie, as Saul had committed suicide (1 Sam 31:4–6). The Amalekite might have hoped that David would reward him for making it possible for David to assume the throne. Instead, David ordered him killed for harming the Lord's anointed.

1:1 David returned from his victory: Just prior to this encounter, David and his men had killed many Amalekites because of what they had done to David's city and family (see 1 Sam 30).

1:4 What happened? David was not aware of what had happened to Saul—he had no part in Saul's death. • Saul and . . . Jonathan are also dead: Two other sons of Saul, Abinadab and Malkishua, were killed as well (1 Sam 31:2). The Amalekite was either unaware of their deaths or he mentioned only the son who would stand in the way of David's uncontested path to Israel's throne.

1:6 The Amalekite man's second lie is, I happened to be on Mount Gilboa. Instead, he had probably scoured the area after the battle, looking for victims whose valuables he could take.

1:9 Then he begged me: This is the Amalekite's third lie; instead, Saul was probably already dead (cp. 1 Sam 31:4–6).

1:10 The Amalekite apparently got to Saul's corpse before the Philistines did, for they would not have left royal items such as his crown and his armband on his body. • Israel's king wore a crown (Hebrew nezzer, "consecration") as a sign of his consecration to God and status as the Lord's anointed (1:14).

1:13 Where are you from? David's asking again (1:8) likely reflects the depth of his grief.

1:15–16 The Amalekite expected a reward for killing David's rival but was instead condemned for killing the LORD's anointed. David himself had twice refused the opportunity to kill Saul (see 1 Sam 24:5–7; 26:9–11).

into the Amalekite and killed him. ¹⁶"You have condemned yourself," David said, "for you yourself confessed that you killed the LORD's anointed one."

David's Lament for Saul and Jonathan

¹⁷Then David composed a funeral song for Saul and Jonathan, ¹⁸and he commanded that it be taught to the people of Judah. It is known as the Song of the Bow, and it is recorded in The Book of Jashar.

¹⁹Your pride and joy, O Israel, lies dead on the hills!

Oh, how the mighty heroes have fallen!

²⁰Don't announce the news in Gath, don't proclaim it in the streets of Ashkelon, or the daughters of the Philistines will rejoice and the pagans will laugh in triumph.

²¹O mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew or rain upon you, nor fruitful fields producing offerings of grain.

For there the ^ashield of the mighty heroes was defiled; the ^ashield of Saul will no longer be anointed with oil.

²²The bow of Jonathan was powerful, and the sword of Saul did its mighty work.

They shed the blood of their enemies and pierced the bodies of mighty heroes.

²³How beloved and gracious were Saul and Jonathan!

They were together in life and in death.

They were swifter than eagles, stronger than lions.

²⁴O women of Israel, weep for Saul, for he dressed you in luxurious scarlet clothing, in garments decorated with gold.

²⁵Oh, how the mighty heroes have fallen in battle!

Jonathan lies dead on the hills.

²⁶How I weep for you, my brother Jonathan!

Oh, how much I loved you!

And your love for me was deep, deeper than the love of women!

²⁷Oh, how the mighty heroes have fallen! Stripped of their weapons, they lie dead.

2. THE EMERGENCE OF DAVID'S MONARCHY (2:1-9:13)

David Becomes King of Judah

2 After this, David asked the LORD, "Should I move back to one of the towns of Judah?"

"Yes," the LORD replied.

Then David asked, "Which town should I go to?"

"To Hebron," the LORD answered.

²David's two wives were Ahinoam from Jezreel and Abigail, the widow of Nabal

1:18 The extrabiblical Book of Jashar (or Book of the Upright) is no longer available. It was probably an Israelite epic poem or an anthology of poetry that covered, at minimum, Joshua's conquest of Canaan (see Josh 10:13) and the ascension of David.

1:19 Your pride and joy: David's description focused more on Saul's royal position than on his personal characteristics.

1:20 Gath and Ashkelon were major Philistine cities. Announcing the news of Saul's death to the Philistines would give this hated foe the opportunity to gloat and glorify their false god, Dagon, while mocking Israel's God, Yahweh.

• daughters of the Philistines: In ancient war culture, young women sometimes celebrated victories in song (cp. Exod 15:20-21; 1 Sam 18:7).

1:21 Saul and Jonathan died in the mountains of Gilboa (1 Sam 31:1). • let there be no dew or rain: David was invoking a curse on the place of their death. In a Canaanite text from the 1300s BC, a father invokes a very similar curse on the place of his son's death. • fruitful grain: The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. • The shield of Saul symbolizes his military exploits as king. It would no longer be anointed with oil for the same reason that Saul was no longer the anointed king, because of his death.

1:22 the blood of their enemies: Saul and Jonathan were known as military heroes (see 1 Sam 11:1-11; 14:1-23, 47-48), though neither to the degree that David was (1 Sam 18:7; 21:11).

1:23 beloved and gracious . . . together in life and in death: Although the relationship between Saul and Jonathan was strained, especially due to Saul's treatment of David (see 1 Sam 20:30-33), Jonathan nevertheless fought and died alongside his father while defending Israel against the Philistine menace.

1:26 deeper than the love of women: Jonathan's loyalty and friendship to David involved personal risk and sacrifice. This commitment was unmatched in David's experience, including the love of his wives. The phrase in no way implies a homosexual relationship. Jonathan's love for David is highlighted three times in 1 Samuel (1 Sam 18:1, 3; 20:17).

2:1-32 After Saul died, those loyal to David (the tribe of Judah) clashed with those loyal to Saul's son Ishbosheth (the remaining tribes of Israel). The Philistines, who at this time were essentially overlords of all Palestine west of the Jordan River, likely favored and encouraged this division because it made it easier for them to divide and conquer.

2:1 David asked the LORD (cp. 5:23-24; Judg 1:1-2; 20:18; 1 Sam 10:22) by consulting the Urim and Thummim (see Exod 28:30; Lev 8:8; Deut 33:8; 1 Sam 14:41) administered by Abiathar, David's priest (1 Sam 23:1-12; 30:7-8). David acted when God directed, not before.

• Hebron was nineteen miles southwest of Jerusalem. Abraham had lived in this area for a time and eventually purchased a nearby cave for a family burial plot (Gen 23). The people of the area were sympathetic toward David (see 1 Sam 30:26-31).

2:2 Ahinoam: See note on 1 Sam 25:43. David's other wife, Saul's daughter Michal, had been given to another man after David fled from Saul (1 Sam 25:44). • Abigail: See 1 Sam 25.

from Carmel. So David and his wives³ and his men and their families all moved to Judah, and they settled in the villages near Hebron. ⁴Then the men of Judah came to David and anointed him king over the people of Judah.

When David heard that the men of Jabesh-gilead had buried Saul, ⁵he sent them this message: "May the LORD bless you for being so loyal to your master Saul and giving him a decent burial. ⁶May the LORD be loyal to you in return and reward you with his unfailing love! And I, too, will reward you for what you have done. ⁷Now that Saul is dead, I ask you to be my strong and loyal subjects like the people of Judah, who have anointed me as their new king."

⁸But Abner son of Ner, the commander of Saul's army, had already gone to Mahanaim with Saul's son Ishbosheth. ⁹There he proclaimed Ishbosheth king over Gilead, Jezreel, Ephraim, Benjamin, the land of the Ashurites, and all the rest of Israel.

¹⁰Ishbosheth, Saul's son, was forty years old when he became king, and he ruled from Mahanaim for two years. Meanwhile, the people of Judah remained loyal to David. ¹¹David made Hebron his capital, and he ruled as king of Judah for seven and a half years.

Civil War between Israel and Judah

¹²One day Abner led Ishbosheth's troops from Mahanaim to Gibeon. ¹³About the same time, Joab son of Zeruiah led David's troops out and met them at the pool of Gibeon. The two groups sat down there, facing each other from opposite sides of the pool.

¹⁴Then Abner suggested to Joab, "Let's have a few of our warriors fight hand to hand here in front of us."

David vs. Ishbosheth (2:1-32). After Saul's death, David ruled over Judah from Hebron (2:1-4, 11), while Saul's son Ishbosheth ruled over the northern tribes from Mahanaim (2:8-10). The result was "a long war" (3:1) between the north and the south; one of the key battles took place at GIBEON (2:12-17). Eventually, after both Ishbosheth and Abner his general were murdered (3:22-30; 4:1-12), all the tribes of Israel united under David's kingship (5:1-5).

Esh-baal (1 Chr 8:33; 9:39). Ishbosheth means "man of shame." Esh-baal means "man of Baal." The name Baal ("lord, master, possessor") was associated with a pagan Canaanite deity (e.g., see Num 25:3), so it is likely that Esh-baal, Ishbosheth's original name, was later changed because of that association.

2:9 Gilead was the easternmost district of the northern kingdom, Jezreel the northernmost, and Benjamin the southernmost, with Ephraim in the middle. It is unclear which area was the land of the Ashurites. All the rest of Israel refers to the tribes that Ishbosheth ruled over rather than to the geographical area of his kingdom.

2:10-11 Ishbosheth . . . ruled from Mahanaim for two years at some point during David's 7½-year reign from Hebron. Apparently a gap of five years occurred in which the northern tribes were without a king.

2:12-32 A protracted civil war ensued between Judah (led by David) and the northern tribes (led by Saul's dynasty). These events set the stage for Abner's murder (3:22-39).

2:12 Gibeon, about five miles northwest of Jerusalem, was a key city in Benjamin.

2:13 The pool of Gibeon extends down some 80 feet to the water table. Archaeologists estimate that the original diggers had to remove about 3,000 tons of limestone to create it.

2:14 a few of our warriors: In the ancient world, enemy armies would sometimes choose individuals or small groups to fight each other as representative gladiators—a custom often referred to as champion warfare (see also 1 Sam 17). • fight hand to hand:

2:4b-7 Once established in Hebron, David made good faith gestures to those still loyal to Saul, such as the men of Jabesh-gilead. However, because they were loyal to . . . Saul and his dynasty, they rejected David as king (2:8-11). David was also in league with Nahash, king of the Ammonites (see 10:2; 17:27-29), who had caused havoc in Jabesh-gilead (1 Sam 11).

2:7 David's anointing by the people of Judah provided the legal basis of his kingship, just as it had for Saul (1 Sam 11:15). He had been anointed by the prophet Samuel years earlier (1 Sam 16:13).

2:8 Abner: See note on 1 Sam 20:25.

• Mahanaim was located east of the Jordan River, deep in the highlands of Gilead near a plentiful source of fresh water. Saul and his family had close ties to Gilead (1 Sam 11:1-11; 31:11-13). Locating east of the Jordan made Ishbosheth's regime less susceptible to attack by David's forces. This same area was later King David's temporary refuge after Absalom's coup (17:24, 27).

• Ishbosheth is another name for "All right," Joab agreed. ¹⁵So twelve men were chosen to fight from each side—twelve men of Benjamin representing Ishbosheth son of Saul, and twelve representing David. ¹⁶Each one grabbed his opponent by the hair and thrust his sword into the other's side so that all of them died. So this place at Gibeon has been known ever since as the Field of Swords.

¹⁷A fierce battle followed that day, and Abner and the men of Israel were defeated by the forces of David.

²¹"Go fight someone else!" Abner warned. "Take on one of the younger men, and strip him of his weapons." But Asahel kept right on chasing Abner.

²²Again Abner shouted to him, "Get away from here! I don't want to kill you. How could I ever face your brother Joab again?"

²³But Asahel refused to turn back, so Abner thrust the butt end of his spear through Asahel's stomach, and the spear came out through his back. He stumbled to the ground and died there. And everyone who came by that spot stopped and stood still when they saw Asahel lying there.

²⁴When Joab and Abishai found out what had happened, they set out after Abner. The sun was just going down as they arrived at the hill of Ammah near Giah, along the road to the wilderness of Gibeon. ²⁵Abner's troops from the tribe of Benjamin regrouped there at the top of the hill to take a stand.

²⁶Abner shouted down to Joab, "Must we always be killing each other? Don't you realize that bitterness is the only result? When will you call off your men from chasing their Israelite brothers?"

²⁷Then Joab said, "God only knows what would have happened if you hadn't spoken, for we would have chased you all night if necessary." ²⁸So Joab blew the ram's horn, and his men stopped chasing the troops of Israel.

²⁹All that night Abner and his men retreated through the Jordan Valley. They crossed the Jordan River, traveling all through the morning, and didn't stop until they arrived at Mahanaim.

³⁰Meanwhile, Joab and his men also returned home. When Joab counted his casualties, he discovered that only 19 men were missing in addition to Asahel. ³¹But 360 of Abner's men had been killed, all from the tribe of Benjamin. ³²Joab and his men took Asahel's body to Bethlehem and buried him there in his father's tomb. Then they traveled all night and reached Hebron at daybreak.

3 That was the beginning of a long war between those who were loyal to Saul and those loyal to David. As time passed David became stronger and stronger, while Saul's dynasty became weaker and weaker.

The Hebrew term usually includes a component of play. A contest of champions might have been seen as a type of high-stakes game. In this instance, it settled nothing; the fighting expanded into a much wider confrontation with heavier casualties (2:17-32).

2:16 the Field of Swords: Hebrew Helkath-hazzurim.

2:17 The casualty count of this fierce battle is noted in 2:30-31.

2:18 Zeruiah was David's sister (1 Chr 2:15-16), so Joab, Abishai, and Asahel were his nephews.

2:20-22 Go fight someone else! . . . Get away from here! Abner's words reflect respect between peers trained for the same career, as well as a sense of fair play. The youthful Asahel would have been no match for the more experienced Abner. Abner also knew that if he killed Asahel, the conflict with David would escalate and David's forces would seek revenge (see 3:22-39).

2:24 they set out after Abner: See 3:27. • Ammah ("conduit") and Giah ("gushing") suggest that there was an aqueduct system connected to the pool at Gibeon (2:12-13).

2:26 bitterness is the only result: Realizing that such wars go on generation after generation, Abner wisely negotiated a truce.

2:28 The ram's horn signaled the beginning and end of combat (see also 18:16; Josh 6:15-16). For other uses of the ram's horn, see note on 2 Sam 6:15.

2:29 Abner was wise to put as much distance as possible between his troops and Joab's forces, recognizing that their desire for blood vengeance could overpower the truce. • the Jordan Valley: Hebrew the Arabah. • through the morning: Or continued on through the Bithron. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

2:31 The 360 who died were all from the tribe of Benjamin, Saul's tribe, under the leadership of one of Saul's relatives. This defeat was a direct blow to Saul's dynasty (cp. 3:1).

3:1-39 The house of David increased, while Saul's house dwindled. The crucial occasion came when Abner, the real political power in Saul's camp, switched allegiance to David, taking a considerable number of his northern kinsmen with him.

3:1 a long war: This civil war likely continued for most of the seven-plus years that David ruled from Hebron. The truce called by Joab and Abner (2:26-28) was short-lived.

3:2-5 One way David "became stronger and stronger" (3:1) was by taking more wives and having a son through each.

⁴ The fourth was Adonijah, whose mother was Haggith.

The fifth was Shephatiah, whose mother was Abital.

⁵ The sixth was Ithream, whose mother was Eglah, David's wife.

These sons were all born to David in Hebron.

Abner Joins Forces with David

⁶ As the war between the house of Saul and the house of David went on, Abner became a powerful leader among those loyal to Saul.

⁷ One day Ishbosheth, Saul's son, accused Abner of sleeping with one of his father's concubines, a woman named Rizpah, daughter of Aiah.

⁸ Abner was furious. "Am I some Judean dog to be kicked around like this?" he shouted. "After all I have done for your father, Saul, and his family and friends by not handing you over to David, is this my reward—that you find fault with me about this woman? ⁹May God strike me and even kill me if I don't do everything I can to help David get what the LORD has promised him! ¹⁰I'm going to take Saul's kingdom and give it to David. I will establish the throne of David over Israel as well as Judah, all the way from Dan in the north to Beersheba in the south." ¹¹Ishbosheth didn't dare say another word because he was afraid of what Abner might do.

¹²Then Abner sent messengers to David, saying, "Doesn't the entire land belong to you? Make a solemn pact with me, and I will help turn over all of Israel to you."

¹³"All right," David replied, "but I will not negotiate with you unless you bring back my wife Michal, Saul's daughter, when you come."

¹⁴David then sent this message to Ishbosheth, Saul's son: "Give me back my wife Michal, for I bought her with the lives of 100 Philistines."

¹⁵So Ishbosheth took Michal away from her husband, Palti son of Laish. ¹⁶Palti followed along behind her as far as Bahurim, weeping as he went. Then Abner told him, "Go back home!" So Palti returned.

▲ David's Wives and Children (3:2-5; see also 5:14-16; 1 Chr 3:5-8).

Three of David's Hebron-born sons died violent deaths, two during David's reign (Amnon, Absalom), and one shortly after his death (Adonijah).

3:3 Daniel: As in parallel text at 1 Chr 3:1 (see also Greek version, which reads Daluia, and possible support by Dead Sea Scrolls); Hebrew reads Kileab. • Geshur was a small Canaanite kingdom in upper Transjordan (the area east of the Jordan) near the Sea of Galilee. Marrying into neighboring royal families created political alliances and secured David's position against the northern tribes. Solomon also followed this practice (1 Kgs 3:1; 11:1).

3:7 Ishbosheth is another name for Esh-baal (see note on 2:8). • accused Abner of sleeping with one of [Saul's] concubines: It is unclear whether Abner actually did so. Taking a king's wife or concubine was often part of a usurper's attempt to replace the king (see 12:8; 16:21; 1 Kgs 2:17-25). • Rizpah: See also 21:8-14.

3:8 some Judean dog: Cp. 1 Sam 17:43. • by not handing you over to David: Abner had control over the life and death of Saul's son.

3:9 help David get what the LORD has promised him! Abner was aware that God had chosen David to be king over all Israel (see also 3:18).

3:10 and give it to David: Cp. 1 Sam 28:17. • I will establish the throne of David: Whether an ally or enemy, Abner was a powerful man. Here he speaks like God (see 7:13).

3:11 didn't dare say another word: Ishbosheth's silence speaks loudly of his weakness as a ruler. Abner, who had installed him as king (2:8-9), was the real power behind Ishbosheth's reign.

3:12 In the proposed solemn pact (or covenant), Abner recognized that David would be king, while perhaps he hoped to be second-in-command.

3:13 Saul had given his daughter Michal to David as his wife (1 Sam 18:20-27). However, when Michal saved David's life from her father (1 Sam 19:11-17), Saul terminated the marriage and gave Michal to another man, Palti (1 Sam 25:44). For David to get her back now would further cement his claim to Saul's kingdom (cp. 1 Kgs 2:13-25).

3:14 the lives (literally the foreskins) of 100 Philistines: Saul had hoped that David would be killed in his attempt to secure the bride-price (see 1 Sam 18:17-27).

3:15 Ishbosheth took: Although Abner made the deal with David (3:12-13), it was Ishbosheth who gave Michal to David. This transaction illustrates Ishbosheth's weakness as a king and his fear of Abner (3:11). • Palti: As in 1 Sam 25:44; Hebrew reads Paltiel, a variant spelling of Palti.

3:16 In spite of Palti's anguished weeping, he was powerless to stop what was happening (cp. Judg 18:1-26). • Bahurim was probably a center of support for Saul's clan just east of Jerusalem (cp. 16:5).

¹⁷Meanwhile, Abner had consulted with the elders of Israel. "For some time now," he told them, "you have wanted to make David your king. ¹⁸Now is the time! For the LORD has said, 'I have chosen David to save my people Israel from the hands of the Philistines and from all their other enemies.'" ¹⁹Abner also spoke with the men of Benjamin. Then he went to Hebron to tell David that all the people of Israel and Benjamin had agreed to support him.

²⁰When Abner and twenty of his men came to Hebron, David entertained them with a great feast. ²¹Then Abner said to David, "Let me go and call an assembly of all Israel to support my lord the king. They will make a covenant with you to make you their king, and you will rule over everything your heart desires." So David sent Abner safely on his way.

The Murder of Abner

²²But just after David had sent Abner away in safety, Joab and some of David's troops returned from a raid, bringing much plunder with them. ²³When Joab arrived, he was told that Abner had just been there visiting the king and had been sent away in safety.

²⁴Joab rushed to the king and demanded, "What have you done? What do you mean by letting Abner get away? ²⁵You know perfectly well that he came to spy on you and find out everything you're doing!"

²⁶Joab then left David and sent messengers to catch up with Abner, asking him to return. They found him at the well of Sirah and brought him back, though David knew nothing about it. ²⁷When Abner arrived back at Hebron, Joab took him aside at the gateway as if to speak with him privately. But then he stabbed Abner in the stomach and killed him in revenge for killing his brother Asahel.

²⁸When David heard about it, he declared, "I vow by the LORD that I and my kingdom are forever innocent of this crime against Abner son of Ner. ²⁹Joab and his family are the guilty ones. May the family of Joab be cursed in every generation with a man who has open sores or leprosy or who walks on crutches or dies by the sword or begs for food!"

³⁰So Joab and his brother Abishai killed Abner because Abner had killed their brother Asahel at the battle of Gibeon.

³¹Then David said to Joab and all those who were with him, "Tear your clothes and put on burlap. Mourn for Abner." And King David himself walked behind the procession to the grave. ³²They buried Abner in Hebron, and the king and all the people wept at his graveside. ³³Then the king sang this funeral song for Abner:

"Should Abner have died as fools die?

³⁴ Your hands were not bound;
your feet were not chained.
No, you were murdered—
the victim of a wicked plot."

3:17 Apparently, there had been growing momentum among the elders of Israel in the north to accept David as king, though the text has made no mention of it to this point.

3:18 See also 3:9. By bringing relief from the Philistines, David would accomplish what Saul had failed to do (1 Sam 9:16).

3:19 Because Saul was from their tribe, the men of Benjamin no doubt viewed David, from Judah, as a usurper of Saul's throne. However, Abner was well-respected in Saul's regime and so was able to elicit support for David even among Saul's own tribe.

3:21 The narrator emphasized that David sent Abner safely on his way as a friend and an ally (restated in 3:22-23). David was at peace with Abner and was not involved in the renowned military leader's murder (cp. 3:28-29). • Despite the murder of Abner (3:27), the northern tribes eventually did make a covenant with David to make him their king, just as Abner had promised (5:1-3).

3:26 The precise location of the well of Sirah is unknown; presumably it was not far from Hebron. • David knew nothing about it: See note on 3:21.

3:27 as if to speak with him privately: Joab accused Abner of deception (3:25), but he used deception himself to lure Abner to his death. • in revenge: Joab was motivated by the practice of blood vengeance, avenging the death of a kinsman by killing the killer. See "Joab" at 18:2-19:13, p. 551.

3:28 David made it clear that he had nothing to do with Abner's death, labeling it as a crime. David knew that because his second-in-command had killed Abner, rumors would circulate among those loyal to Saul's dynasty that David had ordered the killing. • I vow by the LORD: David called on the Lord to hold him accountable if he were lying.

3:29 leprosy: Or a contagious skin disease. The Hebrew word used here can describe various skin diseases. While leprosy is a possible translation, the Hebrew here probably refers to a broader range of skin inflammations, not only Hansen's disease. • who walks on crutches: Or who is effeminate; Hebrew reads who handles a spindle. This curse effectively alienated Joab from David, and from this point on they had only a professional relationship. David's deathbed order to Solomon to get rid of Joab (1 Kgs 2:5-6) and Solomon's exoner-ation of David in Abner's death (1 Kgs 2:31-33) indicate that David's mourning over Abner was genuine.

3:30 See 2:18-28.

3:31 David himself walked: David's public presence in the mourning procession, his open weeping at the gravesite (3:32), and his dramatic fast (3:35) made evident to the public that he had not ordered Abner's killing (3:37).

3:32 Burying Abner in Hebron, David's capital city at the time, rather than at some northern site reinforced Abner's shift of support from Saul to David. Presumably it encouraged others from the northern tribes to follow Abner's example.

3:33 as fools die: Abner was deceived by Joab, an enemy who posed as a friend (see 3:27).

3:34 a wicked plot: Normal warfare could not defeat Abner, a seasoned warrior. Only treachery could.

All the people wept again for Abner. ³⁵David had refused to eat anything on the day of the funeral, and now everyone begged him to eat. But David had made a vow, saying, "May God strike me and even kill me if I eat anything before sundown."

³⁶This pleased the people very much. In fact, everything the king did pleased them! ³⁷So everyone in Judah and all Israel understood that David was not responsible for Abner's murder.

³⁸Then King David said to his officials, "Don't you realize that a great commander has fallen today in Israel?" ³⁹And even though I am the anointed king, these two sons of Zeruiah—Joab and Abishai—are too strong for me to control. So may the LORD repay these evil men for their evil deeds."

The Murder of Ishbosheth

4 When Ishbosheth, Saul's son, heard about Abner's death at Hebron, he lost all courage, and all Israel became paralyzed with fear. ²Now there were two brothers, Baanah and Recab, who were captains of Ishbosheth's raiding parties. They were sons of Rimmon, a member of the tribe of Benjamin who lived in Beeroth. The town of Beeroth is now part of Benjamin's territory ³because the original people of Beeroth fled to Gittaim, where they still live as foreigners.

⁴(Saul's son Jonathan had a son named Mephibosheth, who was crippled as a child. He was five years old when the report came from Jezreel that Saul and Jonathan had been killed in battle. When the child's nurse heard the news, she picked him up and fled. But as she hurried away, she dropped him, and he became crippled.)

⁵One day Recab and Baanah, the sons of Rimmon from Beeroth, went to Ishbosheth's house around noon as he was taking his midday rest. ⁶The doorkeeper, who had been sifting wheat, became drowsy and fell asleep. So Recab and Baanah slipped past

Abner (3:6-39)

Abner son of Ner was King Saul's cousin as well as his general (1 Sam 14:49-52). Saul's armies won important battles against the Philistines under Abner's command (1 Sam 17:1-58), and Abner ate at the king's table with David and Jonathan (1 Sam 20:25). Yet Jonathan and David both outshone Abner in Saul's army.

David shamed Abner on one occasion (1 Sam 26:1-25). When Saul was trying to kill David, Saul and his troops camped in a circle with Saul sleeping at the center and Abner beside him. Abishai and David sneaked into the camp and could have killed Saul. They took some items from beside Saul's head; then, after retreating, they shouted to waken Saul and Abner and berate Abner for his carelessness.

After Saul and Jonathan died, Abner promoted the interests of Saul's son Ishbosheth (2:8-12) when Judah made David king. During this time, Abner was the real power in the north. When Ishbosheth accused Abner of sleeping with one of Saul's concubines, Abner turned the northern kingdom over to David. Ishbosheth was later murdered (4:1-12).

During the battle between Ishbosheth and David, Abner was forced in self-defense to kill Joab's brother Asahel, whom he did not want to kill and had warned to turn back (2:18-32). Abner was then murdered by Joab in calculated revenge (3:22-30), an evil act that David could not prevent (3:38-39). David honored Abner with a eulogy, public mourning, and a state funeral (3:31-37). Later, David remembered what had happened and made certain that the murder of Saul's general did not go unpunished (1 Kgs 2:5-6).

3:35 begged him to eat: See also 12:17.

3:37 See note on 3:31.

3:39 too strong for me to control: Just as Ishbosheth could not control Abner, David could not control Joab. However, David had faith that the LORD would repay Joab for murdering Abner.

4:1 Ishbosheth is another name for Esh-baal (see note on 2:8). • all Israel became paralyzed with fear: Abner's true power was evident in Ishbosheth's reaction to his death (cp. Josh 2:9-11; 5:1). Ishbosheth's timidity bred the same among his followers.

4:2-3 Beeroth was located in Benjamin near Gibeon. Probably because of Saul's persecution of the non-Israelite residents in that region (see 21:1-9), the citizens of Beeroth had fled to Gittaim, the location of which is unknown.

4:4 This parenthetical statement shows that, with the death of Ishbosheth (4:5-7), Saul's dynasty was unable to continue—the only other heir was a young child who was crippled (see also 9:1-13). • Mephibosheth is another name for Merib-baal (see 1 Chr 9:40).

Mephibosheth is a nickname meaning "from the mouth of shame," possibly referring to his physical condition. No crippled animal could ever be offered to God, and no disabled priest was allowed to stand before God with the people's offerings (Lev 21:19). Likewise, Mephibosheth's condition probably disqualified him from the crown. His name change from Merib-baal also removed association with Baal (see note on 2:8).

4:6 The doorkeeper . . . past her: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads So they went into the house pretending to fetch her. ⁷They went into the house and found Ishbosheth sleeping on his bed. They struck and killed him and cut off his head. Then, taking his head with them, they fled across the Jordan Valley through the night. ⁸When they arrived at Hebron, they presented Ishbosheth's head to David. "Look!" they exclaimed to the king. "Here is the head of Ishbosheth, the son of your enemy Saul who tried to kill you. Today the LORD has given my lord the king revenge on Saul and his entire family!"

⁹But David said to Recab and Baanah, "The LORD, who saves me from all my enemies, is my witness. ¹⁰Someone once told me, 'Saul is dead,' thinking he was bringing me good news. But I seized him and killed him at Ziklag. That's the reward I gave him for his news! ¹¹How much more should I reward evil men who have killed an innocent man in his own house and on his own bed? Shouldn't I hold you responsible for his blood and rid the earth of you?"

¹²So David ordered his young men to kill them, and they did. They cut off their hands and feet and hung their bodies beside the pool in Hebron. Then they took Ishbosheth's head and buried it in Abner's tomb in Hebron.

Jerusalem was a functioning city as early as 400 years before David. It was never fully captured during the conquest and the period of the judges (Josh 15:63; Judg 1:8, 21), and peaceful relations were evidently established between the autonomous Jebusite enclave and the surrounding Israelites (Judg 19:10-12). So impregnable was Jerusalem that the OT records only three successful invaders, David, Jehoash (2 Kgs 14:11-14), and Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon (2 Kgs 25:1-10). Even Sennacherib, one of Assyria's mightiest emperors, preferred accepting tribute money over attempting to seize the city (2 Kgs 18:14-16).

Whatever David's method of capturing Jerusalem (his use of a water tunnel is debatable—see note on 5:8), he secured Jerusalem as the political, and eventually spiritual, capital of Israel. Psalm 48 speaks beautifully and powerfully of Jerusalem as a fortress. Its towers, bulwarks, and easily defensible citadels with their rugged terrain could produce a false sense of security, if not idolatry (cp. Obad 1:3-4). Psalm 48:1-3 reminds the reader that God's living presence, not the topography of the city, made Jerusalem safe.

Both the Old Testament and the New Testament call Jerusalem a "holy city" (see Neh 11:1, 18; Isa 52:1; Dan 9:24; Matt 4:5; 27:53; Rev 21:2). It is the only city so described in the Bible. Wherein lies this city's holiness? It cannot be a reflection of the holiness of its occupants. In fact, so unholy was the populace that the city was decimated by the Babylonians in 586 BC. Nor was it a holy city because it was Israel's capital for several centuries. Jerusalem was a holy city, first of all, because God chose it (1 Kgs 8:44, 48; 11:13, 32, 36; 2 Chr 6:5, 34). Because he chose it, he put his glory and his name there (see 1 Kgs 14:21; 2 Chr 12:13; Ezek 8-10; 43). His presence and choice made Jerusalem holy.

In the Gospels and Acts, Jerusalem was still an earthly city of great importance. It was the location of the Temple and was the center of Israel's spiritual life (e.g., see Acts 2:46; 3:1-26; 5:12). But the NT also introduces the new Jerusalem, the heavenly city comprised of God's holy people (Heb 11:10; Rev 3:12; 21:2). As the earthly Jerusalem was the sphere in which the glorious presence and reign of God was partially actualized through King David and his successors, the new Jerusalem represents the government of Jesus Christ, the son of David, and his everlasting presence with his people (cp. John 1:14; Rev 21:3).

revenge: Wrongdoers often presume upon God's favor to justify political ambition. However, David would not reward treachery.

4:9-11 Someone once told me: Cp. 1:1-16.

4:12 cut off their hands and feet: Displaying the dismembered bodies of Ishbosheth's killers shamed them by denying them proper burial (cp. 1 Sam 31:8-13); it was also a public testimony of David's innocence in Ishbosheth's death.

5:1-25 After the murder of Abner and Ishbosheth, the elders of the northern tribes accepted David as their king. David thus obtained an extended empire (5:1-5), a new capital city (5:6-10), a new palace (5:11), a new family (5:13-16), and renewed confidence (5:17-25).

³So there at Hebron, ^bKing David made a covenant before the LORD with all the elders of Israel. And they anointed him ^kking of Israel.

David Captures Jerusalem

2 Sam 5:6-10 // 1 Chr 11:4-9

⁶David then led his men to Jerusalem to fight against the Jebusites, the original inhabitants of the land who were living there. The Jebusites taunted David, saying, "You'll never get in here! Even the blind and lame could keep you out!" For the Jebusites thought they were safe. ⁷But David captured the fortress of Zion, which is now called the City of David.

⁸On the day of the attack, David said to his troops, "I hate those 'lame' and 'blind' Jebusites. Whoever attacks them should strike by going into the city through the water tunnel." That is the origin of the saying, "The blind and the lame may not enter the house."

⁹So David made the fortress his home, and he called it the City of David. He extended the city, starting at the supporting terraces and working inward. ¹⁰And David became more and more powerful, because brother, resulting in much bloodshed (see 3:1).

5:2 In the past: Or For some time.

• you were the one: In the ancient world, a covenant relationship (a suzerain-vassal treaty) was sometimes formed between subjects (the vassals) and a ruler (the suzerain) because of past aid, often rescue from enemies (see Judg 8:22, Gideon; Judg 11:8-11, Jephthah; 1 Sam 11:1-15, Saul). This type of relationship is the background for the covenant concept in Scripture: God was Israel's covenant Lord because he had freed them from Egypt (cp. Exod 19:4; 20:1-2). • the LORD told you: Israel was already aware of God's selection of David (cp. 3:9). • shepherd for my people Israel: This phrase is quoted in Matt 2:6 when King Herod asks the leading priests about the prophecies concerning the Messiah.

◀ David's Capture of Jebus (Jerusalem) (5:6-12 // 1 Chr 11:4-8). Jerusalem was a small walled city when David defeated its Jebusite inhabitants. The water tunnel that David might have used to enter the city (see note on 5:8) ran from Gihon Spring outside the wall to the Lower Pool at the lowest point inside the city wall. We don't know exactly where in the city David built his palace. The location of the Millo ("supporting terraces," 5:9) is also uncertain. The original walled city continued to be called the City of David in later times (e.g., see 1 Kgs 3:1; 2 Kgs 15:7; 2 Chr 32:5; Neh 3:15).

5:3 King David made a covenant that demanded the people's loyalty, yet allowed them to maintain a sense of tribal privilege and individual dignity. It served as a constitution, containing stipulations obligating both the king and the people. • they anointed him king: While David had already been anointed by Samuel (1 Sam 16:13), this public ceremony demonstrated the people's acceptance of David as king.

5:4-5 Hebron: See note on 2:1.

5:6-10 David acquired a new capital city, Jerusalem, for the newly extended kingdom.

5:6 The Jebusites resided in Jerusalem prior to its conquest by David (see Exod 34:11; Deut 7:1-6; 20:17; Josh 15:63; Judg 1:21). Nothing is known of them outside the Bible. In archaeological discoveries from Mari in Syria, a similar name (Yabasi) appears as both a clan name and a geographic location. • Even the blind and lame: The Jebusites had a false notion of invincibility. Another possible translation is you won't enter here unless you can get rid of the blind and lame, implying that David's capture of Jerusalem was as likely as achieving a miraculous cure for blindness and lameness.

5:7 the fortress of Zion: At this time Jerusalem was probably a small site of nine to twelve square acres. The Jebusites' arrogance, and the fact that the city had not been conquered previously, suggests that it was well fortified.

5:8 I hate those 'lame' and 'blind' Jebusites: Or Those 'lame' and 'blind' Jebusites hate me. • through the water tunnel (or with scaling hooks; the meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain): How David conquered Jerusalem is debated. Possibly he used a water tunnel as a conduit for his troops to enter the city, but not all interpreters agree. Another possibility is that David and his men conquered Jerusalem with the more traditional siege works and by scaling the walls. The term translated water tunnel occurs only here and in Ps 42:7 ("raging seas"); the statement might be metaphorical, referring to the ferocity of the attack.

• The blind and the lame may not enter the house: The meaning of this saying is uncertain. House could refer either to the Temple, which had not yet been built, or to David's palace. The proverb may explain why Mephibosheth, Saul's descendant, was barred from the throne (see note on 4:4). • David also promised that those who undertook the siege of Jerusalem would become the commanders of his army (see 1 Chr 11:6).

5:9 made the fortress his home: Jerusalem was a practical place from which David could effectively administer the extended kingdom. It was a centrally located neutral city on the border between Judah and the northern territories, and its natural fortifications and water tunnel were useful in case of siege. • the supporting terraces: Hebrew the millo. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain; see note on 1 Kgs 9:15.

The LORD Blesses David in Jerusalem

2 Sam 5:11-16 // 1 Chr 14:1-7

¹¹Then King Hiram of Tyre sent messengers to David, along with cedar timber and carpenters and stonemasons, and they built David a palace. ¹²And David realized that the LORD had confirmed him as king over Israel and had blessed his kingdom for the sake of his people Israel.

¹³After moving from Hebron to Jerusalem, David married more concubines and wives, and they had more sons and daughters. ¹⁴These are the names of David's sons who were born in Jerusalem: Shammua, Shobab, Nathan, Solomon, ¹⁵Ibhar, Elishua, Nepheg, Japhia, ¹⁶Elishama, Eliada, and Eliphelet.

David Conquers the Philistines

2 Sam 5:17-25 // 1 Chr 14:8-17

¹⁷When the Philistines heard that David had been anointed king of Israel, they mobilized all their forces to capture him. But David was told they were coming, so he went into the stronghold. ¹⁸The Philistines arrived and spread out across the valley of Rephaim. ¹⁹So David asked the LORD, "Should I go out to fight the Philistines? Will you hand them over to me?"

The LORD replied to David, "Yes, go ahead. I will certainly hand them over to you."

²⁰So David went to Baal-perazim and defeated the Philistines there. "The LORD did it!" David exclaimed. "He burst through my enemies like a raging flood!" So he named that place Baal-perazim (which means "the Lord who bursts through"). ²¹The Philistines had abandoned their idols there, so David and his men confiscated them.

²²But after a while the Philistines returned and again spread out across the valley of Rephaim. ²³And again David asked the LORD what to do. "Do not attack them straight on," the LORD replied. "Instead, circle around behind and attack them near the poplar trees. ²⁴When you hear a sound like marching feet in the tops of the poplar trees, be on the alert! That will be the signal that the LORD is moving ahead of you to strike down the Philistine army." ²⁵So David did what the LORD commanded, and he struck down the Philistines all the way from Gibeon to Gezer.

5:10 the LORD . . . was with him: While David was a skilled and charismatic leader, his growing success was ultimately due to God's blessing.

5:11 Hiram of Tyre: Although the meeting of these two neighboring kings is reported just after Jerusalem's conquest, it probably happened much later. Hiram remained on the throne in Tyre at least until Solomon's twenty-fourth year, and one ancient source notes that he had a reign of thirty-four years. Another tradition implies that Hiram became king of Tyre just eight years before Solomon became king of Israel. The same king performed a similar act for Solomon (1 Kgs 5:1-18). The report of Hiram's support is perhaps given here because it ties in with the theme of David's confirmation and establishment as Israel's king (5:12).

5:12 David realized that his reign as king over Israel was for the sake of God's people Israel, not just for his personal benefit or enrichment.

5:13-16 The expansion of David's family reflected his growing success and power as Israel's king. Solomon was David's most important Jerusalem-born son (see 12:24-25).

5:17-25 For the first time as king, David engaged the Philistines in battle. • David's life has been portrayed thus far in 2 Samuel with a repeated pattern: He was crowned king in Hebron (2:4), won a battle (2:12-17), became stronger (3:1), and started a large family (3:2-5). Now he was crowned in Jerusalem (5:3), became stronger (5:10), expanded his family (5:13-14), and won a battle (5:17-25). This parallel structure draws attention to both of David's coronations with signs of divine blessing and prosperity.

5:18 The valley of Rephaim is located between Bethlehem and Jerusalem (cp. 23:13-14).

5:20 Baal-perazim: David used the term Baal to honor the Lord for the victory he gave Israel. The title means "the lord of earthquakes/openings," and was evidently an acceptable title for Yahweh until the Canaanite worship of Baal became an overwhelming problem in Israel. Every time David engaged in combat with the Philistines in 2 Samuel (5:17-25; 8:1; 21:15-22; 23:13-17), he won without losing a single soldier. How different from Saul, for whom victory over the Philistines was impossible!

5:21 David . . . confiscated them: David's confiscation of the Philistines' idols was payback for their capture of the Ark during Eli's time (1 Sam 4:1b-11). David burned the idols rather than carrying them off as trophies (1 Chr 14:12).

5:23 David again asked the LORD (5:19), but this time God gave a much more detailed answer. Unlike the frontal assault of 5:20, God instructed David to circle around behind the enemy. • poplar: Or aspen, or balsam; also in 5:24. The exact identification of this tree is uncertain.

5:25 Gibeon: As in Greek version (see also 1 Chr 14:16); Hebrew reads Geba. David cleared the Philistines from the central hill country of Israel between Gibeon in the east (in Benjamin, north of Jerusalem) to Gezer in the west.

6:1-23 Except for the brief reference in 1 Sam 14:18 (see note), the Ark of the Covenant has not been mentioned since 1 Sam 7:1-2, when the Philistines returned the captured Ark to Beth-shemesh and then to Kiriath-jearim, where it was placed in Abinadab's home. The Ark's virtual absence during Saul's forty-year reign highlights that Saul, in his spiritual insensitivity, did not seek the Lord (see 1 Chr 10:13-14; 13:3). David brought the Ark into Jerusalem, effectively acknowledging and enthroning (see 6:2) Yahweh as the true king over Israel in the new capital.

the Ark of God, which bears the name of the LORD of Heaven's Armies, who is enthroned between the cherubim. ³They placed the Ark of God on a new cart and brought it from Abinadab's house, which was on a hill. Uzzah and Ahio, Abinadab's sons, were guiding the cart ⁴that carried the Ark of God. Ahio walked in front of the Ark. ⁵David and all the people of Israel were celebrating before the LORD, singing songs and playing all kinds of musical instruments—lyres, harps, tambourines, castanets, and cymbals.

⁶But when they arrived at the threshing floor of Nacon, the oxen stumbled, and Uzzah reached out his hand and steadied the Ark of God. ⁷Then the LORD's anger was aroused against Uzzah, and God struck him dead because of this. So Uzzah died right there beside the Ark of God.

⁸David was angry because the LORD's anger had burst out against Uzzah. He named that place Perez-uzzah (which means "to burst out against Uzzah"), as it is still called today.

⁹David was now afraid of the LORD, and he asked, "How can I ever bring the Ark of the LORD back into my care?" ¹⁰So David decided not to move the Ark of the LORD into the City of David. Instead, he took it to the house of Obed-edom of Gath. ¹¹The Ark of the LORD remained there in Obed-edom's house for three months, and the LORD blessed Obed-edom and his entire household.

Moving the Ark to Jerusalem

2 Sam 6:12-19 // 1 Chr 15:25-16:6

¹²Then King David was told, "The LORD has blessed Obed-edom's household and everything he has because of the Ark of God." So David went there and brought the Ark of God from the house of Obed-edom to the City of David with a great celebration. ¹³After the men who were carrying the Ark of the LORD had gone six steps, David sacrificed a bull and a fattened calf. ¹⁴And David danced before the LORD with all his might, wearing a priestly garment. ¹⁵So David and all the people of Israel brought up the Ark of the LORD with shouts of joy and the blowing of rams' horns.

the LORD of Heaven's Armies: Or the Ark of God where the Name is proclaimed—the name of the LORD of Heaven's Armies. • is enthroned between the cherubim: See also 1 Sam 4:4; 2 Kgs 19:15; Ps 80:1; 99:1.

6:3-4 According to God's instructions (Exod 25:14; 37:5; Num 4:6), the Ark was to be carried by Levites of the clan of Kohath, holding two poles slipped through four rings at the corners of the Ark. God's instructions were ignored in this instance. • Uzzah and Ahio: In 1 Sam 7:1, Eleazar, another son of Abinadab, was put in charge of the Ark.

David's Defeat of the Philistines (5:17-25). The first two battles between King David and the Philistines are shown. In the first, David engaged and defeated the Philistines at BAAL-PERAZIM (bottom inset). When the Philistines remustered their troops, David again came out from JERUSALEM, this time defeating them from GIBEON in Judah to GEZER in Philistine territory (5:25).

6:5 before the LORD, singing songs: As in Dead Sea Scrolls and Greek version (see also 1 Chr 13:8); Masoretic Text reads before the LORD with all manner of cypress wood. • The musical instruments were played by Levites (1 Chr 16:4-6).

6:6-7 steadied the Ark: Although Uzzah meant well and acted instinctively, he violated the Ark by touching it (cp. Exod 19:12-13; Num 4:15). He suffered the same penalty as the people from Bethshemesh (1 Sam 6:19). David later had the Levites carry the Ark into Jerusalem in accordance with God's will (see 1 Chr 15:2, 13-15).

6:7 because of this: As in Dead Sea Scrolls; Masoretic Text reads because of his irreverence.

6:8 David was angry . . . the LORD's anger: Cp. Gen 4:5; 1 Sam 15:11; Jon 4:1; Luke 15:27-28. • Perez-uzzah: The first part of this name appears in 5:20 (Baal-perazim) as the place where God burst through the Philistine ranks.

6:9 David was . . . afraid: Similarly, Moses trembled at the display of divine wrath (Deut 9:19) and at the dramatic display of God's fiery presence (see Heb 12:21).

6:10 Obed-edom was a Levite (1 Chr 15:18, 21; 16:38; 26:4, 8, 15; 2 Chr 25:24) who lived either in the Philistine city of Gath or in an Israelite town of a similar name (e.g., Gath-rimmon, a city given to the Levites, Josh 21:25).

6:11 God blessed Obed-edom with health, prosperity, and family. God's presence, which is a curse to the ungodly (1 Sam 5), is a blessing to his people. Obed-edom must have taken care to preserve the Ark's sanctity.

6:12 David reasoned that if God blessed Obed-edom simply for storing the Ark, God would surely bless David for placing the Ark in a dwelling specifically built for it in the capital city.

6:13 David offered this sacrifice of praise to God immediately, just six steps into the journey.

6:14 a priestly garment (literally a linen ephod): The ephod (Hebrew 'epod) is associated with an Akkadian word, epattu, meaning "a costly garment." Richly ornamented with gold, this garment was used for robing statues of gods. Because priests and (sometimes) kings were considered sacred persons, they traditionally used garments of this type (see 1 Sam 2:18, 28; 14:3; 22:18; 23:6, 9).

6:15 In 15:10, rams' horns announce the crowning of a new king; in 20:1, they proclaim rebellion. Here they celebrate placing the Ark in its own tent (see note on 6:17), which in effect installed Yahweh's throne in Jerusalem.

Michal's Contempt for David

¹⁶But as the Ark of the LORD entered the City of David, Michal, the daughter of Saul, looked down from her window. When she saw King David leaping and dancing before the LORD, she was filled with contempt for him.

¹⁷They brought the Ark of the LORD and set it in its place inside the special tent David had prepared for it. And David sacrificed burnt offerings and peace offerings to the LORD. ¹⁸When he had finished his sacrifices, David blessed the people in the name of the LORD of Heaven's Armies. ¹⁹Then he gave to every Israelite man and woman in the crowd a loaf of bread, a cake of dates, and a cake of raisins. Then all the people returned to their homes.

²⁰When David returned home to bless his own family, Michal, the daughter of Saul, came out to meet him. She said in disgust, "How distinguished the king of Israel looked today, shamelessly exposing himself to the servant girls like any vulgar person might do!"

²¹David retorted to Michal, "I was dancing before the LORD, who chose me above your father and all his family! He appointed me as the leader of Israel, the people of the LORD, so I celebrate before the LORD. ²²Yes, and I am willing to look even more foolish than this, even to be humiliated in my own eyes! But those servant girls you mentioned will indeed think I am distinguished!" ²³So Michal, the daughter of Saul, remained childless throughout her entire life.

It took two attempts for David to bring the Ark of the Covenant to Jerusalem (6:1-11, 12-23). In the second attempt, there was a notable change in David's mode of celebrating. Three Hebrew terms for "danced/dancing" are found in the account of the second procession of the ark (see also 1 Chr 15:25-29): karar (6:14, 16), pazaz (NLT, "leaping," 6:16), and raqad (1 Chr 15:29, "skipping about"). All three words refer to vigorous physical expression beyond the meaning of the Hebrew term for "celebrate" (6:5). Thus, in the first procession, David celebrated; in the second procession he engaged in exultant dancing and extravagant merry-making with intensified musical expression through the addition of shouting and trumpets.

Musical instruments played a significant role in Temple worship. In 1 Chr 25, David assigned various groups to the ministry of music. Many Psalms refer to playing musical instruments in praise and worship of God (see Ps 33:2-3; 57:8; 81:2; 92:1-3; 98:4-6). In Ps 149 and 150, dance and music are combined as a praise offering. Similarly, music and dancing were heard in the father's house in the parable of the lost son (Luke 15:25), as the son's return was truly a joyful occasion.

All these instances demonstrate that God welcomes exuberant expressions of joy and delight from those who worship and praise him (Isa 30:29; Jer 30:19; 31:13; Zeph 3:17; Eph 5:19; Col 3:16).

6:16 Michal is identified as the daughter of Saul three times (6:16, 20, 23). The use of her father's name underscores the ambiguity of David's relationship to her. Was she more David's wife or Saul's daughter? Had David reunited with her (3:13) because he loved her or because she was politically useful to him?

• Michal might have been filled with contempt for any of the following reasons: (1) She thought David's behavior was too sexually suggestive in front of a young female audience; (2) she was jealous over the glory David was receiving while she sat at home, a neglected wife; (3) she resented David's indifference to her for many years, his taking of other wives, and her being torn away from her second husband Palti (3:16-17); or (4) she felt sorrow for her late father and David's success at the expense of Saul's dynasty (see note on 6:21).

6:17 While the special tent for the Ark was not as opulent as the tent used during the wilderness wandering, this tent was a return to the wilderness tradition suspended two generations earlier at the destruction of Shiloh (Ps 78:60-61). David's special tent was the very last Tabernacle; Solomon, David's successor, built a permanent Temple for the Lord. Because this occasion was joyous, not penitential, the sacrifice included burnt offerings and peace offerings but not sin or guilt offerings (see "Israel's Sacrifices," Lev 1:1-7:38, p. 197).

6:18 blessed the people: Although blessing was typically the express function of priests, kings also offered blessings at significant national occasions (Solomon, 1 Kgs 8:14, 55; 2 Chr 6:3; Hezekiah, 2 Chr 31:8).

6:19 David's gifts of food to every Israelite anticipated other royal gifts they would receive under his reign. • a cake of dates: Or a portion of meat. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

6:21 David's response to Michal might hint at the real reason for her indignation—that she resented David's success in light of the tragic decline of her father's family.

6:22 David would not restrain his enthusiasm in celebrating before the Lord. In fact, he would exceed the enthusiasm he had shown thus far.

6:23 Michal was the only one of David's many wives who did not bear him at least one child. Either God was punishing her (cp. Gen 20:17-18) for her disdainful attitude toward David's exuberant praise, or David and Michal's relationship had become so strained that they never again shared the marriage bed. Because Michal remained childless, yet another aspect of Saul's dynasty was cut off. This occasion is Michal's last appearance in the text.

The LORD's Covenant Promise to David

2 Sam 7:1-17 // 1 Chr 17:1-15

7 When King David was settled in his palace and the LORD had given him rest from all the surrounding enemies, ²the king summoned Nathan the prophet. "Look," David said, "I am living in a beautiful cedar palace, but the Ark of God is out there in a tent!"

³Nathan replied to the king, "Go ahead and do whatever you have in mind, for the LORD is with you."

⁴But that same night the LORD said to Nathan,

⁵"Go and tell my servant David, 'This is what the LORD has declared: Are you the one to build a house for me to live in?'

⁶I have never lived in a house, from the day I brought the Israelites out of Egypt until this very day. I have always moved from one place to another with a tent and a ⁷Tabernacle as my dwelling. ⁷Yet no matter where I have gone with the Israelites, I have never once complained to Israel's tribal leaders, the shepherds of my people Israel. I have never asked them, 'Why haven't you built me a beautiful cedar house?'"

Rev 22:16

God made covenants with his people five times in the OT: (1) when he promised Noah that humanity would never again be destroyed by a flood (Gen 6:18; 9:1-17); (2) when he promised Abraham that he would inherit the land of Canaan and establish a great nation (Gen 15:1-21; 17:1-27); (3) when he formed a unique relationship with Israel at Mount Sinai through Moses (Exod 19-23); (4) when he promised a priestly dynasty to Phinehas (Num 25:10-13); and (5) when he promised a royal dynasty to David. In addition, God promised through Jeremiah to make a "new covenant" in the future (Jer 31:31-34).

God's promise to David is not explicitly identified as a covenant in 2 Sam 7. However, other passages do identify the event as a covenant (see 23:5; 2 Chr 7:18; 21:7; Ps 89:3-4, 28-29; 132:11-12; Isa 55:3; Jer 33:20-21). God's promise to David, that his "favor will not be taken from him" (7:15), speaks of a covenant relationship. Like God's promise to Abraham, his covenant with David is unconditional: It does not depend on human obedience or faithfulness but only on God's unchanging love.

At the heart of this covenant is God's promise to raise up David's successors forever and to be a father to them (cp. 1 Kgs 11:36; 15:4; 2 Kgs 8:19). God's blessing on Solomon's reign is a partial fulfillment of this promise (cp. 7:10-11 with 1 Kgs 8:56; see also 1 Kgs 8:20, 24). God's patience with the kings of Judah even when they turned away from him was the result of his covenant promise to David (see 1 Kgs 11:12-13; 15:3-5).

The complete and final fulfillment of God's covenant with David is found in the Messiah, Jesus Christ, the "son of David" (e.g., see Matt 9:27; 20:30-31; 21:9, 15). Isaiah foretold one who will rule "from the throne of his ancestor David for all eternity" (Isa 9:7) and called him the "shoot" growing "out of the stump of David's family" (Isa 11:1). Both of these references point to the coming Messiah. Four passages in the NT teach that Jesus is the ultimate fulfillment of the promises made to David by referring directly to 2 Sam 7 (Luke 1:32-33; Acts 2:29-31; 13:22-23; Heb 1:5). The NT opens (Matt 1:1) and closes (Rev 22:16) with reference to Jesus as the son of David, the successor to his throne.

7:1-29 David was not satisfied merely building a tent for the Ark (6:17). He wanted to build a house for God.

7:1-2 If God had only a tent while David had a palace, it might create the impression that David was the real king rather than God. Thus, David intended to build a temple for God.

7:1 from all . . . enemies: See Deut 12:9-10; 1 Kgs 5:4; 8:56. David's rest was temporary because shortly he was at war again (see ch 8).

7:2 Nathan is recorded in David's life on three occasions: (1) here with a promise for David; (2) in 12:1-15 with a parable of judgment against David; (3) in

1 Kgs 1:11-27 with a plan for installing Solomon as David's successor. • A cedar palace (literally a house of cedar) would have been made of stone with cedar paneling inside.

7:3 Go ahead and do whatever you have in mind: Nathan's counsel to David was Nathan's own idea. As it turned out, God disqualified David from building the Temple (see 1 Chr 22:8). Even true prophets are fallible when speaking on their own initiative rather than from God's revelation.

7:5 Are you the one? God wanted someone to build him a house, but David wasn't the right person.

7:6 never lived in a house: Prior to the building of the Temple in one fixed location, God's dwelling was the Tabernacle, a mobile, tentlike structure. The text here uses language of human experience to describe a truth about God (see notes on Exod 29:18; Deut 8:2). Although God is omnipresent, he chose the Tabernacle and Temple as his "dwelling place" in the OT (see note on 2 Chr 2:5-6; cp. Acts 17:24).

7:7 I have never once complained . . . never asked: While it was a less impressive structure than the Temple, the Tabernacle honored God because he had ordained its use for that period of Israel's history.

⁸Now go and say to my servant David, "This is what the LORD of Heaven's Armies has declared: I took you from tending sheep in the pasture and selected you to be the leader of my people Israel. ⁹I have been with you wherever you have gone, and I have destroyed all your enemies before your eyes. Now I will make your name as famous as anyone who has ever lived on the earth! ¹⁰And I will provide a homeland for my people Israel, planting them in a secure place where they will never be disturbed. Evil nations won't oppress them as they've done in the past, ¹¹starting from the time I appointed judges to rule my people Israel. And I will give you rest from all your enemies.

"Furthermore, the LORD declares that he will make a house for you—a dynasty of kings! ¹²For when you die and are buried with your ancestors, I will raise up one of your descendants, your own offspring, and I will make his kingdom strong. ¹³He is the one who will build a house—a temple—for my name. And I will secure his royal throne forever. ¹⁴I will be his father, and he will be my son. If he sins, I will correct and discipline him with the rod, like any father would do. ¹⁵But my favor will not be taken from him as I took it from Saul, whom I removed from your sight. ¹⁶Your house and your kingdom will continue before me for all time, and your throne will be secure forever."

¹⁷So Nathan went back to David and told him everything the LORD had said in this vision.

*Ps 73:28

7:8-17 Instead of David's building God a house, God promised to build David a house, a permanent dynasty of kings from David's descendants.

7:8 tending sheep: Kings in the ancient Near East were often called shepherds (see 1 Kgs 22:17; Isa 44:28; Ezek 34:2; 37:24; Nah 3:18; Zech 10:3). David, who had been a shepherd, called the Lord his shepherd (Ps 23:1).

7:9 I have been with you: Through his guidance and protection, God was actively involved in shaping David's entire life. • I will make your name . . . famous: God made this promise only to Abraham and David. (see Gen 12:2).

7:10-11a never be disturbed: Through David and his heirs, a lasting peace would engulf the land, in contrast with the intermittent and temporary periods of peace during the days of the judges, when one predatory nation after another shattered Israel's well-being. God's promise of rest from all your enemies was first mentioned by Joshua (Josh 1:13, 15; 22:4), and later realized in the ministry of some of the judges (Judg 3:11, 30; 5:31; 8:28).

7:11b he will make a house for you: God wanted to do infinitely more for David than David could conceive of doing for God. While David was primarily interested in projects such as building a temple, God was interested in bringing blessing to his people through one righteous dynasty of kings.

7:12-13 one of your descendants . . . will build a house . . . for my name: David's son Solomon would build the Temple; David's personal involvement in military conflict and bloodshed disqualified him from building God's Temple (1 Chr 22:8-9).

7:14 I will be his father, and he will be my son: Kings in David's line would enjoy a special covenant relationship with God, as the whole nation of Israel did (cp. Exod 6:7; Lev 26:12). Jesus later became the ultimate fulfillment of this prophecy (see Heb 1:5). Paul quotes this phrase in 2 Cor 6:18 and applies it to all believers. • If he sins, I will correct and discipline him: God would steer David's offspring, the future kings of Israel, back onto the right track whenever they sinned. Cp. the experience of Jesus, who never sinned, yet endured God's discipline (see Heb 4:15; 5:8; 12:1-11).

7:16 for all time . . . forever: God's promises do not negate human responsibility and accountability (7:14). Wrongdoing requires a just response from God. However, no wayward son of David could move God to withdraw his promise to preserve David's dynasty. Although the dynasty disappeared for hundreds of years, David's house and kingdom were renewed in Jesus Christ, the sinless descendant of David who reigns forever. • before me: As in Greek version and some Hebrew manuscripts; Masoretic Text reads before you.

7:18-29 David responded prayerfully to God's promise of a dynasty, repeatedly acknowledging God's true kingship as Sovereign LORD.

7:18 David's question, "Who am I?" was an expression of genuine humility (cp. Exod 4:11).

7:19 God's plan to give David a lasting dynasty stretched well beyond his lifetime. The promise is fulfilled forever in the eternal reign of Christ (Rev 11:15). • Do you deal with everyone this way, O Sovereign LORD? Or This is your instruction for all humanity, O Sovereign LORD.

7:20 You know what your servant is really like: God made his promises to David with full knowledge that David had both strengths and weaknesses.

7:21 God's will, rather than David's personal ambition, enabled David to accomplish great things. • you have done: David spoke of what God promised to do for his heirs over the generations as an already-accomplished fact, showing his unshakable belief in God's faithfulness.

7:22 There is no one like you: David affirms God's uniqueness (see also 22:32; Deut 4:39; 1 Sam 2:2).

never even heard of another God like you!

²³What other nation on earth is like your people Israel? What other nation, O God, have you redeemed from slavery to be your own people? You made a great name for yourself when you redeemed your people from Egypt. You performed awesome miracles and drove out the nations and gods that stood in their way. ²⁴You made Israel your very own people forever, and you, O LORD, became their God.

²⁵"And now, O LORD God, I am your servant; do as you have promised concerning me and my family. Confirm it as a promise that will last forever. ²⁶And may your name be honored forever so that everyone will say, 'The LORD of Heaven's Armies is God over Israel!' And may the house of your servant David continue before you forever.

²⁷"O LORD of Heaven's Armies, God of Israel, I have been bold enough to pray this prayer to you because you have revealed all this to your servant, saying, 'I will build a house for you—a dynasty of kings!' ²⁸For you are God, O Sovereign LORD. Your words are truth, and you have promised these good things to your servant. ²⁹And now, may it please you to bless the house of your servant, so that it may continue forever before you. For you have spoken, and when you grant a blessing to your servant, O Sovereign LORD, it is an eternal blessing!"

Expansion of the Kingdom

2 Sam 8:1-18 // 1 Chr 18:1-17

8 After this, David defeated and subdued the Philistines by conquering Gath, their largest town. ²David also conquered the land of Moab. He made the people lie down on the ground in a row, and he measured them off in groups with a length of rope. He measured off two groups to be executed for every one group to be spared. The Moabites who were spared became David's subjects and paid him tribute money.

³David also destroyed the forces of Hadadezer son of Rehob, king of Zobah, when Hadadezer marched out to strengthen his control along the Euphrates River. ⁴David captured 1,000 chariots, 7,000 charioteers, and 20,000 foot soldiers. He crippled all the chariot horses except enough for 100 chariots.

⁷David brought the gold shields of Hadadezer's officers to Jerusalem, ⁸along with 7:23 You made . . . in their way: As in Greek version (see also 1 Chr 17:21); Hebrew reads You made a name for yourself and awesome miracles for your land in the sight of your people, whom you redeemed from Egypt, the nations and their gods. Israel was set apart from every other nation by the uniqueness of its God and by the relationship the people had with him.

7:24 David praised God for his goodness in redeeming and establishing the nation of Israel (7:23-24), not just David and his royal line (7:18-21). His prayer is corporate rather than just personal.

7:25 Confirm it: David was not asking God for a sign (as Gideon had done, Judg 6:17). Rather, David was saying, "God, may it be so."

7:26 Although God had promised to make David's name great (7:9), David was concerned that God's name be honored. David knew that if God were not the focus of the people's praise, then David's dynasty would count for nothing.

8:1-18 The expansion of David's empire through military victories (8:1-14) and the establishment of his royal bureaucracy (8:15-18) fulfilled God's promise of a famous name (7:9; cp. 8:13).

8:1 by conquering Gath, their largest town: Literally by conquering Methegammah, a name that means "the bridle," possibly referring to the size of the town or the tribute money taken from it. Cp. 1 Chr 18:1.

8:2 Moab was on the east side of the Dead Sea. Earlier, the people of Moab had provided David's parents with refuge during Saul's reign (1 Sam 22:3-4); David's great-grandmother, Ruth, was from Moab. For whatever reason, no such fraternal relationship existed any longer. • two groups to be executed for every one group to be spared: This is the only time in 2 Samuel that David executed captives taken in battle (see Num 21:29; 24:17; Deut 2:9).

8:3 Hadadezer reappears in 10:16 as David's foe. He was either the direct son of Rehob and his successor or the reigning king of a dynasty established by a king named Rehob, whose kingdom was near the northern city of Dan (see Judg 18:28; cp. Num 13:21). • Zobah was north and east of David's kingdom. • It is possible that David, not Hadadezer (literally he), marched out to strengthen his control. • the Euphrates River: Literally the river; 1 Chr 18:3 specifically identifies the Euphrates. Cp. 10:16.

8:4 1,000 chariots, 7,000 charioteers: As in Dead Sea Scrolls and Greek version (see also 1 Chr 18:4); Masoretic Text reads captured 1,700 charioteers.

• David would have crippled . . . horses to prevent their reuse by the enemy and because kings in Israel were not to accumulate horses (Deut 17:16).

8:5 Hadadezer's neighbors, Arameans from Damascus, were of no help to him in repelling David. They would later be more successful against Solomon (1 Kgs 11:23-25) but less successful in their attack of Samaria during the days of King Ahab of Israel (1 Kgs 20).

8:6 David established army garrisons in Aram but not in Moab (8:2), which suggests that Aram was a more formidable force and that David needed a military presence there to maintain control.

• the LORD made David victorious: Cp. 8:14. God was the real source of David's growth and power.

8:7 gold shields: See also 2 Kgs 11:10. • brought . . . to Jerusalem: In conformity with God's stipulations for a good king (Deut 17:17), David dedicated these valuable items to God (see 8:11) a large amount of bronze from Hadadezer's towns of Tebah and Berothai.

⁹When King Toi of Hamath heard that David had destroyed the entire army of Hadadezer, ¹⁰he sent his son Joram to congratulate King David for his successful campaign. Hadadezer and Toi had been enemies and were often at war. Joram presented David with many gifts of silver, gold, and bronze.

¹¹King David dedicated all these gifts to the LORD, as he did with the silver and gold from the other nations he had defeated—¹²from Edom, Moab, Ammon, Philistia, and Amalek—and from Hadadezer son of Rehob, king of Zobah.

¹³So David became even more famous when he returned from destroying 18,000 Edomites in the Valley of Salt. ¹⁴He placed army garrisons throughout Edom, and all the Edomites became David's subjects. In fact, the LORD made David victorious wherever he went.

¹⁵So David reigned over all Israel and did what was just and right for all his people. ¹⁶Joab son of Zeruiah was commander of the army. Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was the royal historian. ¹⁷Zadok son of Ahitub and Ahimelech son of Abiathar were the priests. Seraiah was the court secretary. ¹⁸Benaiah son of Jehoiada was captain of the king's bodyguard. And David's sons served as priestly leaders.

David's Kindness to Mephibosheth

9One day David asked, "Is anyone in Saul's family still alive—anyone to whom I can show kindness for Jonathan's sake?" ²He summoned a man named Ziba, who had been one of Saul's servants. "Are you Ziba?" the king asked.

"Yes sir, I am," Ziba replied.

³The king then asked him, "Is anyone still alive from Saul's family? If so, I want to show God's kindness to them."

Ziba replied, "Yes, one of Jonathan's sons is still alive. He is crippled in both feet."

⁴"Where is he?" the king asked.

"In Lo-debar," Ziba told him, "at the home of Makir son of Ammiel."

⁵So David sent for him and brought him from Makir's home. ⁶His name was rather than hoarding them for his own wealth and splendor.

8:8 Tebah: As in some Greek manuscripts (see also 1 Chr 18:8); Hebrew reads Betah.

8:9 Hamath was northwest of Hadadezer's Zobah.

8:10 his son: King Toi dispatched the crown prince rather than another entourage on this mission because he considered it vital to stay properly connected with David. • Joram: The prefix Jo- is an abbreviated form of Yahweh; Joram means "Yahweh is exalted." In 1 Chr 18:10 the prince's name is Hadoram, which means "Hadad [a Canaanite god] is exalted." It is possible that Toi changed the prince's name for diplomatic reasons, to make it more agreeable to David.

8:11-12 Captured war booty and diplomatic exchanges went into God's treasury rather than the king's treasury. Voluntary gifts (8:11a) and plunder exacted from defeated foes (8:11b-12) also were dedicated . . . to the LORD.

8:12 Edom: As in a few Hebrew manuscripts and in Greek and Syriac versions (see also 8:14; 1 Chr 18:11); most Hebrew manuscripts read Aram.

8:13-14 These two verses highlight three of David's war policies: (1) inflict heavy damage on the enemy (18,000 casualties); (2) reduce them to vassalage (they became David's subjects); (3) place army garrisons in the conquered territory to maintain control over them. • Edomites: As in a few Hebrew manuscripts and in Greek and Syriac versions (see also 8:14; 1 Chr 18:12; Ps 60:TITLE); most Hebrew manuscripts read Arameans. The two names are very similar in old Hebrew script. Edomites is more likely, however, because the Valley of Salt (the Dead Sea area) was adjacent to Edomite, not Aramean, territory.

8:15-18 David's bureaucracy included (1) military officials (Joab); (2) a court historian (Jehoshaphat); (3) priests (Zadok and Ahimelech); (4) a scribe or court secretary (Seraiah); and (5) a security officer (Benaiah, who became a commander under Solomon; see also 1 Kgs 2:25-46).

8:18 the king's bodyguard: Hebrew the Kerethites and Pelethites. Both peoples were probably foreigners, especially the Kerethites, who might have come from the island of Crete (see also 1 Sam 30:14; Ezek 25:16). These groups might have been Philistine mercenaries. • David's sons served as priestly leaders: Literally David's sons were priests; cp. parallel text at 1 Chr 18:17. David was from Judah and was not a Levite. Alongside the traditional priesthood, David might have inaugurated a religious class specifically tied to his dynasty, probably to serve the royal court (see also note on 20:26).

9:1-13 David showed mercy to Mephibosheth, Jonathan's crippled son. The incident is sandwiched between David's victories in battle (chs 8, 10), indicating that David also had concern for individuals and a compassionate heart.

9:1 show kindness: The Hebrew word (khesed) speaks of covenant loyalty and faithfulness. The word frequently describes God's commitment to his people, but it can also describe the devotion and loyalty between any two persons. David's use of the word here echoes the language of the covenant of friendship between himself and Jonathan (1 Sam 20:12-17). • for Jonathan's sake: Mephibosheth was Saul's only remaining descendant and the only son of Jonathan.

9:3 Mephibosheth was crippled in both feet from a childhood accident (see 4:4).

9:4 Lo-debar was a small town in northern Transjordan (the area east of the Jordan), close to Mahanaim, the capital city of Mephibosheth's late uncle, Ishbosheth. The town was also near Jabesh-gilead, where Saul first made a name for himself (1 Sam 11:1-13). • Makir son of Ammiel, Mephibosheth's host, later supported David during Absalom's revolt (17:27).

9:5 As Saul had once sent for David (1 Sam 16:19), now David sent for Mephibosheth. However, Saul sent for someone to minister to him, whereas David sent for someone to whom he could minister.

9:6 Mephibosheth is another name for Merib-baal (see note on 4:4). • Given Mephibosheth; he was Jonathan's son and Saul's grandson. When he came to David, he bowed low to the ground in deep respect. David said, "Greetings, Mephibosheth."

Mephibosheth replied, "I am your servant."

⁷"Don't be afraid!" David said. "I intend to show kindness to you because of my promise to your father, Jonathan. I will give you all the property that once belonged to your grandfather Saul, and you will eat here with me at the king's table!"

⁸Mephibosheth bowed respectfully and exclaimed, "Who is your servant, that you should show such kindness to a dead dog like me?"

⁹Then the king summoned Saul's servant Ziba and said, "I have given your master's grandson everything that belonged to Saul and his family. ¹⁰You and your sons and servants are to farm the land for him to produce food for your master's household. But Mephibosheth, your master's grandson, will eat here at my table." (Ziba had fifteen sons and twenty servants.)

¹¹Ziba replied, "Yes, my lord the king; I am your servant, and I will do all that you have commanded." And from that time on, Mephibosheth ate regularly at David's table, like one of the king's own sons.

¹²Mephibosheth had a young son named Mica. From then on, all the members of Ziba's household were Mephibosheth's servants. ¹³And Mephibosheth, who was crippled in both feet, lived in Jerusalem and ate regularly at the king's table.

3. THE PEAK OF DAVID'S REIGN (10:1-20:26) David Defeats the Ammonites (10:1-19)

2 Sam 10:1-19 // 1 Chr 19:1-19

10 Some time after this, King Nahash of the Ammonites died, and his son Hanun became king. ²David said, "I am going to show loyalty to Hanun just as his father, Nahash, was always loyal to me." So David sent ambassadors to express sympathy to Hanun about his father's death.

But when David's ambassadors arrived in the land of Ammon, ³the Ammonite commanders said to Hanun, their master, "Do you really think these men are coming here to honor your father? No! David has sent them to spy out the city so they can come in and conquer it!" ⁴So Hanun seized David's ambassadors and shaved off half of each man's beard, cut off their robes at the buttocks, and sent them back to David in shame.

⁵When David heard what had happened, he sent messengers to tell the men, "Stay at Jericho until your beards grow out, and then come back." For they felt deep shame because of their appearance.

⁶When the people of Ammon realized how seriously they had angered David, they sent and hired 20,000 Aramean foot soldiers from the lands of Beth-rehob and Zobah, 1,000 from the king of Maacah, and 12,000 from the land of Tob. ⁷When David heard about this, he sent Joab and all his warriors to fight them. ⁸The Ammonite troops came out and drew up their battle lines at the entrance of the city gate, while the Arameans from Zobah and Rehob and Mephibosheth's physical limitations, bowing low to the ground must have been very difficult.

9:7 David had confiscated all the property that had belonged to . . . Saul.

9:8 a dead dog like me: Mephibosheth knew that anyone with a possible claim to the throne might be killed as a threat.

9:10 your master's household: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads your master's grandson.

9:11 Both Ziba and Mephibosheth (9:6) used the phrase "I am your servant" when presenting themselves before King David. By referring to himself as David's servant, Ziba showed that he was no longer loyal to Saul's dynasty. The sincerity of both later came into question (16:1-4; 19:17-30). • David's table: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads my table.

9:13 crippled in both feet: See 4:4.

10:1-19 Following the interlude of ch 9, the narrative returns to David's military feats. The Ammonites were likely the dominant political power in Transjordan (the area east of the Jordan) during Saul's reign and the early years of David's reign.

10:1-5 The king of Ammon insulted David's ambassadors, which led to two battles between Israel and Ammon (10:6-12:31).

10:1 Some time after this: King Hadadezer appears in ch 10 as David's active and capable foe (10:16), yet in ch 8 David had defeated him (8:3) and plundered his city (8:7, 12). Either Hadadezer was still alive, had regrouped, and revolted in ch 10; or possibly ch 10 unpacks the events of ch 8 as a prelude to ch 11. • King Nahash: As in parallel text at 1 Chr 19:1; Hebrew reads the king.

10:2 In both chs 9 and 10, David wanted to show loyalty (khesed); also in 9:1, 3).

10:4 Shaving half of each man's beard was intended to maximize the humiliation and ridicule. • cut off their robes: The humiliating display of genitalia or the buttocks was associated with military defeat and exile (Isa 20:1-6).

10:5 The city of Jericho had not yet been formally reconstructed (see 1 Kgs 16:34), but the site was located adjacent to the largest and most plentiful spring in the land, so people continued to dwell in the area. Anyone traveling from Ammon to Jerusalem would pass right by it. It was a place of seclusion from the men's humiliation.

10:6 Aramean foot soldiers: See 8:5-6.

• Beth-rehob and Zobah: See 8:3, 12. • the land of Tob (literally the man of Tob) possibly refers to a vassal king and region under Hadadezer's sovereignty.

10:8 The Israelites had a double battle: against the Ammonites in front of their fortifications at the entrance of the city gate and against the Aramean army in the open fields.

the men from Tob and Maacah positioned themselves to fight in the open fields.

⁹When Joab saw that he would have to fight on both the front and the rear, he chose some of Israel's elite troops and placed them under his personal command to fight the Arameans in the fields. ¹⁰He left the rest of the army under the command of his brother Abishai, who was to attack the Ammonites. ¹¹"If the Arameans are too strong for me, then come over and help me," Joab told his brother. "And if the Ammonites are too strong for you, I will come and help you. ¹²Be courageous! Let us fight bravely for our people and the cities of our God. May the LORD's will be done."

¹³When Joab and his troops attacked, the Arameans began to run away. ¹⁴And when the Ammonites saw the Arameans running, they ran from Abishai and retreated into the city. After the battle was over, Joab returned to Jerusalem.

¹⁷When David heard what was happening, he mobilized all Israel, crossed the Jordan River, and led the army to Helam. The Arameans positioned themselves in battle formation and fought against David.

¹⁸But again the Arameans fled from the Israelites. This time David's forces killed 700 charioteers and 40,000 foot soldiers, including Shobach, the commander of their army. ¹⁹When all the kings allied with Hadadezer saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they surrendered to Israel and became their subjects. After that, the Arameans were afraid to help the Ammonites.

David's Sin with Bathsheba and Uriah

David and Bathsheba

2 Sam 11:1 // 1 Chr 20:1

11 In the spring of the year, when kings normally go out to war, David sent Joab and the Israelite army to fight the Ammonites. They destroyed the Ammonite army and laid siege to the city of Rabbah. However, David stayed behind in Jerusalem.

²Late one afternoon, after his midday rest, David got out of bed and was walking on the roof of the palace. As he looked out over the city, he noticed a woman of unusual beauty taking a bath. ³He sent someone to find out who she was, and he was told, "She is Bathsheba, the daughter of Eliam and the wife of Uriah the Hittite." ⁴Then David sent messengers to get her; and when she came to the palace, he slept with her. She had just completed the purification rites after having her menstrual period. Then she returned home. ⁵Later, when Bathsheba discovered that she was pregnant, she sent David a message, saying, "I'm pregnant."

10:16 Hadadezer: See note on 10:1.

• Helam is unknown. • Apparently David had extended his empire as far north as the Euphrates River (literally the river; see also note on 8:3).

10:18 foot soldiers: As in some Greek manuscripts (see also 1 Chr 19:18); Hebrew reads charioteers.

11:1-27 David's affair with Bathsheba and the murder of her husband Uriah show that David was capable of great failure and cast a dark shadow over David's life and career. These failures came during a time of great military success against the Ammonites (10:1-11:1; 12:26-31).

11:1 In the spring of the year: Literally At the turn of the year. The first day of the year in the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar occurred in March or April, when the land began to dry out after the heavy winter rains. Kings avoided war during the rainy season. • David stayed behind either because he was irresponsible in carrying out his royal duties or because he trusted Joab to efficiently handle the Ammonite problem (cp. 10:7). This is the first mention of a leader of Israel staying off the battlefield in a time of war.

11:2 walking on the roof: The roofs of houses were flat and were regularly used for a variety of purposes, such as drying and storing produce (Josh 2:6), strolling and socializing, and sleeping in warm weather. • Bathsheba was taking a bath in plain view of the roof of the king's palace, but perhaps she assumed everyone would be inside, seeking refuge from the heat or having a midday rest.

11:3 Bathsheba means "daughter of seven" or "daughter of oath." Her father Eliam was the son of Ahithophel (see 23:34), an adviser sought by David and then by Absalom (15:12; 16:23). Much to David's chagrin (15:31), Ahithophel later shifted his allegiance from David to Absalom (17:1-4, 14) and advised Absalom to sleep with David's concubines on a rooftop, in open view (16:20-22). • Uriah is a Hebrew name (meaning "Yahweh [is] my light"); either he was a foreign mercenary, a convert to Israelite religion, or an Israelite of Hittite heritage. Uriah might also have been a member of the non-Israelite aristocracy in Jerusalem that predated David's conquest of the city. He was one of the Thirty—David's mightiest warriors (23:39).

11:4 It is not clear whether Bathsheba came to David's palace voluntarily. That no protestations are recorded (cp. 13:12-13) and that she married David, bore him another child, and persuaded him to designate their child as heir (1 Kgs 1:11-21) suggest that she might have been a willing partner. However, Bathsheba mourned for her husband (11:26-27), and only David was condemned for this act (11:27), so she might have been violated against her will. • The phrase after having her menstrual period (see Lev 15:19-24) is included to show that the child Bathsheba conceived could not possibly have been Uriah's.

Ps 51:4-5

⁶Then David sent word to Joab: "Send me Uriah the Hittite." So Joab sent him to David. ⁷When Uriah arrived, David asked him how Joab and the army were getting along and how the war was progressing. ⁸Then he told Uriah, "Go on home and relax." David even sent a gift to Uriah after he had left the palace. ⁹But Uriah didn't go home. He slept that night at the palace entrance with the king's palace guard.

¹⁰When David heard that Uriah had not gone home, he summoned him and asked, "What's the matter? Why didn't you go home last night after being away for so long?"

¹¹Uriah replied, "The Ark and the armies of Israel and Judah are living in tents, and Joab and my master's men are camping in the open fields. How could I go home to wine and dine and sleep with my wife? I swear that I would never do such a thing."

¹²"Well, stay here today," David told him, "and tomorrow you may return to the army." So Uriah stayed in Jerusalem that day and the next. ¹³Then David invited him to dinner and got him drunk. But even then he couldn't get Uriah to go home to his wife. Again he slept at the palace entrance with the king's palace guard.

David Arranges for Uriah's Death

¹⁴So the next morning David wrote a letter to Joab and gave it to Uriah to deliver. ¹⁵The letter instructed Joab, "Station Uriah on the front lines where the battle is fiercest. Then pull back so that he will be killed." ¹⁶So Joab assigned Uriah to a spot close to the city wall where he knew the enemy's strongest men were fighting. ¹⁷And when the enemy soldiers came out of the city to fight, Uriah the Hittite was killed along with several other Israelite soldiers.

¹⁸Then Joab sent a battle report to David. ¹⁹He told his messenger, "Report all the news of the battle to the king. ²⁰But he might get angry and ask, 'Why did the troops go so close to the city? Didn't they know there would be shooting from the walls?' ²¹Wasn't Abimelech son of Gideon killed at Thebez by a woman who threw a millstone down on him from the wall? Why would you get so close to the wall?' Then tell him, 'Uriah the Hittite was killed, too.'"

²²So the messenger went to Jerusalem and gave a complete report to David. ²³"The enemy came out against us in the open fields," he said. "And as we chased them back to the city gate, ²⁴the archers on the wall shot arrows at us. Some of the king's men were killed, including Uriah the Hittite."

²⁶When Uriah's wife heard that her husband was dead, she mourned for him. ²⁷When the period of mourning was over, David sent for her and brought her to the David's Defeat of the Ammonites (10:1-19). When king Hanun of AMMON had humiliated David's ambassadors (10:1-5), Hanun hired mercenary soldiers (broad grey lines) to fight David's men (white line). David sent Joab in command of his army (10:7). The parallel passage (1 Chr 19:6-19) indicates that the Ammonites and Arameans were camped at MEDEBA (1 Chr 19:7), so the first battle likely took place nearby. Later battles took place at Helam (10:16) and at RABBAH, the capital of Ammon (12:26-31).

sex with Bathsheba while on this weekend pass. Then everyone except Bathsheba would assume that the child was Uriah's, conceived on this night. • a gift: David might not have even cared whether the husband and wife were intimate. Uriah's return to his house would stifle any rumors as to how and when Bathsheba became pregnant.

11:11 in tents (or at Succoth; Hebrew, sukkoth, the name behind Sukkot, "the Festival of Shelters," Deut 16:13-17): These were temporary structures made of branches and foliage used by soldiers in the field, herdsmen protecting their cattle, or grape harvesters in the vineyard. • wine and dine and sleep with my wife: Uriah was willing to wine and dine with David (11:13), so it was not sharing the table with Bathsheba that Uriah wished to avoid but sharing the marriage bed. The Israelites considered the war camp a holy place because God was present to fight for his people. Thus, soldiers on duty avoided anything that caused impurity, such as sexual intercourse (Lev 15:18; see also 1 Sam 21:5-6).

11:16-17 Uriah was not the only casualty: David sacrificed several other Israelite soldiers while attempting to hide his sin.

11:21 Wasn't Abimelech . . . killed . . . by a woman: Cp. Judg 9:54. • son of Gideon: Literally son of Jerub-besheth. Jerub-besheth is a variation on the name Jerub-baal, which is another name for Gideon; see Judg 6:32; see also notes on 2:8; 4:4.

11:25 The sword devours this one today and that one tomorrow: David's callous attitude toward the unnecessary deaths he caused is chilling.

11:8 and relax: Literally and wash your feet, an expression that may also have a connotation of ritualistic washing. David assumed that Uriah would have palace, and she became one of his wives. Then she gave birth to a son. But the LORD was displeased with what David had done.

Nathan Rebukes David

12 So the LORD sent Nathan the prophet to tell David this story: "There were two men in a certain town. One was rich, and one was poor. ²The rich man owned a great many sheep and cattle. ³The poor man owned nothing but one little lamb he had bought. He raised that little lamb, and it grew up with his children. It ate from the man's own plate and drank from his cup. He cuddled it in his arms like a baby daughter. ⁴One day a guest arrived at the home of the rich man. But instead of killing an animal from his own flock or herd, he took the poor man's lamb and killed it and prepared it for his guest."

⁵David was furious. "As surely as the LORD lives," he vowed, "any man who would do such a thing deserves to die! ⁶He must repay four lambs to the poor man for the one he stole and for having no pity."

⁷Then Nathan said to David, "You are that man! The LORD, the God of Israel, says: I anointed you king of Israel and saved you from the power of Saul. ⁸I gave you your master's house and his wives and the kingdoms of Israel and Judah. And if that had not been enough, I would have given you much, much more. ⁹Why, then, have you despised the word of the LORD and done this horrible deed? For you have murdered Uriah the Hittite with the sword of the Ammonites and stolen his wife. ¹⁰From this time on, your family will live by the sword because you have despised me by taking Uriah's wife to be your own.

¹¹"This is what the LORD says: Because of what you have done, I will cause your own household to rebel against you. I will give your wives to another man before your very eyes, and he will go to bed with them in public view. ¹²You did it secretly, but I will make this happen to you openly in the sight of all Israel."

David Confesses His Guilt

¹³Then David confessed to Nathan, "I have sinned against the LORD."

Nathan replied, "Yes, but the LORD has forgiven you, and you won't die for this sin. ¹⁴Nevertheless, because you have shown utter contempt for the word of the LORD by doing this, your child will die."

¹⁵After Nathan returned to his home, the LORD sent a deadly illness to the child of David and Uriah's wife. ¹⁶David begged God to spare the child. He went without food and lay all night on the bare ground. ¹⁷The elders of his household pleaded with him to get up and eat with them, but he refused.

¹⁸Then on the seventh day the child died. David's advisers were afraid to tell him. "He wouldn't listen to reason while the child was ill," they said. "What drastic thing will he do when we tell him the child is dead?"

¹⁹When David saw them whispering, he realized what had happened. "Is the child dead?" he asked.

"Yes," they replied, "he is dead."

²⁰Then David got up from the ground, washed himself, put on lotions, and changed

12:1-31 Ch 12 expands on the last phrase of 11:27.

12:1 The LORD sent Nathan to David at least nine months after his adulterous sin. • This story is a rare OT instance of a parable (see also Judg 9:8-15). Such stories can be effective for communicating truth. • David was rich in the royal treasures he possessed, the number of wives he had, and all the promises of God for his future. Uriah by contrast was poor: he had one wife, one home, and no lineage.

12:3 like a baby daughter: Nathan's comparison of this lamb to a daughter (Hebrew bath) strikes a parallel with Bathsheba's name (see note on 11:3).

12:4 he took the poor man's lamb: Samuel had previously warned that a king would take what was not his (1 Sam 8:11-17).

12:5-6 The rich man of the parable did not deserve to die according to the law; instead, he must repay four lambs (cp. Exod 22:1). Intriguingly, David would later lose four of his sons (Bathsheba's first child, 12:18; Amnon, 13:29; Absalom, 18:14-15; Adonijah, 1 Kgs 2:25).

12:7-8 You are that man! David did deserve to die for his crime (Lev 20:10). • I anointed . . . I gave . . . I would have given you: David's sin not only violated God's commandments against murder, adultery, and coveting (Exod 20:1-17) but also amounted to a brazen disregard for all that the Lord had graciously given him.

12:8 His wives were probably the concubines of Saul's harem (cp. 3:7). The phrase could refer to Saul's wife Ahinoam, although David probably married a different woman with the same name (cp. 1 Sam 14:50; 25:43).

12:10 from this time on (literally forever): Contrast God's gracious "forever" promises of 7:13-29. • The reminder of what David had done with the sword (12:9) and what role the sword would play in his family recalls David's cavalier response to Joab's report of the deaths of Uriah and other innocent Israelites (11:25).

12:11 I will cause your own household to rebel against you: Absalom's revolt against David (chs 14-19) fulfilled this.

12:14 Nevertheless . . . your child will die: At times, God transfers punishment of fathers to their descendants (Exod 20:5; 34:7; Num 14:18; Deut 5:9; Jer 32:18). Although David repented and was forgiven (12:13), it did not cancel all retribution; it delayed it until a later generation (cp. 1 Kgs 21:27-29). • the word of the LORD: As in Dead Sea Scrolls; Masoretic Text reads the enemies of the LORD.

12:20 The series of actions described here show David resuming normal life activities. That he did so this soon after his son's death amazed his advisers (12:21). • put on lotions: Literally anointed himself.

his clothes. He went to the Tabernacle and worshiped the LORD. After that, he returned to the palace and was served food and ate.

²¹His advisers were amazed. "We don't understand you," they told him. "While the child was still living, you wept and refused to eat. But now that the child is dead, you have stopped your mourning and are eating again."

²²David replied, "I fasted and wept while the child was alive, for I said, 'Perhaps the LORD will be gracious to me and let the child live.' ²³But why should I fast when he is dead? Can I bring him back again? I will go to him one day, but he cannot return to me."

²⁴Then David comforted Bathsheba, his wife, and slept with her. She became pregnant and gave birth to a son, and David named him Solomon. The LORD loved the child ²⁵and sent word through Nathan the prophet that they should name him Jedidiah (which means "beloved of the LORD"), as the LORD had commanded.

David Captures Rabbah

2 Sam 12:29-31 // 1 Chr 20:2-3

²⁶Meanwhile, Joab was fighting against Rabbah, the capital of Ammon, and he captured the royal fortifications. ²⁷Joab sent messengers to tell David, "I have fought against Rabbah and captured its water supply. ²⁸Now bring the rest of the army and capture the city. Otherwise, I will capture it and get credit for the victory."

²⁹So David gathered the rest of the army

Bathsheba (11:1-12:25)

1 Kgs 1:5-2:25
Ps 51

Bathsheba, wife of Uriah, was the daughter of Ammiel or Eliam (11:3; 1 Chr 3:5) and the granddaughter of Ahithophel, the king's adviser (15:12; 23:34). Her husband Uriah was a Hittite mercenary in King David's service and was one of David's mighty men (23:39).

One spring, David stayed home in Jerusalem while the army went to the battlefield (11:1). Resting at midday, David strolled on his roof overlooking the city and saw the beautiful Bathsheba taking a bath. He arranged for her to be brought to his private chambers. Then he had sexual relations with her, and she became pregnant (11:2-4).

Not wanting this scandal to become public, David arranged a cover-up: He told Joab, the general, to have Uriah bring back a report from the battle lines. David hoped that Uriah would return home and sleep with Bathsheba, thus legitimizing her pregnancy. But Uriah considered himself still on active duty, so he slept at the palace gate (11:5-13). When David asked him about this, he replied that he could not sleep with his wife while the Ark and the armies of Israel were on the battlefield. This answer put David in a very bad light: Uriah, who was not even an Israelite, was standing ready to return to battle by avoiding intercourse with his wife (see Lev 15:16-18), while David was staying at home and trying to cover up adultery! Then David sent Uriah back and ordered Joab to have him killed in battle (11:14-25). Uriah's death did not keep David's sin a secret, however. The Lord sent the prophet Nathan to confront David, and David confessed his sin and repented (12:1-14; see Ps 51).

Bathsheba's baby became sick and died, as Nathan had predicted. After Bathsheba's period of mourning, David installed her in the palace as his seventh wife. David and Bathsheba had other children (Shimea, Shobab, Nathan, and Solomon; 12:15-25; 1 Chr 3:5). The rest of 2 Samuel is filled with intrigue among the different factions of David's wives and children, culminating in David's old age when Bathsheba sought to ensure the kingship for her son Solomon (1 Kgs 1).

In Matthew's genealogy of Jesus the Messiah, both Solomon and Bathsheba appear (Matt 1:6); she is described there as "the widow of Uriah," a reminder of the sin that brought her into David's family and of God's gracious favor toward her descendants.

12:21-23 David grieved before his son's death, hoping to ward off punishment.

12:23 Can I bring him back again? I will go to him one day: The irreversibility of his son's death forced David to face his own mortality. But he also showed his confidence in the afterlife.

12:24 Even after Uriah's death, Bathsheba was still called Uriah's wife (12:9; see also Matt 1:6). Only here is she called David's wife. • David: literally he;

an alternate Hebrew reading and some Hebrew manuscripts read she. • Solomon: Pronounced Shelomoh in Hebrew, it probably means "his peace," from the Hebrew shalom. It might mean "his replacement"; cp. Shelemiah (Jer 36:14, "Yahweh has provided compensation") and Shelumiel (Num 1:6, "God [is] my compensation"); both contain the root shelem ("replacement, compensation").

12:25 Jedidiah means "loved by Yahweh." This God-given second name for Solomon, mentioned only here, guaranteed his future, as it expressed God's special love for him. • as the LORD had commanded: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads because of the LORD.

12:26-31 David's battle with the Ammonites, begun in ch 10, ended in success.

12:26 the royal fortifications: Or the royal city.

12:27 captured its water supply: Or captured the city of water.

and went to Rabbah, and he fought against it and captured it. ³⁰David removed the crown from the king's head, and it was placed on his own head. The crown was made of gold and set with gems, and it weighed seventy-five pounds. David took a vast amount of plunder from the city. ³¹He also made slaves of the people of Rabbah and forced them to labor with saws, iron picks, and iron axes, and to work in the brick kilns. That is how he dealt with the people of all the Ammonite towns. Then David and all the army returned to Jerusalem.

Amnon and Tamar (13:1-19)

Amnon Rapes Tamar

13 Now David's son Absalom had a beautiful sister named Tamar. And Amnon, her half brother, fell desperately in love with her. ²Amnon became so obsessed with Tamar that he became ill. She was a virgin, and Amnon thought he could never have her.

³But Amnon had a very crafty friend—his cousin Jonadab. He was the son of David's brother Shimea. ⁴One day Jonadab said to Amnon, "What's the trouble? Why should the son of a king look so dejected morning after morning?"

So Amnon told him, "I am in love with Tamar, my brother Absalom's sister."

⁵"Well," Jonadab said, "I'll tell you what to do. Go back to bed and pretend you are ill. When your father comes to see you, ask him to let Tamar come and prepare some food for you. Tell him you'll feel better if she prepares it as you watch and feeds you with her own hands."

⁶So Amnon lay down and pretended to be sick. And when the king came to see him, Amnon asked him, "Please let my sister Tamar come and cook my favorite dish as I watch. Then I can eat it from her own hands." ⁷So David agreed and sent Tamar to Amnon's house to prepare some food for him.

⁸When Tamar arrived at Amnon's house, she went to the place where he was lying down so he could watch her mix some dough. Then she baked his favorite dish for him. ⁹But when she set the serving tray before him, he refused to eat. "Everyone get out of here," Amnon told his servants. So they all left.

¹⁰Then he said to Tamar, "Now bring the food into my bedroom and feed it to me here." So Tamar took his favorite dish to him. ¹¹But as she was feeding him, he grabbed her and demanded, "Come to bed with me, my darling sister."

¹²"No, my brother!" she cried. "Don't be foolish! Don't do this to me! Such wicked things aren't done in Israel. ¹³Where could I go in my shame? And you would be called one of the greatest fools in Israel. Please, just speak to the king about it, and he will let you marry me."

¹⁴But Amnon wouldn't listen to her, and since he was stronger than she was, he raped her. ¹⁵Then suddenly Amnon's love turned to hate, and he hated her even more

12:30 David removed the crown: David had, in effect, become the Ammonites' king. • from the king's head: Or from the head of Milcom (as in Greek version); the consonants of the Hebrew text can be read either way. Milcom, also called Molech, was the god of the Ammonites. • seventy-five pounds: Hebrew 1 talent [34 kilograms]. • a vast amount of plunder: Instructions against taking such booty during a conquest (Deut 7:25-26) show how dangerous David's actions were. Such wealth might seduce the king's heart away from God.

12:31 He also made slaves of the people of Rabbah and forced them to labor with: Literally He also brought out the people [of Rabbah] and put them under. Enslaving defeated peoples was in accord with Deut 20:11. Solomon later did the same with the Canaanites (1 Kgs 9:20-22; see also Judg 1:30, 33). The alternate reading might indicate torture inflicted on the defeated Ammonites (cp. note on 1 Chr 20:3). • and to work in the brick kilns: Literally and he made them pass through the brick kilns.

13:1 Absalom had a beautiful sister: Tamar was Absalom's full sister but Amnon's half sister (see 3:2-3). Absalom would later avenge Tamar as her nearest relative (13:23-29; cp. Gen 34; Num 35:19).

13:2 obsessed . . . ill: As the story reveals, Amnon's "love" (13:4) for Tamar was a sickly erotic obsession. • She was a virgin: Amnon's fixation deepened because Tamar was sexually untouched. • thought he could never have her: The law prohibited marriage between brother and sister (Lev 18:9, 11; 20:17; Deut 27:22). But Amnon did not want to marry Tamar; he only wanted to have sex with her.

13:3 crafty (literally wise): Jonadab's "wisdom" was akin to the serpent's shrewdness (Gen 3:1). • In the context of a royal court, the Hebrew term for friend is closer to "counselor" or "adviser." • Shimea: Hebrew Shimeah (also in 13:32), a variant spelling of Shimea; compare 1 Chr 2:13.

13:4 morning after morning: Amnon's obsession was all-consuming and ongoing.

13:6 my favorite dish: Or a couple of cakes; also in 13:8, 10.

13:12 wicked things: The Hebrew word nebalah ("outrage," "deplorable act") often describes sexual crimes such as rape and adultery (Gen 34:7; Deut 22:21; Judg 20:6, 10; Jer 29:23) that the perpetrator must pay for with his life. • in Israel: The addition of this phrase either indicates indignation that the crime happened among Israelites or characterizes the act as a violation of Israelite standards of sexual morality.

13:13 he will let you marry me: Tamar said this to gain time; Amnon knew that the law prohibited marriage between half siblings (see note on 13:2), and he refused to back off.

13:14 since he was stronger: Tamar resisted as much as she could.

13:15 That Amnon's feelings for Tamar so quickly turned to hate shows that his so-called "love" for her (13:4) was really only selfish lust.

than he had loved her. "Get out of here!" he snarled at her.

¹⁶"No, no!" Tamar cried. "Sending me away now is worse than what you've already done to me."

But Amnon wouldn't listen to her. ¹⁷He shouted for his servant and demanded, "Throw this woman out, and lock the door behind her!"

¹⁸So the servant put her out and locked the door behind her. She was wearing a long, beautiful robe, as was the custom in those days for the king's virgin daughters. ¹⁹But now Tamar tore her robe and put ashes on her head. And then, with her face in her hands, she went away crying.

²⁰Her brother Absalom saw her and asked, "Is it true that Amnon has been with you? Well, my sister, keep quiet for now, since he's your brother. Don't you worry about it." So Tamar lived as a desolate woman in her brother Absalom's house.

²¹When King David heard what had happened, he was very angry. ²²And though Absalom never spoke to Amnon about this, he hated Amnon deeply because of what he had done to his sister.

Absalom's Revenge on Amnon

²³Two years later, when Absalom's sheep were being sheared at Baal-hazor near Ephraim, Absalom invited all the king's sons to come to a feast. ²⁴He went to the king and said, "My sheep-shearers are now at work. Would the king and his servants please come to celebrate the occasion with me?"

²⁵The king replied, "No, my son. If we all came, we would be too much of a burden on you." Absalom pressed him, but the king would not come, though he gave Absalom his blessing.

²⁶"Well, then," Absalom said, "if you can't come, how about sending my brother Amnon with us?"

"Why Amnon?" the king asked. ²⁷But Absalom kept on pressing the king until he finally agreed to let all his sons attend, including Amnon. So Absalom prepared a feast fit for a king.

²⁸Absalom told his men, "Wait until Amnon gets drunk; then at my signal, kill him! Don't be afraid. I'm the one who has given the command. Take courage and do it!" ²⁹So at Absalom's signal they murdered Amnon. Then the other sons of the king jumped on their mules and fled.

³⁰As they were on the way back to Jerusalem, this report reached David: "Absalom has killed all the king's sons; not one is left alive!" ³¹The king got up, tore his robe, and threw himself on the ground. His advisers also tore their clothes in horror and sorrow.

³²But just then Jonadab, the son of David's brother Shimea, arrived and said, "No, don't believe that all the king's sons have been killed! It was only Amnon! Absalom has been plotting this ever since Amnon raped his sister Tamar. ³³No, my lord the king, your sons aren't all dead! It was only Amnon." ³⁴Meanwhile Absalom escaped.

Then the watchman on the Jerusalem wall saw a great crowd coming down the hill on the road from the west. He ran to tell the king, "I see a crowd of people coming from the Horez road along the side of the hill."

³⁵"Look!" Jonadab told the king. "There they are now! The king's sons are coming, just as I said."

³⁶They soon arrived, weeping and sobbing, and the king and all his servants wept bitterly with them. ³⁷And David mourned many days for his son Amnon.

13:16 worse than what you've already done: A virgin who had been raped became unmarriageable (13:20; see Deut 22:28-29).

13:18 a long, beautiful robe: Or a robe with sleeves, or an ornamented robe. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain; the same phrase is used to describe Joseph's robe in Gen 37:3.

13:19 Tamar tore her robe to symbolize the violation of her virginity and honor and to mourn the death of her future (13:16). • Ashes represented death; sitting amidst ashes or putting ashes on one's head were signs of mourning (Esth 4:1-3; Job 42:6; Dan 9:3; Jon 3:6).

13:20 keep quiet for now . . . Don't you worry about it: Absalom's words of comfort seem hollow in light of her disgrace and mourning; this toned-down response hid Absalom's rage (13:22) from the already distraught Tamar. • as a desolate woman: See note on 13:16.

13:21 King David . . . was very angry: Dead Sea Scrolls and Greek version add But he did not punish his son Amnon, because he loved him, for he was his firstborn. Another possibility is that as an adulterer himself (see 11:1-12:24), David considered himself in no position to punish his son's sexual sin. A third possibility is that David thought this was God's "eye for an eye" punishment for his own sexual indiscretion.

13:23 Baal-hazor should not be confused with the famous fortified city of Hazor located north of the Sea of Galilee. The generally accepted location of Baal-hazor is Jebel el-Asur, some fifteen miles north of Jerusalem. • a feast: Sheep shearing was a time for sharing bounty and blessing with others (see 1 Sam 25:2-8).

13:27 So Absalom prepared a feast fit for a king: As in Greek and Latin versions (compare also Dead Sea Scrolls); the Hebrew text lacks this sentence.

13:31 David tore his robe, as Tamar had done after being violated (13:19)—a sign of great distress or remorse (see also Gen 37:34).

13:34-39 Absalom, now a fugitive, sought refuge among his mother's family.

13:34 He ran to tell . . . along the side of the hill: As in Greek version; Hebrew lacks this sentence.

13:37 fled to his grandfather: See 3:3. • Geshur was in Aram, northeast of Israel's territory (see 15:8; Josh 13:13).

Absalom fled to his grandfather, Talmai son of Ammihud, the king of Geshur. ³⁸He stayed there in Geshur for three years. ³⁹And King David, now reconciled to Amnon's death, longed to be reunited with his son Absalom.

Absalom and David (14:1–19:43)

David Meets with Absalom

14 Joab realized how much the king longed to see Absalom. ²So he sent for a woman from Tekoa who had a reputation for great wisdom. He said to her, "Pretend you are in mourning; wear mourning clothes and don't put on lotions. Act like a woman who has been mourning for the dead for a long time. ³Then go to the king and tell him the story I am about to tell you." Then Joab told her what to say.

⁴When the woman from Tekoa approached the king, she bowed with her face to the ground in deep respect and cried out, "O king! Help me!"

⁵"What's the trouble?" the king asked.

"Alas, I am a widow!" she replied. "My husband is dead. ⁶My two sons had a fight out in the field. And since no one was there to stop it, one of them was killed. ⁷Now the rest of the family is demanding, 'Let us have your son. We will execute him for murdering his brother. He doesn't deserve to inherit his family's property.' They want to extinguish the only coal I have left, and my husband's name and family will disappear from the face of the earth."

⁸"Leave it to me," the king told her. "Go home, and I'll see to it that no one touches him."

⁹"Oh, thank you, my lord the king," the woman from Tekoa replied. "If you are criticized for helping me, let the blame fall on me and on my father's house, and let the king and his throne be innocent."

¹⁰"If anyone objects," the king said, "bring him to me. I can assure you he will never harm you again!"

¹¹Then she said, "Please swear to me by the LORD your God that you won't let anyone take vengeance against my son. I want no more bloodshed."

"As surely as the LORD lives," he replied, "not a hair on your son's head will be disturbed!"

¹²"Please allow me to ask one more thing of my lord the king," she said.

"Go ahead and speak," he responded.

¹³She replied, "Why don't you do as much for the people of God as you have promised to do for me? You have convicted yourself in making this decision, because you have refused to bring home your own banished son."

¹⁴All of us must die eventually. Our lives are like water spilled out on the ground, which cannot be gathered up again. But God does not just sweep life away; instead, he devises ways to bring us back when we have been separated from him.

¹⁵"I have come to plead with my lord the king because people have threatened me. I said to myself, 'Perhaps the king will listen to me ¹⁶and rescue us from those who would cut us off from the inheritance God has given us. ¹⁷Yes, my lord the king will give us peace of mind again.' I know that you are like an ¹⁸angel of God in discerning good from evil. May the LORD your God be with you."

¹⁸"I must know one thing," the king replied, "and tell me the truth."

"Yes, my lord the king," she responded.

¹⁹"Did Joab put you up to this?"

And the woman replied, "My lord the king, how can I deny it? Nobody can hide anything from you. Yes, Joab sent me and 13:39 And King David: Dead Sea Scrolls and Greek version read And the spirit of the king. • longed to be reunited with his son Absalom: Or no longer felt a need to go out after Absalom. David's grief over Amnon's death was evidently alleviated; any desire David might have had to execute Absalom had dissipated.

14:2 The woman with a reputation for great wisdom was summoned to carry out a delicate mission in the royal court (cp. 20:16). • don't put on lotions: Literally don't anoint yourself with oil.

14:9 If you are criticized: If David allowed a murder to go unavenged, he would be liable for not carrying out justice and would likely draw criticism.

14:11 As surely as the LORD lives: When the woman pressed David for a greater commitment of protection, David responded with this solemn oath (cp. 4:9; 12:5; 15:21; 1 Sam 20:3; 28:10; 29:6).

14:13 for the people of God: The woman argued that David was harming everyone in his kingdom by leaving Absalom in exile, perhaps because alienation in the royal family would be reproduced in the larger society or because David's obsession with Absalom would distract him from attending to more important matters (14:16).

14:14 God . . . devises ways: The woman encouraged David to be reconciled with Absalom as God does with his people. God did not remain estranged from David when he sinned; he forgave the repentant king.

14:16 The woman again addressed her specific situation. The king's concern for Absalom (see 13:39 and note) was keeping him from attending to matters of justice among his people. • cut us off: If her only remaining son were killed, the woman's family would lose ownership of its ancestral property (cp. Num 27:1-11). • the inheritance: Or the property; or the people.

14:17 you are like an angel of God: This flattering expression is not used for anyone else in the Bible but appears four times to describe David (see also 14:20; 19:27; 1 Sam 29:9). The woman was expressing confidence that David would act with God-given wisdom and justice.

told me what to say. ²⁰He did it to place the matter before you in a different light. But you are as wise as an angel of God, and you understand everything that happens among us!"

²¹So the king sent for Joab and told him, "All right, go and bring back the young man Absalom."

²²Joab bowed with his face to the ground in deep respect and said, "At last I know that I have gained your approval, my lord the king, for you have granted me this request!"

²³Then Joab went to Geshur and brought Absalom back to Jerusalem. ²⁴But the king gave this order: "Absalom may go to his own house, but he must never come into my presence." So Absalom did not see the king.

Absalom Reconciled to David

²⁵Now Absalom was praised as the most handsome man in all Israel. He was flawless from head to foot. ²⁶He cut his hair only once a year, and then only because it was so heavy. When he weighed it out, it came to five pounds! ²⁷He had three sons and one daughter. His daughter's name was Tamar, and she was very beautiful.

²⁸Absalom lived in Jerusalem for two years, but he never got to see the king. ²⁹Then Absalom sent for Joab to ask him to intercede for him, but Joab refused to come. Absalom sent for him a second time, but again Joab refused to come. ³⁰So Absalom said to his servants, "Go and set fire to Joab's barley field, the field next to mine." So they set his field on fire, as Absalom had commanded.

³¹Then Joab came to Absalom at his house and demanded, "Why did your servants set my field on fire?"

³²And Absalom replied, "Because I wanted you to ask the king why he brought me back from Geshur if he didn't intend to see me. I might as well have stayed there. Let me see the king; if he finds me guilty of anything, then let him kill me."

³³So Joab told the king what Absalom had said. Then at last David summoned Absalom, who came and bowed low before the king, and the king kissed him.

Absalom's Rebellion

15 After this, Absalom bought a chariot and horses, and he hired fifty bodyguards to run ahead of him. ²He got up early every morning and went out to the gate of the city. When people brought a case to the king for judgment, Absalom would ask where in Israel they were from, and they would tell him their tribe. ³Then Absalom would say, "You've really got a strong case here! It's too bad the king doesn't have anyone to hear it. ⁴I wish I were the judge. Then everyone could bring their cases to me for judgment, and I would give them justice!"

14:20 as wise as an angel of God: This wise woman (14:2) knew it was good policy to flatter a king rather than risk insulting him.

◀ Absalom & David (13:23–18:18).

David's conflict with his son Absalom caused both to flee at different times. After Absalom killed his brother Amnon (13:23–37), he fled to GESHUR and stayed with his grandfather (see 3:3). Later, when Absalom had returned and staged a coup (15:1–12), David fled to MAHANAIM (15:13–17:29) until the coup was defeated (18:1–18) and he returned to JERUSALEM for the remainder of his reign (19:15–40).

14:21 bring back . . . Absalom: It seems that David was not yet interested in full reconciliation with his son (14:24).

14:23 Geshur: See 13:37–38.

14:26 cut his hair only once a year: Absalom's hair, an aspect of his attractiveness, ended up being a deadly snare for him (see 18:9–15). • five pounds: Hebrew 200 shekels [2.3 kilograms] by the royal standard.

14:27 Absalom's three sons apparently died before he did (see 18:18).

• Absalom named his daughter Tamar after his sister, and she too was very beautiful (13:1).

14:29 Joab persuaded David to welcome Absalom back (14:21–22) but then backed off from assisting Absalom further; perhaps Joab wanted to avoid aiding a would-be usurper (15:1–12).

14:33 Absalom bowed low, assuming a posture of respect and deference to the king's majesty (see also 14:4, 22).

• and the king kissed him: The lack of conversation, hugging (cp. Luke 15:20), or weeping (cp. Gen 33:4; 45:2, 14) suggests that this was a formal meeting rather than an affectionate reunion.

15:1–19 Absalom revolted against David eleven years after Amnon violated Tamar (cp. 13:23, 38; 14:28; 15:7), approximately the twenty-fifth year of David's thirty-three-year reign in Jerusalem.

15:1 a chariot and horses, and . . . fifty bodyguards: These three items, distinct signs of kingship, were also the first items that Samuel said the king would take from the people (1 Sam 8:11). Another of David's sons, Adonijah, collected the same items when he coveted the throne (1 Kgs 1:5).

⁵When people tried to bow before him, Absalom wouldn't let them. Instead, he took them by the hand and kissed them. ⁶Absalom did this with everyone who came to the king for judgment, and so he stole the hearts of all the people of Israel.

⁷After four years, Absalom said to the king, "Let me go to Hebron to offer a sacrifice to the LORD and fulfill a vow I made to him. ⁸For while your servant was at Geshur in Aram, I promised to sacrifice to the LORD in Hebron if he would bring me back to Jerusalem."

⁹"All right," the king told him. "Go and fulfill your vow."

So Absalom went to Hebron. ¹⁰But while he was there, he sent secret messengers to all the tribes of Israel to stir up a rebellion against the king. "As soon as you hear the ram's horn," his message read, "you are to say, 'Absalom has been crowned king in Hebron.'"¹¹ He took 200 men from Jerusalem with him as guests, but they knew nothing of his intentions. ¹²While Absalom was offering the sacrifices, he sent for Ahithophel, one of David's counselors who lived in Giloh. Soon many others also joined Absalom, and the conspiracy gained momentum.

David Escapes from Jerusalem

¹³A messenger soon arrived in Jerusalem to tell David, "All Israel has joined Absalom in a conspiracy against you!"

¹⁴"Then we must flee at once, or it will be too late!" David urged his men. "Hurry! If we get out of the city before Absalom arrives, both we and the city of Jerusalem will be spared from disaster."

¹⁵"We are with you," his advisers replied. "Do what you think is best."

¹⁶So the king and all his household set out at once. He left no one behind except ten of his concubines to look after the palace. ¹⁷The king and all his people set out on foot, pausing at the last house ¹⁸to let all the king's men move past to lead the way. There were 600 men from Gath who had come with David, along with the king's bodyguard.

¹⁹Then the king turned and said to Ittai, a leader of the men from Gath, "Why are you coming with us? Go on back to King Absalom, for you are a guest in Israel, a foreigner in exile. ²⁰You arrived only recently, and should I force you today to wander with us? I don't even know where we will go. Go on back and take your kinsmen with you, and may the LORD show you his unfailing love and faithfulness."

²¹But Ittai said to the king, "I vow by the LORD and by your own life that I will go wherever my lord the king goes, no matter what happens—whether it means life or death."

²²David replied, "All right, come with us." So Ittai and all his men and their families went along.

²³Everyone cried loudly as the king and his followers passed by. They crossed the Kidron Valley and then went out toward the wilderness.

²⁴Zadok and all the Levites also came along, carrying the Ark of the Covenant of God. They set down the Ark of God, and Abiathar offered sacrifices until everyone had passed out of the city.

²⁵Then the king instructed Zadok to take the Ark of God back into the city. "If 15:5 To bow before . . . Absalom was, in effect, to honor him as king (see 14:33).

15:6 stole the hearts: Absalom's accessibility and false pretense of care for the people gained their loyalty.

15:7 After four years: As in Greek and Syriac versions; Hebrew reads forty years. The Hebrew text would put Absalom's uprising in David's last year as king and create many chronological difficulties with events that happened afterward (also see note on 15:1-19). The Greek and Syriac reading is much more likely. • fulfill a vow: Unlike the freewill offering of devotion and gratitude that a worshiper promised to God, this type of offering was to fulfill a promise to God (see Gen 28:20-22; Judg 11:30-31; 1 Sam 1:11). Absalom was probably lying (cp. 1 Sam 20:28-29).

15:8 Geshur in Aram: After killing Amnon, Absalom had sought refuge in the homeland of his mother (also see notes on 13:34-39; 13:37). • The perfect place for Absalom to turn his grassroots popularity into a full-fledged revolt against David was in Hebron (as in some Greek manuscripts; Hebrew lacks in Hebron), David's first capital.

15:12 Ahithophel was Bathsheba's grandfather (cp. 11:3; 23:34); years later, he might still have been angry over what David did to his granddaughter. • Giloh was located in the region of Hebron (Josh 15:51, 54).

15:15-16 Possibly David left ten of his concubines behind because he believed his exile would be short-lived. See 16:21-22.

15:18 600 men from Gath: This alliance went back to David's relationship with the Philistines in Saul's day (1 Sam 21:10-15; 27:1-12; 29:1-11). • the king's bodyguard: Hebrew the Kerethites and Pelethites. See note on 8:18.

15:19 Ittai, a Philistine from Gath, was associated with Gibeah in Benjamin (23:29; 1 Chr 11:31); the Philistines had established a garrison in Gibeah at the beginning of Saul's career (1 Sam 10:5; 13:3). • David was stepping aside for King Absalom, who had successfully swayed the loyalty of Israel.

15:20 and may the LORD show you his unfailing love and faithfulness: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads and may unfailing love and faithfulness go with you.

15:23 The Kidron Valley, east of Jerusalem, separated the City of David from the Mount of Olives.

15:24 Zadok was one of two priests who served David (8:17). He later anointed Solomon (1 Kgs 1:39) and became the high priest after Abiathar was deposed (1 Kgs 2:26-27). • Abiathar offered sacrifices: Or Abiathar went up.

the LORD sees fit," David said, "he will bring me back to see the Ark and the Tabernacle again. ²⁶But if he is through with me, then let him do what seems best to him."

²⁷The king also told Zadok the priest, "Look, here is my plan. You and Abiathar should return quietly to the city with your son Ahimaaz and Abiathar's son Jonathan. ²⁸I will stop at the shallows of the Jordan River and wait there for a report from you." ²⁹So Zadok and Abiathar took the Ark of God back to the city and stayed there.

³⁰David walked up the road to the Mount of Olives, weeping as he went. His head was covered and his feet were bare as a sign of mourning. And the people who were with him covered their heads and wept as they climbed the hill. ³¹When someone told David that his adviser Ahithophel was now backing Absalom, David prayed, "O LORD, let Ahithophel give Absalom foolish advice!"

³²When David reached the summit of the Mount of Olives where people worshiped God, Hushai the Arkite was waiting there for him. Hushai had torn his clothing and put dirt on his head as a sign of mourning. ³³But David told him, "If you go with me, you will only be a burden. ³⁴Return to Jerusalem and tell Absalom, 'I will now be your adviser, O king, just as I was your father's adviser in the past.' Then you can frustrate and counter Ahithophel's advice. ³⁵Zadok and Abiathar, the priests, will be there. Tell them about the plans being made in the Zadok was an important transitional figure in the history of Israel's priesthood. Since he seemingly appears out of nowhere in the narrative of 2 Samuel (8:17), some scholars suggest that he was not really born into a priestly family. However, there is no reason to doubt the biblical record that he was Aaron's descendant (1 Chr 6:1-15, 50-53). Zadok's descent is traced back to Eleazar, Aaron's eldest son (1 Chr 6:5-8; 18:16; 24:3; Ezr 7:2-5). Zadok served alongside Abiathar, a descendant of Eli. Zadok and Abiathar were priests of Israel under King David (8:17; 20:25).

When Absalom revolted against King David, both Zadok and Abiathar showed their loyalty to David by taking the Ark to him, fully prepared to share his exile (15:24-29). Instead, David sent them to Jerusalem as his spies.

Later, when David's son Adonijah tried to seize the aged David's throne with the support of Joab and Abiathar, Zadok wisely refrained from supporting him (1 Kgs 1:5-10). Abiathar, though, was banished (1 Kgs 2:26-27), fulfilling the prophecy that Eli's family would be removed from the priesthood (1 Sam 2:27-36) and replaced by "a faithful priest who will serve me and do what I desire. I will establish his family, and they will be priests to my anointed kings forever" (1 Sam 2:35).

The loyal Zadok fulfilled this prophecy and became the sole high priest under Solomon (1 Kgs 2:35). Zadok's descendants served as Israel's priests throughout the monarchy and beyond. Azariah, chief priest in Hezekiah's reign, was of Zadok's line (2 Chr 31:10). During the exile, Ezekiel's eschatological vision of the new Temple refers to Zadok's priestly line (Ezek 40:46; 43:19; 44:15; 48:11). When the Jews later came under Seleucid domination in the early 100s BC, the high priesthood, by then regarded as a political appointment, was taken away from Zadok's descendants. As a result of Ezekiel's prophecies, Jewish groups such as the Qumran community continued to await the restoration of Zadok to the high priesthood. The NT teaches that the office of the high priest now rests on Jesus Christ (Heb 9:11; 10:12-25).

idols to avoid having the items fall into an enemy's hands. The capture of a god could be interpreted by rebel elements to mean that the gods had abandoned the ruling dynasty. However, the Ark was not a mere idol or talisman (cp. 1 Sam 4:3-11; 5:6-6:9). It was the central object in the sanctuary and represented the presence of the Lord, the God of Israel (see Exod 40:34-35). David intentionally permitted the Ark to fall into Absalom's hands, trusting God's grace and promises (15:26; see 7:8-16) whether or not the Ark was with him. • and the Tabernacle:

Literally and his dwelling place.

15:27 Look: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads Are you a seer? or Do you see? • Hebrew lacks and Abiathar; cp. 15:29. • Ahimaaz and Jonathan supported David during Absalom's coup d'état by serving as his secret messengers (see 15:36; 17:17-22).

15:28 at the shallows of the Jordan River: Literally at the crossing points of the wilderness.

15:31 let Ahithophel give . . . foolish advice: David also sent a double-agent, Hushai, to confound Ahithophel's advice (15:32-37; 17:1-14).

15:32 At this point in Israel's history, people worshiped God at multiple altars across the land. The Tabernacle as it had existed from the time of Joshua and Samuel was gone and the Temple was yet to be built. • An Arkite was possibly a non-Israelite from the region south of Bethel (Josh 16:2).

15:34 While David was confident that God's providence was at work behind the scenes, he also took strategic action to further his own cause.

king's palace, ³⁶and they will send their sons Ahimaaz and Jonathan to tell me what is going on."

³⁷So David's friend Hushai returned to Jerusalem, getting there just as Absalom arrived.

David and Ziba

16 When David had gone a little beyond the summit of the Mount of Olives, Ziba, the servant of Mephibosheth, was waiting there for him. He had two donkeys loaded with 200 loaves of bread, 100 clusters of raisins, 100 bunches of summer fruit, and a wineskin full of wine.

²"What are these for?" the king asked Ziba.

Ziba replied, "The donkeys are for the king's people to ride on, and the bread and summer fruit are for the young men to eat. The wine is for those who become exhausted in the wilderness."

³"And where is Mephibosheth, Saul's grandson?" the king asked him.

"He stayed in Jerusalem," Ziba replied. "He said, 'Today I will get back the kingdom of my grandfather Saul.'"

⁴"In that case," the king told Ziba, "I give you everything Mephibosheth owns."

"I bow before you," Ziba replied. "May I always be pleasing to you, my lord the king."

Shimei Curses David

⁵As King David came to Bahurim, a man came out of the village cursing them. It was Shimei son of Gera, from the same clan as Saul's family. ⁶He threw stones at the king and the king's officers and all the mighty warriors who surrounded him. ⁷"Get out of here, you murderer, you scoundrel!" he shouted at David. ⁸"The LORD is paying you back for all the bloodshed in Saul's clan.

You stole his throne, and now the LORD has given it to your son Absalom. At last you will taste some of your own medicine, for you are a murderer!"

⁹"Why should this dead dog curse my lord the king?" Abishai son of Zeruiah demanded. "Let me go over and cut off his head!"

¹⁰"No!" the king said. "Who asked your opinion, you sons of Zeruiah! If the LORD has told him to curse me, who are you to stop him?"

¹¹Then David said to Abishai and to all his servants, "My own son is trying to kill me. Doesn't this relative of Saul have even more reason to do so? Leave him alone and let him curse, for the LORD has told him to do it. ¹²And perhaps the LORD will see that I am being wronged and will bless me because of these curses today." ¹³So David and his men continued down the road, and Shimei kept pace with them on a nearby hillside, cursing and throwing stones and dirt at David.

¹⁴The king and all who were with him grew weary along the way, so they rested when they reached the Jordan River.

Ahithophel Advises Absalom

¹⁵Meanwhile, Absalom and all the army of Israel arrived at Jerusalem, accompanied by Ahithophel. ¹⁶When David's friend Hushai the Arkite arrived, he went immediately to see Absalom. "Long live the king!" he exclaimed. "Long live the king!"

¹⁷"Is this the way you treat your friend David?" Absalom asked him. "Why aren't you with him?"

¹⁸"I'm here because I belong to the man who is chosen by the LORD and by all the men of Israel," Hushai replied. ¹⁹"And anyway, why shouldn't I serve you? Just as I was your father's adviser, now I will be your adviser!"

16:1 Ziba: See note on 9:11; see also 9:1-13; 19:24-30. • Mephibosheth is another name for Merib-baal (see notes on 4:4; 9:1-13). As Saul's grandson (16:3), he was a potential rival for the throne.

16:3-4 Ziba was lying to David for his own gain; Mephibosheth later set the record straight (19:24-30).

16:5 Bahurim was in the territory of Benjamin east of the Mount of Olives on the way to the Jordan River. It is likely that many people from Benjamin, Saul's tribe, harbored lingering resentment against David's rule. In the case of Shimei, his loyalty to Saul was even stronger because they were from the same clan in the tribe of Benjamin.

16:7-8 Shimei cursed David, holding him responsible for the violent death of Saul and his clan.

16:8 The LORD is paying you back:

Shimei interpreted Absalom's rebellion as the Lord's retribution. However, David was innocent (see notes on 1:4, 15-16).

16:9 Abishai was David's nephew (1 Chr 2:13-16) and evidently a member of his personal guard. He believed that no one should talk this way to the king and live to tell about it (cp. 19:21). David was slower to judge (cp. 1 Kgs 2:8-9).

16:10 If the LORD has told him to curse me: David felt it might have been punishment for past sins. • David was—contrary to Shimei's charges—reducing the violence that surrounded him.

Benjaminite. • even more reason: David understood why a supporter of Saul might hate him.

16:14 when they reached the Jordan River: As in Greek version (see also 17:16); Hebrew reads when they reached their destination.

16:16 Long live the king! Hushai's words were deliberately ambiguous. He was in fact an agent of the true king—David was truly "the man . . . chosen by the LORD" (16:18). Hushai avoided using the king's name, leading Absalom to believe that Hushai was loyal to him rather than to David.

²⁰Then Absalom turned to Ahithophel and asked him, "What should I do next?"

²¹Ahithophel told him, "Go and sleep with your father's concubines, for he has left them here to look after the palace. Then all Israel will know that you have insulted your father beyond hope of reconciliation, and they will throw their support to you." ²²So they set up a tent on the palace roof where everyone could see it, and Absalom went in and had sex with his father's concubines.

²³Absalom followed Ahithophel's advice, just as David had done. For every word Ahithophel spoke seemed as wise as though it had come directly from the mouth of God.

17 Now Ahithophel urged Absalom, "Let me choose 12,000 men to start out after David tonight. ²¹I will catch up with him while he is weary and discouraged. He and his troops will panic, and everyone will run away. Then I will kill only the king, ³and I will bring all the people back to you as a bride returns to her husband. After all, it is only one man's life that you seek. Then you will be at peace with all the people." ⁴This plan seemed good to Absalom and to all the elders of Israel.

Hushai Counters Ahithophel's Advice

⁵But then Absalom said, "Bring in Hushai the Arkite. Let's see what he thinks about this." ⁶When Hushai arrived, Absalom told him what Ahithophel had said. Then he asked, "What is your opinion? Should we follow Ahithophel's advice? If not, what do you suggest?"

Abishai was a powerful and successful warrior and a leader in David's army. He was David's nephew, a son of David's sister Zeruiah and the brother of Joab and Asahel (1 Chr 2:16).

Abishai was completely devoted to David and quick to suggest violence against David's enemies. When God allowed David and Abishai to penetrate Saul's war camp while the troops were sleeping (1 Sam 26:1-25), Abishai wanted to assassinate Saul, but David restrained him. Later, when the revolt of Absalom required that David leave Jerusalem, the king was cursed by Shimei, a member of Saul's family (16:5-14). Abishai wanted to execute Shimei (16:5-12; 19:18-23), but David twice rejected that proposal. The vengeful spirit of Abishai and his brothers also came out in the earlier conflict: Saul's general, Abner, was forced to kill Asahel, so Joab and Abishai took revenge by killing Abner (3:22-30).

Abishai was brave and very capable. He once killed 300 soldiers in a single battle. For this, he was made leader of the Thirty, a group of especially skillful warriors surpassed only by the Three (1 Chr 11:20-21). Abishai won a major victory over the Edomites (1 Chr 18:12-13). In a battle with the Philistines, Abishai saved David's life by killing the giant Ishbi-benob (21:15-17). Abishai also led the army, and when it divided for strategic purposes, Abishai led one group while his brother Joab led the other (10:1-19; 18:1-18; 1 Chr 19:1-19). Their military efforts were usually very successful.

Though Joab's actions eventually led to his death, we nowhere read about the death of Abishai, a violently impulsive military leader who was one of David's bravest warriors (23:18-19; 1 Chr 11:20-21).

ambiguous language continues. Hushai phrased his profession of loyalty as a question rather than as a commitment. His intent, lost on Absalom, was to serve David while fooling Absalom into thinking that he had changed sides. Similarly, just as I was your father's adviser, now I will be your adviser! is literally, as I served before your father, so I will [serve your father] before you.

16:21 Go and sleep with your father's concubines: A usurper took a predecessor's harem to assert or strengthen his claim to the throne (see 3:7). Absalom's action was in violation of Deut 22:30.

16:22 Absalom intended to show the people that he had assumed the throne with its royal prerogatives. His shameful act echoed David's adultery with Bathsheba, which also began on that roof (11:2-4); the episode fulfilled Nathan's prophecy (12:11-12).

16:23 from the mouth of God: Cp. 17:14.

17:1-14 Ahithophel proposed a quick surprise strike against David with a small force (12,000 men, 17:1), which would give David no time to organize and fight back. Then David's double-agent Hushai suggested taking more time to mobilize the entire army of Is- rael (17:11). This plan would supposedly give them an insurmountable numerical advantage and prevent David from engaging in guerilla tactics. Because the Lord was working against Absalom, he rejected Ahithophel's good strategy and accepted Hushai's bad advice (17:14; cp. 1 Kgs 12:1-15).

17:3 as a bride . . . you seek: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads like the return of all is the man whom you seek. The Hebrew text has the loyalty of all the people depend on the death of David. The Greek OT pictures a young wife who returns to her husband after a short quarrel.

enraged as a mother bear who has been robbed of her cubs. And remember that your father is an experienced man of war. He won't be spending the night among the troops. ⁹He has probably already hidden in some pit or cave. And when he comes out and attacks and a few of your men fall, there will be panic among your troops, and the word will spread that Absalom's men are being slaughtered. ¹⁰Then even the bravest soldiers, though they have the heart of a lion, will be paralyzed with fear. For all Israel knows what a mighty warrior your father is and how courageous his men are.

¹¹"I recommend that you mobilize the entire army of Israel, bringing them from as far away as Dan in the north and Beersheba in the south. That way you will have an army as numerous as the sand on the seashore. And I advise that you personally lead the troops. ¹²When we find David, we'll fall on him like dew that falls on the ground. Then neither he nor any of his men will be left alive. ¹³And if David were to escape into some town, you will have all Israel there at your command. Then we can take ropes and drag the walls of the town into the nearest valley until every stone is torn down."

¹⁴Then Absalom and all the men of Israel said, "Hushai's advice is better than Ahithophel's." For the LORD had determined to defeat the counsel of Ahithophel, which really was the better plan, so that he could bring disaster on Absalom!

¹⁵Hushai told Zadok and Abiathar, the priests, what Ahithophel had said to Absalom and the elders of Israel and what he himself had advised instead. ¹⁶"Quick!" he told them. "Find David and urge him not to stay at the shallows of the Jordan River tonight. He must go across at once into the wilderness beyond. Otherwise he will die and his entire army with him."

¹⁷Jonathan and Ahimaaz had been staying at En-rogel so as not to be seen entering and leaving the city. Arrangements had been made for a servant girl to bring them the message they were to take to King David. ¹⁸But a boy spotted them at En-rogel, and he told Absalom about it. So they quickly escaped to Bahurim, where a man hid them down inside a well in his courtyard. ¹⁹The man's wife put a cloth over the top of the well and scattered grain on it to dry in the sun; so no one suspected they were there.

²⁰When Absalom's men arrived, they asked her, "Have you seen Ahimaaz and Jonathan?"

The woman replied, "They were here, but they crossed over the brook." Absalom's men looked for them without success and returned to Jerusalem.

²¹Then the two men crawled out of the well and hurried on to King David. "Quick!" they told him, "cross the Jordan tonight!" And they told him how Ahithophel had advised that he be captured and killed. ²²So David and all the people with him went across the Jordan River during the night, and they were all on the other bank before dawn.

²³When Ahithophel realized that his advice had not been followed, he saddled his donkey, went to his hometown, set his affairs in order, and hanged himself. He died there and was buried in the family tomb.

²⁷When David arrived at Mahanaim, he was warmly greeted by Shobi son of Nahash, 17:11 The nationwide military conscription from . . . Dan to Beersheba (the northern and southern limits of Israel) was intended to produce an overwhelmingly superior fighting force.

17:14 Ahithophel's strategy was actually better. However, Hushai had the psychological and rhetorical advantage as well as the Lord's purpose, so he won Absalom's favor. • the LORD had determined to defeat: Despite early advances, Absalom's power grab was doomed from the start.

17:16 at the shallows of the Jordan River: Literally at the crossing points of the wilderness.

17:17 Jonathan and Ahimaaz: See 15:27, 36. • The location of En-rogel is uncertain, but it cannot have been too far east of Jerusalem.

17:18-20 Bahurim was the home of Shimei, the pro-Saul Benjaminite (16:5; 19:16). Shimei's cursing of David at Bahurim reflected David's decline, while the escape of Ahimaaz and Jonathan pictured the hope of David's resurgence.

17:23 hanged himself: Ahithophel foresaw David's victory and Absalom's undoing, and he preferred to die by his own hand rather than by David's.

17:24 Mahanaim, once the capital city of Ishbosheth and Abner (2:8, 12, 29), became David's base of operations.

But since Abigail is called the daughter of Nahash, she and Zeruiah were apparently David's half sisters (Nahash was probably their father; his widow would then have married Jesse and given birth to David and his brothers).

who came from Rabbah of the Ammonites, and by Makir son of Ammiel from Lo-debar, and by Barzillai of Gilead from Rogelim. ²⁸They brought sleeping mats, cooking pots, serving bowls, wheat and barley, flour and roasted grain, beans, lentils, ²⁹honey, butter, sheep, goats, and cheese for David and those who were with him. For they said, "You must all be very hungry and tired and thirsty after your long march through the wilderness."

Absalom's Defeat and Death

18 David now mustered the men who were with him and appointed generals and captains to lead them. ²He sent the troops out in three groups, placing one group under Joab, one under Joab's brother Abishai son of Zeruiah, and one under Ittai, the man from Gath. The king told his troops, "I am going out with you."

³But his men objected strongly. "You must not go," they urged. "If we have to turn and run—and even if half of us die—it will make no difference to Absalom's troops; they will be looking only for you. You are worth 10,000 of us, and it is better that you stay here in the town and send help if we need it."

⁵And the king gave this command to Joab, Abishai, and Ittai: "For my sake, deal gently with young Absalom." And all the troops heard the king give this order to his commanders.

⁶So the battle began in the forest of Ephraim, ⁷and the Israelite troops were beaten back by David's men. There was a great slaughter that day, and 20,000 men laid down their lives. ⁸The battle raged all across the countryside, and more men died because of the forest than were killed by the sword.

⁹During the battle, Absalom happened to come upon some of David's men. He tried to escape on his mule, but as he rode beneath the thick branches of a great tree, his hair got caught in the tree. His mule kept going and left him dangling in the air. ¹⁰One of David's men saw what had happened and told Joab, "I saw Absalom dangling from a great tree."

¹¹"What?" Joab demanded. "You saw him there and didn't kill him? I would have rewarded you with ten pieces of silver and a hero's belt!"

¹²"I would not kill the king's son for even a thousand pieces of silver," the man replied to Joab. "We all heard the king say to you and Abishai and Ittai, 'For my sake, please spare young Absalom.' ¹³And if I had betrayed the king by killing his son—and the king would certainly find out who did it—you yourself would be the first to abandon me."

¹⁴"Enough of this nonsense," Joab said. Then he took three daggers and plunged them into Absalom's heart as he dangled, still alive, in the great tree. ¹⁵Ten of Joab's young armor bearers then surrounded Absalom and killed him.

¹⁶Then Joab blew the ram's horn, and his men returned from chasing the army of Israel. ¹⁷They threw Absalom's body into a deep pit in the forest and piled a great heap messengers after the death of Nahash (ch 10; see note on 10:1-5). • Makir was Mephibosheth's host before David summoned him (9:4-5). • Barzillai of Gilead was probably not the same as Barzillai from Meholah (21:8).

18:1 appointed generals and captains: Literally appointed commanders of thousands and commanders of hundreds.

18:3 You are worth 10,000 of us: As in two Hebrew manuscripts and some Greek and Latin manuscripts; most Hebrew manuscripts read Now there are 10,000 like us. Although David's men flattered him, their insistence that he stay behind might actually suggest David's advancing frailty (see 21:15-17).

18:5 Joab violated David's order to deal gently with young Absalom (18:11-15). This was the second time Joab killed someone against David's wishes (see 3:22-37).

18:6 The forest of Ephraim was an area east of the Jordan settled by the tribe of Ephraim.

18:8 more men died because of the forest: The topographical conditions of the forest apparently took away the numerical advantage of Absalom's forces.

18:9 Absalom, who took such pride in his hair (literally his head; 14:25-26), died because of it. He who had built "a monument to himself" (18:18) was then thrown into a pit after his death (18:17) and denied the dignity of a proper burial. These ironies highlight the difference between Absalom's aspirations and his destiny.

18:11 ten pieces of silver: Hebrew 10 [shekels] of silver, about 4 ounces or 114 grams in weight. • Perhaps a hero's belt was a sword belt that decorated a soldier for bravery and courage in battle (cp. 1 Sam 18:4).

18:12 a thousand pieces of silver: Hebrew 1,000 [shekels] of silver, about 25 pounds or 11.4 kilograms in weight.

18:14 plunged them into Absalom's heart: Earlier, Joab had played the role of reconciler between David and Absalom (ch 14). It is possible Joab believed that allowing Absalom to live would only invite ongoing trouble for David and for himself. (Absalom had appointed Amasa, Joab's first cousin, to fill Joab's position as commander of Israel's army; see 17:25.)

18:15 surrounded . . . and killed him: Perhaps Joab had his armor bearers finish the job so that he could make the case to David that he himself had not killed Absalom.

18:17 all Israel fled to their homes: Absalom's supporters (17:11) knew their lives were in danger (cp. 19:8). They had backed a usurper whose coup d'état had been thwarted.

of stones over it. And all Israel fled to their homes.

¹⁸During his lifetime, Absalom had built a monument to himself in the King's Valley, for he said, "I have no son to carry on my name." He named the monument after himself, and it is known as Absalom's Monument to this day.

David Mourns Absalom's Death

¹⁹Then Zadok's son Ahimaaz said, "Let me run to the king with the good news that the LORD has rescued him from his enemies."

²⁰"No," Joab told him, "it wouldn't be good news to the king that his son is dead. You can be my messenger another time, but not today."

²¹Then Joab said to a man from Ethiopia, "Go tell the king what you have seen." The man bowed and ran off.

²²But Ahimaaz continued to plead with Joab, "Whatever happens, please let me go, too."

"Why should you go, my son?" Joab replied. "There will be no reward for your news."

²³"Yes, but let me go anyway," he begged.

Joab finally said, "All right, go ahead." So Ahimaaz took the less demanding route by way of the plain and ran to Mahanaim ahead of the Ethiopian.

²⁴While David was sitting between the inner and outer gates of the town, the watchman climbed to the roof of the gateway by the wall. As he looked, he saw a lone man running toward them. ²⁵He shouted the news down to David, and the king replied, "If he is alone, he has news."

As the messenger came closer, ²⁶the watchman saw another man running toward them. He shouted down, "Here comes another one!"

The king replied, "He also will have news."

²⁷"The first man runs like Ahimaaz son of Zadok," the watchman said.

"He is a good man and comes with good news," the king replied.

²⁸Then Ahimaaz cried out to the king,

"Everything is all right!" He bowed before the king with his face to the ground and said, "Praise to the LORD your God, who has handed over the rebels who dared to stand against my lord the king."

²⁹"What about young Absalom?" the king demanded. "Is he all right?"

Ahimaaz replied, "When Joab told me to come, there was a lot of commotion. But I didn't know what was happening."

³⁰"Wait here," the king told him. So Ahimaaz stepped aside.

³¹Then the man from Ethiopia arrived and said, "I have good news for my lord the king. Today the LORD has rescued you from all those who rebelled against you."

³²"What about young Absalom?" the king demanded. "Is he all right?"

And the Ethiopian replied, "May all of your enemies, my lord the king, both now and in the future, share the fate of that young man!"

³³The king was overcome with emotion. He went up to the room over the gateway and burst into tears. And as he went, he cried, "O my son Absalom! My son, my son Absalom! If only I had died instead of you! O Absalom, my son, my son."

Joab Rebukes the King

19 Word soon reached Joab that the king was weeping and mourning for Absalom. ²As all the people heard of the king's deep grief for his son, the joy of that day's victory was turned into deep sadness. ³They crept back into the town that day as though they were ashamed and had deserted in battle. ⁴The king covered his face with his hands and kept on crying, "O my son Absalom! O Absalom, my son, my son!"

⁵Then Joab went to the king's room and said to him, "We saved your life today and the lives of your sons, your daughters, and your wives and concubines. Yet you act like this, making us feel ashamed of ourselves. ⁶You seem to love those who hate you and hate those who love you. You have made

2 Sam 15:30; 18:33

18:18 I have no son: See note on 14:27. In the absence of a lineage, Absalom hoped a monument would preserve his name and memory. • to this day: The narrator was probably writing during Solomon's reign; the monument's location is now unknown.

18:19 Zadok: See note on 15:24.

18:21 a man from Ethiopia (Hebrew from Cush; similarly in 18:23, 31, 32): Joab thought it would be better to send a foreigner to tell the king of Absalom's death. If David overreacted, the loss of a foreigner was not as critical as the loss of a priest's son.

18:25 If he is alone, he has news: A solitary runner was usually a courier.

18:28-29 Everything is all right! (Hebrew shalom): David then asked, "Is it shalom with the young Ab-shalom?" (What about young Absalom? . . . Is he all right?). Even though Absalom was David's rival, he was also David's son. David was more concerned about his son's fate than the well-being of his fighting servants (19:5-6).

18:33 David was not afraid to show his emotions openly, whether engulfed by rapturous joy (6:14-19) or crushed by sadness. His feelings for Absalom were real, not theatrical. • Verse 18:33 is numbered 19:1 in the Hebrew text.

19:1-43 Verses 19:1-43 are numbered 19:2-44 in the Hebrew text.

19:5-7 These verses provide the only recorded instance of Joab openly rebuking the king (cp. 24:3).

it clear today that your commanders and troops mean nothing to you. It seems that if Absalom had lived and all of us had died, you would be pleased. ⁷Now go out there and congratulate your troops, for I swear by the LORD that if you don't go out, not a single one of them will remain here tonight. Then you will be worse off than ever before."

⁸So the king went out and took his seat at the town gate, and as the news spread throughout the town that he was there, everyone went to him.

David Returns to Jerusalem

Meanwhile, the Israelites who had supported Absalom fled to their homes. ⁹And throughout all the tribes of Israel there was much discussion and argument going on. The people were saying, "The king rescued us from our enemies and saved us from the Philistines, but Absalom chased him out of the country. ¹⁰Now Absalom, whom we anointed to rule over us, is dead. Why not ask David to come back and be our king again?"

¹¹Then King David sent Zadok and Abiathar, the priests, to say to the elders of Judah, "Why are you the last ones to welcome back the king into his palace? For I have heard that all Israel is ready. ¹²You are my relatives, my own tribe, my own flesh and blood! So why are you the last ones to welcome back the king?" ¹³And David told them to tell Amasa, "Since you are my own flesh and blood, like Joab, may God strike me and even kill me if I do not appoint you as commander of my army in his place."

¹⁴Then Amasa convinced all the men of Judah, and they responded unanimously. They sent word to the king, "Return to us, and bring back all who are with you."

¹⁵So the king started back to Jerusalem. And when he arrived at the Jordan River, the people of Judah came to Gilgal to meet him

Ps 60:TITLE

Joab was David's nephew, son of David's sister Zeruiah (1 Chr 2:16); his brothers were Abishai and Asahel. Joab became commander of David's armies because of his bravery and military skill (2:18; 8:16; 11:1; 1 Chr 18:15). As the first to attack the Jebusite city of Jerusalem, he was awarded the commander's position (1 Chr 11:4-9). Joab also suppressed a rebellion among the Arameans and Ammonites (10:1-19; 1 Chr 19:8-15) and won many key battles for David against the northern army of Israel under Abner's impressive command (2:12-32).

Joab often acted to promote what he perceived were David's interests. For example, he colluded with David in the death of Uriah the Hittite to cover up the king's adultery with Bathsheba (11:1-27). He persuaded David to allow Absalom's return to court (14:1-33), and he tried to talk David out of taking a census that provoked God's anger (24:1-9; 1 Chr 21:1-6).

Though he was always loyal to David, Joab sometimes acted in his own interest, and sometimes he disregarded the king's orders. When Abner killed Joab's brother Asahel (2:23), Joab killed Abner in revenge (3:26-30), despite Abner's new loyalty to David (3:12-19). Joab probably saw him as a rival. Later, Joab killed his own cousin Amasa (20:8-10), who commanded Absalom's army (17:25), because David had appointed Amasa commander in Joab's place (19:13; 20:4). Joab also killed Absalom against David's direct order (18:5, 10-17). He then rebuked David for grieving Absalom's death rather than congratulating the army (19:5-7). Joab was ruthless, and he regained the most powerful position in David's army (20:23; 24:2; 1 Kgs 1:19).

Joab sealed his fate by supporting Adonijah's bid for David's throne (1 Kgs 1:5-7). David's deathbed instructions to Solomon included having Joab killed because of his murders of Abner (3:30) and Amasa (20:8-10). When Solomon became king, he sent Benaiah to kill Joab even as he clung to the horns of the altar (1 Kgs 2:28-34). Joab met the same fate that he dealt to others throughout his life, and his executioner replaced him as commander of Israel's armies (1 Kgs 2:35).

19:9-10 The argument among the tribes of Israel (possibly referring only to the northern tribes) resulted in the consensus that they should ask David to come back, perhaps instead of going back to the semiautonomy of the era of the judges (cp. 20:1).

19:11-12 When David realized that the northern tribes would welcome him

(19:9-10), he sent emissaries to goad Judah, his own tribesmen, into welcoming him as well. See also note on 19:41-43.

19:13 commander . . . in his place: Amasa's appointment would be short-lived (20:7-10).

19:14 Amasa: Or David; Hebrew reads he.

19:15-23 On his return to Jerusalem, David showed mercy to Shimei, the pro-Saul northerner who had cursed David when he fled from Jerusalem (see 16:5-14), but Shimei's action did not go unpunished (1 Kgs 2:8, 36-46).

19:15 Gilgal was an important city in the days of Samuel and Saul (see note on 19:40; 1 Sam 7:16; 11:15).

and escort him across the river. ¹⁶Shimei son of Gera, the man from Bahurim in Benjamin, hurried across with the men of Judah to welcome King David. ¹⁷A thousand other men from the tribe of Benjamin were with him, including Ziba, the chief servant of the house of Saul, and Ziba's fifteen sons and twenty servants. They rushed down to the Jordan to meet the king. ¹⁸They crossed the shallows of the Jordan to bring the king's household across the river, helping him in every way they could.

As the king was about to cross the river, Shimei fell down before him. ¹⁹"My lord the king, please forgive me," he pleaded. "Forget the terrible thing your servant did when you left Jerusalem. May the king put it out of his mind. ²⁰I know how much I sinned. That is why I have come here today, the very first person in all Israel to greet my lord the king."

²¹Then Abishai son of Zeruiah said, "Shimei should die, for he cursed the LORD's anointed king!"

²²"Who asked your opinion, you sons of Zeruiah!" David exclaimed. "Why have you become my adversary today? This is not a day for execution, for today I am once again the king of Israel!" ²³Then, turning to Shimei, David vowed, "Your life will be spared."

²⁴Now Mephibosheth, Saul's grandson, came down from Jerusalem to meet the king. He had not cared for his feet, trimmed his beard, or washed his clothes since the day the king left Jerusalem. ²⁵"Why didn't you come with me, Mephibosheth?" the king asked him.

²⁶Mephibosheth replied, "My lord the king, my servant Ziba deceived me. I told him, 'Saddle my donkey so I can go with the king.' For as you know I am crippled. ²⁷Ziba has slandered me by saying that I refused to come. But I know that my lord the king is like an angel of God, so do what you think is best. ²⁸All my relatives and I could expect only death from you, my lord, but instead you have honored me by allowing me to eat at your own table! What more can I ask?"

²⁹"You've said enough," David replied. "I've decided that you and Ziba will divide your land equally between you."

³⁰"Give him all of it," Mephibosheth said. "I am content just to have you safely back again, my lord the king!"

³¹Barzillai of Gilead had come down from Rogelim to escort the king across the Jordan. ³²He was very old—eighty years of age—and very wealthy. He was the one who had provided food for the king during his stay in Mahanaim. ³³"Come across with me and live in Jerusalem," the king said to Barzillai. "I will take care of you there."

³⁴"No," he replied, "I am far too old to go with the king to Jerusalem. ³⁵I am eighty years old today, and I can no longer enjoy anything. Food and wine are no longer tasty, and I cannot hear the singers as they sing. I would only be a burden to my lord the king. ³⁶Just to go across the Jordan River with the king is all the honor I need! ³⁷Then let me return again to die in my own town, where my father and mother are buried. But here is your servant, my son Kimham. Let him go with my lord the king and receive whatever you want to give him."

³⁸"Good," the king agreed. "Kimham will go with me, and I will help him in any way

19:17 Ziba: See 16:1-4.

19:20 I know how much I sinned: Shimei's repentance might have been genuine, or he might simply have been backpedaling in a desperate attempt to save his life. David's concern for Absalom's safety had shown that David was not a self-promoting, bloodthirsty throne-stealer, as Shimei had thought; and Absalom had not replaced him (16:8), as Shimei had charged. • in all Israel (literally in all the house of Joseph): Just as Jacob's name could stand for all Israel (e.g., Num 24:19; Isa 10:20), Joseph's name could stand for all the northern tribes (e.g., notes on Amos 5:6; Zech 10:6).

19:21-22 Cp 16:9-12. • Abishai: See note on 16:9. • you sons of Zeruiah: See notes on 2:18; 17:25. While it was Abishai who consistently wanted to kill those hostile to David (cp. 16:9; 1 Sam 26:8), David also expressed his frustration with Joab, Abishai's brother (see 3:28-29, 39; 19:13; 1 Kgs 2:5-6). • my adversary: Or my prosecutor.

19:23 David's oath of protection was not binding on David's heir, Solomon, who later ordered Shimei's execution for far less serious crimes (1 Kgs 2:36-46).

19:24-30 See 16:1-4.

19:24 Mephibosheth is another name for Merib-baal (see note on 4:4). Mephibosheth's inattention to grooming throughout David's absence from Jerusalem was an act of mourning and that proved his loyalty to David. If Mephibosheth had designs on the throne (16:3), he would not have retained such an unkempt appearance.

19:26 Saddle my donkey: As in Greek, Syriac, and Latin versions; Hebrew reads

I will saddle a donkey for myself.

19:27-28 like an angel of God: See note on 14:17. • I could expect only death. . . . What more can I ask? If Mephibosheth had wanted to betray David, it would have been a profound show of ingratitude for all that David had done for him.

19:30 Mephibosheth's disinterest in claiming even half of his property showed conclusively that his happiness over David's return was genuine.

19:31-40 Because he was very old and frail, Barzillai declined David's invitation to the royal court in Jerusalem as reward for his assistance. David took Barzillai's son Kimham instead (see also 1 Kgs 2:7).

19:31 Gilead was part of Manasseh's territory on the east side of the Jordan (Josh 17:5).

you would like. And I will do for you anything you want.”³⁹ So all the people crossed the Jordan with the king. After David had blessed Barzillai and kissed him, Barzillai returned to his own home.

⁴⁰ The king then crossed over to Gilgal, taking Kimham with him. All the troops of Judah and half the troops of Israel escorted the king on his way.

⁴¹ But all the men of Israel complained to the king, “The men of Judah stole the king and didn’t give us the honor of helping take you, your household, and all your men across the Jordan.”

⁴² The men of Judah replied, “The king is one of our own kinsmen. Why should this make you angry? We haven’t eaten any of the king’s food or received any special favors!”

⁴³ “But there are ten tribes in Israel,” the others replied. “So we have ten times as much right to the king as you do. What right do you have to treat us with such contempt? Weren’t we the first to speak of bringing him back to be our king again?” The argument continued back and forth, and the men of Judah spoke even more harshly than the men of Israel.

Sheba’s Rebellion (20:1-22)

20 There happened to be a troublemaker there named Sheba son of Bicri, a man from the tribe of Benjamin. Sheba blew a ram’s horn and began to chant:

“Down with the dynasty of David!

We have no interest in the son of Jesse.
Come on, you men of Israel, back to your homes!”

² So all the men of Israel deserted David and followed Sheba son of Bicri. But the men of Judah stayed with their king and escorted him from the Jordan River to Jerusalem.

³ When David came to his palace in Jerusalem, he took the ten concubines he had left to look after the palace and placed them in seclusion. Their needs were provided for, but he no longer slept with them. So each of them lived like a widow until she died.

⁴ Then the king told Amasa, “Mobilize the army of Judah within three days, and report back at that time.” ⁵ So Amasa went out to notify Judah, but it took him longer than the time he had been given.

⁶ Then David said to Abishai, “Sheba son of Bicri is going to hurt us more than Absalom did. Quick, take my troops and chase after him before he gets into a fortified town where we can’t reach him.”

19:39 kissed him: This was a genuine and affectionate kiss, in contrast with David’s cold kiss for Absalom (14:33) and Absalom’s calculating one for the people (15:5).

19:40 Gilgal, a natural stop along David’s westward route, was also a politically significant location: It was where the people had proclaimed Saul king (1 Sam 11:15) and Samuel later announced the end of Saul’s reign (1 Sam 13:13-15). David’s kingship now had a new beginning at Gilgal.

19:41-43 This dispute, prompted by David’s favoring his own tribe of Judah, reflects the roots of the division that eventually split Judah and Israel into separate nations (1 Kgs 11:31; 12:16, 20). • Weren’t we the first: See 19:11-12.

20:1 Down with the dynasty of David! By the same rallying cry, the northern Israelites later dissociated themselves from Solomon (1 Kgs 12:16). Sheba’s failed revolt foreshadowed the ultimate failure of the northern kingdom, which was founded on a similar revolt by Jeroboam (1 Kgs 12).

20:3 The fate of the ten concubines (15:16) whom Absalom had publicly violated (16:21-22) was like Michal’s (see 6:23 and note).

20:4-5 The king had installed Amasa in Joab’s place as commander of the armies (19:13-14). David apparently expected from Amasa the same efficiency and effectiveness as Joab had provided.

20:7 So Abishai and Joab: Literally So

Joab’s men. • the king’s bodyguard: Hebrew the Kerethites and Pelethites; also in 20:23; see note on 8:18.

20:8 As he stepped forward . . . sheath: Literally As he stepped forward, it fell out.

20:9 to kiss him: This affectionate greeting was not always genuine (cp. 14:33).

20:10 Amasa . . . died: For the second time, Joab killed a commander of the opposing army by treachery (the first was Abner, 3:26-27). Twice, David tried to merge feuding parties by absorbing the military leader of the opposing side (see 3:6-13; 17:25; 19:13); twice Joab scuttled David’s plans by treacherously murdering the rival commander (see also 3:22-30).

road into a field and threw a cloak over him. ¹³With Amasa's body out of the way, everyone went on with Joab to capture Sheba son of Bicri.

¹⁴Meanwhile, Sheba traveled through all the tribes of Israel and eventually came to the town of Abel-beth-maacah. All the members of his own clan, the Bicrites, assembled for battle and followed him into the town. ¹⁵When Joab's forces arrived, they attacked Abel-beth-maacah. They built a siege ramp against the town's fortifications and began battering down the wall. ¹⁶But a wise woman in the town called out to Joab, "Listen to me, Joab. Come over here so I can talk to you." ¹⁷As he approached, the woman asked, "Are you Joab?"

"I am," he replied.

So she said, "Listen carefully to your servant."

"I'm listening," he said.

¹⁸Then she continued, "There used to be a saying, 'If you want to settle an argument, ask advice at the town of Abel.' ¹⁹I am one who is peace loving and faithful in Israel. But you are destroying an important town in Israel. Why do you want to devour what belongs to the LORD?"

²⁰And Joab replied, "Believe me, I don't want to devour or destroy your town! ²¹That's not my purpose. All I want is a man named Sheba son of Bicri from the hill country of Ephraim, who has revolted against King David. If you hand over this one man to me, I will leave the town in peace."

"All right," the woman replied, "we will throw his head over the wall to you." ²²Then the woman went to all the people with her wise advice, and they cut off Sheba's head and threw it out to Joab. So he blew the ram's horn and called his troops back from the attack. They all returned to their homes, and Joab returned to the king at Jerusalem.

David's Officers (20:23-26)

²³Now Joab was the commander of the army of Israel. Benaiah son of Jehoiada was captain of the king's bodyguard. ²⁴Adoniram was in charge of forced labor. Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was the royal historian. ²⁵Sheva was the court secretary. Zadok and Abiathar were the priests. ²⁶And Ira, a descendant of Jair, was David's personal priest.

David Avenges the Gibeonites

20:14 Abel-beth-maacah was in the northernmost region of Israelite territory, four miles west of the city of Dan. • All . . . the Bicrites: As in Greek and Latin versions; Hebrew reads All the Berites.

20:15 A siege ramp was often an earthen ramp built up against the wall, a well-known tactic for breaching a walled city's defenses (see also 2 Kgs 25:1; Jer 52:4).

20:16 wise woman: Cp. 14:2.

20:18-19 The woman told a saying to convince Joab not to slaughter an entire city, especially such a noble city as Abel (a shortened form of Abel-beth-maacah, 20:15), just to capture one criminal. • an important town in Israel (literally a town that is a mother in Israel): It was common to refer to outlying villages around a larger city as its "daughters."

20:23-26 This list of David's leaders and the similar list in 8:15-18 bracket chs 9–20 in David's life. Even after the major crises described in these 12 chapters, David's monarchy did not fall apart; he still had an intact administration.

20:23 In 8:16, Joab was called "commander of the army," but here he is commander of the army of Israel.

David's wider control of Israel was established when the northern secessionist movements were defeated.

20:24 Adoniram: As in Greek version (see also 1 Kgs 4:6; 5:14); Hebrew reads Adoram. The addition of the officer in charge of forced labor (not mentioned in 8:15-18; see also 1 Kgs 4:6) shows that David had now gained sufficient control of Israel to require the payment of taxes and to conscript labor throughout the kingdom (cp. 1 Sam 8:11-17).

20:25 In contrast to David's personal priest (see 8:18; 20:26 and notes), Zadok and Abiathar presided over public worship.

20:26 David's personal priest was probably not a Levite but rather a special class of religious servant appointed for his royal court (see note on 8:18).

21:1–24:25 The final chapters of 2 Samuel are a coda, a concluding section that summarizes the important themes from the preceding material. These chapters are thematic, not chronological, and not all the events described here happened at the end of David's reign (e.g., 22:1). The materials are arranged according to a common Hebrew literary device, a chiasm (mirror-image):

A: Saul's sin against the Gibeonites and its collective punishment (21:1-14)

B: David's heroes and their exploits (21:15-22)

C: David's Psalm (22:1-51)

C': David's Psalm (23:1-7)

B': David's heroes and their exploits (23:8-39)

A': David's sin against the census taboo and its collective punishment (24:1-25).

A chiasm highlights the central section—here David's hymns, which focus not on David but on David's God.

21:1 asked the LORD: The Hebrew verb is the same as that used when David "begged" for the life of Bathsheba's child (12:16). On these two occasions, "seeking" was in the desperation of a moment of crisis. However, most often in the OT, "seeking God" refers not to a specific prayer of petition but to the dynamics of daily devotion and obedience to God (e.g., Ps 40:16; 105:4; Prov 28:5). • Saul and his family are guilty: The famine resulted from violating an oath taken before the Lord (Josh 9:19-20). • murdering the Gibeonites: This incident is not elsewhere recorded.

 Ps 18:TITLE

²So the king summoned the Gibeonites. They were not part of Israel but were all that was left of the nation of the Amorites. The people of Israel had sworn not to kill them, but Saul, in his zeal for Israel and Judah, had tried to wipe them out. ³David asked them, "What can I do for you? How can I make amends so that you will bless the LORD's people again?"

⁴"Well, money can't settle this matter between us and the family of Saul," the Gibeonites replied. "Neither can we demand the life of anyone in Israel."

"What can I do then?" David asked. "Just tell me and I will do it for you."

⁵Then they replied, "It was Saul who planned to destroy us, to keep us from having any place at all in the territory of Israel. ⁶So let seven of Saul's sons be handed over to us, and we will execute them before the LORD at Gibeon, on the mountain of the LORD."

"All right," the king said, "I will do it." ⁷The king spared Jonathan's son Mephibosheth, who was Saul's grandson, because of the oath David and Jonathan had sworn before the LORD. ⁸But he gave them Saul's two sons Armoni and Mephibosheth, whose mother was Rizpah daughter of Aiah. He also gave them the five sons of Saul's daughter Merab, the wife of Adriel son of Barzillai from Meholah. ⁹The men of Gibeon executed them on the mountain before the LORD. So all seven of them died together at the beginning of the barley harvest.

¹⁰Then Rizpah daughter of Aiah, the mother of two of the men, spread burlap on a rock and stayed there the entire harvest season. She prevented the scavenger birds from tearing at their bodies during the day and stopped wild animals from eating them at night. ¹¹When David learned what Rizpah, Saul's concubine, had done, ¹²he went to the people of Jabesh-gilead and retrieved the bones of Saul and his son Jonathan. (When the Philistines had killed Saul and Jonathan on Mount Gilboa, the people of Jabesh-gilead stole their bodies from the public square of Beth-shan, where the Philistines had hung them.) ¹³So David obtained the bones of Saul and Jonathan, as well as the bones of the men the Gibeonites had executed.

¹⁴Then the king ordered that they bury the bones in the tomb of Kish, Saul's father, at the town of Zela in the land of Benjamin. After that, God ended the famine in the land.

Battles against Philistine Giants

2 Sam 21:18-22 // 1 Chr 20:4-8

¹⁵Once again the Philistines were at war with Israel. And when David and his men were in the thick of battle, David became weak and exhausted. ¹⁶Ishbi-benob was a descendant of the giants; his bronze spearhead weighed Illicit bloodshed had polluted the land, making it sterile and unfruitful (cp. Gen 4:10-12; Num 35:30-34).

21:2 Though the Amorites were a specific people group (Gen 10:16), here it is a general term for the pre-Israelite inhabitants of Canaan. • When properly directed, zeal is commendable (e.g., Num 25:11; 1 Kgs 19:10). Saul's misdirected zeal, however, involved blatant disregard for Israel's covenant with the Gibeonites.

21:3 Saul's actions had caused the Gibeonites to curse Israel (cp. Rom 2:24); once David had made amends, the Gibeonites would bless the LORD's people again.

21:6 seven of Saul's sons: Although the law codes of other ancient Near Eastern nations sometimes permitted members of a family to be punished for crimes a guilty individual had committed, Deut 24:16 prohibited such punishment among the Israelites. This penalty was God's prerogative alone (Deut 5:9). The few instances in the Bible when offspring were punished were not regular criminal cases. Rather, they involved offenses against God, such as violation of the kherem (the taboo on goods in wars of total destruction ordered by God; Josh 7:24-25) or of national oaths (as here). • at Gibeon, on the mountain of the LORD (as in Greek version (see also 21:9); Hebrew reads at Gibeah of Saul, the chosen of the LORD): This probably refers to the high place at Gibeon that Solomon later visited (1 Kgs 3:3-4; 2 Chr 1:3). If the Hebrew reading is correct, the Gibeonites were sarcastically referring to Saul as "the chosen of the LORD."

21:7 the oath: See 1 Sam 20:14-15. In contrast to Saul, David was honoring his oath while dealing with the deadly fallout of Saul's violation of an oath.

• Mephibosheth is another name for Merib-baal. See note on 4:4.

21:8 Armoni and Mephibosheth were Saul's only two remaining sons. • Saul's daughter Merab (as in a few Hebrew and Greek manuscripts and Syriac version (see also 1 Sam 18:19); most Hebrew manuscripts read Michal): The NLT follows the Greek here because Michal remained childless (6:22-23). Also, Merab was married to Adriel (1 Sam 18:19), whereas Michal's other husband was Palti (3:15). • Barzillai from Meholah (cp. 1 Sam 18:19) should not be confused with Barzillai of Gilead (19:31).

21:9 The beginning of the barley harvest was in April. • Before the LORD means "before the Lord's altar" (see note on 21:6).

21:10 Because the Gibeonites were not Israelites (21:2), they had no law such as the Israelite one in Deut 21:22-23 requiring the quick and proper burial of a criminal. Rizpah was intent that her sons not be further shamed after their death.

21:11-13 Rizpah's action shamed David into likewise honoring the dead of Saul's family.

21:14 The precise location of Zela is unknown. • the famine: See 21:1-2.

21:15-22 The extended account of battles with the Philistines highlights some notable accomplishments of David's mighty warriors (see also 23:8-39).

21:15 The description of David as weak and exhausted helps shift the focus from his ability and accomplishments to God as the source of his success (ch 22).

21:16 a descendant of the giants (Or a descendant of the Rapha; also in 21:18, 20, 22): cp. Gen 14:5; Deut 2:10-11, 20-21; 3:11. • more than seven pounds: Hebrew 300 [shekels] [3.4 kilograms].

more than seven pounds, and he was armed with a new sword. He had cornered David and was about to kill him. ¹⁷But Abishai son of Zeruiah came to David's rescue and killed the Philistine. Then David's men declared, "You are not going out to battle with us again! Why risk snuffing out the light of Israel?"

¹⁸After this, there was another battle against the Philistines at Gob. As they fought, Sibbecai from Hushah killed Saph, another descendant of the giants.

¹⁹During another battle at Gob, Elhanan son of Jair from Bethlehem killed the brother of Goliath of Gath. The handle of his spear was as thick as a weaver's beam!

²⁰In another battle with the Philistines at Gath, they encountered a huge man with six fingers on each hand and six toes on each foot, twenty-four in all, who was also a descendant of the giants. ²¹But when he defied and taunted Israel, he was killed by Jonathan, the son of David's brother Shimea.

²²These four Philistines were descendants of the giants of Gath, but David and his warriors killed them.

David's Psalm of Thanksgiving

2 Sam 22:1-51 // Ps 18:1-50

22 David sang this song to the LORD on the day the LORD rescued him from all his enemies and from Saul. ²He sang:

"The LORD is my rock, my fortress, and my savior;

³ my God is my rock, in whom I find protection.

He is my shield, the power that saves me, and my place of safety.

He is my refuge, my savior, the one who saves me from violence.

⁴ I called on the LORD, who is worthy of praise, and he saved me from my enemies.

⁵ "The waves of death overwhelmed me; floods of ^ddestruction swept over me.

⁶ The grave wrapped its ropes around me; death laid a trap in my path.

⁷ But in my distress I cried out to the LORD; yes, I cried to my God for help.

He heard me from his sanctuary; my cry reached his ears.

⁸ "Then the earth quaked and trembled. The foundations of the heavens shook; they quaked because of his anger.

⁹ Smoke poured from his nostrils; fierce flames leaped from his mouth. Glowing coals blazed forth from him.

¹⁰ He opened the heavens and came down; dark storm clouds were beneath his feet.

¹¹ Mounted on a mighty ^eangelic being, he flew, soaring on the wings of the wind.

¹² He shrouded himself in darkness, veiling his approach with dense rain clouds.

¹³ A great brightness shone around him, and burning coals blazed forth.

¹⁴ The LORD thundered from heaven; the voice of the Most High resounded.

21:17 Abishai was an accomplished warrior and fiercely loyal to David, whom he heroically rescued (see "Abishai," 16:9-12, p. 547). • the light of Israel? Cp. 18:3. Both passages reflect the glowing adoration that David's men had for him.

21:18 The location of Gob is uncertain.

21:19 son of Jair: As in parallel text at 1 Chr 20:5; Hebrew reads son of Jaare-oregim. • killed the brother of Goliath of Gath: As in parallel text at 1 Chr 20:5; Hebrew reads killed Goliath of Gath. Some traditions identify Elhanan as David, principally because Elhanan was also from Bethlehem and because David killed Goliath (1 Sam 17:48-51). But it is more likely that the words brother of were omitted from the Masoretic Text by scribal error.

21:20 a huge man: As in parallel text at 1 Chr 20:6; Hebrew reads a Midianite.

21:21 Shimea: As in parallel text at 1 Chr 20:7; Hebrew reads Shimei, a variant spelling of Shimea.

22:1-51 Although this prayer of thanksgiving (also recorded in Ps 18:1-50) is placed near the end of David's story, David probably offered it to God much earlier in his life. This prayer and Hannah's (1 Sam 2:1-10) together enclose the book of Samuel with an inclusio (literary bookends). Hannah was saved from barrenness; David was saved from his enemies. The placement of this hymn also provides a parallel to Moses. The stories of both Moses and David end with a song or hymn giving lavish praise to God (see also Deut 31:30-32:43). Both highlight God as a "Rock" (Deut 32:4, 15, 18, 30, 31; 2 Sam 22:2, 3, 32, 47). Both are followed by second and shorter poetic pieces—Moses' final blessing to the Israelite tribes (Deut 33:1-29), and David's last words (23:1-7).

22:2 Hannah had said, "there is no Rock like our God" (1 Sam 2:2), while David said, the LORD is my rock, which recalls God's rescue of David from Saul at the Rock of Escape (1 Sam 23:28). The Hebrew word translated "rock" in 22:3 (different from 22:2) refers in 1 Sam 24:2 to "the rocks of the wild goats," where Saul suspected that David was hiding.

22:3 The phrase the power that saves me (literally the horn that has saved me) is similar to Hannah's "Oh, how the LORD has blessed me!" (literally my horn is raised high in the LORD, 1 Sam 2:1).

22:6 The grave: Hebrew Sheol.

22:7 Although his sanctuary sometimes refers to the Tabernacle or Temple, here it refers to God's heavenly dwelling; neither the Tabernacle nor the Temple were in existence at this time.

22:8-20 David vividly expands on how God heard him (22:7). David describes God's rescue as a theophany (manifestation of God's presence; see notes on Exod 19:16-25; Deut 1:33) that recalls God's manifestation at Sinai (Exod 19:16-20; cp. Judg 5:4-5).

22:11 a mighty angelic being (Hebrew a cherub): see notes on Ezek 1:5-14; 10:1-2. • soaring: As in some Hebrew manuscripts (see also Ps 18:10); other Hebrew manuscripts read appearing.

22:13 burning coals: Or and lightning bolts.

22:14 the LORD thundered from heaven: Cp. 1 Sam 2:10.

his lightning flashed, and they were confused.
- 16 Then at the command of the LORD,
at the blast of his breath,
the bottom of the sea could be seen, and the foundations of the earth were laid bare.
- 17 "He reached down from heaven and rescued me;
he drew me out of deep waters.
- 18 He rescued me from my powerful enemies, from those who hated me and were too strong for me.
- 19 They attacked me at a moment when I was in distress, but the LORD supported me.
- 20 He led me to a place of safety;
he rescued me because he delights in me.
- 21 The LORD rewarded me for doing right;
he restored me because of my innocence.
- 22 For I have kept the ways of the LORD;
I have not turned from my God to follow evil.
- 23 I have followed all his regulations;
I have never abandoned his decrees.
- 24 I am 'blameless before God;
I have kept myself from sin.
- 25 The LORD rewarded me for doing right.
He has seen my innocence.
- 26 "To the faithful you show yourself faithful;
to those with integrity you show integrity.
- 27 To the pure you show yourself pure, but to the crooked you show yourself shrewd.
- 28 You rescue the humble, but your eyes watch the proud and humiliate them.
- 29 O LORD, you are my lamp.
The LORD lights up my darkness.
- 30 In your strength I can crush an army;
with my God I can scale any wall.

- 31 "God's way is perfect.
All the LORD's promises prove true.
He is a shield for all who look to him for protection.
- 32 For who is God except the LORD?
Who but our God is a solid rock?
- 33 God is my strong fortress, and he makes my way perfect.
- 34 He makes me as surefooted as a deer, enabling me to stand on mountain heights.
- 35 He trains my hands for battle;
he strengthens my arm to draw a bronze bow.
- 36 You have given me your shield of victory;
your help has made me great.
- 37 You have made a wide path for my feet to keep them from slipping.
- 38 "I chased my enemies and destroyed them;
I did not stop until they were conquered.
- 39 I consumed them;
I struck them down so they did not get up;
they fell beneath my feet.
- 40 You have armed me with strength for the battle;
you have subdued my enemies under my feet.
- 41 You placed my foot on their necks.
I have destroyed all who hated me.
- 42 They looked for help, but no one came to their rescue.
They even cried to the LORD, but he refused to answer.
- 43 I ground them as fine as the dust of the earth;
I trampled them in the gutter like dirt.
- 44 "You gave me victory over my accusers.
You preserved me as the ruler over nations;
people I don't even know now serve me.
- 45 Foreign nations cringe before me;
as soon as they hear of me, they submit.
- 46 They all lose their courage and come trembling from their strongholds.

22:21-30 David's divine rescue and success were related to his own obedient walk with God. God honors those who order their lives in a way that pleases him (see also Lev 26:1-13; Deut 28:1-14; Ps 1).

22:22-24 David composed these words much earlier (22:1), before his sin with Bathsheba. Still, his claim to being blameless should not be construed as a claim to perfection. David was simply noting that he had kept the covenant and followed its law (see also "Job's Innocence" at Job 27:5-6, p. 883).

22:31-51 David glorifies God for rescue in the past and for his promises to David's house for coming generations (see 7:8-16).

22:32 See Isa 43:11; 44:6, 8; 45:5, 21.

22:34 David probably encountered deer during his many days of hiding out in hilly terrain and caves (1 Sam 19:11-27:12).

22:36 your help: As in Dead Sea Scrolls; Masoretic Text reads your answering.

22:38-40 David's military accomplishments before he became king were impressive (see 1 Sam 17:12-58; 18:17-30; 23:1-5; 30:1-31). Yet rather than exalting himself, David glorified God and gave him the credit.

22:43 I trampled them: As in Dead Sea Scrolls (see also Ps 18:42); Masoretic Text reads I crushed and trampled them.

22:46 come trembling: As in parallel text at Ps 18:45; Hebrew reads come girding themselves.

- 47 "The LORD lives! Praise to my Rock!
May God, the Rock of my salvation, be exalted!
- 48 He is the God who pays back those who harm me;
he brings down the nations under me and delivers me from my enemies.
You hold me safe beyond the reach of my enemies;
you save me from violent opponents.
- 50 For this, O LORD, I will praise you among the nations;
I will sing praises to your name.
- 51 You give great victories to your king;
you show unfailing love to your anointed, to David and all his descendants forever."

David's Last Words

23 These are the last words of David:

- "David, the son of Jesse, speaks—
David, the man who was raised up so high,
David, the man anointed by the God of Jacob,
David, the sweet psalmist of Israel.
- 2 "The Spirit of the LORD speaks through me;
his words are upon my tongue.
- 3 The God of Israel spoke.
The Rock of Israel said to me:
'The one who rules righteously, who rules in the fear of God,
4 is like the light of morning at sunrise, like a morning without clouds, like the gleaming of the sun on new grass after rain.'
- 5 "Is it not my family God has chosen?
Yes, he has made an everlasting

- covenant with me.
His agreement is arranged and guaranteed in every detail.
He will ensure my safety and success.
- 6 But the godless are like thorns to be thrown away, for they tear the hand that touches
them.
- 7 One must use iron tools to chop them down;
they will be totally consumed by fire."

The Three: David's Elite Commanders

2 Sam 23:8-17 // 1 Chr 11:10-19

8 These are the names of David's mightiest warriors. The first was Jashobeam the Hacmonite, who was leader of the Three—the three mightiest warriors among David's men. He once used his spear to kill 800 enemy warriors in a single battle.

9 Next in rank among the Three was Eleazar son of Dodai, a descendant of Ahoah.
Once Eleazar and David stood together against the Philistines when the entire Israelite army had fled. 10 He killed Philistines until his hand was too tired to lift his sword, and the LORD gave him a great victory that day. The rest of the army did not return until it was time to collect the plunder!

11 Next in rank was Shammah son of Agee from Harar. One time the Philistines gathered at Lehi and attacked the Israelites in a field full of lentils. The Israelite army fled, 12 but Shammah held his ground in the middle of the field and beat back the Philistines.
So the LORD brought about a great victory.

13 Once during the harvest, when David was at the cave of Adullam, the Philistine army was camped in the valley of Rephaim.

23:1-7 This passage comes from the end of David's career and reflects on his experience as king, even as ch 22 reflects on his experience before becoming king.

23:1 David's last words were not necessarily the last words he actually spoke (see 1 Kgs 1:16, 29-30, 33-35; 2:1-9) but his final public expression of worship to God as king (cp. 1 Sam 12:1-25). • David that he was about to utter an oracle, a revelation from God (23:2). • the sweet of the songs of Israel; or the favorite of the Strong One of Israel.): For other references to David as musician and poet, see 1 Chr 23:5; 2 Chr 29:26, 27;

Neh 12:36; Amos 6:5.

23:2 the Spirit of the LORD speaks through me: David spoke of God, and in the process, God spoke through David.

23:5 my family . . . everlasting covenant:
David is referring to the prophecy Nathan made about David and his descendants (7:12-16). Jesus is the everlasting king who is the "son of David" (Matt 1:1).

23:6 Cp. Ps 1:4-5.

23:8-39 This section is a listing of David's elite warriors by name, the most prominent of whom are listed with a notable accomplishment. These warriors were some of the "iron tools" that God used to "chop down" the godless (23:7).
• The list divides into the Three and the Thirty. Some Hebrew scholars have suggested that the Thirty be translated as "Officers." If that is correct, then it is possible that the Three was originally a term for a specific military office.

23:8 Jashobeam the Hacmonite (as in parallel text at 1 Chr 11:11; Hebrew reads Josheb-basshebeth the Tahke-monite): One version of the Greek OT calls him Ishbaal ("man of Baal"). Most likely it is the same individual in both cases and scribal copying errors caused variations in the spelling of the name.

sions (see also 1 Chr 11:11); the meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. • the

As in some Greek manuscripts (see elite group among David's fighting men) went down to meet him there. ¹⁴David was staying in the stronghold at the time, and a Philistine detachment had occupied the town of Bethlehem.

¹⁵David remarked longingly to his men, "Oh, how I would love some of that good water from the well by the gate in Bethlehem."

¹⁶So the Three broke through the Philistine lines, drew some water from the well by the gate in Bethlehem, and brought it back to David. But he refused to drink it. Instead, he poured it out as an offering to the LORD. ¹⁷"The LORD forbid that I should drink this!" he exclaimed. "This water is as precious as the blood of these men who risked their lives to bring it to me." So David did not drink it. These are examples of the exploits of the Three.

The Thirty: David's Mighty Men

2 Sam 23:18-39 // 1 Chr 11:20-47

¹⁸Abishai son of Zeruiah, the brother of Joab, was the leader of the Thirty. He once used his spear to kill 300 enemy warriors in a single battle. It was by such feats that he became as famous as the Three. ¹⁹Abishai was the most famous of the Thirty and was their commander, though he was not one of the Three.

²⁰There was also Benaiah son of Jehoiada, a valiant warrior from Kabzeel. He did many heroic deeds, which included killing two champions of Moab. Another time, on a snowy day, he chased a lion down into a pit and killed it. ²¹Once, armed only with a club, he killed an imposing Egyptian warrior who was armed with a spear. Benaiah wrenched the spear from the Egyptian's hand and killed him with it. ²²Deeds like these made Benaiah as famous as the Three mightiest warriors. ²³He was more honored than the other members of the Thirty, though he was not one of the Three. And David made him captain of his bodyguard.

²⁴Other members of the Thirty included:

- Asahel, Joab's brother;
- Elhanan son of Dodo from Bethlehem;
- ²⁵Shammah from Harod;
- Elika from Harod;
- ²⁶Helez from Pelon;

1 Sam 22:1). • The valley of Rephaim was located between Bethlehem and Jerusalem (see 5:17-25).

23:15-16 remarked longingly: This Hebrew verb elsewhere carries the idea of excessive desire (see Num 11:4, "began to crave"; Ps 106:14, "desires ran wild"). It is unclear whether David's craving for water was excessive, but it certainly led to dangerous exploits. • well by the gate: David had memories from his younger days of growing up in Bethlehem. The location of the well is unknown.

23:17 This water . . . these men: Literally Shall I drink the blood of these men? When David poured the hard-won water on the ground, it did not signal ingratitude. Rather, he regarded the water as equivalent to the warriors' blood; it represented life that only God was worthy to receive (Lev 17:10-13; Deut 12:23-24).

23:18-23 Here are examples of the prowess of Abishai and Benaiah. Elsewhere, Abishai was intensely combative toward David's enemies, especially Saul (1 Sam 26:6-9) and Saul's kinsman Shi-mei (16:9-11). Abishai had saved David's life during one of the Philistine wars (21:16-17). • Benaiah appeared first as the commander of the mercenaries who served as David's bodyguard, independent of the regular army (8:18; 20:23). He was also the leader of a 24,000-man division of the regular army that served the king in the third month of every year (1 Chr 27:5-6). He played a major role in Solomon's ascension to the throne (1 Kgs 1:32-49) and became the commander of Solomon's army, as Joab was for David.

23:24 Asahel, David's nephew, was killed by Abner during the war between David and Ishbosheth (2:18-32). Asahel's inclusion here suggests that parts of these lists go back to the beginning of David's career. • Elhanan son of Dodo should not be confused with Elhanan son of Jair (21:19; 1 Chr 20:5).

David Takes a Census

2 Sam 24:1-9 // 1 Chr 21:1-6

24 Once again the anger of the LORD burned against Israel, and he caused David to harm them by taking a census. "Go and count the people of Israel and Judah," the LORD told him.

²So the king said to Joab and the commanders of the army, "Take a census of all the tribes of Israel—from Dan in the north to Beersheba in the south—so I may know how many people there are."

³But Joab replied to the king, "May the LORD your God let you live to see a hundred times as many people as there are now! But why, my lord the king, do you want to do this?"

⁴But the king insisted that they take the census, so Joab and the commanders of the army went out to count the people of Israel. ⁵First they crossed the Jordan and camped at Aroer, south of the town in the valley, in the direction of Gad. Then they went on to Jazer, ⁶then to Gilead in the land of Tahtim-hodshi and to Dan-jaan and around to Sidon. ⁷Then they came to the fortress of Tyre, and all the towns of the Hivites and Canaanites. Finally, they went south to Judah as far as Beersheba.

⁸Having gone through the entire land for nine months and twenty days, they returned to Jerusalem. ⁹Joab reported the number of people to the king. There were 800,000 capable warriors in Israel who could handle a sword, and 500,000 in Judah.

Judgment for David's Sin

2 Sam 24:10-17 // 1 Chr 21:7-17

¹⁰But after he had taken the census, David's conscience began to bother him. And he said to the LORD, "I have sinned greatly by taking this census. Please forgive my guilt, LORD, for doing this foolish thing."

¹¹The next morning the word of the LORD came to the prophet Gad, who was David's seer. This was the message: ¹²"Go and say to David, 'This is what the LORD says: I will give you three choices. Choose one of these punishments, and I will inflict it on you.'"

¹³So Gad came to David and asked him, "Will you choose three years of famine throughout your land, three months of fleeing from your enemies, or three days of 23:39 The very last name mentioned is Uriah the Hittite. There is an earlier reference to his father-in-law, Eliam, father of Bathsheba (23:34; see 11:3). By contrast, the Chronicler, who never mentioned David's sins against Bathsheba and Uriah, placed Uriah's name inconspicuously in the middle of the list of David's mighty men (1 Chr 11:10-47). This author not only described the sins (ch 11) but puts emphasis on Uriah's name by placing it at the end of this list. Uriah was no ordinary conscript but a loyal member of David's elite guard, which makes David's treachery against him all the worse. • There were thirty-seven in all: Only thirty-six names are mentioned, assuming that "Shammah . . . from Harar" (23:11) is different from "Shammah from Harod" (23:25), and that "Benaiah son of Jehoiada" (23:20) is different from "Benaiah from Pirathon" (23:30). Perhaps the thirty-seventh warrior was Joab, who is mentioned only peripherally (23:18, 37) and is absent from the list of names. Many commentators say that he is excluded because he was David's chief military leader and did not need to be included. The omission could also represent David's long and troubled association with Joab, who was eventually executed when Solomon carried out David's deathbed command (1 Kgs 2:5-6, 28-34).

24:1 The reason God's anger . . . burned against Israel is unknown (but see Deut 4:25; 6:14-15; 29:22-28; 31:16-18).

• Caused . . . to harm reflects a Hebrew verb (suth) used elsewhere in the sense of enticing or inciting someone to do wrong (1 Sam 26:19, "stirred you up against me"). Census-taking was usually unpopular with citizens, who resented it as an intrusion into their private affairs. They regarded it as a prelude to taxation or forced military service (see note on 24:9). If David was motivated by pride or was preparing for an illegitimate war (as 24:9 might suggest), this might explain why it was a sin for him (24:10).

24:2 Joab and the commanders: As in Greek version (see also 24:4 and 1 Chr 21:2); Hebrew reads Joab the commander. • Dan and Beersheba were the traditional northern and southern boundaries of Israel. This phrase meant the entire land of Israel.

24:3 why . . . do you want to do this? Joab either realized that such a move would be unpopular among the people, or he believed that it was wrong before God.

24:6 to Gilead in the land of Tahtim-hodshi: Greek version reads to Gilead and to Kadesh in the land of the Hittites.

24:7 they went south to Judah: Or they went to the Negev of Judah.

24:9 The phrase capable warriors shows that the census focused largely on those fit for military service. The total for Judah here might be rounded up from the total in 1 Chr 21:5; the different number for Israel in 1 Chr 21:5 (1,100,000) might come from combining a regular standing army of 300,000 (elsewhere unrecorded) with the 800,000 discovered through the census.

24:10 I have sinned: See note on 24:1. David believed his sin was the cause of the plague and that the removal of his sin would make things right (see also 24:17). It is clear, however, that Israel rather than David was the true object of God's wrath (24:1).

24:11 Gad . . . David's seer appears only here and in 1 Sam 22:5. Seer is an early name for a prophet (1 Sam 9:9, 19). Unlike pagan magicians or sorcerers, biblical seers had divinely inspired visions (see also 2 Kgs 17:13; Isa 29:10; 30:9-10; Amos 7:12; Mic 3:7) and functioned as God's messengers.

24:13 David had already experienced the first two options—fleeing from Saul and Absalom, and famine because Saul had murdered the Gibeonites (21:1). While three days of severe plague sounded less traumatic, 70,000 people perished (24:15). • three: As in Greek version (see also 1 Chr 21:12); Hebrew reads seven.

severe plague throughout your land? Think this over and decide what answer I should give the LORD who sent me."

¹⁴"I'm in a desperate situation!" David replied to Gad. "But let us fall into the hands of the LORD, for his mercy is great. Do not let me fall into human hands."

¹⁵So the LORD sent a plague upon Israel that morning, and it lasted for three days. A total of 70,000 people died throughout the nation, from Dan in the north to Beersheba in the south. ¹⁶But as the angel was preparing to destroy Jerusalem, the LORD relented and said to the death angel, "Stop! That is enough!" At that moment the angel of the LORD was by the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite.

¹⁷When David saw the angel, he said to the LORD, "I am the one who has sinned and done wrong! But these people are as innocent as sheep—what have they done? Let your anger fall against me and my family."

David Builds an Altar

2 Sam 24:18-25 // 1 Chr 21:18-30

¹⁸That day Gad came to David and said to him, "Go up and build an altar to the LORD on the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite."

¹⁹So David went up to do what the LORD had commanded him. ²⁰When Araunah saw the king and his men coming toward him, he came and bowed before the king with his face to the ground. ²¹"Why have you come, my lord the king?" Araunah asked.

David replied, "I have come to buy your threshing floor and to build an altar to the LORD there, so that he will stop the plague."

²²"Take it, my lord the king, and use it as you wish," Araunah said to David. "Here are oxen for the burnt offering, and you can use the threshing boards and ox yokes for wood to build a fire on the altar. ²³I will give it all to you, Your Majesty, and may the LORD your God accept your sacrifice."

²⁴But the king replied to Araunah, "No, I insist on buying it, for I will not present burnt offerings to the LORD my God that have cost me nothing." So David paid him fifty pieces of silver for the threshing floor and the oxen.

²⁵David built an altar there to the LORD and sacrificed burnt offerings and peace offerings. And the LORD answered his prayer for the land, and the plague on Israel was stopped.

There is a notable difference between the accounts of David's census in Samuel and in Chronicles. 2 Samuel 24:1 attributes the census taking to God ("the LORD . . . caused David to harm them by taking a census"), while 1 Chr 21:1 attributes the action to Satan ("Satan rose up against Israel and caused David to take a census of the people of Israel"). How can this be?

The difference is one of perspective. 2 Samuel 24 tells the census story from God's perspective as the primary agent; God permitted Satan's action in order to fulfill his own purpose.

This phenomenon is not uncommon in Scripture. Matthew 4:1 contains a similar instance of dual agency, where Jesus is led out into the wilderness by the Holy Spirit to be tempted by the devil. Perhaps the most notable similar experience is Job's trial: It was permitted by God and then brought on by Satan after the Lord spoke glowingly about Job (Job 1:8; 2:3). Through all the trials that followed, Job's heart was righteous despite Satan's attempts to elicit a curse against God. Similarly, 2 Cor 12:7 teaches that a God-sent affliction can be delivered by a messenger from Satan. When Paul wrote that he was given a "thorn," he used a passive verb, indicating that this affliction was given by God.

Satan works in many ways in an attempt to destroy or discourage God's people. Yet God is sovereign. God does not author evil, but sometimes God makes use of others' evil deeds to accomplish his good purposes (Gen 50:20).

24:15 for three days: Literally for the designated time.

24:16 the LORD relented: God might stop his judgment when a third party intercedes for the intended target (Exod 32:12-14), when the sinful person repents (Jer 18:8), or simply because he decides to do so. • the death angel: Cp. Exod 12:23. • A threshing floor was an unwallled space where harvested grain was threshed and winnowed to separate the kernels from the chaff. Gideon encountered God at a threshing floor (Judg 6:37). Araunah's threshing floor later became the site of the Temple (1 Chr 21:18-22:1; 2 Chr 3:1). • Araunah the Jebusite: Even though David had taken Jerusalem from the Jebusites (5:6-9), he had not eliminated them or driven them away.

24:17 I am the one who has sinned: David's earlier confession of sin was limited to his circumstances ("forgive my guilt"; 24:10); now he prayed for those he considered innocent (but see 24:1) and offered to die in their place. • as sheep: David was the shepherd of Israel (see note on 7:8).

24:21 so that he will stop the plague: David did not know that God had already announced the end of the plague to the angel (24:16).

24:24 fifty pieces of silver: Hebrew 50 shekels of silver, about 20 ounces or 570 grams in weight.

24:25 David performed priestly functions when he built an altar, offered burnt offerings and peace offerings, and prayed for his people; in response, the LORD answered his prayer (cp. 21:14).

THE CHRONOLOGY OF ISRAEL'S MONARCHY

The time of Israel's kings is a fascinating period in history. The chronological data of Israel's monarchy, however, present a time-honored conundrum. Several factors contribute to the complexity, but what emerges is a coherent historical narrative, and events in the books of Samuel, Kings, and Chronicles fit the historical record.

REGNAL-YEAR DATING In the ancient Near East, events were dated with reference to the reign of an individual king rather than with reference to an absolute calendar. For instance, the people of Judah would have described an event in 701 BC as happening in the fourteenth year of King Hezekiah's reign in Judah (2 Kgs 18:13). This system can be called regnal-year dating, dating by reference to the years of a king's reign.

The books of Kings contain records of the regnal years for all of the kings of Israel and Judah from Solomon down to Judah's exile to Babylon. Archaeological records of Assyria and Babylon give us the regnal years for their kings. Some of these kings appear in the OT, which helps us see how the dates in Assyrian, Babylonian, and Israelite records are related to each other and to our own calendar.

ACCESSION-YEAR DATING Some nations, such as Babylon and Assyria, counted the year in which a new king took the throne (his accession) as belonging only to the previous king. A new king's accession year was not counted as one of his regnal years; his first regnal year was the following year. This system is called accession-year dating because it has separate accession years that are excluded from the count. Other nations, such as Egypt, counted the year of a king's accession while also counting that year as the last year of the old king's reign. As a result, a single calendar year would be counted twice—once for the previous king, once for the new king. This system is called non-accession-year dating because there are no distinct accession years in the system.

Edwin R. Thiele showed¹ that Israel's monarchy under David and Solomon probably used accession-year dating (i.e., accession years were not counted as regnal years). This practice was continued in the kingdom of Judah. The kingdom of Israel, by contrast, apparently followed Egypt's practice with non-accession-year dating. The kingdom of Israel was founded by Jeroboam I, who had spent several years in Egypt and was differentiating his kingdom from Judah (1 Kgs 12:26-33).

The annual calendars of ancient Israel, Assyria, Babylon, and Egypt did not correlate with our modern calendar. Israel's united monarchy under David and Solomon evidently used a royal year beginning around September or October, and the kingdom of Judah continued to use this royal year² (see chart, "Israel's Annual Calendar," p. 145). For Babylon and the northern kingdom of Israel, the first month of the calendar year occurred around March or April.

Because the calendars of the ancient world do not correlate with our own, sometimes a variation of one year occurs in assigning a modern calendar date for an event. For instance, Solomon's last regnal year began in autumn 931 BC, and Jeroboam's first regnal year ended in spring 930 BC. We know therefore that between autumn 931 BC and spring 930 BC Solomon died, Rehoboam became king, and the kingdom split immediately thereafter. We do not know, however, exactly when during that six-month period the division of the kingdom took place. Therefore some authors use 931 BC, while others use 930 BC. This variation simply reflects the "resolution" of the data in ancient records.

CO-REGENCIES Kings sometimes made their sons co-regents, perhaps to provide on-the-job training and to ensure an orderly transfer of power. The practice of co-regency became very common in Judah: Jehoshaphat, Jehoram, Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, Hezekiah, and Manasseh all began as co-regents. Co-regency also occurred in Babylon: Belshazzar (553–539 BC) served as co-regent (and acting ruler) for most of his father Nabonidus's reign (556–539 BC). The son's years are variously counted from when he became co-regent or from when he began his sole reign.

FIXING RELATIVE DATES IN HISTORY Can the relative dates of the Old Testament monarchs be converted to absolute dates in our calendar? The answer is usually yes, at least within a range of months.

A key document is the Assyrian Eponym Canon, which lists the names of Assyrian officials and kings between 910 and 612 BC. The Assyrians included in the list significant events that occurred during each year, including statements about war, flooding, and astronomical phenomena such as eclipses. Since eclipses occur at regular and predictable times, astronomers today can calculate when they occurred in ancient Assyria. The eclipses that the Assyrians observed and recorded give us a basis for fixing their records to our calendar.

Other Assyrian texts mention events in Israel. For example, the Assyrian king Shalmaneser III (858–824 BC) fought the Battle of Qarqar in 853 BC. The Kurkh Monolith, an Assyrian monument that describes that battle, says that King Ahab of Israel participated, so we know that Ahab's reign lasted until 853 BC. Later, the Black Obelisk, another Assyrian record, mentions Shalmaneser III making Jehu of Israel pay tribute in 841 BC, so we know that Jehu was reigning by that date. In this way, the relative dates in the biblical text can be converted into absolute dates. Egyptian and Babylonian sources can also be correlated.³ Assyrian and Aramean records explicitly and accurately refer to nearly half of the kings of the divided monarchy, beginning as early as Ahaziah (in Judah) and Omri (in Israel).

There is a remarkable harmony between the records of Assyria, Babylon, Aram, Egypt, and Israel. This harmony highlights the historical reliability of these records and gives confidence in the dating of biblical events during the divided monarchy.

³ For Babylonian chronology, we rely on Richard A. Parker and Waldo H. Dubberstein, Babylonian Chronology 626 B.C.—A.D. 75 (Providence, RI: Brown University Press, 1956). For Egyptian chronology, we use K. A. Kitchen, "Egypt, History of (Chronology)" in Anchor Bible Dictionary, David Noel Freedman, ed. (New York: Doubleday, 1992).

Solomon's kingdom was the pinnacle of Israel's glory.

"King Solomon became richer and wiser than any other king on earth" (10:23). The Queen of Sheba confirmed the glory of Solomon's kingdom, saying, "Everything I heard in my country about your achievements and wisdom is true! I didn't believe what was said until I arrived here and saw it with my own eyes" (10:6-7). First Kings celebrates the splendor of Solomon's kingdom. But Solomon's reign also illustrates the dangers of spiritual infidelity, and 1 Kings warns about the results of preoccupation with luxury, fame, self, and security. It is a timeless warning to us all.

SETTING

At the height of his power, Solomon administered a kingdom that stretched "from the Euphrates River in the north to the land of the Philistines and the border of Egypt in the south" (4:21).

◀ Israel during Solomon's Reign, 971-931 BC. Solomon inherited a powerful kingdom from his father David, covering all of the area inhabited by the tribes of Israel. Throughout his reign, Solomon's power and influence increased among the surrounding nations.

Solomon's power and wealth brought him in contact with many surrounding nations—especially the important maritime city-state of Tyre and the age-old empire of Egypt.

It was an ideal time for Solomon's kingdom to expand, for the traditional political powers of the area were in decline (see map on p. 595). The strong Hittite kingdom to the north had broken up into a number of small states. In Mesopotamia, years of struggle with the Arameans and the Hittites had weakened Assyria, which remained weak until the accession of Ashur-dan II (934–912 BC). In the south, Egypt's presence in Canaan had weakened during the 21st dynasty (1069–945 BC). Egypt would not make an effective military effort until the rule of the 22nd dynasty pharaoh Shoshenq I (Shishak, 945–924 BC).

Unfortunately, Solomon's foreign diplomacy involved marriages with the daughters of foreign kings. This was a common way to cement alliances in the ancient Near East, but it was spiritually disastrous, for "in Solomon's old age, they turned his heart to worship other gods instead of being completely faithful to the LORD his God" (11:4).

Tensions that had been smoldering between the northern and southern Hebrew tribes surfaced with Solomon's death in 931 BC. An outright schism eventually restructured the kingdom into Israel (the northern ten tribes) and Judah (the remaining two southern tribes). Israel and Judah skirmished repeatedly during the era of the first two northern dynasties and Judah's first three kings (931~874 BC). The hostility subsided when King Ahab of Israel and King Jehoshaphat of Judah found a common cause against the Arameans (chs 20, 22).

The Hebrew kingdoms were increasingly entangled by the expansionist ambitions of their neighbors. They were invaded by Shoshenq I of Egypt in 926 BC, and throughout the 800s BC they faced the constant menace of the Arameans and the rising power of Assyria. During the reigns of Assyrian kings Ashurnasirpal II (883–859 BC) and Shalmaneser III (858–824 BC), Assyrian troops moved steadily westward to the Mediterranean Sea. At the famous Battle of Qarqar (853 BC), a coalition of western allies, including Israel's King Ahab, withstood the Assyrian king Shalmaneser and temporarily sidetracked Assyria's advance.

During this time, the two Hebrew kingdoms struggled spiritually. Israel stopped worshiping the Lord at Solomon's Temple, and Jeroboam I, first king of the northern kingdom of Israel (931–910 BC), instituted apostate religious practices that led the northern kingdom astray (see 2 Kgs 17:21–23). Judah's first two kings, Rehoboam and Abijah, lapsed spiritually, while the subsequent two, Asa and Jehoshaphat, maintained greater, though not perfect, spiritual fidelity (15:11; 22:43).

SUMMARY OF 1 KINGS

Beginning with King David's last days, 1 Kings describes the establishment of Solomon's glorious empire (971–931 BC) and the events that subsequently divided the kingdom into two parts, the kingdom of Israel in the north and the kingdom of Judah in the south. The book then traces the varying fortunes of the two kingdoms to about 853 BC, into the reign of Ahaziah in Israel (853–852 BC).

The first eleven chapters center on King Solomon, recounting both his fabulous reign and his later spiritual compromise. Solomon's story begins and ends in controversy. Solomon was David's chosen successor, but his older brother Adonijah attempted to seize the throne (chs 1–2). Having triumphed over Adonijah's rival claim, Solomon used his God-given wisdom to reorganize the government and make it more efficient. He facilitated the kingdom's commercial expansion on land and sea and undertook extensive building projects, including the marvelous Temple and palace complex. However, toward the end of his reign, Solomon's spiritual decline (11:1–13) and oppressive administrative measures (e.g., 5:13–18) incited political adversaries both in and out of the country (11:14–40).

God appeared three times to Solomon, giving us a glimpse of his personal spiritual journey. Early in Solomon's reign, God honored his request for wisdom to rule the kingdom (3:5–15), resulting in great prosperity and honor (3:16–8:66). After Solomon finished building the Temple and palace, God visited him again to remind him that, as heir of God's covenant with David, Solomon's continued success would depend on spiritual fidelity (9:1–9). However, his great fame (9:10–10:29) led him into foreign alliances, cemented by customary marriages with the daughters of foreign kings. This spiritual compromise eventually led Solomon so far as to sponsor the worship of pagan deities (11:1–8). God visited Solomon a third and final time, but this time he rebuked Solomon for his failure to honor the covenant. This unfaithfulness would be the ultimate cause of the kingdom's division after his death (11:9–13).

After Solomon died, God's judgment came quickly. King Rehoboam, Solomon's son, antagonized the northern tribes, who were seeking relief from forced labor and heavy taxation. Consequently, the kingdom was divided into Israel in the north, with Jeroboam I as king, and Judah in the south, where Rehoboam remained on the throne (12:1–24). Israel's first two dynasties (Jeroboam I to Tibni) spiritually degraded the northern kingdom, while the kings of Judah degraded the southern kingdom. Political instability continued in the northern kingdom, resulting in royal assassinations, contests for power, and the establishment of Israel's notorious third dynasty, founded by King Omri, who was one of the most powerful and evil kings of Israel (16:25–26).

The final section of 1 Kings is primarily devoted to the reign of Omri's son Ahab (16:29–22:40). Since Israel had begun worshipping the Canaanite storm-god Baal, the Lord commissioned Elijah to confront Ahab and to demonstrate the Lord's power, showing that he alone is God (17:1–18:46). After Elijah fled from the wrath of Queen Jezebel, God reclaimed and recommissioned him, with Elisha as his successor (19:1–21).

On the political front, King Ahab faced repeated challenges from the Aramean king Ben-hadad, against whom Ahab fought three campaigns (20:1-25, 26-43; 22:1-40), the last of which cost Ahab his life. Between the second and third campaign, Ahab, aided by his ruthless wife Jezebel, murdered innocent Naboth and confiscated his property (ch 21).

God's prophets figured prominently in the events of Ahab's reign. In Ahab's first two campaigns against the Arameans, the king was first counseled (20:22) and then rebuked by an unnamed prophet (20:35-43). Elijah later censured Ahab's seizure of Naboth's vineyard (ch 21). Before Ahab's third battle against the Arameans, the prophet Micaiah warned of Ahab's impending death (22:5-28).

The book of 1 Kings closes with a brief word concerning the character and reign of Judah's King Jehoshaphat (22:41-50) and introduces Ahab's successor, Ahaziah (22:51-53), whose story begins 2 Kings.

COMPOSITION AND AUTHORSHIP

The books of 1 & 2 Kings reflect the coherent perspective of a single unknown author. Theories that suggest multiple authors are unconvincing. Jewish tradition identifies the author as the prophet Jeremiah (Baba Batra 15a). All that can be said with certainty, however, is that the author witnessed firsthand the fall of Jerusalem and was well acquainted with sources that enabled him to compose a rich history of the varying fortunes of the divided monarchy. Skillfully weaving many sources into a unified presentation, the author shows why God brought about the collapse of Solomon's empire and the subsequent twin kingdoms. His central concern is his people's repeated failure to honor their covenant relationship with God. (Whether the author was still alive and wrote the final appendix concerning Jehoiachin's release [2 Kgs 25:27-30; cp. Jer 52:31-34] is uncertain. If not, these verses were appended by someone well acquainted with 1 & 2 Kings and of a kindred spirit.)

The books of 1 & 2 Kings cover essentially the same time period as 2 Chronicles. Accordingly, there are numerous parallel passages with similar wording. But the authors had different purposes in writing, and these differences can be highlighted by comparing the similarities and the differences in the various parallel passages.

DATE

Because 2 Kings records the fall of Jerusalem in 586 BC (2 Kgs 24:18-25:21), 1 & 2 Kings must have been written after this event. By that time, the author had a number of sources available, including official archives of the palace and Temple and records kept in various prophetic centers. The books of 1 & 2 Kings thus form a unified work that records a major period in Israel's redemptive history, centering on Israel's kings and prophets from the end of David's reign to the author's day.

The dating of the reigns of various kings and the chronological arrangement of 1 & 2 Kings remain somewhat problematic (see "Chronology," next page), but the general dating of the period seems clear. The basic period for 1 Kings stretches from approximately 973 BC (including approximately the last two years of David's reign in Jerusalem, 2 Sam 5:4-5) to about 853 BC, during the reigns of Jehoshaphat of Judah (872-848 BC) and Ahaziah of Israel (853-852 BC). The final appendix to 2 Kings (25:27-30) was written shortly after the death of Nebuchadnezzar II in 562 BC.

CHRONOLOGY

The dates for the reigns of the kings of Israel and Judah are determined by comparing biblical data with information from other sources from the period, including historical annals and records of astronomical phenomena. The data frequently highlight the practice of co-regency, whereby a reigning king designated his son as both heir apparent and co-ruler. This practice was common in both Israel and Judah. The resulting data are reflected in the study notes. See further "Chronology: Israel's Monarchy," p. 562.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

The primary concern of 1 Kings is Israel's spiritual condition: How well did Israel's rulers and people keep God's covenants? God enacted with David a special covenant that had conditions for blessing Israel's king and his kingdom (2 Sam 7:12-16; Ps 89:20-37). God's three appearances to Solomon highlight the potential for a successful and meaningful spiritual life, as well as the tragic consequences of spiritual infidelity and relying upon expediency. Each succeeding king is evaluated by his faithfulness to God—by his success or failure in keeping God's covenants.

The book of 1 Kings emphasizes the role of God's prophets in advising, admonishing, and warning the kings. While particular attention is devoted to Elijah's ministry (chs 17–19, 21), God also works through other prophets to claim his people's loyalty.

The spiritual odysseys of Israel's kings and prophets challenge all of God's people to faithful devotion and service. Israel's frequent preference for what is tangible and expedient reminds us to "keep away from anything that might take God's place in [our] hearts" (1 Jn 5:21). Like the prophets of old, God's servants today are to proclaim God's priority in the world.

David in His Old Age

1 King David was now very old, and no matter how many blankets covered him, he could not keep warm. ²So his advisers told him, "Let us find a young virgin to wait on you and look after you, my lord. She will lie in your arms and keep you warm."

³So they searched throughout the land of Israel for a beautiful girl, and they found Abishag from Shunem and brought her to

Adonijah Claims the Throne

⁵About that time David's son Adonijah, whose mother was Haggith, began boasting, "I will make myself king." So he provided himself with chariots and charioteers and recruited fifty men to run in front of him.

⁶Now his father, King David, had never disciplined him at any time, even by asking, "Why are you doing that?" Adonijah had

1:1–2:12 The book of 1 Kings opens by emphasizing the continuity of the Lord's covenant with David (see 2 Sam 7:11–16). Solomon was the legitimate and divinely chosen heir to what God had granted his father David. The challenges to Solomon's succession to the throne (1:1–2:46) foreshadowed challenges to his kingship at the end of his reign (11:1–43) and the continuing struggles between Israel and Judah thereafter.

1:1–3 At seventy years of age (2 Sam 5:4–5), David was feeble, perhaps because of years of warfare and stress. He needed a young person to impart warmth, a medical remedy also described in Josephus's Antiquities and by the Greek physician Galen. David's diminishing powers encouraged Adonijah's attempts to take the throne.

1:5–6 Adonijah was David's fourth son. Because his older brothers, Amnon, Daniel, and Absalom, were all dead, Adonijah assumed he would succeed his father. Yet, in keeping with ancient Near Eastern custom, Solomon—the son of David's favored wife, Bathsheba—was to succeed him as king. David had already communicated this fact to Solomon (1:13, 17; 1 Chr 22:6–10). Adonijah's self-seeking nature, likely encouraged by his father's lax discipline, surfaced in his declaration, "I will make myself king." been born next after Absalom, and he was very handsome.

⁷Adonijah took Joab son of Zeruiah and Abiathar the priest into his confidence, and they agreed to help him become king. ⁸But Zadok the priest, Benaiah son of Jehoiada, Nathan the prophet, Shimei, Rei, and David's personal bodyguard refused to support Adonijah.

⁹Adonijah went to the Stone of Zohaleth near the spring of En-rogel, where he sacrificed sheep, cattle, and fattened calves. He invited all his brothers—the other sons of King David—and all the royal officials of Judah. ¹⁰But he did not invite Nathan the prophet or Benaiah or the king's bodyguard or his brother Solomon.

¹¹Then Nathan went to Bathsheba, Solomon's mother, and asked her, "Haven't you heard that Haggith's son, Adonijah, has made himself king, and our lord David doesn't even know about it? ¹²If you want to save your own life and the life of your son Solomon, follow my advice. ¹³Go at once to King David and say to him, 'My lord the king, didn't you make a vow and say to me, "Your son Solomon will surely be the next king and will sit on my throne"? Why then has Adonijah become king?' ¹⁴And while you are still talking with him, I will come and confirm everything you have said."

Solomon was the third king of Israel, the second son of David and Bathsheba (2 Sam 12:13-25); he reigned forty years (971–931 BC). Solomon began with promising confidence in God but ended his life as an idol-worshiper who destroyed his kingdom.

As King David neared death, his son Adonijah made an attempt on the throne, supported by the priest Abiathar and general Joab (ch 1). The kingdom had been promised to Solomon, however (1:17; see 2 Sam 12:24-25; 1 Chr 28:4-7), so Bathsheba and the prophet Nathan informed David of Adonijah's intentions. David immediately arranged Solomon's coronation. David advised Solomon to follow God faithfully (ch 2).

Solomon loved God and sought his help. God asked him to choose a gift, and since he chose wisdom rather than long life, riches, or fame, God gave him all of these. Solomon governed wisely (3:16-28), received worldwide respect (4:20-34; 10:1-29), and wrote parts of Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and the Song of Songs. Rabbis said that these books came from three stages of his life: "When a man is young he composes songs; when he grows older he makes sententious remarks; and when he becomes an old man he speaks of the vanity of things" (Midrash Rabbah). He also built the Temple in Jerusalem and his own palace, developed trade, and increased the wealth and security of Israel. His reputation for wisdom and wealth was very great, and the queen of Sheba traveled to Jerusalem to see for herself (ch 10).

Unfortunately, Solomon made many foreign alliances and married many foreign women, beginning with the daughter of Egypt's pharaoh (3:1). His foreign wives turned Solomon's heart away from God and toward idols. Later in life, the wise Solomon became extremely foolish under his wives' influence; he worshiped false gods and oppressed his people. So God used Jeroboam to remove a large part of his kingdom.

Nonetheless, the NT remembers Solomon's wisdom and glory as the standard against which others are measured. Jesus is the incarnation of God's wisdom, which far surpassed that of Solomon (Matt 12:42; Luke 11:31).

1:7 Joab, David's military commander, and Abiathar, the high priest, gave Adonijah powerful military and religious backing in his pursuit of the throne.

1:8 Solomon also had influential friends supporting his right to become king. Zadok was in the priestly line of Eleazar, Benaiah commanded David's bodyguard and his thirty mighty men (2 Sam 23:20-23), Shimei was one of Solomon's district governors (4:18), and Nathan was David's trusted prophet. Rei is unknown beyond this verse.

1:9 En-rogel (modern Bir Ayyub, "Job's well") lay south of Jerusalem at the intersection of the Kidron and Hinnom valleys. Earlier, it harbored David's two informants, Jonathan and Ahimaaz, during Absalom's rebellion (see 2 Sam 17:17). • to the Stone of Zohaleth: Or to the Serpent's Stone; the Greek version supports reading Zohaleth as a proper name.

1:11-14 Bathsheba was Solomon's mother and David's favored wife. Their affair led to the death of Bathsheba's husband, Uriah the Hittite (see 2 Sam 11). • Nathan, the prophet who revealed God's covenant with David (2 Sam 7:1-17) and announced God's love for Solomon at his birth (2 Sam 12:24-25), confirmed God's selection of Solomon to succeed David as king (see 1 Chr 28:4-7). Although Nathan had sharply rebuked David for his affair with Bathsheba and his murder of Uriah (2 Sam 12:1-15), the king respected the prophet. • Adonijah certainly observed Nathan's close association with Bathsheba and Solomon. All three could expect to be killed if Adonijah's plot to seize the throne succeeded (see 15:29; 16:11).

was taking care of him.)¹⁶Bathsheba bowed down before the king.

"What can I do for you?" he asked her.

¹⁷She replied, "My lord, you made a vow before the LORD your God when you said to me, 'Your son Solomon will surely be the next king and will sit on my throne.'¹⁸But instead, Adonijah has made himself king, and my lord the king does not even know about it. ¹⁹He has sacrificed many cattle, fattened calves, and sheep, and he has invited all the king's sons to attend the celebration. He also invited Abiathar the priest and Joab, the commander of the army. But he did not invite your servant Solomon. ²⁰And now, my lord the king, all Israel is waiting for you to announce who will become king after you. ²¹If you do not act, my son Solomon and I will be treated as criminals as soon as my lord the king has died."

²²While she was still speaking with the king, Nathan the prophet arrived. ²³The king's officials told him, "Nathan the prophet is here to see you."

Nathan went in and bowed before the king with his face to the ground. ²⁴Nathan asked, "My lord the king, have you decided that Adonijah will be the next king and that he will sit on your throne? ²⁵Today he has sacrificed many cattle, fattened calves, and sheep, and he has invited all the king's sons to attend the celebration. He also invited the commanders of the army and Abiathar the priest. They are feasting and drinking with him and shouting, 'Long live King Adonijah!' ²⁶But he did not invite me or Zadok the priest or Benaiah or your servant Solomon. ²⁷Has my lord the king really done this without letting any of his officials know who should be the next king?"

David Makes Solomon King

²⁸King David responded, "Call Bathsheba!" So she came back in and stood before the king. ²⁹And the king repeated his vow: "As surely as the LORD lives, who has rescued me from every danger, ³⁰your son Solomon will be the next king and will sit on my throne this very day, just as I vowed to you before the LORD, the God of Israel."

³¹Then Bathsheba bowed down with her face to the ground before the king and exclaimed, "May my lord King David live forever!"

³²Then King David ordered, "Call Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah son of Jehoiada." When they came into the king's presence, ³³the king said to them, "Take Solomon and my officials down to Gihon Spring. Solomon is to ride on my own mule. ³⁴There Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet are to ^aanoint him ^bking over Israel. Blow the ram's horn and shout, 'Long live ^bKing Solomon!' ³⁵Then escort him back here, and he will sit on my throne. He will succeed me as king, for I have appointed him to be ruler over Israel and Judah."

³⁶^c"Amen!" Benaiah son of Jehoiada replied. "May the LORD, the God of my lord the king, decree that it happen. ³⁷And may the LORD be with Solomon as he has been with you, my lord the king, and may he make Solomon's reign even greater than yours!"

³⁸So Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, Benaiah son of Jehoiada, and the king's bodyguard took Solomon down to Gihon Spring, with Solomon riding on King David's own mule. ³⁹There Zadok the priest took the flask of olive oil from the sacred tent and anointed Solomon with the oil. Then they sounded the ram's horn

1:28-30 David reassured Bathsheba that Solomon would be the next king by repeating his earlier vow in God's name (see 1:17).

1:31-32 David affirmed his pledge by ordering a public display of support by the priestly, prophetic, and military representatives, Zadok, Nathan, and Benaiah.

1:33 Riding the king's own mule was a sign of prestige. In an ancient text from Mari, King Zimri-Lim was advised that royal protocol would be served by his riding in a donkey cart. David's sons rode mules (2 Sam 13:29; 18:9). Similarly Zechariah predicts that Israel's king will come "riding on a donkey's colt" (Zech 9:9), a prophecy fulfilled by Jesus (Matt 21:4-7; John 12:14-15). With Solomon mounted on David's royal mule, the people would know that Solomon's anointing as king had David's blessing. • The Gihon Spring, just outside Jerusalem's eastern slopes, was the city's major water source. In this common gathering place, Solomon's anointing would be well known, yet not visible to Adonijah's supporters at En-rogel.

1:34 Solomon's anointing followed established protocol in being administered by a prophet (see 1 Sam 16:1-13). • Priests also played significant roles in royal matters, and the populace would welcome Zadok's blessing. David later confirmed Solomon's kingship in a public ceremony (1 Chr 29:22).

1:35 sit on my throne: Due to David's age and infirmities, Solomon officiated publicly for about two years before his father died. Co-regency provided for orderly royal succession and became commonplace during Israel's divided monarchy. It was also practiced in Egypt. • The Hebrew term for ruler, used for various leadership positions, can have theological significance; the king was seen as both a spiritual and administrative leader of God's people (see Deut 31:10-11; 1 Chr 28:4-6; Ps 89:3-4; Isa 55:3-4).

1:38 The king's bodyguard (Hebrew the Kerethites and Pelethites; also in 1:44) were foreign mercenaries from Crete; they served David throughout his reign (2 Sam 8:18; 15:18; 20:7).

1:39 The priest . . . anointed Solomon with olive oil. This act, a widely accepted Near Eastern practice, gave the ceremony divine sanction.

and all the people shouted, "Long live King Solomon!" ⁴⁰And all the people followed Solomon into Jerusalem, playing flutes and shouting for joy. The celebration was so joyous and noisy that the earth shook with the sound.

⁴¹Adonijah and his guests heard the celebrating and shouting just as they were finishing their banquet. When Joab heard the sound of the ram's horn, he asked, "What's going on? Why is the city in such an uproar?"

⁴²And while he was still speaking, Jonathan son of Abiathar the priest arrived. "Come in," Adonijah said to him, "for you are a good man. You must have good news."

⁴³"Not at all!" Jonathan replied. "Our lord King David has just declared Solomon king! ⁴⁴The king sent him down to Gihon Spring with Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah son of Jehoiada, protected by the king's bodyguard. They had him ride on the king's own mule, ⁴⁵and Zadok and Nathan have anointed him at Gihon Spring as the new king. They have just returned, and the whole city is celebrating and rejoicing. That's what all the noise is about. ⁴⁶What's more, Solomon is now sitting on the royal throne as king. ⁴⁷And all the royal officials have gone to King David and congratulated him, saying, 'May your God make Solomon's fame even greater than your own, and may Solomon's reign be even greater than yours!' Then the king bowed his head in worship as he lay in his bed, ⁴⁸and he said, 'Praise the LORD, the God of Israel, who today has chosen a successor to sit on my throne while I am still alive to see it.'"

⁴⁹Then all of Adonijah's guests jumped up in panic from the banquet table and quickly scattered. ⁵⁰Adonijah was afraid of Solomon, so he rushed to the sacred tent and grabbed on to the horns of the altar. ⁵¹Word soon reached Solomon that Adonijah had seized the horns of the altar in fear, and that he was pleading, "Let King Solomon swear today that he will not kill me!"

⁵²Solomon replied, "If he proves himself to be loyal, not a hair on his head will be touched. But if he makes trouble, he will die." ⁵³So King Solomon summoned Adonijah, and they brought him down from the altar. He came and bowed respectfully before King Solomon, who dismissed him, saying, "Go on home."

David's Final Instructions to Solomon

2 As the time of King David's death approached, he gave this charge to his son Solomon:

²"I am going where everyone on earth must someday go. Take courage and be a man. ³Observe the requirements of the LORD your God, and follow all his ways. Keep the decrees, commands, regulations, and laws written in the Law of Moses so that you will be successful in all you do and wherever you go. ⁴If you do this, then the LORD will keep the promise he made to me. He told me, 'If your descendants live as they should and follow me faithfully with all their heart and soul, one of them will always sit on the throne of Israel.'

1:40-41 Those attending Adonijah's banquet at En-rogel could not see the celebration, but it was so joyously noisy that they could hear it.

1:42-49 Solomon was proclaimed as king and warmly welcomed by the people. Adonijah and his followers panicked and fled, aborting the attempted coup.

1:50-53 Fearing for his life, Adonijah sought refuge at the horns (projections at the corners) of the altar (Exod 27:2), hoping for mercy according to biblical precedent (cp. Exod 21:12-14). However, such protection was provided only for unintentional homicide, so Adonijah's treason could only be forgiven by the king. Solomon treated him graciously on the condition that he remain loyal. Appearances aside, Adonijah was still looking for ways to usurp the kingship and was later killed as a troublemaker (2:13-25).

2:1-12 David gave his final charge to Solomon in two sections: personal advice for spiritual living (2:2-4) and instructions about people David had dealt with (2:5-9).

2:2-4 David's advice to Solomon combined the spiritual and ethical standards of Deuteronomy, the standards of the covenant through Moses (see Lev 18:4-5; Deut 5:33; 6:4-5; 8:6; 10:12), and the promises of the covenant with David (2 Sam 7:12-16, 25). If Solomon would keep God's standards of righteousness, the promises would be transmitted to his heir, who in turn could claim God's blessings and convey them to subsequent generations (Ps 89:3-4, 20, 24, 27-37). • The preeminent heir of David, the Messiah, would embody true righteousness (Isa 11:1-5), receive the full benefits of the covenant (Jer 33:14-16), and enact a new covenant with the people of Israel and Judah (Jer 31:31-34; Ezek 34:24-31; 37:24-28). The NT reveals Jesus as that son of David who has come (Matt 1:1; Rom 1:1-4); he will come again to fulfill OT prophecies and bless all people (Luke 1:67-79; Gal 3:26-29; Rev 3:21).

2:2 Take courage and be a man: God and Moses had given this same charge to Joshua at the time of the conquest (Deut 31:6-7; Josh 1:6-7, 9). Joshua and Hezekiah gave this admonition to Israelite forces when facing enemies (Josh 1:16-18; 10:24-28; 2 Chr 32:7). David had learned the value of godly courage (Ps 27:13-14; 31:23-24). When Paul urged Christians to be courageous (literally be men) and strong (1 Cor 16:13), he used the same words as the Greek OT uses for the charges by Moses, Joshua, Hezekiah, and the Lord. An interesting parallel is found in the account of Bishop Polycarp's martyrdom. As he was led into the stadium facing execution, Polycarp heard a voice from heaven saying, "Be strong, Polycarp, be a man!" (Martyrdom of Polycarp 9:1).

⁵"And there is something else. You know what Joab son of Zeruiah did to me when he murdered my two army commanders, Abner son of Ner and Amasa son of Jether. He pretended that it was an act of war, but it was done in a time of peace, staining his belt and sandals with innocent blood. ⁶Do with him what you think best, but don't let him grow old and go to his grave in peace.

⁷"Be kind to the sons of Barzillai of Gilead. Make them permanent guests at your table, for they took care of me when I fled from your brother Absalom.

⁸"And remember Shimei son of Gera, the man from Bahurim in Benjamin. He cursed me with a terrible curse as I was fleeing to Mahanaim. When he came down to meet me at the Jordan River, I swore by the LORD that I would not kill him. ⁹But that oath does not make him innocent. You are a wise man, and you will know how to arrange a bloody death for him."

Summary of David's Reign

1 Kgs 2:10-12 // 1 Chr 29:26-30

¹⁰Then David died and was buried with his ancestors in the City of David. ¹¹David had reigned over Israel for forty years, seven of them in Hebron and thirty-three in Jerusalem. ¹²Solomon became king and sat on the throne of David his father, and his kingdom was firmly established.

Solomon Establishes His Rule

¹³One day Adonijah, whose mother was Haggith, came to see Bathsheba, Solomon's mother. "Have you come with peaceful intentions?" she asked him.

"Yes," he said, "I come in peace. ¹⁴In fact, I have a favor to ask of you."

"What is it?" she asked.

¹⁵He replied, "As you know, the kingdom was rightfully mine; all Israel wanted me to be the next king. But the tables were turned, and the kingdom went to my brother instead; for that is the way the LORD wanted it. ¹⁶So now I have just one favor to ask of you. Please don't turn me down."

"What is it?" she asked.

¹⁷He replied, "Speak to King Solomon on my behalf, for I know he will do anything you request. Ask him to let me marry Abishag, the girl from Shunem."

¹⁸"All right," Bathsheba replied. "I will speak to the king for you."

¹⁹So Bathsheba went to King Solomon to speak on Adonijah's behalf. The king rose from his throne to meet her, and he bowed down before her. When he sat down on his throne again, the king ordered that a throne be brought for his mother, and she sat at his right hand.

²⁰"I have one small request to make of you," she said. "I hope you won't turn me down."

"What is it, my mother?" he asked. "You know I won't refuse you."

²¹"Then let your brother Adonijah marry Abishag, the girl from Shunem," she replied.

²²"How can you possibly ask me to give Abishag to Adonijah?" King Solomon demanded. "You might as well ask me to give him the kingdom! You know that he is my older brother, and that he has Abiathar the priest and Joab son of Zeruiah on his side."

²³Then King Solomon made a vow before the LORD: "May God strike me and even kill me if Adonijah has not sealed his fate with 2:5-6 Joab had supported David's bid for kingship but had become too ambitious. He had murdered former military rivals Abner (2 Sam 3:22-30) and Amasa (2 Sam 20:10), as well as David's son Absalom (2 Sam 18:1-18). A party to David's murder of Uriah the Hittite (2 Sam 11:14-27), Joab had grown very powerful (2 Sam 20:23), and his backing of Adonijah posed a serious threat to Solomon.

2:5 He pretended . . . time of peace: Or He murdered them during a time of peace as revenge for deaths they had caused in time of war. • with innocent blood: As in some Greek and Old Latin manuscripts; Hebrew reads with the blood of war.

2:6 don't let him grow old and go to his grave in peace: Literally don't let his white head go down to Sheol in peace.

2:7-9 Barzillai unwaveringly supported David during his trouble with Absalom, while Shimei openly opposed David (2 Sam 16:5-13; 19:6-23).

2:7 at your table: As he had done for Mephibosheth (2 Sam 9:6-13), David provided for Barzillai and his family. This privilege assured their continued loyalty.

2:8 Mahanaim was David's refuge during Absalom's rebellion (2 Sam 17:24). The Egyptian pharaoh, Shishak, invaded it during Rehoboam's reign (see 14:25).

2:9 how to arrange a bloody death for him: Literally how to bring his white head down to Sheol in blood.

2:10-12 David died peacefully after a forty-year reign, knowing that the kingdom was firmly established in Solomon, his designated heir. Various locations have been proposed for David's tomb, but none has been confirmed (cp. Acts

2:29). Royal tombs were used at least until Hezekiah's days (2 Kgs 20:21).

2:13-15 Adonijah contradicted his supposed peaceful intentions when he declared, the kingdom was rightfully mine.

2:16-18 let me marry Abishag: Possessing the king's concubine was a mark of royal legitimacy. When David became king, he was given Saul's wives (2 Sam 12:7-8). The rebellious Absalom claimed David's concubines (2 Sam 16:20-22).

2:19-21 Solomon understood the intentions behind Adonijah's small request. Adonijah's desire to marry Abishag could have launched a claim to the throne, whether or not she was officially in David's harem.

2:22-25 Because Adonijah violated his terms of submission to Solomon (1:52-53), the king ordered Benaiah (see 1:8, 26, 38) to execute him.

this request. ²⁴The LORD has confirmed me and placed me on the throne of my father, David; he has established my dynasty as he promised. So as surely as the LORD lives, Adonijah will die this very day!" ²⁵So King Solomon ordered Benaiah son of Jehoiada to execute him, and Adonijah was put to death.

²⁶Then the king said to Abiathar the priest, "Go back to your home in Anathoth. You deserve to die, but I will not kill you now, because you carried the Ark of the Sovereign LORD for David my father and you shared all his hardships." ²⁷So Solomon deposed Abiathar from his position as priest of the LORD, thereby fulfilling the prophecy the LORD had given at Shiloh concerning the descendants of Eli.

²⁸Joab had not joined Absalom's earlier rebellion, but he had joined Adonijah's rebellion. So when Joab heard about Adonijah's death, he ran to the sacred tent of the LORD and grabbed on to the horns of the altar. ²⁹When this was reported to King Solomon, he sent Benaiah son of Jehoiada to execute him.

³⁰Benaiah went to the sacred tent of the LORD and said to Joab, "The king orders you to come out!"

But Joab answered, "No, I will die here."

So Benaiah returned to the king and told him what Joab had said.

³¹"Do as he said," the king replied. "Kill him there beside the altar and bury him. This will remove the guilt of Joab's senseless murders from me and from my father's family. ³²The LORD will repay him for the murders of two men who were more righteous and better than he. For my father knew nothing about the deaths of Abner

Acts 13:21-23

In David's charge to Solomon, the aged king admonished his son to keep all of God's requirements in the law of Moses in order to "be successful in all you do and wherever you go" (2:3). Solomon's faithfulness would allow the fulfillment of God's promises to David (2:4; see "God's Covenant with David" at 2 Sam 7:5-16, p. 531). Solomon understood his role as David's successor (2:33; 3:7). Early in his reign, he consciously emulated his father's love for and faithfulness to God (3:3). In his address dedicating the Temple, Solomon acknowledged God as keeping his promises to David (8:23-26), and God often reasserted the inviolability of that covenant (3:14; 9:4-5; 11:38; 15:4).

God ultimately judged Solomon and the subsequent kings of the southern kingdom against the standards of love and faithfulness to the covenant that David demonstrated (11:12-13; 14:8; 15:3-5, 11). God's covenant with Israel at Sinai forms the ethical and spiritual benchmark of the OT. His commendation and blessing or disapproval and judgment were conditioned upon whether people kept or violated his written word (see Deut 28). During the days of the kings, the people of Israel were condemned for willfully turning away from the clear precepts of the Lord contained in the law and spoken through God's prophets (2 Kgs 17:13-17). Their rejection of God resulted in judgment (2 Kgs 17:18-23; 21:11-15).

God's dealings with the kings of Israel still provide an example to those who are now in covenant with God through Christ (cp. Matt 25:21; Luke 16:10-12; John 14:21; 2 Tim 3:14; 4:7-8; Rev 2:10). God's people today are to love the Lord and keep his commandments (John 14:21) and be faithful to him in all things (Matt 25:21; Luke 16:10-12; 2 Tim 3:14; 4:7). Those who follow David's good example of faithfulness (see Acts 13:22) will similarly receive God's praise (cp. Matt 21:9; John 8:29; Heb 13:20-21). Those who confess the name of David's heir (Acts 13:32-37), who have a heart of devotion to God and his word (John 8:29), will seek to live lives that are pure and pleasing to God (Rom 15:16; Heb 13:20-21). They look forward to an abundant, eternal inheritance (2 Tim 4:8; Rev 2:10; cp. Gal 5:21).

2:26-35 Solomon presumed that Adonijah's chief supporters, Abiathar and Joab, remained involved in Adonijah's schemes, so Solomon dealt with them as well.

2:26-27 Abiathar had treasonously supported Adonijah (1:7, 25). But he was deposed rather than killed because he had carried the Ark (2 Sam 15:24, 29, 35), had supported David, and had shared all his hardships. Abiathar's removal from the priesthood fulfilled the Lord's word about the house of Eli in Ithamar's line (1 Sam 2:30-35). Zadok's appointment (4:2) returned the high priesthood to Eleazar's line as it had been before Eli (Num 20:22-28; 25:11-13; 2 Sam 8:17; 1 Chr 6:1-8, 50-53; Ezra 7:2-5) and as it continued throughout the divided monarchy (2 Chr 31:10; Ezek 43:19).

2:28-29 Following Adonijah's example (1:50), Joab hoped to find mercy by grasping the horns of the altar according to the provisions of the law of Moses (Exod 21:12-14; Num 35:22-25; Deut 19:4-5). But because Joab was a murderer, he could not claim clemency (see 2 Sam 3:27; 18:14; 20:10).

2:32 will repay him: Literally will return his blood on his own head.

son of Ner, commander of the army of Israel, and of Amasa son of Jether, commander of the army of Judah. ³³May their blood be on Joab and his descendants forever, and may the LORD grant peace forever to David, his descendants, his dynasty, and his throne."

³⁴So Benaiah son of Jehoiada returned to the sacred tent and killed Joab, and he was buried at his home in the wilderness. ³⁵Then the king appointed Benaiah to command the army in place of Joab, and he installed Zadok the priest to take the place of Abiathar.

³⁶The king then sent for Shimei and told him, "Build a house here in Jerusalem and live there. But don't step outside the city to go anywhere else. ³⁷On the day you so much as cross the Kidron Valley, you will surely die; and your blood will be on your own head."

³⁸Shimei replied, "Your sentence is fair; I will do whatever my lord the king commands." So Shimei lived in Jerusalem for a long time.

³⁹But three years later two of Shimei's slaves ran away to King Achish son of Maacah of Gath. When Shimei learned where they were, ⁴⁰he saddled his donkey and went to Gath to search for them. When he found them, he brought them back to Jerusalem.

⁴¹Solomon heard that Shimei had left Jerusalem and had gone to Gath and returned. ⁴²So the king sent for Shimei and demanded, "Didn't I make you swear by the LORD and warn you not to go anywhere else or you would surely die? And you replied, 'The sentence is fair; I will do as you say.' ⁴³Then why haven't you kept your oath to the LORD and obeyed my command?"

⁴⁴The king also said to Shimei, "You certainly remember all the wicked things you did to my father, David. May the LORD now bring that evil on your own head. ⁴⁵But may I, King Solomon, receive the LORD's blessings, and may one of David's descendants always sit on this throne in the presence of the LORD." ⁴⁶Then, at the king's command, Benaiah son of Jehoiada took Shimei outside and killed him.

So the kingdom was now firmly in Solomon's grip.

Solomon's Great Wisdom (3:1–4:34)

Solomon Asks for Wisdom

1 Kgs 3:1-15 // 2 Chr 1:1-13

3 Solomon made an alliance with Pharaoh, the king of Egypt, and married one of his daughters. He brought her to live in the City of David until he could finish building his palace and the Temple of the LORD and the wall around the city. ²At that time the people of Israel sacrificed their offerings at local places of worship, for a temple honoring the name of the LORD had not yet been built.

³Solomon loved the LORD and followed all the decrees of his father, David, except that Solomon, too, offered sacrifices and burned incense at the local places of worship. ⁴The most important of these places of worship was at Gibeon, so the king went there and sacrificed 1,000 burnt offerings.

2:36-38 The confinement of Shimei prevented him from reaching his kinsmen in Benjamin to stir up trouble for the king.

2:39-46 Shimei's journey to Gath, ostensibly to recover his runaway slaves, violated his agreement. Technically, he did not cross the Kidron Valley in going to Gath, but the penalty was understood by both parties to apply to Shimei's going anywhere else. Because Shimei violated his oath to the LORD (2:42) and because of his past hostilities toward David (2 Sam 16:5-13; 19:16-23), Solomon instructed Benaiah to execute him.

3:1 As was common in the ancient Near East, Solomon sealed a political alliance with the king of Egypt by marrying one of his daughters. The bestowal of an Egyptian princess and the city of Gezer to Solomon as a wedding present (9:16) demonstrated the Egyptians' high regard for him. The pharaoh was probably Siamun, of Egypt's weakened 21st dynasty. The alliance was mutually beneficial: Pharaoh gained access to trade routes through Israel, while Solomon increased security on his southern border. Apparently, Solomon had previously married the Ammonite Naamah (see 11:42-43 with 14:21). • City of David: This section of Jerusalem was the old Jebusite city in the southern portion of the eastern ridge. When Solomon extended his building activities northward, he built a special palace for Pharaoh's daughter (7:8; 9:24; 2 Chr 8:11).

3:2-3 The Ark of the Covenant sat in David's tent in Jerusalem before the Temple was built, and the people . . . sacrificed their offerings at local places of worship (see note on 8:1). However, this detracted from unified worship at a central sanctuary (12:1-24) and increased the danger of mixing with Canaanite religious practices. Israel's worship at such places was forbidden (Deut 12:1-14).

3:4-15 God's gift of wisdom to Solomon is narrated as a chiasm (a symmetrical arrangement in which sections A and B are mirrored by sections B' and A'), drawing the focus in on Solomon's transaction with the Lord:

A: While he sacrificed at Gibeon . . . the LORD appeared to Solomon in a dream (3:4-5).

B: Solomon prayed for wisdom to govern his people equitably and efficiently (3:6-9).

B': The Lord favorably answered his request and granted additional blessings (3:10-14).

A': Solomon awoke from the dream and offered additional sacrifices to the Lord (3:15).

3:4 The city of Gibeon lay six miles northwest of Jerusalem. Its altar, the most important of these [local] places of worship (literally the great high place), accommodated sacrifices of royal proportions. Gibeon was also the site of the Tabernacle (1 Chr 16:39-40; 21:29; 2 Chr 1:2-6).

⁵That night the LORD appeared to Solomon in a dream, and God said, "What do you want? Ask, and I will give it to you!"

⁶Solomon replied, "You showed great and faithful ⁷love to your servant my father, David, because he was honest and true and faithful to you. And you have continued to show this great and faithful ⁸love to him today by giving him a son to sit on his throne.

⁷"Now, O LORD my God, you have made me king instead of my father, David, but I am like a little child who doesn't know his way around. ⁸And here I am in the midst of your own chosen people, a nation so great and numerous they cannot be counted! ⁹Give me an understanding heart so that I can govern your people well and know the difference between right and wrong. For who by himself is able to govern this great people of yours?"

¹⁰The Lord was pleased that Solomon had asked for wisdom. ¹¹So God replied,

"Because you have asked for wisdom in governing my people with justice and have not asked for a long life or wealth or the death of your enemies—¹²I will give you what you asked for! I will give you a wise and understanding ¹³heart such as no one else has had or ever will have! ¹³And I will also give you what you did not ask for—riches and fame! No other king in all the world will be compared to you for the rest of your life! ¹⁴And if you follow me and obey my decrees and my commands as your father, David, did, I will give you a long life."

¹⁵Then Solomon woke up and realized it had been a dream. He returned to Jerusalem and stood before the Ark of the Lord's Covenant, where he sacrificed burnt offerings and peace offerings. Then he invited all his officials to a great banquet.

Jas 1:5

When God gave Solomon the opportunity to ask for anything he wanted, Solomon chose wisdom, "so that I can govern your people well and know the difference between right and wrong" (3:9). In response to this selfless choice, God granted the wisdom he desired (3:12) and the rewards of its proper use (3:13-14).

Solomon's subsequent behavior provided immediate evidence of his wisdom. He resolved an argument over a child (3:16-27) with such insight that the people were "in awe of the king" (3:28). Later, the queen of Sheba came to test him with difficult questions and found his wisdom exceeding all that she had heard about it (10:1-9). His administration (4:1-28), his diplomacy (3:12; 5:1-9), his building projects (5:10-7:51), and his commerce (9:18, 26-28; 10:15-29) all demonstrated his wisdom. Solomon accumulated vast knowledge (4:29-33) and wrote proverbs (the book of Proverbs), songs (Ps 72, 127), love poetry (the Song of Songs), and philosophical literature (Ecclesiastes).

In Chronicles, the wisdom of Solomon (2 Chr 1:7-12) is principally directed toward the building of the Temple (2 Chr 2:12), even as Bezalel had previously been endowed with wisdom to build the Tabernacle (Exod 31:1-3). For the Chronicler, God's gift of wisdom is manifest in Solomon's wealth and honor (2 Chr 1:14-17).

Jesus noted Solomon's great wisdom and reminded his hearers that someone even greater than Solomon was among them (Matt 12:42). Jesus is the true wisdom of God (1 Cor 1:24) in whom one can find ultimate wisdom (Col 2:7). A life of wisdom is centered in Christ (1 Cor 1:18-25; 2 Pet 3:18) and in Scripture (Col 3:16; 2 Tim 3:14-16).

3:6 The Hebrew word translated faithful love (khesed) expresses God's gracious treatment and loving kindness toward humanity (Ps 118:1-2), especially to his covenant nation Israel (Deut 7:9, 12).

3:7-9 The Hebrew term translated little child was often used of someone who lacked experience in his profession ("assistant," 19:21). Solomon humbly recognized his inexperience and his need for an understanding heart. If he desired to govern the people well and render proper decisions, he knew that he needed God's help.

3:10-12 God was pleased with Solomon's unselfish request and granted him a wise and understanding heart. These incomparable qualities are demonstrated in the next section (3:16-28) and as Solomon sets up his administration (ch 4), business dealings, building activities, international relations, and worship practices (chs 5-10).

3:15 Solomon's sacrifice after the dream completes the narrative.

3:16-28 Solomon's judgment concerning the real mother of the living baby illustrates his wisdom in cases of civil jurisprudence. Chapters 4-10 illustrate his wisdom in all areas of his rule.

3:16 prostitutes: While the law condemned prostitution (Lev 19:29; Deut 23:18), it still existed in ancient Israel. Though these women were of the most despised class of women in Israelite society, Solomon demonstrated his kindness and availability to all people by dealing justice to them as mothers, not as prostitutes.

¹⁷"Please, my lord," one of them began, "this woman and I live in the same house. I gave birth to a baby while she was with me in the house. ¹⁸Three days later this woman also had a baby. We were alone; there were only two of us in the house.

¹⁹"But her baby died during the night when she rolled over on it. ²⁰Then she got up in the night and took my son from beside me while I was asleep. She laid her dead child in my arms and took mine to sleep beside her. ²¹And in the morning when I tried to nurse my son, he was dead! But when I looked more closely in the morning light, I saw that it wasn't my son at all."

²²Then the other woman interrupted, "It certainly was your son, and the living child is mine."

"No," the first woman said, "the living child is mine, and the dead one is yours." And so they argued back and forth before the king.

²³Then the king said, "Let's get the facts straight. Both of you claim the living child is yours, and each says that the dead one belongs to the other. ²⁴All right, bring me a sword." So a sword was brought to the king.

²⁵Then he said, "Cut the living child in two, and give half to one woman and half to the other!"

²⁶Then the woman who was the real mother of the living child, and who loved him very much, cried out, "Oh no, my lord! Give her the child—please do not kill him!"

But the other woman said, "All right, he will be neither yours nor mine; divide him between us!"

²⁷Then the king said, "Do not kill the child, but give him to the woman who wants him to live, for she is his mother!"

²⁸When all Israel heard the king's decision, the people were in awe of the king, for they saw the wisdom God had given him for rendering justice.

Solomon's Officials and Governors

4 ⁸King Solomon now ⁸ruled over all Israel, ²and these were his high officials:

Azariah son of Zadok was the priest.

³ Elihoreph and Ahijah, the sons of Shisha, were court secretaries.

Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was the royal historian.

⁴ Benaiah son of Jehoiada was commander of the army.

Zadok and Abiathar were priests.

⁵ Azariah son of Nathan was in charge of the district governors.

Zabud son of Nathan, a priest, was a trusted adviser to the king.

⁶ Ahishar was manager of the palace property. Adoniram son of Abda was in charge of forced labor.

⁷Solomon also had twelve district governors who were over all Israel. They were responsible for providing food for the king's household. Each of them arranged provisions for one month of the year. ⁸These are the names of the twelve governors:

Ben-hur, in the hill country of Ephraim.

⁹ Ben-deker, in Makaz, Shaalbim, Bethshemesh, and Elon-bethhanan.

¹⁰ Ben-hesed, in Arubboth, including Socoh and all the land of Hephher.

¹¹ Ben-abinadab, in all of Naphtoth-dor. (He was married to Taphath, one of Solomon's daughters.)

¹² Baana son of Ahilud, in Taanach and Megiddo, all of Beth-shan near Zarethan below Jezreel, and all the territory from Beth-shan to Abel-meholah and over to Jokmeam.

3:28 Kings often claimed special wisdom and the ability to make just decisions. As God promised, Solomon's wisdom was greater than that of other wise men (4:29-34; 10:6-9, 23-24).

4:2 Because Zadok was now quite old, his grandson (see 1 Chr 6:8-9) Azariah succeeded him as high priest.

4:3 The court secretaries were state officials and Solomon's private secretaries. Shisha, the father of Elihoreph and Ahijah, had served David in this capacity (2 Sam 8:17; 20:25; 1 Chr 18:16).

• The royal historian functioned as chief of protocol for palace affairs and ceremonies. As elsewhere in ancient Egypt and Mesopotamia, such officials often represented the king in important negotiations (see 2 Kgs 18:18; 2 Chr 34:8).

4:4 Benaiah . . . Zadok and Abiathar: All three men had also held special posts in David's administration. Though deposed as high priest (2:26-27), Abiathar still functioned as a priest.

4:5 Two sons of Nathan also served in Solomon's inner circle. Azariah supervised the twelve district governors, while Zabud . . . was a trusted adviser, a post held by Hushai under David (2 Sam 15:37).

4:6 Ahishar functioned as manager of the palace property, an office that became powerful under Uzziah's son Jotham (2 Kgs 15:5). Later, this position was held by Eliakim, one of Hezekiah's representatives, who met with emissaries from King Sennacherib of Assyria during negotiations concerning the siege of Jerusalem (2 Kgs 18:18).

• Adoniram was head of the corvée (the system of forced labor). Samuel had warned about this loathsome institution (1 Sam 8:12-17), and the leaders of Israel later complained about it to Solomon's son Rehoboam (12:4).

4:7-19 The twelve district governors probably handled lesser administrative duties, such as securing revenue and providing food for the king's household. Solomon's twelve districts did not exactly coincide with the old tribal allotments.

4:11 Naphtoth-dor: Hebrew Naphath-dor, a variant spelling of Naphtoth-dor.

4:12 Beth-shan: Hebrew Beth-shean, a variant spelling of Beth-shan; also in 4:12b.

Solomon's Prosperity and Wisdom

1 Kgs 4:21 // 2 Chr 9:26

²⁰The people of Judah and Israel were as numerous as the sand on the seashore. They were very contented, with plenty to eat and drink. ²¹Solomon ruled over all the kingdoms from the Euphrates River in the north to the land of the Philistines and the border of Egypt in the south. The conquered peoples of those lands sent tribute money to Solomon and continued to serve him throughout his lifetime.

²²The daily food requirements for Solomon's palace were 150 bushels of choice flour and 300 bushels of meal; ²³also 10 oxen from the fattening pens, 20 pasture-fed cattle, 100 sheep or goats, as well as deer, gazelles, roe deer, and choice poultry.

◀ Solomon's Administrative Districts, 971-931 BC (4:7-19). Solomon developed Israel's infrastructure and undertook many building projects throughout his vast kingdom. He maintained his lavish household by organizing his kingdom into twelve administrative districts and appointing a governor over each district. Each district was responsible for providing for the king's household for one month each year. • JOKMEAM (4:12) might be identified with Jokneam (as shown here); some scholars would place Jokneam instead along the east side of the JORDAN RIVER near PENIEL.

4:13 Jair of the tribe of Manasseh: Literally Jair son of Manasseh; cp. 1 Chr 2:22.

4:19 of Gilead: Greek version reads of Gad; cp. 4:13. • The last sentence is as in some Greek manuscripts; Hebrew lacks of Judah. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

4:20-21 God's promise to Abraham (Gen 15:18-21; 17:8; 22:17) finds historical fulfillment in his blessing of Solomon. The surrounding lands conquered by David and Solomon (2 Chr 8:3) remained loyal to Solomon. They sent tribute money . . . and continued to serve him throughout his long reign.

4:21-34 Verses 4:21-34 are numbered 5:1-14 in the Hebrew text. • the Euphrates River: Literally the river; also in 4:24.

4:22-23 Solomon's court was enormous and splendid, as indicated by its daily food requirements. • 150 bushels of choice flour and 300 bushels of meal: Hebrew 30 cors [6.6 kiloliters] of choice flour and 60 cors [13.2 kiloliters] of meal. • and choice poultry: Or and fattened geese.

²⁴Solomon's dominion extended over all the kingdoms west of the Euphrates River, from Tiphshah to Gaza. And there was peace on all his borders. ²⁵During the lifetime of Solomon, all of Judah and Israel lived in peace and safety. And from Dan in the north to Beersheba in the south, each family had its own home and garden.

²⁶Solomon had 4,000 stalls for his chariot horses, and he had 12,000 horses.

²⁹God gave Solomon very great ^hwisdom and understanding, and knowledge as vast as the sands of the seashore. ³⁰In fact, his wisdom exceeded that of all the wise men of the East and the wise men of Egypt.

³¹He was wiser than anyone else, including Ethan the Ezrahite and the sons of Mahol—Heman, Calcol, and Darda. His fame spread throughout all the surrounding nations.

³²He composed some 3,000 ^hproverbs and wrote 1,005 songs. ³³He could speak with authority about all kinds of plants, from the great cedar of Lebanon to the tiny hyssop that grows from cracks in a wall. He could also speak about animals, birds, small creatures, and fish. ³⁴And kings from every nation sent their ambassadors to listen to the wisdom of Solomon.

Solomon's Building Activities (5:1–8:66)

Preparations for Building the Temple

1 Kgs 5:1–18 // 2 Chr 2:1–18

5 King Hiram of Tyre had always been a loyal friend of David. When Hiram learned that David's son Solomon was the new king of Israel, he sent ambassadors to congratulate him.

²Then Solomon sent this message back to Hiram:

³"You know that my father, David, was not able to build a Temple to honor the name of the LORD his God because of the many wars waged against him by surrounding nations. He could not build until the LORD gave him victory over all his enemies. ⁴But now the LORD my God has given me peace on every side; I have no enemies, and all is well. ⁵So I am planning to build a Temple to honor the name of the LORD my God, just as he had instructed my father, David. For the LORD told him, 'Your son, whom I will place on your throne, will build the Temple to honor my name.'

4:24-25 each family had its own home and garden (literally each family lived under its own grapevine and under its own fig tree): Solomon's subjects lived under ideal conditions that foreshadowed the coming messianic era (Mic 4:4), enjoying widespread prosperity and tranquility.

4:26 4,000 stalls: As in some Greek manuscripts (see also 2 Chr 9:25); Hebrew reads 40,000 stalls. The number 4,000 reflects the parallel text in 2 Chr 9:25, a suitable number for Solomon's 1,400 chariots (10:26; 2 Chr 1:14).
• 12,000 horses (or 12,000 charioteers): The Hebrew can be translated as "horsemen" (Exod 15:19-21) or "horses" (Joel 2:4). To be prepared for battles, Solomon built towns to accommodate his forces (9:19).

4:29-30 wise men of the East: Babylon was well-known for wise men. Yet Solomon's God-given wisdom (3:9, 12, 28; Prov 1:7; Eccl 12:13) exceeded them all (4:34).

4:31 Ethan and Heman were among the musicians appointed by David (see 1 Chr 6:33-47; 15:16-19; Pss 88; 89). • The sons of Mahol were Temple singers, so Heman, Calcol, and Darda may have participated in the worship services (see 1 Chr 15:17, 19-22).

4:32-34 proverbs . . . songs: Solomon wrote much of the book of Proverbs and composed Pss 72 and 127. His knowledge of plants and animals reflected his careful observation of nature (see Prov 6:6-8). Solomon's wisdom and literary prowess (see Matt 12:42) are reflected in the Song of Songs and Ecclesiastes. No wonder many, including kings (10:1-9), sought the wisdom of Solomon.

5:1-18 Verses 5:1-18 are numbered 5:15-32 in the Hebrew text. • King Hiram of Tyre had . . . been a loyal friend of David (2 Sam 5:11-12). This might mean that the two shared a covenantal relationship (a treaty). Hiram was a valuable ally and commercial partner (5:7-11, 18; 9:11, 26-28; 10:22). His name is a shortened form of Ahiram, a name seen elsewhere in Phoenician inscriptions.

5:2-6 Solomon responded to Hiram by sending word through Hiram's ambassadors that he intended to build a Temple to honor the name of the LORD, following his father David's desire and provisions for its construction (2 Sam 7:1-3; 1 Chr 17:1-15; 22:14-19; 28:9-12).

5:3 gave him victory over all his enemies (literally put them under the soles of his feet): Ancient Near Eastern inscriptions and paintings often depict victorious kings with their feet upon the necks of vanquished foes or with enemies subdued at their feet.

5:4-5 Unlike David, Solomon enjoyed peace [literally rest] on every side. Solomon's name (Hebrew shlomoh) may be a variation of the word for "peace" (Hebrew shalom). • The name of the LORD signifies God's self-revealed character and reputation. The Hebrew term translated the name was sometimes used in oral reading of Scripture so the reader could avoid uttering the personal name of God (the tetragrammaton—YHWH). The NT applies the term "the name" to Jesus (Acts 5:41; 3 Jn 1:7).

5:6 Please command: The main thrust of Solomon's message was his request for cedars from Lebanon, indicating Hiram's wide commercial influence. Ancient Near Eastern literature often cites the use of Lebanese cedars in building and furnishing temples and palaces.
• Sidonians was a general name for Phoenicians; Sidon was more ancient than Tyre.

⁷When Hiram received Solomon's message, he was very pleased and said, "Praise the LORD today for giving David a wise son to be king of the great nation of Israel."

⁸Then he sent this reply to Solomon:

"I have received your message, and I will supply all the cedar and cypress timber you need. ⁹My servants will bring the logs from the Lebanon mountains to the Mediterranean Sea and make them into rafts and float them along the coast to whatever place you choose. Then we will break the rafts apart so you can carry the logs away. You can pay me by supplying me with food for my household."

¹⁰So Hiram supplied as much cedar and cypress timber as Solomon desired. ¹¹In return, Solomon sent him an annual payment of 100,000 bushels of wheat for his household and 110,000 gallons of pure olive oil. ¹²So the LORD gave wisdom to Solomon, just as he had promised. And Hiram and Solomon made a formal alliance of peace.

¹³Then King Solomon conscripted a labor force of 30,000 men from all Israel. ¹⁴He sent them to Lebanon in shifts, 10,000 every month, so that each man would be one month in Lebanon and two months at home. Adoniram was in charge of this labor

One of the Lord's key purposes for his people is that they offer him pure worship. From the beginning of God's relationship with Israel, he made provision for their worship of him to be pleasing to him (Exod 20-40; Lev 1-8). When Solomon built the Temple as a permanent worship sanctuary, he took great care to erect "a Temple to honor the name of the LORD" (5:3-5). He built in accordance with the pattern he was given, placing the Ark in the inner sanctuary in the proper manner and dedicating the Temple to the Lord (8:1-11; see Deut 16:13-17). In all of this, Solomon kept the requirements laid down in the law (see, e.g., Exod 25:10-22), which were intended to keep Israel's worship purely focused on the Lord and his word.

Unfortunately, people tend to worship according to their own inclinations rather than according to God's instructions, and Israel was no different. In his later years, Solomon turned away from the Lord to other gods (11:7-8). After Solomon's death, Jeroboam in the north established a competing, idolatrous religion in clear violation of God's law (14:9-10, 15-16). False worship characterized the northern kingdom throughout the reigns of the kings that followed (e.g., 15:26; 16:13, 25-26, 30-34; 21:25-26). Meanwhile, in Judah, the southern kingdom, tolerance for local pagan altars became a persistent spiritual distraction (15:14; 22:43). Neither Judah nor Israel remained pure in their worship of the Lord.

There is but one God whom God's people must worship (8:23; see Deut 5:7, 9; 6:4; John 14:6; Acts 4:12). Our worship must come from a pure heart; we must remain completely faithful to the Lord in dedicated service to him (15:14; 17:1; see Deut 10:12, 20; Ps 24:3-4; Matt 4:10; John 4:24). Our daily and weekly worship of God should have a sense of God's presence, which will be a source of genuine joy (8:56; cp. Ps. 63:1-3; Phil. 4:4). Our whole life should include daily worship of Christ, acknowledging him as Lord (1 Pet 3:15). Just as Israel's Temple was a sanctuary intended to attract all people (8:41-43), believers are the temple of the living God (1 Cor 3:16-17). We are to live so as to attract and motivate others to desire to know the Lord and worship him (Matt 5:16; Acts 2:40-47; 2 Tim 4:5; 1 Pet 2:12). We must not let any idol take God's place in our hearts (1 Jn 5:21).

5:7-12 Hiram's reply to Solomon confirmed and perpetuated the cordial relations that he had with David. The venture was mutually beneficial. Solomon received needed construction materials for the Temple; in return, he supplied necessities for Hiram's household (5:9-10) and paid Hiram's workers (5:6). The passage illustrates the Phoenicians' skillful commercial enterprises and Solomon's immense wealth, and it again emphasizes Solomon's God-given wisdom. The largely commercial venture led to a formal alliance of peace (5:12).

5:7 Praise the Lord: Hiram did not acknowledge Israel's God as his own but, following ancient Near Eastern protocol, he politely recognized Solomon's God (see 10:9; 2 Kgs 18:22-25; Ezra 1:2-4; 6:12; Dan 2:47; 3:29; 6:26-27).

5:9 the Mediterranean Sea: Literally the sea.

5:11 100,000 bushels: Hebrew 20,000 cors [4,400 kiloliters]. • 110,000 gallons: As in Greek version, which reads 20,000 baths [420 kiloliters] (see also 2 Chr

2:10); Hebrew reads 20 cors, about 1,000 gallons or 4.4 kiloliters in volume.

5:13-18 This passage describes Solomon's work force and the division of labor. Forced labor was a common practice in the ancient Near East (see note on 4:6).

5:13 Aliens with permanent residency in Israel comprised the bulk of Solomon's labor force. Native Israelites were apparently temporary supervisors for Solomon's building projects (9:22-23; 11:28).

force. ¹⁵Solomon also had 70,000 common laborers, 80,000 quarry workers in the hill country, ¹⁶and 3,600 foremen to supervise the work. ¹⁷At the king's command, they quarried large blocks of high-quality stone and shaped them to make the foundation of the Temple. ¹⁸Men from the city of Gebal helped Solomon's and Hiram's builders prepare the timber and stone for the Temple.

Solomon Builds the Temple

1 Kgs 6:1-3 // 2 Chr 3:1-4

6 It was in midspring, in the month of Ziv, during the fourth year of Solomon's reign, that he began to construct the Temple of the LORD. This was 480 years after the people of Israel were rescued from their slavery in the land of Egypt.

²The Temple that King Solomon built for the LORD was 90 feet long, 30 feet wide, and 45 feet high. ³The entry room at the front of the Temple was 30 feet wide, running across the entire width of the Temple. It projected outward 15 feet from the front of the Temple. ⁴Solomon also made narrow recessed windows throughout the Temple.

⁵He built a complex of rooms against the outer walls of the Temple, all the way around the sides and rear of the building. ⁶The complex was three stories high, the bottom floor being 7½ feet wide, the second floor 9 feet wide, and the top floor

10½ feet wide. The rooms were connected to the walls of the Temple by beams resting on ledges built out from the wall. So the beams were not inserted into the walls themselves.

⁷The stones used in the construction of the Temple were finished at the quarry, so there was no sound of hammer, ax, or any other iron tool at the building site.

⁸The entrance to the bottom floor was on the south side of the Temple. There were winding stairs going up to the second floor, and another flight of stairs between the second and third floors. ⁹After completing the Temple structure, Solomon put in a ceiling made of cedar beams and planks. ¹⁰As already stated, he built a complex of rooms along the sides of the building, attached to the Temple walls by cedar timbers. Each story of the complex was 7½ feet high.

¹¹Then the LORD gave this message to Solomon: ¹²"Concerning this Temple you are building, if you keep all my decrees and regulations and obey all my commands, I will fulfill through you the promise I made to your father, David. ¹³I will live among the Israelites and will never abandon my people Israel."

5:16 3,600 foremen: As in some Greek manuscripts (see also 2 Chr 2:2, 18); Hebrew reads 3,300. In 2 Chronicles (2 Chr 2:2, 17-18; 8:10) the foremen total 3,600 non-Israelite and 250 Israelite chief supervisors. The numbers in the Hebrew text of 5:16 and 9:23 are 3,300 foremen and 550 chief supervisors. It is possible that 250 of the chief supervisors were Israelites, with 300 non-Israelites holding the same rank.

5:17-18 Large blocks of high-quality stone were probably cut to size (see 7:10) in a quarry near Jerusalem (6:7). The need to handle these massive stones is probably what led Solomon to institute forced labor. The craftsmen included men from . . . Gebal (Byblos), a port known for exporting timber, according to ancient Egyptian inscriptions.

6:1-8:66 The building of the Temple and palace complex and the celebration of the Temple dedication are central to the 1 Kings account of Solomon's era. The Temple, erected to glorify God, was Israel's most important building, so the writer of 1 Kings carefully recorded details of its construction.

6:1 Solomon's fourth year was about 967 BC. Treating the number 480 as representing calendar years yields a date of about 1446 BC for Israel's exodus from Egypt. Those who view the number as symbolic (12 generations times 40 years each) suggest that the Exodus occurred at a later date, around 1270 BC (see "Chronology: Abraham to Joshua," p. 118). • It was in midspring, in the month of Ziv: Literally It was in the month of Ziv, which is the second month. This month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar usually occurs within the months of April and May.

6:2 Like the Tabernacle before it, the Temple (literally house) was the place where God met with his people. David had stored up materials to be used in its construction (1 Chr 22:2-4, 14) and had drawn up plans for the Temple and given them to Solomon (1 Chr 28:11-12). The Temple's floor plan resembled that of the Tabernacle but doubled its length and width and increased its height (cp. Exod 26:3, 15-30; 36:26-34). • 90 feet long, 30 feet wide, and 45 feet high: Hebrew 60 cubits [27.6 meters] long, 20 cubits [9.2 meters] wide, and 30 cubits [13.8 meters] high.

6:3-4 Unlike the Tabernacle, the Temple had an east entry room (or porch) and two freestanding pillars before the entrance (7:15-22).

6:3 30 feet: Hebrew 20 cubits [9.2 meters]; also in 6:16, 20. • 15 feet: Hebrew 10 cubits [4.6 meters].

6:6 the bottom floor . . . wide: Hebrew the bottom floor being 5 cubits [2.3 meters] wide, the second floor 6 cubits [2.8 meters] wide, and the top floor 7 cubits [3.2 meters] wide.

6:8 the bottom floor: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads middle floor.

6:10 7½ feet: Hebrew 5 cubits [2.3 meters].

6:11-13 The LORD had an encouraging message for Solomon. Because God appeared to Solomon before (3:5) and after (9:2) this event, this message probably came to him by a prophet. The words reminded the king of God's prior promise (3:14): If Solomon remained faithful to God, the Temple that he was building would become an eternal dwelling place for God.

6:14-35 The focus shifts to the Temple interior. While the Temple site is not mentioned here, the Chronicler located it at the former threshing floor of Araunah (1 Chr 21:18-25; 2 Chr 3:1). This site is traditionally thought to be the location of Mount Moriah (Gen 22:2). Solomon's Temple was in the northeastern corner of Jerusalem (now called the "old city") in the area now associated with the Dome of the Rock.

▲ Solomon's Temple, 967~586 bc (6:1-9:1 // 2 Chr 3:1-5:14). It took Solomon seven years to build the Temple in Jerusalem, beginning in the fourth year of his reign (967 bc). The Temple, laid out like the Tabernacle before it, stood until Jerusalem was destroyed in 586 bc. This drawing is one rendition of how Solomon's Temple might have been designed.

6:15-18 paneled with wood: the interior walls were paneled with cedar from floor to ceiling so that no exterior stones could be seen. The effect was exquisitely beautiful, reflecting painstaking care and great expense.

6:17 60 feet: Hebrew 40 cubits [18.4 meters].

6:19-22 Following the pattern of the Tabernacle, the inner sanctuary, which was overlaid . . . inside with solid gold, was separated from the main room of the Temple by a curtain (2 Chr 3:14) and gold chains. Like the Most Holy Place in the Tabernacle, the inner sanctuary was a perfect cube. It housed the Ark of the Lord's Covenant that symbolized God's presence. The place of atonement was atop the Ark (Exod 25:17); the high priest annually made propitiation for the Israelites by sprinkling the sacrificial blood of the atonement on it (Lev 16:1-19). • The altar that belonged to the Most Holy Place stood in the main room. The priests burned incense there daily (Exod 30:34-38; 37:25-29). The altar was made of cedar and covered with gold. • Like the inner sanctuary, the main room was also completely overlaid with gold, which reminded the priests that Almighty God was present. The main room also housed ten golden lampstands, ten tables (2 Chr 4:7-8), and other furnishings (7:48-50).

of the LORD's Covenant would be placed. ²⁰This inner sanctuary was 30 feet long, 30 feet wide, and 30 feet high. He overlaid the inside with solid gold. He also overlaid the altar made of cedar. ²¹Then Solomon overlaid the rest of the Temple's interior with solid gold, and he made gold chains to protect the entrance to the Most Holy Place. ²²So he finished overlaying the entire Temple with gold, including the altar that belonged to the Most Holy Place.

²³He made two ¹cherubim of wild olive wood, each 15 feet tall, and placed them in the inner sanctuary. ²⁴The wingspan of each of the cherubim was 15 feet, each wing being 7½ feet long. ²⁵The two cherubim were identical in shape and size; ²⁶each was 15 feet tall. ²⁷He placed them side by side in the inner sanctuary of the Temple. Their outspread wings reached from wall to wall, while their inner wings touched at the center of the room. ²⁸He overlaid the two cherubim with gold.

²⁹He decorated all the walls of the inner sanctuary and the main room with carvings of cherubim, palm trees, and open flowers. ³⁰He overlaid the floor in both rooms with gold.

³¹For the entrance to the inner sanctuary, he made double doors of wild olive wood with five-sided doorposts. ³²These double doors were decorated with carvings of cherubim, palm trees, and open flowers. The doors, including the decorations of cherubim and palm trees, were overlaid with gold.

³³Then he made four-sided doorposts of wild olive wood for the entrance to the Temple. ³⁴There were two folding doors of cypress wood, and each door was hinged to fold back upon itself. ³⁵These doors were decorated with carvings of cherubim, palm trees, and open flowers—all overlaid evenly with gold.

³⁶The walls of the inner courtyard were built so that there was one layer of cedar beams between every three layers of finished stone.

³⁷The foundation of the LORD's Temple was laid in midspring, in the month of Ziv, during the fourth year of Solomon's reign. ³⁸The entire building was completed in every detail by midautumn, in the month of Bul, during the eleventh year of his reign. So it took seven years to build the Temple.

Solomon Builds His Palace

7 Solomon also built a palace for himself, and it took him thirteen years to complete the construction.

²One of Solomon's buildings was called the Palace of the Forest of Lebanon. It was 150 feet long, 75 feet wide, and 45 feet high. There were four rows of cedar pillars, and great cedar beams rested on the pillars. ³The hall had a cedar roof. Above the beams on the pillars were forty-five side rooms, arranged in three tiers of fifteen each. ⁴On each end of the long hall were three rows of windows facing each other. ⁵All the doorways and doorposts had rectangular 6:23-28 In the inner sanctuary were two cherubim (see note on 1 Chr 28:18) made of olive wood and overlaid . . . with gold. Standing like sentries facing the door (2 Chr 3:13), their combined wingspan reached from wall to wall. Along with the two smaller cherubim facing each other atop the Ark (Exod 25:17-21), they symbolized the awesome presence of the Most Holy God.

6:36-38 The inner courtyard surrounding the Temple was restricted to the priests (2 Chr 4:9) and contained the bronze altar (2 Chr 4:1), the bronze Sea (7:23-26; 2 Chr 4:2-5), and ten carts that could hold ten basins of water for purification (7:27-40; 2 Chr 4:6).

6:37 was laid in midspring, in the month of Ziv: Literally was laid in the month of Ziv. This month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar usually occurs within the months of April and May. See "Israel's Annual Calendar" at Exod 12:2, p. 145.

6:38 midautumn, in the month of Bul: Literally by the month of Bul, which is the eighth month. This month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar usually occurs within the months of October and November. The year was 960 BC.

7:1-12 Before describing the Temple's furnishings, the writer mentions the construction of Solomon's palace complex. The multiple buildings within this complex took nearly twice as long to build (thirteen years) as the Temple

(seven years, 6:38). The entire building project took twenty years (9:16). Although construction details are brief, archaeological discovery of two of Solomon's buildings provides an idea of how this palace might have looked. Despite its grandeur, Solomon's palace is not the author's focus; his interest is in the Temple, God's dwelling place.

7:2-5 The Palace of the Forest of Lebanon was named for the abundant use of cedar in its construction. It would house 300 gold shields (10:16-17) and possibly served as both treasury and armory (see 12:25-28; Isa 22:8). The Egyptian Pharaoh Shishak later carried away the shields as booty (14:27).

frames and were arranged in sets of three, facing each other.

⁶Solomon also built the Hall of Pillars, which was 75 feet long and 45 feet wide. There was a porch in front, along with a canopy supported by pillars.

⁷Solomon also built the throne room, known as the Hall of Justice, where he sat to hear legal matters. It was paneled with cedar from floor to ceiling. ⁸Solomon's living quarters surrounded a courtyard behind this hall, and they were constructed the same way. He also built similar living quarters for Pharaoh's daughter, whom he had married.

⁹From foundation to eaves, all these buildings were built from huge blocks of high-quality stone, cut with saws and trimmed to exact measure on all sides. ¹⁰Some of the huge foundation stones were 15 feet long, and some were 12 feet long. ¹¹The blocks of high-quality stone used in the walls were also cut to measure, and cedar beams were also used. ¹²The walls of the great courtyard were built so that there was one layer of cedar beams between every three layers of finished stone, just like the walls of the inner courtyard of the LORD's Temple with its entry room.

Furnishings for the Temple

¹³King Solomon then asked for a man named Hiram to come from Tyre. ¹⁴He was half Israelite, since his mother was a widow from the tribe of Naphtali, and his father had been a craftsman in bronze from Tyre. Hiram was extremely skillful and talented in any work in bronze, and he came to do all the metal work for King Solomon.

Hiram's Craftsmanship

1 Kgs 7:15-26// 2 Chr 3:15-4:5
1 Kgs 7:38-39// 2 Chr 4:6, 10

¹⁵Hiram cast two bronze pillars, each 27 feet tall and 18 feet in circumference. ¹⁶For the tops of the pillars he cast bronze capitals, each 7½ feet tall. ¹⁷Each capital was decorated with seven sets of latticework and interwoven chains. ¹⁸He also encircled the latticework with two rows of pomegranates to decorate the capitals over the pillars. ¹⁹The capitals on the columns inside the entry room were shaped like water lilies, and they were six feet tall. ²⁰The capitals on the two pillars had 200 pomegranates in two rows around them, beside the rounded surface next to the latticework. ²¹Hiram set the pillars at the entrance of the Temple, one toward the south and one toward the north. He named the one on the south Jakin, and the one on the north Boaz. ²²The capitals on the pillars were shaped like water lilies. And so the work on the pillars was finished.

²³Then Hiram cast a great round basin, 15 feet across from rim to rim, called the 7:5 the doorways and doorposts: Greek version reads windows.

7:6-8 The Hall of Pillars was apparently a colonnaded entry to the Hall of Justice, where Solomon sat to hear legal matters (see also 10:18-20). Similar throne rooms have been found in Syria and Mesopotamia. • Solomon erected separate living quarters for Pharaoh's daughter (see 3:1; 9:24; 2 Chr 8:11).

7:6 75 feet long and 45 feet wide: Hebrew 50 cubits [23 meters] long and 30 cubits [13.8 meters] wide.

7:7 from floor to ceiling: As in Syriac version and Latin Vulgate; Hebrew reads from floor to floor.

7:9-11 As with the Temple, the stones for Solomon's palace complex were high-quality stone, cut . . . and trimmed to exact specifications. Similar stonework has been found at Megiddo. Cedar beams between the courses of the wall provided better protection against earthquakes.

7:10 15 feet . . . 12 feet: Hebrew 10 cubits [4.6 meters] . . . 8 cubits [3.7 meters].

7:12 The great courtyard that encircled the Temple and palace complex provided a gathering place for the people (see Jer 7:1-2; 36:10).

7:13-14 Hiram: Hebrew Hiram (also in 7:40, 45); cp. 2 Chr 2:13. This is not the same person mentioned in 5:1. Like his father, he was a master craftsman in bronze and other materials (2 Chr 2:12-14). His skillful metal work is detailed in the following verses (7:15-50). • skillful and talented (literally filled with wisdom and understanding and knowledge): The Israelites placed great emphasis on practical skills and considered them a form of wisdom (Prov 22:29).

7:15-22 The two bronze pillars were probably free-standing since the narrator describes them here rather than in the earlier discussion of the Temple structure (6:3-6).

7:15 27 feet tall and 18 feet in circumference: Hebrew 18 cubits [8.3 meters] tall and 12 cubits [5.5 meters] in circumference. Cp. 2 Chr 3:15 and note; see also 2 Kgs 25:17; Jer 52:21.

7:16 7½ feet: Hebrew 5 cubits [2.3 meters]. Cp. 2 Kgs 25:17 and note.

7:19 six feet: Hebrew 4 cubits [1.8 meters]; also in 7:38.

7:21 Jakin probably means "he establishes"; Boaz probably means "in him is strength." The names of the pillars might represent Solomon's dedication to God in ruling his empire.

7:23-26 The giant bronze basin called the Sea replaced the smaller bronze washbasin used in the Tabernacle service (see Exod 30:17-21). The Sea was cast as one solid piece, excluding the twelve bronze oxen on which it sat. The oxen were placed so that three faced each direction, perhaps to remind priests that they served God on behalf of all twelve tribes of Israel. Ahaz later replaced the oxen with a stone base (2 Kgs 16:17). The priests used the Sea, like the bronze washbasin before it, for ceremonial washing (2 Chr 4:6) as they prepared to minister before God (see Exod 30:17-21). The apparent discrepancy in the volume of water it could hold (see 2 Chr 4:5) is probably due to standards of measurement that varied according to place and time.

7:23 15 feet across . . . 7½ feet deep and about 45 feet in circumference: Hebrew 10 cubits [4.6 meters] across . . . 5 cubits [2.3 meters] deep and 30 cubits [13.8 meters] in circumference.

Sea. It was 7½ feet deep and about 45 feet in circumference. ²⁴It was encircled just below its rim by two rows of decorative gourds. There were about six gourds per foot all the way around, and they were cast as part of the basin.

²⁵The Sea was placed on a base of twelve bronze oxen, all facing outward. Three faced north, three faced west, three faced south, and three faced east, and the Sea rested on them. ²⁶The walls of the Sea were about three inches thick, and its rim flared out like a cup and resembled a water lily blossom. It could hold about 11,000 gallons of water.

²⁷Huram also made ten bronze water carts, each 6 feet long, 6 feet wide, and 4½ feet tall. ²⁸They were constructed with side panels braced with crossbars. ²⁹Both the panels and the crossbars were decorated with carved lions, oxen, and cherubim. Above and below the lions and oxen were wreath decorations. ³⁰Each of these carts had four bronze wheels and bronze axles. There were supporting posts for the bronze basins at the corners of the carts; these supports were decorated on each side with carvings of wreaths. ³¹The top of each cart had a rounded frame for the basin. It projected 1½ feet above the cart's top like a round pedestal, and its opening was 2¼ feet across; it was decorated on the outside with carvings of wreaths. The panels of the carts were square, not round. ³²Under the panels were four wheels that were connected to axles that had been cast as one unit with the cart. The wheels were 2¼ feet in diameter ³³and were similar to chariot wheels. The axles, spokes, rims, and hubs were all cast from molten bronze.

³⁴There were handles at each of the four corners of the carts, and these, too, were cast as one unit with the cart. ³⁵Around the top of each cart was a rim nine inches wide. The corner supports and side panels were cast as one unit with the cart. ³⁶Carvings of cherubim, lions, and palm trees decorated the panels and corner supports wherever there was room, and there were wreaths all around. ³⁷All ten water carts were the same size and were made alike, for each was cast from the same mold.

³⁸Huram also made ten smaller bronze basins, one for each cart. Each basin was six feet across and could hold 220 gallons of water. ³⁹He set five water carts on the south side of the Temple and five on the north side. The great bronze basin called the Sea was placed near the southeast corner of the Temple. ⁴⁰He also made the necessary washbasins, shovels, and bowls.

The Completion of the Temple

1 Kgs 7:40-51 // 2 Chr 4:11-5:1

So at last Hiram completed everything King Solomon had assigned him to make for the Temple of the LORD:

- ⁴¹ the two pillars;
- the two bowl-shaped capitals on top of the pillars;
- the two networks of interwoven chains that decorated the capitals;
- ⁴² the 400 pomegranates that hung from the chains on the capitals (two rows of pomegranates for each of the chain networks that decorated the capitals on top of the pillars);
- ⁴³ the ten water carts holding the ten basins;
- ⁴⁴ the Sea and the twelve oxen under it;
- ⁴⁵ the ash buckets, the shovels, and the bowls.

Huram made all these things of burnished bronze for the Temple of the LORD, just as King Solomon had directed. ⁴⁶The king had them cast in clay molds in the Jordan Valley between Succoth and Zarethan. ⁴⁷Solomon did not weigh all these things because there were so many; the weight of the bronze could not be measured.

⁴⁸Solomon also made all the furnishings of the Temple of the LORD:

7:24 six gourds per foot: Or 20 gourds per meter; Hebrew reads 10 per cubit.

7:25 twelve bronze oxen: Hebrew 12 oxen; cp. 2 Kgs 16:17, which specifies bronze oxen.

7:26 about three inches: Hebrew a hand-breadth [8 centimeters]. • 11,000 gallons: Hebrew 2,000 baths [42 kiloliters].

7:27-39 The ten bronze water carts each held a basin for rinsing burnt offerings (2 Chr 4:6). Five stood on either side of the Temple. Because they had wheels, they could be moved as needed.

7:27 6 feet long, 6 feet wide, and 4½ feet tall: Hebrew 4 cubits [1.8 meters] long, 4 cubits wide, and 3 cubits [1.4 meters] high.

7:31 1½ feet: Hebrew a cubit [46 centimeters]. • 2¼ feet: Hebrew 1½ cubits [69 centimeters]; also in 7:32.

7:35 nine inches wide: Hebrew half a cubit wide [23 centimeters].

7:38 220 gallons: Hebrew 40 baths [840 liters].

7:40-45 Hiram had great skill in casting items of varying size and complexity.

He also made the bronze altar for the inner court that was used for burnt offerings (2 Chr 4:1).

7:46-47 between Succoth and Zarethan: This area east of the Jordan River (see Josh 3:16; Judg 8:4-5) was known for metallurgy. Abundant clay for molds, wood for fuel, and a prevailing north wind facilitated the casting process.

7:48-49 The gold altar replaced the altar for burning incense used in the Tabernacle (Exod 30:1-10). The one table and one lampstand used in the Tabernacle (Exod 25:23-40) were ⁵¹ So King Solomon finished all his work on the Temple of the LORD. Then he brought all the gifts his father, David, had dedicated—the silver, the gold, and the various articles—and he stored them in the treasuries of the LORD's Temple.

The Ark Brought to the Temple

1 Kgs 8:1-11 // 2 Chr 5:2-14

8 Solomon then summoned to Jerusalem the elders of Israel and all the heads of the tribes—the leaders of the ancestral families of the Israelites. They were to bring the ^kArk of the LORD's Covenant to the Temple from its location in the City of David, also known as Zion. ²So all the men of Israel assembled before King Solomon at the annual Festival of Shelters, which is held in early autumn in the month of Ethanim.

³When all the elders of Israel arrived, the priests picked up the Ark. ⁴The priests and Levites brought up the Ark of the LORD along with the special tent and all the sacred items that had been in it. ⁵There, before the Ark, King Solomon and the entire community of Israel ^asacrificed so many sheep, goats, and cattle that no one could keep count!

⁶Then the priests carried the Ark of the LORD's Covenant into the inner sanctuary of the Temple—the Most Holy Place—and placed it beneath the wings of the cherubim. ⁷The cherubim spread their wings over the Ark, forming a canopy over the Ark and its carrying poles. ⁸These poles were so long that their ends could be seen from the Holy Place, which is in front of the Most Holy Place, but not from the outside. They are still there to this day. ⁹Nothing was in the Ark except the two stone tablets that Moses had placed in it at Mount Sinai, where the LORD made a covenant with the people of Israel when they left the land of Egypt.

¹⁰When the priests came out of the Holy Place, a thick cloud filled the Temple of the replaced by ten such sets in the Temple. Although the author lists a single gold table for the Bread of the Presence, the Chronicler reports ten tables, five on each side of the Temple's main room (cp. 2 Chr 4:8), along with ten lampstands of solid gold. The bread represented God's provision for his people, and the lampstand characterized God as the source of life and truth. Both symbols pointed to Christ, the bread of life (John 6:35) and the light of the world (John 8:12).

7:50-51 The writer emphasizes Solomon's abundant use of gold in furnishing the Temple. David and the people had collected an enormous amount of gold to be used for the Temple (1 Chr 29:1-9), and Solomon also amassed gold annually (10:14), so he had a ready supply (see 10:21).

8:1-66 Solomon's building activities climaxed with the Ark's move to the newly erected Temple. The king offered both prayer (8:22-53) and words of praise and blessing (8:56-61) to dedicate the Temple for the Lord's service. After the dedication, the assembled gathering enjoyed the great Festival of Shelters. The focus of the account is on Solomon praising God and blessing the people (8:12-61).

8:1 The Ark was being kept in a tent in the City of David (2 Sam 6:3-17; 1 Chr 13:7-14; 15:1-16:43). Solomon had gone there earlier to sacrifice after the Lord appeared to him in a dream in Gibeon (3:4-15).

8:2 Although the Temple was completed in the eighth month (6:38), Solomon apparently delayed the dedication until the following year so it could take place at the annual Festival of Shelters, which is held in early autumn in the month of Ethanim (literally at the festival in the month Ethanim, which is the seventh month). The Festival of Shelters began on the fifteenth day of the seventh month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This day occurred in late September or in October (see "Israel's Festivals" at Lev 23:1-44, p. 235). This schedule allowed time to prepare for the spectacular celebration and gave the occasion double significance. As prescribed in the law, Solomon and the people expressed their gratitude to God for the completed harvest season. They also celebrated the fulfillment of Moses' song of deliverance, which promised that God would one day settle his people in the Promised Land and make his dwelling there (Exod 15:17; Deut 12:10-14). Solomon's dedicatory prayer and blessing may indicate that he was consciously leading his people in covenantal renewal, as prescribed in Deut 31:10-13, in the seventh month of the seventh year of his reign.

8:3-4 The priests and Levites brought up the Ark of the LORD as prescribed in the law (Exod 25:14-15; Num 4:5-8; cp. 2 Sam 6:1-15).

8:4 the special tent: Literally the Tent of Meeting; i.e., the tent mentioned in 2 Sam 6:17 and 1 Chr 16:1.

8:5 The incalculable sacrifices by the Israelites marked both the joy and the solemnity of this occasion.

8:8 In accordance with the law (Exod 25:15), the carrying poles were required to stay with the Ark.

8:9 The focus on the two stone tablets that Moses placed in the Ark (cp. 8:21; see Exod 25:21; Deut 31:26) suggests that Solomon had in mind both a renewal of the Mosaic covenant and the Temple dedication. • at Mount Sinai: Hebrew at Horeb, another name for Sinai (see note on Exod 3:1).

8:10-11 As the priests came out of the Holy Place, they were greeted with music praising the Lord (2 Chr 5:11-14). Previously, the glorious presence of the LORD had filled the Tabernacle (Exod 40:34-35). Now it filled the Temple to show that God was again dwelling among his people. Ezekiel recorded LORD. ¹¹The priests could not continue their service because of the cloud, for the glorious presence of the LORD filled the Temple of the LORD.

Solomon Praises the LORD

1 Kgs 8:12-21 // 2 Chr 6:1-11

¹²Then Solomon prayed, "O LORD, you have said that you would live in a thick cloud of darkness. ¹³Now I have built a glorious Temple for you, a place where you can live forever!"

¹⁴Then the king turned around to the entire community of Israel standing before him and gave this ^ablessing: ¹⁵"Praise the LORD, the God of Israel, who has kept the promise he made to my father, David. For he told my father, ¹⁶'From the day I brought my people Israel out of Egypt, I have never chosen a city among any of the tribes of Israel as the place where a Temple should be built to honor my name. But I have chosen David to be king over my people Israel.'"

¹⁷Then Solomon said, "My father, David, wanted to build this Temple to honor the name of the LORD, the God of Israel. ¹⁸But the LORD told him, 'You wanted to build the Temple to honor my name. Your intention is good, ¹⁹but you are not the one to do it. One of your own sons will build the Temple to honor me.'

²⁰"And now the LORD has fulfilled the promise he made, for I have become king in my father's place, and now I sit on the throne of Israel, just as the LORD promised. I have built this Temple to honor the name of the LORD, the God of Israel. ²¹And I have prepared a place there for the Ark, which contains the covenant that the LORD made with our ancestors when he brought them out of Egypt."

Solomon's Prayer of Dedication

1 Kgs 8:22-53 // 2 Chr 6:12-40

²²Then Solomon stood before the altar of the LORD in front of the entire community of Israel. He lifted his hands toward heaven, ²³and he prayed,

"O LORD, God of Israel, there is no God like you in all of heaven above or on the earth below. You keep your covenant and show unfailing love to all who walk before you in wholehearted devotion.

²⁴You have kept your promise to your servant David, my father. You made that promise with your own mouth, and with your own hands you have fulfilled it today.

²⁵"And now, O LORD, God of Israel, carry out the additional promise you made to your servant David, my father. For you said to him, 'If your descendants guard their behavior and faithfully follow me as you have done, one of them will always sit on the throne of Israel.'

²⁶Now, O God of Israel, fulfill this promise to your servant David, my father.

²⁷"But will God really live on earth? Why, even the highest heavens cannot contain you. How much less this Temple I have built! ²⁸Nevertheless, listen to my prayer and my ^cplea, O LORD my God. Hear the cry and the prayer that your servant is making to you today. ²⁹May you watch over this Temple night and day, this place where you have said, 'My its later departure from the Temple (Ezek 10:18-19), to return at a blessed future time (Ezek 43:1-5). In the NT, John wrote that God dwells among his people through his son, Jesus Christ (John 1:14). Paul affirmed that Christ now dwells in each believer (Col 1:27) as a foretaste of a future when "God's home is . . . among his people" (Rev 21:3).

8:12-21 Solomon began with prayer (8:12-13), then blessed the people while praising God for fulfilling his promises (8:14-21). As in many praise psalms, Solomon elevated God, subordinated himself, and testified to God's great goodness.

8:12-13 thick cloud of darkness: Solomon recognized the cloud filling the inner sanctuary as a manifestation of God's presence, but he also understood that God could not be contained in a man-made Temple (see 8:27). Solomon fulfilled his commission to build the Temple (8:19; 1 Chr 28:10), believing the promises that God would dwell in the sanctuary (see Exod 15:17).

8:13 Some Greek texts add the line Is this not written in the Book of Jashar? See Josh 10:13 and 2 Sam 1:18 and notes.

8:14-16 Solomon's blessing was expressed as praise to God, who had kept his covenant promises and blessed his people (see 2 Sam 7:12-16; cp. 2 Chr 6:1-11).

8:22-61 Like Solomon's preceding prayer, his prayer of dedication for the Temple praised God and blessed the people. He emphasized God's covenant faithfulness and his own role in building the Temple and prayed for God's continued response to their prayers (8:22-30). Solomon then made seven distinct petitions to God (8:31-53) and concluded with a blessing (8:54-61).

8:22 As Solomon prayed, he lifted his hands toward heaven and knelt before the Lord on a platform erected in clear view of the congregation (8:54; 2 Chr 6:13). Jesus condemned hypocritical individuals that displayed religiosity without true, heartfelt belief (Matt 6:5-8). But Solomon's public piety was genuine, leading his people in worship and encouraging them to live in full dependence upon God. The nation that knows and obeys the Lord, and whose leaders rule in righteousness, is particularly blessed (2 Chr 7:14; Ps 33:12; 45:6-7; 144:15; Prov 29:2; Isa 11:1-5).

8:23-26 Solomon's prayer affirmed God's incomparable nature and the fulfillment of his promises to David. Solomon also prayed that God would keep his promise that David's descendants . . . will always sit on the throne.

8:29-51 Solomon asked God to hear the prayers of his people from the Temple.

³⁰May you hear the humble and earnest requests from me and your people Israel when we pray toward this place. Yes, hear us from heaven where you live, and when you hear, forgive.

³³"If your people Israel are defeated by their enemies because they have Land was extremely important to a largely agrarian society such as ancient Israel. As a key provision of God's covenant with them, Israel was given the privilege and responsibility of living in the land of Canaan, God's own land (8:33-40; see also Deut 28). The land was part of Israel's relationship with God: God had promised this land to Abraham and his descendants (Gen 12:1-3; 13:14-17). Throughout the period from Joshua through Chronicles, the nation of Israel lived in the land as its custodians and earthly possessors (4:17-19; 15:12; 22:46; see Ps 24:1; 89:11). The land was Israel's "special possession" (Deut 4:21), given by God, who required their fidelity (Deut 4:40). God expected the people to be proper stewards of the land and to serve him faithfully.

Solomon understood his people's propensity to sin and the judgment that would result (8:30-40, 46). Therefore, he asked that when the people prayed from a repentant heart, God would forgive them and restore the ancestral land that was their everlasting gift (8:46-51). Unfortunately, they turned to their own ways, serving pagan gods and self (2 Kgs 17:7-17). So God allowed foreign nations to gradually take away Israel's ownership of the land (e.g., 2 Kgs 8:20-22; 13:1-3; 17:3). Through these events God warned his people that if they failed to respond, they would forfeit the land (2 Kgs 21:8). Sadly, they refused to listen (2 Kgs 21:9). Their unfaithfulness eventually resulted in expulsion from the land (9:7; Lev 26:27-33; 2 Kgs 17:22-23; 25:1-7, 21).

Israel's failure to properly manage the land that God entrusted to them serves as a warning to us. God has redeemed us in Christ Jesus so that we may live faithful and productive lives (John 15:16; Eph 2:4-10; Col 1:11-14). Our infidelity and lack of productivity may cause us to lose our place of service for Christ (John 15:1-2, 6). It is by abiding in him that we "produce much fruit" and grow in our faith (John 15:5; 2 Pet 3:18).

God's people always have a propensity to sin (1 Jn 1:8, 10) and to exclude themselves from the place where God's grace operates freely (Gal 5:4). Nevertheless, God always stands ready to forgive and restore those who turn back to him (1 Jn 1:9) and to reinstate the blessings of his covenant. The one who mediates the new covenant between God and his people (Matt 26:27) is also their advocate in heaven (1 Jn 2:1), the place of permanent blessing with God (see Col 1:12-13; 1 Pet 1:4; Rev 21:1-7).

He then addressed specific instances in which they would need God's answers.

8:31-32 Solomon asked that God render the proper decision and carry out justice in court cases when the litigant's innocence could not be determined due to a lack of witnesses (cp. Exod 22:7-12). Perhaps Solomon realized that later officials would not have the special wisdom God had given him (3:12; e.g., 3:16-27).

8:33-34 Solomon asked concerning future situations when the people of Israel sinned and God allowed the enemy to defeat them (see Lev 26:14-17; Deut 28:15, 25-26, 45, 49; Josh 7) and then the people genuinely repented. Solomon asked that God honor his covenant and forgive them (Lev 26:39-42).

8:35-36 Solomon prayed about drought brought on by the people's sin (Lev 26:19; Deut 28:23-24). If the people confessed and truly repented, Solomon prayed that God would forgive them and restore fertility to the land so that the people would learn to live righteously before God.

³⁷"If there is a famine in the land or a plague or crop disease or attacks of ^alocusts or caterpillars, or if your people's enemies are in the land besieging their towns—whatever disaster or disease there is—³⁸and if your people Israel ^bpray about their troubles, raising their hands toward this Temple, ³⁹then hear from heaven where you live, and forgive. Give your people what their actions deserve, for you alone know each human heart. ⁴⁰Then they will fear you as long as they live in the land you gave to our ancestors.

⁴¹"In the future, foreigners who do not belong to your people Israel will hear of you. They will come from distant lands because of your name, ⁴²for they will hear of your great name and your strong hand and your powerful arm. And when they pray toward this Temple, ⁴³then hear from heaven where you live, and grant what they ask of you. In this way, all the people of the earth will come to know and fear you, just as your own people Israel do. They, too, will know that this Temple I have built honors your name.

⁴⁴"If your people go out where you send them to fight their enemies, and if they pray to the LORD by turning toward this city you have chosen and toward this Temple I have built to honor your name, ⁴⁵then hear their ^cprayers from heaven and uphold their cause.

⁴⁶"If they sin against you—and who has never sinned?—you might become angry with them and let their enemies conquer them and take them captive to their land far away or near. ⁴⁷But in that land of exile, they might turn to you in repentance and pray, 'We have sinned, done evil, and acted wickedly.' ⁴⁸If they turn to you with their whole heart and soul in the land of their enemies and pray toward the land you gave to their ancestors—toward this city you have chosen, and toward this Temple I have built to honor your name—⁴⁹then hear their prayers and their petition from heaven where you live, and uphold their cause. ⁵⁰Forgive your people who have sinned against you. Forgive all the offenses they have committed against you. Make their captors merciful to them, ⁵¹for they are your people—your special possession—whom you brought out of the iron-smelting furnace of Egypt.

⁵²"May your eyes be open to my requests and to the requests of your people Israel. May you hear and answer them whenever they cry out to you. ⁵³For when you brought our ancestors out of Egypt, O Sovereign LORD, you told your servant Moses that you had set Israel apart from all the nations of the earth to be your own special possession."

The Dedication of the Temple

1 Kgs 8:62-66 // 2 Chr 7:4-10

⁵⁴When Solomon finished making these prayers and ^bpetitions to the LORD, he stood up in front of the altar of the LORD, where he had been kneeling with his hands raised toward heaven. ⁵⁵He stood and in a loud voice blessed the entire ^ccongregation of Israel:

⁵⁶"Praise the LORD who has given rest to his people Israel, just as he promised. Not one word has failed of all the wonderful promises he gave through his servant Moses. ⁵⁷May the LORD our God be with us as he was with our ancestors; may he never leave us or abandon us. ⁵⁸May he give us the desire to do his will in everything and to obey

8:37-40 Solomon prayed concerning various disasters caused by individual or corporate sin (Lev 26:16, 19-26; Deut 28:21-22, 38-40, 42, 58-61). If his people confessed and truly repented, Solomon again asked that God deal justly so that all might live in reverence before him (Deut 8:6; 2 Chr 7:14; Prov 1:7; 9:10; 15:33).

8:41-43 Solomon asked that non-Israelites would learn to fear the Lord and live in relationship with him. Solomon realized that Israel must properly represent the Lord to those outside the covenant (see Gen 12:7; Ps 102:15; Hab 2:14; Matt 28:19).

8:44-45 On behalf of those without access to the Temple, particularly when far away fighting for God's cause (Lev 26:7-8; Deut 20:1-4), Solomon asked that God hear their prayers directed toward the Lord and his Temple in Jerusalem (see Dan 6:10).

8:46-51 Solomon prayed concerning a time when Israel might be carried away captive (Lev 26:33). If the people genuinely repented and confessed their sin, Solomon prayed that God would listen, forgive them, and grant them favor with their captors (Lev 26:40-45; 2 Kgs 25:27-30; Dan 6:10; 9:3-19).

8:52-53 Solomon concluded his prayer of dedication with a general petition for God to be accessible to all of Israel and respond to their requests. Returning to the theme of the Exodus (8:16; see also "God's Covenant with Israel's Kings" at 2:2-4, p. 575), Solomon reminded God that he had selected Israel as his special possession (Exod 19:5; Deut 7:6; 14:1-2; 26:18; Ps 135:4; cp. Titus 2:11-14; 1 Pet 2:9-10).

8:54-56 Solomon praised God's faithfulness and goodness to Israel in giving the people rest as promised (see Josh 21:43-45; 23:14; 2 Sam 7:1). Some Israelites failed to appropriate the rest that only God provides (Ps 95:10-11; Heb 3:7-19; 4:1-11).

8:57-61 Solomon asked that God continue to be with his people and mold them into an obedient and faithful nation. Through God's grace and their faithfulness, Israel could experience God's righteous justice and teach people all over the earth that the LORD alone is God.

May you always obey his decrees and commands, just as you are doing today."

⁶²Then the king and all Israel with him offered sacrifices to the LORD. ⁶³Solomon offered to the LORD a peace offering of 22,000 cattle and 120,000 sheep and goats. And so the king and all the people of Israel dedicated the Temple of the LORD.

⁶⁴That same day the king consecrated the central area of the courtyard in front of the LORD's Temple. He offered burnt offerings, grain offerings, and the fat of peace offerings there, because the bronze altar in the LORD's presence was too small to hold all the burnt offerings, grain offerings, and the fat of the peace offerings.

⁶⁵Then Solomon and all Israel celebrated the Festival of Shelters in the presence of the LORD our God. A large congregation had gathered from as far away as Lebo-hamath in the north and the Brook of Egypt in the south. The celebration went on for fourteen days in all—seven days for the dedication of the altar and seven days for the Festival of Shelters. ⁶⁶After the festival was over, Solomon sent the people home. They blessed the king and went to their homes joyful and glad because the LORD had been good to his servant David and to his people Israel.

After Solomon had finished dedicating the Temple, the Lord appeared to him and reminded him that if the people were unfaithful to his covenant, sure judgment would follow (9:6-9). Conversely, if they were faithful, God would dwell among them and never forsake them (6:12-13).

God had called the nation Israel to be his covenant people (8:51-53). Despite this unique identity as God's people, the people of Israel "sacrificed their offerings at local places of worship" (3:2), an expression of their ongoing commitment to pagan worship. Both the northern and southern kingdoms fell into this sin (12:31-32; 13:2, 32-33; 14:22-24; 15:14; 22:43), but the people of the northern kingdom received particular denunciation. Separated from Judah (12:1, 16, 20), they soon followed their corrupt leaders into idolatry and apostate religious practices (12:25-33; 16:2-4, 12-16, 19, 26, 33). They were unfaithful covenant breakers (19:10, 14), and God's judgment was certain to follow (14:15; 21:20-25). Still, God retained a faithful remnant among them (cp. 19:18) and had plans for their future well-being (e.g., Isa 40:1-11).

God still has a people who are his own (1 Cor 1:2; 1 Pet 1:1). God's own people now constitute the temple of God and are to live holy lives (1 Pet 2:9-10; 2 Cor 6:14-7:1), "totally committed to doing good deeds" (Titus 2:14; cp. Heb 12:28). Their assured hope is to live with the Lord forever (1 Thes 4:15-17; Rev 2:3). They have God's promise that he will never forsake them but will always be faithful to his promises to them (John 14:16; 2 Tim 2:13).

8:62-66 The closing sacrifices (see Deut 12:5-14) and the observance of the Festival of Shelters close the narrative frame that was opened with the sacrifices made when the Ark was installed in the Most Holy Place (8:1-11; cp. 2 Chr 7:1-6).

8:65 Lebo-hamath to the north in Aram and the Brook of Egypt (Wadi al Arish) to the south are the geographic boundaries that defined the Promised Land (Josh 13:5; 15:4). * seven days for the dedication of the altar and seven days for the Festival of Shelters: Literally seven days and seven days, fourteen days; cp. parallel text at 2 Chr 7:8-10. When the seven days for the dedication were completed, the Festival of Shelters (literally the festival; see note on 8:2) was observed for another seven days.

8:66 After the festival was over: Literally On the eighth day, probably referring to the day following the seven-day Festival of Shelters; cp. parallel text at 2 Chr 7:9-10.

9:2 The LORD had previously appeared to Solomon when granting his desire for wisdom (3:3-15). The Chronicler provides additional details of God's blessings or judgment, depending on the faithfulness of Solomon and Israel (2 Chr 7:11-22).

9:3-9 The Lord answered Solomon's prayer by reviewing the conditions of the covenant. Obedience would bring prosperity and the Lord's blessing; disobedience could mean utter disaster, including destruction of the city and

⁶“But if you or your descendants abandon me and disobey the commands and decrees I have given you, and if you serve and worship other gods, ⁷then I will uproot Israel from this land that I have given them. I will reject this Temple that I have made holy to honor my name. I will make Israel an object of mockery and ridicule among the nations. ⁸And though this Temple is impressive now, all who pass by will be appalled and will gasp in horror. They will ask, ‘Why did the LORD do such terrible things to this land and to this Temple?’

⁹“And the answer will be, ‘Because his people abandoned the LORD their God, who brought their ancestors out of Egypt, and they worshiped other gods instead and bowed down to them. That is why the LORD has brought all these disasters on them.’”

Solomon's Agreement with Hiram

1 Kgs 9:10-14 // 2 Chr 8:1-2

¹⁰It took Solomon twenty years to build the LORD's Temple and his own royal palace.

At the end of that time, ¹¹he gave twenty towns in the land of Galilee to King Hiram of Tyre. (Hiram had previously provided all the cedar and cypress timber and gold that Solomon had requested.) ¹²But when Hiram came from Tyre to see the towns Solomon had given him, he was not at all pleased with them. ¹³“What kind of towns are these, my brother?” he asked. So Hiram called that area Cabul (which means “worthless”), as it is still known today. ¹⁴Nevertheless, Hiram paid Solomon 9,000 pounds of gold.

Solomon's Many Achievements

1 Kgs 9:17b-28 // 2 Chr 8:3-18

¹⁵This is the account of the forced labor that King Solomon conscripted to build the LORD's Temple, the royal palace, the supporting terraces, the wall of Jerusalem, and the cities of Hazor, Megiddo, and Gezer. ¹⁶(Pharaoh, the king of Egypt, had attacked and captured Gezer, killing the Canaanite population and burning it down. He gave the city to his daughter as a wedding gift when she married Solomon. ¹⁷So Solomon rebuilt the city of Gezer.) He also built up the towns of Lower Beth-horon, ¹⁸Baalath, and Tamar in the wilderness within his land. ¹⁹He built towns as supply centers and constructed towns where his chariots and horses could be stationed. He built everything he desired in Jerusalem and Lebanon and throughout his entire realm.

²⁰There were still some people living in the land who were not Israelites, including Amorites, Hittites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites. ²¹These were descendants of the Temple, and deportation of God's people (see Deut 28:36-37, 63-68). Although God's covenant was irrevocable, receiving its blessings depended upon faithfulness to its terms (Ps 89:24-37).

9:10-14 In Solomon's business agreement with King Hiram, he exchanged wheat and olive oil for timber and gold (5:10-11). When Solomon became indebted to Hiram, he gave him twenty towns in . . . Galilee as compensation. However, Hiram was dissatisfied with the towns, so he returned them to Solomon's control (see 2 Chr 8:2). The two friends settled upon other means of compensation and remained active allies and trading partners (9:26-28; 10:22).

9:14 Nevertheless, Hiram paid: Or For Hiram had paid. • 9,000 pounds: Hebrew 720 talents [4,000 kilograms].

9:15-24 Solomon used forced labor to complete many building projects (4:6; 5:13-18; 9:20-23; 12:4, 18-19; cp. 1 Sam 8:10-18).

9:15 supporting terraces: Hebrew the millo; also in 9:24. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain, but the NLT rendering follows the strong consensus of current research. Solomon strengthened these terraces, which were on a slope of the southeastern ridge in the traditional City of David area of Jerusalem (see 2 Sam 5:9), and the wall of Jerusalem. He also fortified the key cities of Hazor, Megiddo, and Gezer. Archaeological research shows that the walls and gates of all three cities have distinctive traits attributable to Solomon's time. Hazor, in the north, was a first line of defense against invasion. Megiddo, in the Plain of Sharon, also had strategic military importance (2 Kgs 23:29-30; Rev 16:12-16).

9:16 Gezer, west of Jerusalem, was not previously occupied by Israelites. It was conquered by the Egyptian pharaoh and given to his daughter as a wedding gift when she married Solomon. An inscription in the Amon Temple in Tanis, apparently depicting a victory by the 21st dynasty Pharaoh Siamun (978–959 BC) against a Philistine campaign, suggests that Siamun was the pharaoh involved.

9:17-18 Lower Beth-horon was an important defensive site for western Judah. Several cities in Canaan were called Baalath; the one here was probably also known as Kiriath-jearim (2 Sam 6:2; see Josh 15:9; 1 Chr 13:5, 6). Tamar (an alternate reading in the Masoretic Text reads Tadmor; see Ezek 47:19; 48:28) was probably located in the southeastern quarter of the Holy Land.

9:19 and horses: Or and charioteers.

9:20-23 Solomon's conscripted labor force was made up of early Canaanite settlers; 550 chief supervisors supervised these forced laborers, of which 250 were Israelites (2 Chr 8:9-10; see 5:15-16 with 2 Chr 2:17-18).

nations whom the people of Israel had not completely destroyed. So Solomon conscripted them as slaves, and they serve as forced laborers to this day. ²²But Solomon did not conscript any of the Israelites for forced labor. Instead, he assigned them to serve as fighting men, government officials, officers and captains in his army, commanders of his chariots, and charioteers. ²³Solomon appointed 550 of them to supervise the people working on his various projects.

²⁴Solomon moved his wife, Pharaoh's daughter, from the City of David to the new palace he had built for her. Then he constructed the supporting terraces.

²⁵Three times each year Solomon presented burnt offerings and peace offerings on the altar he had built for the LORD. He also burned incense to the LORD. And so he finished the work of building the Temple.

²⁶King Solomon also built a fleet of ships at Ezion-geber, a port near Elath in the land of Edom, along the shore of the Red Sea. ²⁷Hiram sent experienced crews of sailors to sail the ships with Solomon's men. ²⁸They sailed to Ophir and brought back to Solomon some sixteen tons of gold.

The success of government depends on good leadership. Many of the kings whose reigns are narrated in 1 Kings left a record of good accomplishments that stemmed from a solid spiritual commitment. Where a high regard for the Lord's direction in their lives wavered, however, even these kings who received the narrator's commendation experienced failure.

Solomon serves as an example. When he initially encountered the Lord, he petitioned the Lord in humility for God's guidance and wisdom (3:5-9). Therefore, the Lord blessed him with wisdom, honor, and prosperity (3:10-14), which Solomon used to lead Israel well (chs 4-8). When the Lord appeared to him a second time, he commended Solomon (9:1-3) and challenged him to keep following the Lord "with integrity and godliness" (9:4) so that he would continue to experience blessing and success (9:5). God then solemnly warned Solomon what would happen if he abandoned God (9:6-9). The warning foreshadows Solomon's spiritual decline. By the time the Lord appeared to Solomon a third time, his quest for fame and power had led first to tolerance of, then to support for, the pagan practices of his foreign wives (11:1-8). Therefore, the Lord announced the division of the kingdom after Solomon's death (11:9-13).

Solomon's leadership in his early days demonstrates the wisdom of humble reliance on God for wisdom and guidance. Dedication to God made Solomon great, and Israel with him (Prov 14:34). Where leaders and their people humble themselves and pray, God's blessings follow (2 Chr 7:14; 32:20-23). Such leaders will be remembered long after their passing (2 Chr 34:25). God's people are always in need of spiritually dedicated and mature leaders (see 1 Tim 3:1-12; Titus 1:6-9) who rely on God for guidance and wisdom (see Luke 21:15; Acts 6:3, 10).

9:21 completely destroyed: The Hebrew term used here refers to the complete consecration of things or people to the Lord, either by destroying them or by giving them as an offering (see Lev 27:28-29; 1 Sam 15:3).

9:24 The new palace Solomon built for . . . Pharaoh's daughter was separate from Solomon's own residence because his palace was deemed holy, "for the Ark of the LORD has been there" (2 Chr 8:11). The place where the Ark resided was considered sacred, since it embodied God's presence and sanctified its surroundings (Exod 25:22; see also 2 Sam 6:7; 1 Chr 15:11-13).

9:25 Three times each year Solomon provided exemplary leadership for Israel as he presented . . . offerings at the national festivals of Unleavened Bread, Harvest (or Pentecost, or Weeks), and Shelters (Deut 16:16).

9:26-28 The seaport of Ezion-geber was situated on the Gulf of Aqaba, which opens onto the Red Sea. The location of Ophir is uncertain but may have been located in southwestern Arabia, eastern Africa, or India; the mention of gold and other precious commodities (see 10:11-12) indicates its strategic importance for trade.

9:26 Elath: As in Greek version (see also 2 Kgs 14:22; 16:6); Hebrew reads Eloth, a variant spelling of Elath. • Red Sea: Literally sea of reeds.

9:28 sixteen tons: Hebrew 420 talents [14 metric tons].

10:1-13 The queen of Sheba visited to test the accuracy of accounts concerning Solomon's wisdom (10:1, 3, 6-7). She may also have sought commercial partnership (10:2, 10, 13). All of Solomon's accomplishments resulted from his God-given wisdom, as the queen of Sheba testifies in the central speech of the narrative (10:6-9).

10:1 The queen likely heard tales of Solomon's wisdom and wealth because of his trading ventures to Ophir (10:11; see 9:26-28). Sheba, located in southwestern Arabia (modern Yemen), was a notably fertile commercial center. The trading enterprises of the ancient Sabaeans encompassed great swaths of territory, including Syria, Africa, and India. • test . . . with hard questions test him with hard questions. ²She arrived in Jerusalem with a large group of attendants and a great caravan of camels loaded with spices, large quantities of gold, and precious jewels. When she met with Solomon, she talked with him about everything she had on her mind. ³Solomon had answers for all her questions; nothing was too hard for the king to explain to her. ⁴When the queen of Sheba realized how very wise Solomon was, and when she saw the palace he had built, ⁵she was overwhelmed. She was also amazed at the food on his tables, the organization of his officials and their splendid clothing, the cup-bearers, and the burnt offerings Solomon made at the Temple of the LORD.

⁶She exclaimed to the king, "Everything I heard in my country about your achievements and wisdom is true! ⁷I didn't believe what was said until I arrived here and saw it with my own eyes. In fact, I had not heard the half of it! Your wisdom and prosperity are far beyond what I was told. ⁸How happy your people must be! What a privilege for your officials to stand here day after day, listening to your wisdom! ⁹Praise the LORD your God, who delights in you and has placed you on the throne of Israel. Because of the LORD's eternal love for Israel, he has made you king so you can rule with justice and righteousness."

¹⁰Then she gave the king a gift of 9,000 pounds of gold, great quantities of spices, and precious jewels. Never again were so many spices brought in as those the queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon.

¹¹(In addition, Hiram's ships brought gold from Ophir, and they also brought rich cargoes of red sandalwood and precious jewels. ¹²The king used the sandalwood to make railings for the Temple of the LORD and the royal palace, and to construct lyres and harps for the musicians. Never before or since has there been such a supply of sandalwood.)

¹³King Solomon gave the queen of Sheba whatever she asked for, besides all the customary gifts he had so generously given. Then she and all her attendants returned to their own land.

(literally riddles): Arabian literature is famous for its riddles and proverbs. The queen tested Solomon's wisdom and explored perplexities of her own. • which brought honor to the name of the LORD: Or which was due to the name of the LORD. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

10:2 The queen of Sheba arrived as royalty, with a large entourage and camels loaded with precious commodities. This was a high-level meeting, as demonstrated by Solomon's generous gifts to her (10:13).

10:3-5 The queen was satisfied with Solomon's wisdom. He answered all of her questions well, and she was overwhelmed by the applied wisdom in his building activities, well-organized administration and staff, and commitment to his God. Jesus commended the queen's search for truth while condemning the Pharisees and teachers of religious law who failed to recognize him—the one who was greater than Solomon (Matt 12:42).

10:6-9 The queen's testimony confirmed her amazement. Not only was everything she had heard true, but now that she had seen it with her own eyes, she realized that Solomon's accomplishments had been understated. She recognized that the Lord was Solomon's benefactor and that Solomon should steward his God-given wisdom with justice and righteousness.

10:6 your achievements: Literally your words.

10:8 your people: Greek and Syriac versions and Latin Vulgate read your wives.

10:10-12 Solomon possessed and used abundant gold during his reign. What the queen provided supplemented what Solomon already possessed through his trading partnership with Hiram of Tyre. The precious metal was put to good use (see 6:20-22, 28, 30, 32, 35; 7:49-51; 10:18, 21). • Arabian traders dealt in spices such as frankincense and myrrh. Both were used for medicinal purposes; frankincense was also used in the sacred incense (Exod 30:34-38; Lev 2:2), and myrrh was used both for perfume and for embalming the dead. These spices and gold were presented to Jesus by wise men from eastern lands (Matt 2:1-11).

10:10 9,000 pounds: Hebrew 120 talents [4,000 kilograms].

10:11 Sandalwood (literally almug wood; also in 10:12) is a reddish-brown wood native to India and valued for its aromatic essential oil. Cuneiform tablets found at Ras Shamra and Alalakh also indicate its value for making fine furniture and musical instruments.

10:13 whatever she asked for: As befitting a royal host, Solomon reciprocated with gifts. The amicable relationship between Solomon and the queen of Sheba may have culminated in a commercial agreement. Subsequent Jewish, Arabian, and Ethiopian tales of a romantic relationship between them have no foundation in fact.

10:14-29 To further describe Solomon's splendor, the writer builds upon the details of the queen's visit (10:1-13), describing Solomon's wise use of wealth in his palace complex (10:14-21) and concluding with the far-reaching effects of Solomon's wisdom in commercial arrangements (10:22-29).

10:14-15 about 25 tons: Hebrew 666 talents [23 metric tons]. The large amount of gold came from Solomon's various enterprises and taxes; he also levied tolls upon merchants and traders who passed through his kingdom.

10:16-17 Although such shields were typically designed to accommodate infantry (large shields) or archers (smaller shields), these shields probably had ceremonial uses (see note on 7:2-5).

than fifteen pounds. ¹⁷He also made 300 smaller ^kshields of hammered gold, each weighing nearly four pounds. The king placed these shields in the Palace of the Forest of Lebanon.

¹⁸Then the king made a huge ^athrone, decorated with ivory and overlaid with fine gold. ¹⁹The throne had six steps and a rounded back. There were armrests on both sides of the seat, and the figure of a lion stood on each side of the throne. ²⁰There were also twelve other lions, one standing on each end of the six steps. No other throne in all the world could be compared with it!

²¹All of King Solomon's drinking cups were solid gold, as were all the utensils in the Palace of the Forest of Lebanon. They were not made of silver, for silver was considered worthless in Solomon's day!

²²The king had a fleet of trading ships of Tarshish that sailed with Hiram's fleet. Once every three years the ships returned, loaded with gold, silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks.

²³So King Solomon became richer and wiser than any other king on earth. ²⁴People from every nation came to consult him and to hear the wisdom God had given him. ²⁵Year after year everyone who visited brought him gifts of silver and gold, clothing, weapons, spices, horses, and mules.

²⁶Solomon built up a huge force of chariots and horses. He had 1,400 chariots and 12,000 horses. He stationed some of them in the chariot cities and some near him in Jerusalem. ²⁷The king made silver as plentiful in Jerusalem as stone. And valuable cedar timber was as common as the sycamore-fig trees that grow in the foothills of Judah.

◀ Solomon's International Presence, 971–931 bc (9:26–10:29).

Solomon built a fleet of trading ships at EZION-GEBER that brought him gold from OPHIR and other exotic goods from faraway lands. Solomon also conducted international business, buying horses and chariots from EGYPT and CILICIA and reselling them to the Arameans and Hittites. Solomon gained such fame throughout the world that even the queen of SHEBA came to visit him.

power and divine protection of the throne.

10:22 trading ships of Tarshish: The Hebrew term designates a type of merchant ship. • Phoenician sailors manned Solomon's fleet, which put out to sea from Ezion-geber (9:26-28; see Isa 23:1). • apes, and peacocks (or and baboons): Archaeology provides ample evidence that kings imported such creatures. Apparently these animals were desired for their novelty and exotic nature and because they reflected conquest of distant lands.

10:26 1,400 chariots: Prior to Solomon, chariots were not a significant part of Israel's army. In fact, Deut 17:16 condemns kings for accumulating horses rather than relying on God. Although archaeological confirmation of the presence of chariots in Solomon's day is debated, his chariot cities are commonly identified as Hazor, Megiddo, and Gezer (9:15, 19). The Assyrian king Shalmaneser III reported facing a heavy contingent of enemy chariots at the Battle of Qarqar (853 bc), 2,000 of which were supplied by King Ahab of Israel. • horses: Or charioteers; also in 10:26b.

10:16 more than fifteen pounds: Hebrew 600 [shekels] of gold [6.8 kilograms].

10:17 nearly four pounds: Hebrew 3 minas [1.8 kilograms].

10:18-21 Solomon obtained ivory through commercial ventures with Hiram. Ancient Near Eastern kings often used lion figures as symbols of royal ²⁸Solomon's horses were imported from Egypt and from Cilicia; the king's traders acquired them from Cilicia at the standard price. ²⁹At that time chariots from Egypt could be purchased for 600 pieces of silver, and horses for 150 pieces of silver. They were then exported to the kings of the Hittites and the kings of Aram.

Solomon's Decline Amidst Adversaries (11:1-43)

Solomon's Many Wives

11 Now King Solomon loved many foreign women. Besides Pharaoh's daughter, he married women from Moab, Ammon, Edom, Sidon, and from among the Hittites. ²The LORD had clearly instructed the people of Israel, "You must not marry them, because they will turn your hearts to their gods." Yet Solomon insisted on loving them anyway. ³He had 700 wives of royal birth and 300 concubines. And in fact, they did turn his heart away from the LORD.

⁴In Solomon's old age, they turned his heart to worship other gods instead of being completely faithful to the LORD his God, as his father, David, had been. ⁵Solomon worshiped Ashtoreth, the goddess of the Sidonians, and Molech, the detestable god of the Ammonites. ⁶In this way, Solomon did what was evil in the LORD's sight; he refused to follow the LORD completely, as his father, David, had done.

⁷On the Mount of Olives, east of Jerusalem, he even built a pagan shrine for Chemosh, the detestable god of Moab, and another for Molech, the detestable god of the Ammonites. ⁸Solomon built such shrines for all his foreign wives to use for burning incense and sacrificing to their gods.

⁹The LORD was very angry with Solomon, for his heart had turned away from the LORD, the God of Israel, who had appeared to him twice. ¹⁰He had warned Solomon specifically about worshiping other gods, but Solomon did not listen to the LORD's command. ¹¹So now the LORD said to him, "Since you have not kept my covenant and have disobeyed my decrees, I will surely tear the kingdom away from you and give it to one of your servants. ¹²But for the sake of your father, David, I will not do this while you are still alive. I will take the kingdom away from your son. ¹³And even so, I will not take away the entire kingdom; I will let him be king of one tribe, for the sake of my servant David and for the sake of Jerusalem, my chosen city."

Solomon's Adversaries

¹⁴Then the LORD raised up Hadad the Edomite, a member of Edom's royal family, to be Solomon's ^aadversary. ¹⁵Years before, David had defeated Edom. Joab, his army commander, had stayed to bury some of the Israelite soldiers who had died in battle.

11:1-3 In spite of his God-given wisdom, Solomon blatantly violated the law of Moses with his excessive wealth and many wives (see Exod 34:12-17; Deut 7:3-4; 17:17). Taking wives to form foreign alliances compromised Solomon's spiritual commitment, as predicted, and turned his heart away from the LORD. The spiritual and political consequences for his people were disastrous (see 11:4-13; 12:4, 16; 2 Kgs 17:5-23; 25:1-23).

11:4-8 instead of being completely faithful: Although David had committed grievous sin, he genuinely repented when rebuked by God's prophet (2 Sam 11:1-12:23; Ps 51:1-4). However, Solomon failed to heed God's warnings (3:14; 6:12-13; 9:4-9) or to learn from Israel's past; instead, he reproduced their sins.

11:5 Ashtoreth, the Canaanite goddess of love and war, was widely worshiped in the ancient Near East under names such as Ishtar and Astarte. The cult practices associated with Astarte were transmitted to the Greek world in the worship of the goddess Aphrodite. • Rites in the worship of Molech (Hebrew Milcom, a variant spelling of Molech; also in 11:33) the god of the Ammonites, included sacrificing children by fire (11:7; see Lev 20:1-5; 2 Kgs 16:3; 23:5-10; Jer 7:30-33; 19:4-6; 32:35), which the writer properly denounces as detestable.

11:7 The Moabite god Chemosh is mentioned on the Mesha Stela (Moabite Stone) detailing the Moabite-Israelite conflict (see 2 Kgs 3).

11:7 On the Mount of Olives, east of Jerusalem: Literally On the mountain east of Jerusalem.

11:9-10 The LORD . . . had appeared to him twice (3:5-15; 9:1-9): On both occasions, God reminded Solomon of the need to be faithful. When the king failed to heed the Lord's warning about worshiping other gods, he clearly violated the first commandment (Exod 20:3) and God's covenants with both Moses and David.

11:11-13 God announced that the kingdom would be divided, although Solomon's descendants would retain part of it (see 11:32-36).

11:14-40 God delivered Solomon's punishment through three political adversaries, Hadad, Rezon, and Jeroboam (see 11:40).

11:14-22 Solomon's first adversary was Hadad. David had fought against the Edomites and defeated them with a great slaughter (2 Sam 8:13-14; 1 Chr 18:13-14). Hadad was the only member of the Edomite royal house to survive and escape. He had gone to Egypt with a number of followers, where the Egyptian king received him as a potential ally and gave him his wife's sister in marriage. When David and . . . Joab died, Hadad returned to Edom, While there, they killed every male in Edom.

16Joab and the army of Israel had stayed there for six months, killing them.

17But Hadad and a few of his father's royal officials escaped and headed for Egypt. (Hadad was just a boy at the time.)
18They set out from Midian and went to Paran, where others joined them. Then they traveled to Egypt and went to Pharaoh, who gave them a home, food, and some land.
19Pharaoh grew very fond of Hadad, and he gave him his wife's sister in marriage—the sister of Queen Tahpenes. 20She bore him a son named Genuath. Tahpenes raised him in Pharaoh's palace among Pharaoh's own sons.

21When the news reached Hadad in Egypt that David and his commander Joab were both dead, he said to Pharaoh, "Let me return to my own country."

22"Why?" Pharaoh asked him. "What do you lack here that makes you want to go home?"

"Nothing," he replied. "But even so, please let me return home."

23God also raised up Rezon son of Eliada as Solomon's adversary. Rezon had fled from his master, King Hadadezer of Zobah, 24and had become the leader of a gang of rebels. After David conquered Hadadezer, Rezon and his men fled to Damascus, where he became king. 25Rezon was Israel's bitter adversary for the rest of Solomon's reign, and he made trouble, just as Hadad did. Rezon hated Israel intensely and continued to reign in Aram.

Jeroboam Rebels against Solomon

26Another rebel leader was Jeroboam son of Nebat, one of Solomon's own officials. He came from the town of Zeredah in Ephraim, and his mother was Zeruah, a widow.

27This is the story behind his rebellion. Solomon was rebuilding the supporting terraces and repairing the walls of the city of his father, David. 28Jeroboam was a very capable young man, and when Solomon saw how industrious he was, he put him in charge of the labor force from the tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh, the descendants of Joseph.

29One day as Jeroboam was leaving Jerusalem, the prophet Ahijah from Shiloh met him along the way. Ahijah was wearing a new cloak. The two of them were alone in a field, 30and Ahijah took hold of the new cloak he was wearing and tore it into twelve ◀ Solomon's Adversaries (11:14-40). After Solomon "had turned away from the LORD" (11:9-13), the Lord "raised up" adversaries: Hadad from Edom, who had fled to MIDIAN, then PARAN, and on to EGYPT during the time of David; Rezon of Aram, who fled from HAMATH-ZOBACH to DAMASCUS, where he became king; and Jeroboam from the tribe of Ephraim, who also fled to EGYPT until Solomon died.

Solomon campaigned in Hamath-zobah (2 Chr 8:3-4) and eventually became king of Damascus. Like Hadad, Rezon remained a bitter enemy of Israel and was troublesome to Solomon.

11:26-40 Information about Solomon's third adversary, Jeroboam son of Nebat, provides background for the division of the kingdom of Israel (chs 12-14).

11:27-28 Solomon noted the work ethic of Jeroboam during the repair of the city's structures and put him in charge. Jeroboam's status among the laborers may have made him aware of brewing discontent in northern sections of Solomon's kingdom. Jeroboam showed leadership on this occasion, as well as during the empire's division and reorganization of the northern tribes (12:12-19, 25-33). Unfortunately, he did not always use his abilities wisely and later proved unfaithful to the Lord (12:25-13:10; 14:14-16; 2 Kgs 17:21-23).

11:27 the supporting terraces: Hebrew the millo. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain; see note on 9:15.

11:29-39 The meeting between Jeroboam and the prophet Ahijah set in motion God's judgment on the dynasty of Solomon. Ahijah reappears in the account of Jeroboam's sick son (14:1-18). He authored an unpreserved work containing information about Solomon's deeds (2 Chr 9:29).

Jeroboam I (11:26–14:20)

1 Kgs 15:6-7, 25-28
2 Chr 10:1–13:22

Jeroboam I (931–910 BC), son of Nebat from the tribe of Ephraim, was the first king of the northern kingdom of Israel. He led the northern ten tribes into the sins that brought about the destruction of the northern kingdom.

Jeroboam began his political career by supervising Solomon's labor forces in the territory of Ephraim and Manasseh (11:26-28). Because Solomon had drifted away from the Lord, God determined to remove the ten northern tribes from the rule of David's descendants. The prophet Ahijah told Jeroboam that the Lord had chosen him to lead those tribes and to give him a lasting dynasty if he was faithful (11:29-40). Solomon apparently caught wind of what had happened and tried to kill Jeroboam, who sought refuge in Egypt (cp. Saul and David, 1 Sam 18:5–20:42).

When Solomon died, his son Rehoboam was immediately proclaimed king in Judah, but the northern tribes had to affirm his kingship separately. Seizing the opportunity, Jeroboam took the northern leaders to Rehoboam to seek relief from the harsh labor Solomon had forced on them (12:1-4). Rehoboam, influenced by young advisers, foolishly spurned their request (12:5-14), so the north appointed Jeroboam as its leader (12:20). Thus the kingdom was divided, as God had promised.

Jeroboam did not remain committed to God. He worried that if his people went to the Temple in Jerusalem to worship, they would support the southern kingdom. He had no confidence in God to secure his reign, so he carried out his own plan to secure his people's spiritual allegiance. He built two gold calf shrines, at the north and south of his kingdom (12:26-33). God was displeased with these shrines and sent a prophet to condemn them. Though Jeroboam initially responded to the prophet's display of divine power, the calf shrines remained intact throughout the northern kingdom's history (931–722 BC). Jeroboam's false religion was a key reason for the destruction of the northern kingdom in 722 BC (14:14-16; 2 Kgs 17:5-23).

Because of Jeroboam's sins, God did not give him a dynasty (13:33-34). Though Jeroboam's son Nadab inherited the throne when his father died, he was assassinated two years later by a usurper named Baasha (14:20; 15:25-31). Jeroboam's "dynasty" ended as a punishment for his sins.

11:29-32 Ahijah's symbolic tearing of his cloak into twelve pieces and giving ten of these pieces to Jeroboam symbolized God's plans for Jeroboam and Israel following Solomon's death (see "Prophetic Sign Acts" at Ezek 4:1-17, p. 1319). Ten of the tribes would defect; one tribe (Judah) would remain with Solomon's heir. The twelfth tribe was probably Benjamin (see 12:21). Benjamin consistently acted in tandem with Judah (see 2 Chr 11:3, 23; 14:8; 15:2-9; 17:17). Simeon, the other southern tribe, seems to have allied with the north (2 Chr 15:9; 34:6).

11:33 For Solomon has: As in Greek, Syriac, and Latin Vulgate; Hebrew reads For they have.

11:34-39 Ahijah further described the coming division of the kingdom and delivered God's offer of blessing and perpetuity to Jeroboam, who was required to obey the Lord in order to receive the offer.

11:34 For the sake of my servant

David: Although Solomon violated the terms of God's covenant, God remained faithful in not revoking his promises to David (see also Ps 89:28-37).

11:36 a lamp: David's successors were to be living representatives of God's covenant with David, and they were to shine as lights of God's grace (15:4; 2 Kgs 8:19; 2 Chr 21:7). They pointed to Jesus, the descendant of David, who is the light of the world (John 1:4-5) and who fulfills God's promises to David (Ezek 34:23-31).

Summary of Solomon's Reign

1 Kgs 11:41-43 // 2 Chr 9:29-31

⁴¹The rest of the events in Solomon's reign, including all his deeds and his wisdom, are recorded in The Book of the Acts of Solomon. ⁴²Solomon ruled in Jerusalem over all Israel for forty years. ⁴³When he died, he was buried in the City of David, named for his father. Then his son Rehoboam became the next king.

2. THE EARLY DIVIDED KINGDOM

(12:1-16:14)

The Division of the Nation (12:1-24)

The Northern Tribes Revolt

1 Kgs 12:1-20 // 2 Chr 10:1-19

12 Rehoboam went to Shechem, where all Israel had gathered to make him king. ²When Jeroboam son of Nebat heard of this, he returned from Egypt, for he had fled to Egypt to escape from King Solomon. ³The leaders of Israel summoned him, and Jeroboam and the whole assembly of Israel

▲ Israel and Judah, 935–903 BC (11:41–15:34). Each king's regnal years are numbered according to his own system of accounting (see "Chronology: Israel's Monarchy," p. 562). Each king's line on the chart runs from the beginning of the year in which his accession occurred to the end of the year in which he died. • SOLOMON's fortieth and final regnal year began in the fall (the month of Tishri) of 931 BC; his death and the division of the kingdom occurred sometime prior to the spring (the month of Nisan) of 930 BC. • The reign of JEROBOAM I started after that of REHOBAM, but Jeroboam's first regnal was counted from the previous spring. • Pharaoh SHISHAK of Egypt invaded JERUSALEM during Rehoboam's fifth regnal year (see 14:25-28).

11:38 an enduring dynasty: Jeroboam had a great opportunity. God promised that if he was faithful and obedient to the Lord, his kingdom would be strong and long-lasting. However, he departed from God (12:25-33; 14:10-18) and set Israel on a destructive spiritual path (2 Kgs 17:21-23).

11:39 David's descendant, Jesus, would later inherit his rightful throne, as stipulated in God's promises to David (2 Sam 7:13, 16-19; Ps 89:35-37), Abraham (Gen 17:1-8; Luke 1:67-79), and Judah (Gen 49:10). He has established a new covenant with God's people, and he will reign forever (Jer 31:31-36; Ezek 37:22-28; 2 Cor 3:6).

11:40 Solomon, probably aware of impending difficulty, tried to kill Jeroboam.

• King Shishak of Egypt later invaded Judah during the reign of Solomon's son Rehoboam (14:25-26).

11:41-43 The brief closing summary of Solomon's reign and death is similar to that of his father David (2:10-12). These summaries provide a typical formula for the accounts of succeeding kings.

• The Book of the Acts of Solomon was likely kept in a prophetic center or in palace and Temple archives. It served as a source of information for the author of Kings but is now lost (cp. 14:19, 29). • Solomon reigned from 971 to 931 BC.

12:1 Shechem, located in the heart of territory belonging to the northern tribes, had been a strategic site and religious center since the pre-Israelite occupation of Canaan (Gen 12:6-7; 33:18-20), and it became important in Israel as a Levitical city and a city of refuge (Josh 20:7; 21:20; 24:1). Rehoboam knew that if he wanted to be king over a united kingdom, he would need the approval and support of the politically and religiously strong northern tribes. Shechem later became the provisional capital of the northern kingdom (12:25). • Rehoboam reigned from 931 to 913 BC (see timeline above).

12:2 he returned from Egypt: As in Greek version and Latin Vulgate (see also 2 Chr 10:2); Hebrew reads he lived in Egypt.

went to speak with Rehoboam. ⁴"Your father was a hard master," they said. "Lighten the harsh labor demands and heavy taxes that your father imposed on us. Then we will be your loyal subjects."

⁵Rehoboam replied, "Give me three days to think this over. Then come back for my answer." So the people went away.

⁶Then King Rehoboam discussed the matter with the older men who had counseled his father, Solomon. "What is your advice?" he asked. "How should I answer these people?"

⁷The older counselors replied, "If you are willing to be a servant to these people today and give them a favorable answer, they will always be your loyal subjects."

⁸But Rehoboam rejected the advice of the older men and instead asked the opinion of the young men who had grown up with him and were now his advisers. ⁹"What is your advice?" he asked them. "How should I answer these people who want me to lighten the burdens imposed by my father?"

¹⁰The young men replied, "This is what you should tell those complainers who want a lighter burden: 'My little finger is thicker than my father's waist! ¹¹Yes, my father laid heavy burdens on you, but I'm going to make them even heavier! My father beat you with whips, but I will beat you with scorpions!'"

¹²Three days later Jeroboam and all the people returned to hear Rehoboam's decision, just as the king had ordered. ¹³But Rehoboam spoke harshly to the people, for he rejected the advice of the older counselors ¹⁴and followed the counsel of his younger advisers. He told the people, "My father laid heavy burdens on you, but I'm going to make them even heavier! My father beat you with whips, but I will beat you with scorpions!"

¹⁵So the king paid no attention to the people. This turn of events was the will of the LORD, for it fulfilled the LORD's message to Jeroboam son of Nebat through the prophet Ahijah from Shiloh.

¹⁶When all Israel realized that the king had refused to listen to them, they responded,

"Down with the dynasty of David!

We have no interest in the son of Jesse.

Back to your homes, O Israel!

Look out for your own house,

O David!"

So the people of Israel returned home.

¹⁷But Rehoboam continued to rule over the Israelites who lived in the towns of Judah.

¹⁸King Rehoboam sent Adoniram, who was in charge of forced labor, to restore order, but the people of Israel stoned him to death. When this news reached King Rehoboam, he quickly jumped into his chariot and fled to Jerusalem. ¹⁹And to this day the northern tribes of Israel have refused to be ruled by a descendant of David.

²⁰When the people of Israel learned of Jeroboam's return from Egypt, they called an assembly and made him king over all Israel. So only the tribe of Judah remained loyal to the family of David.

Shemaiah's Prophecy

1 Kgs 12:21-24 // 2 Chr 11:1-4

²¹When Rehoboam arrived at Jerusalem, he mobilized the men of Judah and the tribe of Benjamin—180,000 select troops—to fight against the men of Israel and to restore the kingdom to himself.

²²But God said to Shemaiah, the man of God, ²³"Say to Rehoboam son of Solomon, king of Judah, and to all the people of Judah and Benjamin, and to the rest of the people,

12:6-7 older men: Those who had served under Solomon advised moderation.

12:8-10 young men: Rehoboam's appointed contemporaries took a hard line and advised the opposite of the older men.

12:11 scorpions: This was probably a type of whip that contained barbs or nails; the wounds inflicted by this weapon were like a scorpion's sting.

12:12-17 Rehoboam's decision to heed the counsel of his younger advisers was disastrous; it led the northern tribes to secede, followed by years of intermittent warfare (14:30; 15:7, 32). • the will of the LORD: God directed these human decisions to fulfill the prophesied judgment against Solomon (11:11-13, 29-39).

12:18 Adoniram (as in some Greek manuscripts and Syriac version [see also 4:6; 5:14]; Hebrew reads Adoram) served under both David (2 Sam 20:24) and Solomon (4:6; 5:13-14). His death by stoning showed the folly of Rehoboam's decision to send the unpopular supervisor of forced labor . . . to restore order in the north.

12:21-24 Rehoboam resolved to restore the kingdom to himself by force, but he turned back when confronted with the message of the LORD through Shemaiah. The term man of God emphasizes a prophet's relationship to the LORD as his messenger. God's prophets played a leading role in the history of the divided kingdom. Shemaiah apparently authored a history of Rehoboam's reign (2 Chr 12:15).

Jeroboam's Reign in Israel (12:25–14:20) Jeroboam Makes Gold Calves

²⁵Jeroboam then built up the city of Shechem in the hill country of Ephraim, and it became his capital. Later he went and built up the town of Peniel.

²⁶Jeroboam thought to himself, "Unless I am careful, the kingdom will return to the dynasty of David. ²⁷When these people go to Jerusalem to offer sacrifices at the Temple of the LORD, they will again give their allegiance to King Rehoboam of Judah. They will kill me and make him their king instead."

²⁸So on the advice of his counselors, the king made two gold calves. He said to the people, "It is too much trouble for you to worship in Jerusalem. Look, Israel, these are the gods who brought you out of Egypt!"

²⁹He placed these calf idols in Bethel and in Dan—at either end of his kingdom. ³⁰But this became a great sin, for the people worshiped the idols, traveling as far north as Dan to worship the one there.

³¹Jeroboam also erected buildings at the pagan shrines and ordained priests from the common people—those who were not from the priestly tribe of Levi. ³²And Jeroboam instituted a religious festival in Bethel, held on the fifteenth day of the eighth month, in imitation of the annual Festival of Shelters in Judah. There at Bethel he himself offered sacrifices to the calves he had made, and he appointed priests for the pagan shrines he

Rehoboam (12:1-24)

1 Kgs 14:21-31
2 Chr 9:31–12:16

Rehoboam (931–913 BC), son of Solomon and an Ammonite woman (14:21), was forty-one when he became king; he reigned for seventeen years. He is remembered for culminating the split of Solomon's kingdom and for being the first king of the southern kingdom of Judah.

When Solomon died (931 BC), Judah immediately proclaimed Rehoboam king. The ten northern tribes resisted him, demanding relief from Solomon's harsh policies (see 12:4; 2 Chr 10:4). The king's mature advisers urged him to agree to their requests, but he rejected their advice and foolishly listened to younger advisers: He told the northerners that he would be much tougher than his father. The northern tribes rebelled and proclaimed Jeroboam, Solomon's former labor official, as their king. Rehoboam went to war, seeking control against the north, but God sent the prophet Shemaiah to tell him this was useless since the split was God's judgment (2 Chr 11:1-4). When he returned, Rehoboam fortified his boundaries (2 Chr 11:5-12).

When Jeroboam established the new apostate religion in the northern kingdom, priests and Levites streamed to the south, where they strengthened the spiritual fiber of the realm and helped to maintain Judah's stability for three years (2 Chr 11:13-17). In the end, however, Rehoboam also promoted idol worship. The people built high places and pagan sanctuaries throughout the land and adopted corrupt religious practices from the heathen nations around them (14:22-24). God stopped supporting Rehoboam, so he was vulnerable when King Shishak of Egypt attacked him (926/925 BC; 14:25; 2 Chr 12:2-3) and removed many precious items from the Temple. Rehoboam replaced Solomon's gold shields with bronze ones (14:27), an act that represented the loss of Judah's glory because of false worship.

12:25-33 Jeroboam's actions in establishing his kingdom are reported in two sections, one on his building activities (12:25), the other on his false shrines and religious practices (12:26-33).

12:25 Both Shechem (12:1) and Peniel (Hebrew Penuel, a variant spelling of Peniel), which Jeroboam built across the Jordan River, were strategic defensive sites against the Arameans.

12:26-27 Jeroboam tried to satisfy Israel's spiritual needs and maintain the allegiance of his people by making the worship services in the north both convenient and distinctive.

12:28 Two gold calves would strike a responsive chord regarding Israel's history (Exod 32; esp. 32:4). Similar religious practices, associated with the Canaanite god Baal-Hadad, also appealed to the remaining Canaanite population in the northern kingdom. Jeroboam's intentions compromised true worship and caused religious confusion (see 14:9; Hos 8:6). • to the people: Literally to them.

12:29-30 By placing the calf idols in Bethel (the southern part of Israel) and in Dan (the far northern section) Jeroboam gave his people two choice sites with long religious traditions (see Gen 12:8; 28:11-19; Judg 18:30-31). Archaeological excavations confirm the existence of a high place—an altar for pagan worship—in Dan. Bethel was where Jacob had his dream (Gen 28:10-22), and it was the resting place of the Ark of the Covenant in the days of the judges (Judg 20:18-28) and a sanctuary in Samuel's time (1 Sam 7:16; 10:3).

12:31 Jeroboam directly violated the law of Moses, which prohibited worship at pagan shrines (Deut 12:2-7) and specified that priests were to come only from the tribe of Levi (Exod 40:13-15; Num 1:50-53).

12:32-33 Replacing the Festival of Shelters, Israel's crowning ceremonial feast in the seventh month, with the festival in Bethel also violated the law (Deut 16:13-15). The imitation observance one month later during the eighth month may have coincided with the end of the Canaanite agricultural year. Jeroboam's had made.³³ So on the fifteenth day of the eighth month, a day that he himself had designated, Jeroboam offered sacrifices on the altar at Bethel. He instituted a religious festival for Israel, and he went up to the altar to burn incense.

A Prophet Denounces Jeroboam

13 At the LORD's command, a man of God from Judah went to Bethel, arriving there just as Jeroboam was approaching the altar to burn incense.² Then at the LORD's command, he shouted, "O altar, altar! This is what the LORD says: A child named Josiah will be born into the dynasty of David. On you he will sacrifice the priests from the pagan shrines who come here to burn incense, and human bones will be burned on you."³ That same day the man of God gave a sign to prove his message. He said, "The LORD has promised to give this sign: This altar will split apart, and its ashes will be poured out on the ground."

⁴ When King Jeroboam heard the man of God speaking against the altar at Bethel, he pointed at him and shouted, "Seize that man!" But instantly the king's hand became paralyzed in that position, and he couldn't pull it back.⁵ At the same time a wide crack appeared in the altar, and the ashes poured out, just as the man of God had predicted in his message from the LORD.

⁶ The king cried out to the man of God, "Please ask the LORD your God to restore my hand again!" So the man of God prayed to the LORD, and the king's hand was restored and he could move it again.

⁷ Then the king said to the man of God, "Come to the palace with me and have something to eat, and I will give you a gift."

⁸ But the man of God said to the king, "Even if you gave me half of everything you own, I would not go with you. I would not eat or drink anything in this place."⁹ For the LORD gave me this command: 'You must not eat or drink anything while you are there, and do not return to Judah by the same way you came.'¹⁰ So he left Bethel and went home another way.

¹¹ As it happened, there was an old prophet living in Bethel, and his sons came home and told him what the man of God had done in Bethel that day. They also told their father what the man had said to the king.¹² The old prophet asked them, "Which way did he go?" So they showed their father which road the man of God had taken.¹³ "Quick, saddle the donkey," the old man said. So they saddled the donkey for him, and he mounted it.

¹⁴ Then he rode after the man of God and found him sitting under a great tree. The old prophet asked him, "Are you the man of God who came from Judah?"

"Yes, I am," he replied.

¹⁵ Then he said to the man of God, "Come home with me and eat some food."

¹⁶ "No, I cannot," he replied. "I am not allowed to eat or drink anything here in this place."¹⁷ For the LORD gave me this command: 'You must not eat or drink anything while you are there, and do not return to Judah by the same way you came.'

¹⁸ But the old prophet answered, "I am a prophet, too, just as you are. And an angel gave me this command from the LORD: 'Bring him home with you so he can have something to eat and drink.'"¹⁹ But the old man was lying to him. So they went back together, and the man of God ate and drank at the prophet's home.

false religious practices led to Israel's downfall (2 Kgs 17:22). • Jeroboam's offering of sacrifices on the altar at Bethel set a bad precedent in spiritual leadership. • the fifteenth day of the eighth month: This day of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar occurred in late October or early November, exactly one month after the annual Festival of Shelters in Judah (see Lev 23:34).

13:1-10 The account of the unnamed man of God who denounced Jeroboam's false altar at Bethel emphasizes the authority of God's word. Like Isaiah's prophecy of Cyrus's coming (Isa 44:28; 45:1) and Micah's prophecy about Bethlehem as the Messiah's birthplace (Mic 5:2), this prophecy gave a distinctive proper name associated with an event long before it happened (2 Kgs 23:15-20). Such prophecies give assurance of God's sovereignty and omniscience (see Isa 42:9).

13:3 In Levitical regulations, ashes from sacrifices at the prescribed altar were to be taken to a clean place (Lev 1:16; 6:10-11). Because Jeroboam's altar . . . split apart, and its ashes . . . poured out, the altar and its sacrifices were rendered unclean.

13:4-5 The paralysis of Jeroboam's shoulder and arm and the fulfillment of the prophetic sign concerning the altar confirmed God's omnipotence as well as his direct displeasure with Jeroboam's apostate religion.

13:6 hand was restored: God showed mercy toward Jeroboam; his restored hand should have reminded Jeroboam that it was still possible to serve God properly.

13:7 have something to eat: In accordance with ancient Near Eastern custom, the king's seeming gratitude and offer of hospitality also carried implications of approval and fellowship (13:19; see Gen 24:52-54).

13:11-19 Whatever the old prophet's motives were for seeking out the man of God, he clearly lied about receiving God's message through an angel. The man of God knew that what the old prophet asked was contrary to the Lord's instructions (13:8-10, 16-17; cp. Gal 1:8).

13:11 sons: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads son.

13:12 So they showed their father: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads They had seen.

²⁰Then while they were sitting at the table, a command from the LORD came to the old prophet. ²¹He cried out to the man of God from Judah, "This is what the LORD says: You have defied the word of the LORD and have disobeyed the command the LORD your God gave you. ²²You came back to this place and ate and drank where he told you not to eat or drink. Because of this, your body will not be buried in the grave of your ancestors."

²³After the man of God had finished eating and drinking, the old prophet saddled his own donkey for him, ²⁴and the man of God started off again. But as he was traveling along, a lion came out and killed him. His body lay there on the road, with the donkey and the lion standing beside it. ²⁵People who passed by saw the body lying in the road and the lion standing beside it, and they went and reported it in Bethel, where the old prophet lived.

²⁶When the prophet heard the report, he said, "It is the man of God who disobeyed the LORD's command. The LORD has fulfilled his word by causing the lion to attack and kill him."

²⁷Then the prophet said to his sons, "Saddle a donkey for me." So they saddled a donkey, ²⁸and he went out and found the body lying in the road. The donkey and lion were still standing there beside it, for the lion had not eaten the body nor attacked the donkey. ²⁹So the prophet laid the body of the man of God on the donkey and took it back to the town to mourn over him and bury him. ³⁰He laid the body in his own grave, crying out in grief, "Oh, my brother!"

³¹Afterward the prophet said to his sons, "When I die, bury me in the grave where the man of God is buried. Lay my bones beside his bones. ³²For the message the LORD told him to proclaim against the altar in Bethel

◀ The Divided Kingdom of Rehoboam and Jeroboam I, 931-910 BC (12:1-14:28). After the kingdom of Israel divided, Rehoboam remained king of JUDAH while Jeroboam became king of ISRAEL, the ten northern tribes. Jeroboam rebuilt the town of SHECHEM and made it his capital. He also built up the town of PENIEL and tried to keep his people from worshipping at JERUSALEM in Judah by setting up pagan altars at DAN and BETHEL. In 926/925 BC, five years after the division, Pharaoh Shishak I of Egypt came and attacked Jerusalem and many fortified towns in Judah (14:25; 2 Chr 12:1-12). Shishak's campaign also included the territory of Israel; battles are shown at sites listed in Shishak's own annals.

his disobedience, he would be denied burial in his ancestral tomb. This death sentence was quickly carried out. Disobedience to the clear command of God is a serious offense (Num 14:21-23; Deut 11:26-28).

13:23-26 The donkey did not run away and the lion did not eat the man's body, a supernatural event. The old prophet immediately understood that God had clearly fulfilled his word (13:21-22) by judging disobedience.

13:30 The old prophet probably had a modest grave. Such tombs were hewn out of soft limestone in a wadi (a stream bed) near the person's home.

13:32 the message . . . will certainly come true: The Lord's swift judgment convinced the old prophet that the oracle of judgment pronounced by the man of God against Jeroboam's altar would be fulfilled. The prophecy came true years later during Josiah's reforms

13:20-22 Although the old prophet had lied, God communicated through him.

The severe pronouncement against the man of God was that because of and against the pagan shrines in the towns of Samaria will certainly come true.”

³³But even after this, Jeroboam did not turn from his evil ways. He continued to choose priests from the common people. He appointed anyone who wanted to become a priest for the pagan shrines. ³⁴This became a great sin and resulted in the utter destruction of Jeroboam’s dynasty from the face of the earth.

Ahijah’s Prophecy against Jeroboam

14 At that time Jeroboam’s son Abijah became very sick. ²So Jeroboam told his wife, “Disguise yourself so that no one will recognize you as my wife. Then go to the prophet Ahijah at Shiloh—the man who told me I would become king. ³Take him a gift of ten loaves of bread, some cakes, and a jar of honey, and ask him what will happen to the boy.”

⁴So Jeroboam’s wife went to Ahijah’s home at Shiloh. He was an old man now and could no longer see. ⁵But the LORD had told Ahijah, “Jeroboam’s wife will come here, pretending to be someone else. She will ask you about her son, for he is very sick. Give her the answer I give you.”

⁶So when Ahijah heard her footsteps at the door, he called out, “Come in, wife of Jeroboam! Why are you pretending to be someone else?” Then he told her, “I have bad news for you. ⁷Give your husband, Jeroboam, this message from the LORD, the God of Israel: ‘I promoted you from the ranks of the common people and made you ruler over my people Israel. ⁸I ripped the kingdom away from the family of David and gave it to you. But you have not been like my servant David, who obeyed my commands and followed me with all his heart and always did whatever I wanted. ⁹You have done more evil than all who lived before you. You have made other gods for yourself and have made me furious with your gold calves. And since you have turned your back on me, ¹⁰I will bring disaster on your dynasty and will destroy every one of your male descendants, slave and free alike, anywhere in Israel. I will burn up your royal dynasty as one burns up trash until it is all gone. ¹¹The members of Jeroboam’s family who die in the city will be eaten by dogs, and those who die in the field will be eaten by vultures. I, the LORD, have spoken.’” ¹²Then Ahijah said to Jeroboam’s wife, “Go on home, and when you enter the city, the child will die. ¹³All Israel will mourn for him and bury him. He is the only member of your family who will have a proper burial, for this child is the only good thing that the LORD, the God of Israel, sees in the entire family of Jeroboam.

¹⁴“In addition, the LORD will raise up a king over Israel who will destroy the family of Jeroboam. This will happen today, even now! ¹⁵Then the LORD will shake Israel like a reed whipped about in a stream. He will uproot the people of Israel from this good land that he gave their ancestors and will

(2 Kgs 23:15-18). • Samaria was established as the capital city of Israel during the reign of Omri, first king of Israel’s third dynasty (16:24, 29-33). The name Samaria sometimes refers to the capital city and sometimes to the northern kingdom in general (2 Kgs 17:24; Amos 6:1). Samaria’s mention here reflects the perspective of an author living at a later time. Similar uses of location names elsewhere reflect editorial updating (cp. Gen 23:2 with Josh 14:15; Judg 1:10).

13:33-34 Apparently, Jeroboam knew what had happened to the man of God, but it did nothing to change his spiritual outlook. Jeroboam’s persistently apostate religion, despite God’s denunciation of it, doomed his dynasty to destruction (14:7-11, 15-16; 15:27-30). As succeeding Israelite kings perpetuated his sin, it brought about the complete demise of the northern kingdom (2 Kgs 17:20-23).

14:2 Disguise yourself: Jeroboam apparently recognized that his sin had separated him from any right to approach God’s prophet. He knew that the man who had predicted his accession to Israel’s throne could predict the child’s fate and perhaps intercede with the Lord on his behalf. • Shiloh had earlier been destroyed by the Philistines in the time of Eli (1 Sam 4). Before that, the Tabernacle resided there (Josh 18:1; 1 Sam 1:3). A small community once again inhabited the site, which remained largely undeveloped throughout the divided monarchy.

14:3 It was customary to take a gift to a prophet when seeking his counsel (2 Kgs 5:5; 8:8). King Jeroboam’s wife took everyday commodities to supplement her disguise.

14:5 the answer I give you: The Lord often instructed prophets to deliver only the message that he gave them (see 22:14; Num 22:38; 23:12; Jer 7:2; Amos 7:14-15).

14:7 God had blessed Jeroboam and established him as ruler in Israel (see note on 1:35). However, Jeroboam abused God’s appointment with his false religion.

14:8-9 Unlike David, who genuinely repented of his sins (2 Sam 12:13; Ps 51:2-4), Jeroboam exceeded his predecessors in doing evil. Despite clear evidence of God’s displeasure and coming judgment (13:33), he failed to turn from his ways. His sin would bring grave consequences to his family and descendants (13:34; 14:10-11, 14) and, ultimately, to the whole northern kingdom (14:16). • gold calves: see 12:26-30.

14:11 eaten by dogs: This message of judgment for Jeroboam’s family followed the legal curses pronounced for unfaithfulness (Deut 28:26; see 16:4; 21:23; 2 Kgs 9:35-37).

14:14 destroy the family of Jeroboam: The prophecy quickly came true. God raised up Baasha, who killed Jeroboam’s son Nadab in the second year of Nadab’s reign (15:27-28).

14:15 Asherah was thought to be the consort of El, the elder god of ancient Canaan. Asherah worship included fertility rites at sacred trees or poles; it became a chronic sin for God’s people ¹⁹The rest of the events in Jeroboam's reign, including all his wars and how he ruled, are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel. ²⁰Jeroboam reigned in Israel twenty-two years. When Jeroboam died, his son Nadab became the next king.

The book of 1 Kings emphasizes the necessity of faithfully worshiping God (see Deut 12:4-7). The author evaluates each king's devotion to God against the precedent set by David (see 11:38; 14:8; 15:3-5, 11). Allowing worship at local pagan shrines is repeatedly singled out for disapproval (see 3:2-4; 11:7).

Each king's reign is introduced with an accession statement followed by a spiritual evaluation. Beginning with Jeroboam I, the kings of Israel (the northern kingdom) uniformly practiced apostate religion and were censured for practicing it (12:31-32; 13:33-34; 15:25-26, 33-34; 16:11-13, 25-26). Of these kings, King Ahab was the most wicked (16:30-33; 21:25-26), and his son Ahaziah closely followed his example and is denounced for his idolatrous ways (22:51-53). Ahaziah's fascination with Baal continued to the end (2 Kgs 1). The kings of the northern kingdom set their people on a course doomed for destruction (2 Kgs 17:21-23). Despite God's repeated efforts to get his people's attention (2 Kgs 17:13-15, 23), they failed to respond, so God invoked the penalties for persistent spiritual infidelity (see 13:33-34).

While two of the kings of Judah (the southern kingdom) receive commendation, two of them are denounced. Rehoboam allowed pagan worship to spread in Judah (14:22-24), while Abijam continued in his father's sins (15:3). Even the good kings, Asa (15:14) and Jehoshaphat (22:43), receive criticism for letting popular local worship sites continue. Failure to give God his rightful place had disastrous results.

God requires complete devotion from his people (Deut 6:4-5; cp. Matt 22:37). True success comes from seeking God and acknowledging him as sovereign (Matt 6:33), to the exclusion of all idols (1 Jn 5:21). While the kings and people of the northern kingdom foolishly pursued their own way, people who instead fear the Lord and live by the standards of God's word will be blessed and find genuine contentment (Ps 33:12; 119:1-2; 144:15). True success is always found in letting God be king of one's life (Matt 6:33).

(15:13; 16:33; 18:19; Deut 16:21; Judg 3:7). • the Euphrates River: Literally the river.

14:17-18 Tirzah was situated on the road from Shechem to Beth-shan. Noted for its great beauty (Song 6:4), the city was a royal retreat that apparently had become the capital of the northern kingdom (16:6, 8). • The child died, as Ahijah had predicted.

14:19-20 all his wars: Jeroboam engaged in repeated border skirmishes with Rehoboam (14:30). • The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel is mentioned seventeen times in 1 Kgs

14:19—2 Kgs 15:31; it includes material that may have originated in official records kept by the court recorder (see 4:3). It was known to the original readers of 1 & 2 Kings but is now lost (see also note on 14:29-31).

14:21-31 Between the opening and closing details about Rehoboam's reign (14:21, 29-31), the account focuses on the deteriorating spiritual experience of God's people in Judah (14:22-24) and on an Egyptian invasion (14:25-28).

14:21 Rather than any city of the northern kingdom, the city the LORD had chosen was Jerusalem. • Naamah, as the queen mother, was highly esteemed in Judah. This role seems to have developed into an official status (15:13), and Judah's queen mothers are often mentioned in connection with the reigning king (see, e.g., Jer 22:26).

14:22 the people of Judah did what was evil: Although Rehoboam seemed to begin his reign in good spiritual form (2 Chr 11:5-17, 23), he deserted God's standards (2 Chr 12:1).

14:23-24 Solomon had married foreign wives, who led his family into idolatry. Judah, under Rehoboam's leadership, then perpetuated the Asherah poles on every high hill and under every green tree. ²⁴There were even male and female shrine prostitutes throughout the land. The people imitated the detestable practices of the pagan nations the LORD had driven from the land ahead of the Israelites.

²⁵In the fifth year of King Rehoboam's reign, King Shishak of Egypt came up and attacked Jerusalem. ²⁶He ransacked the treasures of the LORD's Temple and the royal palace; he stole everything, including all the gold shields Solomon had made. ²⁷King Rehoboam later replaced them with bronze shields as substitutes, and he entrusted them to the care of the commanders of the guard who protected the entrance to the royal palace. ²⁸Whenever the king went to the Temple of the LORD, the guards would also take the shields and then return them to the guardroom.

²⁹The rest of the events in Rehoboam's reign and everything he did are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Judah. ³⁰There was constant war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam. ³¹When Rehoboam died, he was buried among his ancestors in the City of David. His mother was Naamah, an Ammonite woman. Then his son Abijam became the next king.

detestable practices of the pagan nations that occupied the land before the Israelites. The spiritual decline of a nation easily follows from debased leadership, which leads to disgrace and destruction (Prov 14:34). • Shrine prostitutes were not uncommon in Canaan but were prohibited for Israel (see notes on Lev 17:7; Deut 23:17-18). They became a part of Israelite society as the people embraced Canaanite culture.

14:25 Shishak (Shoshenq I, 945–924 bc), of Egypt's 22nd dynasty, reunited the land of Egypt that was divided during the 21st dynasty. He gave Egypt renewed stability, economic expansion, and military power. His attack on Judah is also recorded by the Chronicler (2 Chr 12:2-4) and is written on the Amon Temple in Thebes (see also notes on 7:2-5; 11:40).

14:26-28 When Rehoboam replaced Solomon's gold shields with bronze shields, it reflected the declining spiritual value of Rehoboam's kingdom. The complete destruction of Judah and Jerusalem was avoided only when Rehoboam repented in response to the Lord's word through the prophet Shemaiah (2 Chr 12:5-6, 12).

14:29-31 The closing report concerning Rehoboam's reign notes his constant strife with Jeroboam. • The Book of the History of the Kings of Judah is mentioned 15 times in 1 Kgs 14:29—2 Kgs 24:5 as a source of information on the southern kingdom. This book was known to the original readers of the Book of Kings but is now lost (see also notes on 11:41-43; 14:19-20).

14:31 Abijam was also known as Abijah (see note on 2 Chr 13:1).

15:1-8 The author of 1 & 2 Kings describes the reign of each king of Judah in a typical pattern: the date of his accession in chronological relationship to the current king of the other kingdom (15:1), the length of his reign, the name of his mother (15:2), a spiritual evaluation of his character (15:3-5), details of his reign (15:6-7), sources where further data about him could be found (15:7), where he was buried, and his successor's name (15:8).

15:1 Abijam (also known as Abijah; see note on 2 Chr 13:1) reigned from 913 to 910 bc (see timeline, p. 599).

15:2 Abijam's mother was Maacah, Rehoboam's favorite of his eighteen wives. She was the granddaughter of Absalom (Hebrew Abishalom [also in 15:10], a variant spelling of Absalom; cp. 2 Chr 11:20). Presumably this Absalom is David's son. Maacah, an idol worshiper, was an evil spiritual influence in Judah (15:13).

15:3-5 Despite Abijam's unfaithfulness, God remained faithful to his covenant with David (2 Sam 7:12-16; Ps 89:19-29) and preserved David's line on Judah's throne. Each king that followed David was to be a lamp, dispensing the light of God's grace (11:36).

15:6 Abijam inherited the hostility between the northern and southern kingdoms. Like Rehoboam (14:30), he faced war with Jeroboam. During one notable battle (2 Chr 13:2b-20), when Abijam and his outnumbered forces were surrounded by northern troops, they cried out to the Lord; God delivered them and enabled them to inflict a severe defeat on Jeroboam. • between Abijam and Jeroboam: As in a few Hebrew and Greek manuscripts; most Hebrew manuscripts read between Rehoboam and Jeroboam.

15:7 rest of the events: Among other details of Abijam's reign, the Chronicler tells us that he married fourteen wives and had thirty-eight children (2 Chr 13:21).

15:9 Asa reigned from 910 to 869 bc.

15:10 forty-one years: The first ten years of Asa's long reign were peaceful (2 Chr 14:1-7), perhaps due to his ⁹Asa began to rule over Judah in the twentieth year of Jeroboam's reign in Israel.

¹⁰He reigned in Jerusalem forty-one years. His grandmother was Maacah, the granddaughter of Absalom.

¹¹Asa did what was pleasing in the LORD's sight, as his ancestor David had done. ¹²He banished the male and female shrine prostitutes from the land and got rid of all the idols his ancestors had made. ¹³He even deposed his grandmother Maacah from her position as queen mother because she had made an obscene Asherah pole. He cut down her obscene pole and burned it in the Kidron Valley. ¹⁴Although the pagan shrines were not removed, Asa's heart remained completely faithful to the LORD throughout his life. ¹⁵He brought into the Temple of the LORD the silver and gold and the various items that he and his father had dedicated.

¹⁶There was constant war between King Asa of Judah and King Baasha of Israel.

¹⁷King Baasha of Israel invaded Judah and fortified Ramah in order to prevent anyone from entering or leaving King Asa's territory in Judah.

¹⁸Asa responded by removing all the silver and gold that was left in the treasuries of the Temple of the LORD and the royal palace. He sent it with some of his officials to Ben-hadad son of Tabrimmon, son of Hezion, the king of Aram, who was ruling in Damascus, along with this message:

¹⁹"Let there be a treaty between you and me like the one between your father and my father. See, I am sending you a gift of silver and gold. Break your treaty with King Baasha of Israel so that he will leave me alone."

²⁰Ben-hadad agreed to King Asa's request and sent the commanders of his army to attack the towns of Israel. They conquered the towns of Ijon, Dan, Abel-beth-maacah, and all Kinnereth, and all the land of Naphtali. ²¹As soon as Baasha of Israel heard what was happening, he abandoned his project of fortifying Ramah and withdrew to Tirzah. ²²Then King Asa sent an order throughout Judah, requiring that everyone, without exception, help to carry away the building stones and timbers that Baasha had been using to fortify Ramah. Asa used these materials to fortify the town of Geba in Benjamin and the town of Mizpah.

father's decisive victory over Jeroboam.

• His grandmother: Or The queen mother; Hebrew reads His mother (also in 15:13); compare 15:2. • granddaughter: Literally daughter, but almost certainly Absalom's granddaughter. The Hebrew term can be understood either way (cp. 15:2).

15:11-13 did what was pleasing: In addition to reforms mentioned here, the Chronicler records the positive spiritual influence of God's prophet Azariah upon the king (2 Chr 15:1-7) and Asa's convening of a great assembly to renew the covenant with the Lord (2 Chr 15:9-15). • shrine prostitutes: See 14:23-24. Asa's efforts to restrict idolatry and pagan fertility rites even extended to Maacah, deposing her from her influential role as queen mother (15:13; 2 Chr 15:16). • The Kidron Valley became a place for reforming kings of Judah to destroy pagan idols (2 Kgs 23:4-15; 2 Chr 29:16; 30:14).

15:12 idols: The Hebrew term (literally round things) probably alludes to dung.

15:14-15 Although he allowed the pagan shrines to remain, Asa's heart remained . . . faithful to the LORD. The pagan shrines apparently became locations for worshiping the Lord. In his latter days, Asa's spiritual ardor appears to have diminished (2 Chr 16:7-12).

15:16 Baasha began to reign in Asa's third year (15:33); when Baasha was established, Judah faced renewed hostilities with Israel. Asa also withstood an attack by Zerah the Ethiopian (2 Chr 14:9-12), who was apparently a commander in the service of Pharaoh Osorkon I (924-889 BC). Asa and his troops won a great victory and took vast plunder from Zerah's forces and from towns in the Negev that probably launched the Egyptian invasion.

15:17 Baasha's southward thrust recaptured towns previously lost to Abijah (2 Chr 13:19), as well as Ramah in Judah, about four miles north of Jerusalem. This sealed the border, preventing the Israelites from defecting to Judah and confining Asa to his own territory. Ramah commanded the important north-south and east-west routes in Canaan (Judg 4:5; Isa 10:29; Jer 31:15; 40:1).

15:18-19 Ben-hadad . . . the king of Aram and his successors were a major factor in Aramean-Israelite relations for many years. Asa's appeal for Ben-hadad's help was reinforced with rich gifts taken from the Temple treasury. Despite previous enmity between the Arameans and Israel (11:23-25; 2 Sam 8:3-12; 2 Chr 8:3-4), Ben-hadad and Baasha had established a treaty. Asa understood that the Aramean king's assistance could be purchased for the right price (15:20). When God's prophet Hanani delivered the Lord's rebuke to Asa for approaching Ben-hadad, Asa reacted uncharacteristically and threw him into prison (2 Chr 16:7-10). Asa apparently forgot God's previous intervention on his behalf against Zerah's sizeable army (2 Chr 14:7-8).

15:19 Let there be a treaty: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads There is a treaty.

15:20-22 As a result of King Asa's request, the war with Baasha quickly turned to Asa's advantage. Ben-hadad swiftly captured several sections of northern Israel and secured important northern trade routes, forcing Baasha to cease operations in Ramah in order to meet the emergency on his northern frontier. Asa retook Ramah and used its building materials to fortify other strategic border towns against further moves by Baasha.

²³The rest of the events in Asa's reign—the extent of his power, everything he did, and the names of the cities he built—are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Judah. In his old age his feet became diseased. ²⁴When Asa died, he was buried with his ancestors in the City of David.

Then Jehoshaphat, Asa's son, became the next king.

Nadab's Reign in Israel (15:25-31)

²⁵Nadab son of Jeroboam began to rule over Israel in the second year of King Asa's reign in Judah. He reigned in Israel two years. ²⁶But he did what was evil in the LORD's sight and followed the example of his father, continuing the sins that Jeroboam had led Israel to commit.

²⁷Then Baasha son of Ahijah, from the tribe of Issachar, plotted against Nadab and assassinated him while he and the Israelite army were laying siege to the Philistine town of Gibbethon. ²⁸Baasha killed Nadab in the third year of King Asa's reign in Judah, and he became the next king of Israel.

³¹The rest of the events in Nadab's reign and everything he did are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel.

Baasha's Reign in Israel (15:32-16:7)

³²There was constant war between King Asa of Judah and King Baasha of Israel. ³³Baasha son of Ahijah began to rule over all Israel in the third year of King Asa's reign in Judah. Baasha reigned in Tirzah twenty-four years. ³⁴But he did what was evil in the LORD's sight and followed the example of Jeroboam, continuing the sins that Jeroboam had led Israel to commit.

16 This message from the LORD was delivered to King Baasha by the prophet Jehu son of Hanani: ²"I lifted you out of the dust to make you ruler of my people Israel, but you have followed the evil example of Jeroboam. You have provoked my anger by causing my people Israel to sin. ³So now I will destroy you and your family, just as I destroyed the descendants of Jeroboam son of Nebat. ⁴The members of Baasha's family who die in the city will be eaten by dogs, and those who die in the field will be eaten by vultures."

⁵The rest of the events in Baasha's reign and the extent of his power are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel. ⁶When Baasha died, he was buried in Tirzah. Then his son Elah became the next king.

⁷The message from the LORD against Baasha and his family came through the prophet Jehu son of Hanani. It was delivered because Baasha had done what was evil in the LORD's sight (just as the family of Jeroboam had done), and also because Baasha had destroyed the family of Jeroboam. The LORD's anger was provoked by Baasha's sins.

Elah's Reign in Israel (16:8-14)

⁸Elah son of Baasha began to rule over Israel in the twenty-sixth year of King Asa's reign in Judah. He reigned in the city of Tirzah for two years.

⁹Then Zimri, who commanded half of the royal chariots, made plans to kill him. One day in Tirzah, Elah was getting drunk at the home of Arza, the supervisor of the 15:25-31 The writer of 1 Kings presents Nadab's biography following the standard format (see note on 15:1-8).

15:27-29 Baasha . . . assassinated . . . Nadab and slaughtered all the descendants of . . . Jeroboam, thus terminating Israel's first dynasty. Baasha's father was named Ahijah, who is not to be confused with the prophet who predicted the demise of Jeroboam's dynasty (11:29-39). Baasha's coup d'état was the first of several in Israel's history (e.g., 16:9-10).

15:30-31 Jeroboam had provoked the Lord's condemnation and judgment. His sins were perpetuated by his son Nadab, and Baasha's accession inaugurated a new dynasty that further weakened Israel's spiritual condition (15:34).

15:32-34 Baasha established his capital at Tirzah, the royal retreat of earlier kings (14:17).

16:1 Like his father Hanani, whom Asa had imprisoned (2 Chr 16:10), Jehu was a prophet. Also like his father, Jehu would fearlessly deliver the Lord's message anywhere, even if it meant confronting the king.

16:2-4 The Lord charged Baasha with being a murderer (16:7) and with following Jeroboam's idolatry. Because he perpetuated Jeroboam's evil example, Baasha and his family would suffer the same consequences (see 14:11).

16:5-7 The ministry of Jehu the prophet apparently covered both Israel and Judah, for he also wrote a history of events in Jehoshaphat's reign that was included in The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel (cp. 2 Chr 20:34).

palace. ¹⁰Zimri walked in and struck him down and killed him. This happened in the twenty-seventh year of King Asa's reign in Judah. Then Zimri became the next king.

¹¹Zimri immediately killed the entire royal family of Baasha, leaving him not even a single male child. He even destroyed distant relatives and friends. ¹²So Zimri destroyed the dynasty of Baasha as the LORD had promised through the prophet Jehu. ¹³This happened because of all the sins Baasha and his son Elah had committed, and because of the sins they led Israel to commit. They provoked the anger of the LORD, the God of Israel, with their worthless idols.

¹⁴The rest of the events in Elah's reign and everything he did are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel.

3. THE ERA OF ISRAEL'S THIRD DYNASTY (16:15–22:53)

Zimri's Reign in Israel (16:15-20)

¹⁵Zimri began to rule over Israel in the twenty-seventh year of King Asa's reign in Judah, but his reign in Tirzah lasted only seven days. The army of Israel was then attacking the Philistine town of Gibbethon. ¹⁶When they heard that Zimri had committed treason and had assassinated the king, that very day they chose Omri, commander of the army, as the new king of Israel. ¹⁷So Omri led the entire army of Israel up from Gibbethon to attack Tirzah, Israel's capital. ¹⁸When Zimri saw that the city had been taken, he went into the citadel of the palace and burned it down over himself and died in the flames. ¹⁹For he, too, had done what was evil in the LORD's sight. He followed the example of Jeroboam in all the sins he had committed and led Israel to commit.

²⁰The rest of the events in Zimri's reign and his conspiracy are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel.

Omri's Reign in Israel (16:21-28)

²¹But now the people of Israel were split into two factions. Half the people tried to make Tibni son of Ginath their king, while the other half supported Omri. ²²But Omri's supporters defeated the supporters of Tibni. So Tibni was killed, and Omri became the next king.

▲ Israel and Judah, 898–866 BC (16:8–21:29). ELAH's reign in Israel began in the twenty-sixth year of King ASA's reign in Judah (16:8)—as counted by the scribes of the northern kingdom, who began counting in the year of accession; Asa's years are shown here as counted by the scribes of Judah, who began numbering in the year following accession (see "Chronology: Israel's Monarchy," p. 562). • ZIMRI and TIBNI received no official regnal years for their reigns—Zimri because his reign was only seven days, Tibni because his reign rivaled that of OMRI. • ELIJAH AS PROPHET: See 17:1–19:21. • ZERAH OF ETHIOPIA: See 2 Chr 14:9-13. • JEHOSEPHAT's reign in Judah began as a co-regency with his father, ASA, during AHAB's fourth year (see 22:41); his actual accession was about two years later when Asa died.

Philistine-controlled city of Gibbethon (16:15) displayed his debased character; he was even less fit to reign than his father, Baasha (see 16:13).

16:11-12 Zimri's execution of all the family . . . relatives and friends . . . of Baasha was swift and merciless. While Zimri carried out the Lord's sentence against the dynasty of Baasha, he doubtless did so for selfish reasons: to keep them from taking revenge on him or using their power or influence to organize their own coup.

16:15-17 Although Zimri commanded half of the royal chariots (16:9), he was in Tirzah rather than with the army . . . attacking . . . Gibbethon. He apparently did not have the respect of the armed forces; they saw his acts as treason and chose their commander Omri as the new king of Israel.

16:18-19 burned it down over himself: Zimri's cowardice is evident in his suicide in the face of capture.

16:21-22 Tibni is mentioned only here, and Ginath is unknown. According to the Greek OT, Tibni received help in his failed bid for power from his brother Joram, and both were killed in the confrontation with Omri.

²³Omri began to rule over Israel in the thirty-first year of King Asa's reign in Judah. He reigned twelve years in all, six of them in Tirzah. ²⁴Then Omri bought the hill now known as Samaria from its owner, Shemer, for 150 pounds of silver. He built a city on it and called the city Samaria in honor of Shemer.

²⁵But Omri did what was evil in the LORD's sight, even more than any of the kings before him. ²⁶He followed the example of Jeroboam son of Nebat in all the sins he had committed and led Israel to commit. The people provoked the anger of the LORD, the God of Israel, with their worthless idols.

²⁷The rest of the events in Omri's reign, the extent of his power, and everything he did are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel. ²⁸When Omri died, he was buried in Samaria. Then his son Ahab became the next king.

Ahab's Reign in Israel (16:29–22:40) Ahab's Accession

²⁹Ahab son of Omri began to rule over Israel in the thirty-eighth year of King Asa's reign in Judah. He reigned in Samaria twenty-two years. ³⁰But Ahab son of Omri did what was evil in the LORD's sight, even more than any of the kings before him. ³¹And as though it were not enough to follow the sinful example of Jeroboam, he married Jezebel, the Ahab (16:29–22:53)

2 Chr 18:1–34
Mic 6:16

Ahab (874–853 BC), Israel's eighth king, inherited the northern kingdom from his powerful father, Omri (16:27–28). Ahab married Jezebel, daughter of king Ethbaal of Sidon (16:29–31). Under her influence, Ahab began worshiping Baal instead of the Lord.

Ahab had several military successes. He achieved victories over the Arameans (ch 20), and in 853 BC he led a coalition of kings against the Assyrian king Shalmaneser III and defeated him at the battle of Qarqar. However, the OT reports little positive news about Ahab, who was a traitor to God. God raised up the prophet Elijah to confront Ahab and Jezebel's prophets and to reassert the supremacy of the true God (17:1; 18:1–46).

Ahab not only betrayed the Lord, he also exploited his people, as in the matter of Naboth and his vineyard (21:1–29). In Israel, the people had absolute title to the land as a gift from God. So when Ahab wanted to annex a vineyard from his neighbor Naboth and Naboth refused, he was frustrated. Jezebel was familiar with another type of kingship back home. When kings wanted something, they just took it. So she helped Ahab frame Naboth, who was executed on false charges. Ahab took possession, but the Lord would not let him get away with it. He sent Elijah to deliver a death sentence for Ahab and his dynasty.

Then war flared up again with Aram, and Ahab enlisted Jehoshaphat, the southern king, as his ally (22:2–4; 2 Chr 18:1–3). Jehoshaphat still believed in the Lord, so he talked Ahab into consulting God's prophet Micaiah, who prophesied that this battle would end Ahab's life (22:5–28; 2 Chr 18:4–27). Ahab tried to escape this fate by wearing ordinary armor and having Jehoshaphat wear royal battle dress as a decoy, but there is no fooling God. An archer's shot penetrated the joint of Ahab's armor, and he died, "just as the LORD had promised" (22:38).

The book of Kings was written during the Exile in part to explain to God's people why they were in exile. One major line of argument was that their kings had not kept God's instructions in Deut 17:14–20. Ahab was a prime example of such a sinful king.

16:23 Omri . . . reigned twelve years in all: Omri's son Ahab succeeded him in the seventh year of his reign (cp. 16:29), so Omri's twelve-year rule likely includes about four years of co-regency with Ahab.

16:24 Omri founded the city of Samaria and relocated the capital there from Tirzah. Samaria was the capital of Israel until its fall in 722 BC. This site provided Israel with a centrally located and militarily defensible hill in the northern kingdom, and allowed oversight of the trade routes below. Omri enjoyed his new capital for only six years before his death (16:28). • for 150 pounds of silver: Hebrew for 2 talents [68 kilograms] of silver.

16:25–26 evil: As in the transition from the first to the second dynasties (15:33–34), the new dynastic change did not improve Israel's spiritual climate.

16:27–28 the extent of his power: Although mentioned only briefly in the OT, Omri was well known to his contemporaries in surrounding lands. According to the Moabite Stone (Mesha Stela), Omri conquered the territory north of the Arnon River in Moab. Assyrian kings affirmed his importance by calling Israel the "House of Omri." If, as was common in the ancient Near East, Omri arranged the marriage of his son Ahab to Jezebel (the daughter of Ethbaal, king of Tyre and Sidon, 16:31), he may have enjoyed further political and commercial recognition.

16:31–33 The spiritual evaluation of Ahab is the worst yet among the kings of Israel. Later, Ahab's evil behavior was attributed to his being "under the influence of his wife Jezebel" (21:25). Ahab and Jezebel propagated Canaanite worship rites, leading Israel further from the Lord. Added to Jeroboam's false daughter of King Ethbaal of the Sidonians, and he began to bow down in worship of 'Baal. ³²First Ahab built a temple and an altar for Baal in Samaria. ³³Then he set up an Asherah pole. He did more to provoke the anger of the LORD, the God of Israel, than any of the other kings of Israel before him.

³⁴It was during his reign that Hiel, a man from Bethel, rebuilt Jericho. When he laid its foundations, it cost him the life of his oldest son, Abiram. And when he completed it and set up its gates, it cost him the life of his youngest son, Segub. This all happened according to the message from the LORD concerning Jericho spoken by Joshua son of Nun.

Elijah Fed by Ravens

17 Now Elijah, who was from Tishbe in Gilead, told King Ahab, "As surely as the LORD, the God of Israel, lives—the God I serve—there will be no dew or rain during the next few years until I give the word!"

²Then the LORD said to Elijah, ³"Go to the east and hide by Kerith Brook, near where it enters the Jordan River. ⁴Drink from the brook and eat what the ravens bring you, for I have commanded them to bring you food."

⁵So Elijah did as the LORD told him and camped beside Kerith Brook, east of the Jordan. ⁶The ravens brought him bread and meat each morning and evening, and he drank from the brook. ⁷But after a while

Jezebel (16:31–21:28)

2 Kgs 9:1-37
Rev 2:20

Jezebel, daughter of Ethbaal, king of Sidon (16:31), married King Ahab of Israel, probably to confirm a political alliance between their countries. Jezebel promoted Baal worship and demanded absolute rights for the monarchy.

Jezebel influenced Ahab into establishing Baal worship in Samaria and setting up an Asherah pole (16:30-33). She tried to exterminate God's prophets (18:4) and supported large groups of Baal's prophets in the royal palace (16:19).

Elijah's confrontation with Jezebel and Ahab culminated on Mount Carmel (18:19-40), where Elijah challenged Israel to follow the true God. The Israelites worshiped God and helped Elijah slaughter the false prophets. When Jezebel heard this, she threatened Elijah, and he fled (19:1-2).

Later, Jezebel advised her husband about how to steal Naboth's vineyard. When Naboth wouldn't sell it, Jezebel coldly devised a plan to falsely convict Naboth of cursing God and the king, and he was executed. Ahab seized the vineyard, but God sent Elijah to pronounce judgment on Jezebel and Ahab (21:20-24). Ahab soon died (ch 22), but Jezebel survived through her son Ahaziah's reign. She was later executed when Jehu exterminated the ruling family, and God's sentence against her was fulfilled (2 Kgs 9:30-37).

Jezebel's corrupt influence spread to the southern kingdom of Judah when her daughter Athaliah married Jehoram, King Jehoshaphat's son (see 2 Kgs 8:18, 26-27).

In Rev 2:20, Jezebel's name is used to label a prophetess who seduced the Christians of Thyatira to commit sexual sins and eat things sacrificed to idols. Her name is still used to describe an evil, plotting woman.

worship system, these sins eventually spelled disaster for Israel.

16:34 Despite Joshua's curse against Jericho (Josh 6:26-27), the site was occasionally and temporarily occupied prior to being rebuilt by Hiel (see Judg 3:13; 2 Sam 10:5; 1 Chr 19:5), as archaeological excavations confirm. Hiel's efforts signify the spiritual defection of Israel. • When he laid its foundation . . . Segub: An ancient Hebrew scribal tradition reads He killed his oldest son when he laid its foundations, and he killed his youngest son when he set up its gates. The Targum (an interpretive Aramaic translation for Jews who did not know Hebrew after the Exile) suggests that Hiel sacrificed his sons as foundation offerings according to pagan practices; others understand the deaths to be from disease or accident. The sentence might be a Hebrew merism (using boundaries to indicate everything in between), which would imply that all of Hiel's sons died.

17:1–19:21 The ministry of the prophet Elijah was intimately connected to his own spiritual journey. Elijah confronted Israel's flirtation with the Canaanite storm-god, Baal. As the struggle ensued, Elijah learned of God's power and provision in contrast to Baal's impotence, as demonstrated during Elijah's contest with the prophets of Baal on Mount Carmel (18:1-46). Elijah's subsequent flight from Jezebel led to God's renewal of his prophetic commission at Mount Sinai (19:1-18). Elijah's commission was completed by his successor, Elisha (19:19-21).

17:1 Elijah was God's prophet to the northern kingdom during the reigns of the third-dynasty kings Ahab (874–853 BC) and Ahaziah (853–852 BC) and into that of Joram (852–841 BC). • Elijah showed his commitment to the LORD by declaring that he served the living God of Israel. • Elijah withheld the dew and rain as a direct affront to Baal, who supposedly controlled these natural forces. Their absence until God led Elijah to give the word initiated the contest with Baal that would reach a climax on Mount Carmel (ch 18).

17:2-7 Kerith Brook provided a haven for Elijah during the divinely instituted drought (see 18:10). The supply of food and water assured Elijah of God's protection. • When Elijah's source of water dried up, a change of location was necessary.

the brook dried up, for there was no rainfall anywhere in the land.

The Widow at Zarephath

⁸Then the LORD said to Elijah, ⁹"Go and live in the village of Zarephath, near the city of Sidon. I have instructed a widow there to feed you."

¹⁰So he went to Zarephath. As he arrived at the gates of the village, he saw a widow gathering sticks, and he asked her, "Would you please bring me a little water in a cup?"

¹¹As she was going to get it, he called to her, "Bring me a bite of bread, too."

¹²But she said, "I swear by the LORD your God that I don't have a single piece of bread in the house. And I have only a handful of flour left in the jar and a little cooking oil in the bottom of the jug. I was just gathering a few sticks to cook this last meal, and then my son and I will die."

¹³But Elijah said to her, "Don't be afraid! Go ahead and do just what you've said, but make a little bread for me first. Then use what's left to prepare a meal for yourself and your son. ¹⁴For this is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: There will always be flour and olive oil left in your containers until the time when the LORD sends rain and the crops grow again!"

¹⁵So she did as Elijah said, and she and Elijah and her family continued to eat for many days. ¹⁶There was always enough flour and olive oil left in the containers, just as the LORD had promised through Elijah.

¹⁷Some time later the woman's son became sick. He grew worse and worse, and finally he died. ¹⁸Then she said to Elijah, "O man of God, what have you done to me? Have you come here to point out my sins and kill my son?"

¹⁹But Elijah replied, "Give me your son." And he took the child's body from her arms, carried him up the stairs to the room where he was staying, and laid the body on his bed. ²⁰Then Elijah cried out to the LORD, "O LORD my God, why have you brought tragedy to this widow who has opened her home to me, causing her son to die?"

²¹And he stretched himself out over the child three times and cried out to the LORD, "O LORD my God, please let this child's life return to him." ²²The LORD heard Elijah's prayer, and the life of the child returned, and he revived! ²³Then Elijah brought him down from the upper room and gave him to his mother. "Look!" he said. "Your son is alive!"

²⁴Then the woman told Elijah, "Now I know for sure that you are a man of God, and that the LORD truly speaks through you."

17:9-16 Elijah's faith was tested further. At Kerith Brook, God had supplied his needs directly. With these supplies cut off, Elijah now had to depend on a foreign woman's response to a divine test. The account details the setting (17:8-10a), Elijah's test for the widow (17:10b-14), the woman's compliance, and God's reward (17:15-16).

17:9-11 Zarephath was in Phoenician territory about seven miles south of Sidon, away from Ahab's jurisdiction. Ironically, God provided Elijah a place of refuge in Jezebel's homeland, which was associated with worship of Baal. • So he went: Elijah again (see 17:5) obeyed the Lord's command. Obedience (1 Sam 15:22; Ps 40:1-6; Isa 1:10-20), trust (Ps 37:3; Prov 3:5-6), and faithfulness (Ps 18:25; 31:25; Rev 2:10) are foundational attributes for successful spiritual service. • God's ongoing provision for Elijah and the widow of Zarephath demonstrated God's concern for all people who put him first. • water . . . bread: Elijah asked for the basic staples of life, but these were in scarce supply as the drought spread into Phoenician territory.

17:12 by the LORD your God (literally as surely as the LORD your God lives): The wording reflects Elijah's oath and pronouncement to Ahab (17:1). The Gentile woman's oath does not necessarily claim that the Lord is her god, but it does affirm to Elijah that what she says is the truth.

17:13-14 Despite the woman's dwindling supplies (17:12), Elijah asked her to serve him before herself and her son. Like the poor widow who gave two small coins (Luke 21:1-4), this woman was asked to give all that she had to the Lord's prophet. True faithfulness means placing God's Kingdom ahead of personal concerns (Matt 6:33).

17:15-16 She did as Elijah said, and God rewarded her act of faith. The fresh supply of the widow's daily necessities reminded her of God's faithfulness and goodness (Lam 3:22-24; Phil 4:19).

17:17-24 This narrative begins with the woman's doubts about Elijah (17:17-18) and ends with her acknowledging the authority of God's word as spoken by Elijah (17:24). Ironically, this Gentile widow affirmed God's miraculous power when God's own people, Israel, had forgotten his mighty works.

17:17 he died: All attempts to explain away the subsequent miracle fly in the face of the plain statement.

17:18 my sins: The widow held to the common idea that suffering and misfortune are always the result of personal sin (see Job 4:7; Luke 13:1-4; John 9:1-3).

17:19 Following ancient Near Eastern custom, Elijah's quarters were probably situated in a separate room accessed by an outside stairway. This arrangement maintained the woman's reputation and offered Elijah a measure of privacy.

17:20 why have you brought tragedy: Elijah plaintively expressed to God the fear that his presence caused the child's death.

17:21 While it is unclear what life-giving power Elijah was trying to convey by his physical contact with the deceased boy, it is clear that his confidence was in the Lord. Elisha later performed a similar physical ritual when the Lord restored the dead son of the woman from Shunem (2 Kgs 4:32-37).

17:22-24 The miracle of the child's raising rewarded Elijah's faith and confirmed the mother's initial confidence in God's prophet. Her testimony may indicate that she put her faith in the LORD. Jesus cited her as an example of God's concern for non-Israelites and as an indication that God's messenger is often more easily received by others

The Contest on Mount Carmel

18 Later on, in the third year of the drought, the LORD said to Elijah, "Go and present yourself to King Ahab. Tell him that I will soon send rain!" ²So Elijah went to appear before Ahab.

Meanwhile, the famine had become very severe in Samaria. ³So Ahab summoned Obadiah, who was in charge of the palace. (Obadiah was a devoted follower of the LORD. ⁴Once when Jezebel had tried to kill all the LORD's prophets, Obadiah had hidden 100 of them in two caves. He put fifty prophets in each cave and supplied them with food and water.) ⁵Ahab said to Obadiah, "We must check every spring and valley in the land to see if we can find enough grass to save at least some of my horses and mules." ⁶So they divided the land between them. Ahab went one way by himself, and Obadiah went another way by himself.

⁷As Obadiah was walking along, he suddenly saw Elijah coming toward him. Obadiah recognized him at once and bowed low to the ground before him. "Is it really you, my lord Elijah?" he asked.

⁸"Yes, it is," Elijah replied. "Now go and tell your master, 'Elijah is here.'"

⁹"Oh, sir," Obadiah protested, "what harm have I done to you that you are sending me to my death at the hands of Ahab?" ¹⁰For I swear by the LORD your God that the king has searched every nation and kingdom on earth from end to end to find you. And each time he was told, 'Elijah isn't here,' King Ahab forced the king of that nation to swear to the truth of his claim. ¹¹And now you say, 'Go and tell your master, "Elijah is here."' ¹²But as soon as I leave you, the Spirit of the LORD will carry you away to who knows where. When Ahab comes and cannot find you, he will kill me. Yet I have been a true servant of the LORD all my life. ¹³Has no one told you, my lord, about the time when God's prophets played a major role in the OT kingdoms of Israel and Judah. They ministered to people's everyday needs, confronted kings and priests over their apostasy, and performed many miracles. They brought announcements of God's coming plans (11:31-32; 17:1), especially messages of judgment (13:1-2; 20:42; 21:20-23; 22:20-22).

Several examples from 1 Kings serve to illustrate the prophets' role. The faithful prophet Nathan rebuked David regarding his sin with Bathsheba (2 Sam 12:1-12), and later he played a crucial role in counteracting Adonijah's attempt to seize his father David's throne (1:5-49). The prophet Ahijah informed Jeroboam that God intended to divide Solomon's kingdom after his death (11:29-39). Later, God used an unnamed prophet to condemn Jeroboam's apostate religion and the altar at Bethel (13:1-10) and to demonstrate the consequences of disobeying the LORD's commission (13:11-32). Ahijah reappeared, announcing the LORD's judgment against Jeroboam and his heirs (14:1-16). The prophet Jehu announced judgment on King Baasha for continuing in Jeroboam's sin (16:2-4). A large portion of 1 Kings is devoted to the prophet Elijah (17-19; 21:17-28), who was God's primary spokesman during King Ahab's reign (though other prophets were also active during this period; see 20:38-43; 22:17-28).

God related to his OT people through his spokesmen, the prophets. Today, many of the prophet's duties are carried out by those who faithfully proclaim God's word (2 Tim 4:2).

than by his own countrymen (Luke 4:24-26). The Scriptures repeatedly mention God's care of widows as illustrating his care for needy people (Exod 22:21; Deut 10:18; 27:19; Ps 68:5; Isa 1:17; Jas 1:27).

18:2 Elijah continued to obey the LORD's commands (see 17:5, 10), despite the personal danger of appearing before Ahab.

18:3-6 Due to the severity of the continuing drought, Ahab and Obadiah, his chief officer (cp. 4:6; 16:9), set out to locate sufficient water and grass for the king's horses. These provisions were crucial for military preparedness. Assyrian king Shalmaneser III wrote that Ahab put some 2,000 horse-drawn chariots into the Battle of Qarqar (853 BC). Solomon had also had many horses and chariots (10:26).

18:4 Obadiah's care for 100 of the LORD's prophets may indicate a group of prophets such as had existed since Samuel's time (1 Sam 10:5-18; 19:20, 24). Such groups met together for study and mutual spiritual encouragement and are mentioned several times (2 Kgs 4:1, 38; 9:1). Elijah and Elisha apparently exercised leadership in some of these groups (2 Kgs 2:3-7, 15; 6:1-7).

18:10 every nation and kingdom: Ancient Near Eastern protocol called for the extradition of fugitives or runaway slaves, as noted in the famous treaty between Pharaoh Ramses II and the Hittite king Hattusilis (see ANET 200b, 203a). But Elijah had not had to seek asylum with a foreign king. God provided for his safety at Kerith Brook (17:3) and with the widow at Zarephath (17:9).

18:12-15 As a true believer, Obadiah recognized that the Spirit of the LORD operated within God's prophets (Judg 6:34; Ezek 3:12, 14; 11:1). Obadiah feared that the LORD's Spirit would carry Elijah away while he was reporting Elijah's whereabouts to Ahab. The king would then interpret his inability to produce Elijah as a sign that he was hiding Elijah, and he would kill him.

Jezebel was trying to kill the LORD's prophets? I hid 100 of them in two caves and supplied them with food and water. ¹⁴And now you say, 'Go and tell your master, "Elijah is here." ' Sir, if I do that, Ahab will certainly kill me."

¹⁵But Elijah said, "I swear by the LORD Almighty, in whose presence I stand, that I will present myself to Ahab this very day."

¹⁶So Obadiah went to tell Ahab that Elijah had come, and Ahab went out to meet Elijah. ¹⁷When Ahab saw him, he exclaimed, "So, is it really you, you troublemaker of Israel?"

¹⁸"I have made no trouble for Israel," Elijah replied. "You and your family are the troublemakers, for you have refused to obey the commands of the LORD and have worshiped the images of Baal instead. ¹⁹Now summon all Israel to join me at Mount Carmel, along with the 450 ^aprophets of ^bBaal and the 400 ^aprophets of Asherah who are supported by Jezebel."

²⁰So Ahab summoned all the people of Israel and the prophets to Mount Carmel. ²¹Then Elijah stood in front of them and said, "How much longer will you waver, hobbling between two opinions? If the LORD is God, follow him! But if Baal is God, then follow him!" But the people were completely silent.

Elijah from Tishbe served as prophet of Israel during the reigns of Ahab and Ahaziah (874–852 BC). His name means "my God is Yahweh," and his ministry involved demonstrating that the Lord is the one true God and calling Israel back to the Lord.

Under Ahab and Jezebel, Israel began worshiping Baal, a Canaanite fertility god of storm and rain, so God sent a drought upon Israel (17:1). Elijah hid until the drought ended, and he was sustained by God. During that time, he lived with a widow in Zarephath, a town in Jezebel's home territory of Sidon. The widow's son died, but Elijah prayed for him and he was revived (17:8-24).

In the third year of drought, Elijah challenged Baal's prophets on Mount Carmel to a contest to demonstrate the identity of the true God (18:1-40). The prophets of Baal called on Baal in vain, becoming frantic to induce him to appear, while Elijah made fun of Baal. When it was Elijah's turn, he poured water over his sacrifice and prayed a simple, powerful prayer. Fire immediately consumed the offering. The people of Israel worshiped the Lord and, at Elijah's direction, killed Baal's prophets. Then Elijah prayed for rain, and the drought ended (18:41-46).

Even with such tremendous displays of God's power, Ahab and Jezebel continued to lead Israel astray. Jezebel was furious that her prophets had been killed (19:1-2). She threatened Elijah, who fled to the desert and asked God to take his life. Instead, an angel nourished him until he reached Mount Sinai. Elijah complained that he was the only remaining prophet of the Lord, and his life was at risk. God encouraged him in a quiet voice and with good news, then recommissioned him for service (19:3-18).

Elijah was single-minded in his devotion to the true God. He had an assistant named Elisha whom he trained well. At the end of Elijah's earthly existence, rather than dying, he was caught up into heaven in a chariot of fire (2 Kgs 2:11-12; cp. Gen 5:21-24). Elisha inherited Elijah's prophetic mantle and continued the task of confronting false worship in Israel (see 2 Kgs 2:1-9:13; 13:14-25).

The OT closes with the expectation that Elijah would return before the day of the Lord (Mal 4:5-6), an expectation that John the Baptist fulfilled, at least in part (see Matt 11:14; 17:10-13; Luke 1:17). Elijah appeared with Moses at Jesus' transfiguration (Matt 17:1-13 // Luke 9:28-36). In Rev 11:3-12, one of the two witnesses is either Elijah himself or is modeled after Elijah. Elijah's life illustrates God's kindness and the effectiveness of prayer (Luke 4:25-26; Rom 11:2-6; Jas 5:17-18).

18:16-18 troublemakers: Although Elijah announced the onset of the drought (17:1), it was Ahab and his family who brought God's judgment upon Israel by their violations of the covenant and their sponsorship of Baal worship (see Lev 26:19; Deut 28:15, 23; 2 Chr 7:13; Jer 14:1-7; Amos 4:7-8).

18:19-20 Mount Carmel lies on a ridge dividing the coastal plain of Palestine. The site was known for Canaanite idol worship; an altar to the Lord had also been built there earlier (18:30). It was a natural location for the contest with Baal. Although the Septuagint (Greek translation of the OT) may indicate that the prophets of Asherah attended the ensuing contest on Mount Carmel, the Hebrew text does not (cp. 18:22).

18:19 who are supported by Jezebel: Literally who eat at Jezebel's table.

18:21 The Hebrew word translated waver means "to be lame" or "to limp." Elijah compared the people's hobbling between the worship of the LORD and of Baal to a person who limps awkwardly ²²Then Elijah said to them, "I am the only prophet of the LORD who is left, but Baal has 450 prophets. ²³Now bring two bulls. The prophets of Baal may choose whichever one they wish and cut it into pieces and lay it on the wood of their altar, but without setting fire to it. I will prepare the other bull and lay it on the wood on the altar, but not set fire to it. ²⁴Then call on the name of your god, and I will call on the name of the LORD. The god who answers by setting fire to the wood is the true God!" And all the people agreed.

²⁵Then Elijah said to the prophets of Baal, "You go first, for there are many of you. Choose one of the bulls, and prepare it and call on the name of your god. But do not set fire to the wood."

²⁶So they prepared one of the bulls and placed it on the altar. Then they called on the name of Baal from morning until noontime, shouting, "O Baal, answer us!" But there was no reply of any kind. Then they danced, hobbling around the altar they had made.

²⁷About noontime Elijah began mocking them. "You'll have to shout louder," he scoffed, "for surely he is a god! Perhaps he is daydreaming, or is relieving himself. Or maybe he is away on a trip, or is asleep and needs to be wakened!"

²⁸So they shouted louder, and following their normal custom, they cut themselves with knives and swords until the blood gushed out. ²⁹They raved all afternoon until the time of the evening sacrifice, but still there was no sound, no reply, no response.

³⁰Then Elijah called to the people, "Come over here!" They all crowded around him as he repaired the altar of the LORD that had been torn down. ³¹He took twelve stones, one to represent each of the tribes of Israel, ³²and he used the stones to rebuild the altar in the name of the LORD. Then he dug a trench around the altar large enough to hold about three gallons. ³³He piled wood on the altar, cut the bull into pieces, and laid the pieces on the wood.

◀ Elijah the Prophet, about 870 BC (17:1-19:21). After foretelling of a severe drought throughout the land, Elijah was sent by the Lord to KERITH BROOK, where he was fed by ravens. Later the Lord told Elijah to go live in the Gentile town of ZAREPHATH in the territory of SIDON. After the contest on MOUNT CARMEL between the Lord and Baal, the people killed the prophets of Baal in the KISHON VALLEY near the foot of the mountain. Then Elijah ran ahead of Ahab's chariot all the way to JEZREEL. From there Elijah fled to MOUNT SINAI, leaving his servant in BEERSHEBA and stopping to rest in the wilderness along the way.

Deut 4:24; 2 Chr 7:1; Isa 66:15; Amos 7:4), which could have been lightning (cp. Ps 18:12-13; Ezek 1:13-14; Zech 9:14). The contest would demonstrate whether the Canaanite storm-god Baal or the God of Israel was the true God; only the true God could set fire to the wood (cp. Lev 9:24).

18:27 is relieving himself: Or is busy somewhere else, or is engaged in business. Elijah's sarcastic taunts mocked the personification of the gods as having human needs. Egyptian priests awakened their god, then fed, washed, and dressed the idol in fresh clothing. They even put rouge on the idol's face and placed the proper emblem of royalty on it.

18:28-29 shouted . . . cut themselves . . . raved: The prophets of Baal demonstrated ecstatic behavior common in ancient pagan religions, but their efforts produced no response. Of course, there is only one true God (Deut 4:35; 6:4; Isa 44:8); all other hopes are doomed to failure (Isa 45:22).

18:31-32 The twelve stones that Elijah used to rebuild the altar in the name of the LORD should have reminded the people that God had a prior claim as the redeemer of all Israel (cp. Josh 4:1-11; see Isa 41:14; 49:26).

18:31 each of the tribes of Israel: Literally each of the tribes of the sons of Jacob to whom the LORD had said, "Your name will be Israel."

18:32 three gallons: Hebrew 2 seahs [14.6 liters] of seed.

18:33-35 Elijah avoided any hint of deception by dousing the offering and from one foot to the other. Elijah may have also been referring to the ritual dance performed by Baal's prophets as they attempted to gain the storm-god's attention (18:26).

18:22 the only prophet of the LORD: Obadiah had previously hidden two groups of fifty prophets to protect them from Jezebel's purge (18:4, 13). However, Elijah's public stature must have left him feeling alone in his struggle against false religion (see 19:10, 14); certainly, he did stand alone in confronting the 450 prophets of Baal.

18:23-24 The Lord's presence was attested by fire (Exod 9:23; 19:18; 40:38;

Then he said, "Fill four large jars with water, and pour the water over the offering and the wood."

³⁴After they had done this, he said, "Do the same thing again!" And when they were finished, he said, "Now do it a third time!" So they did as he said, ³⁵and the water ran around the altar and even filled the trench.

³⁶At the usual time for offering the evening sacrifice, Elijah the prophet walked up to the altar and prayed, "O LORD, God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, prove today that you are God in Israel and that I am your servant. Prove that I have done all this at your command. ³⁷O LORD, answer me! Answer me so these people will know that you, O LORD, are God and that you have brought them back to yourself."

³⁸Immediately the fire of the LORD flashed down from heaven and burned up the young bull, the wood, the stones, and the dust. It even licked up all the water in the trench! ³⁹And when all the people saw it, they fell face down on the ground and cried out, "The LORD—he is God! Yes, the LORD is God!"

⁴⁰Then Elijah commanded, "Seize all the prophets of ¹Baal. Don't let a single one escape!" So the people seized them all, and Elijah took them down to the Kishon Valley and killed them there.

Elijah Prays for Rain

⁴¹Then Elijah said to Ahab, "Go get something to eat and drink, for I hear a mighty rainstorm coming!"

⁴²So Ahab went to eat and drink. But Elijah climbed to the top of Mount Carmel and bowed low to the ground and prayed with his face between his knees.

⁴³Then he said to his servant, "Go and look out toward the sea."

The servant went and looked, then returned to Elijah and said, "I didn't see anything."

Seven times Elijah told him to go and look. ⁴⁴Finally the seventh time, his servant told him, "I saw a little cloud about the size of a man's hand rising from the sea."

Then Elijah shouted, "Hurry to Ahab and tell him, 'Climb into your chariot and go back home. If you don't hurry, the rain will stop you!'" ⁴⁵And soon the sky was black with clouds. A heavy wind brought a terrific rainstorm, and Ahab left quickly for Jezreel. ⁴⁶Then the LORD gave special strength to Elijah. He tucked his cloak into his belt and ran ahead of Ahab's chariot all the way to the entrance of Jezreel.

Elijah Flees to Sinai

19 When Ahab got home, he told Jezebel everything Elijah had done, including the way he had killed all the prophets of Baal. ²So Jezebel sent this message to Elijah: "May the gods strike me and even kill me if by this time tomorrow I have not killed you just as you killed them."

³Elijah was afraid and fled for his life. He went to Beersheba, a town in Judah, and he left his servant there. ⁴Then he went on alone into the wilderness, traveling all day.

the wood with great quantities of water, perhaps taken from the nearby Mediterranean Sea or Kishon River.

18:36 At the appointed time of sacrifice to the Lord, Elijah prayed. He did not imitate the ecstatic behavior of the prophets of Baal but simply prayed to God in light of his promises to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (Gen 50:24; Exod 3:6; 15: 4:5; Num 32:11; Deut 9:27). • and Jacob: Literally and Israel. The names "Jacob" and "Israel" are often interchanged throughout the OT, referring sometimes to the individual patriarch and sometimes to the nation (see Gen 32:28).

18:37 The call-answer motif appears frequently in the OT, often depicting the petitioner's intimate relationship to the Lord (Job 14:15; Ps 4:1; 91:15; 102:2; Isa 65:24; Jer 33:3).

18:38-39 Whether by lightning-strike or more supernatural means, the Lord sent fire to consume everything, including all the water in the trench. This was convincing proof that the LORD is God. The continuing story demonstrates conclusively that the Lord, not Baal, has control over fire, water, and the weather.

18:41-45 The servant . . . saw a little cloud on the horizon that appeared to be the size of a hand. Yet it heralded the approach of a terrific rainstorm.

18:46 He tucked his cloak into his belt (literally He bound up his loins) so he could run more easily ahead of Ahab's chariot. The Hebrew idiom refers to doing anything vigorously or enthusiastically (2 Kgs 4:29). • Jezreel was between Megiddo and Beth-shan in the southeastern portion of the Valley of Jezreel, about seventeen miles from Mount Carmel.

19:2 Speaking a curse, Jezebel reinforced her threat to kill. . . Elijah within a day. Solomon had made a similar declaration regarding his half-brother Adonijah (2:23), and the king of Aram later issued an edict against Elisha with the same formula (2 Kgs 6:31). Jezebel acted with cold-blooded resolve to accomplish her purposes (21:5-15).

19:3 Elijah was afraid: The NLT follows the Greek OT and a majority of scholars in translating Elijah's reaction as one of fear, proposing a reading of wayyira' ("he feared") in the original Hebrew. The Hebrew text as we have it reads, "he saw it" (wayyare')—i.e., the danger in Jezebel's threat. Rather than a warm reception after the spectacular victory, and a hoped-for repentance beginning with the royal house, Elijah faced a death threat. • Beersheba lay at the southern end of the country. A familiar formula described the limits of the land as "from Dan to Beersheba" (4:25; 2 Sam 24:2).

19:4 Though technically a shrub, the broom tree can reach a height of ten feet. Its leaves are small, but it provides adequate shade for a weary traveler in the wilderness. Like Jonah (Jon 4:3), Elijah had successfully carried out his commission, but he felt a sense of defeat with

He sat down under a solitary broom tree and prayed that he might die. "I have had enough, LORD," he said. "Take my life, for I am no better than my ancestors who have already died."

⁵Then he lay down and slept under the broom tree. But as he was sleeping, an angel touched him and told him, "Get up and eat!" ⁶He looked around and there beside his head was some bread baked on hot stones and a jar of water! So he ate and drank and lay down again.

⁷Then the angel of the LORD came again and touched him and said, "Get up and eat some more, or the journey ahead will be too much for you."

⁸So he got up and ate and drank, and the food gave him enough strength to travel forty days and forty nights to Mount Sinai, the mountain of God. ⁹There he came to a cave, where he spent the night.

The LORD Speaks to Elijah

But the LORD said to him, "What are you doing here, Elijah?"

¹⁰Elijah replied, "I have zealously served the LORD God Almighty. But the people of Israel have broken their covenant with you, torn down your altars, and killed every one of your prophets. I am the only one left, and now they are trying to kill me, too."

¹¹"Go out and stand before me on the mountain," the LORD told him. And as Elijah stood there, the LORD passed by, and a mighty windstorm hit the mountain. It was such a terrible blast that the rocks were torn loose, but the LORD was not in the wind. After the wind there was an earthquake, but the LORD was not in the earthquake. ¹²And after the earthquake there was a fire, but the LORD was not in the fire. And after the fire there was the sound of a gentle whisper. ¹³When Elijah heard it, he wrapped his face in his cloak and went out and stood at the entrance of the cave.

And a voice said, "What are you doing here, Elijah?"

¹⁴He replied again, "I have zealously served the LORD God Almighty. But the people of Israel have broken their covenant with you, torn down your altars, and killed every one of your prophets. I am the only one left, and now they are trying to kill me, too."

¹⁵Then the LORD told him, "Go back the same way you came, and travel to the wilderness of Damascus. When you arrive there, anoint Hazael to be king of Aram. ¹⁶Then anoint Jehu grandson of Nimshi to be king of Israel, and anoint Elisha son of Shaphat from the town of Abel-meholah to replace you as my prophet. ¹⁷Anyone who escapes from Hazael will be killed by Jehu, and those who escape Jehu will be killed by Elisha! ¹⁸Yet I will preserve 7,000 others in Israel who have never bowed down to Baal or kissed him!"

the results. • no better: God's refugee prophet felt that he had accomplished little and would be better off dead.

19:5-7 The angel of the LORD provided Elijah with precisely what he needed at the moment (17:2-6, 10-12). God often sent an angel to minister to one of his servants (Ps 34:7; Heb 1:14).

19:8 Elijah's determination to go to Mount Sinai (Hebrew to Horeb, another name for Sinai) took him on a journey of approximately 200 miles. The trip would not have required forty days and forty nights, so Elijah may have set a pace that was symbolic of Israel's past. Moses spent forty days on Mount Sinai and Israel subsequently wandered in the wilderness for forty years (Num 14:33-34; Deut 1:2-3). Forty sometimes represented a period of full testing (Gen 7:4; Ps 95:10; Jon 3:4; Matt 4:1-2).

19:9-10 a cave (literally the cave): Some have suggested that Elijah came to the very place where God appeared to Moses (Exod 33:21-23). • What are you doing here, Elijah? The Lord's question may have a double implication: Why had Elijah come, and did he understand the significance of the spot where he stood? Elijah replied to the former part of the question. Elijah had boldly announced that he was alone in his stand for the Lord (18:22); now, that feeling turned to self-pity.

19:11-12 The powerful physical phenomena that sometimes signal God's presence (Exod 3:2; 19:18; Ps 68:7-8; 114:4; Heb 3:6-7) did not herald God's approach on this occasion. Instead, Elijah sensed God's presence when he heard the sound of a gentle whisper.

19:13-14 What are you doing here? The Lord repeats his question (see 19:9), and Elijah gives exactly the same response as earlier. Elijah's answer gives no indication that he understood how God was working through all that had happened. Paul makes reference to this interchange in Rom 11:3-4.

19:15-17 Go back . . . and travel: In loving patience, God renewed his prophet's commission (cp. John 21:15-19). God directed Elijah to retrace his steps back to the place where he had strayed from God's mission; from there he could move forward. • Hazael and Jehu both became instruments of God's judgment (2 Kgs 8:7-15; 9:14-37). • grandson of Nimshi:

Hebrew descendant of Nimshi; cp. 2 Kgs 9:2, 14, where Jehu is listed as "son of Jehoshaphat, son of Nimshi." • Elisha, Elijah's successor, would bring spiritual discernment and the Lord's further judgment to Israel (2 Kgs 3:10-19; 8:7-15; 9:1-10:31; 13:3, 15-19). • Abel-meholah was located south of Beth-shan, where the Valley of Jezreel and the Jordan Valley come together (see 4:12; Judg 7:22).

19:18 The Lord corrected Elijah's thinking; the prophet was not alone. Earlier he had forgotten the 100 prophets protected by Obadiah (18:4, 13). Now he learned that there were 7,000 others who remained faithful to the Lord.

• bowed down . . . or kissed him: These common forms of submission in the ancient Near East (2 Kgs 21:3; Isa 46:6; 60:14; Hos 13:2) are often mentioned in the annals of victorious kings or in the ancient epics. Ashurbanipal reported that on his sixth campaign, an Elamite king kissed his royal feet and tidied up the ground with his beard. In the Mesopotamian creation epic (Enuma Elish, V 86), even the great gods bowed down and kissed the feet of Marduk, the victorious head of the pantheon.

The Call of Elisha

¹⁹So Elijah went and found Elisha son of Shaphat plowing a field. There were twelve teams of oxen in the field, and Elisha was plowing with the twelfth team. Elijah went over to him and threw his cloak across his shoulders and then walked away. ²⁰Elisha left the oxen standing there, ran after Elijah, and said to him, "First let me go and kiss my father and mother good-bye, and then I will go with you!"

Elijah replied, "Go on back, but think about what I have done to you."

²¹So Elisha returned to his oxen and slaughtered them. He used the wood from the plow to build a fire to roast their flesh. He passed around the meat to the townspeople, and they all ate. Then he went with Elijah as his ^aassistant.

Ben-Hadad Attacks Samaria

20 About that time King Ben-hadad of Aram mobilized his army, supported by the chariots and horses of thirty-two allied kings. They went to besiege Samaria, the capital of Israel, and launched attacks against it. ²Ben-hadad sent messengers into the city to relay this message to King Ahab of Israel: "This is what Ben-hadad says: ³Your silver and gold are mine, and so are your wives and the best of your children!"

⁴"All right, my lord the king," Israel's king replied. "All that I have is yours!"

⁵Soon Ben-hadad's messengers returned again and said, "This is what Ben-hadad says: 'I have already demanded that you give me your silver, gold, wives, and children. ⁶But about this time tomorrow I will send my officials to search your palace and the homes of your officials. They will take away everything you consider valuable!'"

⁷Then Ahab summoned all the elders of the land and said to them, "Look how this man is stirring up trouble! I already agreed with his demand that I give him my wives and children and silver and gold."

⁸"Don't give in to any more demands," all the elders and the people advised.

⁹So Ahab told the messengers from Ben-hadad, "Say this to my lord the king: 'I will give you everything you asked for the first time, but I cannot accept this last demand of yours.'" So the messengers returned to Ben-hadad with that response.

¹⁰Then Ben-hadad sent this message to Ahab: "May the gods strike me and even kill me if there remains enough dust from Samaria to provide even a handful for each of my soldiers."

¹¹The king of Israel sent back this answer: "A warrior putting on his sword for battle should not boast like a warrior who has already won."

¹²Ahab's reply reached Ben-hadad and the other kings as they were drinking in their tents. "Prepare to attack!" Ben-hadad commanded his officers. So they prepared to attack the city.

Ahab's Victory over Ben-Hadad

¹³Then a certain prophet came to see King Ahab of Israel and told him, "This is what 19:19-21 The anointing of Elisha is an epilogue to the Lord's charge to Elijah. The two other anointings that God assigned to Elijah (19:15-16) were carried out by Elisha instead (2 Kgs 8:7-15; 9:1-10).

19:19 Twelve teams of oxen would indicate that Elisha came from a wealthy family. • Elisha understood that Elijah's power from God would come upon him with the prophet's cloak.

19:21 Elisha burned his plow and slaughtered his oxen to signal a complete break from the past in his present calling. From now on, he would serve the Lord. His meal with family and friends may have been a thanksgiving sacrifice to God capped by a communal meal in joyful celebration of God's claim upon Elisha's life. • Elisha would first serve as Elijah's assistant. Great leaders often begin as good learners. Joshua was Moses' assistant (Exod 24:13) before becoming his successor (Num 27:18-23; Deut 34:9) and assuming command of the forces of Israel (Josh 1:1-9). Later, Elisha had an assistant named Gehazi (2 Kgs 4:12).

20:1 Whether this is Ben-hadad I or II is unclear. • thirty-two allied kings: Confederations of kings were common in the ancient Near East. Shalmaneser III recorded Ben-hadad's name as Hadad-ezer and reported that he was part of a twelve-king coalition that opposed him in the Battle of Qarqar (853 BC).

20:2-4 Ben-hadad's first delegation of messengers brought his demand that Israel must agree to surrender both its treasures and people. Ahab capitulated, wanting peace at any cost. He would give up royal treasures and even his family rather than face bloody war with a powerful enemy.

20:7-9 When Ben-hadad's second delegation made even greater demands (see 1 Sam 11:1-2), Ahab recognized that Ben-hadad seemed bent on war. Ahab repeated his compliance with Ben-hadad's first demand but rejected the second. • my lord the king: Ahab addressed Ben-hadad in polite diplomatic terms, conceding his willingness to accept the Aramean king's rule. Perhaps he hoped that his courteous reply would still avoid military confrontation.

20:10-11 Ben-hadad's third delegation delivered an ultimatum: Surrender or die. His caustic threat to thoroughly plunder Samaria was reinforced with a curse, an example of the psychological warfare often practiced in the ancient Near East (see 2 Kgs 18:19-35). • Ahab's third reply to Ben-hadad contained proverbial wisdom. The outcome of the conflict was not yet sealed.

20:12 Ben-hadad and the other kings . . . were drinking in their tents (or in Succoth; also in 20:16) in anticipation of Ahab's capitulation. Ahab's reply constituted a challenge, and the Aramean officers prepared to attack.

20:13-34 Two distinct battles ensued, one in Samaria (20:13-25) and one at Aphek (20:26-34). The writer included the LORD says: Do you see all these enemy forces? Today I will hand them all over to you. Then you will know that I am the LORD."

¹⁴Ahab asked, "How will he do it?"

And the prophet replied, "This is what the LORD says: The troops of the provincial commanders will do it."

"Should we attack first?" Ahab asked.

"Yes," the prophet answered.

¹⁵So Ahab mustered the troops of the 232 provincial commanders. Then he called out the rest of the army of Israel, some 7,000 men. ¹⁶About noontime, as Ben-hadad and the thirty-two allied kings were still in their tents drinking themselves into a stupor, ¹⁷the troops of the provincial commanders marched out of the city as the first contingent.

As they approached, Ben-hadad's scouts reported to him, "Some troops are coming from Samaria."

¹⁸"Take them alive," Ben-hadad commanded, "whether they have come for peace or for war."

²²Afterward the prophet said to King Ahab, "Get ready for another attack. Begin making plans now, for the king of Aram will come back next spring."

Ben-Hadad's Second Attack

²³After their defeat, Ben-hadad's officers said to him, "The Israelite gods are gods of the hills; that is why they won. But we can ◀ War between Ahab and Aram (20:1–22:48). King Ben-hadad of ARAM and his allies tried to besiege SAMARIA, but King Ahab of ISRAEL met them in battle and defeated them. A year later Ben-hadad tried again to defeat Israel at APHEK, believing that the Israelites' gods would be powerless on the plains, but Ahab defeated them again. Despite the warnings of the prophet Micaiah, Ahab, joined by King Jehoshaphat of JUDAH, attacked the Arameans to take back the town of RAMOTH-GILEAD. During the battle Ahab was killed, and his body was taken back to Samaria.

20:17 first contingent: Ahab apparently sent this small squad to test the enemy. Surprise attacks in the ancient Near East often divided the attacking forces into assault groups designed to launch a pincer movement against the enemy (Judg 7:16; 1 Sam 11:11), to lure the opposing forces into an ambush (Josh 8:15–22), or to draw the enemy to a spot where the attacking army enjoyed a superior position (Judg 4:14–16; 5:19–21).

20:20–22 Horses and chariots were a key asset in ancient warfare. Ahab's destruction of the major portion of Ben-hadad's striking power was essential to guard against a future incursion. Still, God's prophet warned that the king of Aram would return. • next spring: Literally at the turn of the year; similarly in 20:26. The first day of the year in the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar occurred in March or April. Late spring and early summer were standard seasons for warfare in the ancient Near East; the forces could count on good weather and a supply of grain from the early harvest.

20:23 The reasoning that Israel had gods of the hills set the stage for the Lord to show his true identity (20:28). Ben-hadad's officers had a pagan religious outlook. Perhaps their erroneous view was fostered by traditional knowledge of the Lord's appearance to Israel on Mount Sinai (Exod 19:1–3, 16–18) or of Israel's long-term settlement of the hill country of Canaan (see Josh 10:40; 11:16; Judg 1:19). The Arameans were not aware that God is the Creator and Lord of all the earth (Isa 40:28; 54:5), the only God who alone can save (Isa 45:5, 22).

similar details regarding both: (1) pre-battle counsel (20:13–14, 23–25), (2) pre-battle conditions (20:15–16, 26–28), (3) victory for Israel despite the superior numbers of the enemy (20:17–21, 29–30), and (4) post-battle counsel (20:22, 31).

20:13–16 Ahab's forces attacked about noontime after receiving assurance of victory from an unknown prophet. The Jewish historian Josephus suggested that the prophet was Micaiah (cp. 22:8). The timing of the Israelite attack, during the heat of the day (see Josh 8:14), took the enemy by surprise. Ben-hadad and the . . . allied kings were still drinking, demonstrating their disdain for Ahab's military capability.

beat them easily on the plains. ²⁴Only this time replace the kings with field commanders! ²⁵Recruit another army like the one you lost. Give us the same number of horses, chariots, and men, and we will fight against them on the plains. There's no doubt that we will beat them." So King Ben-hadad did as they suggested.

²⁶The following spring he called up the Aramean army and marched out against Israel, this time at Aphek. ²⁷Israel then mustered its army, set up supply lines, and marched out for battle. But the Israelite army looked like two little flocks of goats in comparison to the vast Aramean forces that filled the countryside!

²⁸Then the man of God went to the king of Israel and said, "This is what the LORD says: The Arameans have said, 'The LORD is a god of the hills and not of the plains.' So I will defeat this vast army for you. Then you will know that I am the LORD."

²⁹The two armies camped opposite each other for seven days, and on the seventh day the battle began. The Israelites killed 100,000 Aramean foot soldiers in one day. ³⁰The rest fled into the town of Aphek, but the wall fell on them and killed another 27,000. Ben-hadad fled into the town and hid in a secret room.

³¹Ben-hadad's officers said to him, "Sir, we have heard that the kings of Israel are merciful. So let's humble ourselves by wearing burlap around our waists and putting ropes on our heads, and surrender to the king of Israel. Then perhaps he will let you live."

³²So they put on burlap and ropes, and they went to the king of Israel and begged, "Your servant Ben-hadad says, 'Please let me live!'"

The king of Israel responded, "Is he still alive? He is my brother!"

³³The men took this as a good sign and quickly picked up on his words. "Yes," they said, "your brother Ben-hadad!"

"Go and get him," the king of Israel told them. And when Ben-hadad arrived, Ahab invited him up into his chariot.

³⁴Ben-hadad told him, "I will give back the towns my father took from your father, and you may establish places of trade in Damascus, as my father did in Samaria."

Then Ahab said, "I will release you under these conditions." So they made a new treaty, and Ben-hadad was set free.

A Prophet Condemns Ahab

³⁵Meanwhile, the LORD instructed one of the group of prophets to say to another man, "Hit me!" But the man refused to hit the prophet. ³⁶Then the prophet told him, "Because you have not obeyed the voice of the LORD, a lion will kill you as soon as you leave me." And when he had gone, a lion did attack and kill him.

³⁷Then the prophet turned to another man and said, "Hit me!" So he struck the prophet and wounded him.

³⁸The prophet placed a bandage over his eyes to disguise himself and then waited

20:24-25 Ben-hadad's field commanders reasoned that with trained military leadership and superiority in manpower and equipment, they would easily defeat Israel on the plains in the next encounter.

20:26 Aphek was east of the Sea of Galilee in northern Ramoth-gilead. Ben-hadad's officers assumed that this location would favor the Aramean chariots and take away the power of Israel's "gods of the hills."

20:27-30 Despite the Arameans' superior numbers, Israel won another outstanding victory by God's help. All the parties learned that "nothing is impossible with God" (Luke 1:37; see Matt 19:26; Mark 10:27) and that when God is on one's side, the enemy will retreat (Ps 56:9) with staggering losses (Deut 32:30-31; 2 Kgs 19:32-36). Israel could face the foe fearlessly (Ps 3:6; 27:1-3). • God's assurance to Israel through the man of God showed that this battle was not just for Israel's well-being but for the Lord's glory.

20:31 burlap . . . ropes: Knowing the merciful mindset of the kings of Israel, . . . Ben-hadad's officers advised that they approach Ahab with symbols of humble repentance (Joel 1:13; Jon 3:5-9) and submission (Job 12:18; Lam 1:14). Ancient Near Eastern reliefs often depict captured enemies with ropes around their necks. Assyrian kings boasted of piercing their captives' lips or cheeks with ropes.

20:32-33 my brother: Ahab spoke to Ben-hadad in terms that politely indicated the Aramean king's royal authority and Ahab's desire for good relations. Ahab welcomed Ben-hadad into his chariot to demonstrate his warm reception of the king, yet serving notice that he should recognize Ahab as his equal. Correspondence and parity agreements between kings of the ancient Near East used the language of brotherhood to express friendship, good relations, or formal equality.

20:34 The treaty that Ahab and Ben-hadad established provided parity between the parties, although it was especially favorable to Ahab as the victor. • The towns that Israel had lost to Aram (15:20) were restored and Ben-hadad made important trade concessions to Ahab, who may have reasoned that such an arrangement would be profitable and provide him with an ally against the rising power of Shalmaneser III of Assyria.

20:35-43 Ahab's leniency toward Ben-hadad met with God's disfavor, portrayed in the symbolic actions of an unidentified prophet. God's prophets often conveyed the Lord's message through symbolic actions (Isa 20:1-6; Jer 27:1-7; Ezek 4:1-3, 9-17; 5:1-4). Ahab had brought judgment upon himself and his people by sparing an untrustworthy enemy rather than trusting further in the Lord.

20:36 a lion will kill you: A lion was previously the means of divine judgment (13:20-24) and would be so again during the repopulation of Israel following the fall of Samaria (2 Kgs 17:25-26).

beside the road for the king. ³⁹As the king passed by, the prophet called out to him, "Sir, I was in the thick of battle, and suddenly a man brought me a prisoner. He said, 'Guard this man; if for any reason he gets away, you will either die or pay a fine of seventy-five pounds of silver!'" ⁴⁰But while I was busy doing something else, the prisoner disappeared!"

"Well, it's your own fault," the king replied. "You have brought the judgment on yourself."

⁴¹Then the prophet quickly pulled the bandage from his eyes, and the king of Israel recognized him as one of the prophets. ⁴²The prophet said to him, "This is what the LORD says: Because you have spared the man I said must be destroyed, now you must die in his place, and your people will die instead of his people." ⁴³So the king of Israel went home to Samaria angry and sullen.

Naboth's Vineyard

21 Now there was a man named Naboth, from Jezreel, who owned a vineyard in Jezreel beside the palace of King Ahab of Samaria. ²One day Ahab said to Naboth, "Since your vineyard is so convenient to my palace, I would like to buy it to use as a vegetable garden. I will give you a better vineyard in exchange, or if you prefer, I will pay you for it."

³But Naboth replied, "The LORD forbid that I should give you the inheritance that was passed down by my ancestors."

⁴So Ahab went home angry and sullen because of Naboth's answer. The king went to bed with his face to the wall and refused to eat!

⁵"What's the matter?" his wife Jezebel asked him. "What's made you so upset that you're not eating?"

⁷"Are you the king of Israel or not?" Jezebel demanded. "Get up and eat something, and don't worry about it. I'll get you Naboth's vineyard!"

⁸So she wrote letters in Ahab's name, sealed them with his seal, and sent them to the elders and other leaders of the town where Naboth lived. ⁹In her letters she commanded: "Call the citizens together for a time of fasting, and give Naboth a place of honor. ¹⁰And then seat two scoundrels across from him who will accuse him of cursing God and the king. Then take him out and stone him to death."

¹¹So the elders and other town leaders followed the instructions Jezebel had written in the letters. ¹²They called for a fast and put Naboth at a prominent place before the people. ¹³Then the two scoundrels came and sat down across from him. And they accused Naboth before all the people, saying, "He cursed God and the king." So he 20:39 seventy-five pounds: Hebrew 1 talent [34 kilograms].

20:42-43 The LORD had apparently told Ahab to put Ben-hadad to death (cp. Josh 6:17-21), but Ahab violated his charge, perhaps viewing the Aramean king as part of the spoils of war (cp. 1 Sam 15:1-23). The king of Israel would regret his folly: He later faced Ben-hadad in another battle that would cost him his life (22:29-37). Rather than learning from the prophet's rebuke, Ahab went home angry and sullen.

20:42 destroyed: The Hebrew term used here refers to the complete consecration of things or people to the Lord, either by destroying them or by giving them as an offering (see Lev 27:28-29; 1 Sam 15:3).

21:1-16 The writer includes another incident in which king Ahab responded in an angry and sullen manner (20:43; 21:4).

21:1 In addition to his palace in the capital city, Ahab had a second palace . . . in Jezreel. Excavations at Jezreel have unearthed a sizeable palace there. • Samaria, which sometimes refers to the capital city, here indicates the whole northern kingdom.

21:2-3 Naboth refused Ahab's generous offer to buy or exchange land for his vineyard. While he may have desired to sell, Naboth noted that the law said that inherited property should stay in the family or tribe that originally owned it (Lev 25:23-28; Num 36:7-9). Unlike the kings of the surrounding nations, who could seize whatever property they wished (1 Sam 8:11-17), Ahab was bound by Israel's law.

21:4 angry and sullen: Ahab's reaction was the same when he was rebuked by God's prophet (20:43). A sullen attitude can easily arise in a stubborn, self-centered person (21:16, 20, 25-26; see 16:31-32; 18:10, 17; 20:42-43; 22:3, 27-30).

21:7 I'll get you Naboth's vineyard! With her ruthless disposition and actions, Jezebel displayed her cultural upbringing; Canaanite kings did as they pleased (21:8-10, 15, 25; see 19:1-2; 2 Kgs 9:30-31).

21:8-9 Call the citizens together: This kind of assembly would normally address sin that could bring divine judgment against the people (see Deut 21:1-9; Josh 7:10-12; 1 Sam 7:1-6). Jezebel convened it to bring false charges against an innocent person.

21:10 scoundrels (literally sons of Belial): The Hebrew term refers to totally evil reprobates (Deut 13:13; Judg 19:22; 1 Sam 10:27; Prov 6:12). Later Jewish writings attributed the name Belial to Satan, a use reflected by Paul in the NT (2 Cor 6:15). • Legally, two witnesses were needed to establish a charge against a person (Deut 19:15; Matt 18:16). The twofold charge of Naboth's blasphemy against God and against the king carried a penalty of death by stoning outside the city (Deut 17:5-6; 22:24). Naboth was apparently put to death on his own land (see 2 Kgs 9:21-26).

21:13-14 As with Achan (Josh 7:24-26), Naboth's sons were stoned to death at the same time to prevent the property from passing on to them. Because the charge carried the penalty of state execution (Deut 13:10-11; 17:5) and because Naboth no longer had male heirs, Ahab exercised the royal prerogative of confiscating the property (see 1 Sam 8:14).

was dragged outside the town and stoned to death. ¹⁴The town leaders then sent word to Jezebel, "Naboth has been stoned to death."

¹⁵When Jezebel heard the news, she said to Ahab, "You know the vineyard Naboth wouldn't sell you? Well, you can have it now! He's dead!" ¹⁶So Ahab immediately went down to the vineyard of Naboth to claim it.

¹⁷But the LORD said to Elijah, ¹⁸"Go down to meet King Ahab of Israel, who rules in Samaria. He will be at Naboth's vineyard in Jezreel, claiming it for himself. ¹⁹Give him this message: 'This is what the LORD says: Wasn't it enough that you killed Naboth? Must you rob him, too? Because you have done this, dogs will lick your blood at the very place where they licked the blood of Naboth!'"

²⁰"So, my enemy, you have found me!" Ahab exclaimed to Elijah.

"Yes," Elijah answered, "I have come because you have sold yourself to what is evil in the LORD's sight. ²¹So now the LORD says, 'I will bring disaster on you and consume you. I will destroy every one of your male descendants, slave and free alike, anywhere in Israel! ²²I am going to destroy your family as I did the family of Jeroboam son of Nebat and the family of Baasha son of Ahijah, for you have made me very angry and have led Israel into sin.'

²³"And regarding Jezebel, the LORD says, 'Dogs will eat Jezebel's body at the plot of land in Jezreel.'

²⁴"The members of Ahab's family who die in the city will be eaten by dogs, and those who die in the field will be eaten by vultures."

²⁵(No one else so completely sold himself to what was evil in the LORD's sight as Ahab did under the influence of his wife Jezebel.

²⁶His worst outrage was worshiping idols just as the Amorites had done—the people whom the LORD had driven out from the land ahead of the Israelites.)

²⁷But when Ahab heard this message, he tore his clothing, dressed in burlap, and fasted. He even slept in burlap and went about in deep mourning.

²⁸Then another message from the LORD came to Elijah: ²⁹"Do you see how Ahab has humbled himself before me? Because he has done this, I will not do what I promised during his lifetime. It will happen to his sons; I will destroy his dynasty."

Jehoshaphat and Ahab Make an Alliance

1 Kgs 22:2-9 // 2 Chr 18:2-8

22 For three years there was no war between Aram and Israel. ²Then during the third year, King Jehoshaphat of Judah went to visit King Ahab of Israel. ³During the visit, the king of Israel said to his officials, "Do you realize that the town of Ramoth-gilead belongs to us? And yet we've done nothing to recapture it from the king of Aram!"

⁴Then he turned to Jehoshaphat and asked, "Will you join me in battle to recover Ramoth-gilead?"

Jehoshaphat replied to the king of Israel, "Why, of course! You and I are as one. My troops are your troops, and my horses are your horses." ⁵Then Jehoshaphat added, "But first let's find out what the LORD says."

⁶So the king of Israel summoned the 21:17-22 Elijah (literally Elijah the Tishbite; also in 21:28) delivered the Lord's sentence against Ahab just as he was about to take possession of the vineyard. Because Ahab was responsible for the death of Naboth and the seizing of his field, Ahab and his family would be destroyed. The prophecy concerning Ahab's children would be fulfilled in Jehu's purging of Baal worshipers from Israel (2 Kgs 9:30-37; 10:1-11).

21:23-24 Jezebel would be killed at the plot of land in Jezreel (as in several Hebrew manuscripts, Syriac, and Latin Vulgate [see also 2 Kgs 9:26, 36]; most Hebrew manuscripts read at the city wall).

21:25-26 The author interrupts his account to reemphasize (see 16:30-34) Ahab's evil character, to denounce the king's commitment to idolatry, and to condemn his weakness in allowing himself to be under the influence of his wife

Jezebel. Wicked Jezebel would stop at nothing to achieve her own ends (18:4; 19:1-2; 21:5-10, 15). Though arrogant and defiant to the end (2 Kgs 9:30-31), she eventually met her predicted doom (21:23; 2 Kgs 9:32-37).

21:26 idols: The Hebrew term (literally round things) probably alludes to dung.

21:27-29 Ahab was a complex character. Although justly condemned for his evil character, here he repented when the Lord's prophet brought a message of rebuke (21:27). Because of Ahab's repentance, the LORD sent Elijah to postpone the awful sentence against Ahab and instead impose it on his equally wicked sons (2 Kgs 1:17; 9:24-26; 10:1-11).

22:1 three years . . . no war: During this time, the repeated westward thrusts of the Assyrian king Shalmaneser III (858-824 BC) led to the Battle of Qarqar (853 BC). Shalmaneser's records mention that he faced both Hadadezer (Ben-hadad) and Ahab at that battle. With the Assyrian king temporarily thwarted, old enmities between Aram and Israel flared up again.

22:2-4 Jehoshaphat and Ahab were in-laws by the marriage of Ahab's daughter Athaliah to Jehoshaphat's son Jehoram (2 Kgs 8:25-26). However cordial Jehoshaphat may have intended his visit to be, he quickly became involved in Ahab's plan to occupy Ramoth-gilead. The Assyrian menace prevented Ahab from taking control of this key area that dominated the eastern end of the Plain of Jezreel. Now it needed to be taken by force, and Jehoshaphat placed his troops and horses at Ahab's disposal.

22:5-9 In accordance with ancient Near Eastern custom, Jehoshaphat requested that the two kings determine the will of the Lord before going into battle. Examples of this custom are common in Aramean, Moabite, and Assyrian prophets, about 400 of them, and asked them, "Should I go to war against Ramoth-gilead, or should I hold back?"

They all replied, "Yes, go right ahead! The Lord will give the king victory."

7But Jehoshaphat asked, "Is there not also a prophet of the LORD here? We should ask him the same question."

8The king of Israel replied to Jehoshaphat, "There is one more man who could consult the LORD for us, but I hate him. He never prophesies anything but trouble for me! His name is Micaiah son of Imlah."

Jehoshaphat replied, "That's not the way a king should talk! Let's hear what he has to say."

9So the king of Israel called one of his officials and said, "Quick! Bring Micaiah son of Imlah."

Micaiah Prophesies against Ahab

1 Kgs 22:10-28 // 2 Chr 18:9-27

10King Ahab of Israel and King Jehoshaphat of Judah, dressed in their royal robes, were sitting on thrones at the threshing floor near the gate of Samaria. All of Ahab's prophets were prophesying there in front of them.

11One of them, Zedekiah son of Kenaanah, made some iron horns and proclaimed, "This is what the LORD says: With these horns you will gore the Arameans to death!"

12All the other prophets agreed. "Yes," they said, "go up to Ramoth-gilead and be victorious, for the LORD will give the king victory!"

13Meanwhile, the messenger who went to get Micaiah said to him, "Look, all the prophets are promising victory for the king. Be sure that you agree with them and promise success."

14But Micaiah replied, "As surely as the LORD lives, I will say only what the LORD tells me to say."

15When Micaiah arrived before the king, Ahab asked him, "Micaiah, should we go to war against Ramoth-gilead, or should we hold back?"

Micaiah replied sarcastically, "Yes, go up and be victorious, for the LORD will give the king victory!"

16But the king replied sharply, "How many times must I demand that you speak only the truth to me when you speak for the LORD?"

17Then Micaiah told him, "In a vision I saw all Israel scattered on the mountains, like sheep without a shepherd. And the LORD said, 'Their master has been killed. Send them home in peace.'"

18"Didn't I tell you?" the king of Israel exclaimed to Jehoshaphat. "He never prophesies anything but trouble for me."

19Then Micaiah continued, "Listen to what the LORD says! I saw the LORD sitting on his throne with all the armies of heaven around him, on his right and on his left. 20And the LORD said, 'Who can entice Ahab to go into battle against Ramoth-gilead so he can be killed?'"

"There were many suggestions, 21and finally a spirit approached the LORD and said, 'I can do it!'"

22" 'How will you do this?' the LORD asked. 'And the spirit replied, 'I will go out and inspire all of Ahab's prophets to speak lies.'"

" 'You will succeed,' said the LORD. 'Go ahead and do it.'"

23" 'So you see, the LORD has put a lying spirit in the mouths of all your prophets. For the LORD has pronounced your doom.'"

24Then Zedekiah son of Kenaanah walked up to Micaiah and slapped him across the face. "Since when did the Spirit of the LORD leave me to speak to you?" he demanded.

25And Micaiah replied, "You will find out inscriptions as well as in the OT (1 Sam 23:2-4; 2 Sam 5:19-25). Despite Ahab's misgivings, Jehoshaphat insisted on summoning Micaiah, a genuine prophet of the Lord.

22:10 In the ancient Near East, important business was often conducted at the threshing floor near the city gate. David secured the threshing floor of Araunah and built an altar there (2 Sam 24:18-25; 1 Chr 21:26); it later became the site for the Temple in Jerusalem (2 Chr 3:1).

22:13-14 The messenger who went to get Micaiah warned that he had better agree with the false prophets. However, Micaiah promised only that he would faithfully deliver the Lord's word (see Num 22:38; 24:13).

22:15-16 The word sarcastically does not occur in the Hebrew text; the NLT simply makes explicit what Ahab sensed in Micaiah's tone of voice (18:27; Job 12:1-2; 16:2).

22:17 Like God himself (Ps 23; Isa 40:10-11), Israel's kings and leaders were charged with care of the people much as a shepherd cares for his sheep (Num 27:16-17; Ezek 34:2, 11-16). The motif of the shepherd and the sheep, applied to the coming Messiah (Ezek 34:23-24), was fulfilled in Christ the Good Shepherd (John 10:1-11). Although he laid down his life for the sheep (John 10:14-18;

1 Pet 2:24-25), he still lives (Heb 13:20) and will come again for them (1 Pet 5:4). • Their master has been killed: Literally These people have no master.

22:19-23 Micaiah explained that God had allowed a lying spirit of prophecy to mislead Ahab to bring about his death. In his sovereignty, God used the counsel of Ahab's false prophets to accomplish his will.

22:24-25 An indignant Zedekiah, one of the false prophets, insisted that he and the others were telling the truth. Like Ahab, they would one day find out the real truth when the prophecy against them was fulfilled in Jehu's purge of Baal worship (2 Kgs 10:18-28).

soon enough when you are trying to hide in some secret room!"

²⁶"Arrest him!" the king of Israel ordered. "Take him back to Amon, the governor of the city, and to my son Joash. ²⁷Give them this order from the king: 'Put this man in prison, and feed him nothing but bread and water until I return safely from the battle!'"

²⁸But Micaiah replied, "If you return safely, it will mean that the LORD has not spoken through me!" Then he added to those standing around, "Everyone mark my words!"

The Death of Ahab

1 Kgs 22:29-37 // 2 Chr 18:28-34

²⁹So King Ahab of Israel and King Jehoshaphat of Judah led their armies against Ramoth-gilead. ³⁰The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, "As we go into battle, I will disguise myself so no one will recognize me, but you wear your royal robes." So the king of Israel disguised himself, and they went into battle.

³⁴An Aramean soldier, however, randomly shot an arrow at the Israelite troops and hit the king of Israel between the joints of his armor. "Turn the horses and get me out of here!" Ahab groaned to the driver of his chariot. "I'm badly wounded!"

³⁵The battle raged all that day, and the king remained propped up in his chariot facing the Arameans. The blood from his wound ran down to the floor of his chariot, and as evening arrived he died. ³⁶Just as the sun was setting, the cry ran through his troops: "We're done for! Run for your lives!"

³⁷So the king died, and his body was taken to Samaria and buried there. ³⁸Then his chariot was washed beside the pool of Samaria, and dogs came and licked his blood at the place where the prostitutes bathed, just as the LORD had promised.

³⁹The rest of the events in Ahab's reign and everything he did, including the story of the ivory palace and the towns he built, are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel. ⁴⁰So Ahab died, and his son Ahaziah became the next king.

Jehoshaphat's Reign in Judah (22:41-50)

1 Kgs 22:41-50 // 2 Chr 20:31-21:1

⁴¹Jehoshaphat son of Asa began to rule over Judah in the fourth year of King Ahab's reign in Israel. ⁴²Jehoshaphat was thirty-five years old when he became king, and he reigned in Jerusalem twenty-five years. His mother was Azubah, the daughter of Shilhi.

⁴³Jehoshaphat was a good king, following the example of his father, Asa. He did what was pleasing in the LORD's sight. During his reign, however, he failed to remove all the pagan shrines, and the people still offered sacrifices and burned incense there. ⁴⁴Jehoshaphat also made peace with the king of Israel.

⁴⁵The rest of the events in Jehoshaphat's reign, the extent of his power, and the wars he waged are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Judah. ⁴⁶He banished from the land the rest of the male 22:29-33 Ahab hoped to avoid direct reprisal from Ben-hadad by wearing a disguise. By urging Jehoshaphat to wear his royal robes, Ahab hoped to escape detection and thwart Micaiah's prophecy.

22:34-36 An Aramean soldier's random shot fulfilled Micaiah's prophecy about Ahab's death. Ancient armor discovered during excavations in the Near East suggests that the arrow would have found a small unprotected area between the breastplate and the metal platelets that comprised the lower armor. Although he was badly wounded, Ahab displayed courage by remaining propped up in his chariot throughout the course of the day's battle before calling for retreat.

22:34 Turn the horses: Literally Turn your hand.

22:37-38 Elijah's prophecy that dogs would lick the blood of Ahab's fallen body (21:19) was fulfilled. • his blood at the place where the prostitutes bathed: Or his blood, and the prostitutes bathed [in it]; or his blood, and they washed his armor. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

22:39-40 Excavations at Samaria have disclosed Ahab's palace and a nearby pool. The description of the palace as ivory may arise from the ivory-covered furnishings and wall panels. Gleaming white limestone covering the outside of the building also added to the palace's ivory-like luster.

22:39 The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel: See note on 14:19-20.

22:41-50 This overview provides basic information about Jehoshaphat's twenty-five-year reign as king of Judah. The Chronicler provides more details on Jehoshaphat's good spiritual character that led to religious reforms and the Lord's blessing (2 Chr 17:1-21:1). Including a two-year co-regency with his father, Asa, Jehoshaphat reigned from 872 to 848 BC (see timeline, p. 609).

22:43-44 Although Jehoshaphat is remembered as a king who did what was pleasing in the LORD's sight, his record is blemished by his failure to remove all the pagan shrines (see 15:14) and by his involvement with Ahab (22:4, 29-32; 2 Chr 19:1-3) and, later, Joram (2 Kgs 3:4-27).

22:43b-53 Verses 22:43b-53 are numbered 22:44-54 in the Hebrew text.

22:46 To Jehoshaphat's credit, he eliminated religious prostitutes, which, and female shrine prostitutes, who still continued their practices from the days of his father, Asa.

⁴⁷(There was no king in Edom at that time, only a deputy.)

⁴⁸Jehoshaphat also built a fleet of trading ships to sail to Ophir for gold. But the ships never set sail, for they met with disaster in their home port of Ezion-geber. ⁴⁹At one time Ahaziah son of Ahab had proposed to Jehoshaphat, "Let my men sail with your men in the ships." But Jehoshaphat refused the request.

⁵⁰When Jehoshaphat died, he was buried with his ancestors in the City of David. Then his son Jehoram became the next king.

Ahaziah's Reign in Israel (22:51-53)

⁵¹Ahaziah son of Ahab began to rule over Israel in the seventeenth year of King Jehoshaphat's reign in Judah. He reigned in Samaria two years. ⁵²But he did what was evil in the LORD's sight, following the example of his father and mother and the example of Jeroboam son of Nebat, who had led Israel to sin. ⁵³He served Baal and worshiped him, provoking the anger of the LORD, the God of Israel, just as his father had done.

although banned by his father, Asa (15:12), still existed. Religious prostitution was apparently centered at pagan shrines that his father had not removed (15:14).

22:47 The lack of a king in Edom may indicate Edom's dependence upon Judah at this time.

22:48-49 Jehoshaphat built this fleet of trading ships (literally fleet of ships of Tarshish) in alliance with Ahaziah (see

2 Chr 20:35-37). Like Solomon, the two kings planned to send a fleet to Ophir in search of gold (9:27-28; 10:11). The venture was ill-fated; to fulfill a prophetic warning (2 Chr 20:37), the Lord destroyed the fleet before it left port.

Jehoshaphat wisely did not become entangled with Ahaziah a second time.

• Ezion-geber was Solomon's port city on the Gulf of Aqaba (9:26).

22:51-53 The tragic story of the rule of Ahaziah in Israel continues in 2 Kgs 1:1-18. He followed in the evil ways of his parents, Ahab and Jezebel (21:25-26); he worshipped Baal (2 Kgs 1:2, 16) and supported the state religion instituted by Jeroboam I (12:28-32). Ahaziah's accession and statement of character provide closure to the account of Ahab in 1 Kings and a smooth transition to the continuing story of the divided kingdom in 2 Kings.

THE SECOND BOOK OF Kings

The book of 2 Kings is filled with leaders who did not learn from the past. The spiritual failure of these kings brought doom upon themselves and their nation. However, throughout the book are sparkling examples of people who put God and his word first and enjoyed God's covenant promises. Reading their stories inspires us to avoid their mistakes and to enjoy the blessings that God promises to those who love and serve him.

SETTING

The book of 2 Kings continues the story of Israel's divided monarchy, picking up where 1 Kings ends, with Ahaziah reigning over the northern kingdom of Israel and Jehoshaphat ruling in the southern kingdom of Judah. The account traces the fortunes of the two kingdoms to their respective ends—the northern kingdom in 722 BC, the southern kingdom in 586 BC.

This book covers four different periods: (1) the closing years of the northern kingdom's third dynasty (853–841 BC, chs 1–9), (2) the era of the northern kingdom's fourth dynasty (841–752 BC, 10:1–15:12), (3) the era of the northern kingdom's decline and fall (752–722 BC, 15:13–17:41), and (4) the final era of the southern kingdom (722–586 BC, chs 18–25).

◀ Key Places in 2 Kings, 853–586 BC. The book of 2 Kings continues the story of the divided kingdoms of Israel and Judah and their many battles, their sad decline into spiritual idolatry, and their eventual exile to Assyria and Babylon.

The closing years of the northern kingdom's third dynasty included the short reign of Ahaziah in Israel (853–852 BC) and the reign of his younger brother Joram (852–841 BC). The kings reigning in Judah during this time were Jehoshaphat (872–848 BC),¹ Jehoram (853–841 BC), and Ahaziah (841 BC). The Neo-Assyrian Empire was expanding westward at this time, achieving a dominant position that brought stabilization to the area. At the end of this period, the year 841 BC was a crucial year in which the kings of both the northern and southern kingdoms were killed and a new dynasty was inaugurated in the north.

Historical Appendices

The next period (841–752 BC) covers Israel's fourth dynasty (Jehu–Zachariah, 10:1–15:12), an era marked by both peril and prosperity. Assyrian dominance waned, allowing the Arameans to continue their ruthless campaigns against Israel throughout the days of Jehu (841–814 BC) and his son Jehoahaz (814–798 BC). God eventually raised up a foreign leader (thought to be Adad-nirari III of Assyria, 810–783 BC) who defeated Aram and relieved the pressure on Israel (13:3–5). These circumstances allowed both Israel and Judah to expand their influence. Although hostilities broke out between the two kingdoms for a short time, conditions quickly stabilized under Jeroboam II of Israel (793–753 BC) and Uzziah of Judah (792–740 BC). Their reigns marked an era of unparalleled economic and political prosperity for both kingdoms.

In the third period (753–722 BC), the northern kingdom became unstable and insecure—Jeroboam's son Zechariah reigned only six months (753–752 BC) before he was assassinated by Shallum, and Shallum reigned just one month before being killed by Menahem. Menahem's ten-year reign (752–742 BC) was characterized by spiritual weakness and renewed subservience to the rising power of Assyria. By 743 BC, King Tiglath-pileser of Assyria had made the northern kingdom submit as a vassal state, and in 722 BC the northern kingdom was destroyed.

Meanwhile, the southern kingdom continued to enjoy prosperity during the reign of Jotham (750–732 BC), but after his death, during the reign of his son Ahaz (743–715 BC), Judah was caught up in the swift current of Assyrian expansion. Eventually, Judah also became a vassal of Assyria.

Following the fall of Samaria in 722 BC, a new dynasty rose up in Assyria, and Judah faced the threat of Assyrian supremacy. That era was marked by Manasseh's fifty-five year reign (697–642 BC). Manasseh deliberately reintroduced Canaanite paganism into the spiritual life of Judah, reproducing the very sin that brought God's judgment on the northern kingdom (17:7–17). Even the far-reaching reforms of King Josiah (640–609 BC, 22:1–23:24; 2 Chr 34:1–35:19) did not overcome Judah's entrenched sin (23:26–27).

SUMMARY

The book of 2 Kings is structured around the reigns of the kings of Israel and Judah. The book begins with an accident that caused the death of King Ahaziah of Israel (1:1-18) and with the closing event of Elijah's life, when God took him into heaven (2:1-12). The prophetic mantle passed to Elisha, whose miracles and advice occupy the next several chapters (2:12-8:15; see 9:1-10).

The reigns of kings Jehoram and Ahaziah of Judah (8:16-29) bring the story to the pivotal year of 841 BC, when Jehu's coup led to the deaths of kings Joram and Ahaziah. Jehu also executed Jezebel, the surviving members of Ahab's family, and the officials who worshiped Baal (9:11-10:29). So Jehu's twenty-eight-year reign began (10:30-36). At the same time Athaliah (11:1-20) usurped the throne of Judah and reigned for six years, until those loyal to David's line installed young Joash as king (12:1-21). While Joash, Amaziah, and Uzziah were the kings in Judah, Jehu's dynasty reigned in Israel (11:21-15:12). At the period's high point, the twin kingdoms enjoyed prosperity (14:23-15:7).

The northern kingdom, though, continued to do evil and went into decline. The fourth dynasty ended when Zechariah was assassinated (15:8-12). In its final years, the northern kingdom was in disorder (15:13-17:2), with the short reigns of Shallum, Menahem, Pekahiah, Pekah, and Hoshea. During this time, Jotham and Ahaz were reigning in Judah. Hoshea, Israel's last king (732-722 BC), foolishly placed his confidence in Egypt and rebelled against Assyria, bringing about the capture of Samaria and the end of the northern kingdom in 722 BC (17:3-6). The section closes with an evaluation of the reasons for Israel's fall and an account of Samaria's repopulation (17:7-41).

The book's final section (chs 18-25) deals with the fortunes of Judah, with two kings singled out for particular attention. Hezekiah is remembered for trusting the Lord while under pressure (18:5-6; see 18:13-20:11), and Josiah earns praise for his devotion to the law of the Lord (23:19; see 22:8-23:25). However, even Hezekiah and Josiah made critical mistakes of judgment (20:12-19; 23:29-30; see 2 Chr 35:20-25).

Following Josiah's death, the final kings of Judah did what was evil in the Lord's sight, and the southern kingdom was ravaged and finally destroyed by King Nebuchadnezzar II of Babylon (23:31-25:21). God's prophesied judgment had come (see Jer 38:17-23), and the glorious kingdom of Israel passed into the realm of memory.

The history of the divided monarchy closes with two appended notes, the first dealing with events in Judah after the fall of Jerusalem (25:22-26), and the second with the later release of Jehoiachin in Babylon (25:27-30).

AUTHORSHIP AND DATE

The book of 2 Kings is a continuation of 1 Kings, written by the same author, whose precise identity is unknown. He was well acquainted with sources that enabled him to compose a detailed history of Israel's divided monarchy, and he had insight to evaluate the reasons for successes and failures on the basis of the people's response to the covenants and standards of Mosaic law. His intimate acquaintance with Judah's later history indicates that he probably lived in or near Jerusalem and was an eyewitness to many of the events that brought about the city's fall. Whether he was still alive to write the final appendix about Jehoiachin's release (561 BC, 25:25-30) is uncertain. If not, these verses were added by someone well acquainted with 2 Kings and of a kindred spirit with the primary writer. A tradition holds that the single author of 1 & 2 Kings was Jeremiah and that he was taken to Babylon during Nebuchadnezzar's return from a campaign in Egypt (about 568 BC) and lived there well into his nineties.

Based on information in the closing chapters, the final composition of 2 Kings most likely took place shortly after the fall of Jerusalem in 586 BC, with the final appendix to the book added shortly after Nebuchadnezzar II's death in 562 BC.

The books of 1 & 2 Kings cover essentially the same time period as 2 Chronicles. Accordingly, there are numerous parallel passages with similar wording. But the authors had different purposes in writing, and these differences can be highlighted by comparing the similarities and the differences in the various parallel passages.

CHRONOLOGY

The books of Kings are filled with chronological information about the kings of Israel and Judah, but none of this information gives us absolute dates. We obtain absolute dates by comparing Israel's records with the records of surrounding nations (Assyria, Babylon, and Egypt) and with astronomical calculations. Remarkable harmony is found among the records, evidence that Israel's records are historically accurate and precise. For more information, see "Chronology: Israel's Monarchy," p. 562.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

Each king of the divided monarchy is evaluated on the basis of his faithfulness or lack of faithfulness to God. Either "he did what was pleasing in the LORD's sight," or "he did what was evil in the LORD's sight."

The kings of Israel were consistently evil. The evaluation of Jehorahaz is typical: "He followed the example of Jeroboam son of Nebat, continuing the sins that Jeroboam had led Israel to commit" (13:2; see 13:11; 14:24; 15:9; 17:2; 24:27). Many of the kings of Judah receive similar censure—for example, "Jehoram followed the example of the kings of Israel and was as wicked as King Ahab" (8:18). Manasseh is condemned for his rampant idolatry and apostasy (21:2-9), an example followed by several kings after him (21:20; 23:32, 37; 24:9, 19).

Several kings of Judah are commended, however, for doing "what was pleasing in the LORD's sight" (12:2; 14:3; 15:3, 34; 18:3; 22:2). The standard of comparison was David, the king with whom God instituted a covenant relationship (see 14:3). Such men were concerned for the upkeep and repair of the Temple (12:6-16; 22:3-7) and for obedience to the precepts of God's word (18:6; 22:8-13; 23:1-3). Some were reformers (12:17-18; 23:4-24). Hezekiah and Josiah receive special commendation, Hezekiah for his trust in the Lord and his honoring of God's word (18:5-6) and Josiah for his high regard for the law of Moses (23:25). The implication is clear. God's people are to live in accord with the high standards of God's word so that they may "do what is pleasing in God's sight" (cp. Ps 119:9-11, 111; 2 Tim 3:16-17).

The prominence given to the final days of the great prophet Elijah (1:3-17; 2:1-11) and to Elisha's spectacular ministry (2:12-25; 3:11-19; 4:1-7:2; 8:1-2) emphasizes the need to proclaim God's words to others (Acts 20:18-21; 2 Tim 2:15; 4:2) so that they may come into covenant relationship with the Lord (2 Cor 3:4-6).

Finally, the failures of even the good kings remind God's people to be faithful to the Lord and to serve him. Then their lives can be filled with good (Ps 84:11; Rom 14:7-8), and when they stand before God for judgment (Rom 14:10-11; 2 Cor 5:10), he will reward and praise them (2 Tim 4:7-8; Rev 2:10; see Matt 25:23).

1. THE DIVIDED MONARCHY (1:1-17:41)
The Era of Israel's Third Dynasty (1:1-8:29)
Elijah Confronts King Ahaziah

1 After King Ahab's death, the land of Moab rebelled against Israel.

²One day Israel's new king, Ahaziah, fell through the latticework of an upper room at his palace in Samaria and was seriously injured. So he sent messengers to the temple of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron, to ask whether he would recover.

³But the angel of the LORD told Elijah, who was from Tishbe, "Go and confront the messengers of the king of Samaria and ask them, 'Is there no God in Israel? Why are you going to Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron, to ask whether the king will recover?' ⁴Now, therefore, this is what the LORD says: You will never leave the bed you are lying on; you will surely die.'" So Elijah went to deliver the message.

⁵When the messengers returned to the king, he asked them, "Why have you returned so soon?"

⁶They replied, "A man came up to us and told us to go back to the king and give him this message. 'This is what the LORD says: Is there no God in Israel? Why are you sending men to Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron, to ask whether you will recover? Therefore, because you have done this, you will never leave the bed you are lying on; you will surely die.'"

⁷"What sort of man was he?" the king demanded. "What did he look like?"

⁸They replied, "He was a hairy man, and he wore a leather belt around his waist."

"Elijah from Tishbe!" the king exclaimed.

⁹Then he sent an army captain with fifty soldiers to arrest him. They found him sitting on top of a hill. The captain said to him, "Man of God, the king has commanded you to come down with us."

¹⁰But Elijah replied to the captain, "If I am a man of God, let fire come down from ^aheaven and destroy you and your fifty men!" Then fire fell from ^aheaven and killed them all.

¹¹So the king sent another captain with fifty men. The captain said to him, "Man of God, the king demands that you come down at once."

¹²Elijah replied, "If I am a man of God, let fire come down from heaven and destroy you and your fifty men!" And again the fire of God fell from heaven and killed them all.

¹³Once more the king sent a third captain with fifty men. But this time the captain

1:1 After Ahab's death, the Moabites felt secure enough to declare themselves free of their Israelite overlords (see 3:4-5). The historical notice anticipates the troubles that Israel would experience after the short-lived reign of Ahaziah (see 1 Kgs 22:51).

1:2 An upper room or balcony enclosed with latticework was common; it allowed for the free flow of air and a degree of privacy, but latticework was easily broken. • Baal-zebub (lord of flies) may be a parody of a Canaanite deity named Baal-zebul (Baal is prince). The name of this deity was later used for Satan (see note on Matt 12:24).

Ahaziah followed his father Ahab in worshiping Baal.

1:3-4 The angel of the Lord does not seem to be a Christophany in the book of Kings, as in other OT texts (e.g., Judg 6:11-18). • Elijah, who had previously confronted Ahaziah's father, Ahab, had a twofold message for the king: a condemnation for failure to acknowledge that Yahweh, not Baal, is God (see 1 Kgs 18:16-18), and a pronouncement of doom (see 1 Kgs 21:17-24).

1:8 He was a hairy man: Or He was wearing clothing made of hair.

1:9-10 The arrogant words of the army captain contained a contradiction, which Elijah pointed out: If Elijah was a man of God (i.e., God's prophet), then his authority was from God and to ignore him was to invite peril (Deut 18:15-19). • Fire often symbolizes the presence of God in the Scriptures (see Exod 3:1-6; 19:18; cp. 1 Kgs 18:38). • Fifty soldiers was a common grouping (1 Kgs 18:4); here it indicates a division within Israel's military organization.

1:11-13 Report of what happened to the previous contingent had apparently reached the king.

1:13-14 In contrast to the first two officers, the third commander pleaded for mercy before Elijah and God.

River. ⁸Then Elijah folded his cloak together and struck the water with it. The river divided, and the two of them went across on dry ground!

⁹When they came to the other side, Elijah said to Elisha, "Tell me what I can do for you before I am taken away."

And Elisha replied, "Please let me inherit a double share of your spirit and become your successor."

¹⁰"You have asked a difficult thing," Elijah replied. "If you see me when I am taken from you, then you will get your request. But if not, then you won't."

¹¹As they were walking along and talking, suddenly a chariot of fire appeared, drawn by horses of fire. It drove between the two men, separating them, and Elijah was carried by a whirlwind into heaven. ¹²Elisha saw it and cried out, "My father! My father! I see the chariots and charioteers of Israel!" And as they disappeared from sight, Elisha tore his clothes in distress.

¹³Elisha picked up Elijah's cloak, which had fallen when he was taken up. Then Elisha returned to the bank of the Jordan River. ¹⁴He struck the water with Elijah's cloak and cried out, "Where is the LORD, the God of Elijah?" Then the river divided, and Elisha went across.

¹⁵When the group of prophets from Jericho saw from a distance what happened, they exclaimed, "Elijah's ^bspirit rests upon Elisha!" And they went to meet him and bowed to the ground before him. ¹⁶"Sir," they said, "just say the word and fifty of our strongest men will search the wilderness for your master. Perhaps the ^cSpirit of the LORD has left him on some mountain or in some valley."

"No," Elisha said, "don't send them." ¹⁷But they kept urging him until they shamed him into agreeing, and he finally said, "All right, send them." So fifty men searched for three days but did not find Elijah. ¹⁸Elisha was still at Jericho when they returned. "Didn't I tell you not to go?" he asked.

Elisha's First Miracles

¹⁹One day the leaders of the town of Jericho visited Elisha. "We have a problem, my lord," they told him. "This town is located in pleasant surroundings, as you can see. But the water is bad, and the land is unproductive."

²⁰Elisha said, "Bring me a new bowl with salt in it." So they brought it to him. ²¹Then he went out to the spring that supplied the town with water and threw the salt into it. And he said, "This is what the LORD says: I have purified this water. It will no longer cause death or infertility." ²²And the water has remained pure ever since, just as Elisha said.

²³Elisha left Jericho and went up to Bethel. As he was walking along the road, a group of boys from the town began mocking and making fun of him. "Go away, baldy!" they chanted. "Go away, baldy!" ²⁴Elisha turned around and looked at them, and he cursed them in the name of the LORD. Then two bears came out of the woods and mauled forty-two of them. ²⁵From there Elisha went to Mount Carmel and finally returned to Samaria.

2:8 Elijah folded his cloak together and struck the water with it: Such symbolic actions visually represented God's power (see Exod 14:16, 21, 26-27; 17:8-13; 1 Kgs 11:30-31; Ezek 4:1-17; 5:1-4).

2:9-10 A firstborn son, as the primary heir, inherited a double share of his father's estate (Deut 21:17); Elisha asked that Elijah's God-given spiritual abilities and privileges might continue to live through him.

2:11 Chariot of fire . . . horses of fire . . . whirlwind: These things represent God's appearance in mighty power (cp. Isa 66:15). • Elijah was carried . . . into heaven, like Enoch (Gen 5:24), without dying. Some believe that Enoch and Elijah will reappear at the time of the end (see note on Rev 11:1-13).

2:12 Elijah was Elisha's spiritual father and personal mentor. Cp. the tribute given him at his death, 13:14.

2:13-15 Elisha picked up Elijah's cloak and successfully parted the Jordan River. Elisha was indeed Elijah's successor, as the other prophets recognized.

2:16-18 The prophets searched the wilderness, perhaps to be certain that Elijah had not temporarily disappeared (cp. 1 Kgs 18:12). Elisha already knew that the search was pointless.

2:20-22 Elisha used a new bowl (Deut 21:3) filled with salt (Lev 2:13; Ezek 43:24) to symbolize calling upon God to purify the people and the environment. Elisha made it clear that the Lord, not he or the salt, had purified this water.

2:21 or infertility: Or or make the land unproductive. Hebrew reads or barrenness, so it can be interpreted either way.

2:23 The group of boys could have been young adults; the Hebrew term has a wide range of meanings, at times being used of a young adult still unskilled in his profession, such as when Solomon petitioned the Lord for wisdom because he was young and inexperienced (1 Kgs 3:7). Joshua's spies at Jericho were designated by the same term (Josh 6:22-23). • To call someone baldy was disrespectful. The young men told Elisha to go away (literally go up), mocking Elisha's God-given position as successor to Elijah.

3:1 Joram: Hebrew Jehoram, a variant spelling of Joram; also in 3:6. • the eighteenth year of King Jehoshaphat's reign: See note on 1:17.

evil in the LORD's sight, but not to the same extent as his father and mother. He at least tore down the sacred pillar of Baal that his father had set up. ³Nevertheless, he continued in the sins that Jeroboam son of Nebat had committed and led the people of Israel to commit.

⁴King Mesha of Moab was a sheep breeder. He used to pay the king of Israel an annual tribute of 100,000 lambs and the wool of 100,000 rams. ⁵But after Ahab's death, the king of Moab rebelled against the king of Israel. ⁶So King Joram promptly mustered the army of Israel and marched from Samaria. ⁷On the way, he sent this message to King Jehoshaphat of Judah: "The king of Moab has rebelled against me. Will you join me in battle against him?"

And Jehoshaphat replied, "Why, of course! You and I are as one. My troops are your troops, and my horses are your horses." ⁸Then Jehoshaphat asked, "What route will we take?"

"We will attack from the wilderness of Edom," Joram replied.

⁹The king of Edom and his troops joined them, and all three armies traveled along a roundabout route through the wilderness for seven days. But there was no water for the men or their animals.

¹⁰"What should we do?" the king of Israel cried out. "The LORD has brought the three of us here to let the king of Moab defeat us."

¹¹But King Jehoshaphat of Judah asked, "Is there no prophet of the LORD with us? If there is, we can ask the LORD what to do through him."

One of King Joram's officers replied, "Elisha son of Shaphat is here. He used to be Elijah's personal assistant."

¹²Jehoshaphat said, "Yes, the LORD speaks through him." So the king of Israel, King Jehoshaphat of Judah, and the king of Edom went to consult with Elisha.

¹³"Why are you coming to me?" Elisha asked the king of Israel. "Go to the pagan prophets of your father and mother!"

But King Joram of Israel said, "No! For it was the LORD who called us three kings here—only to be defeated by the king of Moab!"

¹⁴Elisha replied, "As surely as the LORD Almighty lives, whom I serve, I wouldn't even bother with you except for my respect for King Jehoshaphat of Judah. ¹⁵Now bring me someone who can play the harp."

While the harp was being played, the power of the LORD came upon Elisha, ¹⁶and he said, "This is what the LORD says: This dry valley will be filled with pools of water!

¹⁷You will see neither wind nor rain, says the LORD, but this valley will be filled with water. You will have plenty for yourselves and your cattle and other animals. ¹⁸But this is only a simple thing for the LORD, for he will make you victorious over the army of Moab! ¹⁹You will conquer the best of their towns, even the fortified ones. You will cut down all their good trees, stop up all their springs, and ruin all their good land with stones."

²⁰The next day at about the time when the morning sacrifice was offered, water suddenly appeared! It was flowing from the direction of Edom, and soon there was water everywhere.

²¹Meanwhile, when the people of Moab heard about the three armies marching against them, they mobilized every man who was old enough to strap on a sword, and they stationed themselves along their border.

²²But when they got up the next morning, the sun was shining across the water, making it appear red to the Moabites—like blood.

pagan deities in Judah (1 Kgs 14:23); such pillars were later purged by Jehu (10:26-27) and Josiah (23:13-15).

3:4-27 The joint war of Israel and Judah against Moab was the setting for one of Elisha's miracles.

3:4-5 The Moabite rebellion (see 1:1) began with the withholding of the annual tribute. The Moabite Stone (Mesha Stela) records details of Israel's domination of northern Moab in the days of Omri and Ahab, a subservience that continued into the reigns of Ahaziah and Joram.

3:6-7 Jehoshaphat's ready compliance with Joram's appeal was typical of his participation in the undertakings of the northern kings (1 Kgs 22:4; 2 Chr 20:35-37). The marriage of Jehoshaphat's son Jehoram to Ahab's daughter Athaliah (2 Chr 18:1; 21:6) heightened Jehoshaphat's entanglement with Israel.

3:8-9 The king of Edom . . . joined them: Edom was apparently a vassal kingdom to Judah at this time. Later, in the days of Jehoshaphat's son Jehoram, Edom successfully rebelled against Judah (8:20-22). The southern route through Edom avoided strong Moabite fortifications, but it was dangerous because water was scarce.

3:11-12 Is there no prophet of the LORD with us? Diviners or prophets often traveled with armies to perceive the divine will. Jehoshaphat again desired an oracle from a true prophet to learn the Lord's intentions for the battle (cp. 1 Kgs 22:7). However, this time he waited until the campaign had begun before inquiring of the Lord.

3:11 He used to be Elijah's personal assistant: Literally He used to pour water on the hands of Elijah.

3:13-14 Elisha participated because of Jehoshaphat's presence, despite his entanglement with the pagan Joram.

3:13 Why are you coming to me? Literally What is there in common between you and me?

3:15 bring me someone who can play the harp: Music stimulated the prophetic spirit (see note on 2 Chr 20:20-21; cp. Ps 49:4). • the power: Literally the hand.

3:18-20 The supply of water—a simple thing for the LORD—was a harbinger of God's enabling the allies to defeat the army of Moab.

²⁶When the king of Moab saw that he was losing the battle, he led 700 of his swordsmen in a desperate attempt to break through the enemy lines near the king of Edom, but they failed. ²⁷Then the king of Moab took his oldest son, who would have been the next king, and sacrificed him as a burnt offering on the wall. So there was great anger against Israel, and the Israelites withdrew and returned to their own land.

Elisha Helps a Poor Widow

4 One day the widow of a member of the group of prophets came to Elisha and cried out, "My husband who served you is dead, and you know how he feared the LORD. But now a creditor has come, threatening to take my two sons as slaves."

²"What can I do to help you?" Elisha asked. "Tell me, what do you have in the house?"

"Nothing at all, except a flask of olive oil," she replied.

³And Elisha said, "Borrow as many empty jars as you can from your friends and neighbors. ⁴Then go into your house with your sons and shut the door behind you. Pour olive oil from your flask into the jars, setting each one aside when it is filled."

⁵So she did as she was told. Her sons kept bringing jars to her, and she filled one after another. ⁶Soon every container was full to the brim!

"Bring me another jar," she said to one of her sons.

"There aren't any more!" he told her. And then the olive oil stopped flowing.

⁷When she told the man of God what had happened, he said to her, "Now sell the olive oil and pay your debts, and you and your sons can live on what is left over."

Elisha Helps a Woman in Shunem

⁸One day Elisha went to the town of Shunem. A wealthy woman lived there, and she urged him to come to her home for a meal. After that, whenever he passed that way, he would stop there for something to eat.

⁹She said to her husband, "I am sure this man who stops in from time to time is a holy man of God. ¹⁰Let's build a small room for him on the roof and furnish it with a bed, a table, a chair, and a lamp. Then he will have a place to stay whenever he comes by."

¹¹One day Elisha returned to Shunem, and he went up to this upper room to rest.

¹²He said to his servant Gehazi, "Tell the woman from Shunem I want to speak to her." When she appeared, ¹³Elisha said to Gehazi, "Tell her, 'We appreciate the kind concern you have shown us. What can we do for you? Can we put in a good word for you to the king or to the commander of the army?'"

"No," she replied, "my family takes good care of me."

¹⁴Later Elisha asked Gehazi, "What can we do for her?"

3:26 The reason for the Moabite king's attempt to break through the enemy lines might have been to avenge himself against the Edomite king or to escape through a perceived weakness in the allied lines.

3:27 So there was great anger against Israel: Or So Israel's anger was great. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. The Hebrew phrase translated great anger occurs elsewhere to describe the Lord's fury against Israel for covenant violations (Jer 21:5; 32:37; Zech 7:12).

4:1 The widow's husband had been a member of the group of prophets . . . who served Elisha (2:3-18; see note on 4:38). • take my two sons as slaves: The law of Moses allowed a creditor to place a debtor and his children into slavery to work off a debt (Exod 21:2-4; Lev 25:10).

4:4 shut the door: Elisha was meeting a private need; the miracle was not for public show. • Olive oil, an important staple, had commercial value (see 1 Kgs 5:11; 2 Chr 11:11; Hos 12:1).

4:5-6 Elisha was absent during the miracle so the woman and her son would recognize that the provision was by the Lord's power.

4:8-37 Elisha's dealings with the woman from Shunem are presented in two parallel sections (4:8-20, 21-37). Shunem was a border town in the tribal allotment to Issachar (Josh 19:18).

4:9-10 Because the Shunemite woman recognized that Elisha was a true prophet—a holy man of God—she wished to provide hospitality for him during his frequent travels (see Isa 58:7; Heb 13:2; 3 Jn 1:5). • A small room . . . on the roof, reached by an outside stairway, assured privacy for both Elisha and his hosts.

4:11-14 Elisha wanted to return some favor to his host. • his servant Gehazi: Gehazi served as an apprentice, as Elisha had served with Elijah (1 Kgs 19:21). It would not be unusual for a prophet to consult with his attendant.

Gehazi replied, "She doesn't have a son, and her husband is an old man."

¹⁵"Call her back again," Elisha told him. When the woman returned, Elisha said to her as she stood in the doorway, ¹⁶"Next year at this time you will be holding a son in your arms!"

"No, my lord!" she cried. "O man of God, don't deceive me and get my hopes up like that."

¹⁷But sure enough, the woman soon became pregnant. And at that time the following year she had a son, just as Elisha had said.

¹⁸One day when her child was older, he went out to help his father, who was working with the harvesters. ¹⁹Suddenly he cried out, "My head hurts! My head hurts!"

His father said to one of the servants, "Carry him home to his mother."

²⁰So the servant took him home, and his mother held him on her lap. But around noontime he died. ²¹She carried him up and laid him on the bed of the man of God, then shut the door and left him there. ²²She sent a message to her husband: "Send one of the servants and a donkey so that I can hurry to the man of God and come right back."

²³"Why go today?" he asked. "It is neither a new moon festival nor a Sabbath."

But she said, "It will be all right."

²⁴So she saddled the donkey and said to the servant, "Hurry! Don't slow down unless I tell you to."

²⁵As she approached the man of God at Mount Carmel, Elisha saw her in the distance. He said to Gehazi, "Look, the woman from Shunem is coming. ²⁶Run out to meet her and ask her, 'Is everything all right with you, your husband, and your child?'"

"Yes," the woman told Gehazi, "everything is fine."

Elisha (2:1–9:13)

1 Kgs 19:15-21
Luke 4:27

Elisha the prophet was Elijah's follower and successor in the northern kingdom of Israel during the late 800s BC, a time when the leaders and people of the northern kingdom of Israel turned their backs on God and worshiped the Canaanite god Baal. Ahab and Jezebel, and their descendants who succeeded them on the thrones of both Israel and Judah, were eager worshippers of this false god. Elisha's ministry (853~798 BC) began as King Ahab's reign was ending, and he was an important part of God's strategy to bring down Israel's idol-worshipping leaders.

Elisha started his work as a disciple of Elijah and was the one God chose to take Elijah's place (1 Kgs 19:15-21; 2 Kgs 2:1-18). After Elijah was taken into heaven, Elisha's miracles demonstrated that God's great power was with him.

Elisha's miracles often involved water. He purified the putrid water of a spring near Jericho (2:19-23) and caused an ax head to float (6:1-7). When King Joram's water supply ran out in enemy territory, Elisha predicted ample water supplies (3:4-20). Baal supposedly controlled water, so these signs showed that the Lord, and not Baal, was really in charge.

Elisha displayed God's power by helping people in tangible ways, which the pagan gods never did. He helped a poor woman by miraculously causing her jars to fill with olive oil (4:1-7). He predicted to a woman from Shunem that she would have a son, and brought the boy back to life when he died (4:8-37). He cured an Aramean general named Naaman of leprosy (5:1-19). He provided food for people who needed it (4:38-44).

Elisha was part of God's plan to bring judgment on the Baal-worshipping northern kingdom. God had told Elijah that he was also going to use Jehu from Israel and Hazael of Syria as his tools of judgment (1 Kgs 19:15-18). Elisha anointed both men (8:7-15; 9:1-13), and they brought a violent end to those leaders of Israel who encouraged the worship of Baal.

Elisha's miracles anticipated Jesus' ministry. Jesus also cured lepers (Matt 8:1-4), raised a dead man (John 11:1-44), and provided food (Matt 14:16-21; 15:32-38). Jesus mentioned the healing of Naaman as a precedent for his reaching out to Gentiles, to show that God's mercy is not restricted to Israelites (Luke 4:27).

4:15-16 Cp. similar promises and responses at Gen 18:9-15; Luke 1:6-20.

4:18-20 "My head hurts!" The boy probably suffered a brain aneurysm. The woman's faith and character were put to the test with the sudden death of her son on her lap.

4:21 laid him on the bed of the man of God: The woman's action kept her son's death a secret from others and demonstrated her confidence in Elisha's ability to do a miracle.

4:24-26 Mount Carmel lay about twenty miles northwest of Shunem. The length of the trip and the woman's obvious haste aroused Elisha's suspicion that some tragedy concerning the child had occurred. • "everything is fine": The woman brushed off Gehazi's inquiries; she was resolved to deal with no one but Elisha.

before him and caught hold of his feet. Gehazi began to push her away, but the man of God said, "Leave her alone. She is deeply troubled, but the LORD has not told me what it is."

²⁸Then she said, "Did I ask you for a son, my lord? And didn't I say, 'Don't deceive me and get my hopes up'?"

²⁹Then Elisha said to Gehazi, "Get ready to travel; take my staff and go! Don't talk to anyone along the way. Go quickly and lay the staff on the child's face."

³⁰But the boy's mother said, "As surely as the LORD lives and you yourself live, I won't go home unless you go with me." So Elisha returned with her.

³¹Gehazi hurried on ahead and laid the staff on the child's face, but nothing happened. There was no sign of life. He returned to meet Elisha and told him, "The child is still dead."

³²When Elisha arrived, the child was indeed dead, lying there on the prophet's bed. ³³He went in alone and shut the door behind him and prayed to the LORD. ³⁴Then he lay down on the child's body, placing his mouth on the child's mouth, his eyes on the child's eyes, and his hands on the child's hands. And as he stretched out on him, the child's body began to grow warm again! ³⁵Elisha got up, walked back and forth across the room once, and then stretched himself out again on the child. This time the boy sneezed seven times and opened his eyes!

³⁶Then Elisha summoned Gehazi. "Call the child's mother!" he said. And when she came in, Elisha said, "Here, take your son!" ³⁷She fell at his feet and bowed before him, overwhelmed with gratitude. Then she took her son in her arms and carried him downstairs.

Elisha Helps Some Prophets

³⁸Elisha now returned to Gilgal, and there was a famine in the land. One day as the group of prophets was seated before him, he said to his servant, "Put a large pot on the fire, and make some stew for the rest of the group."

³⁹One of the young men went out into the field to gather herbs and came back with a pocketful of wild gourds. He shredded them and put them into the pot without realizing they were poisonous. ⁴⁰Some of the stew was served to the men. But after they had eaten a bite or two they cried out, "Man of God, there's poison in this stew!" So they would not eat it.

⁴¹Elisha said, "Bring me some flour." Then he threw it into the pot and said, "Now it's all right; go ahead and eat." And then it did not harm them.

⁴²One day a man from Baal-shalishah brought the man of God a sack of fresh grain and twenty loaves of barley bread made from the first grain of his harvest. Elisha said, "Give it to the people so they can eat."

⁴³"What?" his servant exclaimed. "Feed a hundred people with only this?"

But Elisha repeated, "Give it to the people so they can eat, for this is what the LORD says: Everyone will eat, and there will even be some left over!" ⁴⁴And when they gave it to the people, there was plenty for all and some left over, just as the LORD had promised.

4:28 The loss of her son undid all the joy she felt at his promised birth and seemed to make that birth a cruel deception.

4:29 Get ready to travel: Literally Bind up your loins. • Elisha instructed Gehazi not to talk to anyone along the way, indicating the seriousness and urgency of the mission. Jesus gave similar instructions when he sent out the seventy-two disciples (Luke 10:4). • Laying Elisha's staff on the child's face signified the prophet's intention to identify with the boy and claim God's power.

4:31 no sign of life: Elisha's staff held no magical power; only God is the author of life (Acts 17:25-28).

4:33 shut the door: Elisha followed the same procedure he had advised the widow to take earlier (4:4). If God were to perform the miracle, it would not be for public display. Only the mother knew of the boy's death and only she needed to know of Elisha's efforts to petition God for the boy's life.

4:34-35 lay down on the child's body: Elisha's actions and faith in the Lord were similar to Elijah's (1 Kgs 17:17-24).

4:36-37 Again, Gehazi summoned the woman (4:12, 15), and again, she fell at Elisha's feet (4:27), this time overwhelmed with gratitude rather than anguish.

4:38 Like Bethel (2:3) and Jericho (2:5, 15), Gilgal was the center for a group of prophets (2:1). Elisha was the leader of these groups, and thus sat at the head of the table for meals.

4:39-41 The men immediately recognized that the young man's wild gourds were poisonous; they did not want to be poisoned or to waste the stew during a famine, so they turned to Elisha for help. The flour was a tangible symbol of God's miraculous provision of food.

4:42-44 grain . . . loaves of barley . . . first grain: This offering was similar to the first of the crops that were normally presented to God (Lev 23:20) and to the priests (Deut 18:4-5) as their portion. Because of the famine, Elisha shared the offering with all the people. • Elisha's feeding a hundred people with a sack of fresh grain and twenty loaves of barley bread anticipated the miraculous ministry of Jesus (Matt 14:15-21; 15:32-38). Elisha and the Healing of Naaman 5The king of Aram had great admiration for Naaman, the commander of his army, because through him the LORD had given Aram great victories. But though Naaman was a mighty warrior, he suffered from leprosy.

²At this time Aramean raiders had invaded the land of Israel, and among their captives was a young girl who had been given to Naaman's wife as a maid. ³One day the girl said to her mistress, "I wish my master would go to see the prophet in Samaria. He would heal him of his leprosy."

⁴So Naaman told the king what the young girl from Israel had said. ⁵"Go and visit the prophet," the king of Aram told him. "I will send a letter of introduction for you to take to the king of Israel." So Naaman started out, carrying as gifts 750 pounds of silver, 150 pounds of gold, and ten sets of clothing. ⁶The letter to the king of Israel said: "With this letter I present my servant Naaman. I want you to heal him of his leprosy."

⁷When the king of Israel read the letter, he tore his clothes in dismay and said, "Am I God, that I can give life and take it away? Why is this man asking me to heal someone with leprosy? I can see that he's just trying to pick a fight with me."

⁸But when Elisha, the man of God, heard that the king of Israel had torn his clothes in dismay, he sent this message to him: "Why are you so upset? Send Naaman to me, and he will learn that there is a true prophet here in Israel."

⁹So Naaman went with his horses and chariots and waited at the door of Elisha's house. ¹⁰But Elisha sent a messenger out to him with this message: "Go and wash yourself seven times in the Jordan River. Then your skin will be restored, and you will be healed of your leprosy."

¹¹But Naaman became angry and stalked away. "I thought he would certainly come out to meet me!" he said. "I expected him to wave his hand over the leprosy and call on the name of the LORD his God and heal me! ¹²Aren't the rivers of Damascus, the Abana and the Pharpar, better than any of the rivers of Israel? Why shouldn't I wash in them and be healed?" So Naaman turned and went away in a rage.

¹³But his officers tried to reason with him and said, "Sir, if the prophet had told you to do something very difficult, wouldn't you have done it? So you should certainly obey him when he says simply, 'Go and wash and be cured!'" ¹⁴So Naaman went down to the Jordan River and dipped himself seven times, as the man of God had instructed him. And his skin became as healthy as the skin of a young child, and he was healed!

¹⁵Then Naaman and his entire party went back to find the man of God. They stood before him, and Naaman said, "Now I know that there is no God in all the world except in Israel. So please accept a gift from your servant."

¹⁶But Elisha replied, "As surely as the LORD lives, whom I serve, I will not accept any gifts." And though Naaman urged him to take the gift, Elisha refused.

5:1 The king of Aram was probably Ben-hadad II (860–843 BC). • the LORD had given Aram great victories: The Lord is sovereign over all nations (Ps 47:8; 99:1-2; Rom 13:1). • from leprosy: Or from a contagious skin disease; the Hebrew word used here and throughout this passage can describe various skin diseases. Naaman's access to society and Gehazi's later social freedom (8:4-5) suggest that the problem was not Hansen's disease but another incurable skin disease (see Lev 13:10-11, 45-46).

5:2-3 During Joram's reign, strained relations between Israel and the Arameans led to incursions by Aramean raiders into the northern kingdom (see 6:8, 24).

5:5-6 The lavish gifts and the royal letter of introduction, common practices in the ancient Near East, underscored Naaman's wealth, his value to the Aramean king, and Elisha's reputation. Unlike Ahaziah, who sent his messengers directly to the temple of Baal-zebul in Philistia (1:2), the Aramean king followed diplomatic protocol by sending Naaman first to King Joram.

5:5 750 pounds of silver, 150 pounds of gold: Hebrew 10 talents [340 kilograms] of silver, 6,000 [shekels] [68 kilograms] of gold.

5:7 tore his clothes: This action was often a sign of intense agitation (11:4), grief (Gen 37:34; 2 Sam 13:31), or sorrow (6:30; Job 1:20; 2:12). Due to the perennial distrust and hostilities between the Arameans and the Israelites, Joram assumed that the Aramean king was trying to pick a fight, as had occurred in the days of his father Ahab (1 Kgs 20:1-12).

5:8 Elisha had no respect for King Joram (3:14), but he sent the message because of the opportunity for a testimony to the Lord's power.

5:9-12 Rather than receiving Naaman, who came to buy his healing, Elisha left him standing at the door and communicated with him by messenger. Naaman expected special treatment befitting his station and was disappointed both in Elisha's failure to receive him and at his instructions to wash . . . seven times in the Jordan River, which he considered inferior to the rivers of Aram. Washing in the Jordan would be a visible reminder that only Yahweh, the God of Israel, could heal Naaman.

5:13-14 Sir: Literally My father, a term of respect (2:12; Judg 17:10; 1 Sam 24:11). • Naaman swallowed his pride. He did as the man of God had instructed him and experienced God's healing power. Obedience to God brings God's blessings and purity (Ps 119:9-11).

5:15-16 No God . . . except in Israel: Naaman's physical healing led to spiritual conversion. Like the healed leper in Jesus' parable, Naaman returned to give thanks to his benefactor (Luke 17:15-16). • Naaman offered a gift out of gratitude, but Elisha refused; God's grace and blessings were not to be obtained through money, gifts, or favors (Isa 55:1-5; Rom 2:4; 1 Cor 2:12; Eph 4:8).

¹⁷Then Naaman said, "All right, but please allow me to load two of my mules with earth from this place, and I will take it back home with me. From now on I will never again offer burnt offerings or sacrifices to any other god except the LORD. ¹⁸However, may the LORD pardon me in this one thing: When my master the king goes into the temple of the god Rimmon to worship there and leans on my arm, may the LORD pardon me when I bow, too."

¹⁹"Go in peace," Elisha said. So Naaman started home again.

Elisha Confronts Gehazi

²⁰But Gehazi, the servant of Elisha, the man of God, said to himself, "My master should not have let this Aramean get away without accepting any of his gifts. As surely as the LORD lives, I will chase after him and get something from him." ²¹So Gehazi set off after Naaman.

When Naaman saw Gehazi running after him, he climbed down from his chariot and went to meet him. "Is everything all right?" Naaman asked.

²²"Yes," Gehazi said, "but my master has sent me to tell you that two young prophets from the hill country of Ephraim have just arrived. He would like 75 pounds of silver and two sets of clothing to give to them."

²³"By all means, take twice as much silver," Naaman insisted. He gave him two sets of clothing, tied up the money in two bags, and sent two of his servants to carry the gifts for Gehazi. ²⁴But when they arrived at the citadel, Gehazi took the gifts from the servants and sent the men back. Then he went and hid the gifts inside the house.

²⁵When he went in to his master, Elisha asked him, "Where have you been, Gehazi?" "I haven't been anywhere," he replied.

²⁶But Elisha asked him, "Don't you realize that I was there in spirit when Naaman stepped down from his chariot to meet you? Is this the time to receive money and clothing, olive groves and vineyards, sheep and cattle, and male and female servants?"

²⁷Because you have done this, you and your descendants will suffer from Naaman's leprosy forever." When Gehazi left the room, he was covered with leprosy; his skin was white as snow.

Elisha Recovers a Lost Ax Head

6 One day the group of prophets came to Elisha and told him, "As you can see, this place where we meet with you is too small. ²Let's go down to the Jordan River, where there are plenty of logs. There we can build a new place for us to meet."

"All right," he told them, "go ahead."

³"Please come with us," someone suggested.

"I will," he said. ⁴So he went with them.

When they arrived at the Jordan, they began cutting down trees. ⁵But as one of them was cutting a tree, his ax head fell into the river. "Oh, sir!" he cried. "It was a borrowed ax!"

⁶"Where did it fall?" the man of God asked. When he showed him the place, Elisha cut a stick and threw it into the water at that spot. Then the ax head floated to the surface. ⁷"Grab it," Elisha said. And the man reached out and grabbed it.

Elisha Traps the Arameans

⁸When the king of Aram was at war with Israel, he would confer with his officers and say, "We will mobilize our forces at such and such a place."

⁹But immediately Elisha, the man of God, would warn the king of Israel, "Do not go near that place, for the Arameans are planning to mobilize their troops there." ¹⁰So the king of Israel would send word to the place indicated by the man of God. Time and again Elisha warned the king, so that he would be on the alert there.

5:17 earth from this place: Ancient Near Eastern custom identified a nation's god with the soil of the country where he was worshiped; Naaman apparently believed he needed Israelite soil in order to build an altar to properly worship Israel's God.

5:18 The name Rimmon appears in the name Tabrimmon (1 Kgs 15:18), the father of Ben-hadad I. In Aramean, the god's name is properly Ramman (the thunderer), a storm-god noted in Assyrian inscriptions. The spelling Rimmon (which means pomegranate) may reflect a deliberate pun belittling the deity.

5:22-23 Naaman believed Gehazi's fabricated story to be genuine and was happy to repay Elisha. • 75 pounds: Hebrew 1 talent [34 kilograms]. • take twice as much: Hebrew take 2 talents [150 pounds or 68 kilograms].

5:24 the citadel (Hebrew the Ophel): The Hebrew word means hill or high point in a city. Citadels were often erected in such places (2 Chr 27:3).

5:25-27 Gehazi could not conceal his deed from Elisha. Gehazi's deception and misuse of his privileged position earned his master's disapproval and the loss of his status as Elisha's servant. But it also brought on him the penalty of Naaman's leprosy, a sign that Gehazi had traded places with Naaman spiritually as well.

6:1-2 logs . . . new place for us to meet: The forest areas of the Jordan Valley near Jericho and Gilgal (see 2:1, 4) provided several types of wood for building.

6:5 The Hebrew text indicates that the ax head was made of iron, quite valuable in a time when few iron tools were available. Because it was . . . borrowed, the loss was even more acute.

6:8-10 Elisha's ability to know the Aramean king's raiding strategies allowed him to warn Joram of danger. Apparently, the healing of Naaman (5:1-19) had improved relations between Elisha and Joram (see 3:13-14).

¹¹The king of Aram became very upset over this. He called his officers together and demanded, "Which of you is the traitor? Who has been informing the king of Israel of my plans?"

¹³"Go and find out where he is," the king commanded, "so I can send troops to seize him."

And the report came back: "Elisha is at Dothan." ¹⁴So one night the king of Aram sent a great army with many chariots and horses to surround the city.

¹⁵When the servant of the man of God got up early the next morning and went outside, there were troops, horses, and chariots everywhere. "Oh, sir, what will we do now?" the young man cried to Elisha.

¹⁶"Don't be afraid!" Elisha told him. "For there are more on our side than on theirs!" ¹⁷Then Elisha prayed, "O LORD, open his eyes and let him see!" The LORD opened the young man's eyes, and when he looked up, he saw that the hillside around Elisha was filled with horses and chariots of fire.

¹⁸As the Aramean army advanced toward him, Elisha "prayed, "O LORD, please make them blind." So the LORD struck them with blindness as Elisha had asked.

¹⁹Then Elisha went out and told them, "You have come the wrong way! This isn't the right city! Follow me, and I will take you to the man you are looking for." And he led them to the city of Samaria.

²⁰As soon as they had entered Samaria, Elisha prayed, "O LORD, now open their eyes and let them see." So the LORD opened their eyes, and they discovered that they were in the middle of Samaria.

²¹When the king of Israel saw them, he shouted to Elisha, "My father, should I kill them? Should I kill them?"

²²"Of course not!" Elisha replied. "Do we kill prisoners of war? Give them food and drink and send them home again to their master."

²³So the king made a great feast for them and then sent them home to their master. After that, the Aramean raiders stayed away from the land of Israel.

Ben-Hadad Besieges Samaria

²⁴Some time later, however, King Ben-hadad of Aram mustered his entire army and besieged Samaria. ²⁵As a result, there was a great famine in the city. The siege lasted so long that a donkey's head sold for eighty pieces of silver, and a cup of dove's dung sold for five pieces of silver.

²⁶One day as the king of Israel was walking along the wall of the city, a woman called to him, "Please help me, my lord the king!"

²⁷He answered, "If the LORD doesn't help you, what can I do? I have neither food from the threshing floor nor wine from the press to give you." ²⁸But then the king asked, "What is the matter?"

She replied, "This woman said to me: 'Come on, let's eat your son today, then we will eat my son tomorrow.' ²⁹So we cooked my son and ate him. Then the next day I said to her, 'Kill your son so we can eat him,' but she has hidden her son."

³⁰When the king heard this, he tore his clothes in despair. And as the king walked along the wall, the people could see that he was wearing burlap under his robe next to his skin. ³¹"May God strike me and even kill

6:11-14 When the king of Aram learned that Elisha had the ability to give advance warning to the king of Israel, he commanded his men to capture the prophet. • Dothan was situated about ten miles north of Samaria. Archaeological excavations have confirmed the city's existence in this period.

6:15 The identity of Elisha's alarmed servant is unknown. He was evidently the replacement of Gehazi (5:27).

6:16-17 Elisha asked the Lord to open the young man's eyes, revealing an angelic force protecting the city. Angels are active in the affairs of the world (Ps 34:7; Dan 10:20-11:1; Heb 1:7).

6:21 My father: Elisha had used this term of respect when addressing Elijah

(2:12), as had Naaman's servant when speaking to his master (see note on 5:13-14).

6:23 great feast: The Israelites' kind treatment had the result that the Arameans no longer raided Israel. However, it only provided a temporary suspension of hostilities.

6:24-25 So severe was this famine that normally unclean things were not only eaten but sold for an exorbitant price. Donkey meat, for example, was forbidden by the laws regarding unclean foods (Lev 11:1-7). • sold for eighty pieces of silver, and a cup of dove's dung sold for five pieces: Hebrew sold for 80 [shekels] [2 pounds or 0.9 kilograms] of silver, and ¼ of a cab [0.3 liters] of dove's dung sold for 5 [shekels] [2 ounces or 57 grams].

Dove's dung may be a variety of wild vegetable, but the consumption of dung is known from other sources describing siege conditions (Isa 36:12). The dove's dung might also have been used for fuel.

6:26-29 Cannibalism under severe conditions was part of God's curse for unfaithfulness and disobedience (Deut 28:53, 57). It also occurred during the siege that brought about the fall of Jerusalem (Lam 4:9-10).

6:30 When Joram learned of cannibalism in the city, he tore his clothes in despair. • wearing burlap under his robe next to his skin: Doing this was an outward sign of mourning.

me if I don't separate Elisha's head from his shoulders this very day," the king vowed.

³²Elisha was sitting in his house with the elders of Israel when the king sent a messenger to summon him. But before the messenger arrived, Elisha said to the elders, "A murderer has sent a man to cut off my head. When he arrives, shut the door and keep him out. We will soon hear his master's steps following him."

³³While Elisha was still saying this, the messenger arrived. And the king said, "All this misery is from the LORD! Why should I wait for the LORD any longer?"

7 Elisha replied, "Listen to this message from the LORD! This is what the LORD says: By this time tomorrow in the markets of Samaria, six quarts of choice flour will cost only one piece of silver, and twelve quarts of barley grain will cost only one piece of silver."

²The officer assisting the king said to the man of God, "That couldn't happen even if the LORD opened the windows of heaven!"

But Elisha replied, "You will see it happen with your own eyes, but you won't be able to eat any of it!"

Outcasts Visit the Enemy Camp

³Now there were four men with leprosy sitting at the entrance of the city gates. "Why should we sit here waiting to die?" they asked each other. ⁴"We will starve if we stay here, but with the famine in the city, we will starve if we go back there. So we might as well go out and surrender to the Aramean army. If they let us live, so much the better. But if they kill us, we would have died anyway."

⁵So at twilight they set out for the camp of the Arameans. But when they came to the edge of the camp, no one was there! ⁶For the LORD had caused the Aramean army to hear the clatter of speeding chariots and the galloping of horses and the sounds of a great army approaching. "The king of Israel has hired the Hittites and Egyptians to attack us!" they cried to one another. ⁷So they panicked and ran into the night, abandoning their tents, horses, donkeys, and everything else, as they fled for their lives.

⁸When the men with leprosy arrived at the edge of the camp, they went into one tent after another, eating and drinking wine; and they carried off silver and gold and clothing and hid it. ⁹Finally, they said to each other, "This is not right. This is a day of good news, and we aren't sharing it with anyone! If we wait until morning, some calamity will certainly fall upon us. Come on, let's go back and tell the people at the palace."

¹⁰So they went back to the city and told the gatekeepers what had happened. "We went out to the Aramean camp," they said, "and no one was there! The horses and donkeys were tethered and the tents were all in order, but there wasn't a single person around!" ¹¹Then the gatekeepers shouted the news to the people in the palace.

Israel Plunders the Camp

¹²The king got out of bed in the middle of the night and told his officers, "I know what has happened. The Arameans know we are starving, so they have left their camp and have hidden in the fields. They are expecting us to leave the city, and then they will take us alive and capture the city."

¹³One of his officers replied, "We had better send out scouts to check into this. Let them take five of the remaining horses.

6:31 separate Elisha's head from his shoulders: Decapitation of one's enemy was frequent (10:6-8; 1 Sam 17:51; 31:9; 2 Sam 4:7-8, 12; 20:22; Matt 14:11) in the ancient Near East. Joram reasoned that the situation stemmed from Elisha's earlier sparing of Ben-hadad's troops (6:22-23). Moreover, Ben-hadad had been after Elisha (6:13), so the prophet's presence had endangered the whole city.

6:32 Elisha was aware that Joram was sending a messenger to assassinate him and that the king was not far behind.

6:33 And the king said: Literally And he said. The messenger might have been delivering the king's words verbatim.

• Because the misery of the siege appeared to be from the LORD, Joram felt that further prayer for rescue was useless.

7:1 This is what the LORD says: Despite Joram's pessimism and hostility, Elisha brought a message of hope. Tomorrow would bring a complete change in conditions, with good products again available. • six quarts . . . only one piece of silver: Hebrew 1 seah [7.3 liters] of choice flour will cost 1 shekel [0.4 ounces or 11 grams]; also in 7:16, 18. • twelve quarts . . . only one piece of silver: Hebrew 2 seahs [14.6 liters] of barley grain will cost 1 shekel [0.4 ounces or 11 grams]; also in 7:16, 18. Cp. with the prices in 6:25.

7:2 The disbelief of Joram's officer would cause him to miss God's blessings.

7:3 These four men were outcasts because of their condition and remained outside the city gates (Lev 13:45-46; see Luke 17:11-13). • with leprosy: Or with a contagious skin disease. The Hebrew word used here and throughout this passage can describe various skin diseases.

7:5-7 The Hittites had settled in the areas just north of Aram and were often in conflict with the Arameans. • and Egyptians: possibly and the people of Muzur, a district near Cilicia in Asia Minor.

7:8-9 The men realized that they needed to share their good fortune with the people in Samaria.

7:10-12 Joram suspected that the Arameans had set a trap, perhaps attempting to lure the Israelites into an ambush. Joshua had used a similar battle tactic in taking the city of Ai (Josh 8:3-23).

If something happens to them, it will be no worse than if they stay here and die with the rest of us."

¹⁴So two chariots with horses were prepared, and the king sent scouts to see what had happened to the Aramean army. ¹⁵They went all the way to the Jordan River, following a trail of clothing and equipment that the Arameans had thrown away in their mad rush to escape. The scouts returned and told the king about it. ¹⁶Then the people of Samaria rushed out and plundered the Aramean camp. So it was true that six quarts of choice flour were sold that day for one piece of silver, and twelve quarts of barley grain were sold for one piece of silver, just as the LORD had promised. ¹⁷The king appointed his officer to control the traffic at the gate, but he was knocked down and trampled to death as the people rushed out.

So everything happened exactly as the man of God had predicted when the king came to his house. ¹⁸The man of God had said to the king, "By this time tomorrow in the markets of Samaria, six quarts of choice flour will cost one piece of silver, and twelve quarts of barley grain will cost one piece of silver."

¹⁹The king's officer had replied, "That couldn't happen even if the LORD opened the windows of heaven!" And the man of God had said, "You will see it happen with your own eyes, but you won't be able to eat any of it!" ²⁰And so it was, for the people trampled him to death at the gate!

The Woman from Shunem Returns Home

8 Elisha had told the woman whose son he had brought back to life, "Take your family and move to some other place, for the LORD has called for a famine on Israel that will last for seven years." ²So the woman did as the man of God instructed. She took her family and settled in the land of the Philistines for seven years.

³After the famine ended she returned from the land of the Philistines, and she went to see the king about getting back her house and land. ⁴As she came in, the king was talking with Gehazi, the servant of the man of God. The king had just said, "Tell me some stories about the great things Elisha has done." ⁵And Gehazi was telling the king about the time Elisha had brought a boy back to life. At that very moment, the mother of the boy walked in to make her appeal to the king about her house and land.

"Look, my lord the king!" Gehazi exclaimed. "Here is the woman now, and this is her son—the very one Elisha brought back to life!"

⁶"Is this true?" the king asked her. And she told him the story. So he directed one of his officials to see that everything she had lost was restored to her, including the value of any crops that had been harvested during her absence.

Hazael Murders Ben-Hadad

⁷Elisha went to Damascus, the capital of Aram, where King Ben-hadad lay sick. When someone told the king that the man of God had come, ⁸the king said to Hazael, "Take a gift to the man of God. Then tell him to ask the LORD, 'Will I recover from this illness?'"

⁹So Hazael loaded down forty camels with the finest products of Damascus as a gift for Elisha. He went to him and said, "Your servant Ben-hadad, the king of Aram, has sent me to ask, 'Will I recover from this illness?'"

¹⁰And Elisha replied, "Go and tell him, 'You will surely recover.' But actually the LORD has shown me that he will surely die!"

¹¹Elisha stared at Hazael with a fixed gaze

7:13-17 The trail of abandoned articles confirmed the Arameans' rush to escape, and the Israelites plundered the Aramean camp. True to Elisha's prophecy, food supplies were now readily available, and Joram's doubting officer was knocked down and trampled to death.

7:18-20 The repetition of Elisha's previous conversation with Joram's officer emphasizes the exact fulfillment of the prophecy.

8:3 getting back her house and land: Her property might have been held in trust or confiscated.

8:4-5 Gehazi, Elisha's former servant, had gained sufficient social standing to serve the king. Although Joram had often been Elisha's adversary, he apparently wanted to know more about the great things Elisha had done.

8:6 everything . . . was restored: Not only did the woman receive her land but Joram made sure that she received all income due to the selling of crops that had been harvested during her absence. Joram, who sometimes displayed less than noble characteristics (3:13-14; 6:31-33), on this occasion showed higher ethical standards than his father Ahab had regarding Naboth's vineyard (1 Kgs 21:1-16).

8:7 Elisha's freedom to visit Damascus demonstrated the great respect that even Israel's enemies had for him. The visit fulfilled the commission originally given to Elijah (1 Kgs 19:15).

8:8 Will I recover? Cp. 1:2.

8:9 forty camels with the finest products: Although gifts were not unusual when inquiring of a prophet (see 1 Sam 9:6-8), Ben-hadad's gifts were lavish, testifying both to his wealth and the esteem he had for Elisha.

8:10 Elisha instructed Hazael to tell the king that he would surely recover because his illness was not life threatening. Yet Elisha knew that Ben-hadad would surely die.

8:11 Elisha stared at Hazael: Literally He stared at him. • Hazael became until Hazael became uneasy. Then the man of God started weeping.

¹²"What's the matter, my lord?" Hazael asked him.

Elisha replied, "I know the terrible things you will do to the people of Israel. You will burn their fortified cities, kill their young men with the sword, dash their little children to the ground, and rip open their pregnant women!"

¹³Hazael responded, "How could a nobody like me ever accomplish such great things?"

Elisha answered, "The LORD has shown me that you are going to be the king of Aram."

¹⁴When Hazael left Elisha and went back, the king asked him, "What did Elisha tell you?"

And Hazael replied, "He told me that you will surely recover."

¹⁵But the next day Hazael took a blanket, soaked it in water, and held it over the king's face until he died. Then Hazael became the next king of Aram.

Jehoram's Reign in Judah

2 Kgs 8:17-22 // 2 Chr 21:5-10

¹⁶Jehoram son of King Jehoshaphat of Judah began to rule over Judah in the fifth year of the reign of Joram son of Ahab, king of Israel. ¹⁷Jehoram was thirty-two years old when he became king, and he reigned in Jerusalem eight years. ¹⁸But Jehoram followed the example of the kings of Israel and was as wicked as King Ahab, for he had married one of Ahab's daughters. So Jehoram did what was evil in the LORD's sight.

¹⁹But the LORD did not want to destroy Judah, for he had promised his servant David that his descendants would continue to rule, shining like a lamp forever.

²⁰During Jehoram's reign, the Edomites revolted against Judah and crowned their own king. ²¹So Jehoram went with all his chariots to attack the town of Zair. The Edomites surrounded him and his chariot commanders, but he went out at night and attacked them under cover of darkness. But Jehoram's army deserted him and fled to their homes. ²²So Edom has been independent from Judah to this day. The town of Libnah also revolted about that same time.

²³The rest of the events in Jehoram's reign and everything he did are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Judah. ²⁴When Jehoram died, he was buried with his ancestors in the City of David. Then his son Ahaziah became the next king.

Ahaziah's Reign in Judah

2 Kgs 8:25-29 // 2 Chr 22:1-6

²⁵Ahaziah son of Jehoram began to rule over Judah in the twelfth year of the reign of Joram son of Ahab, king of Israel.

²⁶Ahaziah was twenty-two years old when he became king, and he reigned in Jerusalem one year. His mother was Athaliah, a granddaughter of King Omri of Israel.

uneasy: The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. • Elisha started weeping because he foresaw the atrocities that Hazael would commit against God's people when he became king (8:28; 9:14-15; 10:32-33; 12:17-18; 13:3, 22).

8:13 a nobody like me: Literally a dog. As scavengers, dogs were held in low esteem in the ancient Near East. King Shalmaneser III of Assyria observed in his annals, "Hazael, son of a nobody, seized the throne."

8:15 Hazael became the next king of Aram: Although Hazael obediently delivered Elisha's answer to Ben-hadad, the next day he hastened the fulfillment of Elisha's prophecy by assassinating the king and taking the throne for himself. Perhaps Hazael falsely reasoned that the prophecy gave him a divine mandate.

8:16 Jehoram was co-regent with his father, Jehoshaphat, for five years before becoming king of Judah on his own in the fifth year of the reign of Joram (848 BC; see timeline, p. 631).

8:17 Jehoram reigned from 853 to 841 BC, including a five-year co-regency with his father, Jehoshaphat (see timeline, p. 631).

8:18 evil in the LORD's sight: Not only did Jehoram marry Ahab's daughter Athaliah but he followed the example of the kings of Israel in worshiping idols. Some have suggested that Ps 45 was composed in honor of the marriage between Jehoram and Athaliah, which joined the royal houses of Judah and Israel (see Ps 45:12; Athaliah was the daughter of Jezebel, the princess of Tyre). While the marriage created temporary harmony between the kingdoms, it brought disastrous spiritual results. Under Athaliah's influence, Jehoram instituted various false forms of worship (2 Chr 21:11), including worship of Baal (11:17-18).

8:19 Despite Jehoram's wickedness, God did not destroy Judah but honored his promises to David (2 Sam 7:11-16).

• The Lord had promised to preserve David's descendants on the throne of Judah as a shining . . . lamp of God's grace (1 Kgs 11:36). God's promises to David ultimately find fulfillment in Jesus (Ezek 34:23-31), the light of the world (John 4:1-5).

8:20-21 the Edomites revolted: See note on 3:8-9.

8:21 Jehoram: Hebrew Joram, a variant spelling of Jehoram; also in 8:23, 24. • Zair: Greek version reads Seir. • he went out at night and attacked them: Or he went out and escaped. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

8:22 The town of Libnah was located in southwestern Judah, not far from the Philistine border. The Philistines and the Arabians also launched an attack against Jerusalem during Jehoram's reign; all of Jehoram's sons except Ahaziah were killed (2 Chr 21:16-17).

8:24 Jehoram died of a painful disease of the bowels and was excluded from the royal tombs (2 Chr 21:18-20).

8:25 twelfth year of the reign of Joram: The year of Ahaziah's accession to the throne of Judah (841 BC) was pivotal in ancient Near Eastern history. Before the year was out, both Joram and Ahaziah lay dead, Hazael was confirmed as king of Damascus, and Shalmaneser III of Assyria dominated the region.

²⁷Ahaziah followed the evil example of King Ahab's family. He did what was evil in the LORD's sight, just as Ahab's family had done, for he was related by marriage to the family of Ahab.

²⁸Ahaziah joined Joram son of Ahab in his war against King Hazael of Aram at Ramoth-gilead. When the Arameans wounded King Joram in the battle, ²⁹he returned to Jezreel to recover from the wounds he had received at Ramoth. Because Joram was wounded, King Ahaziah of Judah went to Jezreel to visit him.

The Era of Israel's Fourth Dynasty (9:1-15:12) Elisha Anoints Jehu

9 Meanwhile, Elisha the prophet had summoned a member of the group of prophets. "Get ready to travel," he told him, "and take this flask of olive oil with you. Go to Ramoth-gilead, ²and find Jehu son of Jehoshaphat, son of Nimshi. Call him into a private room away from his friends, ³and pour the oil over his head. Say to him, 'This is what the LORD says: I anoint you to be the king over Israel.' Then open the door and run for your life!"

⁴So the young prophet did as he was told and went to Ramoth-gilead. ⁵When he arrived there, he found Jehu sitting around with the other army officers. "I have a message for you, Commander," he said.

"For which one of us?" Jehu asked.

"For you, Commander," he replied.

⁶So Jehu left the others and went into the house. Then the young prophet poured the oil over Jehu's head and said, "This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: I anoint you king over the LORD's people, Israel. ⁷You are to destroy the family of Ahab, your master.

In this way, I will avenge the murder of my prophets and all the LORD's servants who were killed by Jezebel. ⁸The entire family of Ahab must be wiped out. I will destroy every one of his male descendants, slave and free alike, anywhere in Israel. ⁹I will destroy the family of Ahab as I destroyed the families of Jeroboam son of Nebat and of Baasha son of Ahijah. ¹⁰Dogs will eat Ahab's wife Jezebel at the plot of land in Jezreel, and no one will bury her." Then the young prophet opened the door and ran.

¹¹Jehu went back to his fellow officers, and one of them asked him, "What did that madman want? Is everything all right?"

"You know how a man like that babbles on," Jehu replied.

¹²"You're hiding something," they said. "Tell us."

So Jehu told them, "He said to me, 'This is what the LORD says: I have anointed you to be king over Israel.'"

¹³Then they quickly spread out their cloaks on the bare steps and blew the ram's horn, shouting, "Jehu is king!"

Jehu Seizes the Throne of Israel

¹⁴So Jehu son of Jehoshaphat, son of Nimshi, led a conspiracy against King Joram. (Now Joram had been with the army at Ramoth-gilead, defending Israel against the forces of King Hazael of Aram. ¹⁵But King Joram was wounded in the fighting and returned to Jezreel to recover from his wounds.) So Jehu told the men with him, "If you want me to be king, don't let anyone leave town and go to Jezreel to report what we have done."

¹⁶Then Jehu got into a chariot and rode to Jezreel to find King Joram, who was lying there wounded. King Ahaziah of Judah was there, too, for he had gone to visit him.

8:28-29 Once again, a king of Judah joined an Israelite king in battle against the Arameans at Ramoth-gilead (see 1 Kgs 22:1-40). • Jezreel served as a second capital for Israel during Ahab's reign (1 Kgs 21:1); he retreated there after witnessing Elijah's contest with the prophets of Baal on Mount Carmel (1 Kgs 18:46).

8:29 Ramoth: Hebrew Ramah, a variant spelling of Ramoth.

9:1-37 The writer recaps Jehu's coup that instituted the fourth dynasty in Israel in four phases: (1) Elisha sent a member of the prophetic band to the army camp at Ramoth-gilead to anoint Jehu as the next king of Israel (9:1-10); (2) Jehu's men learned of the prophet's visit to their commander and proclaimed Jehu as king (9:11-15); (3) Both Joram and King Ahaziah of Judah were killed (9:16-29); and (4) Jezebel was killed (9:30-37).

9:1-3 Although Jehu received prophetic endorsement of his kingship, his anointing did not signify approval of all his subsequent actions. It did, however, carry a divine charge to execute the house of Ahab as punishment for his wickedness and idolatry (9:8-10).

9:1 Get ready to travel: Literally Bind up your loins.

9:2 This Jehoshaphat is not to be confused with the former king of Judah, who was the son of Asa.

9:4-10 As the young prophet carried out his commission, he detailed for Jehu the means for carrying out the divine sentence against the family of Ahab (see 1 Kgs 21:20-24).

9:11 madman: God's faithful servants are often disdained as mad by others (see Jer 29:26; Hos 9:7).

9:13 The bare steps of the house served as a throne and the soldiers' cloaks as a carpet. Spreading out garments in this fashion was a sign of respect (see Matt 21:8).

9:14-15 led a conspiracy: Because Jezreel, where Joram was recovering from his wounds, lay about forty-five miles away, Jehu's coup needed to be carried out swiftly and inconspicuously.

9:15 Joram: Hebrew Jehoram, a variant spelling of Joram; also in 9:17, 21, 22, 23, 24.

9:16 While Jehu was receiving the homage of his men as their king, Joram and Ahaziah were still at Jezreel (8:28-29; 9:14-15).

¹⁷The watchman on the tower of Jezreel saw Jehu and his company approaching, so he shouted to Joram, "I see a company of troops coming!"

"Send out a rider to ask if they are coming in peace," King Joram ordered.

¹⁸So a horseman went out to meet Jehu and said, "The king wants to know if you are coming in peace."

Jehu replied, "What do you know about peace? Fall in behind me!"

The watchman called out to the king, "The messenger has met them, but he's not returning."

¹⁹So the king sent out a second horseman. He rode up to them and said, "The king wants to know if you come in peace."

Again Jehu answered, "What do you know about peace? Fall in behind me!"

²⁰The watchman exclaimed, "The messenger has met them, but he isn't returning either! It must be Jehu son of Nimshi, for he's driving like a madman."

²¹"Quick! Get my chariot ready!" King Joram commanded.

Then King Joram of Israel and King Ahaziah of Judah rode out in their chariots to meet Jehu. They met him at the plot of land that had belonged to Naboth of Jezreel.

²²King Joram demanded, "Do you come in peace, Jehu?"

Jehu replied, "How can there be peace as long as the idolatry and witchcraft of your mother, Jezebel, are all around us?"

²³Then King Joram turned the horses around and fled, shouting to King Ahaziah, "Treason, Ahaziah!" ²⁴But Jehu drew his bow and shot Joram between the shoulders. The arrow pierced his heart, and he sank down dead in his chariot.

²⁵Jehu said to Bidkar, his officer, "Throw him into the plot of land that belonged to Naboth of Jezreel. Do you remember when you and I were riding along behind his father, Ahab? The LORD pronounced this message against him: ²⁶'I solemnly swear that I will repay him here on this plot of land, says the LORD, for the murder of Naboth and his sons that I saw yesterday.' So throw him out on Naboth's property, just as the LORD said."

²⁷When King Ahaziah of Judah saw what was happening, he fled along the road to Beth-haggan. Jehu rode after him, shouting, "Shoot him, too!" So they shot Ahaziah in his chariot at the Ascent of Gur, near Ibleam. He was able to go on as far as Megiddo, but he died there. ²⁸His servants took him by chariot to Jerusalem, where they buried him with his ancestors in the City of David. ²⁹Ahaziah had become king over Judah in the eleventh year of the reign of Joram son of Ahab.

The Death of Jezebel

³⁰When Jezebel, the queen mother, heard that Jehu had come to Jezreel, she painted her eyelids and fixed her hair and sat at a window. ³¹When Jehu entered the gate of the palace, she shouted at him, "Have you come in peace, you murderer? You're just like Zimri, who murdered his master!"

³²Jehu looked up and saw her at the window and shouted, "Who is on my side?" And two or three eunuchs looked out at him. ³³"Throw her down!" Jehu yelled. So they threw her out the window, and her blood splattered against the wall and on the horses. And Jehu trampled her body under his horses' hooves.

³⁴Then Jehu went into the palace and ate and drank. Afterward he said, "Someone go and bury this cursed woman, for she is the daughter of a king." ³⁵But when they went out to bury her, they found only her skull, her feet, and her hands.

9:22-24 The charges against Joram echoed those against his father Ahab and his mother Jezebel (1 Kgs 16:30-33; 21:25-26).

9:23 turned the horses around: Literally turned his hands.

9:27-28 The road to Beth-haggan led southward along the eastern edge of the Jezreel Valley, past Ibleam and on to Samaria. • So they shot Ahaziah: As in Greek and Syriac versions; Hebrew lacks this phrase. • Megiddo . . . he died there: King Ahaziah escaped to Samaria, where he was captured and brought to Jehu (2 Chr 22:8-9). The accounts in Chronicles and Kings might be combined to show that although Ahaziah was wounded at Gur, he managed to go on to Samaria. Later, Jehu's men seized him and brought him to Jehu, where he was put to death. Since the Chronicler associates Ahaziah's capture with Jehu's slaying of Ahab's descendants and some of Ahaziah's relatives (see 10:1-17), it appears that Ahaziah avoided his pursuers for a time. The account here is greatly compressed.

9:30 The narrator returns to events at Jezreel. Defiant Jezebel prepared for Jehu's arrival and her impending death by adorning herself, remaining haughty to the end.

9:31 See 1 Kgs 16:9-10, where Zimri killed his master, King Elah. Jezebel accused Jehu of being another Zimri, perhaps to remind him that Zimri's quest for power was short lived (1 Kgs 16:15-19).

9:32-33 Jehu showed his violent nature when he trampled Jezebel's body under his horses' hooves. • While the Hebrew word translated eunuchs can refer to emasculated males, it can also refer to high officials.

9:34-37 The scene depicting Jezebel's end brought Elijah's prophecy against the house of Ahab to final fulfillment (1 Kgs 21:21-24; 22:34-38).

³⁶When they returned and told Jehu, he stated, "This fulfills the message from the LORD, which he spoke through his servant Elijah from Tishbe: 'At the plot of land in Jezreel, dogs will eat Jezebel's body.' ³⁷Her remains will be scattered like dung on the plot of land in Jezreel, so that no one will be able to recognize her.'"

Jehu Kills Ahab's Family

10 Ahab had seventy sons living in the city of Samaria. So Jehu wrote letters and sent them to Samaria, to the elders and officials of the city, and to the guardians of King Ahab's sons. He said, ²"The king's sons are with you, and you have at your disposal chariots, horses, a fortified city, and weapons. As soon as you receive this letter, ³select the best qualified of your master's sons to be your king, and prepare to fight for Ahab's dynasty."

⁴But they were paralyzed with fear and said, "We've seen that two kings couldn't stand against this man! What can we do?"

⁵So the palace and city administrators, together with the elders and the guardians of the king's sons, sent this message to Jehu: "We are your servants and will do anything you tell us. We will not make anyone king; do whatever you think is best."

⁶Jehu responded with a second letter: "If you are on my side and are going to obey me, bring the heads of your master's sons to me at Jezreel by this time tomorrow." Now the seventy sons of the king were being cared for by the leaders of Samaria, where they had been raised since childhood. ⁷When the letter arrived, the leaders killed all seventy of the king's sons. They placed their heads in baskets and presented them to Jehu at Jezreel.

⁸A messenger went to Jehu and said, "They have brought the heads of the king's sons."

So Jehu ordered, "Pile them in two heaps at the entrance of the city gate, and leave them there until morning."

⁹In the morning he went out and spoke to the crowd that had gathered around them. "You are not to blame," he told them. "I am the one who conspired against my master and killed him. But who killed all these? ¹⁰You can be sure that the message of the LORD that was spoken concerning Ahab's family will not fail. The LORD declared through his servant Elijah that this would happen." ¹¹Then Jehu killed all who were left of Ahab's ◀ Jehu's Reign in Israel, 841–814 BC (8:28–10:36). King Joram of ISRAEL and King Ahaziah of JUDAH went to fight the army of King Hazael of ARAM at RAMOTH-GILEAD in 841 BC (8:28-29). Joram was badly wounded and returned to JEZREEL to recover. While Ahaziah was visiting him, Jehu arrived from Ramoth-gilead and killed Joram. Ahaziah fled for safety but was shot near IBLEAM, and he died in MEGIDDO (9:27). So Jehu began his twenty-eight-year reign in SAMARIA. Hazael, meanwhile, successfully conquered Ramoth-gilead and gained control of all of Israel's territory east of the JORDAN RIVER (10:31-32, as shown on the map).

10:1 Ahab's sons (the term can include grandsons) may have been with Joram at Jezreel temporarily while he was recovering from his wounds (8:29) but had fled to Samaria to escape Jehu's purge. • of the city: This reads as in some Greek manuscripts and the Latin Vulgate (see also 10:6); Hebrew reads of Jezreel.

10:2-5 Jehu's message pointing out the city's military capacity to protect the surviving members of Ahab's dynasty was actually a declaration of war, and the leaders of Samaria understood it as such. Jehu commanded the main armed forces of Israel, and at Jezreel he had already demonstrated his military power and ruthlessness. The leaders were paralyzed with fear and agreed to do anything Jehu instructed them to do.

10:6-7 Decapitation of enemies was a common practice in the ancient Near East (6:31-32; 1 Sam 17:46, 51; cp. Matt 14:11).

10:9-10 But who killed all these? Jehu claimed that the gruesome deaths were the Lord's will that had been communicated through Elijah (1 Kgs 19:16-17; 21:21-24).

10:11 Jehu also killed all of Ahab's surviving relatives and associates without a single survivor, exceeding his divine commission and pursuing a selfish

10:1-27 The writer focuses on two important events of Jehu's reign: his murder of all who might claim relatives living in Jezreel and all his important officials, his personal friends, and his priests. So Ahab was left without a single survivor.

Joram's throne (10:1-17), and his execution of the priests of Baal (10:18-27).

¹²Then Jehu set out for Samaria. Along the way, while he was at Beth-eked of the Shepherds, ¹³he met some relatives of King Ahaziah of Judah. "Who are you?" he asked them.

And they replied, "We are relatives of King Ahaziah. We are going to visit the sons of King Ahab and the sons of the queen mother."

¹⁴"Take them alive!" Jehu shouted to his men. And they captured all forty-two of them and killed them at the well of Beth-eked. None of them escaped.

¹⁵When Jehu left there, he met Jehonadab son of Recab, who was coming to meet him. After they had greeted each other, Jehu said to him, "Are you as loyal to me as I am to you?"

"Yes, I am," Jehonadab replied.

"If you are," Jehu said, "then give me your hand." So Jehonadab put out his hand, and Jehu helped him into the chariot. ¹⁶Then Jehu said, "Now come with me, and see how devoted I am to the LORD." So Jehonadab rode along with him.

¹⁷When Jehu arrived in Samaria, he killed everyone who was left there from Ahab's family, just as the LORD had promised through Elijah.

Jehu Kills the Priests of Baal

¹⁸Then Jehu called a meeting of all the people of the city and said to them, "Ahab's worship of ^aBaal was nothing compared to the way I will worship him! ¹⁹Therefore, summon all the prophets and worshipers of Baal, and call together all his priests. See to it that every one of them comes, for I am going to offer a great sacrifice to Baal. Anyone who fails to come will be put to death." But Jehu's cunning plan was to destroy all the worshipers of Baal.

²⁰Then Jehu ordered, "Prepare a solemn assembly to worship Baal!" So they did. ²¹He sent messengers throughout all Israel summoning those who worshiped Baal. They all came—not a single one remained behind—and they filled the temple of Baal from one end to the other. ²²And Jehu instructed the keeper of the wardrobe, "Be sure that every worshiper of Baal wears one of these robes." So robes were given to them.

²³Then Jehu went into the temple of Baal with Jehonadab son of Recab. Jehu said to the worshipers of Baal, "Make sure no one who 'worships the LORD is here—only those who worship Baal.'" ²⁴So they were all inside the temple to offer sacrifices and burnt offerings. Now Jehu had stationed eighty of his men outside the building and had warned them, "If you let anyone escape, you will pay for it with your own life."

²⁵As soon as Jehu had finished sacrificing the burnt offering, he commanded his guards and officers, "Go in and kill all of them. Don't let a single one escape!" So they killed them all with their swords, and the guards and officers dragged their bodies outside. Then Jehu's men went into the innermost fortress of the temple of Baal.

²⁶They dragged out the sacred pillar used in the worship of Baal and burned it. ²⁷They smashed the sacred pillar and wrecked the temple of Baal, converting it into a public toilet, as it remains to this day.

²⁸In this way, Jehu destroyed every trace quest for power at any cost. The Lord condemned his excesses through the prophet Hosea (Hos 1:4).

10:12-14 The precise location of Beth-eked is uncertain, but it was in the area of Jenin. • The reply of Ahaziah's relatives to Jehu sealed their fate. Jehu apparently reasoned that their relation to Ahaziah, hence loosely to the house of Ahab through his daughter Athaliah, could give them some claim on the throne of Israel. In this second round of executions, Jehu again exceeded his commission to terminate Ahab's dynasty.

10:15 Jeremiah portrays Jehonadab as head of a group of desert nomads who spent their lives in protest against the decadent religion of society (Jer 35). Recab was a Kenite (1 Chr 2:55). While the nomadic Kenites were concentrated in southern Judah, some lived in Galilee (Judg 4:17; 5:24). Their opposition to the apostasy of the royal house may have led them to welcome Jehu as a rescuer and reformer.

10:18-27 By executing the priests of Baal, Jehu intended to wipe out religious worship associated with the house of Ahab, thereby destroying any sentimental attachment people had with the former dynasty.

10:18-19 Jehu deceptively played to the populace, promising to continue and promote the worship of Baal.

10:25-26 innermost fortress . . . sacred pillar: Canaanite temples contained a recessed place in the wall that held an image of a sacred stone. The temple of Baal in Samaria contained a sacred altar to Baal and an Asherah pole that Jehu's men destroyed. Josiah's later purge of Baal worship in Judah similarly involved burning and demolishing the Asherah pole in the Temple in Jerusalem (23:6).

10:25 and the guards and officers dragged their bodies outside: Or and they left their bodies lying there; or and they threw them out into the outermost court. The Hebrew text can be variously interpreted. • the innermost fortress: Literally the city.

10:26 sacred pillar: As in Greek and Syriac versions and Latin Vulgate; Hebrew reads sacred pillars.

10:27 Turning the destroyed temple of Baal . . . into a public toilet rendered it unclean, unfit for future religious ceremonies.

of Baal worship from Israel. ²⁹He did not, however, destroy the gold calves at Bethel and Dan, with which Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to sin.

³⁰Nonetheless the LORD said to Jehu, "You have done well in following my instructions to destroy the family of Ahab. Therefore, your descendants will be kings of Israel down to the fourth generation." ³¹But Jehu did not obey the Law of the LORD, the God of Israel, with all his heart. He refused to turn from the sins that Jeroboam had led Israel to commit.

The Death of Jehu

³²At about that time the LORD began to cut down the size of Israel's territory. King Hazael conquered several sections of the country ³³east of the Jordan River, including all of Gilead, Gad, Reuben, and Manasseh. He conquered the area from the town of Aroer by the Arnon Gorge to as far north as Gilead and Bashan.

³⁴The rest of the events in Jehu's reign—everything he did and all his achievements—are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel.

³⁵When Jehu died, he was buried in Samaria. Then his son Jehoahaz became the next king. ³⁶In all, Jehu reigned over Israel from Samaria for twenty-eight years.

Athaliah Seizes the Throne of Judah

2 Kgs 11:1-3 // 2 Chr 22:10-12

11 When Athaliah, the mother of King Ahaziah of Judah, learned that her son was dead, she began to destroy the rest of the royal family. ²But Ahaziah's sister Jehosheba, the daughter of King Jehoram, took Ahaziah's infant son, Joash, and stole him away from among the rest of the king's children, who were about to be killed. She put Joash and his nurse in a bedroom, and they hid him from Athaliah, so the child was not murdered. ³Joash remained hidden in the Temple of the LORD for six years while Athaliah ruled over the land.

Joash Is Crowned King

2 Kgs 11:4-12 // 2 Chr 23:1-11

⁴In the seventh year of Athaliah's reign, Jehoiada the priest summoned the commanders, the Carite mercenaries, and the palace guards to come to the Temple of the LORD. He made a solemn pact with them and made them swear an oath of loyalty there in the LORD's Temple; then he showed them the king's son.

⁵Jehoiada told them, "This is what you must do. A third of you who are on duty on the Sabbath are to guard the royal palace itself. ⁶Another third of you are to stand guard at the Sur Gate. And the final third must stand guard behind the palace guard. These three groups will all guard the palace. ⁷The other two units who are off duty on the Sabbath must stand guard for the king at the LORD's Temple. ⁸Form a bodyguard around the king and keep your weapons in hand. Kill anyone who tries to break through. Stay with the king wherever he goes."

⁹So the commanders did everything as Jehoiada the priest ordered. The commanders took charge of the men reporting for duty that Sabbath, as well as those who were going off duty. They brought them worship of gold calves at Bethel and Dan, perpetuating the state religion instituted by Jeroboam I (1 Kgs 12:28-30). This would one day lead to the fall of the northern kingdom (17:21-23).

10:30 God fulfilled his promise of a royal line to the fourth generation; four generations of Jehu's descendants reigned as kings of Israel (Jehoahaz, Jehoash, Jeroboam II, and Zechariah).

10:31-33 In response to Jehu's unfaithfulness, the LORD began to cut down the size of Israel's territory, one of the curses for spiritual infidelity to the covenant (Deut 28:25). • The Aramean king Hazael moved southward, conquering areas east of the Jordan River north of the border of Moab. The Arameans continued the pressure against Israel throughout the reign of Jehu and into the reign of his son Jehoahaz (12:17-18; 13:3).

11:1-16 Athaliah, the mother of King Ahaziah of Judah, was the daughter of Ahab and Jezebel and the wife of King Jehoram of Judah (8:18, 26). As queen mother, she wielded powerful influence. Unfortunately, it was for evil (8:18, 27; 2 Chr 22:3-4) and included her plans to destroy the rest of the royal family (see 2 Chr 22:10). The demise of Ahab's family in Samaria was complete, but Athaliah seized power in Judah in a slaughter that mirrored Jehu's slaughter of her family in Samaria.

11:2 Jehosheba was probably born to Jehoram (Hebrew Joram, a variant spelling of Jehoram) by a wife other than Athaliah and was therefore Ahaziah's half-sister (cp. Josephus, Antiquities 9.7.1). • The infant Joash was born to Zibiah of Beersheba (2 Chr 24:1), perhaps a lesser wife of Ahaziah. The baby's birth might therefore have escaped Athaliah's notice.

11:3 Jehosheba's concealment of Joash for six years was punishable by death if discovered. Athaliah ruled over the land from 841 to 835 bc.

11:4 Jehoiada knew that what he was doing was treasonous (11:14), and he was not sure that he could trust the men he was enlisting as his co-conspirators, so he had them swear an oath of loyalty before he revealed to them the existence of the rightful heir to the throne of Judah. These men went out to the towns of Judah and brought the Levites and heads of families to the Temple in Jerusalem, where they made a covenant with Joash (2 Chr 23:3). • The Carite mercenaries, from the Aegean, served as bodyguards for the king (2 Sam 20:23).

11:5-8 Jehoiada divided the royal guard into distinctive units: some to guard the young king; others to take up posts at the palace, the Sur Gate (or Foundation Gate, 2 Chr 23:5), and positions behind the palace guard; and still others to stand guard . . . at the LORD's Temple. All care was taken to secure the king and the site for his anointing.

all to Jehoiada the priest,¹⁰ and he supplied them with the spears and small shields that had once belonged to King David and were stored in the Temple of the LORD.¹¹ The palace guards stationed themselves around the king, with their weapons ready. They formed a line from the south side of the Temple around to the north side and all around the altar.

¹²Then Jehoiada brought out Joash, the king's son, placed the crown on his head, and presented him with a copy of God's laws. They anointed him and proclaimed him king, and everyone clapped their hands and shouted, "Long live the king!"

The Death of Athaliah

2 Kgs 11:13-16 // 2 Chr 23:12-15

¹³When Athaliah heard the noise made by the palace guards and the people, she hurried to the LORD's Temple to see what was happening.¹⁴ When she arrived, she saw the newly crowned king standing in his place of authority by the pillar, as was the custom at times of coronation. The commanders and trumpeters were surrounding him, and people from all over the land were rejoicing and blowing trumpets. When Athaliah saw all this, she tore her clothes in despair and shouted, "Treason! Treason!"

¹⁵Then Jehoiada the priest ordered the commanders who were in charge of the troops, "Take her to the soldiers in front of the Temple, and kill anyone who tries to rescue her." For the priest had said, "She must not be killed in the Temple of the LORD."¹⁶ So they seized her and led her out to the gate where horses enter the palace grounds, and she was killed there.

Jehoiada's Religious Reforms

2 Kgs 11:17-20 // 2 Chr 23:16-21

¹⁷Then Jehoiada made a⁸ covenant between the LORD and the king and the people that they would be the LORD's people. He also made a covenant between the king and the people.¹⁸ And all the people of the land went over to the temple of^h Baal and tore it down. They demolished the altars and smashed the idols to pieces, and they killed Mattan the priest of^h Baal in front of the altars.

Jehoiada the priest stationed guards at the Temple of the LORD.¹⁹ Then the commanders, the Carite mercenaries, the palace guards, and all the people of the land escorted the king from the Temple of the LORD. They went through the gate of the guards and into the palace, and the king took his seat on the royal throne.²⁰ So all the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was peaceful because Athaliah had been killed at the king's palace.

Overview of Joash's Reign

12 Joash began to rule over Judah in the seventh year of King Jehu's reign in Israel. He reigned in Jerusalem forty years. His mother was Zibiah from Beersheba.² All his life Joash did what was pleasing in the LORD's sight because Jehoiada the priest instructed him.³ Yet even so, he did 11:11-12 With all the palace guards in place and their weapons ready, . . . Jehoiada brought out Joash before the populace and crowned him king. He also presented him a copy of God's laws (or a copy of the covenant). The king was to receive a copy of the law and make a copy for himself and "read it daily as long as he lives" (Deut 17:18-19). Jehoiada provides a strong contrast with Athaliah's pagan reign.

11:13-14 The pillar may be one of the two pillars that Solomon erected at the Temple entrance (1 Kgs 7:15-22; 2 Chr 23:13), or the Hebrew term could mean a raised platform set in place for the occasion so that the new king could be seen by all. • Athaliah's cry of treason is ironic, considering her own treasonous murders to seize the throne (11:1).

11:15 Take her to the soldiers in front of the Temple: Or Bring her out from between the ranks; or Take her out of the Temple precincts. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

11:16 Athaliah's death at the gate where horses enter the palace grounds is reminiscent of her mother Jezebel's death under the hooves of Jehu's horses (9:33).

11:17 The renewal of the covenant was especially important after years of pagan rule. Covenant faithfulness accompanied by periodic renewal was mandated in the law (Deut 31:9-13), and Israel observed it at junctures in its history (see 23:1-3; Josh 24).

11:18 The temple of Baal may be the temple discovered in Ramat Rahel about three miles south of Jerusalem. As Jehu destroyed Baal worship in the northern kingdom (10:18-27) so the people of Judah tore . . . down this pagan temple and executed its priest. • Jehoiada . . . stationed guards at the Temple as a precaution against further reprisal by those loyal to Athaliah and her false religion.

11:19-20 The city was peaceful—a mark of the kingdom where God and his law are honored (Isa 35:10; 65:18-24; Jer 33:6-16).

11:21-12:21 The reign of Joash is recorded in standard format: accession (11:21-12:3), royal activities (12:4-18), and closing notice (12:19-21). Particular focus is on Joash's efforts to repair the Temple (12:4-16) and his subsequent stripping of the Temple's treasures in the face of an Aramean invasion (12:17-18).

11:21 Verse 11:21 is numbered 12:1 in the Hebrew text. • Joash: Hebrew Jehoash, a variant spelling of Joash.

12:1 Verses 12:1-21 are numbered 12:2-22 in the Hebrew text. • Joash: Hebrew Jehoash, a variant spelling of Joash; also in 12:2, 4, 6, 7, 18. • Joash reigned from 835 to 796 BC.

12:2-3 Joash's indebtedness to Jehoiada, the priest who instructed him, kept him faithful to the Lord while Jehoiada was alive. However, after Jehoiada's death, godless leaders influenced Joash to

Joash Repairs the Temple

2 Kgs 12:4-16 // 2 Chr 24:4-14

⁴One day King Joash said to the priests, "Collect all the money brought as a sacred offering to the LORD's Temple, whether it is a regular assessment, a payment of vows, or a voluntary gift. ⁵Let the priests take some of that money to pay for whatever repairs are needed at the Temple."

⁶But by the twenty-third year of Joash's reign, the priests still had not repaired the Temple. ⁷So King Joash called for Jehoiada and the other priests and asked them, "Why haven't you repaired the Temple? Don't use any more money for your own needs. From now on, it must all be spent on Temple repairs." ⁸So the priests agreed not to accept any more money from the people, and they also agreed to let others take responsibility for repairing the Temple.

⁹Then Jehoiada the priest bored a hole in the lid of a large chest and set it on the right-hand side of the altar at the entrance of the Temple of the LORD. The priests guarding the entrance put all of the people's contributions into the chest. ¹⁰Whenever the chest became full, the court secretary and the high priest counted the money that had been brought to the LORD's Temple and put it into bags. ¹¹Then they gave the money to the construction supervisors, who used it to pay the people working on the LORD's Temple—the carpenters, the builders, ¹²the masons, and the stonecutters. They also used the money to buy the timber and the finished stone needed for repairing the LORD's Temple, and they paid any other expenses related to the Temple's restoration.

¹³The money brought to the Temple was not used for making silver bowls, lamp snuffers, basins, trumpets, or other articles of gold or silver for the Temple of the LORD. ¹⁴It was paid to the workmen, who used it for the Temple repairs. ¹⁵No accounting of this money was required from the construction ▲ Israel and Judah, 816–784 BC (12:4–14:18). During this period, both Israel and Judah began practicing long co-regencies between father and son. • In Israel, JEHOASH's reign is recorded as beginning in the thirty-seventh year of JOASH's reign in Judah (13:10), though Joash himself would have called it his thirty-eighth year (as on this diagram). The apparent difference simply reflects two different methods of calculating regnal years in Israel and Judah at this time (see "Chronology: Israel's Monarchy," p. 562). • JEROBOAM II had a total reign of forty-one years in Israel (14:23), although his official accession year did not occur until Jehoash of Israel died (782 BC), so Jeroboam apparently served as co-regent from his father's fifth regnal year. On the timeline, the co-regency years are listed in parentheses. • In Judah, UZZIAH had a total reign of fifty-two years (15:2). His sole reign began in the twenty-seventh year of Jeroboam II (15:1), so he apparently began serving as co-regent with AMAZIAH much earlier; his official regnal years were counted from the start of his co-regency (see, e.g., 15:8, 13, 17, 23, 27).

forsake the Lord and follow Canaanite practices (see 2 Chr 24:17-22). • Joash's failure to destroy the pagan shrines later became a source of spiritual compromise. Royal tolerance of such shrines in Judah had previously provoked God's anger (1 Kgs 14:23-26) and would do so again in Josiah's day (2 Chr 24:23-24).

12:4-8 Joash ordered the collection of funds from the cities of Judah (2 Chr 24:5) for repairs . . . needed at the Temple. Such money would come from special Levitical levies, a census tax (2 Chr 24:9), and voluntary offerings. After some time, the priests still had not repaired the Temple. So Joash took personal control of the project and put others in charge of the repairs (see also note on 2 Chr 24:4-8).

12:9-11 Joash's solution for securing and distributing the money for Temple repairs included placing a large chest at an accessible place to receive the people's contributions. When Joash informed the people of the need for a tax and voluntary offerings to complete the repairs, they "gladly brought their money and filled the chest with it" (2 Chr 24:9-10). With sufficient funds on hand, the money was given to the construction supervisors and the repair and restoration of the Temple began.

supervisors, because they were honest and trustworthy men. ¹⁶However, the money that was contributed for guilt offerings and sin offerings was not brought into the LORD's Temple. It was given to the priests for their own use.

The End of Joash's Reign

2 Kgs 12:17-21 // 2 Chr 24:23-27

¹⁷About this time King Hazael of Aram went to war against Gath and captured it. Then he turned to attack Jerusalem. ¹⁸King Joash collected all the sacred objects that Jehoshaphat, Jehoram, and Ahaziah, the previous kings of Judah, had dedicated, along with what he himself had dedicated. He sent them all to Hazael, along with all the gold in the treasuries of the LORD's Temple and the royal palace. So Hazael called off his attack on Jerusalem.

¹⁹The rest of the events in Joash's reign and everything he did are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Judah.

²⁰Joash's officers plotted against him and assassinated him at Beth-millo on the road to Silla. ²¹The assassins were Jozacar son of Shimeath and Jehozabad son of Shomer—both trusted advisers. Joash was buried with his ancestors in the City of David. Then his son Amaziah became the next king.

Sinful acts of God's people are prominent in 2 Kings. Words such as sin, evil, and wicked appear frequently to assert that the kings of both Israel (3:2; 13:2, 11; 14:24; 15:9, 18, 24, 28; 17:2) and Judah (8:18, 27; 21:2, 16, 20; 23:32, 37; 24:9, 19) did "what was evil in the LORD's sight."

The northern kingdom seemed particularly culpable. Its kings were uniformly condemned for their godless ways, and the people willingly followed them (17:16-17, 22). The basic sin of following the apostate worship introduced by Jeroboam I continued in Israel until the end (10:29; 17:21-22; 23:15). God repeatedly warned the people through his prophets (17:13) and brought the chastisement of foreign invaders (13:3, 7). Nothing moved the Israelites' hearts, for they were set in their sinful ways (13:6; 17:14-17). Eventually God's righteous anger was aroused to the point that he allowed foreign invaders to defeat them and occupy their land, sending many into exile (17:18, 20-23).

The people of Judah were not free of sin. Many of their kings were guilty of gross wickedness, and Judean society grew increasingly apostate and followed "the evil practices that Israel had introduced" (17:19). Despite God's repeated acts of kindness (18:7; 19:31-36) and warnings delivered through his prophets (21:8-15), the people persisted in their sin (23:26-27), and God's judgment once again fell upon his people (21:10-15; 23:26-27; 24:1-3; 25:1-21).

Choosing sin rather than faithfulness to the only true God (19:17-19, 22) and abandoning the standards of God's holy word (18:12; 21:8) invite disaster. However, where there is genuine repentance, God will graciously forgive his people and remit the penalty (21:8; see 1 Kgs 8:46-51; 2 Chr 7:14; 33:12-13). How much better to choose to live in faithfulness to God's Word (18:5-6; 23:25; Ps 119:9-11, 33-37; 2 Tim 4:7; Rev 2:10), so that God's blessings (Ps 112:1; 119:1-2; 144:15) might bring good success (18:7; see also 2 Chr 26:4-5; Prov 3:1-10; 2 Cor 3:5). God's people need to give God first place in their lives (1 Kgs 18:21, 36-39; see Deut 6:13; 10:12-13; Mic 6:8; Matt 6:33), pray for God's persevering grace (Ps 19:13), and let the word of God be their guide (Ps 119:9; Col 3:16; 2 Tim 3:16).

12:17 Hazael, a perennial oppressor of God's people (8:28; 9:14-15; 10:32-33; 13:3), had assassinated the Aramean king Ben-hadad II and seized the throne (8:15). Hazael's campaign against Israel and Judah probably came after the death of the Assyrian king Shamshi-adad V in 811 BC and before Adad-nirari III (810-783 BC) launched a series of campaigns in 805 BC, leading to the capture of Damascus in 802 BC. Free of Assyria's heavy hand, Hazael could launch a campaign southward.
• Whether Gath is the well-known city of the Philistines (1 Sam 5:8; 6:17) or a Hebrew city otherwise known as Gittaim (2 Sam 4:3; Neh 11:33) is disputed.

12:18 Sacred objects . . . gold: Such treasures had been contributed to the Temple earlier by Solomon and Asa (1 Kgs 7:51; 15:15). • Hazael had already begun the attack against Jerusalem, and Joash was wounded during the battle (2 Chr 24:25). Paying tribute to Hazael may have prevented further destruction in the city.

12:20-21 The assassination of the king in 796 BC by some of his own officers was in reprisal for the murder of Jehoahaz's son Zechariah (2 Chr 24:21-22, 25).

12:20 Beth-millo: This district lay on a ridge of the eastern hill of Jerusalem in an area known as the City of David, where Solomon installed a series of supporting terraces (1 Kgs 9:15). • The road to Silla is otherwise unknown.

in Samaria seventeen years. ²But he did what was evil in the LORD's sight. He followed the example of Jeroboam son of Nebat, continuing the sins that Jeroboam had led Israel to commit. ³So the LORD was very angry with Israel, and he allowed King Hazael of Aram and his son Ben-hadad to defeat them repeatedly.

⁴Then Jehoahaz prayed for the LORD's help, and the LORD heard his prayer, for he could see how severely the king of Aram was oppressing Israel. ⁵So the LORD provided someone to rescue the Israelites from the tyranny of the Arameans. Then Israel lived in safety again as they had in former days.

⁸The rest of the events in Jehoahaz's reign—everything he did and the extent of his power—are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel. ⁹When Jehoahaz died, he was buried in Samaria. Then his son Jehoash became the next king.

Jehoash's Reign in Israel

¹⁰Jehoash son of Jehoahaz began to rule over Israel in the thirty-seventh year of King Joash's reign in Judah. He reigned in Samaria sixteen years. ¹¹But he did what was evil in the LORD's sight. He refused to turn from the sins that Jeroboam son of Nebat had led Israel to commit.

¹²The rest of the events in Jehoash's reign and everything he did, including the extent of his power and his war with King Amaziah of Judah, are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel. ¹³When Jehoash died, he was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel. Then his son Jeroboam II became the next king.

Elisha's Final Prophecy

¹⁴When Elisha was in his last illness, King Jehoash of Israel visited him and wept over him. "My father! My father! I see the chariots and charioteers of Israel!" he cried.

Israel from Jehoahaz to Jeroboam II, 814–753 BC (13:1–14:29). King Jehoahaz was repeatedly defeated (13:3) by king Hazael of Aram and his son Ben-hadad, who controlled Gilead during Jehoahaz's reign (814–798 BC). • After winning a decisive battle over the Edomites in the VALLEY OF SALT (14:7), King Amaziah of JUDAH challenged King Jehoash of ISRAEL to fight at BETH-SHEMESH, but Judah was defeated. The army of Israel then marched to JERUSALEM, destroyed much of the wall, and took hostages back to SAMARIA (14:8-14). • Later, Amaziah fled to LACHISH to escape a conspiracy, but he was killed there and buried in Jerusalem (14:19-20). • Jeroboam II (793–753 BC) recovered Israel's territory east of the Jordan (14:25-26, as shown) that Hazael of Aram had conquered during the reign of Jehu, as well as gaining control of Aram itself as far north as LEBO-HAMATH.

13:6 Despite God's rescue, Israel continued to sin, eventually resulting in the fall of the northern kingdom (17:21-23; 1 Kgs 14:15-16). • This Asherah pole (a Canaanite fertility symbol erected by Ahab, 1 Kgs 16:33) had apparently been spared in Jehu's purge of Baal worship (10:26-29).

13:7 Years of Aramean oppression severely reduced Israel's army. Only God could save Israel from complete destruction (13:4-5). Ultimately, only God can rescue a helpless and lost humanity (Ps 35:10; Rom 5:6-8).

13:9 Jehoash: Hebrew Joash, a variant spelling of Jehoash; also in 13:10, 12, 13, 14, 25.

13:10-13 The narrator atypically combines the accession statement for Jehoash with the usual closing notice concerning his reign. This arrangement allows him to focus attention on some final details about Elisha (13:14-21) and Israel's continuing problem with Aram (13:22-25) before returning to Jehoash's war with King Amaziah of Judah in 14:8-14. • The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel: See note on 1 Kgs 14:19-20.

13:14 Jehoash wept over Elisha, showing that a faint glow of spiritual consciousness still existed in him. • the chariots and charioteers of Israel: Jehoash's tribute to Elisha is reminiscent of Elisha's words at Elijah's departure (2:12).

Joash of Judah assumed direction of repairs on the Temple (12:6). Because Jehoahaz perpetuated the state religion instituted by Jeroboam I (1 Kgs 12:26-33), his spiritual evaluation was negative.

13:3 Hazael, who had seized the throne of Aram in Damascus by assassinating his predecessor Ben-hadad II (815), continued the oppression of the northern kingdom. • Ben-hadad apparently served as a commander in Hazael's forces until he succeeded his father as king in 802 BC.

13:4-5 Jehoahaz prayed . . . the LORD heard: Despite Jehoahaz's poor spiritual condition, God graciously answered his prayer. The Lord graciously answers the earnest prayers of his people (see also 4:32-35; 6:17-20; 19:14-28; 20:2-6; 1 Kgs 3:8-14; 13:4-6; 17:21-23; 18:36-39; Ps 34:4-7; Jas 5:16). • provided someone to rescue the Israelites (cp. Judg 3:9, 15): Scholars have suggested many possibilities for Israel's rescuer, the most likely being King Adad-nirari III of Assyria, whose westward thrusts brought about the capture of Damascus in 802 BC.

¹⁵Elisha told him, "Get a bow and some arrows." And the king did as he was told. ¹⁶Elisha told him, "Put your hand on the bow," and Elisha laid his own hands on the king's hands.

¹⁷Then he commanded, "Open that eastern window," and he opened it. Then he said, "Shoot!" So he shot an arrow. Elisha proclaimed, "This is the LORD's arrow, an arrow of victory over Aram, for you will completely conquer the Arameans at Aphek."

¹⁸Then he said, "Now pick up the other arrows and strike them against the ground." So the king picked them up and struck the ground three times. ¹⁹But the man of God was angry with him. "You should have struck the ground five or six times!" he exclaimed. "Then you would have beaten Aram until it was entirely destroyed. Now you will be victorious only three times."

²⁰Then Elisha died and was buried.

Groups of Moabite raiders used to invade the land each spring. ²¹Once when some Israelites were burying a man, they spied a band of these raiders. So they hastily threw the corpse into the tomb of Elisha and fled. But as soon as the body touched Elisha's bones, the dead man revived and jumped to his feet!

Jehoash and Hazael

²²King Hazael of Aram had oppressed Israel during the entire reign of King Jehoahaz.

²³But the LORD was gracious and merciful to the people of Israel, and they were not totally destroyed. He pitied them because of his covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. And to this day he still has not completely destroyed them or banished them from his presence.

²⁴King Hazael of Aram died, and his son Ben-hadad became the next king. ²⁵Then Jehoash son of Jehoahaz recaptured from Ben-hadad son of Hazael the towns that had been taken from Jehoash's father, Jehoahaz. Jehoash defeated Ben-hadad on three occasions, and he recovered the Israelite towns.

Amaziah's Reign in Judah

2 Kgs 14:1-7 // 2 Chr 25:1-4, 11

14 Amaziah son of Joash began to rule over Judah in the second year of the reign of King Jehoash of Israel. ²Amaziah was twenty-five years old when he became king, and he reigned in Jerusalem twenty-nine years. His mother was Jehoaddin from Jerusalem. ³Amaziah did what was pleasing in the LORD's sight, but not like his ancestor David. Instead, he followed the example of his father, Joash. ⁴Amaziah did not destroy the pagan shrines, and the people still offered sacrifices and burned incense there.

⁵When Amaziah was well established as king, he executed the officials who had assassinated his father. ⁶However, he did not kill the children of the assassins, for he obeyed the command of the LORD as written by Moses in the Book of the Law: "Parents must not be put to death for the sins of their children, nor children for the sins of their parents. Those deserving to die must be put to death for their own crimes."

⁷Amaziah also killed 10,000 Edomites in the Valley of Salt. He also conquered Sela

13:18-19 Jehoash failed to act on his knowledge that the arrows signified victory over Aram (13:17). By striking the ground only three times, he unwittingly limited his own success against the Arameans; final victory came only later in the days of his son Jeroboam II (14:25-28).

13:20-21 Elisha's death provides an opportunity to relate one final story about the prophet. • The Moabite raiders apparently timed their incursions into Israel to coincide with the early harvest and to precede the summer's heat. • The dead man revived as his body touched Elisha's bones, a sign that Elisha's prophecy would come true. Weakened Israel (13:7) would revive and repel the Aramean invaders (13:25; 14:25; cp. Ezek 37:1-14).

13:23 Despite Israel's continued infidelity, God remained faithful to his covenant with Abraham (Gen 12:1-3; 13:15-17; 15:18-20; 17:6-8). By listing Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, the writer emphasizes Israel's spiritual identity with the Lord and its possession of the land of promise (see Gen 50:24; Exod 3:6, 15-16; 6:3, 6-8; Deut 6:10; 9:5; 34:4).

13:24-25 Ben-hadad son of Hazael came to the throne of Aram in Damascus in 802 BC, reigning twenty-two years in a declining kingdom. • Adad-nirari III of Assyria inflicted heavy losses against the Arameans (805–802 BC), allowing king Jehoash of Israel to further decimate this enemy. Fulfilling Elisha's prophecy, Israel defeated Ben-hadad on three occasions and so recovered the Israelite towns. Jehoash's limited success provided a springboard for Jeroboam II's full-scale victories over the Arameans (14:25).

14:1-2 Jehoash: Hebrew Joash, a variant spelling of Jehoash; also in 14:13, 23, 27. • The twenty-nine years of Amaziah's reign (796–767 BC) included a long co-regency with his son Uzziah (from 792 BC).

14:3-4 While Amaziah's basic spiritual evaluation was satisfactory, he did not serve the Lord wholeheartedly as his ancestor David had (2 Chr 25:2). David continued to be the spiritual standard for evaluating the kings of Judah (16:2; 18:3; 1 Kgs 15:5, 11). Tolerance for long-established pagan shrines remained a stumbling block for Judah (12:3; 1 Kgs 14:23; 15:14; 22:43).

14:5-6 When Amaziah . . . executed his father's assassins, he followed the standards of the law concerning "Parents . . . crimes" (Deut 24:16; see also 2 Chr 25:4) and did not put their children to death.

Amaziah's War against Jehoash of Israel

2 Kgs 14:8-14 // 2 Chr 25:17-24

⁸One day Amaziah sent messengers with this challenge to Israel's king Jehoash, the son of Jehoahaz and grandson of Jehu: "Come and meet me in battle!"

⁹But King Jehoash of Israel replied to King Amaziah of Judah with this story: "Out in the Lebanon mountains, a thistle sent a message to a mighty cedar tree: 'Give your daughter in marriage to my son.' But just then a wild animal of Lebanon came by and stepped on the thistle, crushing it!

¹⁰"You have indeed defeated Edom, and you are proud of it. But be content with your victory and stay at home! Why stir up trouble that will only bring disaster on you and the people of Judah?"

¹¹But Amaziah refused to listen, so King Jehoash of Israel mobilized his army against King Amaziah of Judah. The two armies drew up their battle lines at Beth-shemesh in Judah. ¹²Judah was routed by the army of Israel, and its army scattered and fled for home. ¹³King Jehoash of Israel captured Judah's king, Amaziah son of Joash and grandson of Ahaziah, at Beth-shemesh. Then he marched to Jerusalem, where he demolished 600 feet of Jerusalem's wall, from the Ephraim Gate to the Corner Gate. ¹⁴He carried off all the gold and silver and all the articles from the Temple of the LORD. He also seized the treasures from the royal palace, along with hostages, and then returned to Samaria.

The End of Jehoash's Reign

¹⁵The rest of the events in Jehoash's reign and everything he did, including the extent of his power and his war with King Amaziah of Judah, are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel. ¹⁶When Jehoash died, he was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel. And his son Jeroboam II became the next king.

The End of Amaziah's Reign

2 Kgs 14:17-22 // 2 Chr 25:25-26:2

¹⁷King Amaziah of Judah lived for fifteen years after the death of King Jehoash of Israel. ¹⁸The rest of the events in Amaziah's reign are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Judah.

¹⁹There was a conspiracy against Amaziah's life in Jerusalem, and he fled to Lachish. But his enemies sent assassins after him, and they killed him there. ²⁰They brought his body back to Jerusalem on a horse, and he was buried with his ancestors in the City of David.

²¹All the people of Judah had crowned Amaziah's sixteen-year-old son, Uzziah, as king in place of his father, Amaziah. ²²After his father's death, Uzziah rebuilt the town of Elath and restored it to Judah.

Jeroboam II's Reign in Israel

²³Jeroboam II, the son of Jehoash, began to rule over Israel in the fifteenth year of spite granting Amaziah this victory, God chastised him both for hiring Israelite mercenaries and for carrying home Edomite gods and worshiping them.

• The Valley of Salt was about three miles south of the Dead Sea. • Sela is traditionally identified as a site in the rocks and cliffs near Petra in modern Jordan. The capture of this highly defensible location demonstrated that Amaziah's victory was God-given.

14:8 Amaziah's challenge to Israel's King Jehoash may have been provoked by thoughts of revenge (see 2 Chr 25:13). Perhaps Amaziah had also become overly confident and proud because of his recent victory over Edom. • Come and meet me in battle! Literally Come, let us look one another in the face.

14:9-10 Jehoash's reply came as a parable (see Judg 9:7-15). In essence, Amaziah had as much of a chance of defeating Israel in war as a thistle trying to make demands against a mighty cedar tree. Amaziah and Judah would be defeated as easily as a random step would crush the proud thistle.

14:11-12 Beth-shemesh, a fortress town fifteen miles west of Jerusalem, was a natural place for the battle between Israel and Judah. The city history stretched back to when Judah occupied it after the Danites migrated northward (Josh 21:16; see also 1 Sam 6:1-14; 2 Chr 28:18).

14:13-14 600 feet: Hebrew 400 cubits [180 meters]. • The extensive demolition of Jerusalem's wall and the thorough looting of the city testify to Jehoash's overwhelming victory. Carrying off Temple and palace treasures and taking hostages are often noted in the annals of victorious Assyrian kings. See also 12:17-18; 18:13-15; 24:13-14; 25:8-21; 1 Kgs 14:25-26.

14:17-18 Some suggest that Jehoash took Amaziah back to Samaria where he remained captive until Jehoash's death. Subsequently released, Amaziah ruled jointly with his son Uzziah for fifteen years. • The Book of the History of the Kings of Judah: See note on 1 Kgs 14:29-31.

14:19-20 Like his father Jehoash (12:20-21), Amaziah was killed by assassins. The Chronicler blames his spiritual infidelity for the conspiracy against him (2 Chr 25:27). • Lachish, southwest of Jerusalem, was the site of an important victory by King Sennacherib of Assyria during his invasion of Judah in 701 bc (18:14). It was also seized during Nebuchadnezzar II's advance against Jerusalem in 588 bc (Jer 34:7).

14:21 The fifty-two year reign of Uzziah (Hebrew Azariah, a variant spelling of Uzziah) ended in 740 bc; he was sixteen years old when he became co-regent with his father in 792 bc. Apparently both Jehoash and Amaziah made their sons co-regents before going to war, in order to assure a smooth succession of government.

14:22 Elath, built by Solomon (2 Chr 8:17) on the Gulf of Aqaba, provided an important commercial gateway to the Red Sea.

14:23 The fifteenth year of King Amaziah's reign in Judah marks the beginning of Jeroboam II's independent reign (782 bc). His reign of forty-one years includes King Amaziah's reign in Judah. He reigned in Samaria forty-one years. ²⁴He did what was evil in the LORD's sight. He refused to turn from the sins that Jeroboam son of Nebat had led Israel to commit. ²⁵Jeroboam II recovered the territories of Israel between Lebo-hamath and the Dead Sea, just as the LORD, the God of Israel, had promised through Jonah son of Amittai, the prophet from Gath-hepher.

²⁶For the LORD saw the bitter suffering of everyone in Israel, and that there was no one in Israel, slave or free, to help them. ²⁷And because the LORD had not said he would blot out the name of Israel completely, he used Jeroboam II, the son of Jehoash, to save them.

²⁸The rest of the events in the reign of Jeroboam II and everything he did—including the extent of his power, his wars, and how he recovered for Israel both Damascus and Hamath, which had belonged to Judah—are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel. ²⁹When Jeroboam II died, he was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel. Then his son Zechariah became the next king.

Jeroboam II (14:23-29)

Hos 1:1
Amos 1:1; 7:10-17

Jeroboam II, son of Jehoash, reigned over Israel for 41 years (793–753), longer than any other northern king. He followed the evil example of Jeroboam I (14:23-24). His reign overlapped with those of Amaziah, Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah in Judah.

Jeroboam ruled in Samaria (14:23), where archaeological evidence suggests the opulence of Israel's royal house during his reign. During his era the northern kingdom reached its greatest extent and experienced its greatest prosperity since Solomon. On a human level, an explanation for Israel's newfound prosperity was that Assyria experienced a decline in power during this time, allowing the northern kingdom to expand. The prophet Jonah, however, predicted this prosperity as God's promise (14:25); although Jeroboam's reign came after 150 years of apostasy in the northern kingdom, God still exhibited his faithful love by offering Israel his mercy (14:26-27).

Even so, Jeroboam II was like his earlier (and unrelated) namesake, Jeroboam I, in his wicked character. His reign over Israel produced great wealth, but it was not accompanied by justice. The rich landowners, including Jeroboam II, oppressed the less wealthy and forced small landowners to migrate from their farms to the cities. Extensive government corruption, the people's degenerate spiritual state, economic depression, and political weakness brought about the destruction of the northern kingdom only about thirty years after Jeroboam's reign ended.

God raised up prophets to challenge the leaders and people of Israel during his time. Amos and Hosea prophesied against Israel's vast corruption. Amos was particularly scathing in his attacks on the rich for oppressing the poor, memorably styling the women as "fat cows living in Samaria" (Amos 4:1). He specifically mentions Jeroboam (Amos 7:10-17).

When Jeroboam died, the northern kingdom rapidly declined. In the following years (753–722 BC), six kings ruled in rapid succession, and most of them were assassinated. In 722 BC, Assyria destroyed the northern kingdom and deported its people, thus properly judging the sins of Jeroboam II and other northern kings.

the earlier co-regency with his father (793–782 BC).

14:24 Jeroboam II perpetuated the apostate religion instituted by Jeroboam I (1 Kgs 12:28-33) that led to Israel's demise (17:21-23; 1 Kgs 14:16).

14:25 Israel and Judah apparently lived in harmony at this time so that both kingdoms prospered and recovered nearly all the territory that Solomon had held (see 2 Chr 26:6-15). • Lebo-hamath, known from Egyptian and Assyrian inscriptions, lay some forty-five miles north of Damascus in the Beqa' Valley. The extent of Jeroboam's conquests testifies to the northern kingdom's military power. Israel's victories against the Arameans were possible because Aram had been weakened by earlier conquests of Adad-nirari III of Assyria. • the Dead Sea: Hebrew the sea of the Arabah. • Jonah is the famous prophet who pronounced the doom of Nineveh but was disappointed when God spared its repentant people (Jon 3:3-4:3).

14:26-28 The LORD . . . used Jeroboam II: God saw his people's helplessness and remained faithful to the covenant established with Israel's patriarchs (13:23). • everything he did: The narrator hints at the extent of Jeroboam's God-given power and prosperity. The Samaria ostraca also indicate the prosperity of the era. The prophecies of Hosea and Amos show that despite the prosperity during Jeroboam's reign, the Israelites refused to turn to the Lord. • to Judah: Or to Yaudi. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

14:29 The first sentence is as in some Greek manuscripts; Hebrew lacks he was buried in Samaria.

15:1-3 Uzziah: Hebrew Azariah, a variant spelling of Uzziah; also in 15:6, 7, 8, 17, 23, 27. The name Uzziah means

He lived in isolation in a separate house. The king's son Jotham was put in charge of the royal palace, and he governed the people of the land.

⁶The rest of the events in Uzziah's reign and everything he did are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Judah. ⁷When Uzziah died, he was buried with his ancestors in the City of David. And his son Jotham became the next king.

Zechariah's Reign in Israel

⁸Zechariah son of Jeroboam II began to rule over Israel in the thirty-eighth year of King Uzziah's reign in Judah. He reigned in Samaria six months. ⁹Zechariah did what was evil in the LORD's sight, as his ancestors had done. He refused to turn from the sins that Jeroboam son of Nebat had led Israel to commit. ¹⁰Then Shallum son of Jabesh conspired against Zechariah, assassinated him in public, and became the next king.

¹¹The rest of the events in Zechariah's reign are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel. ¹²So the LORD's message to Jehu came true: "Your descendants will be kings of Israel down to the fourth generation."

Shallum's Reign in Israel

¹³Shallum son of Jabesh began to rule over Israel in the thirty-ninth year of King Uzziah's reign in Judah. Shallum reigned in Samaria only one month. ¹⁴Then Menahem son of Gadi went to Samaria from Tirzah and assassinated him, and he became the next king.

¹⁵The rest of the events in Shallum's reign, including his conspiracy, are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel.

Menahem's Reign in Israel

¹⁶At that time Menahem destroyed the town of Tappuah and all the surrounding countryside as far as Tirzah, because its Yahweh is my strength. • fifty-two years: The length of Uzziah's reign (792–740 BC) reflects changed conditions in the early 700s BC. Assyria was in decline and relations between Israel and Judah were cordial. Uzziah's spiritual convictions earned God's blessing so that Judah enjoyed its greatest prosperity since the days of Solomon (2 Chr 26:9–10).

15:4 In spite of his good spiritual evaluation, Uzziah continued to allow worship at the pagan shrines (14:4).

15:5 Because Uzziah usurped the prerogatives of the priesthood (2 Chr 26:16–21), the LORD struck the king with leprosy (or with a contagious skin disease; the Hebrew word used here and throughout this passage can describe various skin diseases).

His son Jotham became co-regent (about 750 BC). While Uzziah's isolation kept him from public duties, he may have continued to exercise political power. King Tiglath-pileser III of Assyria (744–727 BC), in connection with his first western campaign (744–743 BC), mentioned an opponent named Azariau whom many scholars understand as Uzziah.

15:8–12 Jeroboam II's son Zechariah was far less capable than his father. Zechariah perpetuated the sins that Jeroboam [I] . . . led Israel to commit. God had promised Jehu a royal line to the fourth generation (10:30); Zechariah's six-month reign fulfilled that promise.

15:10 in public: Or at Ibleam. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

• Israel and Judah, 784–763 BC (14:19–15:12): JEROBOAM II had his official accession to the throne of Israel in the year his father, JEHOASH, died (14:23); the total count of his years as king includes his co-regency (see timeline, p. 649). • AMAZIAH lived a long life, but his son UZZIAH was actually ruling the kingdom of Judah during most of this time (14:17–21).

15:13 Jabesh, which lay east of the Jordan in northern Gilead, might have been the hometown of Shallum, whose reign was even shorter than Zechariah's. Shallum was assassinated, as he had done to Zechariah (15:10).

15:14 Tirzah had been capital of the northern kingdom during Israel's first two dynasties (1 Kgs 14:17; 15:21, 33; 16:8). • Menahem was an army commander.

15:16 Tappuah: As in some Greek manuscripts; Hebrew reads Tiphshah. • At Tirzah, Menahem heard of King Zechariah's assassination by Shallum. Menahem gathered his forces and moved against Samaria. • ripped open the pregnant women: This horrible wartime practice, noted in Assyrian and Babylonian documents, is also attributed to King Hazael of Aram (8:12). See also Hos 10:14; 13:16; Amos 1:13.

citizens refused to surrender the town. He killed the entire population and ripped open the pregnant women.

¹⁷Menahem son of Gadi began to rule over Israel in the thirty-ninth year of King Uzziah's reign in Judah. He reigned in Samaria ten years. ¹⁸But Menahem did what was evil in the LORD's sight. During his entire reign, he refused to turn from the sins that Jeroboam son of Nebat had led Israel to commit.

¹⁹Then King Tiglath-pileser of Assyria invaded the land. But Menahem paid him thirty-seven tons of silver to gain his support in tightening his grip on royal power. ²⁰Menahem extorted the money from the rich of Israel, demanding that each of them pay fifty pieces of silver to the king of Assyria. So the king of Assyria turned from attacking Israel and did not stay in the land.

²¹The rest of the events in Menahem's reign and everything he did are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel. ²²When Menahem died, his son Pekahiah became the next king.

Pekahiah's Reign in Israel

²³Pekahiah son of Menahem began to rule over Israel in the fiftieth year of King Uzziah's reign in Judah. He reigned in Samaria two years. ²⁴But Pekahiah did what was evil in the LORD's sight. He refused to turn from the sins that Jeroboam son of Nebat had led Israel to commit.

²⁵Then Pekah son of Remaliah, the commander of Pekahiah's army, conspired against him. With fifty men from Gilead, Pekah assassinated the king, along with Argob and Arieah, in the citadel of the palace at Samaria. And Pekah reigned in his place.

▲ Israel and Judah, 753–721 bc (15:13–18:12). After the long reign of JEROBOAM II, the kingdom of Israel fell into chaos and disunity for its final quarter century, and orderly succession was replaced by a series of assassinations. SHALLUM assassinated ZECHARIAH son of Jeroboam II, only to be assassinated a month later by MENAHEM, who ruled for ten years. PEKAH appears to have begun ruling Gilead, and he took over the entire kingdom of Israel when he assassinated Menahem's son PEKAHIAH. Pekah's rule likewise ended when HOSHEA assassinated him. Hoshea ruled Israel during its final years of apostasy, siege, and destruction at the hands of the Assyrian king SHALMANESER V in 722 BC. • Meanwhile, the kingdom of Judah was characterized by long co-regencies and political stability. For each king, the years in which he was not the primary ruler are shown on the timeline in parentheses. • Concerning the dates for the reign of AHAZ, see notes on 15:32-33; 16:1-2; 17:1.

15:19-20 Tiglath-pileser (Hebrew Pul, another name for Tiglath-pileser): The NLT uses the Assyrian (see 15:29; 16:6) form of the name, rather than the Hebrew, which is taken from the Babylonian. Tiglath-pileser III seized the throne of Assyria in 744 BC and provided able leadership until his death in 727 BC. • When Tiglath-pileser launched the western campaign to regain territory held by Aram, Menahem paid him a heavy tribute of thirty-seven tons (Hebrew 1,000 talents [34 metric tons]) of silver to keep him from overrunning Israel. • Although Menahem's name means comfort, the unsettled conditions in the northern kingdom provided little consolation for God's people during his reign (752–742 BC). • fifty pieces: Hebrew 50 shekels [20 ounces or 570 grams].

15:23-25 Menahem's son Pekahiah reigned only two years before Pekah conspired to assassinate him. Pekahiah continued the sins associated with the religious policies initiated by Jeroboam I (1 Kgs 12:26-33). Pekah, an army commander, had apparently been a rival for the throne for some time.

Pekah's Reign in Israel

²⁷Pekah son of Remaliah began to rule over Israel in the fifty-second year of King Uzziah's reign in Judah. He reigned in Samaria twenty years. ²⁸But Pekah did what was evil in the LORD's sight. He refused to turn from the sins that Jeroboam son of Nebat had led Israel to commit.

²⁹During Pekah's reign, King Tiglath-pileser of Assyria attacked Israel again, and he captured the towns of Ijon, Abel-beth-maacah, Janoah, Kedesh, and Hazor. He also conquered the regions of Gilead, Galilee, and all of Naphtali, and he took the people to Assyria as captives. ³⁰Then Hoshea son of Elah conspired against Pekah and assassinated him. He began to rule over Israel in the twentieth year of Jotham son of Uzziah.

³¹The rest of the events in Pekah's reign and everything he did are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Israel.

Jotham's Reign in Judah

2 Kgs 15:32-38//2 Chr 27:1-3a, 7-9

³²Jotham son of Uzziah began to rule over Judah in the second year of King Pekah's reign in Israel. ³³He was twenty-five years old when he became king, and he reigned in Jerusalem sixteen years. His mother was Jerusha, the daughter of Zadok.

³⁴Jotham did what was pleasing in the LORD's sight. He did everything his father, Uzziah, had done. ³⁵But he did not destroy the pagan shrines, and the people still offered sacrifices and burned incense there. He rebuilt the upper gate of the Temple of the LORD.

³⁶The rest of the events in Jotham's reign and everything he did are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Judah.

³⁷In those days the LORD began to send King Rezin of Aram and King Pekah of Israel to attack Judah. ³⁸When Jotham died,

◀ The Assyrian Empire, 745–612 BC (15:19–20:37). During the late 700s BC, the power of ASSYRIA grew under the leadership of King Tiglath-pileser III (744–727 BC), and both ISRAEL and JUDAH came under his power. When he invaded Israel, King Menahem of Israel (752–742) began paying him tribute (15:19–20); King Ahaz not long afterward made Judah a vassal of Assyria in seeking protection from Aram and Israel (16:5–9). King Hoshea of Israel (732–722 BC) tried to shake free from paying the heavy annual tribute to Assyria, which led to the destruction of the northern kingdom in 722 BC and the an ill-conceived anti-Assyrian coalition (see Isa 9:1). As a result of this invasion, Tiglath-pileser captured and conquered much of Israel's northern and eastern territory (see map at left). • Pekah's doomed political policies caused dissension in Israel that led to his assassination by Hoshea, whose action was probably intended to placate the Assyrian king and preserve the northern kingdom. In his annals, Tiglath-pileser claimed that he put Hoshea on the throne and received his heavy tribute. • The twentieth year of Jotham, counting from the beginning of his co-regency with his father Uzziah in Judah, was 732 BC, the year of his death (see timeline, facing page).

15:32-33 The second year of King Pekah's reign reflects the first full year of Jotham's independent reign; he was co-regent with his father for the previous decade. • sixteen years: From the beginning of his co-regency with his father Uzziah (750 BC) until his son Ahaz became the primary ruler of Judah (735 BC).

15:34-35 Although Jotham did what was pleasing in the LORD's sight, he allowed worship at pagan shrines to continue. • rebuilt the upper gate of the Temple: The prosperity of Uzziah's reign continued during his son Jotham's reign. Jotham built onto Jerusalem's wall at the hill of Ophel and did construction at many Judean sites (2 Chr 27:3-4). He also conquered the rebellious Ammonites (2 Chr 27:5), whom Uzziah had forced into subservience (2 Chr 26:8).

exile of its people. Hezekiah also revolted against Assyria around 705 BC (see note on 18:7-8), which brought the Assyrian invasion of Judah in 701 BC and the LORD's remarkable rescue in response to Hezekiah's faith (see 18:13–19:36).

15:27 fifty-second year of King Uzziah's reign: The date for Pekah's accession is the final year of Uzziah's reign (740 BC). Because of the standing relationship between Tiglath-pileser and Menahem, Pekah confined his influence to Gilead during Menahem's reign (752–742 BC). With Menahem's death, Pekahiah made Pekah an army commander. This provided Pekah with a broader base of support and gave him opportunity to seize the throne of Israel in 740 BC.

15:29-30 With his second western campaign (734–732 BC), Tiglath-pileser . . . attacked Israel again. Pekah had allied himself with King Rezin of Aram in he was buried with his ancestors in the City of David. And his son Ahaz became the next king.

Ahaz's Reign in Judah

2 Kgs 16:1-4 // 2 Chr 28:1-4

2 Kgs 16:19-20 // 2 Chr 28:26-27

16 Ahaz son of Jotham began to rule over Judah in the seventeenth year of King Pekah's reign in Israel. ²Ahaz was twenty years old when he became king, and he reigned in Jerusalem sixteen years. He did not do what was pleasing in the sight of the LORD his God, as his ancestor David had done. ³Instead, he followed the example of the kings of Israel, even sacrificing his own son in the fire. In this way, he followed the detestable practices of the pagan nations the LORD had driven from the land ahead of the Israelites. ⁴He offered sacrifices and burned incense at the pagan shrines and on the hills and under every green tree.

⁵Then King Rezin of Aram and King Pekah of Israel came up to attack Jerusalem. They besieged Ahaz but could not conquer him. ⁶At that time the king of Edom recovered the town of Elath for Edom. He drove out the people of Judah and sent Edomites to live there, as they do to this day.

⁷King Ahaz sent messengers to King Tiglath-pileser of Assyria with this message: "I am your servant and your vassal. Come up and rescue me from the attacking armies of Aram and Israel." ⁸Then Ahaz took the silver and gold from the Temple of the LORD and the palace treasury and sent it as a payment to the Assyrian king. ⁹So the king of Assyria attacked the Aramean capital of Damascus and led its population away as captives, resettling them in Kir. He also killed King Rezin.

¹⁰King Ahaz then went to Damascus to meet with King Tiglath-pileser of Assyria. While he was there, he took special note of the altar. Then he sent a model of the altar to Uriah the priest, along with its design in full detail. ¹¹Uriah followed the king's instructions and built an altar just like it, and it was ready before the king returned from Damascus. ¹²When the king returned, he inspected the altar and made offerings on it. ¹³He presented a burnt offering and a grain offering, he poured out a liquid offering, and he sprinkled the blood of peace offerings on the altar.

¹⁴Then King Ahaz removed the old bronze altar from its place in front of the LORD's Temple, between the entrance and the new 16:1-2 The seventeenth year of King Pekah's reign was 735 BC. At that time Ahaz . . . began to rule: He had already been co-regent for eleven years, but now he officially acceded to the throne. This marks the transition from subordination to his father, Jotham (743–735 BC), to a position of reigning in his stead (735–732 BC; see timeline, p. 656). Ahaz presumably had his official accession ceremony following his father's death in 732 BC, so the author of Kings reckons Ahaz's reign of sixteen years from 731 BC, the year after his father died, to 715 BC (see timeline, p. 656). See also note on 17:1.

16:2-3 Again, his ancestor David serves as the standard for measuring the spiritual character of Judah's kings (14:3; 1 Kings 15:3, 11). • the example of the kings of Israel: Ahaz was one of Judah's most wicked kings. He indulged in the apostate religion of Israel and the pagan practices of other nations to the extent of even sacrificing his own son in the fire (or even making his son pass through the fire; see Jer 19:5; 32:35). Although Levitical regulations prohibited such sacrifices as an abomination detestable to the Lord (Lev 18:10; 20:1-5), the practice was repeated among God's people (Isa 30:33; Jer 7:31) until Josiah's reforms (23:10).

16:5-6 Rezin . . . Pekah: This alliance between the kings of Aram and Israel was intended to free the area of Assyrian dominance under Tiglath-pileser III (15:29-30; Isa 9:1). The attack against Judah may have occurred to force Judah into the alliance or to replace the Judean king with one of their own choosing (Isa 7:3-6). The result was captivity and widespread death for the people of Judah (2 Chr 28:5-15). Isaiah reports that Rezin and Pekah intended to install a new king on Judah's throne (Isa 7:3-6). Judah also suffered further attacks by the Edomites and Philistines (2 Chr 28:17-18). All of this was God's will due to Ahaz's detestable spiritual practices, which led to great sin among the people of Judah (2 Chr 28:5, 19).

16:6 the king of Edom: As in Latin Vulgate; Hebrew reads Rezin king of Aram. • Edom: As in Latin Vulgate; Hebrew reads Aram. • Edomites: As in Greek version, Latin Vulgate, and an alternate reading of the Masoretic Text; the other alternate reads Arameans. The NLT translators have chosen to follow the text of several ancient translations, since the town of Elath is far to the south, nearer to Edom than to Aram.

16:7-9 your vassal: Literally your son. Rather than trusting in God's provision (Isa 7:7-16), Ahaz petitioned Tiglath-pileser III of Assyria to rescue him from his enemies. Tiglath-pileser was successful, and his victory brought about the death of Rezin, the capture of Damascus, and the deportation of its citizens (732 BC). It also contributed to unseating Pekah as king of Israel in the same year (15:29-30). The cost of the rescue was great, however; Ahaz paid a heavy tribute to Tiglath-pileser, and the Assyrian intervention reduced Judah to vassal status.

16:9 The location of Kir is unknown; it was the original home of the Arameans (Amos 9:7).

16:10-11 Ahaz . . . took special note of the altar of the Arameans and had a copy made so as to emulate their pagan worship.

16:12-13 The king initiated the new altar by making the traditional offerings upon it (see Lev 1-3; 6:8-23; 7:11-34; Num 15:1-10; 28:9-15, 24, 31). Sadly, such offerings upon a pagan altar by a leader devoid of spiritual character constituted a mockery of their deep spiritual meaning.

16:14 Solomon had originally placed the bronze altar in front of the Temple (see Exod 40:6; 2 Chr 4:1; 7:7-10). At first, Ahaz positioned his new altar so that worshipers would come to it before coming to the bronze altar. Then Ahaz had the bronze altar placed . . . on the north side of the new altar, completely replacing the bronze altar as the center of sacrificial activity.

altar, and placed it on the north side of the new altar. ¹⁵He told Uriah the priest, "Use the new altar for the morning sacrifices of burnt offering, the evening grain offering, the king's burnt offering and grain offering, and the burnt offerings of all the people, as well as their grain offerings and liquid offerings. Sprinkle the blood from all the burnt offerings and sacrifices on the new altar. The bronze altar will be for my personal use only." ¹⁶Uriah the priest did just as King Ahaz commanded him.

¹⁷Then the king removed the side panels and basins from the portable water carts. He also removed the great bronze basin called the Sea from the backs of the bronze oxen and placed it on the stone pavement. ¹⁸In deference to the king of Assyria, he also removed the canopy that had been constructed inside the palace for use on the Sabbath day, as well as the king's outer entrance to the Temple of the Lord.

¹⁹The rest of the events in Ahaz's reign and everything he did are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Judah. ²⁰When Ahaz died, he was buried with his ancestors in the City of David. Then his son Hezekiah became the next king.

Hoshea's Reign in Israel

17 Hoshea son of Elah began to rule over Israel in the twelfth year of King Ahaz's reign in Judah. He reigned in Ahaz (15:38–16:20)

2 Chr 27:9–28:27
Isa 7:1–25

Ahaz (743–715 BC) reigned in Judah during a turbulent period. His father Jotham (15:32–38; 2 Chr 27:1–9) and son Hezekiah (18:1–8) were praised for their obedience to the Lord, but Ahaz was evil, even sacrificing one of his sons to false gods.

Ahaz's reign was marked with conflict. King Pekah of Israel and King Rezin of Aram (Syria) wanted him to join a coalition against Assyria and its ambitious king Tiglath-pileser III, but he refused. So Pekah and Rezin turned against Judah and won substantial victories, which severely frightened Ahaz. Isaiah the prophet encouraged Ahaz to rely on the Lord, but Ahaz refused (Isa 7:1–25).

Revealing his lack of trust in the true God, Ahaz appealed to Tiglath-pileser III for help (16:7–9). The Assyrian king subsequently defeated Syria and killed Rezin in a two-year campaign (734–732 BC). He subdued Israel and incorporated great tracts of Pekah's land into the Assyrian empire (15:29–30). Ahaz made Judah dangerously dependent on Assyria, and Judah effectively became a vassal state.

Ahaz seemed an eager servant of Assyria, because he adopted many religious innovations based on Assyrian models (16:10–18). Ahaz visited Tiglath-pileser III in Damascus, where he saw an Assyrian altar and sent a model of it to Jerusalem, where a similar altar was built, replacing the original bronze altar. Several other Temple alterations also indicate Ahaz's defection from faith in the Lord.

Ahaz illustrates why the people of Judah were finally exiled. He did not comport himself appropriately as a king (Deut 17:14–20), and he did not worship the Lord. He was succeeded by his son Hezekiah (18:1).

16:15–16 Ahaz ordered that standard daily sacrifices (Num 28:1–8) as well as the individual offerings of the king and people would be made on the new altar (literally the great altar). Ahaz then restricted the bronze altar to his personal use (literally for seeking/inquiry), probably to use it for pagan divination. This demand displayed a callous insolence against the Lord and his worship. Uriah the priest complied with Ahaz's demands (16:10–11, 16), rather than resisting the king.

16:17–18 Because the side panels and basins from the . . . water carts and the Sea were made of bronze (see 1 Kgs 7:25–40), Ahaz might have used them to pay tribute or for some other project. • In deference: Apparently at the request of the king of Assyria, Ahaz removed the canopy that had been constructed inside the palace for use on the Sabbath day (the meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.) This canopy led to the inner court as well as to the king's private entrance to the Temple. Judah paid a heavy price in loss of freedom because of Ahaz's trust in the Assyrian king's military intervention on their behalf (16:7–8, 10).

16:19 The rest of the events in Ahaz's reign: In further rejection of the Lord, Ahaz removed the utensils from the Temple "and broke them into pieces" (2 Chr 28:24). He then closed the Temple and discontinued services there, instead promoting paganism throughout the land (2 Chr 28:25; 29:7).

In redefining the worship of Judah so completely, his apostasy was similar to that of Jeroboam I (cp. 3:3; 13:2; 16:2–4; 17:21; 1 Kgs 12:25–33; 16:26; 22:52).

17:1–23 The report of the northern kingdom's fall proceeds in two major sections: (1) events in the reign of Israel's final king, Hoshea, and the circumstances that brought about the capture of Samaria and the deportation of Israel's citizens (17:1–6); (2) the reasons for Israel's collapse and conquest by Assyria—Israel's many sins (17:7–17) that merited God's judgment (17:18–20) and the great sin of Jeroboam I, who laid the foundation for Israel's rampant apostasy (17:21–23).

17:1 Hoshea . . . began to rule over Israel in 732 BC. • Hoshea's reign is listed Samaria nine years. ²He did what was evil in the LORD's sight, but not to the same extent as the kings of Israel who ruled before him.

³King Shalmaneser of Assyria attacked King Hoshea, so Hoshea was forced to pay heavy tribute to Assyria. ⁴But Hoshea stopped paying the annual tribute and conspired against the king of Assyria by asking King So of Egypt to help him shake free of Assyria's power. When the king of Assyria discovered this treachery, he seized Hoshea and put him in prison.

The Fall of Samaria

2 Kgs 17:5-6 // 2 Kgs 18:9-11

⁵Then the king of Assyria invaded the entire land, and for three years he besieged the city of Samaria. ⁶Finally, in the ninth year of King Hoshea's reign, Samaria fell, and the people of Israel were exiled to Assyria. They were settled in colonies in Halah, along the banks of the Habor River in Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes.

⁷This disaster came upon the people of Israel because they worshiped other gods. They sinned against the LORD their God, who had brought them safely out of Egypt and had rescued them from the power of Pharaoh, the king of Egypt. ⁸They had followed the practices of the pagan nations the LORD had driven from the land ahead of them, as well as the practices the kings of Israel had introduced. ⁹The people of Israel had also secretly done many things that were not pleasing to the LORD their God. They built pagan shrines for themselves in all their towns, from the smallest outpost to the largest walled city. ¹⁰They set up sacred pillars and Asherah poles at the top of every hill and under every green tree. ¹¹They offered sacrifices on all the hilltops, just like the nations the LORD had driven from the land ahead of them. So the people of Israel had done many evil things, arousing the LORD's anger. ¹²Yes, they worshiped idols, despite the LORD's specific and repeated warnings.

¹³Again and again the LORD had sent his prophets and seers to warn both Israel and Judah: "Turn from all your evil ways. Obey my commands and decrees—the entire law that I commanded your ancestors to obey, and that I gave you through my servants the prophets."

¹⁴But the Israelites would not listen. They were as stubborn as their ancestors who had as beginning in "the twentieth year of Jotham" (15:30) and in the twelfth year of King Ahaz's reign in Judah. Ahaz apparently co-reigned with Jotham from about 743 BC, when he was twelve years old, but Ahaz's official regnal years were calculated from 731 BC (16:2). Thus the references to Ahaz's reign are in harmony.

17:2 Hoshea's evil deeds were not to the same extent as his forebears, though what this means exactly is not explained.

17:3-4 King Shalmaneser V succeeded his father Tiglath-pileser III in 726 BC. Hoshea may have reasoned that this leadership change would allow Israel to become independent of Assyrian vassalage. But his withholding of the annual tribute simply invited Shalmaneser's reprisal. • by asking King So of Egypt (Or by asking the king of Egypt at Sais): Some scholars understand the name So as an abbreviation of Pharaoh Osorkon IV (730–715 BC). Others equate So with Pharaoh Piankhy (747–716 BC), viewing the biblical name So as a Hebraic rendering of one of the names in Piankhy's titulary. Still others suggest that So refers to the city of Sais, the capital of Pharaoh Tefnakht (727–720 BC). Whatever the identity of this king, it is clear that Hoshea's hope for help from Egypt was misplaced.

17:5-6 the king of Assyria: Although sources identify Samaria's conqueror as Shalmaneser V of Assyria (726–722 BC), Sargon II (who ruled Assyria 721–705 BC) claimed that he captured the city. Perhaps Sargon was the field commander when Samaria fell and then became king when Shalmaneser died during the year of the siege. • invaded the entire land: Assyrian military strategy was to devastate the territory surrounding an enemy's primary city before launching a final attack. • The ninth year of King Hoshea's reign was 722 BC. • the people . . . were exiled: The Assyrians practiced deportation in order to defuse future rebellions. Sargon also brought other people to Israel to form a mixed population (17:24-25). • Halah was situated northeast of Nineveh in Assyria. • The Habor River is a tributary of the Euphrates River in northwestern Assyria. • Gozan was located on the Habor River northeast of Haran (Gen 12:4). Assyrian documents from the area list personal names that are clearly Israelite, perhaps reflecting the deportation of the people of Samaria.

17:7 sinned against the LORD . . . who had brought them . . . out of Egypt: Israel's demise was due to the people's persistent sin of infidelity. Rather than remaining true to their Redeemer, the Israelites worshiped other gods. • Israel's redemption out of Egypt is a theme repeated throughout the OT, appearing in the poetic literature (Exod 15:1-18; Ps 77:13-20; 105:26-45; 106:7-12; 114:1-8; Hab 3:3-15), the prophets (Isa 63:11-14; Jer 2:1-8; 32:21-23; Ezek 20:10-12; Mic 6:4), and the historical literature (Josh 3:5; 4:14, 18-24; 1 Sam 12:6).

17:8-13 The catalog of Israel's sins includes numerous pagan rites and practices. Whether done in the open or secretly, God was aware of them all. Many were even initiated by Israel's kings who built pagan shrines, sacred pillars, and Asherah poles and emulated heathen sacrifices and idolatry (10:29; 15:18, 28; 1 Kgs 12:28-33; 15:34; 16:30-33). All levels of Israelite society, royalty and commoner alike, persisted in such sins despite denunciation and warning by God's prophets, which included the writings of Isaiah, Hosea, Amos, and Micah.

17:11 arousing the LORD's anger: When God becomes angry, he is not vindictive or bad tempered. Instead, human evil angers him because people have rebelled against God and done evil to one another. God responds to human evil with his justice in dealing with sin and evil (see also 13:3; 17:17-18; 21:6; 22:13, 17; 23:26-27; 24:20; Rom 3:23; 6:23; 14:10; 2 Cor 5:10; Col 3:6; 1 Jn 1:8-10).

17:12 idols: The Hebrew term (literally round things) probably alludes to dung.

17:14-15 Like their ancestors (Deut 10:16; 1 Sam 12:6-9; Ps 106:28), the Israelites persisted in their infidelity to the Lord (Isa 65:6-7; Amos 2:4; see Acts 7:51-53).

refused to believe in the LORD their God. ¹⁵They rejected his decrees and the covenant he had made with their ancestors, and they despised all his warnings. They worshiped worthless idols, so they became worthless themselves. They followed the example of the nations around them, disobeying the LORD's command not to imitate them.

¹⁶They ^krejected all the commands of the LORD their God and made two calves from metal. They set up an Asherah pole and worshiped Baal and all the forces of heaven. ¹⁷They even sacrificed their own sons and daughters in the fire. They consulted fortune-tellers and practiced sorcery and sold themselves to evil, arousing the LORD's anger.

¹⁸Because the LORD was very angry with Israel, he swept them away from his presence. Only the tribe of Judah remained in the land. ¹⁹But even the people of Judah refused to obey the commands of the LORD their God, for they followed the evil practices that Israel had introduced. ²⁰The LORD rejected all the descendants of Israel. He punished them by handing them over to their attackers until he had banished Israel from his presence.

²¹For when the LORD tore Israel away from the kingdom of David, they chose Jeroboam son of Nebat as their king. But Jeroboam drew Israel away from following the LORD and made them commit a great sin. ²²And the people of Israel persisted in all the evil ways of Jeroboam. They did not turn from these sins ²³until the LORD finally swept them away from his presence, just as all his prophets had warned. So Israel was exiled from their land to Assyria, where they remain to this day.

Although the kings of Israel and Judah had a major role in the history of the divided kingdom, the people also played a part in what occurred. They followed their wicked rulers (3:3; 17:22; 21:9, 11, 16), and it is clear that their own hearts strayed from God (12:3; 14:4; 15:4, 35; 17:9-11; 18:4; 21:9; 22:17). Their participation in the religious practices initiated by Jeroboam I of Israel (10:28-31; 17:21-22) and their worship at the pagan shrines (12:3; 14:4; 15:4, 35; 18:4) were particularly troublesome.

But God's OT people are sometimes portrayed positively. The people of Judah rejoiced over the removal of Athaliah and the installation of Joash as king (11:12, 18-20). At times, the people were instrumental in the succession of kings (14:21; 23:30) or were responsive to godly leadership (11:17; 18:36; 23:1-3, 21-23).

Yet despite God's repeated warnings through his prophets (17:13), the people of both kingdoms became set in their apostasy (17:14-19, 22). So God's righteous wrath burned against them and their leaders, and he brought his threatened judgment upon them (17:22-23; 21:10-15; 22:17; 23:26-27; 24:20; 25:21). God thus acted in accordance with the stipulations in his covenant with them (cp. Lev 26:27-39), even though in love he longed to restore his people (cp. Hos 11:1-11).

Yet God never gave up caring for his people. He rescued them from Sennacherib (18:23-19:37) and promised that a remnant would again thrive in the land (19:30-34). Even the good treatment Jehoiachin received in Babylon (25:27-30) no doubt renewed hope among the repentant of God's people. God promised one day to restore his people from exile and give them fellowship with him in the land once again, ruling over them through his chosen king, the descendant of David (Jer 23:3-6; see also Isa 11:1-16; Rom 11:5-36).

17:16-17 all the commands of the LORD: The narrator lists specific examples of Israel's disobedience: the two calves made from metal erected at Dan and Bethel (1 Kgs 12:28-30), the Canaanite fertility symbol known as an Asherah pole (13:6; 17:10; 1 Kgs 14:23; 16:33; Mic 5:14), the persistent worship of Baal (1 Kgs 16:31-33; Hos 2:13; 13:1), and the detestable Molech rites (16:3; Ps 106:37).

17:17 sacrificed their own sons and daughters in the fire: Or made their sons and daughters pass through the fire.

17:18-20 the LORD was very angry: God's wrath is his righteous response to evil that demands his justice • even the people of Judah refused to obey the commands of the LORD: This remark foreshadows the eventual fall of the southern kingdom as well (25:1-21).

17:21-23 All of Israel's evil and disobedience were connected to the sins of Jeroboam I (1 Kgs 12:26-33).

17:21 the LORD: Literally he; cp. 1 Kgs 11:31-32.

17:24-41 The writer appends information concerning later events in Israel, including the repopulation of the land with foreigners and the syncretistic worship that developed among the mixed population.

17:24 Not only were the Israelites exiled to other places held by the Assyrians (17:6), but groups of people were sent to settle in Israel. By mixing and Sepharvaim and resettled them in the towns of Samaria, replacing the people of Israel. They took possession of Samaria and lived in its towns. ²⁵But since these foreign settlers did not worship the LORD when they first arrived, the LORD sent lions among them, which killed some of them.

²⁶So a message was sent to the king of Assyria: "The people you have sent to live in the towns of Samaria do not know the religious customs of the God of the land. He has sent lions among them to destroy them because they have not worshiped him correctly."

³²These new residents worshiped the LORD, but they also appointed from among themselves all sorts of people as priests to offer sacrifices at their places of worship. ³³And though they worshiped the LORD, they continued to follow their own gods according to the religious customs of the nations from which they came. ³⁴And this is still going on today. They continue to follow their former practices instead of truly worshiping the LORD and obeying the decrees, regulations, instructions, and commands he gave the descendants of Jacob, whose name he changed to Israel.

³⁵For the LORD had made a covenant with the descendants of Jacob and commanded them: "Do not worship any other gods or bow before them or serve them or offer sacrifices to them. ³⁶But worship only the LORD, who brought you out of Egypt with great strength and a powerful arm. Bow down to him alone, and offer sacrifices only to him. ³⁷Be careful at all times to obey the decrees, regulations, instructions, and commands that he wrote for you. You must not worship other gods. ³⁸Do not forget the covenant I made with you, and do not worship other gods. ³⁹You must worship only the LORD your God. He is the one who will rescue you from all your enemies."

⁴⁰But the people would not listen and continued to follow their former practices. ⁴¹So while these new residents worshiped the LORD, they also worshiped their idols. And to this day their descendants do the same.

diverse peoples, the Assyrians hoped to have better control of the resulting population and transfer their loyalties to Assyria. • Samaria became the official name of the new Assyrian province.

17:26-31 The king of Assyria was Sargon II (721-705 BC). • the God of the land . . . has sent lions: Religious belief in the ancient Near East held that the tranquility and success of a land was strongly identified with its god and the rites associated with his worship. • One of the priests . . . returned to Bethel, though his instruction in how to worship the LORD was doubtless influenced by the religion of Jeroboam I and mixed with paganism. • The foreigners also continued to worship their own gods. They simply added the worship of Israel's God to the worship of their own gods. Most of the false gods mentioned here are unknown. Their names may have been altered by Jewish scribes. • Nergal was the Mesopotamian god of the underworld. Nibhaz and Tartak were probably Elamite deities.

17:32-34 worshiped the LORD, but . . . continued to follow their own gods: Hebrew faith, already blended with the religion of Jeroboam I, was now mixed with many different foreign religious customs. Genuine worship of the LORD virtually disappeared. Only a handful of faithful Israelites remained to respond to Hezekiah's later invitation to come to Judah for the Passover celebration (2 Chr 30:10-19).

17:35-39 According to Israel's covenant with the LORD (Exod 20:5; Deut 6:4-15), Israel was to worship only the LORD. He alone could provide true redemption and rescue them from all . . . enemies.

17:40-41 worshiped the LORD . . . worshiped their idols: The reconstituted Samaritan religion was thoroughly syncretistic (an eclectic combination of religions), perhaps explaining why Samaritans were later regarded with suspicion and disdain (see Neh 4:1-2; 10:28-31; John 4:7-9).

18:1-12 The accession statement concerning Hezekiah's reign (18:1-2) is accompanied by a lengthy evaluation of Hezekiah's spiritual commitment (18:3-7a), followed by background details of the political situation in his time (18:7b-12).

18:1-2 the third year of King Hoshea's reign in Israel: The date given for Hezekiah's accession refers to his co-regency with his father, Ahaz. Since Hoshea began his reign in 732 BC, Hezekiah began to rule in about 728 BC, reigned in Jerusalem twenty-nine years. His mother was Abijah, the daughter of Zechariah.³ He did what was pleasing in the LORD's sight, just as his ancestor David had done.⁴ He removed the pagan shrines, smashed the sacred pillars, and cut down the Asherah poles. He broke up the bronze serpent that Moses had made, because the people of Israel had been offering sacrifices to it. The bronze serpent was called Nehushtan.

⁵Hezekiah trusted in the LORD, the God of Israel. There was no one like him among all the kings of Judah, either before or after his time. ⁶He remained faithful to the LORD in everything, and he carefully obeyed all the commands the LORD had given Moses.⁷ So the LORD was with him, and Hezekiah was successful in everything he did. He revolted against the king of Assyria and refused to pay him tribute.⁸ He also conquered the Philistines as far distant as Gaza and its territory, from their smallest outpost to their largest walled city.

God requires his people to follow his word, and he rewards spiritual obedience and faithfulness with his blessings (Deut 6:1-25; 11:26-28; Ps 115:13; Isa 30:19-26; 1 Pet 3:9).

Many kings of Judah receive good words from the narrator for doing what was pleasing in the Lord's sight. Joash was personally involved in repairing the Temple (12:6-12). Amaziah is praised for punishing his father Joash's assassins in keeping with the law of Moses (14:5-6). His son Uzziah and his grandson Jotham (15:34) followed in Amaziah's footsteps (15:3). Hezekiah's trust in the Lord brought about the removal of pagan shrines and idolatrous objects (18:3-6; see 20:3). Josiah is commended for having a heart like his ancestor David's, for the many reforms that he instituted, and for his unqualified concern for the law of the Lord (22:1-2; 23:25). Throughout the book of Kings, David's heart for God is held up as the model for godly obedience to the Lord (14:3; 16:2; 18:1-4; 22:1-2; 1 Kgs 14:8).

Although those kings remained faithful to God's laws (1 Kgs 15:14), neither Solomon (1 Kgs 11:6) nor the people followed the Lord completely. In the northern kingdom (Israel), the kings after Jeroboam I consistently perpetuated state-sponsored apostate religion (1 Kgs 15:26; 16:2, 19), incorporating the worship of Baal and other pagan deities (1 Kgs 18:18-21; 21:25; see 11:5). Such disobedience and infidelity earned the Lord's condemnation and judgment throughout the history of the divided kingdom. In the northern kingdom, dynasty after dynasty fell, while the people suffered drought (1 Kgs 17:1-7), famine (1 Kgs 17:12; 18:2), and war (1 Kgs 14:30; 15:6-7, 16, 32; 20:1-34; 22:29-36). They learned all too painfully that although spiritual obedience brings God's blessings (Lev 26:3-13; Deut 6:4-11; 28:1-14), disobedience will occasion his severe judgment (Lev 26:14-39; Num 20:12-13; Deut 28:15-68; 1 Sam 13:13-14; 15:13-23).

The Lord Jesus was obedient in all things (Phil 2:8; Heb 5:8; 10:5-7). God blesses those who have humble and repentant hearts, who live in faithfulness to his word (Isa 66:2-4). Those who follow Jesus' example (Phil 2:12-13), like the kings who followed David's example, can anticipate God's fullest blessings (2 Tim 4:7-8; 1 Jn 2:24).

when he was twelve years old. When Ahaz died in 715 BC, Hezekiah began his sole reign at age twenty-five. This marks the start of his reign of twenty-nine years (715–686 BC).

18:2 Abijah: As in parallel text at 2 Chr 29:1; Hebrew reads Abi, a variant spelling of Abijah.

18:3-4 Unlike Ahaz (16:2), Hezekiah compared favorably with David. Hezekiah destroyed false objects of worship, including the pagan shrines . . . sacred pillars, and . . . Asherah poles (see 16:3-10; 17:9-11, 19). • Apparently the bronze serpent used by Moses (Num 21) had become an object of illicit worship.

• Nehushtan sounds like the Hebrew terms that mean "snake," "bronze," and "unclean thing."

18:5-6 Hezekiah trusted in the LORD: He was without peer among all the kings of Judah. Later, Josiah was without equal in upholding the law of Moses (23:25). These two kings were models of piety in times of diminishing spirituality.

18:7-8 Because of Hezekiah's unparalleled spiritual commitment, God blessed him and he was successful in everything he did. Hezekiah began a series of reforms, including the cleansing, repair, and refurbishing of the Temple (2 Chr 29:3-36); observance of the Passover

(2 Chr 30); and the reconstituting of vital worship in Judah (2 Chr 31:1-19). • He revolted against the king of Assyria: In the ancient Near East, rebellion and the withholding of tribute usually took place with the change of government; King Sennacherib of Assyria succeeded Sargon II in 704 BC. Assyria's preoccupation with matters in southern Mesopotamia at this time might have emboldened Hezekiah. Assyria's response was to invade Judah in 701 BC (18:13–19:36). • He also conquered the Philistines, who had been a menace during Ahaz's reign (2 Chr 28:18). 18:9-12 The narrator introduces the fall of Samaria as a reminder that Assyria reign in Israel, King Shalmaneser of Assyria attacked the city of Samaria and began a siege against it. ¹⁰Three years later, during the sixth year of King Hezekiah's reign and the ninth year of King Hoshea's reign in Israel, Samaria fell. ¹¹At that time the king of Assyria exiled the Israelites to Assyria and placed them in colonies in Halah, along the banks of the Habor River in Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes. ¹²For they refused to listen to the LORD their God and obey him. Instead, they violated his covenant—all the laws that Moses the LORD's servant had commanded them to obey.

Assyria Invades Judah

2 Kgs 18:13 // Isa 36:1 // 2 Chr 32:1

¹³In the fourteenth year of King Hezekiah's reign, King Sennacherib of Assyria came to attack the fortified towns of Judah and conquered them. ¹⁴King Hezekiah sent this message to the king of Assyria at Lachish: "I have done wrong. I will pay whatever tribute money you demand if you will only withdraw." The king of Assyria then demanded a settlement of more than eleven tons of silver and one ton of gold. ¹⁵To gather this amount, King Hezekiah used all the silver stored in the Temple of the LORD and in the palace treasury. ¹⁶Hezekiah even stripped the gold from the doors of the LORD's Temple and from the doorposts he had overlaid with gold, and he gave it all to the Assyrian king.

Hezekiah (18:1-20:21)

2 Chr 28:27-32:33
Isa 36:1-39:8

Hezekiah, king of Judah from 728-686 BC, was one of Judah's best kings. Hezekiah's father Ahaz betrayed the Lord, but Hezekiah promoted true worship of God. Reversing the damage done by Ahaz, he repaired the Temple doors, had the Levites sanctify themselves, and reinstated religious ceremonies. He brought sacrifices, restored the priestly Temple service (2 Chr 29), and invited people throughout Judah and Israel to Passover in Jerusalem. After the celebration, he faithfully destroyed pagan worship sites.

Soon after Hezekiah started ruling, the Assyrians under Shalmaneser V and his successor Sargon II defeated the northern kingdom in 722 BC, deported its inhabitants, and brought in foreign residents. When Sargon II died in 705 BC, his son Sennacherib came to power, triggering widespread rebellion. Hezekiah stopped paying the tribute that his father Ahaz had paid (18:7; see 16:7). As a result, in 701 BC Sennacherib invaded Judah. Hezekiah tried to appease the Assyrian by sending a vast tribute payment, but the attempted return to servitude failed and the Assyrian forces threatened Jerusalem and mocked Hezekiah's reliance on the Lord (18:17-35). Hezekiah responded with grieving and supplication. The Lord, speaking through Isaiah the prophet, assured Hezekiah that Sennacherib would not conquer Jerusalem because of Hezekiah's prayers (19:1-34).

Sometime before 701 BC, Hezekiah became seriously ill (20:1-11). Isaiah told him to prepare for death, but Hezekiah turned to the Lord and prayed for healing. The Lord promised him fifteen more years and deliverance from the Assyrians. When he had recovered, Hezekiah unwisely hosted the rebel Babylonian king Merodach-baladan in his palace, showing him the Temple treasures and seeking support from Babylon rather than the Lord. Isaiah predicted that those treasures would be carried off to Babylon (20:12-19).

After the Assyrian threat in 701 BC, Hezekiah's remaining years were peaceful and prosperous; he died in 686 BC and was succeeded by his son Manasseh.

was the prevailing power of the era and that Samaria fell because of Hoshea's apostasy, thus setting the stage for the account of Hezekiah's demonstration of spiritual fiber and God's dealing with him (18:19-19:19).

18:13 The fourteenth year of Hezekiah's reign was 701 BC. • The annals of King Sennacherib of Assyria describe this invasion during his third military campaign. He advanced swiftly down the Mediterranean coast through the Phoenician cities and into Philistine territory, then turned inland.

18:14 Lachish lay southwest of Jerusalem, not far from the Philistine border.

• I have done wrong (literally I have sinned). Hezekiah's message to Sennacherib was in well-chosen diplomatic language. • Sennacherib claimed that in addition to the eleven tons of silver and one ton of gold (Hebrew 300 talents [10 metric tons] of silver and 30 talents [1 metric ton] of gold), he received from Hezekiah many jewels and rich treasures as well as Hezekiah's own daughter, the women of his harem, and his male and female singers.

18:15-16 Hezekiah paid a heavy price for refusing to pay tribute money to the king of Assyria. Now, to satisfy Sennacherib's demands he emptied the silver and gold from the Temple and the palace treasury (cp. 2 Chr 16:1-9).

18:17 sent . . . a huge army: In spite of Hezekiah's lavish payment, and his chief of staff from Lachish with a huge army to confront King Hezekiah in Jerusalem. The Assyrians took up a position beside the aqueduct that feeds water into the upper pool, near the road leading to the field where cloth is washed. ¹⁸They summoned King Hezekiah, but the king sent these officials to meet with them: Eliakim son of Hilkiah, the palace administrator; Shebna the court secretary; and Joah son of Asaph, the royal historian.

¹⁹Then the Assyrian king's chief of staff told them to give this message to Hezekiah:

"This is what the great king of Assyria says: What are you trusting in that makes you so confident? ²⁰Do you think that mere words can substitute for military skill and strength? Who are you counting on, that you have rebelled against me? ²¹On Egypt? If you lean on Egypt, it will be like a reed that splinters beneath your weight and pierces your hand. Pharaoh, the king of Egypt, is completely unreliable!

²²"But perhaps you will say to me, 'We are trusting in the LORD our God!' But isn't he the one who was insulted by Hezekiah? Didn't Hezekiah tear down his shrines and altars and make everyone in Judah and Jerusalem worship only at the altar here in Jerusalem?

²⁴With your tiny army, how can you think of challenging even the weakest contingent of my master's troops, even with the help of Egypt's chariots and charioteers? ²⁵What's more, do you think we have invaded your land without the LORD's direction? The LORD himself told us, 'Attack this land and destroy it!' "

²⁶Then Eliakim son of Hilkiah, Shebna, and Joah said to the Assyrian chief of staff, "Please speak to us in Aramaic, for we understand it well. Don't speak in Hebrew, for the people on the wall will hear."

²⁷But Sennacherib's chief of staff replied, "Do you think my master sent this message only to you and your master? He wants all the people to hear it, for when we put this city under siege, they will suffer along with you. They will be so hungry and thirsty that they will eat their own dung and drink their own urine."

▲ Kingdom of Judah, 716–684 BC (18:13–21:16). HEZEKIAH's sole reign began in 715 BC, and his sole reign is used to count his official regnal years (see 18:13). The years of his co-regency, however, are used to date the siege and destruction of Samaria (18:1, 9–10). • SENNACHERIB's attack of Jerusalem in 701 BC is also mentioned in Assyrian records. • MANASSEH's fifty-five-year reign is counted from his accession as co-regent (21:1).

Sennacherib had no intention of being sidetracked from invading Jerusalem. • his chief of staff: Or the rabshakeh; also in 18:19, 26, 27, 28, 37. • beside the aqueduct: The meeting place of the two delegations is believed to be a location on Jerusalem's northwestern wall; this spot had also served as the meeting place between Isaiah and Ahaz (Isa 7:3–16). • washed: Or bleached.

18:19–22 In earlier days, the term great king was reserved for the kings of the leading military powers, but it had become a standard epithet for Assyrian kings. • What are you trusting in? The Assyrian officer asserted that the citizens of Jerusalem, faced with Assyria's overwhelming military superiority, would be foolish to trust in Hezekiah's words. Similarly, soliciting help from Egypt would be foolish. Finally, the chief of staff argued that trust in the LORD would also be misplaced. Perhaps the officer hoped to gain the loyalty of citizens who had worshiped at the shrines and altars that Hezekiah had destroyed.

18:23–24 The officer next turned to taunting, suggesting that Jerusalem would be unable to field sufficient manpower and strength to withstand even the weakest contingent of Assyrian troops.

18:25 The chief of staff concluded his argument by claiming that Jerusa-lem's situation was hopeless because the Assyrians had come at the LORD's direction to destroy Judah. To oppose the great king was to oppose God himself!

18:26 Hezekiah's representatives wanted the Assyrian delegation to speak . . . in Aramaic, the language of diplomacy, so that the people who were listening would not understand and be discouraged or frightened. • in Hebrew: Literally in the dialect of Judah; also in 18:28.

18:27 my master . . . wants all the people to hear: The Assyrians used the native tongue of a besieged city as part of their psychological warfare.

²⁸Then the chief of staff stood and shouted in Hebrew to the people on the wall, "Listen to this message from the great king of Assyria! ²⁹This is what the king says: Don't let Hezekiah deceive you. He will never be able to rescue you from my power. ³⁰Don't let him fool you into trusting in the LORD by saying, 'The LORD will surely rescue us. This city will never fall into the hands of the Assyrian king!'

³¹"Don't listen to Hezekiah! These are the terms the king of Assyria is offering: Make peace with me—open the gates and come out. Then each of you can continue eating from your own grapevine and fig tree and drinking from your own well. ³²Then I will arrange to take you to another land like this one—a land of grain and new wine, bread and vineyards, olive groves and honey. Choose life instead of death!

"Don't listen to Hezekiah when he tries to mislead you by saying, 'The LORD will rescue us!' ³³Have the gods of any other nations ever saved their people from the king of Assyria? ³⁴What happened to the gods of Hamath and Arpad? And what about the gods of Sepharvaim, Hena, and Ivvah? Did any god rescue Samaria from my power? ³⁵What god of any nation has ever been able to save its people from my power? So what makes you think that the LORD can rescue Jerusalem from me?"

³⁶But the people were silent and did not utter a word because Hezekiah had commanded them, "Do not answer him."

³⁷Then Eliakim son of Hilkiah, the palace administrator; Shebna the court secretary; and Joah son of Asaph, the royal historian, went back to Hezekiah. They tore their clothes in despair, and they went in to see the king and told him what the Assyrian chief of staff had said.

Hezekiah Seeks the Lord's Help
2 Kgs 19:1-19 // Isa 37:1-20

19 When King Hezekiah heard their report, he tore his clothes and put on burlap and went into the Temple of the LORD. ²And he sent Eliakim the palace administrator, Shebna the court secretary, and the leading priests, all dressed in burlap, to the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz. ³They told him, "This is what King Hezekiah says: Today is a day of trouble, insults, and disgrace. It is like when a child is ready to be born, but the mother has no strength to deliver the baby. ⁴But perhaps the LORD your God has heard the Assyrian chief of staff, sent by the king to defy the living God, and will punish him for his words. Oh, pray for those of us who are left!"

⁵After King Hezekiah's officials delivered the king's message to Isaiah, ⁶the prophet replied, "Say to your master, 'This is what the LORD says: Do not be disturbed by this blasphemous speech against me from the Assyrian king's messengers. ⁷Listen! I myself will move against him, and the king will receive a message that he is needed at home. So he will return to his land, where I will have him killed with a sword.' "

⁸Meanwhile, the Assyrian chief of staff left Jerusalem and went to consult the king of Assyria, who had left Lachish and was attacking Libnah.

⁹Soon afterward King Sennacherib received word that King Tirhakah of Ethiopia was leading an army to fight against him. Before leaving to meet the attack, he sent messengers back to Hezekiah in Jerusalem with this message:

18:28-30 The chief of staff ignored the request of Hezekiah's delegation and shouted in Hebrew, hoping to arouse fear among the people of Jerusalem.

18:31-32a The Assyrian chief of staff then detailed the generous terms Sennacherib was offering for their surrender. Why die? Choose life!

18:32b-35 The LORD will rescue us: The chief of staff continued his psychological taunting by asserting that the Lord was just like the gods of the other nations and could not save Judah. • Arpad was a city-state located northwest of Aleppo. Like Hamath, it was a hub of Aramean activity and is mentioned on other occasions in the OT (see Isa 10:9; Jer 49:23).

18:37 tore their clothes in despair: This action could have been both a sign of sorrow over the situation in Jerusalem (see 6:30) and an indication of grief over the blasphemous insults of the Assyrian official (see 19:4-6).

19:1 Hezekiah showed his grief in the same way his representatives had (see Joel 1:13). He wisely went to the Temple, where he laid bare his soul before God in heartfelt worship and supplication (see Ps 5:7; 48:9-10; 63:1-3).

19:2-3 Leaders often consulted prophets like Isaiah in emergencies (3:11-12) or before going into battle (1 Kgs 22:8-10); Isaiah was active throughout Hezekiah's reign (20:1, 14). • The term a day of trouble describes the heart-wrenching distress the king was experiencing because of the blasphemous insults and disgrace that God and his people were being forced to endure. Hezekiah realized that he and the people were powerless without God's intervention.

19:4 Hezekiah was not denying his own relationship to the Lord by referring to him as your God; rather, he was acknowledging God's special call upon Isaiah. • the Assyrian chief of staff: Or the rabshakeh; also in 19:8.

19:7 I myself will move against him: Literally I will put a spirit in him.

19:8 Sennacherib had dispatched his officers and forces to Jerusalem while he was attacking Lachish (18:14, 17). He had now moved eight miles to the northeast, to Libnah.

19:9 King Tirhakah of Ethiopia (Hebrew of Cush) would later become pharaoh over Egypt. At this time he was a commander in his brother Shebitku's army.

¹⁰"This message is for King Hezekiah of Judah. Don't let your God, in whom you trust, deceive you with promises that Jerusalem will not be captured by the king of Assyria. ¹¹You know perfectly well what the kings of Assyria have done wherever they have gone. They have completely destroyed everyone who stood in their way! Why should you be any different? ¹²Have the gods of other nations rescued them—such nations as Gozan, Haran, Rezeph, and the people of Eden who were in Tel-assar? My predecessors destroyed them all! ¹³What happened to the king of Hamath and the king of Arpad? What happened to the kings of Sepharvaim, Hena, and Ivvah?"

¹⁴After Hezekiah received the letter from the messengers and read it, he went up to the LORD's Temple and spread it out before the LORD. ¹⁵And Hezekiah prayed this prayer before the LORD: "O LORD, God of Israel, you are enthroned between the mighty cherubim! You alone are God of all the kingdoms of the earth. You alone created the heavens and the earth. ¹⁶Bend down, O LORD, and listen! Open your eyes, O LORD, and see! Listen to Sennacherib's words of defiance against the living God.

¹⁷"It is true, LORD, that the kings of Assyria have destroyed all these nations. ¹⁸And they have thrown the gods of these nations into the fire and burned them. But of course the Assyrians could destroy them! They were not gods at all—only idols of wood and stone shaped by human hands. ¹⁹Now, O LORD our God, rescue us from his power; then all the kingdoms of the earth will know that you alone, O LORD, are God."

Isaiah Predicts Judah's Deliverance

2 Kgs 19:20-34 // Isa 37:21-35

²⁰Then Isaiah son of Amoz sent this message to Hezekiah: "This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: I have heard your prayer about King Sennacherib of Assyria. ²¹And the LORD has spoken this word against him:

"The virgin daughter of Zion despises you and laughs at you. The daughter of Jerusalem shakes her head in derision as you flee.

²²"Whom have you been defying and ridiculing? Against whom did you raise your voice? At whom did you look with such haughty eyes?

It was the Holy One of Israel!

²³By your messengers you have defied the Lord.

You have said, 'With my many chariots I have conquered the highest mountains—yes, the remotest peaks of Lebanon. I have cut down its tallest cedars and its finest cypress trees. I have reached its farthest corners and explored its deepest forests.

Jerusalem, 705–621 BC (18:17–25:21). Hezekiah knew that refusing to pay Assyria annual tribute (18:7, about 705 BC) would probably result in a siege of Jerusalem, so he prepared by building a pool and a tunnel (HEZEKIAH'S TUNNEL) to bring water into the city from outside the city walls (20:20; 2 Chr 32:30). • Josiah's religious reforms (23:4-14, 621 BC) included removing all pagan items from sense and surrender rather than trust Hezekiah and his deceptive piety.

19:14-19 Hezekiah received Sennacherib's blasphemous letter and immediately took it to the LORD's Temple. His prayer to God was a lament of praise (19:15) and petition (19:16-19).

19:16-19 Sennacherib's successes were irrelevant because—unlike the gods of these nations, who were not gods at all—Yahweh was the living God.

19:21-28 The phrase virgin daughter is often used regarding civic identity (Isa 23:12; 37:22; 47:1; Jer 18:13). Here, the metaphor implies that as a young maiden is rescued from her attacker, so God will rescue Jerusalem. The Lord's answer was delivered as a "taunt song," a common literary form in the ancient Near East that rejoiced over an enemy's humiliation (cp. Isa 14:3-20).

19:23-24 highest mountains . . . of Lebanon: In his annals, Sennacherib told of scaling high mountain passes and felling Lebanon's great trees. Sennacherib felt invincible, but he was a mere man, no match for the omniscient Lord of the universe (1 Chr 28:9).

the TEMPLE in Jerusalem and burning them in the KIDRON VALLEY. He also defiled the altar of Topheth in the HINNOM VALLEY and all of Solomon's pagan altars east of Jerusalem and south of the MOUNT OF CORRUPTION.

19:10-13 Sennacherib's second message reminded the people of Jerusalem of the Assyrians' ruthless victories; it was common knowledge that the kings of Assyria had plundered, tortured, mutilated (see 19:28), and completely destroyed everyone who stood in their way. No nation, king, or god had been able to resist them. In the face of this threat, the people would be wiser to trust their common

I decided this long ago.
Long ago I planned it, and now I am making it happen.
I planned for you to crush fortified cities into heaps of rubble.

²⁶ That is why their people have so little power and are so frightened and confused.
They are as weak as grass, as easily trampled as tender green

They are like grass sprouting on a and your arrogance, which I have ²⁹ Then Isaiah said to Hezekiah, "Here is the proof that what I say is true:

But in the third year you will plant crops you will tend vineyards and eat their 19:25-26 I am making it happen: All of Sennacherib's great accomplishments were what God had planned for him.

19:27-28 I know you well: See Ps 44:21; 94:11. • hook . . . bit: The Assyrian annals mention similar mistreatment of prisoners; the Lord would do to Sennacherib what he and his predecessors had done to those they subjugated.

19:29-30 Here is the proof: The Lord's message of encouragement included a sign that Jerusalem would be rescued from the siege. The sign was God's provision of food. Because the land had suffered devastation by the Assyrians, the people would need to depend on random crop growth for their survival. The food supply would also remain scarce as the next year came. But by the third year, there would be a return to regular planting and harvesting.

19:31 The theme of the remnant occurs frequently in the OT. God's preservation of his people often serves as a promise of his care for them in the distant future (see Isa 4:2-6; 9:1-7; Zeph 3:8-20; cp. Rev 7:1-12). God's people can be assured of their survival, for the commitment of the LORD . . . will make this happen. • the LORD of Heaven's armies: As in Greek and Syriac versions, Latin Vulgate, and an alternate reading of the Masoretic Text [see also Isa 37:32]; the other alternate reads the LORD.

19:32-34 Sennacherib's armies did not enter Jerusalem but returned home. In Sennacherib's own account, he gave details of capturing and despoiling forty-six cities of Judah. He made no mention of the capture of Jerusalem but recorded only that he shut up Hezekiah "in Jerusalem . . . like a bird in a cage." • For my own honor—in light of Sennacherib's blasphemies and arrogance against God (18:25, 28-30; 19:10-13, 21, 27-28)—and for the sake of my servant David, to whom God had made his covenant promise (2 Sam 7:8-16) and whose faith Hezekiah had emulated (18:3), the LORD would defend this city (see 20:6). The Lord decisively demonstrated that he alone is God and that he is faithful to his people who trust in him.

19:35 The angel of the LORD had similarly been active in the rescue of God's people from Egypt (Exod 12:12-13, 23). • the surviving Assyrians: Literally they.

19:36 Sennacherib . . . went home . . . and stayed there: Although this Assyrian king went on five more military campaigns, he did not return to attack Judah.

returned to his own land. He went home to his capital of Nineveh and stayed there.

Hezekiah's Sickness and Recovery

2 Kgs 20:1-11 // Isa 38:1-8, 21-22 // 2 Chr 32:24

20 About that time Hezekiah became deathly ill, and the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz went to visit him. He gave the king this message: "This is what the LORD says: Set your affairs in order, for you are going to die. You will not recover from this illness."

²When Hezekiah heard this, he turned his face to the wall and ^cprayed to the LORD, ³⁴Remember, O LORD, how I have always been faithful to you and have served you single-mindedly, always doing what pleases you." Then he broke down and wept bitterly.

⁴But before Isaiah had left the middle courtyard, this message came to him from the LORD: ⁵"Go back to Hezekiah, the leader of my people. Tell him, 'This is what the LORD, the God of your ancestor David, says: I have heard your prayer and seen your tears. I will heal you, and three days from now you will get out of bed and go to the Temple of the LORD. ⁶I will add fifteen years to your life, and I will rescue you and this city from the king of Assyria. Accounts of God's sovereign power and control permeate the book of Kings. He installed and deposed the kings of Israel and Judah according to his purposes and according to the degree of their obedience.

God displayed his sovereign disposition over the affairs of nations. He permitted successful attacks against his people as punishment for their sins (8:18-22). God was in control when the Assyrians attacked Samaria and brought down the northern kingdom (17:1-6, 18, 20). Hezekiah's successes in Judah are due to the Lord's blessings (18:5-7). God's sovereign hand can be seen in all of the complex international events that happened, just as the Lord had promised, during the reigns of the final kings of Judah (23:26-27).

God also demonstrated his power in his answers to the prayers and petitions of his people. When Elisha prayed, God responded to his faithful prophet's requests. Through Elisha he allowed the woman from Shunem to have a son and later brought him back to life (4:17, 32-35). The Lord graciously answered the prayers of Jehohaz and provided a deliverer for beleaguered Israel (13:4-5). He honored Hezekiah's prayer for Jerusalem (19:1-7) and for his own life (20:1-6).

God's sovereign hand is in everything. God is in control of the lives of all people (Ps 135:5-12), the universe, and the course of earth's history (Isa 40:15-17; Acts 17:24; Col 1:15-20), directing it to his appointed ends (Isa 46:10; Dan 7:27-28; Matt 24:14-31; Rev 1:7-8). God's people should pray like God's Son: "I want your will to be done, not mine" (Matt 26:39). God's people are challenged to live in harmony with God's will (Rom 12:1-2) and in the strength that he provides (1 Cor 1:8-9). When we live for God's glory (Isa 42:8; Hab 2:14; Jude 1:24-25), whatever happens is also for our good (Ps 84:11; Eph 3:16-19; Col. 1:27; 2 Thes 1:11-12).

19:37 his sons: As in Greek version and an alternate reading of the Masoretic Text (see also Isa 37:38); the other alternate reading lacks his sons. • killed him: Although Sennacherib's assassination took place twenty years later in 681 BC, the narrator includes it here to conclude his discussion of the Assyrian king and to point out the irony in his death. He had boasted that no gods were able to rescue the peoples he attacked, yet his god failed to defend him against assassins from his own family! • At Sennacherib's death, his son Esarhaddon succeeded him and reigned until 669 BC.

20:1-19 About that time: This general time reference indicates that the order of events is thematic rather than chronological. The episode concerning Merodach-baladan (20:12-19), whom Sennacherib had driven from Babylon before 701 BC, happened earlier than the events of chs 18-19 but after Hezekiah's illness (20:12).

20:1 Since Isaiah was already active in Hezekiah's reign before Sennacherib moved to take Jerusalem, he was readily available to the king during that emergency (19:2). • Set your affairs in order: Hezekiah's illness was terminal.

20:2-3 Unlike Ahab, who went to bed in a royal pout (1 Kgs 21:4), Hezekiah . . . turned his face to the wall and prayed.

20:4 the middle courtyard: As in Greek version and an alternate reading in the Masoretic Text; the other alternate reads the middle of the city.

20:5 Hezekiah's commitment to the Lord compared favorably with that of his ancestor David (18:3). Just as God had heard David's prayers (Ps 6:8-9; 28:6-7; 31:22; 40:1-2), he would answer Hezekiah's plea.

20:6 When God added more years to Hezekiah's life, he also promised to defend Jerusalem. When Hezekiah reacted to Sennacherib's later invasion (19:14-19) by seeking counsel from Isaiah (19:2), he was following an established precedent.

for my own honor and for the sake of my servant David.”

⁷Then Isaiah said, “Make an ointment from figs.” So Hezekiah’s servants spread the ointment over the boil, and Hezekiah recovered!

⁸Meanwhile, Hezekiah had said to Isaiah, “What sign will the LORD give to prove that he will heal me and that I will go to the Temple of the LORD three days from now?”

⁹Isaiah replied, “This is the sign from the LORD to prove that he will do as he promised. Would you like the shadow on the sundial to go forward ten steps or backward ten steps?”

¹⁰“The shadow always moves forward,” Hezekiah replied, “so that would be easy. Make it go ten steps backward instead.”

¹¹So Isaiah the prophet asked the LORD to do this, and he caused the shadow to move ten steps backward on the sundial of Ahaz!

Envoys from Babylon

2 Kgs 20:12-19 // Isa 39:1-8

¹²Soon after this, Merodach-baladan son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent Hezekiah his best wishes and a gift, for he had heard that Hezekiah had been very sick. ¹³Hezekiah received the Babylonian envoys and showed them everything in his treasure-houses—the silver, the gold, the spices, and the aromatic oils. He also took them to see his armory and showed them everything in his royal treasuries! There was nothing in his palace or kingdom that Hezekiah did not show them.

¹⁴Then Isaiah the prophet went to King Hezekiah and asked him, “What did those men want? Where were they from?”

Hezekiah replied, “They came from the distant land of Babylon.”

¹⁵“What did they see in your palace?” Isaiah asked.

“They saw everything,” Hezekiah replied. “I showed them everything I own—all my royal treasuries.”

¹⁶Then Isaiah said to Hezekiah, “Listen to this message from the LORD: ¹⁷The time is coming when everything in your palace—all the treasures stored up by your ancestors until now—will be carried off to Babylon. Nothing will be left, says the LORD. ¹⁸Some of your very own sons will be taken away into exile. They will become eunuchs who will serve in the palace of Babylon’s king.”

¹⁹Then Hezekiah said to Isaiah, “This message you have given me from the LORD is good.” For the king was thinking, “At least there will be peace and security during my lifetime.”

• for my own honor and for . . . David: God reminded Hezekiah of this promise during Sennacherib’s invasion (19:34).

20:8 Hezekiah’s request for a sign as proof of his healing is understandable. He had quickly moved from having an incurable illness to being promised fifteen more years of life. God sometimes provided signs as visible symbols of his intentions (see also 19:29; Gen 9:12-17; Exod 4:1-9; 12:12-13; 31:12-13, 17; 1 Kgs 13:1-3).

20:9 Would you like the shadow on the sundial to go forward ten steps or backward ten steps? Or The shadow on the sundial has gone forward ten steps; do you want it to go backward ten steps?

20:10 ten steps backward: Such a retreat of the shadow was contrary to nature, and the miracle confirmed God’s message to Hezekiah.

20:11 the sundial: Literally the steps.

20:12-13 Merodach-baladan (Hebrew Berodach-baladan; see Isa 39:1), a perennial enemy of Assyria, reigned in Babylon from 721 to 710 bc, when Sargon forced him to flee. He ruled again briefly in 703 bc. This visit was probably during his exile; he probably sent envoys bearing his best wishes and a gift because he needed an ally against Assyria. • There was nothing . . . that Hezekiah did not show them: Hezekiah showed the Babylonian envoys his vast treasures, which had not yet been sent to Sennacherib (18:13-16). However, his attempt to impress his visitors was misguided (20:16-18).

20:17 everything . . . will be carried off to Babylon: The Lord’s message through Isaiah predicted the taking of the palace . . . treasures in Jerusalem to Babylon, an event that took place in 597–586 bc (24:10-17; 25:1-21).

20:18 Some of your very own sons will be taken: Hezekiah’s son Manasseh was taken as a prisoner to Babylon (2 Chr 33:11-13). This prophecy found ultimate fulfillment in Hezekiah’s descendants during the Babylonian deportations of 605 bc (see 24:1 and note; Dan 1:1-7), 597 bc (24:10-12; 2 Chr 36:10), and 586 bc (25:5-7; 2 Chr 36:20; Jer 39:1-7; 52:4-15).

20:20 For more on the extent of his power, see 18:7-8; 2 Chr 32:27-29.

• In the face of Sennacherib’s threat, Hezekiah constructed a 1,777-foot tunnel (literally watercourse) that brought water from outside the city walls into Jerusalem (2 Chr 32:1-5, 30) to a pool called the Pool of Siloam. An inscription discovered in ad 1880 commemorates this engineering feat.

21:1-2 fifty-five years: Manasseh’s long reign (697–642 bc) certainly cannot be attributed to his faithfulness to the Lord but to the Lord’s continued the LORD's sight, following the detestable practices of the pagan nations that the LORD had driven from the land ahead of the Israelites. ³He rebuilt the pagan shrines his father, Hezekiah, had destroyed. He constructed altars for Baal and set up an Asherah pole, just as King Ahab of Israel had done. He also bowed before all the powers of the heavens and worshiped them.

⁴He built pagan altars in the Temple of the LORD, the place where the LORD had said, "My name will remain in Jerusalem forever." ⁵He built these altars for all the powers of the heavens in both courtyards of the LORD's Temple. ⁶Manasseh also sacrificed his own son in the fire. He practiced sorcery and divination, and he consulted with mediums and ^apsychics. He did much that was evil in the LORD's sight, arousing his anger.

⁷Manasseh even made a carved image of Asherah and set it up in the Temple, the very place where the LORD had told David and his son Solomon: "My name will be honored forever in this Temple and in Jerusalem—the city I have chosen from among all the tribes of Israel. ⁸If the Israelites will be careful to obey my commands—all the laws my servant Moses gave them—I will not send them into exile from this land that I gave their ancestors." ⁹But the people refused to listen, and Manasseh led them to do even more evil than the pagan nations that the LORD had destroyed when the people of Israel entered the land.

¹⁰Then the LORD said through his servants the prophets: ¹¹"King Manasseh of Judah has done many detestable things. He is even more wicked than the Amorites, who lived in this land before Israel. He has caused the people of Judah to sin with his idols. ¹²So this is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: I will bring such disaster on Jerusalem and Judah that the ears of those who hear about it will tingle with horror. ¹³I will judge Jerusalem by the same standard I used for Samaria and the same measure I used for the family of Ahab. I will wipe away the people of Jerusalem as one wipes a dish and turns it upside down. ¹⁴Then I will reject even the remnant of my own people who are left, and I will hand them over as plunder for their enemies. ¹⁵For they have done great evil in my sight and have angered me ever since their ancestors came out of Egypt."

¹⁶Manasseh also murdered many innocent people until Jerusalem was filled from one end to the other with innocent ^ablood. This was in addition to the sin that he caused the people of Judah to commit, leading them to do evil in the LORD's sight.

¹⁷The rest of the events in Manasseh's reign and everything he did, including the sins he committed, are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Judah. ¹⁸When Manasseh died, he was buried in the palace garden, the garden of Uzza. Then his son Amon became the next king.

honoring of his covenant promises (see also 8:19; 19:34; 20:6; 2 Sam 7:11-16). External conditions were largely stable. Though the Assyrian kings Esarhaddon (680–669 BC) and Ashurbanipal (668–626 BC) conducted a number of military campaigns, none was directed against Judah until later in Manasseh's reign, probably around 650–648 BC (see 2 Chr 33:10-13 and notes). Ashurbanipal's attention was on building projects, religious pursuits, and the arts, including a great library. • He did what was evil: Manasseh was the most wicked of Judah's kings; discussion of his reign focuses on his evil religious practices.

21:3-5 Manasseh's spiritual infidelity included rebuilding local pagan shrines that his father had destroyed (18:3). He also promoted wicked religious practices associated with the worship of Baal and set up an Asherah pole (see 18:3; 1 Kgs 16:32) and reintroduced astral worship. God had judged the northern kingdom for these sins (17:16).

21:6 Manasseh's wickedness included participation in the abominable Molech rites and all manner of forbidden cult and occult practices (16:3; see Lev 18:21). • also sacrificed his own son in the fire: Or also made his son pass through the fire. • the LORD's . . . anger: God responded to Manasseh's detestable religious practices with his righteous judgment, just as he had with the northern kingdom (17:18-20).

21:11 The Amorites were the pre-Israelite inhabitants of the land, known for their wickedness. • Manasseh practiced the idolatry of the Amorites as Ahab had done (1 Kgs 21:26). • idols: The Hebrew (literally round things) probably alludes to dung; also in v 21.

21:12 Based on what had happened to the northern kingdom (17:7-23) and to Ahab's family (9:24-26, 30-37; 10:1-8; 1 Kgs 22:37-38), Manasseh should fully expect God to execute justice against him and the people of Judah.

21:13 the same standard . . . the same measure: Literally the same plumb line . . . the same plumb bob.

21:14-15 the remnant: Those not killed in God's impending judgment would be at the mercy of their captors. This prophecy was fulfilled when thousands of Judeans were taken into captivity in the Babylonian invasion during the fall of Jerusalem in 586 BC (25:8-21; 2 Chr 36:20; Jer 39:9; 52:15).

21:16 innocent blood: Beyond his loathsome spiritual sin, Manasseh was guilty of murder. Jewish tradition holds that Isaiah was one of many prophets that Manasseh put to death.

21:17 everything he did: The Chronicler records that Manasseh was captured by an Assyrian king, probably when King Ashurbanipal resided in Babylon (about 650–648 BC). This experience humbled Manasseh and brought repentance. After his release, he attempted spiritual reforms, but they were too late in his reign to be effective (2 Chr 33:11-17).

21:18 The garden of Uzza is otherwise unknown (but see also 21:26). Unlike his father, Hezekiah, who had been buried with honor, Manasseh was not buried in the royal tombs (2 Chr 32:33).

Amon's Reign in Judah (21:19-26)

2 Kgs 21:19-24 // 2 Chr 33:21-25

¹⁹Amon was twenty-two years old when he became king, and he reigned in Jerusalem two years. His mother was Meshullemeth, the daughter of Haruz from Jotbah. ²⁰He did what was evil in the LORD's sight, just as his father, Manasseh, had done. ²¹He followed the example of his father, worshiping the same idols his father had worshiped. ²²He abandoned the LORD, the God of his ancestors, and he refused to follow the LORD's ways.

²³Then Amon's own officials conspired against him and assassinated him in his palace. ²⁴But the people of the land killed all those who had conspired against King Amon, and they made his son Josiah the next king.

²⁵The rest of the events in Amon's reign and what he did are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Judah. ²⁶He was buried in his tomb in the garden of Uzza. Then his son Josiah became the next king.

Josiah's Reign in Judah (22:1-23:30)Josiah Repairs the Temple

2 Kgs 22:1-7 // 2 Chr 34:1-2, 8-11

22 Josiah was eight years old when he became king, and he reigned in Jerusalem thirty-one years. His mother was Jedidah, the daughter of Adaiah from Bozkath. ²He did what was pleasing in the LORD's sight and followed the example of his ancestor David. He did not turn away from doing what was right.

Josiah, the sixteenth king of Judah (640-609 BC), was a godly man, unlike his grandfather Manasseh and his father Amon. Josiah "turned to the LORD with all his heart and soul and strength, obeying all the laws of Moses" (23:25).

The kingdom of Judah was grossly idolatrous and wicked during Manasseh's reign (697-642 BC). Despite Manasseh's own repentance toward the end of his reign, conditions continued to worsen under his son Amon (642-640 BC), who was so bad that his own officials assassinated him, and the eight-year-old Josiah was placed on the throne (21:23-24; 22:1; 2 Chr 33:25-34:1).

When Josiah was sixteen, he began "to seek the God of his ancestor David" (2 Chr 34:3). From this point on, he was dedicated to purifying the worship of the people of God. At twenty, Josiah began eradicating pagan places of worship, especially the despised cult center at Bethel. Josiah fulfilled prophecy (1 Kgs 13:1-3) by destroying its altar and burning the bones of pagan priests to desecrate the site (23:15-18).

When Josiah was twenty-six, he organized repairs to the Temple (22:3). In the process, the priest Hilkiah found the Book of the Law and read it to Josiah, who was devastated by its pronouncements against apostasy (22:8-20) and sought more fully to obey God's instructions and to lead the people in worshiping the Lord. He celebrated Passover as the law demanded, destroyed many artifacts used in Baal and sun worship, and eliminated pagan shrines in Judah (23:4-14). In all this, Josiah was apparently supported by the prophets Zephaniah and Jeremiah, who spoke for God during his time.

Josiah was not sensitive to God's voice on one significant occasion, and it cost him his life (23:29-30; 2 Chr 35:20-25). In 609 BC, Pharaoh Neco marched toward Carchemish to reinforce the Assyrian army against Babylon. Josiah delayed Neco at Megiddo, perhaps wanting to support the Babylonians. Neco insisted that the Lord wanted him to fight Babylon, but Josiah attacked him and was killed in battle. Josiah was greatly mourned by Jeremiah and the people of Judah (2 Chr 35:25).

Though Josiah was faithful, the people were not, and once he died, his sons and successors began to turn away from the Lord. In spite of Jeremiah's increased efforts, the people did not repent. The turbulent years that followed Josiah's death ended with the destruction of Jerusalem and the exile of its citizens to Babylon (605-586 BC).

21:19-22 Amon's brief reign (642-640 BC) simply perpetuated his father's wickedness. Manasseh's repentance and reforms came too late to have any effect on Amon or on the people of Judah. • He abandoned the LORD: Amon became a total apostate (see also 2 Chr 33:23).

21:26 Like his father, Manasseh (21:17), Amon was denied burial in the royal tombs and was interred in the garden of Uzza.

22:1-2 Josiah ascended the throne of Judah in 640 BC. Like Joash (11:21), he was still a boy when he became king. He was faithful to the Lord, comparing favorably with David, like Asa (1 Kgs 15:11) and Hezekiah (18:3). • doing what was right: Josiah's conduct met the high standards of the law (Deut 17:11; 28:14).

22:3-4 By the eighteenth year of his reign (621 BC), Josiah had been devoted to the Lord for ten years (see 2 Chr 34:3-7). • Hilkiah the high priest was from

³In the eighteenth year of his reign, King Josiah sent Shaphan son of Azaliah and grandson of Meshullam, the court secretary, to the Temple of the LORD. He told him, ⁴"Go to Hilkiah the high priest and have him count the money the gatekeepers have collected from the people at the LORD's Temple. ⁵Entrust this money to the men assigned to supervise the restoration of the LORD's Temple. Then they can use it to pay workers to repair the Temple. ⁶They will need to hire carpenters, builders, and masons. Also have them buy the timber and the finished stone needed to repair the Temple. ⁷But don't require the construction supervisors to keep account of the money they receive, for they are honest and trustworthy men."

Hilkiah Discovers the Book of the Law

2 Kgs 22:8-20 // 2 Chr 34:14-28

⁸Hilkiah the high priest said to Shaphan the court secretary, "I have found the Book of the Law in the LORD's Temple!" Then Hilkiah gave the scroll to Shaphan, and he read it.

⁹Shaphan went to the king and reported, "Your officials have turned over the money collected at the Temple of the LORD to the workers and supervisors at the Temple."

¹⁰Shaphan also told the king, "Hilkiah the priest has given me a scroll." So Shaphan read it to the king.

¹¹When the king heard what was written in the Book of the Law, he tore his clothes in despair. ¹²Then he gave these orders to Hilkiah the priest, Ahikam son of Shaphan, Acor son of Micaiah, Shaphan the court secretary, and Asaiah the king's personal adviser: ¹³"Go to the Temple and speak to the LORD for me and for the people and for all Judah. Inquire about the words written in this scroll that has been found. For the LORD's great anger is burning against us because our ancestors have not ¹⁴obeyed the words in this scroll. We have not been doing everything it says we must do."

¹⁴So Hilkiah the priest, Ahikam, Acor, Shaphan, and Asaiah went to the New Quarter of Jerusalem to consult with the prophet Huldah. She was the wife of Shallum son of Tikvah, son of Harhas, the keeper of the Temple wardrobe.

¹⁵She said to them, "The LORD, the God of Israel, has spoken! Go back and tell the man who sent you, ¹⁶This is what the LORD says: I am going to bring disaster on this city and its people. All the words written in the scroll that the king of Judah has read will come true. ¹⁷For my people have ¹⁸abandoned me ¹The Land of Israel during Josiah's Reign, 621–609 BC (23:4-30). In addition to cleansing idolatry from JERUSALEM in 621 BC (23:4-7, 10-14), Josiah tore down all the pagan altars from GEBA to BEERSHEBA, tore down the altar of Jeroboam I at BETHEL, and removed idolatry from many towns of Samaria (23:8, 15-20). • The map shows Josiah's disastrous attempt, at MEGIDDO in 609 BC (23:29-30), to prevent Pharaoh Neco of Egypt from assisting his allies, the Assyrians, at Haran. Josiah had apparently expanded the area of his rule to the Mediterranean, because Judahite pottery and inscriptions from his time have been found at TELL QASILE and MESAD HASHAVYAHU. Josiah's successes might have emboldened him to confront Pharaoh Neco.

22:8-10 The scroll known as the Book of the Law might have contained all or part of Deuteronomy or even the entire Pentateuch (cp. Deut 31:26). How it had become lost or where it was found in the Temple is unknown. Shaphan reported the momentous discovery immediately and read it to the king.

22:11-13 Like Hezekiah before him (19:1), Josiah tore his clothes in genuine grief for his own spiritual condition and that of the people of Judah. • have not obeyed the words in this scroll: The portion that Shaphan read to Josiah apparently reminded him of God's claim upon his people, the need for faithfulness to the covenant, and the penalties for infidelity (see Deut 28). Recognizing that Judah had failed to obey the law, Josiah rightly feared the LORD's great anger.

22:14 the New Quarter: Or the Second Quarter, a newer section of Jerusalem. Hebrew reads the Mishneh. • The prophet Huldah . . . was the wife of Shallum: Some have suggested that this Shallum was related to Jeremiah (Jer 32:7-12). Huldah's family relationships might have allowed her to serve as a sort of court prophet (see also 2 Chr 34:22-28).

22:15-17 The LORD . . . has spoken! Like Miriam (Exod 15:20) and Deborah (Judg 4:4), Huldah had the privilege of proclaiming God's will to the people. Huldah confirmed Josiah's fears that God would bring disaster on Jerusalem because of the people's unfaithfulness and many sins. • this city: Literally this place; also in 22:19, 20.

the line of Zadok (1 Chr 9:10-11). Some scholars suggest that this Hilkiah was Jeremiah's father (Jer 1:1). • Apparently the money was collected in a large chest convenient to the people as they came to the Temple (cp. 12:9).

22:5-7 Josiah's instructions to Shaphan were similar to those given by Joash for restoring the Temple during his reign (12:10-15).

and offered sacrifices to pagan gods, and I am very angry with them for everything they have done. My anger will burn against this place, and it will not be quenched.'

¹⁸"But go to the king of Judah who sent you to seek the LORD and tell him: 'This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says concerning the message you have just heard: ¹⁹You were sorry and humbled yourself before the LORD when you heard what I said against this city and its people—that this land would be cursed and become desolate. You tore your clothing in despair and wept before me in repentance. And I have indeed heard you, says the LORD. ²⁰So I will not send the promised disaster until after you have died and been buried in peace. You will not see the disaster I am going to bring on this city.'"

So they took her message back to the king.

Josiah's Religious Reforms

2 Kgs 23:1-3 // 2 Chr 34:29-32

23 Then the king summoned all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem. ²And the king went up to the Temple of the LORD with all the people of Judah and Jerusalem, along with the priests and the prophets—all the people from the least to the greatest. There the king read to them the entire Book of the Covenant that had been found in the LORD's Temple. ³The king took his place of authority beside the pillar and renewed the ¹covenant in the LORD's presence. He pledged to obey the LORD by keeping all his commands, laws, and decrees with all his heart and soul. In this way, he confirmed all the terms of the ¹covenant that were written in the scroll, and all the people pledged themselves to the ¹covenant.

⁴Then the king instructed Hilkiah the high priest and the priests of the second rank and the Temple gatekeepers to remove from the LORD's Temple all the articles that were used to worship Baal, Asherah, and all the powers of the heavens. The king had all these things burned outside Jerusalem on the terraces of the Kidron Valley, and he carried the ashes away to Bethel. ⁵He did away with the idolatrous priests, who had been appointed by the previous kings of Judah, for they had offered sacrifices at the pagan shrines throughout Judah and even in the vicinity of Jerusalem. They had also offered sacrifices to Baal, and to the sun, the moon, the constellations, and to all the powers of the heavens. ⁶The king removed the Asherah pole from the LORD's Temple and took it outside Jerusalem to the Kidron Valley, where he burned it. Then he ground the ashes of the pole to dust and threw the dust over the graves of the people. ⁷He also tore down the living quarters of the male and female shrine prostitutes that were inside the Temple of the LORD, where the women wove coverings for the Asherah pole.

¹⁰Then the king defiled the altar of Topheth in the valley of Ben-Hinnom, so no

22:18-20 God commended Josiah's sorrow and humility in response to the reading of God's word. Although God's judgment was certain, he would withhold it until after Josiah's death.

23:1-2 In the spirit of the instructions of Deuteronomy (Deut 31:10-13) and like Joshua before him (Josh 8:34-35), Josiah summoned . . . all the people to hear the reading of the entire Book of the Covenant.

23:3 The king . . . renewed the covenant: Covenant renewal was observed at several critical points in the history of God's people (see 11:12, 17; Josh 24:1-27; 1 Kgs 8:1-53).

23:4 remove . . . all the articles: Josiah eliminated from the Temple detestable items associated with pagan worship.

• terraces of the Kidron Valley: This area, near the Valley of Ben-Hinnom where the loathsome Molech rituals of child sacrifice had been carried out, became a place where ashes and dead bodies were taken (Jer 26:23). • Taking the ashes away to Bethel, where Jeroboam had erected one of his cult altars (1 Kgs 12:28-29), would defile the site forever.

23:5-7 Josiah stopped the idolatrous priests from officiating over pagan rituals. He also demolished the living quarters of the cult prostitutes. Manasseh and Amon apparently had allowed the prostitution carried over from Canaanite practices (see 1 Kgs 14:24; 15:12; 22:46) to be practiced within the Temple itself.

23:8-9 The gate of Joshua is otherwise unknown; it might have been used by the city governor, a title known to refer to a city official in Samaria (1 Kgs 22:26; 2 Chr 18:25) and to Maaseiah in Jerusalem (2 Chr 34:8).

one could ever again use it to sacrifice a son or daughter in the fire as an offering to Molech. ¹¹He removed from the entrance of the LORD's Temple the horse statues that the former kings of Judah had dedicated to the sun. They were near the quarters of Nathan-melech the eunuch, an officer of the court. The king also burned the chariots dedicated to the sun.

¹²Josiah tore down the altars that the kings of Judah had built on the palace roof above the upper room of Ahaz. The king destroyed the altars that Manasseh had built in the two courtyards of the LORD's Temple. He smashed them to bits and scattered the pieces in the Kidron Valley. ¹³The king also desecrated the pagan shrines east of Jerusalem, to the south of the Mount of Corruption, where King Solomon of Israel had built shrines for Ashtoreth, the detestable goddess of the Sidonians; and for Chemosh, the detestable god of the Moabites; and for Molech, the vile god of the Ammonites. ¹⁴He smashed the sacred pillars and cut down the Asherah poles. Then he desecrated these places by scattering human bones over them.

¹⁵The king also tore down the altar at Bethel—the pagan shrine that Jeroboam son of Nebat had made when he caused Israel to sin. He burned down the shrine and ground it to dust, and he burned the Asherah pole. ¹⁶Then Josiah turned around and noticed several tombs in the side of the hill. He ordered that the bones be brought out, and he burned them on the altar at Bethel to desecrate it. (This happened just as the LORD had promised through the man of God when Jeroboam stood beside the altar at the festival.)

Then Josiah turned and looked up at the tomb of the man of God who had predicted these things. ¹⁷"What is that monument over there?" Josiah asked.

And the people of the town told him, "It is the tomb of the man of God who came from Judah and predicted the very things that you have just done to the altar at Bethel!"

¹⁸Josiah replied, "Leave it alone. Don't disturb his bones." So they did not burn his ▲ Kingdom of Judah, 643–611 BC (21:17–23:28). After MANASSEH's death, AMON's nasty, brutish, and short reign was followed by the long, just, and good reign of JOSIAH. Many of Judah's prophets served during Josiah's reign, calling the people of Judah back to the Lord and warning them of coming judgment. • The reign of Assyrian king ASHURBANIPAL was followed by a quick decline into chaos under a succession of incompetent rulers. NABOPOLASSAR of Babylon took this opportunity to make Babylonia an independent kingdom. Babylon quickly grew into an empire under Nabopolassar's leadership, and in 612 BC the Babylonian army destroyed Assyria's capital Nineveh, ending the Assyrian empire. This series of events demonstrates how quickly empires can rise and fall.

23:11 The horse was used in sun worship in the ancient Near East. The Assyrian sun-god Shamash and other deities were depicted riding across the sky in horse-drawn chariots. Archaeological evidence suggests that a solar cult existed in Israel as early as the 800s BC. The cult's popularity likely increased during the reigns of Manasseh and Amon, when it was sponsored by the crown (21:3-5, 21-22). Despite Josiah's reforms, shortly after his death Ezekiel denounced the sun worshipers again for performing their rituals within the inner court of the Temple (Ezek 8:16). • the eunuch, an officer of the court: The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. The term translated eunuch can refer not only to those who were physically eunuchs but also to high officials.

23:12 upper room of Ahaz: Roof-top altars were used for astral worship (Jer 19:13; Zeph 1:5) and rituals associated with Baal (Jer 32:29). • He smashed them to bits: Or He quickly removed them.

23:13 Solomon had erected the pagan shrines because of his many foreign wives (1 Kgs 11:5, 7, 33). • Molech: Hebrew Milcom, a variant spelling of Molech.

23:15-17 Jeroboam had built the altar at Bethel to encourage Israelites to worship at centers closer to home rather than going to Jerusalem (1 Kgs 12:26-31). Josiah's desecration of the site followed the stipulations of the law (Deut 7:5; 12:3) and fulfilled the earlier prophecy of the man of God who had denounced the altar (1 Kgs 13:1-3).

23:16 This verse follows the Greek version; Hebrew lacks when Jeroboam stood beside the altar at the festival. Then Josiah turned and looked up at the tomb of the man of God.

bones or those of the old prophet from Samaria.

¹⁹Then Josiah demolished all the buildings at the pagan shrines in the towns of Samaria, just as he had done at Bethel. They had been built by the various kings of Israel and had made the LORD very angry. ²⁰He executed the priests of the pagan shrines on their own altars, and he burned human bones on the altars to desecrate them. Finally, he returned to Jerusalem.

Josiah Celebrates Passover

2 Kgs 23:21-23 // 2 Chr 35:1, 18-19

²¹King Josiah then issued this order to all the people: "You must celebrate the Passover to the LORD your God, as required in this Book of the Covenant." ²²There had not been a Passover celebration like that since the time when the judges ruled in Israel, nor throughout all the years of the kings of Israel and Judah. ²³But in the eighteenth year of King Josiah's reign, this Passover was celebrated to the LORD in Jerusalem.

Josiah's Final Days

2 Kgs 23:28-30 // 2 Chr 35:20-36:1

²⁴Josiah also got rid of the mediums and ^kpsychics, the household gods, the idols, and every other kind of detestable practice, both in Jerusalem and throughout the land of Judah. He did this in obedience to the laws written in the scroll that Hilkiyah the priest had found in the LORD's Temple. ²⁵Never before had there been a king like Josiah, who ^aturned to the LORD with all his heart and soul and strength, obeying all the laws of Moses. And there has never been a king like him since.

²⁶Even so, the LORD was very ^bangry with Judah because of all the wicked things Manasseh had done to provoke him. ²⁷For the LORD said, "I will also banish Judah from my presence just as I have banished Israel. And I will reject my chosen city of Jerusalem and the Temple where my name was to be honored."

²⁸The rest of the events in Josiah's reign and all his deeds are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Judah.

²⁹While Josiah was king, Pharaoh Neco, king of Egypt, went to the Euphrates River to help the king of Assyria. King Josiah and his army marched out to fight him, but King Neco killed him when they met at Megiddo. ³⁰Josiah's officers took his body back in a chariot from Megiddo to Jerusalem and buried him in his own tomb. Then the people of the land anointed Josiah's son Jehoahaz and made him the next king.

23:19-20 pagan shrines . . . of Samaria: Josiah's religious purge extended throughout the former northern kingdom (see also 2 Chr 34:6-7). Josiah's freedom to carry out such reforms testifies to his strength and Assyria's growing weakness (see note on 23:29).

23:19 had made the LORD very angry: As in Greek and Syriac versions and Latin Vulgate; Hebrew lacks the LORD and thus reads had caused great anger.

23:21-23 Hezekiah had observed the Passover with modifications (2 Chr 30:1-4, 13, 23-27). Josiah's Passover was done in accordance with the strict standards of the law (2 Chr 35:1-19). • the eighteenth year was the same year in which the Book of the Law was found (22:3, 8).

23:24-25 idols: The Hebrew term (literally round things) probably alludes to dung. • Josiah's commitment to the law brought reforms throughout Jerusalem and Judah. His attempts to eradicate every other kind of detestable practice and his strict observance of the Passover made Josiah greatest among the kings in obeying all the laws of Moses.

23:26-27 I will also banish Judah: Despite Josiah's strong reforms, Manasseh's wickedness had become so deeply entrenched among the people that not even Josiah could change their apostate hearts, and the penalties for violation of God's covenant would be applied (Deut 28:15-68).

23:28-30 The closing details of Josiah's reign include a historical notice of his death at the hands of Pharaoh Neco (see also 2 Chr 35:20-25).

23:29 In 609 BC, Pharaoh Neco was en route to the Euphrates River to help the king of Assyria in fighting the Babylonians at Haran, when Josiah met him at Megiddo. After the death of Assyrian king Ashurbanipal in 626 BC, Assyrian cities began falling to Nabopolassar (626-605 BC), king of the rising neo-Babylonian power. Nabopolassar captured Nineveh, the capital of Assyria, in 612 BC. The Assyrian forces fled to Haran, where the Babylonians defeated them in 609 BC. Nebuchadnezzar II of Babylon (605-562 BC) later defeated the remaining Assyrians at Carchemish in 605 BC, the same year in which he first invaded Judea (see 24:1 and note). • Josiah and his army marched out to fight him: Or Josiah went out to meet him. • King Neco: Literally he.

23:30 The Chronicler reports on the great honor that Josiah received in death (2 Chr 35:24-25).

23:31-34 Jehoahaz was named Shal-lum at birth (see note on 1 Chr 3:15); his throne name Jehoahaz has been discovered among seals from the 600s BC. He was twenty-three years old, but his brother Jehoiaikim was twenty-five (23:36). There is no indication as to why the younger brother was made king. • The three months of Jehoahaz's reign (in 609 BC) might coincide with the period in which Pharaoh Neco was attempting to aid the Assyrians (23:29).

23:32 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight: The entrenched wickedness and apostasy of the times surfaced even in Josiah's own sons (23:32, 37; 24:9, 19). The Lord's intention to judge Judah (23:26-27) was justified and would soon be fulfilled.

at Riblah in the land of Hamath to prevent him from ruling in Jerusalem. He also demanded that Judah pay 7,500 pounds of silver and 75 pounds of gold as tribute.

³⁴Pharaoh Neco then installed Eliakim, another of Josiah's sons, to reign in place of his father, and he changed Eliakim's name to Jehoiakim. Jehoahaz was taken to Egypt as a prisoner, where he died.

Exile of Jehoiakim

2 Kgs 23:36-37 // 2 Chr 36:5

2 Kgs 24:5-6 // 2 Chr 36:8

³⁵In order to get the silver and gold demanded as tribute by Pharaoh Neco, Jehoiakim collected a tax from the people of Judah, requiring them to pay in proportion to their wealth.

³⁶Jehoiakim was twenty-five years old when he became king, and he reigned in Jerusalem eleven years. His mother was Zebidah, the daughter of Pedaiah from Rumah. ³⁷He did what was evil in the LORD's sight, just as his ancestors had done.

24 During Jehoiakim's reign, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon invaded the land of Judah. Jehoiakim surrendered and paid him tribute for three years but then rebelled. ²Then the LORD sent bands of Babylonian, Aramean, Moabite, and Ammonite raiders against Judah to destroy it, just as the LORD had promised through his prophets. ³These disasters happened to Judah because of the LORD's command. He had decided to banish Judah ▲ Kingdom of Judah, 611–579 BC (23:29–25:26). JOSIAH's reign ended in disaster when Pharaoh Neco II of Egypt killed him at the BATTLE OF MEGIDDO in 609 BC. • The Babylonian victory over Egypt at the BATTLE OF CARCHEMISH (605 BC; see 24:7) cleared the way for NEBUCHADNEZZAR II to invade Judah (24:1); it was during that invasion that DANIEL was taken to Babylon (Dan 1:1–2). Judah became a vassal state, but when JEHOIAKIM rebelled Judah was again raided (24:2). Nebuchadnezzar later arrived in 597 BC, the eighth year of his reign. He besieged Jerusalem, captured it a second time (24:10–12), and took many of its people captive to Babylon (24:13–16), including the prophet EZEKIEL (Ezek 1:1–2). Nebuchadnezzar installed ZEDEKIAH as vassal king of Judah. Zedekiah then rebelled and stopped paying tribute (24:18–20). • Pharaoh APRIES ("HOPHRA") of Egypt was instrumental in forestalling yet another siege of Jerusalem (Jer 37:5), but it only delayed the inevitable (see Jer 44:30). Nebuchadnezzar besieged Jerusalem on Jan 15, 588 BC (25:1–2), captured Jerusalem on July 18, 586 BC, tore down the Temple and the rest of the city beginning on Aug 14, and sent most of its remaining inhabitants into exile (25:3–12). Thus began the period of exile, which lasted until 538 BC (Ezra 1–2).

23:33 Riblah was a fortified administrative center in Aramean territory about sixty miles northeast of Damascus. • to prevent him from ruling: The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. • 7,500 pounds of silver and 75 pounds of gold: Hebrew 100 talents [3,400 kilograms] of silver and 1 talent [34 kilograms] of gold.

23:34 Eliakim . . . Jehoiakim: Neco continued the Assyrian practice of requiring an oath of loyalty and assigning a new name to the local head of state.

23:36 Jehoiakim, Jehoahaz's older brother (cp. 23:31), reigned eleven years (609–598 BC).

23:37 did what was evil: The record in the book of Jeremiah characterizes Jehoiakim as a total apostate (see Jer 22:13–23; 25:1–14; 26:20–23; 36:1–32).

24:1 In 605 BC, Nebuchadnezzar commanded forces that defeated the remaining Assyrian army and an Egyptian contingent at Carchemish (see Jer 46:2). While he campaigned in the west, his father, Nabopolassar, died, and Nebuchadnezzar returned home to assume the throne as Nebuchadnezzar II (605–562 BC). When he rejoined his troops, they easily moved down the Mediterranean coast. Sometime during this campaign, he invaded the land of Judah and took much booty and many captives to Babylon, including Daniel and his three friends (Dan 1:1–7). Jehoiakim was made a vassal to Nebuchadnezzar and paid him tribute for three years. When Pharaoh Neco defeated the Babylonians at the Egyptian border in 601 BC, Jehoiakim rebelled, seizing the opportunity to gain his independence.

24:2 Nebuchadnezzar bided his time between 601 and 598 BC while consolidating his hold on the west, sending various raiders to harass Judah. • Babylonian: Or Chaldean.

24:3 because of the LORD's command: The root of Judah's problems was its from his presence because of the many sins of Manasseh, ⁴who had filled Jerusalem with innocent blood. The LORD would not forgive this.

⁵The rest of the events in Jehoiakim's reign and all his deeds are recorded in The Book of the History of the Kings of Judah.

⁶When Jehoiakim died, his son Jehoiachin became the next king.

⁷The king of Egypt did not venture out of his country after that, for the king of Babylon captured the entire area formerly claimed by Egypt—from the Brook of Egypt to the Euphrates River.

Exile of Jehoiachin

2 Kgs 24:8-9, 12b-13, 17 // 2 Chr 36:9-10

⁸Jehoiachin was eighteen years old when he became king, and he reigned in Jerusalem three months. His mother was Nehushta, the daughter of Elnathan from Jerusalem. ⁹Jehoiachin did what was evil in the LORD's sight, just as his father had done.

¹⁰During Jehoiachin's reign, the officers of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon came up against Jerusalem and besieged it. ¹¹Nebuchadnezzar himself arrived at the city during the siege. ¹²Then King Jehoiachin, along with the queen mother, his advisers, his commanders, and his officials, surrendered to the Babylonians.

In the eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign, he took Jehoiachin prisoner. ¹³As the LORD had said beforehand, Nebuchadnezzar carried away all the treasures from the LORD's Temple and the royal palace. He stripped away all the gold objects that King Solomon of Israel had placed in the Temple.

¹⁴King Nebuchadnezzar took all of Jerusalem captive, including all the commanders and the best of the soldiers, craftsmen, and artisans—10,000 in all. Only the poorest people were left in the land.

¹⁵Nebuchadnezzar led King Jehoiachin away as a captive to Babylon, along with the queen mother, his wives and officials, and all Jerusalem's elite. ¹⁶He also exiled 7,000 of the best troops and 1,000 craftsmen and artisans, all of whom were strong and fit for war. ¹⁷Then the king of Babylon installed Mattaniah, Jehoiachin's uncle, as the next king, and he changed Mattaniah's name to Zedekiah.

incorrigible spiritual infidelity. Despite Josiah's reforms, the sins of Manasseh permeated Judah so that divine judgment was inevitable.

24:4 innocent blood: Tradition holds that Manasseh murdered the prophet Isaiah by sawing him in two (cp. Heb 11:37).

24:6 Jehoiakim died in 598 BC, either shortly before or during Nebuchadnezzar's second campaign against Jerusalem (Josephus reports that Nebuchadnezzar executed Jehoiakim; see Josephus, Antiquities 10.6.3; cp. Jer 22:18-19; 36:30-31).

24:7 The king of Egypt did not venture out of his country after that because of Nebuchadnezzar's overwhelming strength. Any hope Judah had of help from Egypt was in vain (see Jer 2:36; 46:2-12; Ezek 29:6, 16). • The Brook of Egypt has been identified as either the Wadi el-Arish at the edge of the Nile delta, or as Nahal Besor, which lies south of Gaza.

24:8 Jehoiachin became king in 597 BC.

• he reigned in Jerusalem three months: cp. Jer 22:28-30.

24:10-12 Faced with the overwhelming forces of Nebuchadnezzar, Jehoiachin surrendered. • The eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar's reign was 597 BC. See note on 2 Chr 36:9-10.

24:13 As the LORD had said beforehand: See 20:16-17. A greater divine judgment still lay in the future (21:12-15; 22:15-20; 23:26-27). • all the treasures: In his earlier siege of Jerusalem in 605 BC, Nebuchadnezzar had taken part of the Temple treasures as spoil (2 Chr 36:7; Dan 1:2). He now carried away all the treasures. Anything left behind on this occasion was taken in his final siege of Jerusalem in 586 BC (25:15). • He stripped away: Or He cut apart.

24:14-16 In addition to Jehoiachin, the prophet Ezekiel was also taken into captivity (Ezek 1:1). Throughout the book of Ezekiel, events in Ezekiel's life are dated in terms of the years since Jehoiachin had been taken captive. • The 10,000 taken captive by Nebuchadnezzar likely includes 7,000 troops, 1,000 craftsmen and artisans, and a number of administrative officials and leading citizens of Jerusalem. In any case, 10,000 is probably a round figure (see also Jer 52:28).

24:17 Like the three kings before him, Mattaniah received a throne name, Zedekiah. • Jehoiachin's uncle (Literally his uncle): See 1 Chr 3:15-16.

24:18-20 Zedekiah's reign of eleven years in Jerusalem (597–586 BC) mirrored Jehoiakim's evil reign (23:36-37). The Lord was judging Jerusalem and Judah for their sins (see 17:19; 20:16-17; 21:12-15; 22:15-20; 23:26-27). • Zedekiah rebelled: Zedekiah's rebellion may coincide with an anti-Babylonian alliance spearheaded by Pharaoh Apries of Egypt. When Apries became king of Egypt in about 589 BC, he cherished hopes of recovering Egypt's past glory. Zedekiah appears to have placed his confidence in him (cp. Ezek 17:15-18). Nevertheless, like earlier kings (17:4; 24:1-3), Zedekiah learned that Egypt would be of little help (cp. 18:20-21; Jer 37:3-10; Ezek 29:6-7).

25 So on January 15, during the ninth year of Zedekiah's reign, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon led his entire army against Jerusalem. They surrounded the city and built siege ramps against its walls. ²Jerusalem was kept under siege until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah's reign.

³By July 18 in the eleventh year of Zedekiah's reign, the famine in the city had become very severe, and the last of the food was entirely gone. ⁴Then a section of the city wall was broken down. Since the city was surrounded by the Babylonians, the soldiers waited for nightfall and escaped through the gate between the two walls behind the king's garden. Then they headed toward the Jordan Valley.

⁵But the Babylonian troops chased the king and overtook him on the plains of Jericho, for his men had all deserted him and scattered. ⁶They captured the king and took him to the king of Babylon at Riblah, where they pronounced judgment upon Zedekiah. ⁷They made Zedekiah watch as they slaughtered his sons. Then they gouged out Zedekiah's eyes, bound him in bronze chains, and led him away to Babylon.

The Temple Destroyed

2 Kgs 25:8-12 // Jer 52:12-16 // Jer 39:8-10
2 Kgs 25:13-21 // Jer 52:17-27

⁸On August 14 of that year, which was the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadnezzar's reign, Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard and an official of the Babylonian king, arrived in Jerusalem. ⁹He burned down the Temple of the LORD, the royal palace, and all the houses of Jerusalem. He destroyed all the important buildings in the city. ¹⁰Then he supervised the entire Babylonian army as they tore down the walls of Jerusalem

◀ The Babylonian Empire, 610–580 BC (24:1–25:30). By the late 600s BC, BABYLONIA was the dominant power in the Near East, having captured NINEVEH in 612 BC and finally defeating the Assyrian forces at HARAN in 609 BC and CARCHEMISH in 605 BC (see note on 23:29). Nebuchadnezzar II (605–562 BC) carried this forward thrust into JUDAH shortly thereafter (24:1–25:21).

Nebuchadnezzar's battle headquarters, as it had for the Egyptians (23:33).

25:7 gouged out Zedekiah's eyes: Rebellious leaders were commonly blinded in the ancient Near East. However, Zedekiah's blinding seems especially cruel; the last image he had was of his sons being slaughtered. • True to the prophetic word, Zedekiah was taken into captivity, where he died (Jer 32:4-5; 34:3; 52:11; Ezek 12:11-14).

25:8 On August 14 of that year: Literally On the seventh day of the fifth month, of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This day was August 14, 586 BC; also see note on 25:1.

• Nebuzaradan is known from one of Nebuchadnezzar's inscriptions as an important official.

25:9-10 destroyed all the important buildings (Or destroyed the houses of all the important people): The Babylonians destroyed key religious and civic buildings to discourage further resistance or insurrection, and they demolished the city's walls, leaving Jerusalem defenseless.

25:1 January 15: Literally on the tenth day of the tenth month, of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. A number of events in 2 Kings can be cross-checked with dates in surviving Babylonian records and related accurately to our modern calendar. This day was January 15, 588 BC. • Siege ramps were characteristic of ancient Near Eastern warfare. Attackers built tall earthen ramps and towers to give them a more advantageous position (see Jer 52:14; Ezek 21:22).

25:3 By July 18 in the eleventh year of Zedekiah's reign: Literally By the ninth day of the [fourth] month [in the eleventh year of Zedekiah's reign] (cp. Jer 39:2; 52:6 and the notes there). This day was July 18, 586 BC; also see note on 25:1.

25:4 Using battering rams (Ezek 4:2), the Babylonians (or the Chaldeans; also in 25:13, 25, 26) broke down a section of Jerusalem's wall and penetrated the city. At nightfall, King Zedekiah and the remaining troops escaped (as in Greek version [see also Jer 39:4; 52:7]; Hebrew lacks escaped) through the gate at the southeastern corner of the city into the Kidron Valley, attempting to reach the Jordan Valley (Hebrew the Arabah).

25:5 Zedekiah was overtaken by Babylonian (or Chaldean; also in 25:10, 24) forces on the plains of Jericho.

25:6 Riblah, formerly an Assyrian administrative center, served as on every side. ¹¹Then Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, took as exiles the rest of the people who remained in the city, the defectors who had declared their allegiance to the king of Babylon, and the rest of the population. ¹²But the captain of the guard allowed some of the poorest people to stay behind to care for the vineyards and fields.

¹³The Babylonians broke up the bronze pillars in front of the LORD's Temple, the bronze water carts, and the great bronze basin called the Sea, and they carried all the bronze away to Babylon. ¹⁴They also took all the ash buckets, shovels, lamp snuffers, ladles, and all the other bronze articles used for making sacrifices at the Temple. ¹⁵The captain of the guard also took the incense burners and basins, and all the other articles made of pure gold or silver.

¹⁶The weight of the bronze from the two pillars, the Sea, and the water carts was too great to be measured. These things had been made for the LORD's Temple in the days of Solomon. ¹⁷Each of the pillars was 27 feet tall. The bronze capital on top of each pillar was 7½ feet high and was decorated with a network of bronze pomegranates all the way around.

¹⁸Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, took with him as prisoners Seraiah the high priest, Zephaniah the priest of the second rank, and the three chief gatekeepers. ¹⁹And from among the people still hiding in the city, he took an officer who had been in charge of the Judean army; five of the king's personal advisers; the army commander's chief secretary, who was in charge of recruitment; and sixty other citizens. ²⁰Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, took them all to the king of Babylon at Riblah. ²¹And there at Riblah, in the land of Hamath, the king of Babylon had them all put to death. So the people of Judah were sent into exile from their land.

Gedaliah Governs in Judah

2 Kgs 25:22-26 // Jer 40:7-9; 41:1-3, 17-18

²²Then King Nebuchadnezzar appointed Gedaliah son of Ahikam and grandson of Shaphan as governor over the people he had left in Judah. ²³When all the army commanders and their men learned that the king of Babylon had appointed Gedaliah as governor, they went to see him at Mizpah. These included Ishmael son of Nethaniah, Johanan son of Kareah, Seraiah son of Tanhumeth the Netophathite, Jezaniah son of the Maacathite, and all their men.

²⁴Gedaliah vowed to them that the Babylonian officials meant them no harm. "Don't be afraid of them. Live in the land and serve the king of Babylon, and all will go well for you," he promised.

²⁵But in midautumn of that year, Ishmael son of Nethaniah and grandson of Elishama, who was a member of the royal family, went to Mizpah with ten men and killed Gedaliah. He also killed all the Judeans and Babylonians who were with him at Mizpah.

25:11-12 The Babylonians took the majority of the population into exile, even some who willingly defected (Jer 39:9; 52:15). • Because the poorest people were unlikely to cause trouble, they were left behind to work the vineyards and fields.

25:13-16 The Babylonians broke up the Temple furnishings that had been crafted by Hiram of Tyre and all the other bronze articles (see 1 Kgs 7:13-50) for their own use. The transport of these valuable furnishings to Babylon was a major undertaking; everything of value was carried away (see also Jer 52:17-23).

25:17 27 feet: Hebrew 18 cubits [8.3 meters]. • 7½ feet: As in parallel texts at 1 Kgs 7:16; 2 Chr 3:15; and Jer 52:22, all of which read 5 cubits [2.3 meters]; Hebrew reads 3 cubits, which is 4.5 feet or 1.4 meters. The reading of the Hebrew text might reflect the height of the decorative work adorning the upper part of the capital (cp. 1 Kgs 7:17-18).

25:18-20 Instead of deporting key citizens and officials as in the Babylonian invasion of 597 BC (24:14), Nebuchadnezzar had these leaders put to death. Even religious leaders were executed.

• Although Seraiah the high priest was slain, his son Jehozadak was sent into exile (1 Chr 6:15). Thus the priestly line continued even in captivity and later returned to Jerusalem beginning in 538 BC (Ezra 1:1-2:20).

25:21 So the people of Judah were sent into exile from their land: Like the northern kingdom before it (17:5-17), Judah was exiled as punishment for their covenant infidelity. A remnant later returned to the Promised Land in 538 BC (2 Chr 36:22-23; Ezra 1:1-2:20; see also 2 Chr 36:15-21; Jer 25:11; 29:10; Dan 9:2).

25:22-30 Two short appendices describe subsequent events. The first (25:22-26) details the area's reorganization; the second (25:27-30) tells of the later kind treatment accorded King Jehoiachin.

25:22 Gedaliah's father Ahikam and grandfather Shaphan had been trusted officials during Josiah's reign (22:3, 12). Ahikam had supported Jeremiah during the reign of Jehoia-kim (Jer 26:24).

25:23-24 Because Gedaliah came from a family experienced in civic affairs, his governorship was initially well accepted (see also Jer 40:1-12). A seal impression recovered from Lachish confirms Gedaliah's importance as the officer "over the house" (see 1 Kgs 4:6; NLT, palace property). • In addition to the army commanders, the prophet Jeremiah also went to Mizpah to support Gedaliah (Jer 40:6). This Mizpah was a border town in Benjamin; it had been prominent in Israelite history as a place of religious assembly (1 Sam 7:5-6). • The men listed here held important posts. Ishmael was from a prominent family of royal lineage (25:25; Jer 36:12). Johanan served Gedaliah faithfully (Jer 40:13-16). The name Jezaniah (as in parallel text at Jer 40:8; Hebrew reads Jaazaniah, a variant spelling of Jezaniah.) occurs on materials recovered from excavations at Tell-en-Nasbeh.

THE FIRST BOOK OF Chronicles

The book of Chronicles was written to inspire hope. Exile had robbed the people of Israel of their wealth, and their return to the land created resentment among their neighbors. Despondency and apathy threatened to destroy them entirely. The Chronicler's task was to establish and validate the people's links with the past. In writing this history, he organized the past in a way that provided meaning and value for the present. He believed that his community, Judea, was critically significant in representing the Kingdom of God. Further, he knew that the community needed to retain its distinctive sense of identity in order to fulfill its purpose.

SETTING

The Babylonians had conquered the kingdom of Judah between 605 and 586 BC. Within a generation, Babylonian power eroded because of its own internal decay (see Dan 5). Meanwhile, to the east, the Persian king Cyrus the Great (559–530 BC) established a new empire that united the Medes and the Persians. In October 539 BC, Babylon fell without resistance, and Cyrus's empire extended westward to include Babylonia (see Dan 5:30-31).

In keeping with his imperial policy, Cyrus provided for the Jewish exiles to return to Judea and establish a province around the city of Jerusalem. The story of this time is told in the books of Ezra and Nehemiah and by the prophets Haggai and Zechariah. The new community faced many struggles as they rebuilt the Temple and later the wall of Jerusalem. The community thus experienced spiritual restoration, physical protection, and a measure of economic independence. Yet there was virtually no hope of political autonomy. The besieged community bore little resemblance to the former kingdom. The people needed a sense of purpose and hope.

The community of Judah also suffered scorn, opposition, and humiliation from surrounding peoples. The people struggled to maintain their identity, faith, and way of life as social and political forces threatened to absorb them completely. The community needed answers concerning its purpose and its future.

The people of Judah faced some profound questions at this time: How could they remain true to their ancestral faith while living under the permanent domination of an imperial power? How could a subordinate people be the people of God? What did the promise of the eternal throne of David mean under these circumstances? One answer, which found expression in later Greek and Roman times (among the "zealots" of the NT era), was a nationalist pressure to rebel and establish independence. Others, recognizing their situation as inescapable, were concerned with the conflict between the political demands of the empire and covenant faithfulness to God. The book of Chronicles was written to address these questions and concerns.

SUMMARY

The text of 1 Chronicles divides into two distinct sections: the portrayal of Israel's identity through genealogies (chs 1-9) and David's preparing of Jerusalem for the Temple and the rule of Solomon (chs 10-29).

The first chapter of genealogies (ch 1) moves along the line of God's selection of specific people from Adam to Jacob (= Israel). Chapters 2-8 deal with the Israelites from Jacob until the exile to Babylon. This section first details the tribe of Judah (chs 2-4), then discusses the house of David in the central section (ch 3), and finally describes the other tribes of Israel (chs 5-7), including those east of the Jordan River (in Transjordan). At the midpoint in the genealogical lists comes Levi (ch 6), a tribe with central significance. The record continues with the tribe of Benjamin (ch 8), completing the genealogies to the date of writing (see next page), with a list of the chief representatives of the community that returned from exile and began restoring Jerusalem (ch 9).

Saul's genealogy (ch 9) introduces the founding of the monarchy. When Saul died because of his unfaithfulness (ch 10), David became king (chs 11–12). The chapters on David's reign explain his organization of officials and his preparations for the Temple (chs 13–27). The transfer of the Ark of the Covenant to Jerusalem served as a major event in the establishment of David's kingdom (chs 13–16). The remainder of 1 Chronicles traces the steps taken toward building the Temple. These chapters include the identity of the builder (ch 17), the necessary political conditions (chs 18–20), the site (ch 21), the personnel (chs 23–27), the materials, and the plans (chs 22, 28–29). The account of David's reign closes with a great public assembly and Solomon's commissioning as the heir of peace who would build the Temple (chs 28–29).

AUTHORSHIP AND DATE

The book of Chronicles is traditionally ascribed to Ezra, but the author of Chronicles left no clues about his own identity apart from the content of his writings. The Chronicler lived in or near Jerusalem and was an ardent supporter of the Temple and its services. The prominence he gives to the Levites in his writing might suggest that he was among their number. This would explain his access to the material he used to compose his history.

The Chronicler wrote in the latter years of the Persian empire, probably around 400 BC. The genealogy of the descendants of Jehoiachin (3:17–24) suggests a date that is eight generations later than Zerubbabel, who served as governor around 520 BC, during the days of Darius, king of Persia (Zech 1:1; 4:9). The Chronicler probably wrote some time after Nehemiah traveled to Jerusalem in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes (445 BC) to repair the walls of the city (Neh 2:1). Chronicles was not written as late as the Greek period, beginning with Alexander the Great (332 BC), because the writing contains no linguistic or ideological evidence of Greek influence. These considerations give us a date around 400 BC.

HISTORICAL SITUATION

Little is known about the situation in Judah after Nehemiah, although Nehemiah reveals some of the difficulties of the community. The temptation to marry outside of Israel was great, and mixed marriages remained in the days of Malachi (400s BC; see Mal 2:14–16). Foreign marriages gave access to land and wealth that were not available within the community. The law, which Ezra brought back with him from Babylon, called for adherence to the Temple as the social and economic center of the community. However, this self-sufficiency and exclusivity aroused the ongoing resentment and hostility of the surrounding peoples.

GENRE AND COMPOSITION

The title of the book of Chronicles also defines the genre of the work. In Hebrew, it is "the events of the days"; in other words, it is a history. In the prologue to the Latin translation of Samuel and Kings, Jerome calls Chronicles the chronikon, or "annals," a register of events, a record book of ancient times. The Greek translation of the OT (the Septuagint), by contrast, calls this history "the things left out." This Chronicles describes the history of Israel from beginning to "beginning," that is, from the inception of the human existence with Adam, through the destruction of the first commonwealth during the reign of Zedekiah, to the new commencement with the declaration of Cyrus.

Sara Japhet
1 & 2 Chronicles (2002)

title regarded Chronicles as a secondary complement to Kings, an attitude that would have horrified its author. This work is a unique creation from many different sources.

In writing this history, the Chronicler organized Israel's past in a way that would provide meaning and value for its intended readers. He included genealogies because they answered two critical questions of history: Whose story needed to be told? and, Where did these people live? The Chronicler's work explains why a people with no influence or recognition considered their existence and lifestyle to be of profound significance for the future.

The book of 1 Chronicles covers essentially the same time period as 2 Samuel. Accordingly, there are numerous parallel passages with similar wording. But the authors had different purposes in writing, and these differences can be highlighted by comparing the similarities and the differences in the various parallel passages.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

The significance of God's promise to David (ch 17) occupies the center of the Chronicler's message. When David determined to build a house for God's Ark of the Covenant, Nathan the prophet had a vision informing him that David had it backwards: David would not build a house for God, but God would build a house for David. This house would be a dynasty (17:10-14 // 2 Sam 7:11-14), and the eternal Kingdom of God would come about through David's lineage. Psalm 2 expresses the importance of this promise; God held the nations in derision because they rejected his kingdom and thought that they could establish their own rule. They ignored the fact that God had already anointed his king on Mount Zion, a king who would shatter the nations and receive the earth (God's world) as his inheritance. The Chronicler took this promise very seriously. The Kingdom of God would come through the promised son of David. The community around Jerusalem represented that promised kingdom, the hope of the future.

The Chronicler had a double task. First, he needed to explain why the kingdom of David had failed. Second, he needed to establish that this small struggling state in the mighty Persian empire would become the kingdom that God had promised to David. The explanation for the failure of David's kingdom begins with Saul's failure: God rejected Saul as king over Israel because he was unfaithful. Saul did not obey God, and he violated the covenant to the extent of consulting a medium (10:13). Later kings repeated the essence of Saul's failure: They rebelled against God's covenant, and they sought security from foreign powers and pagan gods rather than from their Rock, the Lord (see Deut 32:4, 15-39).

"Unfaithfulness" is a key word in Chronicles; the Chronicler uses it repeatedly to document the reasons for judgment against the kings of Judah. The rationale for hope, on the other hand, comes from Solomon's prayer at the dedication of the Temple: "Then if my people who are called by my name will humble themselves and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sins and restore their land" (2 Chr 7:14). This promise reminds the people of the conditions necessary for restoration: humility, prayer, repentance, and healing.

The faithful maintenance of communion with the covenant God in His temple would assure to [the congregation of Israel] the fulfillment of the gracious promises of the covenant, and how falling away into idolatry, on the contrary, would bring misfortune and destruction.

The book of 1 Chronicles establishes the necessary premises for restoration. The promise to David did not disappear during the Exile; the community that was reestablished in Jerusalem carried the promise. Even the division of the kingdom after Solomon's reign had not put any of the tribes outside of Israel's future. For the Chronicler, all the tribes were present in the restoration, including those of the northern kingdom (9:3). The Chronicler understood Israel as the people of faith, not as a political entity. Israel was not a sovereign nation in his day but a small ethnic province in the mighty empire of Persia. Yet he wanted to show that the unity established by David and Solomon had endured and that the promise made to David gave them hope for the future.

Founding Ancestors (1:1–34)

From Adam to Noah's Sons

1 The descendants of Adam were Seth, Enosh, ²Kenan, Mahalalel, Jared, ³Enoch, Methuselah, Lamech, ⁴and Noah.

The sons of Noah were Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

Descendants of Japheth

⁵The descendants of Japheth were Gomer, Magog, Madai, Javan, Tubal, Meshech, and Tiras.

⁶The descendants of Gomer were Ashkenaz, Riphath, and Togarmah.

⁷The descendants of Javan were Elishah, Tarshish, Kittim, and Rodanim.

Descendants of Ham

⁸The descendants of Ham were Cush, Mizraim, Put, and Canaan.

⁹The descendants of Cush were Seba, Havilah, Sabtah, Raamah, and Sabteca. The descendants of Raamah were Sheba and Dedan. ¹⁰Cush was also the ancestor of Nimrod, who was the first heroic warrior on earth.

¹¹Mizraim was the ancestor of the Ludites, Anamites, Lehabites, Naphtuhites, ¹²Pathrusites, Casluhites, and the Caphtorites, from whom the Philistines came.

¹³Canaan's oldest son was Sidon, the ancestor of the Sidonians. Canaan was also the ancestor of the Hittites, ¹⁴Jebusites, Amorites, Girgashites, ¹⁵Hivites, Arkites, Sinites, ¹⁶Arvadites, Zemarites, and Hamathites.

Descendants of Shem

¹⁷The descendants of Shem were Elam, Asshur, Arphaxad, Lud, and Aram.

The descendants of Aram were Uz, Hul, Gether, and Mash.

¹⁸Arphaxad was the father of Shelah. Shelah was the father of Eber.

¹⁹Eber had two sons. The first was named Peleg (which means "division"), for during his lifetime the people of the world were divided into different language groups. His brother's name was Joktan.

²⁰Joktan was the ancestor of Almodad, Sheleph, Hazarmaveth, Jerah, ²¹Hadoram, Uzal, Diklah, ²²Obal, Abimael, Sheba, ²³Ophir, Havilah, and Jobab. All these were descendants of Joktan.

²⁴So this is the family line descended from Shem: Arphaxad, Shelah, ²⁵Eber, Peleg, Reu, ²⁶Serug, Nahor, Terah, ²⁷and Abram, later known as Abraham.

Descendants of Abraham

²⁸The sons of Abraham were Isaac and Ishmael. ²⁹These are their genealogical records:

The sons of Ishmael were Nebaioth (the oldest), Kedar, Adbeel, Mibsam, ³⁰Mishma, Dumah, Massa, Hadad, Tema, ³¹Jetur, Naphish, and Kedemah. These were the sons of Ishmael.

³²The sons of Keturah, Abraham's concubine, were Zimran, Jokshan, Medan, Midian, Ishbak, and Shuah. The sons of Jokshan were Sheba and Dedan.

³³The sons of Midian were Ephah, Epher, Hanoch, Abida, and Eldaah. All these were descendants of Abraham through his concubine Keturah.

Descendants of Isaac

³⁴Abraham was the father of Isaac. The sons of Isaac were Esau and Israel.

Ancestry of the Edomites (1:35-54)

Descendants of Esau

³⁵The sons of Esau were Eliphaz, Reuel, Jeush, Jalam, and Korah.

³⁶The descendants of Eliphaz were Teman, Omar, Zepho, Gatam, Kenaz, and Amalek, who was born to Timna.

³⁷The descendants of Reuel were Nahath, Zerah, Shammah, and Mizzah.

Original Peoples of Edom

³⁸The descendants of Seir were Lotan, Shobal, Zibeon, Anah, Dishon, Ezer, and Dishan.

³⁹The descendants of Lotan were Hori and Hemam. Lotan's sister was named Timna.

⁴⁰The descendants of Shobal were Alvan, Manahath, Ebal, Shepho, and Onam. The descendants of Zibeon were Aiah and Anah.

⁴¹The son of Anah was Dishon.

The descendants of Dishon were Hemdan, Eshban, Ithran, and Keran.

⁴²The descendants of Ezer were Bilhan, Zaavan, and Akan.

The descendants of Dishan were Uz and Aran.

Rulers of Edom

⁴³These are the kings who ruled in the land of Edom before any king ruled over the Israelites:

Bela son of Beor, who ruled from his city of Dinhabah.

⁴⁴When Bela died, Jobab son of Zerah from Bozrah became king in his place.

⁴⁵When Jobab died, Husham from the land of the Temanites became king in his place.

⁴⁶When Husham died, Hadad son of Bedad became king in his place and ruled from the city of Avith. He was the one who destroyed the Midianite army in the land of Moab.

⁴⁷When Hadad died, Samlah from the city of Masrekah became king in his place.

⁴⁸When Samlah died, Shaul from the city of Rehoboth-on-the-River became king in his place.

⁴⁹When Shaul died, Baal-hanan son of Acbor became king in his place.

⁵⁰When Baal-hanan died, Hadad became king in his place and ruled from the city of Pau. His wife was Mehetabel, the daughter of Matred and granddaughter of Me-zahab. ⁵¹Then Hadad died.

The clan leaders of Edom were Timna, Alvah, Jetheth, ⁵²Oholibamah, Elah, Pinon, ⁵³Kenaz, Teman, Mibzar, ⁵⁴Magdiel, and Iram. These are the clan leaders of Edom.

apart from Isaac, listing the sons of Ishmael (1:29-31; cp. Gen 25:12-15) and the sons of Keturah (1:32-33; cp. Gen 25:1-3) before detailing the descendants in the chosen family line.

1:34-2:2 Isaac's genealogy first lists the descendants of Esau (1:35-54) and continues with Israel (the name that God gave to Jacob). The history of Edom is given in three components: the sons of Esau (1:35-37), the descendants of Seir (1:38-42), and the kings who ruled in Edom (1:43-54). This arrangement follows Gen 36.

1:36 Zepho: As in many Hebrew manuscripts and a few Greek manuscripts (see also Gen 36:11); most Hebrew manuscripts read Zephi. • Kenaz, and Amalek, who was born to Timna: As in some Greek manuscripts (see also Gen 36:12); Hebrew reads Kenaz, Timna, and Amalek.

1:39 and Hemam: As in parallel text at Gen 36:22; Hebrew reads and Homam.

1:40 Alvan: As in many Hebrew manuscripts and a few Greek manuscripts (see also Gen 36:23); most Hebrew manuscripts read Alian. • Shepho: As in some Hebrew manuscripts (see also Gen 36:23); most Hebrew manuscripts read Shephi.

1:41 Hemdan: As in many Hebrew manuscripts and some Greek manuscripts (see also Gen 36:26); most Hebrew manuscripts read Hamran.

1:42 Akan: As in many Hebrew and Greek manuscripts (see also Gen 36:27); most Hebrew manuscripts read Jaakan. • Dishan: Hebrew Dishon; cp. 1:38 and parallel text at Gen 36:28.

1:43 before any king ruled over the Israelites: Or before an Israelite king ruled over them.

1:50 Pau: As in many Hebrew manuscripts, some Greek manuscripts, Syriac version, and Latin Vulgate (see also Gen 36:39); most Hebrew manuscripts read Pai.

1:51-54 The Chronicler lists the clan leaders of Edom as far as his own sources allowed (see Gen 36:40-43).

1:51 Alvah: As in an alternate reading of the Masoretic Text (see also Gen 36:40); the other alternate reads Aliah.

The Sons of Israel (2:1-2)

2 The sons of Israel were Reuben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Zebulun, ²Dan, Joseph, Benjamin, Naphtali, Gad, and Asher.

The Royal Family of Judah (2:3-4:23)

From Judah to Azariah

³Judah had three sons from Bathshua, a Canaanite woman. Their names were Er, Onan, and Shelah. But the LORD saw that the oldest son, Er, was a wicked man, so he killed him. ⁴Later Judah had twin sons from Tamar, his widowed daughter-in-law. Their names were Perez and Zerah. So Judah had five sons in all.

⁵The sons of Perez were Hezron and Hamul.

⁶The sons of Zerah were Zimri, Ethan, Heman, Calcol, and Darda—five in all.

⁷The son of Carmi (a descendant of Zimri) was Achan, who brought disaster on Israel by taking plunder that had been set apart for the LORD.

⁸The son of Ethan was Azariah.

From Hezron to David

⁹The sons of Hezron were Jerahmeel, Ram, and Caleb.

¹⁰Ram was the father of Amminadab. Amminadab was the father of Nahshon, a leader of Judah.

¹¹Nahshon was the father of Salmon. Salmon was the father of Boaz.

¹²Boaz was the father of Obed.

Obed was the father of Jesse.

¹³Jesse's first son was Eliab, his second was Abinadab, his third was Shimea, ¹⁴his fourth was Nethanel, his fifth was Raddai, ¹⁵his sixth was Ozem, and his seventh was David.

¹⁶Their sisters were named Zeruiah and Abigail. Zeruiah had three sons named Abishai, Joab, and Asahel. ¹⁷Abigail married a man named Jether, an Ishmaelite, and they had a son named Amasa.

Other Descendants of Hezron

¹⁸Hezron's son Caleb had sons from his wife Azubah and from Jerioth. Her sons were named Jeshur, Shobab, and Ardon.

¹⁹After Azubah died, Caleb married Ephrathah, and they had a son named Hur. ²⁰Hur was the father of Uri. Uri was the father of Bezalel.

²¹When Hezron was sixty years old, he married Gilead's sister, the daughter of Makir. They had a son named Segub.

²²Segub was the father of Jair, who ruled twenty-three towns in the land of Gilead.

²⁴Soon after Hezron died in the town of Caleb-ephrathah, his wife Abijah gave

2:1 Israel is the name that God gave to Jacob.

2:3-4:23 While the genealogies present the entire people of Israel (2:1-2), David's ancestors in the tribe of Judah receive priority.

2:3-8 The genealogy of Judah is as comprehensive as possible, recording peripheral material as the background to the main line of David's ancestors. Cp. Gen 46:12.

2:3 Er and Onan, the first two sons of Judah, were destroyed because of their sin (Gen 38:6-10). The descendants of Shelah are listed as an appendix at the end of the genealogies of Judah (4:21-23).

2:4-5 The main ancestral line of David descends from Perez, one of the sons of Tamar, Judah's widowed daughter-in-law. • Hamul, one of Perez's sons, is ignored completely; the Chronicler might not have had information about him.

2:6-8 For the genealogy of Zerah, cp. Josh 7:1, 17; 1 Kgs 4:31 (Mahol might be another name for Zerah).

2:6 Darda: As in many Hebrew manuscripts, some Greek manuscripts, and Syriac version (see also 1 Kgs 4:31); most Hebrew manuscripts read Dara.

2:7 Achan: Hebrew Achar; cp. Josh 7:1. Achar means "disaster." • set apart for the LORD: The Hebrew term used here refers to the complete consecration of things or people to the Lord, either by destroying them or by giving them as an offering (see Lev 27:28-29; 1 Sam 15:3).

2:9-55 The descendants of Hezron are given down to the time of David, in several sections: the direct line from Hezron to David (2:9-17; cp. Ruth 4:18-22), the other descendants of Hezron (2:18-41), then the descendants of Hezron's son Caleb (2:42-55).

2:9 Caleb (Hebrew Kelubai, a variant spelling of Caleb; cp. 2:18) was the most notable immediate descendant of Hezron, so the author covers his descendants in detail (2:42-55). This Caleb was apparently not the same individual as Caleb son of Jephunneh, a descendant of Kenaz (see note on 4:13-15).

2:10-17 The passage dedicated to the descendants of Ram provides a direct line of descent from Ram to Jesse, then records Jesse's children.

2:11 Salmon: As in Greek version (see also Ruth 4:20); Hebrew reads Salma.

2:14-15 The Chronicler lists David as the seventh son of Jesse, while Samuel makes him the eighth (1 Sam 16:6-13; 17:12). Samuel does not provide the names of David's fourth, fifth, or sixth brothers (Nethanel, Raddai, and Ozem). Later, the Chronicler lists a brother named Elihu, who might or might not have been an additional son (see note on 27:18). The number seven (the "perfect" number) perhaps symbolizes that David was chosen by God to rule.

2:18 Caleb (see note on 2:9) had sons from his wife Azubah and from Jerioth: Or Caleb had a daughter named Jerioth from his wife, Azubah. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

2:19 Ephrathah: Hebrew Ephrath, a variant spelling of Ephrathah; cp. 2:50 and 4:4.

2:20 The Lord chose Bezalel, a craftsman descended from Hezron, to construct the Tabernacle (see Exod 31:1-2).

2:21-23 Some of the families of Gilead, listed elsewhere as members of the tribe of Manasseh (cp. Num 32:39-42), also had a connection with the tribe of Judah.

2:23 captured the Towns of Jair: Or captured Havvoth-jair.

birth to a son named Ashhur (the father of Tekoa).

Descendants of Hezron's Son Jerahmeel

²⁵The sons of Jerahmeel, the oldest son of Hezron, were Ram (the firstborn), Bunah, Oren, Ozem, and Ahijah. ²⁶Jerahmeel had a second wife named Atarah. She was the mother of Onam.

²⁷The sons of Ram, the oldest son of Jerahmeel, were Maaz, Jamin, and Eker.

²⁸The sons of Onam were Shammai and Jada. The sons of Shammai were Nadab and Abishur.

²⁹The sons of Abishur and his wife Abihail were Ahban and Molid.

³⁰The sons of Nadab were Seled and Appaim. Seled died without children, ³¹but Appaim had a son named Ishi. The son of Ishi was Sheshan. Sheshan had a descendant named Ahlai.

³²The sons of Jada, Shammai's brother, were Jether and Jonathan. Jether died without children, ³³but Jonathan had two sons named Peleth and Zaza.

These were all descendants of Jerahmeel.

³⁴Sheshan had no sons, though he did have daughters. He also had an Egyptian servant named Jarha. ³⁵Sheshan gave one of his daughters to be the wife of Jarha, and they had a son named Attai.

³⁶Attai was the father of Nathan. Nathan was the father of Zabad.

³⁷Zabad was the father of Ephlal. Ephlal was the father of Obed.

³⁸Obed was the father of Jehu. Jehu was the father of Azariah.

³⁹Azariah was the father of Helez. Helez was the father of Eleasah.

⁴⁰Eleasah was the father of Sismai. Sismai was the father of Shallum.

⁴¹Shallum was the father of Jekamiah. Jekamiah was the father of Elishama.

Descendants of Hezron's Son Caleb

⁴²The descendants of Caleb, the brother of Jerahmeel, included Mesha (the firstborn), who became the father of Ziph. Caleb's descendants also included the sons of Mareshah, the father of Hebron.

⁴³The sons of Hebron were Korah, Tappuah, Rekem, and Shema. ⁴⁴Shema was the father of Raham. Raham was the father of Jorkeam. Rekem was the father of Shammai. ⁴⁵The son of Shammai was Maon. Maon was the father of Beth-zur.

⁴⁶Caleb's concubine Ephah gave birth to Haran, Moza, and Gazez. Haran was the father of Gazez.

⁴⁷The sons of Jahdai were Regem, Jotham, Gesheh, Pelet, Ephah, and Shaph.

⁴⁸Another of Caleb's concubines, Maacah, gave birth to Sheber and Tirhanah. ⁴⁹She also gave birth to Shaaph (the father of Madmannah) and Sheva (the father of Macbenah and Gibeai). Caleb also had a daughter named Acsah.

⁵⁰These were all descendants of Caleb.

Descendants of Caleb's Son Hur

The sons of Hur, the oldest son of Caleb's wife Ephrathah, were Shobal (the founder of Kiriath-jearim), ⁵¹Salma (the founder of Bethlehem), and Hareph (the founder of Beth-gader).

⁵²The descendants of Shobal (the founder of Kiriath-jearim) were Haroeh, half the Manahathites, ⁵³and the families of Kiriath-jearim—the Ithrites, Puthites, Shumathites, and Mishraites, from whom came the people of Zorah and Eshtaol.

⁵⁴The descendants of Salma were the people of Bethlehem, the Netophathites, Atroth-beth-joab, the other half of the Manahathites, the Zorites, ⁵⁵and the families of scribes living at Jabez—the Tirathites, Shimeathites, and Sucathites. All these were Kenites who descended from Hammath, the father of the family of Recab.

Jesse

⁴ Jesse's Family (2:13-17). ZERUIAH and ABIGAIL were apparently David's half-sisters, with a different father (see 2 Sam 17:25). Zeruiah's sons were later a source of consternation for David (see 2 Sam 3:39; 19:22). • ELIAB: See note on 2:14-15; see also 1 Sam 16:6-7; 17:13, 28. • ELIHU might have been another name for Eliab, or he might have been an additional son whose birth-order is unknown (see notes on 2:14-15; 27:18). • SHIMEA: See 2 Sam 13:3, 32; 21:21. • JOAB: See p. 551. • ABISHAI: See p. 547. • ASAHAI: See 11:26; 27:7; 2 Sam 2:18-32; 3:27-30.

2:24 the father of: Or the founder of; also in 2:42, 45, 49. • Tekoa was a small Judean village southeast of Bethlehem (see also 4:5-8).

2:42 the father of Hebron: Or who founded Hebron. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

2:55 the father of the family of Recab: Or the founder of Beth-recab.

Sons of David

1 Chr 3:1-9 // 2 Sam 3:2-5; 5:13-16

3 These are the sons of David who were born in Hebron:

The oldest was Amnon, whose mother was Ahinoam from Jezreel.

The second was Daniel, whose mother was Abigail from Carmel.

² The third was Absalom, whose mother was Maacah, the daughter of Talmai, king of Geshur.

The fourth was Adonijah, whose mother was Haggith.

³ The fifth was Shephatiah, whose mother was Abital.

The sixth was Ithream, whose mother was Eglah, David's wife.

⁴ These six sons were born to David in Hebron, where he reigned seven and a half years.

Then David reigned another thirty-three years in Jerusalem. ⁵ The sons born to David in Jerusalem included Shammua, Shobab, Nathan, and Solomon. Their mother was Bathsheba, the daughter of Ammiel. ⁶ David also had nine other sons: Ibhar, Elishua, Elpelet, ⁷ Nogah, Nepheg, Japhia, ⁸ Elishama, Eliada, and Eliphelet.

⁹ These were the sons of David, not including his sons born to his concubines. Their sister was named Tamar.

From Solomon to Zedekiah

¹⁰ The descendants of Solomon were

Rehoboam, Abijah, Asa, Jehoshaphat,

¹¹ Jehoram, Ahaziah, Joash, ¹² Amaziah,

Uzziah, Jotham, ¹³ Ahaz, Hezekiah,

Manasseh, ¹⁴ Amon, and Josiah.

¹⁵ The sons of Josiah were Johanan (the oldest), Jehoiakim (the second), Zedekiah (the third), and Jehoahaz (the fourth).

¹⁶ The successors of Jehoiakim were his son Jehoiachin and his brother Zedekiah.

Descendants of Jehoiachin

¹⁹ The sons of Pedaiah were Zerubbabel and Shimei.

The sons of Zerubbabel were Meshullam and Hananiah. (Their sister was Shelomith.) ²⁰ His five other sons were Hashubah, Ohel, Berekiah, Hasadiah, and Jushab-hesed.

²¹ The sons of Hananiah were Pelatiah and Jeshaiiah. Jeshaiiah's son was Rephaiah. Rephaiah's son was Arnan. Arnan's son was Obadiah. Obadiah's son was Shecaniah.

²² The descendants of Shecaniah were Shemaiah and his sons, Hattush, Igal, Bariah, Neariah, and Shaphat—six in all.

²³ The sons of Neariah were Elioenai, Hizkiah, and Azrikam—three in all.

²⁴ The sons of Elioenai were Hodaviah, Eliashib, Pelaiah, Akkub, Johanan, Delaiah, and Anani—seven in all.

Other Descendants of Judah

4 The descendants of Judah were Perez, Hezron, Carmi, Hur, and Shobal.

² Shobal's son Reaiah was the father of Jahath. Jahath was the father of Ahumai and Lahad. These were the families of the Zorathites.

3:1-24 The genealogy of David continues the genealogy of Ram (2:10-17), which included David as the seventh son of Jesse (2:15). David's genealogy is divided into three sections: David's sons (3:1-9); the kings of Judah down to Jehoiachin and Zedekiah (3:10-16), who were exiled to Babylon; and the descendants of Jehoiachin down to the time of the Chronicler (3:17-23).

3:1-9 The list of David's sons relies on information from Samuel (2 Sam 3:2-5; 5:14-16); the list is divided between sons . . . born while David ruled in Hebron, and those born . . . in Jerusalem.

3:5 Shammua: As in Syriac version (see also 14:4; 2 Sam 5:14); Hebrew reads Shimea. • Bathsheba: Hebrew Bathshua, a variant spelling of Bathsheba.

3:6 Elishua: As in some Hebrew and Greek manuscripts (see also 14:5-7 and 2 Sam 5:15); most Hebrew manuscripts read Elishama. • Elpelet: Hebrew Elphelet; cp. parallel text at 14:5-7.

3:10-16 The Chronicler lists the kings of Judah in father-to-son progression from Solomon to the Exile.

3:11 Jehoram: Hebrew Joram, a variant spelling of Jehoram.

3:12 Uzziah: Hebrew Azariah, a variant spelling of Uzziah.

3:15 Only two of the four sons of Josiah served as kings of Judah. • Jehoahaz: Hebrew Shallum, another name for Jehoahaz; cp. note on Jer 22:11.

3:16 The successors of Jehoiakim were his son Jehoiachin and his brother Zedekiah: Literally The sons of Jehoiakim were his son Jeconiah [a variant spelling of Jehoiachin] and his son Zedekiah. At the very end of the monarchy of Judah, the sequence of kings did not follow the typical pattern of the eldest son succeeding his father.

3:17-23 This portion of the list of David's descendants extends to around 400 BC.

3:17 Jehoiachin: Hebrew Jeconiah, a variant spelling of Jehoiachin.

3:21 The sons of Hananiah . . . Shecaniah (literally The son of Hananiah [was] Pelatiah and Jeshaiiah, the sons of Rephaiah, the sons of Arnan, the sons of Obadiah, the sons of Shecaniah): In Hebrew, all the names are listed as "the sons" of Hananiah, all in one generation. However, many ancient manuscripts and translations support viewing the list as covering several generations (as in the NLT) by translating "sons of" (Hebrew beney, four times) as "son of" (Hebrew beno). The resulting genealogy extends several generations from the time of Zerubbabel and his son Hananiah.

4:1-7 The genealogy of Judah continues, with links back to ch 2. The connection to Hur, the ancestor of Bethlehem, is

Josh 15:17

³The descendants of Etam were Jezreel, Ishma, Idbash, their sister Hazzelepni, ⁴Penuel (the father of Gedor), and Ezer (the father of Hushah). These were the descendants of Hur (the firstborn of Ephrathah), the ancestor of Bethlehem.

⁵Ashhur (the father of Tekoa) had two wives, named Helah and Naarah.

⁶Naarah gave birth to Ahuzzam, Hephher, Temeni, and Haahashtari. ⁷Helah gave birth to Zereth, Izhar, Ethnan, ⁸and Koz, who became the ancestor of Anub, Zobebah, and all the families of Aharhel son of Harum.

⁹There was a man named Jabez who was more honorable than any of his brothers. His mother named him Jabez because his birth had been so painful.

¹⁰He was the one who prayed to the God of Israel, "Oh, that you would bless me and expand my territory! Please be with me in all that I do, and keep me from all trouble and pain!" And God granted him his request.

¹¹Kelub (the brother of Shuhah) was the father of Mehir. Mehir was the father of Eshton. ¹²Eshton was the father of Bethrapha, Paseah, and Tehinnah. Tehinnah was the father of Ir-nahash. These were the descendants of Recah.

¹³The sons of Kenaz were Othniel and Seraiah. Othniel's sons were Hathath and Meonothai. ¹⁴Meonothai was the father of Ophrah. Seraiah was the father of Joab, the founder of the Valley of Craftsmen, so called because they were craftsmen.

¹⁵The sons of Caleb son of Jephunneh were Iru, Elah, and Naam. The son of Elah was Kenaz.

¹⁶The sons of Jehallelel were Ziph, Ziphah, Tiria, and Asarel.

¹⁷The sons of Ezrah were Jether, Mered, Ephher, and Jalon. One of Mered's wives became the mother of Miriam, Shammai, and Ishbah (the father of Eshtemoa). ¹⁸He married a woman from Judah, who became the mother of Jered (the father of Gedor), Heber (the father of Soco), and Jekuthiel (the father of Zanoah). Mered also married Bithia, a daughter of Pharaoh, and she bore him children.

¹⁹Hodiah's wife was the sister of Naham. One of her sons was the father of Keilah the Garmite, and another was the father of Eshtemoa the Maacathite.

²⁰The sons of Shimon were Amnon, Rinnah, Ben-hanan, and Tilon.

The descendants of Ishi were Zoheth and Ben-zoheth.

Descendants of Judah's Son Shelah

²¹Shelah was one of Judah's sons. The descendants of Shelah were Er (the father of Lecah); Laadah (the father of Mareshah); the families of linen workers at Beth-ashbea; ²²Jokim; the men of Cozeba; and Joash and Saraph, who ruled over Moab and Jashubi-lehem. These names all come from ancient records. ²³They were the pottery makers who lived in Netaim and Gederah. They lived there and worked for the king.

provided immediately (4:1-4; see 2:19-20, 51-55).

4:3 descendants of: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads father of. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

4:4 the father of: Or the founder of; also in 4:5, 12, 14, 17, 18, and perhaps other instances where the text reads the father of.

4:7 Izhar: As in an alternate reading in the Masoretic Text (see also Latin Vulgate); the other alternate and the Greek version read Zohar.

4:9-20 The exact genealogies of the remaining descendants of Judah are unknown—the Chronicler apparently had incomplete information.

4:9-10 The section on Jabez stands independently, allowing the Chronicler to explain the origin of his name; he is not mentioned previously, although Jabez was listed as the name of a town inhabited by some of the descendants of Hur's son Salma (2:55). Jabez sounds like a Hebrew word meaning "distress" or "pain." He received his name because he caused his mother pain, a fulfillment of the curse on Eve (Gen 3:16). Although his name was a curse, he was more honorable than any of his brothers, and his prayer changed the outcome of his life. The prayer is poetic; it consists of a plea for blessing followed by requests for prosperity and protection from harm. His last request might mean "keep me from causing trouble and pain." God listened to his prayer and removed his curse.

4:13-15 The name Kenaz also appears as a descendant of Esau by Eliphaz (Gen 36:11); his descendants are known as the Kenizzites. The Kenizzites lived in the southern part of the land and had affiliations with Judah and Edom. Caleb son of Jephunneh was a Kenizzite (Num 32:12; Josh 14:6) and had a brother named Kenaz (Josh 15:17), whose family is listed here.

4:13 and Meonothai: As in some Greek manuscripts and the Latin Vulgate; Hebrew lacks and Meonothai.

4:14 Joab, the founder of the Valley of Craftsmen: Or Joab, the father of Ge-harashim.

4:17 One of Mered's wives became: Or Jether's wife became; Hebrew reads She became.

4:18 Through Mered's wife Bithia, a daughter of Pharaoh, the descendants of Judah included children of Egyptian heritage.

4:21-23 Now that Judah's descendants through his wife Tamar have been recorded (2:4-4:20), the descendants of Shelah, Judah's third son through Bathshua, are listed (see 2:3; Gen 38:2, 5).

Other Tribes of Israel (4:24–5:26)Descendants of Simeon

- ²⁴The sons of Simeon were Jemuel, Jamin, Jarib, Zohar, and Shaul.
- ²⁵The descendants of Shaul were Shallum, Mibsam, and Mishma.
- ²⁶The descendants of Mishma were Hammuel, Zaccur, and Shimei.
- ²⁷Shimei had sixteen sons and six daughters, but none of his brothers had large families. So Simeon's tribe never grew as large as the tribe of Judah.
- ²⁸They lived in Beersheba, Moladah, Hazar-shual, ²⁹Billah, Ezem, Tolad, ³⁰Bethuel, Hormah, Ziklag, ³¹Beth-marcaboth, Hazar-susim, Beth-biri, and Shaaraim. These towns were under their control until the time of King David. ³²Their descendants also lived in Etam, Ain, Rimmon, Token, and Ashan—five towns ³³and their surrounding villages as far away as Baalath. This was their territory, and these names are listed in their genealogical records.
- ³⁴Other descendants of Simeon included Meshobab, Jamlech, Joshah son of Amaziah, ³⁵Joel, Jehu son of Joshibiah, son of Seraiah, son of Asiel, ³⁶Elioenai, Jaakobah, Jeshohaiah, Asaiah, Adiel, Jesimiel, Benaiah, ³⁷and Ziza son of Shiphi, son of Allon, son of Jedaiah, son of Shimri, son of Shemaiah.

³⁸These were the names of some of the leaders of Simeon's wealthy clans. Their families grew, ³⁹and they traveled to the region of Gerar, in the east part of the valley, seeking pastureland for their flocks. ⁴⁰They found lush pastures there, and the land was spacious, quiet, and peaceful.

Some of Ham's descendants had been living in that region. ⁴¹But during the reign of King Hezekiah of Judah, these leaders of Simeon invaded the region and completely destroyed the homes of the descendants of Ham and of the Meunites. No trace of them remains today. They killed everyone who lived there and took the land for themselves, because they wanted its good pastureland for their flocks. ⁴²Five hundred of these invaders from the tribe of Simeon went to Mount Seir, led by Pelatiah, Neariah, Rephaiah, and Uzziel—all sons of Ishi. ⁴³They destroyed the few Amalekites who had survived, and they have lived there ever since.

Descendants of Reuben

5 The oldest son of Israel was Reuben. But since he dishonored his father by sleeping with one of his father's concubines, his birthright was given to the sons of his brother Joseph. For this reason, Reuben is not listed in the genealogical records as the firstborn son. ²The descendants of Judah became the most powerful tribe and provided a ruler for the nation, but the birthright belonged to Joseph.

³The sons of Reuben, the oldest son of Israel, were Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi.

⁴The descendants of Joel were Shemaiah, Gog, Shimei, ⁵Micah, Reaiah, Baal, ⁶and Beerah. Beerah was the leader of the Reubenites when they were taken into captivity by King Tiglath-pileser of Assyria.

4:24–8:40 After completing the genealogy of Judah's descendants (2:3–4:23), the Chronicler turns to the records for the rest of the sons of Israel (cp. 2:1–2).

4:24–43 Simeon was Jacob's second son; his tribe's territory was in the southern part of Judah (Josh 19:1–9).

4:24 Jemuel: As in Syriac version (see also Gen 46:10; Exod 6:15); Hebrew reads Nemuel. • Zohar: As in parallel texts at Gen 46:10 and Exod 6:15; Hebrew reads Zerah.

4:33 Baalath: As in some Greek manuscripts (see also Josh 19:8); Hebrew reads Baal.

4:34–43 The list of men described as leaders of Simeon's wealthy clans (4:34–38) introduces the description of Simeon's geographic expansion (4:38–43). The tribe's expansion involved thirteen family leaders during the days of Hezekiah (late 700s BC) in the area of Gerar. This might have been part of Hezekiah's military action against Philistine territories (2 Kgs 18:8).

4:39 Gerar: As in Greek version; Hebrew reads Gedor. The actual territory is not certain, since Gedor is a common name; the Greek variant Gerar would refer to a city in Philistia, to the west of Judah (Gen 10:19).

4:41 completely destroyed: The Hebrew term used here refers to the complete consecration of things or people to the Lord, either by destroying them or by giving them as an offering (see Lev 27:28–29; 1 Sam 15:3).

5:1–24 Chapter 5 records the genealogies for Reuben (5:1–10; cp. Gen 46:9), Gad (5:11–17), and Manasseh (5:23–24), the tribes of Israel that settled in Transjordan (the area east of the Jordan River).

5:1–2 Although Reuben was the oldest son of Israel (Israel is the name God gave to Jacob; see Gen 32:28), he did not receive his birthright because he had sexual relations with his father's concubine (Gen 35:22). Jacob transferred this right to Joseph when he elevated Ephraim and Manasseh to full membership among the tribes (Gen 48:5). This gave Joseph the double portion that traditionally belonged to the firstborn (Deut 21:15–17). As Jacob foresaw, Judah surpassed his brothers and became the forefather of the ruling tribe (Gen 49:8–10). However, Reuben is still listed first (2:1).

5:2 and provided a ruler for the nation: Or and from Judah came a prince.

5:3 The sons of Reuben are also listed in Gen 46:9; Exod 6:14; Num 26:5–6.

5:4–8 The exact relationship between the descendants of Joel and the rest of the tribe of Reuben is unknown.

5:6 Tiglath-pileser (Hebrew Tilgath-pilneser, a variant spelling of Tiglath-pileser; also in 5:26) was king of Assyria ⁷Beerah's relatives are listed in their genealogical records by their clans: Jeiel (the leader), Zechariah,⁸ and Bela son of Azaz, son of Shema, son of Joel.

The Reubenites lived in the area that stretches from Aroer to Nebo and Baal-meon.⁹ And since they had so many livestock in the land of Gilead, they spread east toward the edge of the desert that stretches to the Euphrates River.

¹⁰During the reign of Saul, the Reubenites defeated the Hagrites in battle. Then they moved into the Hagrite settlements all along the eastern edge of Gilead.

Descendants of Gad

¹¹Next to the Reubenites, the descendants of Gad lived in the land of Bashan as far east as Salecah.¹² Joel was the leader in the land of Bashan, and Shapham was second-in-command, followed by Janai and Shaphat.

¹³Their relatives, the leaders of seven other clans, were Michael, Meshullam, Sheba, Jorai, Jacan, Zia, and Eber.¹⁴ These were all descendants of Abihail son of Huri, son of Jaroah, son of Gilead, son of Michael, son of Jeshishai, son of Jahdo, son of Buz.¹⁵ Ahi son of Abdiel, son of Guni, was the leader of their clans.

¹⁶The Gadites lived in the land of Gilead, in Bashan and its villages, and throughout all the pasturelands of Sharon.¹⁷ All of these were listed in the genealogical records during the days of King Jotham of Judah and King Jeroboam of Israel.

The Tribes East of the Jordan

¹⁸There were 44,760 capable warriors in the armies of Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh. They were all skilled in combat and armed with shields, swords, and bows.¹⁹ They waged war against the Hagrites, the Jeturites, the Naphishites, and the Nodabites.²⁰ They cried out to God during the battle, and he answered their prayer because they trusted in him. So the Hagrites and all their allies were defeated.²¹ The plunder taken from the Hagrites included 50,000 camels, 250,000 sheep and goats, 2,000 donkeys, and 100,000 captives.²² Many of the Hagrites were killed in the battle because God was fighting against them. The people of Reuben, Gad, and Manasseh lived in their land until they were taken into exile.

²³The half-tribe of Manasseh was very large and spread through the land from Bashan to Baal-hermon, Senir, and Mount Hermon.²⁴ These were the leaders of their clans: Ephraim, Ishi, Eliel, Azriel, Jeremiah, Hodaviah, and Jahdiel. These men had a great reputation as mighty warriors and leaders of their clans.

²⁵But these tribes were unfaithful to the God of their ancestors. They worshiped the gods of the nations that God had destroyed.²⁶ So the God of Israel caused King Pul of Assyria (also known as Tiglath-pileser) to invade the land and take away the people of Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh as captives. The Assyrians exiled them to Halah, Habor, Hara, and the Gozan River, where they remain to this day.

The Priestly Line (6:1-81)

The High Priests from Aaron to Exile

6 The sons of Levi were Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.

²The descendants of Kohath included Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel.

(744–727 BC); he attacked the tribes of Transjordan during King Pekah's reign (752–732 BC), taking the people into captivity (see 5:25-26; 2 Kgs 15:29).

5:7 Beerah's: Literally His.

5:10 The tribes of Transjordan, including the Reubenites, expanded their settlements to the north and east in conjunction with their war with the Hagrites in the days of Saul (see 5:18-22; Ps 83:6). Later, the Hagrites were among David's men (see 11:38; 27:31).

5:18-22 The account of the war against the Hagrites develops the elements introduced in 5:10. It was a struggle among shepherds over grazing territory. All three tribes were participants; the Chronicler details their prowess, military qualifications, and numbers. With God . . . fighting against the enemy, the victory resulted in enormous spoils and total possession of the territory.

5:24 Epher: As in Greek version and Latin Vulgate; Hebrew reads and Ephraim.

5:25-26 The tribes of Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh went into permanent exile because of unfaithfulness (see "Covenant Unfaithfulness" at 10:13-14, p. 701).

6:1-81 By its substantial scope and placement in the center of the genealogical lists, this section gives special significance to the priestly tribe of Levi.

6:1-48 This section provides the genealogies of the three most significant groups of the tribe of Levi: the high priests (6:1-15), the three clans of Levites (6:16-30), and the singers (6:31-47). Each genealogy begins with an introduction, followed by the list of names.

6:1-15 Verses 6:1-15 are numbered 5:27-41 in the Hebrew text.

6:1 The three sons of Levi are introduced, but their actual genealogies are postponed to follow the list of high priests.

6:2-15 After the Exile, the community of Judea, for whom Chronicles was written, needed to establish unequivocally the legitimate ancestry of the priests. This genealogy of Kohath established continuity between the ancestors known from the Pentateuch and the later high priests down to the Exile of Judah in 586 BC; other records connected the priests following the Exile with this line (see Ezra 3:2; 7:1-6; Hag 1:1). Not all who served as high priest were included in this listing.

- ³The children of Amram were Aaron, Moses, and Miriam.
The sons of Aaron were Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar.
⁴Eleazar was the father of Phinehas. Phinehas was the father of Abishua.
⁵Abishua was the father of Bukki. Bukki was the father of Uzzi.
⁶Uzzi was the father of Zerariah. Zerariah was the father of Meraioth.
⁷Meraioth was the father of Amariah. Amariah was the father of Ahitub.
⁸Ahitub was the father of Zadok. Zadok was the father of Ahimaaz.
⁹Ahimaaz was the father of Azariah. Azariah was the father of Johanan.
¹⁰Johanan was the father of Azariah, the high priest at the Temple built by Solomon in Jerusalem.
¹¹Azariah was the father of Amariah. Amariah was the father of Ahitub.
¹²Ahitub was the father of Zadok. Zadok was the father of Shallum.
¹³Shallum was the father of Hilkiah. Hilkiah was the father of Azariah.
¹⁴Azariah was the father of Seraiah. Seraiah was the father of Jehozadak, ¹⁵who went into exile when the LORD sent the people of Judah and Jerusalem into captivity under Nebuchadnezzar.

The Clans of the Levites

- ¹⁶The sons of Levi were Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.
¹⁷The descendants of Gershon included Libni and Shimei.
¹⁸The descendants of Kohath included Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel.
¹⁹The descendants of Merari included Mahli and Mushi.

The following were the Levite clans, listed according to their ancestral descent:

- ²⁰The descendants of Gershon included Libni, Jahath, Zimmah, ²¹Joah, Iddo, Zerah, and Jeatherai.
²²The descendants of Kohath included Amminadab, Korah, Assir, ²³Elkanah, Abiasaph, Assir, ²⁴Tahath, Uriel, Uzziel, and Shaul.
²⁵The descendants of Elkanah included Amasai, Ahimoth, ²⁶Elkanah, Zophai, Nahath, ²⁷Eliab, Jeroham, Elkanah, and Samuel.
²⁸The sons of Samuel were Joel (the older) and Abijah (the second).
²⁹The descendants of Merari included Mahli, Libni, Shimei, Uziah, ³⁰Shimea, Haggiah, and Asaiah.

The Temple Musicians

³¹David assigned the following men to lead the music at the house of the LORD after the Ark was placed there. ³²They ministered with music at the Tabernacle until Solomon built the Temple of the LORD in Jerusalem. They carried out their work, following all the regulations handed down to them. ³³These are the men who served, along with their sons:

Heman the musician was from the clan of Kohath. His genealogy was traced back through Joel, Samuel, ³⁴Elkanah, Jeroham, Eliel, Toah, ³⁵Zuph, Elkanah, Mahath, Amasai, ³⁶Elkanah, Joel, Azariah, Zephaniah, ³⁷Tahath, Assir, Abiasaph, Korah, ³⁸Izhar, Kohath, Levi, and Israel.
³⁹Heman's first assistant was Asaph from the clan of Gershon. Asaph's genealogy was traced back through Berekiah, Shimea, ⁴⁰Michael, Baaseiah, Malkijah, ⁴¹Ethni, Zerah, Adaiah, ⁴²Ethan, Zimmah, Shimei, ⁴³Jahath, Gershon, and Levi.
⁴⁴Heman's second assistant was Ethan from the clan of Merari. Ethan's genealogy was traced back through Kishi, Abdi, Malluch, ⁴⁵Hashabiah, 6:10 Most OT scholars agree that the phrase the high priest at the Temple built by Solomon in Jerusalem belongs in 6:9 (connected to the first Azariah) but that the order was transposed through a scribal error. Making this correction yields 12 generations between Aaron and the building of the Temple, which conforms to the date in 1 Kgs 6:1 (480 years is the equivalent of 12 generations of 40 years each in numerical typology). The correction also results in 12 generations between the building of the Temple under Azariah to the rebuilding of the Temple under Jeshua (Ezra 3:2). • the Temple: Literally the house.

6:16-81 Verses 6:16-81 are numbered 6:1-66 in the Hebrew text.

6:16-30 The second introduction of the Levites (6:16-19a) introduces the heads of all the Levitical families (6:19b-30). The list contains the genealogies of Gershon (6:20-21), Kohath (6:22-28), and Merari (6:29-30).

6:33 Heman held the lead position among David's singers (see Ps 88:TITLE).

⁴⁷Mahli, Mushi, Merari, and Levi.

⁴⁸Their fellow Levites were appointed to various other tasks in the Tabernacle, the house of God.

Aaron's Descendants

⁴⁹Only Aaron and his descendants served as priests. They presented the offerings on the altar of burnt offering and the altar of incense, and they performed all the other duties related to the Most Holy Place. They made atonement for Israel by doing everything that Moses, the servant of God, had commanded them.

⁵⁰The descendants of Aaron were Eleazar, Phinehas, Abishua, ⁵¹Bukki, Uzzi, Zerariah, ⁵²Meraioth, Amariah, Ahitub, ⁵³Zadok, and Ahimaaz.

Territory for the Levites

⁵⁴This is a record of the towns and territory assigned by means of sacred lots to the descendants of Aaron, who were from the clan of Kohath. ⁵⁵This territory included Hebron and its surrounding pasturelands in Judah, ⁵⁶but the fields and outlying areas belonging to the city were given to Caleb son of Jephunneh. ⁵⁷So the descendants of Aaron were given the following towns, each with its pasturelands: Hebron (a city of refuge), Libnah, Jattir, Eshtemoa, ⁵⁸Holon, Debir, ⁵⁹Ain, Juttah, and Beth-shemesh. ⁶⁰And from the territory of Benjamin they were given Gibeon, Geba, Alemeth, and Anathoth, each with its pasturelands. So thirteen towns were given to the descendants of Aaron. ⁶¹The remaining descendants of Kohath received ten towns from the territory of the half-tribe of Manasseh by means of sacred lots.

⁶²The descendants of Gershon received by sacred lots thirteen towns from the territories of Issachar, Asher, Naphtali, and from the Bashan area of Manasseh, east of the Jordan.

⁶³The descendants of Merari received by sacred lots twelve towns from the territories of Reuben, Gad, and Zebulun.

⁶⁴So the people of Israel assigned all these towns and pasturelands to the Levites.

⁶⁵The towns in the territories of Judah, Simeon, and Benjamin, mentioned above, were assigned to them by means of sacred lots.

6:49 This explanation of the priests' prerogatives introduces the list that follows.

6:50-53 The list of priests from Aaron to Ahimaaz provides an introduction to the territorial list (6:54-81). The list runs down to David's time, when Ahimaaz served (2 Sam 15:36; 17:17-29; 18:19-29).

6:54-81 The list of Levitical cities is derived from Josh 21, following a geographical logic, with families grouped in defined geographical districts. To show the unity and completeness of Israel, the territorial list presents the Levites as settled in the land to the same extent as the other tribes.

6:57 were given the following towns, each with its pasturelands: Hebron (a city of refuge): As in parallel text at Josh 21:13; Hebrew reads were given the cities of refuge: Hebron, and the following towns, each with its pasturelands.

6:58 Holon: As in Josh 21:15; Masoretic Text reads Hilez; other manuscripts read Hilen.

6:59 Ain: As in parallel text at Josh 21:16; Hebrew reads Ashan. • This sentence is translated as in Syriac version (see also Josh 21:16); Hebrew lacks Juttah.

6:60 This sentence follows the parallel text at Josh 21:17; Hebrew lacks Gibeon.

6:66-67 were given the following towns from the territory of Ephraim, each with its pasturelands: Shechem (a city of refuge in the hill country of Ephraim): As in parallel text at Josh 21:21; Hebrew text reads were given the cities of refuge: Shechem in the hill country of Ephraim, and the following towns, each with its pasturelands.

6:77 Jokneam, Kartah: As in Greek version (see also Josh 21:34); Hebrew lacks Jokneam, Kartah. • Rimmon: As in Greek version (see also Josh 19:13); Hebrew reads Rimmona.

6:78 Jahaz: Hebrew Jahzah, a variant spelling of Jahaz.

Other Tribes of Israel (7:1–8:40)Military Roll of Issachar

7 The four sons of Issachar were Tola, Puah, Jashub, and Shimron.

²The sons of Tola were Uzzi, Rephaiah, Jeriel, Jahmai, Ibsam, and Shemuel. Each of them was the leader of an ancestral clan. At the time of King David, the total number of mighty warriors listed in the records of these clans was 22,600.

³The son of Uzzi was Izrahiah. The sons of Izrahiah were Michael, Obadiah, Joel, and Isshiah. These five became the leaders of clans. ⁴All of them had many wives and many sons, so the total number of men available for military service among their descendants was 36,000.

⁵The total number of mighty warriors from all the clans of the tribe of Issachar was 87,000. All of them were listed in their genealogical records.

Military Roll of Benjamin

⁶Three of Benjamin's sons were Bela, Beker, and Jediah.

⁷The five sons of Bela were Ezbon, Uzzi, Uzziel, Jerimoth, and Iri. Each of them was the leader of an ancestral clan. The total number of mighty warriors from these clans was 22,034, as listed in their genealogical records.

⁸The sons of Beker were Zemirah, Joash, Eliezer, Elieonai, Omri, Jeremoth, Abijah, Anathoth, and Alemeth. ⁹Each of them was the leader of an ancestral clan. The total number of mighty warriors and leaders from these clans was 20,200, as listed in their genealogical records.

¹⁰The son of Jediah was Bilhan. The sons of Bilhan were Jeush, Benjamin, Ehud, Kenaanah, Zethan, Tarshish, and Ahishahar. ¹¹Each of them was the leader of an ancestral clan. From these clans the total number of mighty warriors ready for war was 17,200.

¹²The sons of Ir were Shuppmim and Huppmim. Hushim was the son of Aher.

Descendants of Naphtali

¹³The sons of Naphtali were Jahzeel, Guni, Jezer, and Shillem. They were all descendants of Jacob's concubine Bilhah.

Descendants of Manasseh

¹⁴The descendants of Manasseh through his Aramean concubine included Asriel. She also bore Makir, the father of Gilead.

¹⁵Makir found wives for Huppmim and Shuppmim. Makir had a sister named Maacah. One of his descendants was Zelophehad, who had only daughters.

¹⁶Makir's wife, Maacah, gave birth to a son whom she named Peresh. His brother's name was Sheresh. The sons of Peresh were Ulam and Rakem. ¹⁷The son of Ulam was Bedan. All these were considered Gileadites, descendants of Makir son of Manasseh.

¹⁸Makir's sister Hammoleketh gave birth to Ishhod, Abiezer, and Mahlah.

¹⁹The sons of Shemida were Ahian, Shechem, Likhi, and Aniam.

Descendants of Ephraim

²⁰The descendants of Ephraim were Shuthelah, Bered, Tahath, Eleadah, Tahath, ²¹Zabad, Shuthelah, Ezer, and Elead. These two were killed trying to 7:1-40 In this chapter, the genealogies of the remaining tribes of Israel are given. • The sections on the tribes of Issachar, Benjamin, and Asher might have been derived from a military census; the lists are of nearly equal length, emphasize military terminology, record the father's houses, and provide no information on settlements. • The tribes of Zebulun and Dan are omitted entirely, and Naphtali has a very brief record (see notes on 7:12, 13).

7:12 The Hebrew text of this verse appears to have been disrupted (something was apparently lost during scribal copying) because no introduction is given for either Ir or Hushim. The names Shuppmim and Huppmim have parallels in the tribe of Benjamin (8:8, 11; Gen 46:21; Num 26:39). If the Hebrew text was in fact damaged, Hushim might be a descendant of Dan (cp. Gen 46:23; Num 26:42).

7:13 In contrast with other genealogies, this abrupt listing of the sons of Naphtali includes only the first generation (cp. Gen 46:24; Num 26:48-50). The manuscript of Chronicles might have suffered damage at an early stage of scribal copying, which could also account for the omission of Dan and Zebulun (see note on 7:1-40). It is also possible that the records for Zebulun, Dan, and Naphtali were lost when Tiglath-pileser attacked and exiled these tribes during Pekah's reign (2 Kgs 15:29); in that case, the Chronicler had no records available to include. • Jahzeel: As in parallel text at Gen 46:24; Hebrew reads Jahziel, a variant spelling of Jahzeel. • Shillem: As in some Hebrew and Greek manuscripts (see also Gen 46:24; Num 26:49); most Hebrew manuscripts read Shallum.

7:14-19 Several difficulties in these verses might indicate that the Hebrew text was damaged (see notes on 7:12, 13): (1) Maacah is listed as the sister of Makir as well as his wife (7:15-16). (2) Huppmim and Shuppmim were listed earlier with Benjamin (7:12), not Manasseh. (3) Those considered Gileadites (7:16-17) are rather ambiguously linked to Gilead, whose direct descendants are not listed (cp. Num 26:30-33). (4) The sons of Shemida are not connected to the genealogy (7:19); Shemida was one of Gilead's descendants (Num 26:32).

7:15 Makir found wives for: Or Makir took a wife from. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

7:20-27 The genealogy of the descendants of Ephraim includes a story illustrating the circumstances of the tribe's settlement in Canaan (7:21-24). The genealogy ends with Joshua son of Nun, who led Israel into the Promised Land.

steal livestock from the local farmers near Gath. ²²Their father, Ephraim, mourned for them a long time, and his relatives came to comfort him.

²³Afterward Ephraim slept with his wife, and she became pregnant and gave birth to a son. Ephraim named him Beriah because of the tragedy his family had suffered. ²⁴He had a daughter named Sheerah. She built the towns of Lower and Upper Beth-horon and Uzzen-sheerah.

²⁵The descendants of Ephraim included Rephah, Resheph, Telah, Tahan, ²⁶Ladan, Ammihud, Elishama, ²⁷Nun, and Joshua.

²⁸The descendants of Ephraim lived in the territory that included Bethel and its surrounding towns to the south, Naaran to the east, Gezer and its villages to the west, and Shechem and its surrounding villages to the north as far as Ayyah and its towns. ²⁹Along the border of Manasseh were the towns of Beth-shan, Taanach, Megiddo, Dor, and their surrounding villages. The descendants of Joseph son of Israel lived in these towns.

Descendants of Asher

³⁰The sons of Asher were Imnah, Ishvah, Ishvi, and Beriah. They had a sister named Serah.

³¹The sons of Beriah were Heber and Malkiel (the father of Birzaith).

³²The sons of Heber were Japhlet, Shomer, and Hotham. They had a sister named Shua.

³³The sons of Japhlet were Pasach, Bimhal, and Ashvath.

³⁴The sons of Shomer were Ahi, Rohgah, Hubbah, and Aram.

³⁵The sons of his brother Helem were Zophah, Imna, Shelesh, and Amal.

³⁶The sons of Zophah were Suah, Harnepher, Shual, Beri, Imrah, ³⁷Bezer, Hod, Shamma, Shilshah, Ithran, and Beera.

³⁸The sons of Jether were Jephunneh, Pispah, and Ara.

³⁹The sons of Ulla were Arah, Hanniel, and Rizia.

⁴⁰Each of these descendants of Asher was the head of an ancestral clan. They were all select men—mighty warriors and outstanding leaders. The total number of men available for military service was 26,000, as listed in their genealogical records.

Descendants of Benjamin

8 Benjamin's first son was Bela, the second was Ashbel, the third was Aharah, ²the fourth was Nohah, and the fifth was Rapha.

³The sons of Bela were Addar, Gera, Abihud, ⁴Abishua, Naaman, Ahoah, ⁵Gera, Shephuphan, and Huram.

⁶The sons of Ehud, leaders of the clans living at Geba, were exiled to Manahath. ⁷Ehud's sons were Naaman, Ahijah, and Gera. Gera, who led them into exile, was the father of Uzza and Ahihud.

⁸After Shaharaim divorced his wives Hushim and Baara, he had children in the land of Moab. ⁹His wife Hodesh gave birth to Jobab, Zibia, Mesha, Malcam, ¹⁰Jeuz, Sakia, and Mirmah. These sons all became the leaders of clans.

¹⁴Ahio, Shashak, Jeremoth, ¹⁵Zebadiah, Arad, Eder, ¹⁶Michael, Ishpah, and Joha were the sons of Beriah.

¹⁷Zebadiah, Meshullam, Hizki, Heber,

7:22 The father of Ezer and Elead is recorded as Ephraim, but Ephraim the son of Joseph could not have settled in Canaan after the Exodus. The traditional solution was to imagine an early exodus for the family of Ephraim. Other possibilities are that the name Ephraim is a scribal mistake or that Ephraim referred to the tribe rather than the son of Joseph who bore the name.

7:23 Beriah sounds like a Hebrew term meaning "tragedy" or "misfortune."

7:29 Beth-shan: Hebrew Beth-shean, a variant spelling of Beth-shan. • Israel is the name that God gave to Jacob.

7:34 The sons of Shomer were Ahi: Or The sons of Shomer, his brother, were. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

7:35 Helem: Possibly another name for Hotham; cp. 7:32.

7:37 Ithran: Possibly another name for Jether; cp. 7:38.

8:1-40 The genealogy of Benjamin's descendants brings the genealogies to a close. The record began with Judah, the tribe of David; it ends with Benjamin, the tribe of Saul.

8:3 Gera, Abihud: Possibly Gera the father of Ehud; cp. 8:6. If so, the second Gera was the first Gera's son. As translated, Bela had two sons named Gera (8:3, 5), an unusual situation.

8:6-28 This list reports the militia from the clans of Ehud (8:6-7) and Shaharaim (8:8-28), who lived in the vicinity of Jerusalem.

8:7 Gera, who led them into exile, was the father of Uzza and Ahihud: Or Gera, that is Heglam, was the father of Uzza and Ahihud. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. This exile is unknown; it might have been a voluntary emigration from the territory of Benjamin, perhaps during the period of the judges.

- ¹⁸Ishmerai, Izliah, and Jobab were the sons of Elpaal.
- ¹⁹Jakim, Zicri, Zabdi, ²⁰Elienai, Zillethai, Eliel, ²¹Adaiah, Beraiah, and Shimrath were the sons of Shimei.
- ²²Ishpan, Eber, Eliel, ²³Abdon, Zicri, Hanan, ²⁴Hananiah, Elam, Anthothijah, ²⁵Iphdeiah, and Penuel were the sons of Shashak.
- ²⁶Shamsheraï, Shehariah, Athaliah, ²⁷Jareshiah, Elijah, and Zicri were the sons of Jeroham.
- ²⁸These were the leaders of the ancestral clans; they were listed in their genealogical records, and they all lived in Jerusalem.

²⁹Jeiel (the father of Gibeon) lived in the town of Gibeon. His wife's name was Maacah, ³⁰and his oldest son was named Abdon. Jeiel's other sons were Zur, Kish, Baal, Ner, Nadab, ³¹Gedor, Ahio, Zechariah, ³²and Mikloth, who was the father of Shimeam. All these families lived near each other in Jerusalem.

Kish was the father of Saul.
Saul was the father of Jonathan,
Malkishua, Abinadab, and Esh-baal.
- ³⁴Jonathan was the father of Merib-baal.
Merib-baal was the father of Micah.
- ³⁵Micah was the father of Pithon, Melech, Tahrea, and Ahaz.
- ³⁶Ahaz was the father of Jadah.
Jadah was the father of Alemeth,
Aznaveth, and Zimri.

- Zimri was the father of Moza.
- ³⁷Moza was the father of Binea.
Binea was the father of Rephaiah.
Rephaiah was the father of Eleasah.
Eleasah was the father of Azel.
- ³⁸Azel had six sons: Azrikam, Bokeru, Ishmael, Sheariah, Obadiah, and Hanan. These were the sons of Azel.
- ³⁹Azel's brother Eshek had three sons: the first was Ulam, the second was Jeush, and the third was Eliphelet. ⁴⁰Ulam's sons were all mighty warriors and expert archers. They had many sons and grandsons—150 in all.

All these were descendants of Benjamin.

Israel's Return to Its Inheritance (9:1-34) Official Records of Israel

9 So all Israel was listed in the genealogical records in The Book of the Kings of Israel.

The Exiles Return to Jerusalem

The people of Judah were exiled to Babylon because they were unfaithful to the LORD.

²The first of the exiles to return to their property in their former towns were priests, Levites, Temple servants, and other Israelites. ³Some of the people from the tribes of Judah, Benjamin, Ephraim, and Manasseh came and settled in Jerusalem.

⁴One family that returned was that of Uthai son of Ammihud, son of Omri, son of Imri, son of Bani, a descendant of Perez son of Judah.

⁵Others returned from the Shilonite clan,

8:33-40 The Chronicler concludes his record of Benjamin's history with the genealogy of Saul, beginning two generations before Saul and extending through Merib-baal (=Mephibosheth; see note on 2 Sam 4:4) and down to the families of Azel and Eshek (8:38-40). Micah (8:35) lived in the time of Solomon, and Ulam (8:39) lived near the end of the kingdom of Judah before the destruction of Jerusalem. Thus, Saul is connected with his larger tribal history and with a noble heritage that carried on throughout the kingdom period.

9:1-34 The Chronicler shows how people and institutions who returned from the Exile had continuity with the past. The Levites and the priests are prominent in this summary of Israel, expressing the Chronicler's view that they were central to the organization of the nation. They were crucial to Israel's function and success as a nation where God was the King. The Chronicler drew upon the records of ancient times as far back as Moses and David (9:19-22) to describe each group's homeland and rank.

9:1 The statement that all Israel was listed in the genealogical records reveals the crux of the Chronicler's thought, that all Israel was represented by the community of Judea in the time of the Chronicler, which had continuity with Israel's past. • The Book of the Kings of Israel is a source document that the authors of both Kings and Chronicles used but has now been lost (see also note on 1 Kgs 14:19-20). • The people of Judah were exiled for unfaithfulness, as the other tribes had been (5:25-26; 6:15; see 2 Chr 36:20-21).

9:3-9 settled in Jerusalem: Jerusalem had always been at the center of all Israel, and people from all the tribes lived there, both before and after the Exile. This statement affirms the inclusion of some members of the northern tribes among those who returned from exile.

including Asaiah (the oldest) and his sons.

⁶From the Zerahite clan, Jeuel returned with his relatives.

In all, 690 families from the tribe of Judah returned.

⁷From the tribe of Benjamin came Sallu son of Meshullam, son of Hodaviah, son of Hassenuah; ⁸Ibneiah son of Jeroham; Elah son of Uzzi, son of Micri; and Meshullam son of Shephatiah, son of Reuel, son of Ibniyah.

⁹These men were all leaders of clans, and they were listed in their genealogical records. In all, 956 families from the tribe of Benjamin returned.

The Returning Priests

¹⁰Among the priests who returned were Jedaiah, Jehoiarib, Jakin, ¹¹Azariah son of Hilkiah, son of Meshullam, son of Zadok, son of Meraioth, son of Ahitub. Azariah was the chief officer of the house of God.

¹²Other returning priests were Adaiah son of Jeroham, son of Pashhur, son of Malkijah, and Maasai son of Adiel, son of Jahzerah, son of Meshullam, son of Meshillemith, son of Immer.

¹³In all, 1,760 priests returned. They were heads of clans and very able men. They were responsible for ministering at the house of God.

The Returning Levites

¹⁴The Levites who returned were Shemaiah son of Hasshub, son of Azrikam, son of Hashabiah, a descendant of Merari;

¹⁵Bakbakkar; Heresh; Galal; Mattaniah son of Mica, son of Zicri, son of Asaph;

¹⁶Obadiah son of Shemaiah, son of Galal, son of Jeduthun; and Berekiah son of Asa, son of Elkanah, who lived in the area of Netophah.

¹⁷The gatekeepers who returned were Shallum, Akkub, Talmon, Ahiman, and their relatives. Shallum was the chief gatekeeper. ¹⁸Prior to this time, they were responsible for the King's Gate on the east side. These men served as gatekeepers for the camps of the Levites. ¹⁹Shallum was the son of Kore, a descendant of Abiasaph, from the clan of Korah. He and his relatives, the Korahites, were responsible for guarding the entrance to the sanctuary, just as their ancestors had guarded the Tabernacle in the camp of the LORD.

²⁰Phinehas son of Eleazar had been in charge of the gatekeepers in earlier times, and the LORD had been with him.

²¹And later Zechariah son of Meshelemiah was responsible for guarding the entrance to the Tabernacle.

²²In all, there were 212 gatekeepers in those days, and they were listed according to the genealogies in their villages. David and Samuel the seer had appointed their ancestors because they were reliable men. ²³These gatekeepers and their descendants, by their divisions, were responsible for guarding the entrance to the house of the LORD when that house was a tent. ²⁴The gatekeepers were stationed on all four sides—east, west, north, and south. ²⁵Their relatives in the villages came regularly to share their duties for seven-day periods.

²⁶The four chief gatekeepers, all Levites, were trusted officials, for they were responsible for the rooms and treasures at the house of God. ²⁷They would spend the night around the house of God, since it was their duty to guard it and to open the gates every morning.

²⁸Some of the gatekeepers were assigned to care for the various articles used in worship. They checked them in and out to avoid any loss. ²⁹Others were responsible for the furnishings, the items in the sanctuary, and the supplies, such as choice flour, wine, olive oil, frankincense, and spices. ³⁰But it was the priests who blended the spices. ³¹Mattithiah, a Levite and the oldest son of Shallum the Korahite, was entrusted with baking the bread used in the offerings. ³²And some members of the clan of Kohath were in charge of preparing the bread to be set on the table each Sabbath day.

³³The musicians, all prominent Levites, lived at the Temple. They were exempt from other responsibilities since they were on duty at all hours. ³⁴All these men lived in Jerusalem. They were the heads of Levite Binea's son was Rephaiah.

The Death of King Saul

1 Chr 10:1-14 // 1 Sam 31:1-13

10 Now the Philistines attacked Israel, and the men of Israel fled before them. Many were slaughtered on the slopes of Mount Gilboa. ²The Philistines closed in on Saul and his sons, and they killed three of his sons—Jonathan, Abinadab, and Malkishua. ³The fighting grew very fierce around Saul, and the Philistine archers caught up with him and wounded him.

⁴Saul groaned to his armor bearer, "Take your sword and kill me before these pagan Philistines come to taunt and torture me."

But his armor bearer was afraid and would not do it. So Saul took his own sword and fell on it. ⁵When his armor bearer realized that Saul was dead, he fell on his own sword and died. ⁶So Saul and his three sons died there together, bringing his dynasty to an end.

⁷When all the Israelites in the Jezreel Valley saw that their army had fled and that Saul and his sons were dead, they abandoned their towns and fled. So the Philistines moved in and occupied their towns.

¹¹But when everyone in Jabesh-gilead heard about everything the Philistines had done to Saul, ¹²all their mighty warriors brought the bodies of Saul and his sons back to Jabesh. Then they buried their bones beneath the great tree at Jabesh, and they fasted for seven days.

¹³So Saul died because he was unfaithful to the LORD. He failed to obey the LORD's command, and he even consulted a medium ¹⁴instead of asking the LORD for guidance. So the LORD killed him and turned the kingdom over to David son of Jesse.

10:1-14 The narrative of Israel as a kingdom begins with the death of Saul, who failed to fulfill God's purposes for him as king and for Israel as a nation. Saul's death prepares the way for David, whom the Chronicler regarded as the first true king of Israel.

10:6-12 Saul and his three sons died . . . bringing his dynasty to an end: The Chronicler does not mention Saul's armor bearer or the rest of his troops (see 1 Sam 31:6), emphasizing God's action in removing Saul and replacing him with David (10:14).

11:1-3 David first became king of Judah at Hebron and ruled there 7½ years (3:4; 2 Sam 5:5). The Chronicler omits the account of that period (see 2 Sam 2-4) and focuses on David's reign over the entire nation for 33½ years, beginning with his covenant . . . with all the elders of Israel at Hebron (see 2 Sam 5:1-5).

David Captures Jerusalem

1 Chr 11:4-9 // 2 Sam 5:6-10

⁴Then David and all Israel went to Jerusalem (or Jebus, as it used to be called), where the Jebusites, the original inhabitants of the land, were living. ⁵The people of Jebus taunted David, saying, "You'll never get in here!" But David captured the fortress of Zion, which is now called the City of David.

⁶David had said to his troops, "Whoever is first to attack the Jebusites will become the commander of my armies!" And Joab, the son of David's sister Zeruiah, was first to attack, so he became the commander of David's armies.

⁷David made the fortress his home, and that is why it is called the City of David. ⁸He extended the city from the supporting terraces to the surrounding area, while Joab rebuilt the rest of Jerusalem. ⁹And David became more and more powerful, because the LORD of Heaven's Armies was with him.

Covenant Unfaithfulness (10:13-14)

The Chronicler needed to explain the failure of Israel as a kingdom. So after establishing the genealogical framework (chs 1-9) he started and ended his narrative by describing the unfaithfulness of Israel's rulers (10:13-14; 2 Chr 36:14).

The rejection of Saul's dynasty (ch 10) exemplified and set the pattern for the rejection of Judah and the Exile that followed. God rejected Saul because of his disobedience and unfaithfulness (10:13-14). Instead of seeking and consulting the Lord, Saul sought and consulted a medium, an act specifically forbidden in the covenant (Deut 18:11-12). God rejected Saul's family from ruling Israel and brought his dynasty to an end (10:6).

Just as it had been with Saul, so it was with the kingdom of Judah: Unfaithfulness brought judgment. When Rehoboam "abandoned the law of the LORD," his unfaithfulness resulted in the invasion by Pharaoh Shishak of Egypt (2 Chr 12:1-2). When Uzziah attempted to act in the role of a priest (2 Chr 26:16-18), his unfaithfulness resulted in his contracting leprosy. When Ahaz sought the assistance of the Assyrian kings, worshiped the gods of Damascus, and actually closed the Temple (2 Chr 28:16-25), his unfaithfulness "aroused the anger of the LORD" (2 Chr 28:25). When Manasseh rebuilt the pagan shrines and promoted false worship in Judah (2 Chr 33:1-9), his unfaithfulness (2 Chr 33:19) led Judah into the sins that later brought about judgment and exile (see 2 Chr 33:22; 2 Kgs 23:26; 24:3). The Chronicler summarized the final demise of Judah as the unfaithfulness of all of its leaders who followed the practices of pagan nations and polluted the Lord's Temple (2 Chr 36:14).

Unfaithfulness to the Lord violates his covenant and alienates an individual or a nation from the Lord. Unfaithfulness results in idolatry, greed, and injustice. Unfaithfulness brings judgment, just as the prophet Micah warned during the time of Ahaz (see Mic 6:9-16).

Avoiding God's judgment does not involve more sacrifices or religiosity (see Isa 1:10-20). Instead, the solution to unfaithfulness is seeking the Lord, becoming faithful to him, and walking humbly with him (2 Chr 7:14; Mic 6:6-8). The way to restore covenant fellowship with God is to repent and seek him. Both Rehoboam (2 Chr 12:6-7) and Manasseh (2 Chr 33:12-19) followed this path, and both of these kings experienced God's mercy. But other unfaithful kings died in their sins, and the unfaithful nation was destroyed.

11:4-9 David's conquest and rebuilding of Jerusalem established it as the capital city of his reign over all Israel.

11:8 the supporting terraces: Hebrew the millo. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain; see note on 1 Kgs 9:15.

11:10-19 This account of David's mighty warriors demonstrates that David had the support of Israel's best and bravest men, as well as the support of all Israel (cp. 2 Sam 23:8-39).

11:10 just as the LORD had promised: David's kingship was God's choice, not David's or the people's (cp. 11:3; 1 Sam 16:11-14).

11:11 leader of the Three—the mightiest warriors among David's men: As in some Greek manuscripts (see also 2 Sam 23:8); Hebrew reads leader of the Thirty, or leader of the captains.

Hacmonite, who was leader of the Three—the mightiest warriors among David's men. He once used his spear to kill 300 enemy warriors in a single battle.

¹⁵Once when David was at the rock near the cave of Adullam, the Philistine army was camped in the valley of Rephaim. The Three (who were among the Thirty—an elite group among David's fighting men) went down to meet him there. ¹⁶David was staying in the stronghold at the time, and a Philistine detachment had occupied the town of Bethlehem.

¹⁷David remarked longingly to his men, "Oh, how I would love some of that good water from the well by the gate in Bethlehem." ¹⁸So the Three broke through the Philistine lines, drew some water from the well by the gate in Bethlehem, and brought it back to David. But David refused to drink it. Instead, he poured it out as an offering to the LORD. ¹⁹"God forbid that I should drink this!" he exclaimed. "This water is as precious as the blood of these men who risked their lives to bring it to me." So David did not drink it. These are examples of the exploits of the Three.

The Thirty: David's Mighty Men

1 Chr 11:20-47 // 2 Sam 23:18-39

²⁰Abishai, the brother of Joab, was the leader of the Thirty. He once used his spear to kill 300 enemy warriors in a single battle. It was by such feats that he became as famous as the Three. ²¹Abishai was the most famous of the Thirty and was their commander, though he was not one of the Three.

²²There was also Benaiah son of Jehoiada, a valiant warrior from Kabzeel. He did many heroic deeds, which included killing two champions of Moab. Another time, on a snowy day, he chased a lion down into a pit and killed it. ²³Once, armed only with a club, he killed an Egyptian warrior who was 7½ feet tall and who was armed with a spear as thick as a weaver's beam. Benaiah wrenched the spear from the Egyptian's hand and killed him with it. ²⁴Deeds like these made Benaiah as famous as the three mightiest warriors. ²⁵He was more honored than the other members of the Thirty, though he was not one of the Three. And David made him captain of his bodyguard.

²⁶David's mighty warriors also included:

- Asahel, Joab's brother;
- Elhanan son of Dodo from Bethlehem;

Warriors Join David when a Fugitive

12 The following men joined David at Ziklag while he was hiding from Saul son of Kish. They were among the warriors who fought beside David in battle. ²All of them were expert archers, and they could shoot arrows or sling stones with their left hand as well as their right. They were all relatives of Saul from the tribe of Benjamin. ³Their leader was Ahiezer son of Shemaah from Gibeah; his brother Joash was second-in-command. These were the other warriors:

- Jeziel and Pelet, sons of Azmaveth; Beracah;
 Jehu from Anathoth;
 4 Ishmaiah from Gibeon, a famous warrior and leader among the Thirty;
 Jeremiah, Jahaziel, Johanan, and Jozabad from Gederah;
 5 Eluzai, Jerimoth, Bealiah, Shemariah, and Shephatiah from Haruph;
 6 Elkanah, Isshiah, Azarel, Joezer, and
 Jashobeam, who were Korahites;
 7 Joelah and Zebadiah, sons of Jeroham from Gedor.

⁸Some brave and experienced warriors from the tribe of Gad also defected to David while he was at the stronghold in the wilderness. They were expert with both shield and spear, as fierce as lions and as swift as deer on the mountains.

- ⁹Ezer was their leader.
 Obadiah was second.
 Eliab was third.
 10 Mishmannah was fourth.
 Jeremiah was fifth.
 11 Attai was sixth.
 Eliel was seventh.
 12 Johanan was eighth.
 Elzabad was ninth.
 13 Jeremiah was tenth.
 Macbannai was eleventh.

¹⁴These warriors from Gad were army commanders. The weakest among them could take on a hundred regular troops, and the strongest could take on a thousand! ¹⁵These were the men who crossed the Jordan River during its seasonal flooding at the beginning of the year and drove out all the people living in the lowlands on both the east and west banks.

¹⁶Others from Benjamin and Judah came to David at the stronghold. ¹⁷David went out to meet them and said, "If you have come in peace to help me, we are friends. But if you have come to betray me to my enemies when I am innocent, then may the God of our ancestors see it and punish you."

¹⁸Then the Spirit came upon Amasai, the leader of the Thirty, and he said,

"We are yours, David!

We are on your side, son of Jesse.

Peace and prosperity be with you, and success to all who help you, for your God is the one who helps you."

So David let them join him, and he made them officers over his troops.

¹⁹Some men from Manasseh defected from the Israelite army and joined David when he set out with the Philistines to fight against Saul. But as it turned out, the Philistine rulers refused to let David and his men go with them. After much discussion, they sent them back, for they said, "It will cost us our heads if David switches loyalties to Saul and turns against us."

²⁰Here is a list of the men from Manasseh who defected to David as he was returning to Ziklag: Adnah, Jozabad, Jedaiel, Michael, Jozabad, Elihu, and Zillethai. Each 11:41-47 Zabad . . . Jaasiel: These warriors, not mentioned in the parallel passage at 2 Sam 23, were from locations east of the Jordan River. David had broad support among all the tribes of Israel as well as among foreigners.

11:47 from Zobah: Or the Mezobaite.

12:1-22 Support for making David king did not begin with Saul's demise. When Saul was king and David was a fugitive, warriors went to David and eventually became a vast camp of various tribes, representing all of Israel. Even relatives of Saul deserted to David and supported him as king (12:2). Of course, David was prudent about such deserters (12:17), making sure they were not traitors who would betray him to Saul. Before David's actual anointing took place at Hebron, the will of the people reflected the will of God that David should become king.

12:4-40 Verses 12:4b-40 are numbered 12:5-41 in the Hebrew text.

commanded 1,000 troops from the tribe of Manasseh. ²¹They helped David chase down bands of raiders, for they were all brave and able warriors who became commanders in his army. ²²Day after day more men joined David until he had a great army, like the army of God.

Warriors Join David in Hebron

²³These are the numbers of armed warriors who joined David at Hebron. They were all eager to see David become king instead of Saul, just as the LORD had promised.

²⁴From the tribe of Judah, there were 6,800 warriors armed with shields and spears.

²⁵From the tribe of Simeon, there were 7,100 brave warriors.

²⁶From the tribe of Levi, there were 4,600 warriors. ²⁷This included Jehoiada, leader of the family of Aaron, who had 3,700 under his command. ²⁸This also included Zadok, a brave young warrior, with 22 members of his family who were all officers.

²⁹From the tribe of Benjamin, Saul's relatives, there were 3,000 warriors. Most of the men from Benjamin had remained loyal to Saul until this time.

³⁰From the tribe of Ephraim, there were 20,800 brave warriors, each highly respected in his own clan.

³¹From the half-tribe of Manasseh west of the Jordan, 18,000 men were designated by name to help David become king.

³²From the tribe of Issachar, there were 200 leaders of the tribe with their relatives. All these men understood the signs of the times and knew the best course for Israel to take.

³³From the tribe of Zebulun, there were 50,000 skilled warriors. They were fully armed and prepared for battle and completely loyal to David.

³⁴From the tribe of Naphtali, there were 1,000 officers and 37,000 warriors armed with shields and spears.

³⁵From the tribe of Dan, there were 28,600 warriors, all prepared for battle.

³⁶From the tribe of Asher, there were 40,000 trained warriors, all prepared for battle.

³⁷From the east side of the Jordan River—where the tribes of Reuben and Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh lived—there were 120,000 troops armed with every kind of weapon.

³⁸All these men came in battle array to Hebron with the single purpose of making David the king over all Israel. In fact, everyone in Israel agreed that David should be their king. ³⁹They feasted and drank with David for three days, for preparations had been made by their relatives for their arrival. ⁴⁰And people from as far away as Issachar, Zebulun, and Naphtali brought food on donkeys, camels, mules, and oxen. Vast supplies of flour, fig cakes, clusters of raisins, wine, olive oil, cattle, sheep, and goats were brought to the celebration. There was great joy throughout the land of Israel.

The Death of Uzzah

1 Chr 13:1–14 // 2 Sam 6:1–11

13 David consulted with all his officials, including the generals and captains of his army. ²Then he addressed the entire assembly of Israel as follows: "If you approve and if it is the will of the LORD our God, let us send messages to all the Israelites throughout the land, including the priests and Levites in their towns and pasturelands. Let us invite them to come and join us. ³It is time to bring back the Ark of our God, for we neglected it during the reign of Saul."

⁴The whole assembly agreed to this, for the people could see it was the right thing to do. ⁵So David summoned all Israel, from the Shihor Brook of Egypt in the south all the way to the town of Lebo-hamath in the north, to join in bringing the Ark of God from Kiriath-jearim. ⁶Then David and all Israel went to Baalah of Judah (also called Kiriath-jearim) to bring back the Ark of God, which bears the name of the LORD who is enthroned between the cherubim. ⁷They

12:23–40 The succession of a king was often a contentious matter, particularly when the new king represented a different family lineage. The gathering of all twelve tribes at Hebron, including some of Saul's relatives (12:29), to confirm David's rule showed that the animosity of the war among different tribes following Saul's death had been overcome (12:23–37). The Chronicler stresses the unity among the tribes with the declaration that they all, without reservation, had the single purpose of making David the king over all Israel (12:38).

placed the Ark of God on a new cart and brought it from Abinadab's house. Uzzah and Ahio were guiding the cart. ⁸David and all Israel were celebrating before God with all their might, singing songs and playing all kinds of musical instruments—lyres, harps, tambourines, cymbals, and trumpets.

⁹But when they arrived at the threshing floor of Nacon, the oxen stumbled, and Uzzah reached out his hand to steady the Ark. ¹⁰Then the LORD's anger was aroused against Uzzah, and he struck him dead because he had laid his hand on the Ark. So Uzzah died there in the presence of God.

¹¹David was angry because the LORD's anger had burst out against Uzzah. He named that place Perez-uzzah (which means "to burst out against Uzzah"), as it is still called today.

¹²David was now afraid of God, and he asked, "How can I ever bring the Ark of God back into my care?" ¹³So David did not move the Ark into the City of David. Instead, he took it to the house of Obed-edom of Gath. ¹⁴The Ark of God remained there in Obed-edom's house for three months, and the LORD blessed the household of Obed-edom and everything he owned.

The Lord Blesses David in Jerusalem

1 Chr 14:1-7 // 2 Sam 5:11-16

14 Then King Hiram of Tyre sent messengers to David, along with cedar timber, and stonemasons and carpenters to build him a palace. ²And David realized that the LORD had confirmed him as king over Israel and had greatly blessed his kingdom for the sake of his people Israel.

³Then David married more wives in Jerusalem, and they had more sons and daughters. ⁴These are the names of David's sons who were born in Jerusalem: Shammua, Shobab, Nathan, Solomon, ⁵Ibhar, Elishua, Elpelet, ⁶Nogah, Nepheg, Japhia, ⁷Elishama, Eliada, and Eliphelet.

David Conquers the Philistines

1 Chr 14:8-17 // 2 Sam 5:17-25

⁸When the Philistines heard that David had been anointed king over all Israel, they mobilized all their forces to capture him. But David was told they were coming, so he marched out to meet them. ⁹The Philistines arrived and made a raid in the valley of Rephaim. ¹⁰So David asked God, "Should I go out to fight the Philistines? Will you hand them over to me?"

The LORD replied, "Yes, go ahead. I will hand them over to you."

¹¹So David and his troops went up to Baal-perazim and defeated the Philistines there. "God did it!" David exclaimed. "He used me to burst through my enemies like a raging flood!" So they named that place Baal-perazim (which means "the Lord who bursts through"). ¹²The Philistines had abandoned their gods there, so David gave orders to burn them.

¹⁷So David's fame spread everywhere, and the LORD caused all the nations to fear David.

Preparations to Move the Ark

15 David now built several buildings for himself in the City of David. He also prepared a place for the Ark of God and 13:9-11 With the death of Uzzah, Israel's celebration abruptly turned to sorrow. Touching the Ark resulted in death because its holiness had been violated (see 15:13).

13:9 Nacon: As in parallel text at 2 Sam 6:6; Hebrew reads Kidon.

13:12 David's response to Uzzah's death might have been an expression of his own inadequacy to bring the Ark to Jerusalem.

14:1-7 Even though the Ark was not present in Jerusalem (13:1-14), God blessed David's palace, his children, and his conquest of the Philistines. God's blessing did not depend on the presence of the Ark. These blessings eventually encouraged David to carry out his original plan to bring the Ark into Jerusalem (15:1-29).

14:1-2 Hiram's generosity provided further evidence of God's purpose in making David king.

14:7 Eliada: Hebrew Beeliada, a variant spelling of Eliada; cp. 3:8 and parallel text at 2 Sam 5:16.

14:8-17 News of David's rule over all Israel catalyzed the Philistines to attack; they could no longer regard him as subordinate to their patronage, as they had when he ruled only Judah. They attacked through the valley southwest of Jerusalem (see Josh 15:8). David inquired of the Lord before battle, a direct contrast to Saul's inquiring of a medium in seeking help against the Philistines (10:13; see 1 Sam 28).

14:12 David's orders to burn the Philistine idols conformed to God's instructions (Deut 7:5).

14:14 poplar: Or aspen, or balsam; also in 14:15. The exact identification of this tree is uncertain.

15:1-29 Again, David set out to bring the Ark of God to Jerusalem. This time he made thorough preparations to ensure that the transfer would succeed.

set up a special tent for it. ²Then he commanded, "No one except the Levites may carry the Ark of God. The LORD has chosen them to carry the Ark of the LORD and to serve him forever."

³Then David summoned all Israel to Jerusalem to bring the Ark of the LORD to the place he had prepared for it. ⁴This is the number of the descendants of Aaron (the priests) and the Levites who were called together:

⁵From the clan of Kohath, 120, with Uriel as their leader.

⁶From the clan of Merari, 220, with Asaiah as their leader.

⁷From the clan of Gershon, 130, with Joel as their leader.

⁸From the descendants of Elizaphan, 200, with Shemaiah as their leader.

⁹From the descendants of Hebron, 80, with Eliel as their leader.

¹⁰From the descendants of Uzziel, 112, with Amminadab as their leader.

¹¹Then David summoned the priests, Zadok and Abiathar, and these Levite leaders: Uriel, Asaiah, Joel, Shemaiah, Eliel, and Amminadab. ¹²He said to them, "You are the leaders of the Levite families. You must purify yourselves and all your fellow Levites, so you can bring the Ark of the LORD, the God of Israel, to the place I have prepared for it. ¹³Because you Levites did not carry the Ark the first time, the anger of the LORD our God burst out against us. We failed to ask God how to move it properly." ¹⁴So the priests and the Levites purified themselves in order to bring the Ark of the LORD, the God of Israel, to Jerusalem. ¹⁵Then the Levites carried the Ark of God on their shoulders with its carrying poles, just as the LORD had instructed Moses.

¹⁶David also ordered the Levite leaders to appoint a choir of Levites who were singers and musicians to sing joyful songs to the accompaniment of harps, lyres, and cymbals. ¹⁷So the Levites appointed Heman son of Joel along with his fellow Levites: Asaph son of Berekiah, and Ethan son of Kushiiah from the clan of Merari. ¹⁸The following men were chosen as their assistants: Zechariah, Jaaziel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Benaiah, Maaseiah, Mattithiah, Eliphelehu, Mikneiah, and the gatekeepers—Obed-edom and Jeiel.

¹⁹The musicians Heman, Asaph, and Ethan were chosen to sound the bronze cymbals. ²⁰Zechariah, Aziel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Maaseiah, and Benaiah were chosen to play the harps. ²¹Mattithiah, Eliphelehu, Mikneiah, Obed-edom, Jeiel, and Azariah were chosen to play the lyres. ²²Kenaniah, the head Levite, was chosen as the choir leader because of his skill.

²³Berekiah and Elkanah were chosen to guard the Ark. ²⁴Shebaniah, Joshaphat, Nathanel, Amasai, Zechariah, Benaiah, and Eliezer—all of whom were priests—were chosen to blow the trumpets as they marched in front of the Ark of God. Obed-edom and Jehiah were chosen to guard the Ark.

Moving the Ark to Jerusalem

1 Chr 15:25–16:6 // 2 Sam 6:12–19

²⁵Then David and the elders of Israel and the generals of the army went to the house of Obed-edom to bring the Ark of the LORD's Covenant up to Jerusalem with a great celebration. ²⁶And because God was clearly helping the Levites as they carried the Ark of the LORD's Covenant, they sacrificed seven bulls and seven rams.

²⁷David was dressed in a robe of fine linen, as were all the Levites who carried the Ark, and also the singers, and Kenaniah the choir leader. David was also wearing a priestly garment. ²⁸So all Israel brought up the Ark of the LORD's Covenant with shouts 15:1–3 The first attempt to bring the Ark to Jerusalem (13:1–14) failed because of improper procedure (see 15:13). This time, David prepared a place for the Ark in Jerusalem and organized Levites . . . to carry the Ark because this was their responsibility (Deut 10:8; 18:5). The special tent that David prepared for the Ark was not the Tabernacle, which was located at Gibeon at the time (see 16:39; 21:29).

15:7 Gershon: Hebrew Gershon, a variant spelling of Gershon.

15:13 See 13:1–10.

15:16–18 This is the first of three lists of Levitical musicians (see 15:19–22; 16:4–6).

This list gave the names of the three leaders (Heman, Asaph, and Ethan; see 6:33–47) along with their assistants.

15:18 Zechariah, Jaaziel: As in several Hebrew manuscripts and Greek version (see also parallel lists in 15:20; 16:5); Masoretic Text reads Zechariah ben Jaaziel.

15:19–22 The second list of Levitical musicians focused on their musical specialties rather than their rank.

15:20 harps: Hebrew adds according to Alamoth, which is probably a musical term. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. Alamoth is probably a melody, believed to be sung in the soprano range (related to Hebrew 'almah, "young woman").

15:21 lyres: Hebrew adds according to the Sheminith, which is probably a musical term. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain. Sheminith might be related to a term meaning "octave," suggesting a lower vocal range.

15:23 were chosen to guard: Literally were chosen as gatekeepers for; also in 15:24.

15:25 the generals of the army: Literally the commanders of thousands.

15:27 a priestly garment: Literally a linen ephod.

of joy, the blowing of rams' horns and trumpets, the crashing of cymbals, and loud playing on harps and lyres.

²⁹But as the Ark of the LORD's Covenant entered the City of David, Michal, the daughter of Saul, looked down from her window. When she saw King David skipping about and laughing with joy, she was filled with contempt for him.

16 They brought the Ark of God and placed it inside the special tent David had prepared for it. And they presented burnt offerings and peace offerings to God. ²When he had finished his sacrifices, David blessed the people in the name of the LORD. ³Then he gave to every man and woman in all Israel a loaf of bread, a cake of dates, and a cake of raisins.

⁴David appointed the following Levites to lead the people in worship before the Ark of the LORD—to invoke his blessings, to give thanks, and to praise the LORD, the God of Israel. ⁵Asaph, the leader of this group, sounded the cymbals. Second to him was Zechariah, followed by Jeiel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Mattithiah, Eliab, Benaiah, Obed-edom, and Jeiel. They played the harps and lyres. ⁶The priests, Benaiah and Jahaziel, played the trumpets regularly before the Ark of God's Covenant.

⁷On that day David gave to Asaph and his fellow Levites this song of thanksgiving to the LORD:

⁸ Give thanks to the LORD and proclaim his greatness.

Let the whole world know what he has done.

⁹ Sing to him; yes, sing his praises.

Tell everyone about his wonderful deeds.

¹⁰ Exult in his holy name;

rejoice, you who worship the LORD.

Rom 2:7

The disposition of the heart was a key concern to the Chronicler, who used the vocabulary of "seeking" to express heart disposition. Saul lost the kingdom and his life in part because he sought a medium rather than the Lord (10:13-14). David, by contrast, was a man after the Lord's own heart (1 Sam 13:14).

As king, David's first concern was restoring the Ark of the Covenant, which the Israelites had not sought in the days of Saul (13:3). David failed in his first attempt to bring the Ark to Jerusalem because he and the Levites did not seek to carry the Ark properly (15:13). Undeterred, and with proper preparation, David later brought the Ark to Jerusalem, where Israel celebrated in worship and song. David's song of thanksgiving on that occasion demonstrates a right heart toward the Lord (16:7-36; cp. Ps 105).

The sanctuary and worship there provided a crucial component in seeking the Lord. Once the Ark was situated in the tent prepared for it in Jerusalem, David established a new role for Levites as ministers of music (16:4-6). David consistently exhorted the leaders to "seek the LORD" in building the Temple (22:19; cp. 28:8-10). Solomon's first act to consolidate the kingdom was to gather all the leaders together at the altar at Gibeon in order to seek the Lord (2 Chr 1:6). The Lord met Solomon there to grant him both wisdom and wealth like that of no other king. Later, Solomon completed the Temple and dedicated it as a place for seeking the Lord (2 Chr 6).

Isaiah the prophet urged those waiting for the fulfillment of God's promises to seek God: "Seek the LORD while you can find him. Call on him now while he is near" (Isa 55:6). God's covenant and promise are certain (Isa 55:3), and they are reserved for those who seek the Lord and remember his work of saving his people (Ps 105:4-5).

15:29 The contempt of Michal (cp. 2 Sam 6:16-23) toward David stands in stark contrast to God's blessing on the celebration (15:26); her description as the daughter of Saul implies that her attitude mirrored her father's disregard for the Lord (see 1 Sam 10:10-12; 13:7-14; 15:10-23; 28:1-25).

16:1-43 The transfer of the Ark (16:1-3) and the conclusion of the event (16:43) are reported exactly as in Samuel (see 2 Sam 6:17-20). However, between these bookends, the Chronicler elaborates on the celebrations that accompanied the event and on the permanent arrangements for worship (16:4-42). David's psalm of celebration is the central focus of the account (see note on 16:7-36).

16:3 a cake of dates: Or a portion of meat. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

16:7-36 David's song of thanksgiving is a composite of three psalms: 16:8-22 draws from Ps 105:1-15; 16:23-33 draws from Ps 96:1-13; and 16:34-38 draws from Ps 106:1, 47-48. The composer made several adjustments to the

19 He said this when you were few in 21 Yet he did not let anyone oppress them.

He warned kings on their behalf:

32 Let the sea and everything in it shout his praise!

Let the fields and their crops burst out with joy!

33 Let the trees of the forest sing for joy before the LORD, for he is coming to judge the earth.

34 Give thanks to the LORD, for he is good!
His faithful love endures forever.

35 Cry out, "Save us, O God of our salvation!
Gather and rescue us from among the nations, so we can thank your holy name and rejoice and praise you."

36 Praise the LORD, the God of Israel, who lives from everlasting to everlasting!

And all the people shouted "Amen!" and praised the LORD.

Worship at Jerusalem and Gibeon

37 David arranged for Asaph and his fellow Levites to serve regularly before the Ark of the LORD's Covenant, doing whatever needed to be done each day. 38 This group included Obed-edom (son of Jeduthun), Hosah, and sixty-eight other Levites as gatekeepers.

39 Meanwhile, David stationed Zadok the priest and his fellow priests at the Tabernacle of the LORD at the place of worship in Gibeon, where they continued to minister before the LORD. 40 They sacrificed the regular burnt offerings to the LORD each morning and evening on the altar set aside for that purpose, obeying everything written in the Law of the LORD, as he had commanded Israel. 41 David also appointed sources to fit this occasion. The Temple did not exist when the Ark was brought to Jerusalem, so the Chronicler says that strength and joy fill his dwelling (16:27) instead of "his sanctuary" (Ps 96:6) and requires the worshiper to come into his presence (16:29) instead of "into his courts" (Ps 96:8). The name "Abraham" (Ps 105:9) is also changed to Israel (16:13) to focus specifically on the nation as the fulfillment of the promises to Abraham. The hymn does not mention the judgment of the earth (Ps 96:10, 13; cp. 16:30, 33) because it was not relevant to the dedication of the Ark.

16:39 Gibeon served as the central place of worship until the Temple was built in Jerusalem (see 21:29; 2 Chr 1:3). The personnel at the Tabernacle had to be reorganized because some of the Levites were permanently transferred to Jerusalem.

The Lord's Covenant Promise to David

1 Chr 17:1-15 // 2 Sam 7:1-17

17 When David was settled in his palace, he summoned Nathan the prophet. “Look,” David said, “I am living in a beautiful cedar palace, but the Ark of the LORD’s Covenant is out there under a tent!”

² Nathan replied to David, “Do whatever you have in mind, for God is with you.”

³ But that same night God said to Nathan,

⁴ “Go and tell my servant David, ‘This is what the LORD has declared: You are not the one to build a house for me to live in.

⁵ I have never lived in a house, from the day I brought the Israelites out of Egypt until this very day. My home has always been a tent, moving from one place to another in a Tabernacle. ⁶ Yet no matter where I have gone with the Israelites, I have never once complained to Israel’s leaders, the shepherds of my people. I have never asked them, “Why haven’t you built me a beautiful cedar house?”’

⁷ “Now go and say to my servant David, ‘This is what the LORD of Heaven’s Armies has declared: I took you from tending sheep in the pasture and selected you to be the leader of my people Israel. ⁸ I have been with you wherever you have gone, and I have destroyed all your enemies before your eyes. Now I will make your name as famous as anyone who has ever lived on the earth! ⁹ And I will provide a homeland for my people Israel, planting them in a secure place where they will never be disturbed. Evil nations won’t oppress them as

The Promise of Dynasty (17:1-15)

 28:4-7
 Gen 49:8-12
 Ps 78:67-72;
 132:11-12
 Amos 9:11-12

 22:41-46

God promised David that his dynasty would last forever (17:9-14 // 2 Sam 7:11-16). Yet the Chronicler lived at a time when David’s dynasty had apparently ended. Although David’s line of descent continued (see 3:17-23), no descendant of David had been king since the exile of Judah to Babylon. As a result, Israel’s hope for the future was in question. The Chronicler wanted to show that God’s promise to David was unconditional and that his throne was “secure forever.”

God’s selection of David began with his selection of Judah. Reuben (5:1-2) was Jacob’s firstborn, but he forfeited his birthright (Gen 49:3-4). Jacob then blessed Joseph with the right of the firstborn (Gen 48) and Judah with the right to rule (Gen 49:8-12; see also Ps 78:67-72). Therefore, the Chronicler’s history of Israel begins with Judah (see ch 2), the patriarch of the chosen tribe whose genealogy led to David, the anointed king.

Nathan’s prophecy (17:1-15 // 2 Sam 7:1-17) provides the key source text regarding God’s promise to continue David’s dynasty of kings. The Chronicler emphasizes the grace of God’s promise to David (17:13). Even the possibility of exile (22:10-13; 28:7) does not remove the hope of God’s promise of a dynasty. The promise would continue for a future time because a future descendant of David would inherit the throne (17:11).

The Chronicler’s hope was not directly “messianic” in the strict sense—he was not primarily focused on the arising of an anointed deliverer. His continuing hope in the secure promise to David was that the covenant community would again be led by kings in David’s line, and he encouraged the community to look to the future for a new king to improve Israel’s condition. The words of Jehoshaphat express the Chronicler’s view: “Believe in the LORD your God, and you will be able to stand firm. Believe in his prophets, and you will succeed” (2 Chr 20:20).

With the birth of Jesus, the Son of David, the Chronicler’s hope for the community of Israel was finally realized. Matthew’s genealogy presents Jesus as the fulfillment of the Chronicler’s expectation of a new king (Matt 1:1-17). His kingdom is for all the nations (Isa 49:6), stretching “from sea to sea and from the Euphrates river to the ends of the earth” (Zech 9:10).

16:42 to accompany their songs of praise to God: Or to accompany the sacred music; or to accompany singing to God.

17:1-27 The larger section (13:1–17:27) concludes with Nathan’s prophecy about David and David’s prayer of thanks.

17:1-15 David wanted to build a home for the Ark that would equal his own palace, but the Lord designated David’s heir, Solomon (ch 22), to build the Temple. Jerusalem was to be the single place of worship for all Israel.

17:1 a beautiful cedar palace: Literally a house of cedar.

they've done in the past, ¹⁰starting from the time I appointed judges to rule my people Israel. And I will defeat all your enemies.

"Furthermore, I declare that the LORD will build a house for you—a dynasty of kings! ¹¹For when you die and join your ancestors, I will raise up one of your descendants, one of your sons, and I will make his kingdom strong. ¹²He is the one who will build a house—a temple—for me. And I will secure his throne forever. ¹³I will be his father, and he will be my son. I will never take my favor from him as I took it from the one who ruled before you. ¹⁴I will confirm him as king over my house and my kingdom for all time, and his throne will be secure forever."

¹⁵So Nathan went back to David and told him everything the LORD had said in this vision.

David's Prayer of Thanks

1 Chr 17:16-27 // 2 Sam 7:18-29

¹⁶Then King David went in and sat before the LORD and prayed,

"Who am I, O LORD God, and what is my family, that you have brought me this far? ¹⁷And now, O God, in addition to everything else, you speak of giving your servant a lasting dynasty! You speak as though I were someone very great, O LORD God!

¹⁸"What more can I say to you about the way you have honored me? You know what your servant is really like. ¹⁹For the sake of your servant, O LORD, and according to your will, you have done all these great things and have made them known.

²⁰"O LORD, there is no one like you. We have never even heard of another God like you! ²¹What other nation on earth is like your people Israel? What other nation, O God, have you redeemed from slavery to be your own people? You made a great name for yourself when you redeemed your people from Egypt. You performed awesome miracles and drove out the nations that stood in their way. ²²You chose Israel to be your very own people forever, and you, O LORD, became their God.

²³"And now, O LORD, I am your servant; do as you have promised concerning me and my family. May it be a promise that will last forever. ²⁴And may your name be established and honored forever so that everyone will say, 'The LORD of Heaven's Armies, the God of Israel, is Israel's God!' And may the house of your servant David continue before you forever.

²⁵"O my God, I have been bold enough to pray to you because you have revealed to your servant that you will build a house for him—a dynasty of kings! ²⁶For you are God, O LORD. And you have promised these good things to your servant. ²⁷And now, it has pleased you to bless the house of your servant, so that it will continue forever before you. For when you grant a blessing, O LORD, it is an eternal blessing!"

Expansion of the Kingdom

17:10b-14 David had resolved to build a house for the Lord—the Temple. Instead, the Lord would build a house for David—a dynasty of kings. Establishing David's eternal dynasty was the central part of God's plan to establish his rule on earth.

17:12 The construction of the Temple was a central aspect of God's kingdom on earth. Solomon later built the Temple (2 Chr 2–7) and fulfilled this promise.

17:13 The Chronicler made this declaration about Solomon in particular (see 22:9; 28:5-6; cp. 2 Sam 7:14).

17:14 In the parallel at 2 Sam 7:16, God promises to establish David's house, kingdom, and throne, whereas here it is Solomon's. While the books of Samuel and Kings cast David as Israel's ideal king, the Chronicler views Solomon as David's equal. David made all the preparations for building the Temple, but God designated Solomon as the Temple builder. The promise to Israel was secured in the combined reigns of David and Solomon.

17:17 You speak as though I were someone very great: The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

18:1–20:8 This section recounts David's wars and military achievements, presenting David as the great warrior of Israel's history. This account relates the public and political aspects of David's enemies, but it deals very little with their private affairs. • Three distinct sections reflect accounts in Samuel: (1) the battles in the expansion of the kingdom (18:1-17; see 2 Sam 8:1-16); (2) the battle against the Ammonites (19:1–20:3; see 2 Sam 10:1–11:1; 12:30-31); and (3) the exploits of David's mighty men (20:4-8; see 2 Sam 21:18-22). Each section begins with a chronological transition (after this) that loosely joins these events (18:1; 19:1; 20:4).

18:1-17 These war records tell the story of David's expanding kingdom in conquering the Philistines (18:1), Moab (18:2), Zobah (18:3-4), Damascus (18:5-6), and Edom (18:12-13); these include records of David's international relations, booty, and tribute (18:7-11). A recurring theme is that the Lord made David victorious wherever he went (18:6, 13).

18:1 The Philistines posed a constant threat to David's kingdom (see notes on Josh 13:2; 19:43; Judg 3:3). They also conquered the land of Moab, and the Moabites who were spared became David's subjects and paid him tribute money.

³David also destroyed the forces of Hadadezer, king of Zobah, as far as Hamath, when Hadadezer marched out to strengthen his control along the Euphrates River. ⁴David captured 1,000 chariots, 7,000 charioteers, and 20,000 foot soldiers. He crippled all the chariot horses except enough for 100 chariots.

⁹When King Toi of Hamath heard that David had destroyed the entire army of King Hadadezer of Zobah, ¹⁰he sent his son Joram to congratulate King David for his successful campaign. Hadadezer and Toi had been enemies and were often at war. Joram presented David with many gifts of gold, silver, and bronze.

¹¹King David dedicated all these gifts to the LORD, along with the silver and gold he had taken from the other nations—from Edom, Moab, Ammon, Philistia, and Amalek.

¹²Abishai son of Zeruiah destroyed 18,000 Edomites in the Valley of Salt. ¹³He placed army garrisons in Edom, and all the Edomites became David's subjects. In fact, the LORD made David victorious wherever he went.

¹⁴So David reigned over all Israel and did what was just and right for all his people. ¹⁵Joab son of Zeruiah was commander of the army. Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was the royal historian. ¹⁶Zadok son of Ahitub and Ahimelech son of Abiathar were the priests. Seraiah was the court secretary. ¹⁷Benaiah son of Jehoiada was captain of the king's bodyguard. And David's sons served as the king's chief assistants.

David Defeats the Ammonites

1 Chr 19:1-19 // 2 Sam 10:1-19

19 Some time after this, King Nahash of the Ammonites died, and his son Hanun became king. ²David said, "I am going to show loyalty to Hanun because his father, Nahash, was always loyal to me." So David sent messengers to express sympathy to Hanun about his father's death.

But when David's ambassadors arrived in the land of Ammon, ³the Ammonite commanders said to Hanun, "Do you really think these men are coming here to honor your father? No! David has sent them to spy out the land so they can come in and conquer it!" ⁴So Hanun seized David's ambassadors and shaved them, cut off their robes at the buttocks, and sent them back to David in shame.

⁵When David heard what had happened to the men, he sent messengers to tell them, "Stay at Jericho until your beards grow out, and then come back." For they felt deep shame because of their appearance.

⁶When the people of Ammon realized how seriously they had angered David, Hanun and the Ammonites sent 75,000 pounds remained entrenched in their coastal settlements; although David conquered Gath and its surrounding towns, a Philistine king remained in Gath at the end of David's reign (1 Kgs 2:39).

18:2-13 David's conquests east of the Jordan River took place in stages. The conquest of Moab in the south gave David firm control over the plateau north of the Arnon River. David's victory over the Aramean alliance under Hadadezer brought him into alliance with King Toi of Hamath, an archenemy of Hadadezer (18:9-11). With the defeat of Ammon and the Arameans east of the Jordan, David extended his control over the southern expanses of Edom and gained access to a southern seaport (18:12-13).

18:3 as far as Hamath: The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

18:6 The first sentence follows the Greek version and Latin Vulgate (see also 2 Sam 8:6); Hebrew lacks several army garrisons.

18:8 Tebah: Hebrew reads Tibhath, a variant spelling of Tebah; cp. parallel text at 2 Sam 8:8.

18:9 Toi: As in parallel text at 2 Sam 8:9; Hebrew reads Tou; also in 18:10.

18:10 Joram: As in parallel text at 2 Sam 8:10; Hebrew reads Hadoram, a variant spelling of Joram.

18:14-17 The listing of David's officials demonstrates the greatness of his rule over all of Israel.

18:16 Ahimelech: As in some Hebrew manuscripts, Syriac version, and Latin Vulgate (see also 2 Sam 8:17); most Hebrew manuscripts read Abimelech.

• Seraiah: As in parallel text at 2 Sam 8:17; Hebrew reads Shavsha.

18:17 of the king's bodyguard: Hebrew of the Kerethites and Pelethites.

19:1-7 The new Ammonite ruler, Hanun, took exception to Israel's presence so close to his nation. The Ammonites hired Aramean armies from the north, and these combined forces assembled at Medeba to challenge David's control of Moab's plateau.

of silver to hire chariots and charioteers from Aram-naharaim, Aram-maacah, and Zobah. ⁷They also hired 32,000 chariots and secured the support of the king of Maacah and his army. These forces camped at Medeba, where they were joined by the Ammonite troops that Hanun had recruited from his own towns. ⁸When David heard about this, he sent Joab and all his warriors to fight them. ⁹The Ammonite troops came out and drew up their battle lines at the entrance of the city, while the other kings positioned themselves to fight in the open fields.

¹⁰When Joab saw that he would have to fight on both the front and the rear, he chose some of Israel's elite troops and placed them under his personal command to fight the Arameans in the fields. ¹¹He left the rest of the army under the command of his brother Abishai, who was to attack the Ammonites. ¹²"If the Arameans are too strong for me, then come over and help me," Joab told his brother. "And if the Ammonites are too strong for you, I will help you. ¹³Be courageous! Let us fight bravely for our people and the cities of our God. May the LORD's will be done."

¹⁴When Joab and his troops attacked, the Arameans began to run away. ¹⁵And when the Ammonites saw the Arameans running, they also ran from Abishai and retreated into the city. Then Joab returned to Jerusalem.

¹⁶The Arameans now realized that they were no match for Israel, so they sent messengers and summoned additional Aramean troops from the other side of the Euphrates River. These troops were under the command of Shobach, the commander of Hadadezer's forces.

¹⁷When David heard what was happening, he mobilized all Israel, crossed the Jordan River, and positioned his troops in battle formation. Then David engaged the Arameans in battle, and they fought against him. ¹⁸But again the Arameans fled from the Israelites. This time David's forces killed 7,000 charioteers and 40,000 foot soldiers, including Shobach, the commander of their army. ¹⁹When Hadadezer's allies saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they surrendered to David and became his subjects. After that, the Arameans were no longer willing to help the Ammonites.

David Captures Rabbah

1 Chr 20:1-3 // 2 Sam 11:1; 12:29-31

20In the spring of the year, when kings normally go out to war, Joab led the Israelite army in successful attacks against the land of the Ammonites. In the process he laid siege to the city of Rabbah, attacking and destroying it. However, David stayed behind in Jerusalem.

²Then David went to Rabbah and removed the crown from the king's head, and it was placed on his own head. The crown was made of gold and set with gems, and he found that it weighed seventy-five pounds. David took a vast amount of plunder from the city. ³He also made slaves of the people of Rabbah and forced them to labor with saws, iron picks, and iron axes. That is how David dealt with the people of all the Ammonite towns. Then David and all the army returned to Jerusalem.

Battles against Philistine Giants

3. PREPARATIONS FOR THE TEMPLE

(21:1–29:30)

Designation of the Temple Site (21:1–22:1)
David Takes a Census

1 Chr 21:1-6 // 2 Sam 24:1-9

21 ¹Satan rose up against Israel and caused David to take a census of the people of Israel. ²So David said to Joab and the commanders of the army, "Take a census of all the people of Israel—from Beersheba in the south to Dan in the north—and bring me a report so I may know how many there are."

³But Joab replied, "May the LORD increase the number of his people a hundred times over! But why, my lord the king, do you want to do this? Are they not all your servants? Why must you cause Israel to sin?"

⁴But the king insisted that they take the census, so Joab traveled throughout all Israel to count the people. Then he returned to Jerusalem ⁵and reported the number of people to David. There were 1,100,000 warriors in all Israel who could handle a sword, and 470,000 in Judah. ⁶But Joab did not include the tribes of Levi and Benjamin in the census because he was so distressed at what the king had made him do.

Judgment for David's Sin

1 Chr 21:7-17 // 2 Sam 24:10-17

⁷God was very displeased with the census, and he punished Israel for it. ⁸Then David said to God, "I have sinned greatly by taking this census. Please forgive my guilt for doing this foolish thing."

⁹Then the LORD spoke to Gad, David's seer. This was the message: ¹⁰"Go and say to David, 'This is what the LORD says: I will give you three choices. Choose one of these punishments, and I will inflict it on you.'"

¹¹So Gad came to David and said, "These are the choices the LORD has given you. ¹²You may choose three years of famine, three months of destruction by the sword of your enemies, or three days of severe plague as the angel of the LORD brings devastation throughout the land of Israel. Decide what answer I should give the LORD who sent me."

¹³"I'm in a desperate situation!" David replied to Gad. "But let me fall into the hands of the LORD, for his mercy is very great. Do not let me fall into human hands."

¹⁴So the LORD sent a plague upon Israel, and 70,000 people died as a result. ¹⁵And God sent an angel to destroy Jerusalem. But just as the angel was preparing to destroy it, the LORD relented and said to the death angel, "Stop! That is enough!" At that moment the angel of the LORD was standing by the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite.

¹⁶David looked up and saw the angel of the LORD standing between heaven and earth with his sword drawn, reaching out over Jerusalem. So David and the leaders of Israel put on burlap to show their deep distress and fell face down on the ground. ¹⁷And David said to God, "I am the one who called for the census! I am the one who has sinned and done wrong! But these people are as innocent as sheep—what have they done? O LORD my God, let your anger fall against me and my family, but do not destroy your people."

David Builds an Altar

1 Chr 21:18-30 // 2 Sam 24:18-25

¹⁸Then the angel of the LORD told Gad to instruct David to go up and build an altar to the LORD on the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite. ¹⁹So David went up to do what the LORD had commanded him through Gad. ²⁰Araunah, who was busy 21:1–22:1 This account of the census closely parallels 2 Sam 24:1-25 but has an entirely different focus. The Chronicler's account provides the context for the dedication of the altar and the preparations for building the Temple (ch 22).

21:1 Satan (or the adversary) motivated David to take a census of his military forces (cp. 2 Sam 24:1). The Chronicler seems to interpret the narrative of Samuel in light of his theology of Satan as the adversary of God and humanity. As God allows Satan to work in the world, Satan unwittingly fulfills God's purposes (cp. 2 Chr 18:3-34; Job 1:6-2:7; Zech 3:1-2; Matt 4:1-11; John 13:27; 1 Cor 5:5; 2 Cor 12:7; 1 Tim 1:20; Rev 20:3, 7-9).

21:7 The note on 2 Sam 24:1 discusses possible reasons why God was very displeased with the census.

21:9 Gad is later mentioned as having compiled a list of "the events of King David's reign" (29:29).

21:15 Araunah: As in parallel text at 2 Sam 24:16; Hebrew reads Ornan, another name for Araunah, also in 21:18-28.

21:16-17 These verses provide a more detailed description of the angel and of David's response than the parallel text (2 Sam 24:17). The sight of the angel carrying out his mission inspired David to plead on behalf of the people.

threshing wheat at the time, turned and saw the angel there. His four sons, who were with him, ran away and hid. ²¹When Araunah saw David approaching, he left his threshing floor and bowed before David with his face to the ground.

²²David said to Araunah, "Let me buy this threshing floor from you at its full price. Then I will build an altar to the LORD there, so that he will stop the plague."

²³"Take it, my lord the king, and use it as you wish," Araunah said to David. "I will give the oxen for the burnt offerings, and the threshing boards for wood to build a fire on the altar, and the wheat for the grain offering. I will give it all to you."

²⁴But King David replied to Araunah, "No, I insist on buying it for the full price. I will not take what is yours and give it to the LORD. I will not present burnt offerings that have cost me nothing!" ²⁵So David gave Araunah 600 pieces of gold in payment for the threshing floor.

²⁶David built an altar there to the LORD and sacrificed burnt offerings and peace offerings. And when David prayed, the LORD answered him by sending fire from heaven to burn up the offering on the altar. ²⁷Then the LORD spoke to the angel, who put the sword back into its sheath.

²⁸When David saw that the LORD had answered his prayer, he offered sacrifices there at Araunah's threshing floor. ²⁹At that time the ¹Tabernacle of the LORD and the altar of burnt offering that Moses had made in the wilderness were located at the place of worship in Gibeon. ³⁰But David was not able to go there to inquire of God, because he was terrified by the drawn sword of the angel of the LORD.

Declaration of the Location of the Temple

22 Then David said, "This will be the location for the Temple of the LORD God and the place of the altar for Israel's burnt offerings!"

Charge to Solomon: Build the Temple (22:2-19)

²So David gave orders to call together the foreigners living in Israel, and he assigned them the task of preparing finished stone for building the Temple of God. ³David provided large amounts of iron for the nails that would be needed for the doors in the gates and for the clamps, and he gave more bronze than could be weighed. ⁴He also provided innumerable cedar logs, for the men of Tyre and Sidon had brought vast amounts of cedar to David.

⁵David said, "My son Solomon is still young and inexperienced. And since the Temple to be built for the LORD must be a magnificent structure, famous and glorious throughout the world, I will begin making preparations for it now." So David collected vast amounts of building materials before his death.

⁶Then David sent for his son Solomon and instructed him to build a Temple for the LORD, the God of Israel. ⁷"My son, I wanted to build a Temple to honor the name of the LORD my God," David told him. ⁸"But the LORD said to me, 'You have killed many men in the battles you have fought. And since you have shed so much blood in my sight, you will not be the one to build a Temple to honor my name.' ⁹But you will have a son who will be a man of peace. I will give him peace with his enemies in all the surrounding lands. His name will be Solomon, and I will give ⁸peace and quiet to Israel 21:25 600 pieces of gold: Hebrew 600 shekels of gold, about 15 pounds or 6.8 kilograms in weight.

21:26–22:1 The census and plague led up to the dedication of Araunah's threshing floor as the site for the new sanctuary. Typically, offerings would have been made at Gibeon, where the Tabernacle was located (see 16:39; 21:29; 2 Chr 1:3). The halting of the plague at the threshing floor enabled David to make offerings there in accordance with the word he received through Gad the seer (21:18). David then designated the new location for the future Temple of the LORD God.

22:2–19 God had promised David that his kingdom would be permanent and that his son would build a temple for the Lord (17:11–12). Now that the site had been chosen (21:18–22:1), David made preparations for building the Temple of God. He gathered the materials (22:2–5), and he charged both Solomon (22:6–16) and the leaders of Israel (22:17–19) with the task of building the Temple after his death.

22:5 While Solomon was young and inexperienced (see also 29:1; cp. 1 Kgs 3:7; 2 Chr 13:7), David had the wisdom and skill to make preparations for building the Temple; David also designed the Temple (28:11–12). Later, God provided Solomon with the wisdom he needed to build the Temple and to govern well (see 2 Chr 1:7–12).

22:8 God did not allow David to build the Temple because he had shed so much blood (cp. 1 Kgs 5:3–4). David's wars were not unethical, and God had blessed and supported them. However, David had been tainted with a kind of ceremonial uncleanness from the blood he had shed and the deaths he had caused in battle (see 28:3; cp. Gen 4:10–12; Lev 17:3–4; Deut 21:1–9; Matt 27:24–25). Accordingly, he could not build a holy sanctuary for the Lord.

22:9–10 Solomon sounds like and is probably derived from the Hebrew word for "peace." In fact, he was a man of peace, free from war and from shedding blood in battle. The Temple was built during his peaceful reign (see 2 Chr 2–7). • The Hebrew deliberately uses two different words to describe conditions during Solomon's reign: peace (Hebrew shalom, related to Solomon's name), and quiet (Hebrew menukkah, related to the idea of redemption).

Organization of the Officials (23:1–26:32) Duties of the Levites

23 When David was an old man, he appointed his son Solomon to be king over Israel. ²David summoned all the leaders of Israel, together with the priests and Levites. ³All the Levites who were thirty years old or older were counted, and the total came to 38,000. ⁴Then David said, "From all the Levites, 24,000 will supervise the work at the Temple of the LORD. Another 6,000 will serve as officials and judges. ⁵Another 4,000 will work as gatekeepers, and Throughout the ancient Near East, responsibility for a nation's temple fell to the king. David, the founder of the dynasty of Judah's kings, established Jerusalem as the capital of Israel (2 Sam 5:4-10) and made it the central place of worship. Although Solomon actually built the Temple, David prepared for the building of the Temple and for its liturgy. The Temple, located adjacent to the king's palace, represented God's reign over all creation and all nations: "The LORD is in his holy Temple. Let all the earth be silent before him" (Hab 2:20). The Temple expressed the sovereign and personal relationship between God, his world, and his people. It served to teach Israel about God's exclusive dominion and their total dependence on him.

The Temple established the legitimacy of the human king, who represented divine rule. This role of the Temple was expressed in a psalm celebrating David's restoration of the Ark to Jerusalem (Ps 132:6-12). This psalm was also used at the conclusion of Solomon's prayer of dedication (2 Chr 6:41-42). The kings were charged to devote themselves to God's presence at his resting place in the Temple (22:17-19).

As the representation of God's presence in the world, the Temple found its fulfillment in Christ and the church. Jesus himself signaled the transition from the Temple buildings to his own body as the temple (John 2:19). The disciples began understanding this transition after the resurrection (John 2:21-22). The apostle Paul later described the church as the new sacred space where Jews and Gentiles are reconciled. Using Temple imagery, he described breaking down barriers in the body of Christ, creating one people (Eph 2:14-15). The church stands as a holy temple, resting on the foundation of the apostles and prophets (Eph 2:20-22). It is built from living stones—believers—fashioned together around Jesus Christ, the cornerstone (1 Pet 2:4-5).

22:14 nearly 4,000 tons of gold, 40,000 tons of silver: Hebrew 100,000 talents [3,400 metric tons] of gold, 1,000,000 talents [34,000 metric tons] of silver.

23:1-2 When David . . . appointed his son Solomon as Israel's king (cp. 1 Kgs 1),

David outlined the organizational structure of the kingdom and made all the necessary provisions for the Temple's functioning. • The account of Solomon's coronation continues in chs 28-29; the intervening chapters (23:3-27:24) record in detail the organization of the kingdom.

23:3-5 The Levites are recorded according to their roles rather than their families. • thirty years old or older: See note on 23:24-27.

4,000 will praise the LORD with the musical instruments I have made." ⁶Then David divided the Levites into divisions named after the clans descended from the three sons of Levi—Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.

⁷The Gershonite family units were defined by their lines of descent from Libni and Shimei, the sons of Gershon. ⁸Three of the descendants of Libni were Jehiel (the family leader), Zetham, and Joel. ⁹These were the leaders of the family of Libni.

Three of the descendants of Shimei were Shelomoth, Haziël, and Haran. ¹⁰Four other descendants of Shimei were Jahath, Ziza, Jeush, and Beriah. ¹¹Jahath was the family leader, and Ziza was next. Jeush and Beriah were counted as a single family because neither had many sons.

¹²Four of the descendants of Kohath were Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel.

¹³The sons of Amram were Aaron and Moses. Aaron and his descendants were set apart to dedicate the most holy things, to offer sacrifices in the LORD's presence, to serve the LORD, and to pronounce blessings in his name forever.

¹⁴As for Moses, the man of God, his sons were included with the tribe of Levi. ¹⁵The sons of Moses were Gershom and Eliezer. ¹⁶The descendants of Gershom included Shebuel, the family leader. ¹⁷Eliezer had only one son, Rehabiah, the family leader. Rehabiah had numerous descendants.

¹⁸The descendants of Izhar included Shelomith, the family leader.

¹⁹The descendants of Hebron included Jeriah (the family leader), Amariah (the second), Jahaziel (the third), and Jekameam (the fourth).

²⁰The descendants of Uzziel included Micah (the family leader) and Isshiah (the second).

²¹The descendants of Merari included Mahli and Mushi.

The sons of Mahli were Eleazar and Kish. ²²Eleazar died with no sons, only daughters. His daughters married their cousins, the sons of Kish.

²³Three of the descendants of Mushi were Mahli, Eder, and Jerimoth.

²⁴These were the descendants of Levi by clans, the leaders of their family groups, registered carefully by name. Each had to be twenty years old or older to qualify for service in the house of the LORD. ²⁵For David said, "The LORD, the God of Israel, has given us peace, and he will always live in Jerusalem. ²⁶Now the Levites will no longer need to carry the ^bTabernacle and its furnishings from place to place." ²⁷In accordance with David's final instructions, all the Levites twenty years old or older were registered for service.

²⁸The work of the Levites was to assist the priests, the descendants of Aaron, as they served at the house of the LORD. They also took care of the courtyards and side rooms, helped perform the ceremonies of purification, and served in many other ways in the house of God. ²⁹They were in charge of the sacred bread that was set out on the table, the choice flour for the grain offerings, the wafers made without yeast, the cakes cooked in olive oil, and the other mixed breads. They were also responsible to check all the weights and measures. ³⁰And each morning and evening they stood before the LORD to sing songs of thanks and praise to him. ³¹They assisted with the burnt offerings that were presented to the LORD on Sabbath days, at new moon celebrations, and at all the appointed festivals. The required number of Levites served in the LORD's presence at all times, following all the procedures they had been given.

³²And so, under the supervision of the priests, the Levites watched over the Tabernacle and the Temple and faithfully carried out their duties of service at the house of the LORD.

23:6-23 David divided the Levites into divisions according to their ancestral families. The number of available clerics far exceeded the requirements for a single Temple; the divisions provided a necessary time-sharing mechanism that enabled all the priests and Levites to serve in the Temple periodically (cp. Luke 1:5, 8).

23:7 Libni: Hebrew Ladan (also in 23:8-9), a variant spelling of Libni; cp. 6:17.

23:10 Ziza: As in Greek version and Latin Vulgate (see also 23:11); Hebrew reads Zina.

23:24-27 In the census of 23:3, individuals were counted at age thirty, but the actual registration of the divisions included those twenty years old or older (cp. Num 1:3). The age of entry into Levitical service apparently varied over time according to need.

23:28-32 The work of the Levites was to assist the priests, which they accomplished in various ways: maintaining the Temple, setting out the sacred bread and other offerings, singing, and helping the priests with the sacrifices. These duties were allotted to different family divisions of Levites (23:4-6).

Duties of the Priests

24 This is how Aaron's descendants, the priests, were divided into groups for service. The sons of Aaron were Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. ²But Nadab and Abihu died before their father, and they had no sons. So only Eleazar and Ithamar were left to carry on as priests.

³With the help of Zadok, who was a descendant of Eleazar, and of Ahimelech, who was a descendant of Ithamar, David divided Aaron's descendants into groups according to their various duties. ⁴Eleazar's descendants were divided into sixteen groups and Ithamar's into eight, for there were more family leaders among the descendants of Eleazar.

⁵All tasks were assigned to the various groups by means of sacred lots so that no preference would be shown, for there were many qualified officials serving God in the sanctuary from among the descendants of both Eleazar and Ithamar. ⁶Shemaiah son of Nethanel, a Levite, acted as secretary and wrote down the names and assignments in the presence of the king, the officials, Zadok the priest, Ahimelech son of Abiathar, and the family leaders of the priests and Levites. The descendants of Eleazar and Ithamar took turns casting lots.

- ⁷ The first lot fell to Jehoiarib.
The second lot fell to Jedaiah.
- ⁸ The third lot fell to Harim.
The fourth lot fell to Seorim.
- ⁹ The fifth lot fell to Malkijah.
The sixth lot fell to Mijamin.
- ¹⁰ The seventh lot fell to Hakkoz.
The eighth lot fell to Abijah.
- ¹¹ The ninth lot fell to Jeshua.
The tenth lot fell to Shecaniah.
- ¹² The eleventh lot fell to Eliashib.
The twelfth lot fell to Jakim.
- ¹³ The thirteenth lot fell to Huppah.
The fourteenth lot fell to Jeshebeab.
- ¹⁴ The fifteenth lot fell to Bilgah.
The sixteenth lot fell to Immer.

- ¹⁵ The seventeenth lot fell to Hezir.
The eighteenth lot fell to Happizziez.
- ¹⁶ The nineteenth lot fell to Pethahiah.
The twentieth lot fell to Jehezkel.
- ¹⁷ The twenty-first lot fell to Jakin.
The twenty-second lot fell to Gamul.
- ¹⁸ The twenty-third lot fell to Delaiah.
The twenty-fourth lot fell to Maaziah.

¹⁹Each group carried out its appointed duties in the house of the LORD according to the procedures established by their ancestor Aaron in obedience to the commands of the LORD, the God of Israel.

Family Leaders among the Levites

²⁰These were the other family leaders descended from Levi:

- From the descendants of Amram, the leader was Shebuel.
- From the descendants of Shebuel, the leader was Jehdeiah.
- ²¹ From the descendants of Rehabiah, the leader was Isshiah.
- ²² From the descendants of Izhar, the leader was Shelomith.
From the descendants of Shelomith, the leader was Jahath.
- ²³ From the descendants of Hebron, Jeriah was the leader, Amariah was second, Jahaziel was third, and Jekameam was fourth.
- ²⁴ From the descendants of Uzziel, the leader was Micah.
From the descendants of Micah, the leader was Shamir, ²⁵along with Isshiah, the brother of Micah.
From the descendants of Isshiah, the leader was Zechariah.
- ²⁶ From the descendants of Merari, the leaders were Mahli and Mushi.
From the descendants of Jaaziah, the leader was Beno.
- ²⁷ From the descendants of Merari through Jaaziah, the leaders were Beno, Shoham, Zaccur, and Ibri.

24:1-19 The information about the priests' duties includes only their organization into orders and the assignment of their responsibilities by casting lots. The Chronicler does not explain their duties because they had long been solidly established (see Exod 28:1-5; Lev 1-7; Num 6:22-27).

24:1-2 The organization of the priests into their divisions for service began with Aaron's sons Eleazar and Ithamar; all of Israel's priests were descended from these two men.

24:3-6 Zadok and Ahimelech were the leaders of the two families of priests during David's time (see 6:8; 18:16; 2 Sam 8:17).

24:7-18 The twenty-four divisions established for the priests continued unchanged for many generations; the order of Abijah (24:10) is specifically mentioned in Luke 1:5, 8.

24:20-31 The other family leaders might refer to all those members of the tribe who were not priests yet who had already been documented (see 23:6-23), or it might refer to Levites not mentioned before. However, most of the families were already included in the previous list. Therefore, this list appears to be an independent, supplementary list that complements the previous register of Levites, perhaps bringing the earlier list up to date at a later time.

24:20 Shebuel: Hebrew Shubael (also in 24:20b), a variant spelling of Shebuel; cp. 23:16 and 26:24.

24:22 Shelomith: Hebrew Shelomoth (also in 24:22b), a variant spelling of Shelomith; cp. 23:18.

24:23 From the descendants of Hebron, Jeriah was the leader: Literally From the descendants of Jeriah; cp. 23:19.

- ²⁸ From the descendants of Mahli, the leader was Eleazar, though he had no sons.
²⁹ From the descendants of Kish, the leader was Jerahmeel.
³⁰ From the descendants of Mushi, the leaders were Mahli, Eder, and Jerimoth.

These were the descendants of Levi in their various families. ³¹Like the descendants of Aaron, they were assigned to their duties by means of sacred lots, without regard to age or rank. Lots were drawn in the presence of King David, Zadok, Ahimelech, and the family leaders of the priests and the Levites.

Duties of the Musicians

25 David and the army commanders then appointed men from the families of Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun to proclaim God's messages to the accompaniment of lyres, harps, and cymbals. Here is a list of their names and their work:

- ²From the sons of Asaph, there were Zaccur, Joseph, Nathaniah, and Asarelah. They worked under the direction of their father, Asaph, who proclaimed God's messages by the king's orders.
³From the sons of Jeduthun, there were Gedaliah, Zeri, Jeshaiiah, Shimei, Hashabiah, and Mattithiah, six in all. They worked under the direction of their father, Jeduthun, who proclaimed God's messages to the accompaniment of the lyre, offering thanks and praise to the LORD.
⁴From the sons of Heman, there were Bukkiah, Mattaniah, Uzziel, Shubael, Jerimoth, Hananiah, Hanani, Eliathah, Giddalti, Romamti-ezer, Joshbekashah, Mallothi, Hothir, and Mahazioth. ⁵All these were the sons of Heman, the king's seer, for God had honored him with fourteen sons and three daughters.
⁶All these men were under the direction of their fathers as they made music at the house of the LORD. Their responsibilities included the playing of cymbals, harps, and lyres at the house of God. Asaph, Jeduthun, and Heman reported directly to the king. ⁷They and their families were all trained in making music before the LORD, and each of them—288 in all—was an accomplished musician. ⁸The musicians were appointed to their term of service by means of sacred lots, without regard to whether they were young or old, teacher or student.

- ⁹ The first lot fell to Joseph of the Asaph clan and twelve of his sons and relatives.

The second lot fell to Gedaliah and twelve of his sons and relatives.

- ¹⁰ The third lot fell to Zaccur and twelve of his sons and relatives.
¹¹ The fourth lot fell to Zeri and twelve of his sons and relatives.

¹⁴ The seventh lot fell to Asarelah and twelve of his sons and relatives.
¹⁵ The eighth lot fell to Jeshaiiah and twelve of his sons and relatives.
¹⁶ The ninth lot fell to Mattaniah and twelve of his sons and relatives.
¹⁷ The tenth lot fell to Shimei and twelve of his sons and relatives.
¹⁸ The eleventh lot fell to Uzziel and twelve of his sons and relatives.

²³ The sixteenth lot fell to Hananiah and twelve of his sons and relatives.
²⁴ The seventeenth lot fell to Joshbekashah and twelve of his sons and relatives.

Duties of the Gatekeepers

26 These are the divisions of the gatekeepers:

From the Korahites, there was Meshelemiah son of Kore, of the family of Abiasaph. ²The sons of Meshelemiah were Zechariah (the oldest), Jediahel (the second), Zebadiah (the third), Jathniel (the fourth), ³Elam (the fifth), Jehohanan (the sixth), and Eliehoenai (the seventh).

⁴The sons of Obed-edom, also gatekeepers, were Shemaiah (the oldest), Jehozabad (the second), Joah (the third), Sacar (the fourth), Nethanel (the fifth), ⁵Ammiel (the sixth), Issachar (the seventh), and Peullethai (the eighth). God had richly blessed Obed-edom.

⁶Obed-edom's son Shemaiah had sons with great ability who earned positions of great authority in the clan.

⁷Their names were Othni, Rephael, Obed, and Elzabad. Their relatives, Elihu and Semakiah, were also very capable men.

⁸All of these descendants of Obed-edom, including their sons and grandsons—sixty-two of them in all—were very capable men, well qualified for their work.

⁹Meshelemiah's eighteen sons and relatives were also very capable men.

¹⁰Hosah, of the Merari clan, appointed Shimri as the leader among his sons, though he was not the oldest. ¹¹His other sons included Hilkiah (the second), Tebaliah (the third), and Zechariah (the fourth). Hosah's sons and relatives, who served as gatekeepers, numbered thirteen in all.

¹²These divisions of the gatekeepers were named for their family leaders, and like the other Levites, they served at the house of the LORD. ¹³They were assigned by families for guard duty at the various gates, without regard to age or training, for it was all decided by means of sacred lots.

¹⁴The responsibility for the east gate went to Meshelemiah and his group. The north gate was assigned to his son Zechariah, a man of unusual wisdom. ¹⁵The south gate went to Obed-edom, and his sons were put in charge of the storehouse. ¹⁶Shuppim and Hosah were assigned the west gate and the gateway leading up to the Temple. Guard duties were divided evenly. ¹⁷Six Levites were assigned each day to the east gate, four to the north gate, four to the south gate, and two pairs at the storehouse. ¹⁸Six were assigned each day to the west gate, four to the gateway leading up to the Temple, and two to the courtyard.

¹⁹These were the divisions of the gatekeepers from the clans of Korah and Merari.

Treasurers and Other Officials

²⁰Other Levites, led by Ahijah, were in charge of the treasuries of the house of God and the treasuries of the gifts dedicated to the LORD. ²¹From the family of Libni in the clan of Gershon, Jehiel was the leader. ²²The sons of Jehiel, Zetham and his brother Joel, were in charge of the treasuries of the house of the LORD.

²³These are the leaders that descended from Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel:

26:1 The first ancestor of the gatekeepers was Meshelemiah (called "Shallum" in Ezra 2:42; "Meshullam" in Neh 12:25). • Abiasaph: As in Greek version (see also Exod 6:24); Hebrew reads Asaph.

26:5 God had richly blessed Obed-edom, who temporarily housed the Ark (13:13-14), by giving him many descendants (26:8).

26:14 Meshelemiah: Hebrew Shelemiah, a variant spelling of Meshelemiah; cp. 26:2.

26:16 the gateway leading up to the Temple: Or the gate of Shalleketh on the upper road (also in 26:18). The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

26:18 the courtyard: Or the colonnade. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

26:20-32 In preparation for Solomon's succession to the throne, David appointed these officials as part of his comprehensive organization of the Levitical orders at the end of his reign.

The officers included treasurers, administrators, and judges who were part of the political bureaucracy.

26:21-28 The Levites were in charge of the Lord's treasuries and property (see 2 Chr 24:11; 31:12). Some spoils of war were always dedicated to God (26:26-28).

26:21 Libni: Hebrew Ladan, a variant spelling of Libni; cp. 6:17. • Jehiel: Hebrew Jehieli (also in 26:22), a variant spelling of Jehiel; cp. 23:8.

²⁴From the clan of Amram, Shebuel was a descendant of Gershom son of Moses. He was the chief officer of the treasuries. ²⁵His relatives through Eliezer were Rehabiah, Jeshaiiah, Joram, Zicri, and Shelomoth.

²⁶Shelomoth and his relatives were in charge of the treasuries containing the gifts that King David, the family leaders, and the generals and captains and other officers of the army had dedicated to the LORD. ²⁷These men dedicated some of the plunder they had gained in battle to maintain the house of the LORD.

²⁸Shelomoth and his relatives also cared for the gifts dedicated to the LORD by Samuel the seer, Saul son of Kish, Abner son of Ner, and Joab son of Zeruiah. All the other dedicated gifts were in their care, too.

²⁹From the clan of Izhar came Kenaniah. He and his sons were given administrative responsibilities over Israel as officials and judges.

³⁰From the clan of Hebron came Hashabiah. He and his relatives—1,700 capable men—were put in charge of the Israelite lands west of the Jordan River. They were responsible for all matters related to the things of the LORD and the service of the king in that area.

³¹Also from the clan of Hebron came Jeriah, who was the leader of the Hebronites according to the genealogical records. (In the fortieth year of David's reign, a search was made in the records, and capable men from the clan of Hebron were found at Jazer in the land of Gilead.) ³²There were 2,700 capable men among the relatives of Jeriah. King David sent them to the east side of the Jordan River and put them in charge of the tribes of Reuben and Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh. They were responsible for all matters related to God and to the king.

Organization of the People (27:1-34)

Military Commanders and Divisions

27 This is the list of Israelite generals and captains, and their officers, who served the king by supervising the army divisions that were on duty each month of the year. Each division served for one month and had 24,000 troops.

²Jashobeam son of Zabdiel was commander of the first division of 24,000 troops, which was on duty during the first month. ³He was a descendant of Perez and was in charge of all the army officers for the first month.

⁴Dodai, a descendant of Ahoah, was commander of the second division of 24,000 troops, which was on duty during the second month. Mikloth was his chief officer.

⁵Benaiah son of Jehoiada the priest was commander of the third division of 24,000 troops, which was on duty during the third month. ⁶This was the Benaiah who commanded David's elite military group known as the Thirty. His son Ammizabad was his chief officer.

⁷Asahel, the brother of Joab, was commander of the fourth division of 24,000 troops, which was on duty during the fourth month. Asahel was succeeded by his son Zebadiah.

⁸Shammah the Izrahite was commander of the fifth division of 24,000 troops, which was on duty during the fifth month.

⁹Ira son of Ikkesh from Tekoa was commander of the sixth division of 24,000 troops, which was on duty during the sixth month.

¹⁰Helez, a descendant of Ephraim from Pelon, was commander of the seventh division of 24,000 troops, which was on duty during the seventh month.

¹¹Sibbecai, a descendant of Zerah from Hushah, was commander of the eighth division of 24,000 troops, which was on duty during the eighth month.

27:1-15 David's reserve army was organized into twelve divisions, each serving on active duty one month each year. Their duties probably included protecting the borders, policing, keeping order in conquered territories, manning fortresses, and tending military equipment (horses and chariots). The divisions were not related to Israel's tribal structure; each division contained individuals from various tribes, indicating the integration of the kingdom.

Leaders of the Tribes

¹⁶The following were the tribes of Israel and their leaders:

Tribe	Leader
Reuben	Eliezer son of Zicri
Simeon	Shephatiah son of Maacah
¹⁷ Levi	Hashabiah son of Kemuel

These were the leaders of the tribes of Israel.

²³When David took his census, he did not count those who were younger than twenty years of age, because the LORD had promised to make the Israelites as numerous as the stars in heaven. ²⁴Joab son of Zeruiah began the census but never finished it because the anger of God fell on Israel. The total number was never recorded in King David's official records.

²⁵Azmaveth son of Adiel was in charge of the palace treasuries.

Jehiel the Hacmonite was responsible for teaching the king's sons. ³³Ahithophel was the royal adviser. Hushai the Arkite was the king's friend. ³⁴Ahithophel was succeeded by Jehoiada son of Benaiah and by Abiathar. Joab was commander of the king's army.

Accession of Solomon (28:1–29:30)

David's Address to the Assembly

28 David summoned all the officials of Israel to Jerusalem—the leaders of the tribes, the commanders of the army divisions, the other generals and captains, 27:15 Heled: Hebrew Heldai, a variant spelling of Heled; cp. 11:30; 2 Sam 23:29.

27:16–22 The order of the tribes roughly follows Num 1:5–15: the six sons of Leah, the two sons of Rachel (the “tribe” of Joseph=Ephraim and Manasseh, followed by Benjamin), followed by the two sons of Bilhah (Dan and Naphtali). Changes from the order of that list are that Naphtali is transferred to his geographical location next to Zebulun, and the tribe of Levi is inserted at the position of Levi's birth order, with the family of Aaron (the priests) listed separately. Absent from this list are the two sons of Zilpah (Gad and Asher).

27:18 The name Elihu might refer to Eliab (2:13), or he might have been a different brother of David.

the overseers of the royal property and livestock, the palace officials, the mighty men, and all the other brave warriors in the kingdom. ²David rose to his feet and said: "My brothers and my people! It was my desire to build a Temple where the 'Ark of the LORD's Covenant, God's footstool, could rest permanently. I made the necessary preparations for building it, ³but God said to me, 'You must not build a Temple to honor my name, for you are a warrior and have shed much blood.'

⁴"Yet the LORD, the God of Israel, has chosen me from among all my father's family to be king over Israel forever. For he has chosen the tribe of Judah to rule, and from among the families of Judah he chose my father's family. And from among my father's sons the LORD was pleased to make me king over all Israel. ⁵And from among my sons—for the LORD has given me many—he ¹chose Solomon to succeed me on the throne of Israel and to rule over the LORD's kingdom. ⁶He said to me, 'Your son Solomon will build my Temple and its courtyards, for I have chosen him as my son, and I will be his father. ⁷And if he continues to obey my commands and regulations as he does now, I will make his kingdom last forever.'

⁸"So now, with God as our witness, and in the sight of all Israel—the LORD's assembly—I give you this charge. Be careful to obey all the commands of the LORD your God, so that you may continue to possess this good land and leave it to your children as a permanent inheritance.

David's Charge to Solomon

⁹"And Solomon, my son, learn to know the God of your ancestors intimately. Worship and serve him with your whole heart and a willing mind. For the LORD sees every heart and knows every plan and thought. If you seek him, you will find him. But if you forsake him, he will reject you forever. ¹⁰So take this seriously. The LORD has chosen you to build a Temple as his sanctuary. Be strong, and do the work."

¹¹Then David gave Solomon the plans for the Temple and its surroundings, including the entry room, the storerooms, the upstairs rooms, the inner rooms, and the inner sanctuary—which was the place of atonement. ¹²David also gave Solomon all the plans he had in mind for the courtyards of the LORD's Temple, the outside rooms, the treasuries, and the rooms for the gifts dedicated to the LORD. ¹³The king also gave Solomon the instructions concerning the work of the various divisions of priests and Levites in the Temple of the LORD. And he gave specifications for the items in the Temple that were to be used for worship.

¹⁴David gave instructions regarding how much gold and silver should be used to make the items needed for service. ¹⁵He told Solomon the amount of gold needed for the gold lampstands and lamps, and the amount of silver for the silver lampstands and lamps, depending on how each would be used. ¹⁶He designated the amount of gold for the table on which the Bread of the Presence would be placed and the amount of silver for other tables.

¹⁷David also designated the amount of gold for the solid gold meat hooks used to handle the sacrificial meat and for the basins, pitchers, and dishes, as well as the amount

David is presented at the pinnacle of his strength as he transfers authority to Solomon (cp. 1 Kgs 1:1-2:9).

28:1 This assembly of all the officials of Israel includes all whose names were mentioned in the preceding chapters. • the other generals and captains: Literally the commanders of thousands and commanders of hundreds.

28:2-10 The account of David's first discourse includes a message addressed to his people (28:2-8) and a message to Solomon (28:9-10). The main focus of the address is David's desire for Solomon to build a Temple. In addition, David addressed two other important themes: God's selection of Solomon, and the people's obligation to keep God's commandments.

28:2 David described the Temple as a place where the Ark of the LORD's Covenant . . . could rest. The term "rest" describes the conquest of the land and the establishment of peace (e.g., Deut 12:9). In the wilderness, the Ark rested at the end of battle (Num 10:35-36). When David brought the Ark to Jerusalem, the Ark's "rest" became permanent, as David expressed in a psalm of worship: "Arise, O LORD, and enter your resting place, along with the Ark, the symbol of your power" (Ps 132:8). God had chosen Mount Zion as his resting place (see "Mount Zion, the City of God" at Ps 48, p. 947).

28:3 See note on 22:8.

28:4-6 the LORD . . . has chosen me . . . to be king over Israel forever: God's selection of David actually began with Judah (Gen 49:8-12), culminated with David (1 Sam 16:1-13), and continued with Solomon (28:5-6, 10). All subsequent kings reigned by virtue of God's promise to David.

28:9-10 David's message to Solomon did not stress the privileges of being chosen as king but emphasized the responsibilities of assuming the throne. The primary obligation was to seek the Lord, to worship and serve him. The Lord also required an unflinching resolve to build the Temple sanctuary.

28:11-21 God gave David the actual plans for the Temple through divine inspiration (28:19). On other occasions God also provided plans for the Tabernacle in the wilderness (Exod 25:9) and for the future Temple of Ezekiel (Ezek 40:4).

of silver for every dish. ¹⁸He designated the amount of refined gold for the altar of incense. Finally, he gave him a plan for the LORD's "chariot"—the gold cherubim whose wings were stretched out over the Ark of the LORD's Covenant. ¹⁹"Every part of this plan," David told Solomon, "was given to me in writing from the hand of the LORD."

²⁰Then David continued, "Be strong and courageous, and do the work. Don't be afraid or discouraged, for the LORD God, my God, is with you. He will not fail you or forsake you. He will see to it that all the work related to the Temple of the LORD is finished correctly. ²¹The various divisions of priests and Levites will serve in the Temple of God. Others with skills of every kind will volunteer, and the officials and the entire nation are at your command."

Gifts for Building the Temple

29 Then King David turned to the entire assembly and said, "My son Solomon, whom God has clearly chosen as the next king of Israel, is still young and inexperienced. The work ahead of him is enormous, for the Temple he will build is not for mere mortals—it is for the LORD God himself! ²Using every resource at my command, I have gathered as much as I could for building the Temple of my God. Now there is enough gold, silver, bronze, iron, and wood, as well as great quantities of onyx, other precious stones, costly jewels, and all kinds of fine stone and marble.

³"And now, because of my devotion to the Temple of my God, I am giving all of my own private treasures of gold and silver to help in the construction. This is in addition

God promised that his kingdom would come through David (17:4-14). During his reign, David himself made preparations for the building of the Temple as the focal point of God's kingdom (28:11-19). He also appealed to Israel's leaders to seek the Lord (28:8-10), and he encouraged the community of Israel to "be strong and courageous" in trusting God to provide (28:20-21).

The Chronicler used these words of David to appeal to the citizens of Judea after the Exile to keep the hope of God's kingdom. The Chronicler wanted the people to know that God's promise to David, confirmed to Solomon, was equally confirmed for them. After the Exile, Judah no longer existed as an independent kingdom ruled by the dynasty of David. Instead, Judea stood as a small territory with limited independence under a Persian governor. Yet the community of Judea could experience God's blessing, just as the people had in the days of Hezekiah or Josiah. The Chronicler did not know exactly how God's promise to David would be realized. Yet he had complete trust in God's power, sovereignty, and justice; he knew that God would be faithful to his promise, and his kingdom would eventually rule over all.

Following the time of the Chronicler, it appeared that his hopes were disappointed. The Greeks replaced the Persians as rulers of Israel; their intolerance for the Jewish community of faith reached its zenith in the tyrannical Antiochus (Epiphanes) IV (175–163 BC), who made every effort to destroy Israel's faith and identity, as Daniel had foreseen (Dan 11:21-39). The priestly family of Maccabees resisted Antiochus, restored the Temple, and preserved Judea's identity. But then the community disintegrated under the successors to the Maccabees; Israel fractured into sects (Pharisees, Sadducees, and Essenes) and eventually came under Roman control. When Jesus was born, Roman governors controlled the territory of Israel.

The fulfillment of God's promises to David took place in a way the Chronicler did not anticipate. Jesus was the anointed king, the Messiah from the dynasty of David (Matt 16:16-17). He established his kingdom among his followers. The powers of hell will never prevail against his followers; his kingdom will be forever.

specifically recounting what God had communicated about them through David.

28:18 for the LORD's "chariot"—the gold cherubim: Literally for the gold cherub chariot. The cherubim were various images of composite creatures found in connection with thrones and palaces. Ancient kings sat on cherub thrones. In God's throne room (the Most Holy Place of Israel's sanctuary), cherubim atop the Ark of the Covenant served a similar function (see Exod 25:18-22; 2 Sam 6:2; Ps 99:1; cp. Ezek 10:1-22).

28:19 was given to me in writing from the hand of the LORD: Or was written under the direction of the LORD.

29:1-9 David persuaded the assembly of Israel's leaders (28:1) to offer gifts to the Lord for the Temple. David's own generous gift provided an example of the amounts leaders should consider. The Chronicler emphasizes that the heavy expense of building the Temple was not shouldered by Solomon alone; Solomon added to the contributions made by David and the leaders of Israel (see 22:14). • young and inexperienced: See note on 22:5.

to the building materials I have already collected for his holy Temple. ⁴I am donating more than 112 tons of gold from Ophir and 262 tons of refined silver to be used for overlaying the walls of the buildings ⁵and for the other gold and silver work to be done by the craftsmen. Now then, who will follow my example and give offerings to the LORD today?"

⁶Then the family leaders, the leaders of the tribes of Israel, the generals and captains of the army, and the king's administrative officers all gave willingly. ⁷For the construction of the Temple of God, they gave about 188 tons of gold, 10,000 gold coins, 375 tons of silver, 675 tons of bronze, and 3,750 tons of iron. ⁸They also contributed numerous precious stones, which were deposited in the treasury of the house of the LORD under the care of Jehiel, a descendant of Gershon. ⁹The people rejoiced over the offerings, for they had given freely and wholeheartedly to the LORD, and King David was filled with joy.

David's Prayer of Praise

¹⁰Then David praised the LORD in the presence of the whole assembly:

"O LORD, the God of our ancestor Israel, may you be praised forever and ever!

¹¹Yours, O LORD, is the greatness, the power, the glory, the victory, and the majesty. Everything in the heavens and on earth is yours, O LORD, and this is your kingdom. We adore you as the one who is over all things. ¹²Wealth and honor come from you alone, for you rule over everything. Power and might are in your hand, and at your discretion people are made great and given strength.

¹³"O our God, we thank you and praise your glorious name! ¹⁴But who am I, and who are my people, that we could give anything to you? Everything we have has come from you, and we give you only what you first gave us! ¹⁵We are here for only a moment, visitors and strangers in the land as our ancestors were before us. Our days on earth are like a passing shadow, gone so soon without a trace.

¹⁶"O LORD our God, even this material we have gathered to build a Temple to honor your holy name comes from you! It all belongs to you! ¹⁷I know, my God, that you examine our ^khearts and rejoice when you find integrity there. You know I have done all this with good ^kmotives, and I have watched your people offer their gifts willingly and joyously.

¹⁸"O LORD, the God of our ancestors Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, make your people always want to obey you. See to it that their love for you never changes. ¹⁹Give my son Solomon the wholehearted desire to obey all your commands, laws, and decrees, and to do everything necessary to build this Temple, for which I have made these preparations."

²⁰Then David said to the whole assembly, "Give praise to the LORD your God!" And the entire assembly praised the LORD, the God of their ancestors, and they bowed low and knelt before the LORD and the king.

Persian darics were first minted during the reign of King Darius I of Persia (522-486 bc). In describing the Temple gifts presented during the days of Solomon, the Chronicler converted the information of his sources into the equivalents of his own day, just as the NLT converts Hebrew weights and measures to modern equivalents. • 375 tons of silver: Hebrew 10,000 talents [340 metric tons] of silver. • 675 tons of bronze: Hebrew 18,000 talents [612 metric tons] of bronze. • 3,750 tons of iron: Hebrew 100,000 talents [3,400 metric tons] of iron.

29:10-19 David's prayer of praise concluded his addresses at Solomon's coronation. The prayer extols God's power and the glory of his kingdom, and it serves to dedicate the offerings given for building the Temple. The prayer is composed of three parts: the doxology (20:10b-13), the presentation and dedication of the offerings (29:14-17), and the petition (29:18-19).

29:10 Israel is the name that God gave to Jacob (Gen 32:28).

29:18-19 David did not ask God to grant power, victory, or riches, or for the establishment of Solomon's kingdom. Instead he asked God to make the people of Israel, and Solomon in particular, always want to obey the Lord. Gaining this kind of heart attitude is a gift from the Lord; success and prosperity are secondary.

29:21-25 Sacrifices followed the speeches and prayers at Solomon's coronation. Solomon and Zadok were anointed, and Solomon acceded to the throne. Zadok was not beginning his priestly role but was being dedicated to serve in the Temple itself. (The descendants of Zadok are mentioned in Ezek 40:46; 43:19; 44:15; 48:11.)

Summary of David's Reign

1 Chr 29:26-30 // 1 Kgs 2:10-12

²⁶So David son of Jesse reigned over all Israel. ²⁷He reigned over Israel for forty years, seven of them in Hebron and thirty-three in Jerusalem. ²⁸He died at a ripe old age, having enjoyed long life, wealth, and honor. Then his son Solomon ruled in his place.

²⁹All the events of King David's reign, from beginning to end, are written in The Record of Samuel the Seer, The Record of Nathan the Prophet, and The Record of Gad the Seer. ³⁰These accounts include the mighty deeds of his reign and everything that happened to him and to Israel and to all the surrounding kingdoms.

29:26-30 The Chronicler concludes his account of David's reign with a stylized summary, similar in form to those used for all the kings of Israel and Judah (e.g., 1 Kgs 22:41-50). Like Abraham (Gen 25:8) and Isaac (Gen 35:29), David . . . died at a ripe old age with wealth and honor.

29:29 The sources used for the chronicles of David's reign are associated with three prophets, named in the order in which they appear in Chronicles: Samuel (11:3), Nathan (ch 17), and Gad (21:9). The Chronicler had access to various sources in addition to the books of Samuel and Kings (see note on 9:1; see also 1 Kgs 11:41-43; 14:19-20, 29-31).

29:30 The concluding verse extols David by making him the center of the events of his time.

THE SECOND BOOK OF

Chronicles

The books of Chronicles give purpose and hope to a people whose future appears uncertain. God had promised that David's descendants would have an everlasting kingdom, but the people of Judah had been exiled to Babylon, had returned to Jerusalem, and now lived as Persian subjects. Judah had no king descended from David, and no hope of becoming a kingdom. Yet God's promises are certain, so the Chronicler encouraged the Judeans to hope for the future. The words of King Jehoshaphat capture the spirit of Chronicles: "Listen to me, all you people of Judah

SETTING

The Babylonian conquest of Judah occurred in 605–586 BC, about two centuries before Chronicles was written (around 400 BC; see 1 Chronicles Introduction, "Authorship and Date," p. 684). To address questions about God's purposes, the Chronicler narrated the past of the Israelites from the earliest times until the destruction of the kingdom of Judah.

The Chronicler was a skilled professional historian. His knowledge of Israel's former glory came through his worship at the Temple, his reading of the Scriptures, and his work as a historian. In his writing, he extensively used the Pentateuch, Samuel, Kings, and many other sources. He selected material from the earlier books and edited it into the order, context, and form that he thought appropriate for his writing purpose. He evaluated his sources, commenting on their meaning and on the significance of the historical events in the earlier texts. By studying the past, he learned about the present and provided hope for the future of faithful people.

The Chronicler was also a sophisticated writer. By carefully selecting his material and reworking it to suit his own purposes, he did not intend to replace or supplement earlier historical writings. Instead, he presumed that his readers were already familiar with his main sources and knew the characters in his books. He made his writings vital to his own time: He evaluated the past from his own vantage point and wrote so that his contemporaries could understand the heritage of the Temple and its worship and the status of God's promises.

SUMMARY

The Chronicler's history focuses on David and Solomon. The promise of the kingdom that God gave to David was confirmed for Solomon (1 Chr 28:4-7), and the Chronicler's account of David and Solomon constitutes almost half of his history (1 Chr 11-29; 2 Chr 1-9). Much of this narrative pertains to the building of the Temple and to providing for the priests.

Solomon's prayer and God's response are central to the Chronicler's account of Solomon (chs 6-7). God responded to Solomon's prayer in a vision that articulated the Chronicler's own theological perspective (7:12-22): God answers the prayers and repentance of his people; he brings judgment upon the disobedient, but he rewards humility and prayer with healing and deliverance. The Chronicler used his sources to explain to his own generation God's rewards and punishments.

After recording the division of the monarchy, the Chronicler focused exclusively on the southern kingdom of Judah. He associated the continuity of the kingdom and Israel's future with two institutions: the dynasty of David and the Temple in Jerusalem. However, the southern kingdom was not always a model of obedience, and the northern kingdom, Israel, sometimes did what was right (e.g., 28:5-15). The Chronicler always saw the northern kingdom as a part of Israel that needed to be restored, and he took special interest in contacts between the north and the south. He did not condemn the northerners for the initial division, but he did blame them for their refusal to return once their grievances were settled.

The Chronicler's portrayal of Judah's kings sometimes departs remarkably from parallel descriptions in the book of Kings, such as with Uzziah, Jotham, and Hezekiah. Although Uzziah was a powerful king who ruled for more than fifty years, he appears as a minor figure in Kings (2 Kgs 15:1-7). In Chronicles, however, Uzziah is depicted as a famous reformer and builder. Although little is said about Jotham in Kings (2 Kgs 15:32-38), his work is portrayed much more extensively in Chronicles. He continued the work of his father Uzziah: He built extensively on the wall of the Ophel, established cities in the hill country of Judah, and built fortresses and towers in the wooded areas (27:3-4). The Chronicler also expands our understanding of Hezekiah, devoting more space to him (29:1-32:33) than to any king except David and Solomon, dealing extensively with Hezekiah's reforms and the restoration of Temple worship, and describing at length how Hezekiah prepared for the Assyrian siege of Jerusalem.

The reigns of Manasseh and Amon follow (ch 33), and their wickedness and idolatry set the stage for Judah's demise. Manasseh experienced his own exile, repentance, and return to Judah—a microcosm of what the Judeans themselves later experienced. Josiah's reign (34:1-35:27) was pleasing to God. But when Josiah died (609 BC), Judah's end soon followed. Within four years, the Babylonians began a series of attacks (605-586 BC) that led to the destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple and the exile of most of the population to Babylon (36:2-21). The covenant unfaithfulness of the people of Judah had come to fruition. Yet the Chronicler included a glimmer of hope, ending his account with the later proclamation of Cyrus in 538 BC that allowed the Jews to return to Judah and rebuild Jerusalem (36:22-23).

CHRONICLES AS HISTORY

Chronicles is an ancient work of history with a distinctive approach. The book of 2 Chronicles covers essentially the same time period as 1 & 2 Kings. And while the Chronicler drew upon the earlier records of Samuel, Kings, and other sources, his own work shows a remarkable independence. He gave detailed attention to military, administrative, and geopolitical affairs in times that were already hundreds of years distant. He frequently added detailed information not found in any surviving sources but evidently available to him.

Archaeology occasionally provides confirmation of administrative and geopolitical reforms discussed by the Chronicler. For example, an inscription has been found in the Siloam Tunnel describing Hezekiah's water project. Most of the time, the evidence has only a broad connection, such as with Uzziah's building activity or agricultural initiatives. The work of the Chronicler is a valuable resource for understanding the history of the times he wrote about.

MEANING AND MESSAGE

The fundamental question for the restoration community that comprised the original audience of Chronicles was its relationship to the Israel of the past. They were no longer an independent nation but a small province in the Persian empire. What validity did God's promises regarding the Temple and the house of David have for a community that had no king, lived under foreign domination, and had only recently rebuilt the Temple destroyed by the Babylonians?

Chronicles presents the period of David and Solomon as an ideal time when all of Israel united in worship at the Temple (7:8). Concern for the correct worship of God dominates the account of David's reign. The restoration of the Ark to Jerusalem and David's military victories provided for the future Temple. David made all the necessary arrangements for the appropriate officials as worship shifted from Gibeon to Jerusalem. To the Chronicler, David's reign offered a paradigm for his own readers: David moved out of being a fugitive from Saul (a condition of exile) and into the functioning community of God. The postexilic community reading Chronicles had undergone a similar transition from exile and could anticipate similar blessings if they were obedient.

The Chronicler regards Solomon's reign as equal to David's, because Solomon brought to fruition David's plans for the Temple and its worship (3:1; 5:1; 7:1). In Chronicles, Solomon enjoys divine blessing and the total support of the people, David appoints Solomon to the throne in a public announcement, and Adonijah's attempted coup is entirely omitted. The Chronicler does not mention Solomon's sins, and he shifts blame for the schism to Jeroboam (13:6-7). Solomon's wealth and international influence reflect his glorious, peaceful, and righteous reign.

The division of Israel into northern and southern kingdoms shows the obvious failure of the kingdom to meet its ideals, but it does not mean that all hope for the kingdom was lost. Obedience still results in God's blessing, and disobedience will be punished. The Chronicler provides a cause for judgment each time calamity occurs, and he also emphasizes the blessings that result from faithfulness. Repentance is always a means of averting, or at least moderating, a threatened judgment. Prophetic warnings are always issued before judgment falls, and the possibility of healing is always present. This pattern provides one of the primary ways that the Chronicler communicates hope for the future in his own time.

With the reign of Hezekiah, the Chronicler offers a solution to the problem of the divided monarchy. Under Ahaz, Judah descended to the same level of disobedience as Israel (28:2, 6), and the kingdom of Israel is presented in a more favorable light. As Israel's leaders confessed their sins (28:13), they indicated that the northerners were ready for restoration. The Chronicler then introduces Hezekiah, distinctively characterizing him as a second Solomon. Hezekiah invited the north to join in the first Passover of his reign, and many responded (30:11); a similar celebration had not been held since Solomon's time (30:26). Hezekiah's Passover provides a model for the restoration of Israel as a unified kingdom.

The Chronicler used his account of Israel's history to teach his readers to regulate their lives and community. He maintained hope for a historical restoration of the promise to David—however remote such a possibility may have seemed in his time. The Chronicler makes it clear that the kingdom of Israel was not a human institution subject to the whims of political expediency. It was God's kingdom, and God would ultimately make it a reality.

1. REIGN OF SOLOMON (1:1–9:31)

Confirmation of Solomon (1:1–17)Solomon Asks for Wisdom

2 Chr 1:1–13 // 1 Kgs 3:1–15

1 Solomon son of David took firm control of his kingdom, for the LORD his God was with him and made him very powerful.

²Solomon called together all the leaders of Israel—the generals and captains of the army, the judges, and all the political and clan leaders. ³Then he led the entire assembly to the place of worship in Gibeon, for God's Tabernacle was located there. (This was the Tabernacle that Moses, the LORD's servant, had made in the wilderness.)

⁴David had already moved the Ark of God from Kiriath-jearim to the tent he had prepared for it in Jerusalem. ⁵But the bronze altar made by Bezalel son of Uri and grandson of Hur was there at Gibeon in front of the Tabernacle of the LORD. So Solomon and the people gathered in front of it to consult the LORD. ⁶There in front of the Tabernacle, Solomon went up to the bronze altar in the LORD's presence and sacrificed 1,000 burnt offerings on it.

⁷That night God appeared to Solomon and said, "What do you want? Ask, and I will give it to you!"

⁸Solomon replied to God, "You showed great and faithful love to David, my father, and now you have made me king in his place.

⁹O LORD God, please continue to keep your promise to David my father, for you have made me king over a people as numerous as the dust of the earth! ¹⁰Give me the wisdom and knowledge to lead them properly, for who could possibly govern this great people of yours?"

¹¹God said to Solomon, "Because your greatest desire is to help your people, and you did not ask for wealth, riches, fame, or even the death of your enemies or a long life, but rather you asked for wisdom and knowledge to properly govern my people—¹²I will certainly give you the wisdom and knowledge you requested. But I will also give you wealth, riches, and fame such as no other king has had before you or will ever have in the future!"

¹³Then Solomon returned to Jerusalem from the Tabernacle at the place of worship in Gibeon, and he reigned over Israel.

1:1 David had asked that the Lord be with Solomon (1 Chr 22:11) and that Solomon be strong and of good courage (1 Chr 28:20). David also declared that God would make Solomon great, giving strength to all Israel (1 Chr 29:12). Three points about Solomon echo David's blessings: Solomon took firm control of his kingdom, . . . God was with him, and God made him very powerful.

1:2–6 Solomon's journey to Gibeon, reported in 1 Kgs 3:4, is here elaborated. This great public venture was closely associated with Solomon taking the throne. The event included military commanders and clan leaders. It took place in Gibeon because the Tabernacle was there, as was the great bronze altar where sacrifices were regularly offered.

1:3 Tabernacle: Literally Tent of Meeting; also in 1:6, 13. See note on Exod 27:21.

1:5 was there: As in Greek version and Latin Vulgate, and some Hebrew manuscripts; Masoretic Text reads he placed. • to consult the LORD: Literally to consult him.

1:7–12 See "Solomon's Wisdom" at 1 Kgs 3:5–14, p. 577.

1:10 Solomon received wisdom and knowledge so he could govern (Hebrew shapat) well. The word shapat, often rendered "judge" (e.g., in Judges), can also mean "govern." • to lead them properly literally to go out and come in before this people.

1:14–17 The illustration of Solomon's wealth and power (expanded on in 9:25–28) comes from the summary of his kingdom in 1 Kgs 10:26–29. In Kings, the summary of Solomon's wealth provided a transition to the negative aspects of Solomon's rule (1 Kgs 11). Here, Solomon's amassing of wealth showed the fulfillment of God's promise (1:12).

And valuable cedar timber was as common as the sycamore-fig trees that grow in the foothills of Judah. ¹⁶Solomon's horses were imported from Egypt and from Cilicia; the king's traders acquired them from Cilicia at the standard price. ¹⁷At that time chariots from Egypt could be purchased for 600 pieces of silver, and horses for 150 pieces of silver. They were then exported to the kings of the Hittites and the kings of Aram.

Building the Temple (2:1-7:22)

Preparations for Building the Temple

2 Chr 2:1-18 // 1 Kgs 5:1-18

2 Solomon decided to build a Temple to honor the name of the LORD, and also a royal palace for himself. ²He enlisted a force of 70,000 laborers, 80,000 men to quarry stone in the hill country, and 3,600 foremen.

³Solomon also sent this message to King Hiram at Tyre:

"Send me cedar logs as you did for my father, David, when he was building his palace. ⁴I am about to build a Temple to honor the name of the LORD my God. It will be a place set apart to burn fragrant incense before him, to display the special sacrificial bread, and to sacrifice burnt offerings each morning and evening, on the Sabbaths, at new moon celebrations, and at the other appointed festivals of the LORD our God. He has commanded Israel to do these things forever.

⁵"This must be a magnificent Temple because our God is greater than all other gods. ⁶But who can really build him a worthy home? Not even the highest heavens can contain him! So who am I to consider building a Temple for him, except as a place to burn sacrifices to him?

⁷"So send me a master craftsman who can work with gold, silver, bronze, and iron, as well as with purple, scarlet, and blue cloth. He must be a skilled engraver who can work with the craftsmen of Judah and Jerusalem who were selected by my father, David.

⁸"Also send me cedar, cypress, and red sandalwood logs from Lebanon, for I know that your men are without equal at cutting timber in Lebanon. I will send my men to help them. ⁹An immense amount of timber will be needed, for the Temple I am going to build will be very large and magnificent. ¹⁰In payment for your woodcutters, I will send 100,000 bushels of crushed wheat, 100,000 bushels of barley, 110,000 gallons of wine, and 110,000 gallons of olive oil."

¹¹King Hiram sent this letter of reply to Solomon:

"It is because the LORD loves his people that he has made you their king!

¹²Praise the LORD, the God of Israel, who made the heavens and the earth! He has given King David a wise son, gifted with skill and understanding, who will build a Temple for the LORD and a royal palace for himself.

¹³"I am sending you a master craftsman named Hiram-abi, who is extremely talented. ¹⁴His mother is from the tribe of Dan in Israel, and

1:14 horses: Or charioteers; also in 1:14b.
1:15 the foothills of Judah: Hebrew the Shephelah.

1:16 Egypt: Possibly Muzur, a district near Cilicia; also in 1:17. If Egypt is the correct translation, this verse indicates disobedience by Solomon (see Deut 17:16). However, importing from Muzur in Anatolia was not prohibited. • Cilicia: Hebrew Kue, probably another name for Cilicia.

1:17 600 pieces of silver: Hebrew 600 [shekels] of silver, about 15 pounds or 6.8 kilograms in weight. • 150 pieces of silver: Hebrew 150 [shekels], about 3.8 pounds or 1.7 kilograms in weight.

2:1 The Temple is immediately introduced as the first priority among Solomon's building projects, although the work actually began in the fourth year of his reign (3:2). Solomon used the intervening years to negotiate with King Hiram (2:3) for materials and skilled workers. • Verse 2:1 is numbered 1:18 in the Hebrew text.

2:2 Verses 2:2-18 are numbered 2:1-17 in the Hebrew text.

2:3 Hiram: Hebrew Huram, a variant spelling of Hiram; also in 2:11.

2:5-6 a magnificent Temple: The greatness of the Temple and the greatness of God were not of the same order, since not even the highest heavens can contain God.

2:8 The cedar is Cedrus libani ("cedar of Lebanon"), a tree renowned for its beauty, impressive height (sometimes reaching 100 feet), and fragrant wood. Kings from Egypt, Phoenicia, Assyria, Babylon, Persia, and Greece used cedar timber from Lebanon for building temples and palaces. • Red sandalwood (or juniper; Hebrew reads algum, perhaps a variant spelling of almug; cp. 9:10-11 and parallel text at 1 Kgs 10:11-12) was used to make supports for the Temple (possibly pillars or balustrades) as well as musical instruments (see 1 Kgs 10:11). Often mentioned in ancient writings, the exact identity of this hard, reddish-brown wood is uncertain.

2:10 100,000 bushels of crushed wheat, 100,000 bushels of barley: Hebrew 20,000 cors [4,400 kiloliters] of crushed wheat, 20,000 cors of barley. • 110,000 gallons of wine, and 110,000 gallons of olive oil: Hebrew 20,000 baths [420 kiloliters] of wine, and 20,000 baths of olive oil.

2:13-14 The skill and knowledge of Hiram-abi, a master (literally wise) craftsman, was required for building the Temple. Hiram-abi had expertise in his father is from Tyre. He is skillful at making things from gold, silver, bronze, and iron, and he also works with stone and wood. He can work with purple, blue, and scarlet cloth and fine linen. He is also an engraver and can follow any design given to him. He will work with your craftsmen and those appointed by my lord David, your father.

¹⁵Send along the wheat, barley, olive oil, and wine that my lord has mentioned. ¹⁶We will cut whatever timber you need from the Lebanon mountains and will float the logs in rafts down the coast of the Mediterranean Sea to Joppa. From there you can transport the logs up to Jerusalem."

¹⁷Solomon took a census of all foreigners in the land of Israel, like the census his father had taken, and he counted 153,600. ¹⁸He assigned 70,000 of them as common laborers, 80,000 as quarry workers in the hill country, and 3,600 as foremen.

Solomon Builds the Temple

2 Chr 3:1-4 // 1 Kgs 6:1-3

2 Chr 3:10-13 // 1 Kgs 6:23-28

3 So Solomon began to build the Temple of the LORD in Jerusalem on Mount Moriah, where the LORD had appeared to David, his father. The Temple was built on the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite, the site that David had selected. ²The construction began in midspring, during the fourth year of Solomon's reign.

³These are the dimensions Solomon used for the foundation of the Temple of God (using the old standard of measurement). It was 90 feet long and 30 feet wide. ⁴The entry room at the front of the Temple was 30 feet wide, running across the entire width of the Temple, and 30 feet high. He overlaid the inside with pure gold.

⁵He paneled the main room of the Temple with cypress wood, overlaid it with fine gold, and decorated it with carvings of palm trees and chains. ⁶He decorated the walls of the Temple with beautiful jewels and with gold from the land of Parvaim. ⁷He overlaid the beams, thresholds, walls, and doors throughout the Temple with gold, and he carved figures of cherubim on the walls.

⁸He made the Most Holy Place 30 feet wide, corresponding to the width of the Temple, and 30 feet deep. He overlaid its interior with 23 tons of fine gold. ⁹The gold nails that were used weighed 20 ounces each. He also overlaid the walls of the upper rooms with gold.

¹⁰He made two figures shaped like cherubim, overlaid them with gold, and placed them in the Most Holy Place. ¹¹The total metals (gold, silver, bronze, and iron), in stone and wood, and in textiles (purple, blue, and scarlet cloth and fine linen). Similarly, God had chosen Bezalel as the master craftsman of the Tabernacle and had endowed him with wisdom to carry out the work (Exod 31:1-5).

2:16 The Mediterranean Sea: Literally the sea.

2:17-18 The book of Kings explains that all those left from the seven nations were conscripted for labor. Further, no Israelites were conscripted, and Israelites were placed in charge of the laborers (1 Kgs 9:20-23).

3:1-4a Although in Chronicles the Temple is the central topic of Solomon's reign, attention to its actual architecture and furnishings is considerably less than that found in Kings (e.g., 1 Kgs 6:2-10).

3:1 While Kings emphasizes the time when the Temple was built, Chronicles places great emphasis on the Temple's building site and the significance of the location. Geographically, it was in Jerusalem on Mount Moriah, the place where the LORD had appeared to David; it was selected under David's authority and it was the sacred place where the plague was stopped at the threshing floor of Araunah (Hebrew reads Ornan, a variant spelling of Araunah; cp. 2 Sam 24:16) the Jebusite. Abraham bound Isaac in the land of Moriah (Gen 22:2), and tradition associated the Temple Mount as the place where the Lord provided for Abraham (Gen 22:14).

3:2 The book of Kings dates the beginning of the Temple construction in relation to the exodus from Egypt (1 Kgs 6:1). Chronicles consistently omits references to the Exodus, perhaps to emphasize the continuous and abiding bond between the people, the land, and God. • in midspring: Literally on the second [day] of the second month. This day of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar occurred in April or May.

3:3 The old standard of measurement was a cubit equal to 18 inches [46 centimeters]. The new standard was a cubit of approximately 21 inches [53 centimeters]. • 90 feet long and 30 feet wide: Hebrew 60 cubits [27.6 meters] long and 20 cubits [9.2 meters] wide.

3:4 30 feet wide: Hebrew 20 cubits [9.2 meters] wide; also in 3:8, 11, 13. • The measurement of 30 feet high reflects some Greek and Syriac manuscripts, which read 20 cubits [9.2 meters] high; Hebrew reads 120 [cubits] high, which is 180 feet or 55 meters.

3:5-7 The interior of the Temple was finished with costly materials (see 1 Kgs 6:15-18, 29).

3:6 The gold from the land of Parvaim was the highest quality. The actual location of this place was unknown by the time of the earliest translators, and might not have been known to the Chronicler either.

3:8 A special area was constructed at the extreme interior of the hall known as the Most Holy Place (the divine throne room). It might have been a sacred throne space within the long hall, or it might have been a secondary room within the main hall. The dimensions of the Most Holy Place were equally 30 feet (20 cubits) in all directions. It might have rested on an elevated platform, as did the shrines of other temples, and a space might have existed between the room and the roof. The Most Holy Place was prepared as a repository for the Ark, which contained the terms of the covenant. • 23 tons: Hebrew 600 talents [20.4 metric tons].

3:9 20 ounces: Hebrew 50 shekels [570 grams].

3:10-13 The figures shaped like cherubim were made of costly wild olive wood and were covered with gold. Similar carvings have been found in Mesopotamia.

wingspan of the two cherubim standing side by side was 30 feet. One wing of the first figure was 7½ feet long, and it touched the Temple wall. The other wing, also 7½ feet long, touched one of the wings of the second figure. ¹²In the same way, the second figure had one wing 7½ feet long that touched the opposite wall. The other wing, also 7½ feet long, touched the wing of the first figure. ¹³So the wingspan of the two cherubim side by side was 30 feet. They stood on their feet and faced out toward the main room of the Temple.

¹⁴Across the entrance of the Most Holy Place he hung a curtain made of fine linen, decorated with blue, purple, and scarlet thread and embroidered with figures of cherubim.

Furnishings for the Temple

2 Chr 3:15-4:5 // 1 Kgs 7:15-26
2 Chr 4:6-5:1 // 1 Kgs 7:38-51

¹⁵For the front of the Temple, he made two pillars that were 27 feet tall, each topped by a capital extending upward another 7½ feet. ¹⁶He made a network of interwoven chains and used them to decorate the tops of the pillars. He also made 100 decorative pomegranates and attached them to the chains. ¹⁷Then he set up the two pillars at the entrance of the Temple, one to the south of the entrance and the other to the north. He named the one on the south Jakin, and the one on the north Boaz.

4 Solomon also made a bronze altar 30 feet long, 30 feet wide, and 15 feet high. ²Then he cast a great round basin, 15 feet across from rim to rim, called the Sea. It was 7½ feet deep and about 45 feet in circumference. ³It was encircled just below its rim by two rows of figures that resembled oxen. There were about six oxen per foot all the way around, and they were cast as part of the basin.

⁴The Sea was placed on a base of twelve bronze oxen, all facing outward. Three faced north, three faced west, three faced south, and three faced east, and the Sea rested on them. ⁵The walls of the Sea were about three inches thick, and its rim flared out like a cup and resembled a water lily blossom. It could hold about 16,500 gallons of water.

⁶He also made ten smaller basins for washing the utensils for the burnt offerings. He set five on the south side and five on the north. But the priests washed themselves in the Sea.

⁷He then cast ten gold lampstands according to the specifications that had been given, and he put them in the Temple. Five were placed against the south wall, and five were placed against the north wall.

⁸He also built ten tables and placed them in the Temple, five along the south wall and five along the north wall. Then he molded 100 gold basins.

⁹He then built a courtyard for the priests, and also the large outer courtyard. He made doors for the courtyard entrances and overlaid them with bronze. ¹⁰The great bronze basin called the Sea was placed near the southeast corner of the Temple.

Syria, and Canaan; such figures were a distinguishing feature of ancient thrones. Cherubim were composite creatures signifying the union of royalty (lion) with the highest powers of strength (bull), speed (eagle), and sagacity (human). Ancient temples found in Phoenicia show the throne of the deity supported by two animals. The sides of ancient Canaanite thrones were commonly shaped as cherubs. The cherubs of Solomon's Temple were distinct because they were not designed to serve as a human throne. They were attached to the Ark, which was the footstool to God's throne, with the wings touching in the middle and extending to the walls of the throne room. There was no actual seat to the throne, since none was necessary.

3:11 7½ feet: Hebrew 5 cubits [2.3 meters]; also in 3:11b, 12, 15.

3:15-16 The two pillars set in the porch of the Temple were made of bronze and were ornately decorated (cp. 1 Kgs 7:15-22).

3:15 27 feet: As in Syriac version (see also 1 Kgs 7:15; 2 Kgs 25:17; Jer 52:21), which reads 18 cubits [8.3 meters]; Hebrew reads 35 cubits, which is 52.5 feet or 16.5 meters.

3:17 Jakin probably means "he establishes," which might refer to God's promise regarding the kingdom (see 1 Chr 17:7-14). Boaz probably means "in him is strength," which might have been a proclamation of trust in God. The gilded reliefs of cherubs, palms, and flowers adorning the doors and walls of the Temple suggest that the pillars were related to the tree of life (Gen 2:9).

4:1 Solomon: Or Huram-abi; literally He. • 30 feet long, 30 feet wide, and 15 feet high: Hebrew 20 cubits [9.2 meters] long, 20 cubits wide, and 10 cubits [4.6 meters] high.

4:2-5 The Temple, the house of God, depicted Eden, the Garden of God (cp. Isa 51:3). The massive Sea that rested on the backs of the twelve bronze oxen represented either cosmic pre-creation waters or the waters of life that emanated from the Garden of Eden. Divine forces subdue the waters of chaos (Gen 1:2) so that they provide life-giving nourishment for plant, animal, and human life (see Rev 21:1 where the sea is removed forever).

4:2 15 feet across . . . 7½ feet deep and about 45 feet in circumference: Hebrew 10 cubits [4.6 meters] across . . . 5 cubits [2.3 meters] deep and 30 cubits [13.8 meters] in circumference.

4:3 six oxen per foot: Or 20 oxen per meter; Hebrew reads 10 per cubit.

4:5 three inches: Hebrew a handbreadth [8 centimeters]. • 16,500 gallons: Hebrew 3,000 baths [63 kiloliters].

4:6 The Sea served the same purpose as the bronze washbasin in the Tabernacle (cp. Exod 30:18-19).

4:7 The seven lights of each of the ten gold lampstands might have represented the Pleiades, a cluster of stars symbolized by seven dots in ancient Mesopotamia (cp. Job 9:9; 38:31; Amos 5:8).

¹¹Huram-abi also made the necessary washbasins, shovels, and bowls.

So at last Huram-abi completed everything King Solomon had assigned him to make for the Temple of God:

¹²the two pillars;

the two bowl-shaped capitals on top of the pillars;

the two networks of interwoven chains that decorated the capitals;

¹³the 400 pomegranates that hung from the chains on the capitals (two rows of pomegranates for each of the chain networks that decorated the capitals on top of the pillars);

¹⁴the water carts holding the basins;

¹⁵the Sea and the twelve oxen under it;

¹⁶the ash buckets, the shovels, the meat hooks, and all the related articles.

Huram-abi made all these things of burnished bronze for the Temple of the LORD, just as King Solomon had directed. ¹⁷The king had them cast in clay molds in the Jordan Valley between Succoth and Zarethan. ¹⁸Solomon used such great quantities of bronze that its weight could not be determined.

¹⁹Solomon also made all the furnishings for the Temple of God:

the gold altar;

the tables for the Bread of the Presence;

²⁰the lampstands and their lamps of solid gold, to burn in front of the Most Holy Place as prescribed;

²¹the flower decorations, lamps, and tongs—all of the purest gold;

²²the lamp snuffers, bowls, ladles, and incense burners—all of solid gold; the doors for the entrances to the Most Holy Place and the main room of the Temple, overlaid with gold.

5 So Solomon finished all his work on the Temple of the LORD. Then he brought all the gifts his father, David, had dedicated—the silver, the gold, and the various articles—and he stored them in the treasures of the Temple of God.

The Ark Brought to Jerusalem

2 Chr 5:2-14 // 1 Kgs 8:1-11

²Solomon then summoned to Jerusalem the elders of Israel and all the heads of tribes—the leaders of the ancestral families of Israel. They were to bring the Ark of the LORD's Covenant to the Temple from its location in the City of David, also known as Zion. ³So all the men of Israel assembled before the king at the annual Festival of Shelters, which is held in early autumn.

⁴When all the elders of Israel arrived, the Levites picked up the Ark. ⁵The priests and Levites brought up the Ark along with the special tent and all the sacred items that had been in it. ⁶There, before the Ark, King Solomon and the entire community of Israel sacrificed so many sheep, goats, and cattle that no one could keep count!

⁷Then the priests carried the Ark of the LORD's Covenant into the inner sanctuary of the Temple—the Most Holy Place—and placed it beneath the wings of the cherubim. ⁸The cherubim spread their wings over the Ark, forming a canopy over the Ark and its carrying poles. ⁹These poles were so long that their ends could be seen from the Holy Place, which is in front of the Most Holy Place, but not from the outside. They are still there to this day. ¹⁰Nothing

4:17 Zarethan: As in parallel text at 1 Kgs 7:46; Hebrew reads Zeredah.

4:19 The Bread of the Presence symbolized God's provision for his people. It was placed before God on the tables (4:8) as a type of offering, demonstrating that it belonged to God and that Israel's provision came from God's "table." Some of the bread was eaten by the priests (Lev 24:5-9) and the rest was burned; this meal symbolized the covenant meal of fellowship between God and his people (see Exod 24:9-11).

5:1 This verse concludes the section on Temple furnishings, following 1 Kgs 7:51 almost verbatim. • the gifts his father, David, had dedicated: Just as the spoils taken from Egypt went into building the Tabernacle, the spoils of Israel's enemies built the Temple. The prophets often portrayed the spoils of other nations as being at Israel's disposal (see Isa 60:10-14; Zech 14:14).

5:3 The dedication of the Temple took place during the annual Festival of Shelters, which is held in early autumn (literally at the festival that is in the seventh month). The Festival of Shelters began on the fifteenth day of the seventh month of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar. This day occurred in late September, October, or early November. This seven-day festival required a pilgrimage to the central place of worship (Deut 16:13-15). The seventh month marked the end of Israel's harvest season, allowing landowners to leave for a week without concern for fields or crops.

5:5 the special tent: Literally the Tent of Meeting; i.e., the tent mentioned in 2 Sam 6:17 and 1 Chr 16:1. "Tent of Meeting" is the name used in Exodus to indicate the function of the Tabernacle (e.g., Exod 33:7). The Tabernacle was the dwelling place of the divine presence (e.g., Exod 25:8-9) and the place where God met with his people through the priests. After the Temple was built, the special tent had no further function.

5:7-8 The giant cherubim were symbols of the universal and eternal rule of God.

5:9 from the Holy Place: As in some Hebrew manuscripts and Greek version (see also 1 Kgs 8:8); Masoretic Text reads from the Ark. • The Hebrew phrase to this day might be an idiom meaning from then on. The Ark was evidently not in the Temple following the Exile, when the Chronicler wrote.

was in the Ark except the two stone tablets that Moses had placed in it at Mount Sinai, where the LORD made a covenant with the people of Israel when they left Egypt.

¹¹Then the priests left the Holy Place. All the priests who were present had purified themselves, whether or not they were on duty that day. ¹²And the Levites who were musicians—Asaph, Heman, Jeduthun, and all their sons and brothers—were dressed in fine linen robes and stood at the east side of the altar playing cymbals, lyres, and harps. They were joined by 120 priests who were playing trumpets. ¹³The trumpeters and singers performed together in unison to ^apraise and give ^bthanks to the LORD. Accompanied by trumpets, cymbals, and other instruments, they raised their voices and ^apraised the LORD with these words:

"He is good!

His faithful love endures forever!"

At that moment a thick cloud filled the Temple of the LORD. ¹⁴The priests could not continue their service because of the cloud, for the glorious presence of the LORD filled the Temple of God.

Solomon Praises the Lord

2 Chr 6:1-11 // 1 Kgs 8:12-21

6Then Solomon prayed, "O LORD, you have said that you would live in a thick cloud of darkness. ²Now I have built a glorious Temple for you, a place where you can live forever!"

³Then the king turned around to the entire community of Israel standing before him and gave this ^cblessing: ⁴"Praise the LORD, the God of Israel, who has kept the promise he made to my father, David. For he told my father, ⁵'From the day I brought my people out of the land of Egypt, I have never chosen a city among any of the tribes of Israel as the place where a Temple should be built to honor my name. Nor have I chosen a king to lead my people Israel. ⁶But now I have chosen Jerusalem as the place for my name to be honored, and I have chosen David to be king over my people Israel.'

⁷Then Solomon said, "My father, David, wanted to build this Temple to honor the name of the LORD, the God of Israel. ⁸But the LORD told him, 'You wanted to build the Temple to honor my name. Your intention is good, ⁹but you are not the one to do it. One of your own sons will build the Temple to honor me.'

¹⁰And now the LORD has fulfilled the promise he made, for I have become king in my father's place, and now I sit on the throne of Israel, just as the LORD promised. I have built this Temple to honor the name of the LORD, the God of Israel. ¹¹There I have placed the Ark, which contains the covenant that the LORD made with the people of Israel."

Solomon's Prayer of Dedication

2 Chr 6:12-40 // 1 Kgs 8:22-53

2 Chr 6:41-42 // Ps 132:8-10

¹²Then Solomon stood before the altar of the LORD in front of the entire community of Israel, and he lifted his hands in prayer. ¹³Now Solomon had made a bronze platform 7½ feet long, 7½ feet wide, and 4½ feet high and had placed it at the center of the Temple's outer courtyard. He stood on the platform, and then he knelt in front of the entire community of Israel and lifted his hands toward heaven. ¹⁴He prayed,

"O LORD, God of Israel, there is no God like you in all of heaven and earth. You keep your covenant and show unfailing love to all who walk before you in wholehearted devotion. ¹⁵You have kept your promise to your servant David, my 5:10 The Ark contained only the tablets of the covenant (see Exod 25:21; Deut 10:5). The pot of manna Aaron placed in the Ark (Exod 16:33-34) had apparently been lost. • Mount Sinai: Hebrew Horeb, another name for Sinai (see note on Exod 3:1).

5:11-14 The Chronicler complements the dedication of the Temple with a detailed description of a great celebration. He names the three specific orders of singers and all their kinsmen. The 120 . . . trumpeters apparently included five priests from each of the 24 divisions (1 Chr 24:3-19). The sanctified priests, their standard apparel of fine linen robes, the musical instruments, the singers, and the trumpeters were all correctly positioned. When the priests exited, the musicians raised their song, and the cloud of the glorious presence of the Lord filled the Temple.

6:1-2 The dedication ceremony culminated in Solomon's poetic proclamation that expressed the most basic concept of the Temple. God had chosen to dwell in the thick cloud of darkness. The dedication of the Temple affirmed God's choice of Israel as his people and his continuous presence in their midst.

6:4-6 Israel as God's people originated at the Exodus, and Israel's history reached a climax when God chose David to be king and Jerusalem to be his capital. Both the city and the dy- nasty were aspects of God's promise to David (see 1 Chr 28:4; cp. 2 Sam 7:8-17; Ps 2:6-7).

6:10-11 The Chronicler blends the covenant of Sinai, represented by the Ark, with the Jerusalem Temple and the Davidic dynasty; he makes no mention of Israel's exodus from Egypt, only implying it with reference to the Ark. God's covenant relationship with Israel under Solomon and David formed the basis for the community's relationship with God at the time of the Chronicler.

6:13 7½ feet long, 7½ feet wide, and 4½ feet high: Hebrew 5 cubits [2.3 meters] long, 5 cubits wide, and 3 cubits [1.4 meters] high.

father. You made that promise with your own mouth, and with your own hands you have fulfilled it today.

¹⁶“And now, O LORD, God of Israel, carry out the additional promise you made to your servant David, my father. For you said to him, ‘If your descendants guard their behavior and faithfully follow my Law as you have done, one of them will always sit on the throne of Israel.’ ¹⁷Now, O LORD, God of Israel, fulfill this promise to your servant David.

¹⁸“But will God really live on earth among people? Why, even the highest heavens cannot contain you. How much less this Temple I have built!

¹⁹Nevertheless, listen to my prayer and my plea, O LORD my God. Hear the cry and the prayer that your servant is making to you. ²⁰May you watch over this Temple day and night, this place where you have said you would put your name. May you always hear the prayers I make toward this place. ²¹May you hear the humble and earnest requests from me and your people Israel when we pray toward this place. Yes, hear us from heaven where you live, and when you hear, forgive.

²²“If someone wrongs another person and is required to take an oath of innocence in front of your altar at this Temple, ²³then hear from heaven and judge between your servants—the accuser and the accused. Pay back the guilty as they deserve. Acquit the innocent because of their innocence.

²⁴“If your people Israel are defeated by their enemies because they have sinned against you, and if they turn back and acknowledge your name and pray to you here in this Temple, ²⁵then hear from heaven and forgive the sin of your people Israel and return them to this land you gave to them and to their ancestors.

²⁶“If the skies are shut up and there is no rain because your people have sinned against you, and if they pray toward this Temple and acknowledge your name and turn from their sins because you have punished them, ²⁷then hear from heaven and forgive the sins of your servants, your people Israel. Teach them to follow the right path, and send rain on your land that you have given to your people as their special possession.

²⁸“If there is a famine in the land or a plague or crop disease or attacks of locusts or caterpillars, or if your people’s enemies are in the land besieging their towns—whatever disaster or disease there is—²⁹and if your people Israel pray about their troubles or sorrow, raising their hands toward this Temple, ³⁰then hear from heaven where you live, and forgive. Give your people what their actions deserve, for you alone know each human heart. ³¹Then they will fear you and walk in your ways as long as they live in the land you gave to our ancestors.

³²“In the future, foreigners who do not belong to your people Israel will hear of you. They will come from distant lands when they hear of your great name and your strong hand and your powerful arm. And when they pray toward this Temple, ³³then hear from heaven where you live, and grant what they ask of you. In this way, all the people of the earth will come to know and fear you, just as your own people Israel do. They, too, will know that this Temple I have built honors your name.

6:18 even the highest heavens cannot contain you: All creation can be seen as God’s true temple—the palace of the divine King (see Isa 66:1-2).

6:21-39 In his covenant with Israel, the Lord established blessings and life as consequences of obedience, and curses and death as consequences of disobedience (Deut 27:11-28:69; 30:15-18). Solomon prayed for God to hear . . . and forgive when the people failed to keep God’s covenant. The seven “if-then” petitions of his prayer represented any future situation that the people of the covenant might encounter. In each case, Solomon described the situation and asked God to intervene to help his people.

6:22-23 Petition 1: Solomon asked for justice to prevail when guilt and innocence cannot easily be determined. An example of such a case would be theft (Exod 22:7-9); the plaintiff and the defendant would both take oaths before God, and the person determined to be guilty would pay double.

6:24-25 Petition 2: Solomon asked God to grant relief in response to repentance when sin causes misfortune. Prayer provides an opportunity for redemption, and God’s people experience his pardon through restoration.

6:26-27 Petition 3: Solomon asked that God would guide his people to follow the right path so that sin would not prevent God’s blessing of rain for the land.

6:28-31 Petition 4: Solomon showed a special sensitivity to human suffering by including both the private sorrow of those whose pain is hidden and the public distress of those whose pain is apparent. The prayer is personal, appealing to God’s knowledge of each individual motive. A further appeal pleads for God’s instruction so that the pain of failure might lead the individual to follow God’s ways in the future.

6:32-33 Petition 5: Solomon expressed concern for those from other nations who voluntarily joined the society of the covenant when they saw God’s blessings on those who obeyed it (Deut 4:6-8). These foreigners, no less than native Israelites, were the object of Solomon’s prayer for mercy before God.

God's Name on His Temple (6:20)

2 Chr 6:3-42
Exod 3:13-15
2 Sam 7:12-13
Ps 23:3
1 Pet 2:4-5

In his prayer of dedication, Solomon declared that the Temple was the house where God's name would be present (6:20; cp. 6:5-6). Similarly, according to the Amarna Letters (correspondence between Canaan and Egypt, 1300s BC), the Pharaoh of Egypt had earlier put his name on Jerusalem. God promised David that he would place his own name on the Temple in Jerusalem (1 Chr 17:4-14). When God puts his name in a place, it signifies his possession of it.

For the people of Israel, the Temple embodied the land God promised to them and marked by his name. It was the ultimate symbol of God's relationship with Israel. So Solomon prayed that God would remember his relationship with Israel and hear their prayers at this Temple.

God promised by an oath that David's kingdom would be secure forever. The house God built for David (the royal dynasty) and the house Solomon built for God (the Temple) perpetuated the renown of both God and David. Solomon's prayer uses God's personal name (LORD=Yahweh; see Exod 3:13-15) to make the Temple the definitive symbol of Israel's faith. The Temple was the house that fulfilled God's promise to David. It was the chosen place where God's name was called on, the place where the covenant was preserved, and the place where God's name was acknowledged in confession and praise.

The fulfillment of the oath to David is now to be found in the "living temple," the community of God's people. Peter urges believers to come "to Christ, who is the living cornerstone of God's temple. He was rejected by people, but he was chosen by God for great honor. And you are living stones that God is building into his spiritual temple. What's more, you are his holy priests. Through the mediation of Jesus Christ, you offer spiritual sacrifices that please God" (1 Pet 2:4-5). God's name rests on his church as it did on his Temple.

6:34-35 Petition 6: Solomon asked God to hear the prayers of the people when they went out at God's command to fight their enemies.

6:36-39 Petition 7: Solomon's prophetic concern that Israel might be completely exiled is evident in the final petition of his prayer. There were many exiles in the history of Israel, but complete destruction of Jerusalem and its Temple were the greatest challenges to faith. Solomon's petitions looked to the Temple as a resource for faith; in a foreign land, the people might remember the chosen place and pray. The mention of land, city, and Temple (6:38) suggests total destruction, not partial exile. The Temple might no longer be present, but the people could still direct their prayers to God in heaven, who would hear and forgive.

6:41-42 Solomon's prayer concludes with the quotation of a psalm (Ps 132:8-10). This prayer was the final part of transferring the Ark to its place in the Temple. Prayers with psalms had also accompanied David's transfer of the Ark to Jerusalem (1 Chr 16:7-36); Solomon's use of a psalm recalls the time when the Ark was first brought to its proper place. • God is called to arise, not to war (cp. Num 10:35), but to his resting place in the Temple.

6:42 In harmony with the opening of the prayer (6:15-17), Solomon asks God to remember his unfailing love for . . . David; this refers to the covenant promise that God made to David (1 Chr 17:4-14; see Isa 55:3).

The Dedication of the Temple

2 Chr 7:4-10 // 1 Kgs 8:62-66

7 When Solomon finished praying, fire flashed down from heaven and burned up the burnt offerings and sacrifices, and the glorious presence of the LORD filled the Temple. ²The priests could not enter the Temple of the LORD because the glorious presence of the LORD filled it. ³When all the people of Israel saw the fire coming down and the glorious presence of the LORD filling the Temple, they fell face down on the ground and worshiped and praised the LORD, saying,

"He is good!

His faithful love endures forever!"

⁴Then the king and all the people offered sacrifices to the LORD. ⁵King Solomon offered a sacrifice of 22,000 cattle and 120,000 sheep and goats. And so the king and all the people dedicated the Temple of God. ⁶The priests took their assigned positions, and so did the Levites who were singing, "His faithful love endures forever!" They accompanied the singing with music from the instruments King David had made for praising the LORD. Across from the Levites, the priests blew the trumpets, while all Israel stood.

⁷Solomon then consecrated the central area of the courtyard in front of the LORD's Temple. He offered burnt offerings and the fat of peace offerings there, because the bronze altar he had built could not hold all the burnt offerings, grain offerings, and sacrificial fat.

⁸For the next seven days Solomon and all Israel celebrated the Festival of Shelters. A large congregation had gathered from as far away as Lebo-hamath in the north and the Brook of Egypt in the south. ⁹On the eighth day they had a closing ceremony, for they had celebrated the dedication of the altar for seven days and the Festival of Shelters for seven days. ¹⁰Then at the end of the celebration, Solomon sent the people home. They were all joyful and glad because the LORD had been so good to David and to Solomon and to his people Israel.

The Lord's Response to Solomon

2 Chr 7:11-22 // 1 Kgs 9:1-9

¹¹So Solomon finished the Temple of the LORD, as well as the royal palace. He completed everything he had planned to do in the construction of the Temple and the palace. ¹²Then one night the LORD appeared to Solomon and said,

"I have heard your prayer and have chosen this Temple as the place for making sacrifices. ¹³At times I might shut up the heavens so that no rain falls, or command grasshoppers to devour your crops, or send plagues among you. ¹⁴Then if my people who are called by my name will humble themselves and ¹⁵pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sins and restore their land. ¹⁶My eyes will be open and my ears attentive to every prayer made in this place. ¹⁷For I have chosen this Temple and set it apart to be holy—a place where my name will be honored forever. I will always watch over it, for it is dear to my heart.

¹⁸"As for you, if you faithfully follow me as David your father did, obeying all my commands, decrees, and regulations, ¹⁹then I will establish the throne of your dynasty. For I made this covenant with your father, David, when I said, 'One of your descendants will always rule over Israel.'

7:4-6 The offering of sacrifices was essential to dedicate the dwelling of the Most High on earth; the sacrifices also provided food for the people during the fifteen days of celebration. The numbers of animals sacrificed match those found in 1 Kgs 8:63.

7:8-10 Lebo-hamath in the north and the Brook of Egypt in the south marked the boundaries of Israel as promised to the patriarchs (Gen 15:18; Num 34:5, 8; Josh 15:4). The Temple dedication festival preceded the annual Festival of Shelters, which ended on the twenty-second day of the month.

7:8 the Festival of Shelters: Literally the festival (also in 7:9); see note on 5:3.

7:10 Then at the end of the celebration: Literally Then on the twenty-third day of the seventh month. This day of the ancient Hebrew lunar calendar occurred in October or early November.

7:13-15 These verses refer directly to Solomon's prayer (see 6:26, 28, 40). God outlined for Solomon the requirements for rescue from judgment. In Solomon's prayer, each case had been addressed separately; in the Lord's answer, the required response is developed more generally and comprehensively. The people need humility, repentance, seeking the Lord, and prayer in order to be healed from their distresses.

7:17-18 God declared to Solomon that God's kingdom is eternal. Where 1 Kgs 9:5 states that one of his descendants will always be on the throne of Israel, the Chronicler says, One of your descendants will always rule over Israel. In the days of the Chronicler there was no throne in Israel, so his statement alludes to the Messiah (cp. Mic 5:2).

2 Chr 8:3-18 // 1 Kgs 9:17b-28

8 It took Solomon twenty years to build the LORD's Temple and his own royal palace. At the end of that time, ²Solomon turned his attention to rebuilding the towns that King Hiram had given him, and he settled Israelites in them.

³Solomon also fought against the town of Hamath-zobah and conquered it. ⁴He rebuilt Tadmor in the wilderness and built towns in the region of Hamath as supply centers. ⁵He fortified the towns of Upper Beth-horon and Lower Beth-horon, rebuilding their walls and installing barred gates. ⁶He also rebuilt Baalath and other supply centers and constructed towns where his

One of the best known verses in Chronicles lays out God's plan for Israel: "Then if my people who are called by my name will humble themselves and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sins and restore their land" (7:14). This verse expresses the Chronicler's understanding of how God works with his people. The concept has been described as a "theology of immediate retribution": Each individual experiences the consequences for obedience or failure within his or her own lifetime.

The vocabulary of this verse (humble, pray, turn, seek, heal) appears repeatedly in the Chronicler's writing as he shows this principle operating in the lives of the kings of Judah. The reign of Hezekiah provides one of the most prominent examples. In the very first month of his reign, Hezekiah began to restore the Temple (29:3). He extended an invitation to all Israel (especially northern Israel) to attend the festival at Jerusalem (30:1). When Hezekiah's messengers urged them to turn to the Lord (30:6), many from the north humbled themselves and came to Jerusalem (30:11). So many people arrived that the Judeans could not accommodate them, but those from the north were not ready to observe the Passover. Hezekiah prayed for all the people as they resolved to seek the Lord (30:18-19). The Lord indeed healed the people (30:20), and the festival was extended another seven days (30:23). Hezekiah followed the very principles that Solomon had enunciated in his prayer. Manasseh provides another example of God's redemption at work (33:11-23). His example is an encouragement and exhortation to all.

Those familiar with Chronicles would have understood well the preaching of John the Baptist as he called for repentance and healing (Matt 3:5-12). Failure to repent will result in judgment. But there is no situation beyond the reach of redemption for those willing to humble themselves before God.

ery and ridicule when the people of Israel turned away from the Lord; the Temple was destroyed by the Babylonians in 586 BC.

8:2 The twenty towns that Solomon had given Hiram in exchange for gold were unsatisfactory to Hiram (1 Kgs 9:11-14); this implies that Hiram gave them back to Solomon, who apparently provided other compensation. • Hiram: Hebrew Huram, a variant spelling of Hiram; also in 8:18.

8:3 This verse is the only reference in Chronicles of Solomon's military accomplishments; he was known as a man of peace (1 Chr 22:9). The kingdoms of David and Solomon extended to Hamath-zobah in the far north on the Orontes River. King Toi, the ruler of Hamath, sought David's support against Hadadezer, king of Zobah (1 Chr 18:9-10). Hadadezer was also referred to as the king of Zobah-Hamath (1 Chr 18:3). Solomon conducted an expedition against this territory to maintain the stability of his kingdom's northern border.

8:4 The Chronicler describes the northern reaches of Solomon's kingdom. Tadmor later became Palmyra, an oasis city in Syria along the desert trade routes with Mesopotamia, 120 miles northeast of Damascus. It is not mentioned elsewhere in the Bible. At some point, it came to be identified with the list of fortified cities in Solomon's kingdom (cp. 1 Kgs 9:18, where Tamar/Tadmor indicates a city in southeast Judah).

8:5 Upper and Lower Beth-horon sit astride a ridge rising from the Valley of Aijalon to the plateau north of Jerusalem. Fortifications protected the route connecting Jerusalem to the major coastal trade route.

8:6 Some cities were used for storage and for military cavalry. Large building chariots and horses could be stationed. He built everything he desired in Jerusalem and Lebanon and throughout his entire realm.

⁷There were still some people living in the land who were not Israelites, including the Hittites, Amorites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites. ⁸These were descendants of the nations whom the people of Israel had not destroyed. So Solomon conscripted them for his labor force, and they serve as forced laborers to this day. ⁹But Solomon did not conscript any of the Israelites for his labor force. Instead, he assigned them to serve as fighting men, officers in his army, commanders of his chariots, and charioteers. ¹⁰King Solomon appointed 250 of them to supervise the people.

¹¹Solomon moved his wife, Pharaoh's daughter, from the City of David to the new palace he had built for her. He said, "My wife must not live in King David's palace, for the Ark of the LORD has been there, and it is holy ground."

¹²Then Solomon presented burnt offerings to the LORD on the altar he had built for him in front of the entry room of the Temple.

¹³He offered the sacrifices for the Sabbaths, the new moon festivals, and the three annual festivals—the Passover celebration, the Festival of Harvest, and the Festival of Shelters—as Moses had commanded.

¹⁴In assigning the priests to their duties, Solomon followed the regulations of his father, David. He also assigned the Levites to lead the people in praise and to assist the priests in their daily duties. And he assigned the gatekeepers to their gates by their divisions, following the commands of David, the man of God. ¹⁵Solomon did not deviate in any way from David's commands concerning the priests and Levites and the treasuries.

¹⁶So Solomon made sure that all the work related to building the Temple of the LORD was carried out, from the day its foundation was laid to the day of its completion.

¹⁷Later Solomon went to Ezion-geber and Elath, ports along the shore of the Red Sea in the land of Edom. ¹⁸Hiram sent him ships commanded by his own officers and manned by experienced crews of sailors. These ships sailed to Ophir with Solomon's men and brought back to Solomon almost seventeen tons of gold.

Visit of the Queen of Sheba

2 Chr 9:1-12 // 1 Kgs 10:1-13

9 When the queen of Sheba heard of Solomon's fame, she came to Jerusalem to test him with hard questions. She arrived with a large group of attendants and a great caravan of camels loaded with spices, large quantities of gold, and precious jewels. When she met with Solomon, she talked with him about everything she had on her mind. ²Solomon had answers for all her questions; nothing was too hard for him to explain to her. ³When the queen of Sheba realized how wise Solomon was, and when she saw the palace he had built, ⁴she was overwhelmed. She was also amazed at the food on his tables, the organization of his officials and their splendid clothing, the cup-bearers and their robes, and the burnt offerings Solomon made at the Temple of the LORD.

⁵She exclaimed to the king, "Everything I heard in my country about your achievements and wisdom is true! ⁶I didn't believe what was said until I arrived here and saw it with my own eyes. In fact, I had not heard the 8:11 Solomon's alliance with Egypt through his marriage to Pharaoh's daughter is mentioned repeatedly in Kings (1 Kgs 3:1; 9:16, 24; 11:1). Solomon's ability to marry into the Egyptian royal family shows the extent of his kingdom and international influence. Solomon provided her with a permanent personal residence to show that he regarded her as the most important of his wives. It also preserved the sanctity of David's palace, probably because Pharaoh's daughter was pagan.

8:13 Festival of Harvest: Or Festival of Weeks.

8:17-18 By discussing Solomon's activities at his kingdom's most northern and southern borders, the Chronicler shows the extent of Solomon's empire. Solomon controlled ports on the Red Sea that provided for international trade to the south. • Hiram was a valuable ally; his people, the Phoenicians of Tyre, had extensive trade networks and were expert mariners, helping Solomon trade with Ophir. • Ophir is traditionally thought to be in southwest Arabia (see Gen 10:28-29).

8:17 Elath: As in Greek version (see also 2 Kgs 14:22; 16:6); Hebrew reads Eloth, a variant spelling of Elath. • the Red Sea: As in parallel text at 1 Kgs 9:26; Hebrew reads the sea.

8:18 seventeen tons: Hebrew 450 talents [15.3 metric tons].

9:1-2 Although Solomon had long-term economic and political ties with Hiram of Tyre (8:17-18; 9:10-11), the queen of Sheba visited just once. Ancient Sheba (roughly modern Yemen) was noted for its important female rulers and for a wealthy economy based on trade in frankincense and myrrh. An ancient tradition suggests that the queen of Sheba came from Cush (Ethiopia), perhaps because of Sheba son of Raamah, a descendant of Cush (Gen 10:7; 1 Chr 1:9).

9:4 and the burnt offerings: As in Greek and Syriac versions (see also 1 Kgs 10:5); Hebrew reads and the ascent.

Because God loves Israel and desires this kingdom to last forever, he has made you king over them so you can rule with justice and righteousness."

¹⁰(In addition, the crews of Hiram and Solomon brought gold from Ophir, and they also brought red sandalwood and precious jewels. ¹¹The king used the sandalwood to make steps for the Temple of the LORD and the royal palace, and to construct lyres and harps for the musicians. Never before had such beautiful things been seen in Judah.)

¹²King Solomon gave the queen of Sheba whatever she asked for—gifts of greater value than the gifts she had given him. Then she and all her attendants returned to their own land.

¹³Each year Solomon received about 25 tons of gold. ¹⁴This did not include the additional revenue he received from merchants and traders. All the kings of Arabia and the governors of the provinces also brought gold and silver to Solomon.

¹⁵King Solomon made 200 large shields of hammered gold, each weighing more than 15 pounds. ¹⁶He also made 300 smaller shields of hammered gold, each weighing more than 7½ pounds. The king placed these shields in the Palace of the Forest of Lebanon.

¹⁷Then the king made a huge throne, decorated with ivory and overlaid with pure gold. ¹⁸The throne had six steps, with a footstool of gold. There were armrests on both sides of the seat, and the figure of a lion stood on each side of the throne. ¹⁹There were also twelve other lions, one standing on each end of the six steps. No other throne in all the world could be compared with it!

²⁰All of King Solomon's drinking cups were solid gold, as were all the utensils in the Palace of the Forest of Lebanon. They were not made of silver, for silver was considered worthless in Solomon's day!

²¹The king had a fleet of trading ships of Tarshish manned by the sailors sent by Hiram. Once every three years the ships returned, loaded with gold, silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks.

²²So King Solomon became richer and wiser than any other king on earth. ²³Kings from every nation came to consult him and to hear the wisdom God had given him. ²⁴Year after year everyone who visited brought him gifts of silver and gold, clothing, weapons, spices, horses, and mules.

²⁵Solomon had 4,000 stalls for his horses and chariots, and he had 12,000 horses. He stationed some of them in the chariot cities, and some near him in Jerusalem. ²⁶He ruled over all the kings from the Euphrates

9:9 9,000 pounds: Hebrew 120 talents [4,000 kilograms]. The queen presented Solomon with gold that equaled the amount he had received from Hiram (cp. 1 Kgs 9:14). • The queen's gift of spices, such as frankincense and myrrh, were used in cosmetics, for embalming, and for religious offerings. High demand and repeated taxation over the long trade route made the spices as valuable as gold in gifts to a king (see Matt 2:11). Solomon was so wealthy that the queen had to give an enormous gift for it to be regarded as significant.

9:10 red sandalwood: Hebrew algum wood (also in 9:11); perhaps a variant spelling of almug. Cp. parallel text at 1 Kgs 10:11-12; see also note on 2:8.

9:11 steps: Or gateways. The meaning of the Hebrew is uncertain.

9:13-14 The phrase translated each year can also refer to one particular year, making it unclear whether 25 tons (Hebrew 666 talents [23 metric tons]) referred to Solomon's annual income or only to his most profitable year. Solomon also collected taxes from foreign traders and local merchants. The kings of Arabia were probably merchant princes who used the routes from Edom to Damascus, while the governors of the provinces were district officials.

9:15-16 Ornamental and ceremonial shields were common in ancient Syria and Assyria. Large shields were full-body length and possibly three-sided; small shields, worn on the arm, provided light protection. Guards displayed their shields as the king went up to the Temple.

9:15 more than 15 pounds: Hebrew 600 [shekels] of hammered gold [6.8 kilograms].

9:16 more than 7½ pounds: Hebrew 300 [shekels] of gold [3.4 kilograms].

9:17-19 Solomon's throne was very grand. There were six steps, and the throne might have stood on a platform that made a seventh step; similar Babylonian temple towers were built in seven stages to represent the entire cosmos.

9:21 Solomon's trading ships of Tarshish were used to transport cargo. The particular shape of these strong ships allowed them to sail long distances in the open sea. • Hiram: Hebrew Huram, a variant spelling of Hiram. • and peacocks: Or and baboons. The meaning of the Hebrew word is uncertain. Solomon was so great that he imported fine goods and exotic animals from the farthest reaches of the known world.

9:25 12,000 horses: Or 12,000 charioteers.

9:26 the Euphrates River: Literally the river.

River in the north to the land of the Philistines and the border of Egypt in the south. ²⁷The king made silver as plentiful in Jerusalem as stone. And valuable cedar timber was as common as the sycamore-fig trees that grow in the foothills of Judah. ²⁸Solomon's horses were imported from Egypt and many other countries.

Summary of Solomon's Reign

2 Chr 9:29-31 // 1 Kgs 11:41-43

²⁹The rest of the events of Solomon's reign, from beginning to end, are recorded in The Record of Nathan the Prophet, and The Prophecy of Ahijah from Shiloh, and also in The Visions of Iddo the Seer, concerning Jeroboam son of Nebat. ³⁰Solomon ruled in Jerusalem over all Israel for forty years. ³¹When he died, he was buried in the City of David, named for his father. Then his son Rehoboam became the next king.

▲ Sources Consulted by the Chronicler (9:29). When the Chronicler wrote the book of Chronicles around 400 bc, he worked from primary source documents that had been written earlier in Israel's history. In addition to the sources that are explicitly named, the text of Chronicles contains many other direct citations from Genesis—2 Kings.

9:27 the foothills of Judah: Hebrew the Shephelah.

9:28 Egypt: Possibly Muzur, a district near Cilicia. See note on 1:16.

9:29 The Chronicler apparently used prophetic anthologies or annals as part of his source material; the works of individual prophets may have been incorporated into larger collections. These sources no longer exist. Nathan and Ahijah were active during the reigns of David and Solomon. Iddo is otherwise unknown.

9:30 Solomon reigned from 971 to 931 bc.

10:1 Shechem was in the heart of the territory of the northern tribes; the need for Rehoboam to go there for confirmation reflects either weak national unity or the comparative strength and influence of the northern tribes.

• Rehoboam reigned from 931 to 913 bc (see timeline, p. 599).

10:2 Jeroboam . . . had fled to Egypt to escape from King Solomon: See 1 Kgs 11:26-40. Jeroboam returned from Egypt at the news of Solomon's death.

10:4 Rehoboam was not powerful enough to enforce taxation over the northern tribes, so they demanded concessions to remain under his rule.

10:6 The older men of Israel were distinguished from officials, nobles, and guardians (Judg 8:14; 1 Kgs 21:8; 2 Kgs 10:5) who had official government roles. These elders traditionally exercised considerable influence in royal decisions. When Ben-hadad, king of Aram, attacked Samaria, the elders of Samaria were decisive in rejecting his harsh terms of surrender (1 Kgs 20:7-9). Earlier, when Absalom revolted against David, the elders of Israel were influential in critical decisions (2 Sam 17:4, 15; 19:11).

his father, Solomon. "What is your advice?" he asked. "How should I answer these people?"

⁷The older counselors replied, "If you are good to these people and do your best to please them and give them a favorable answer, they will always be your loyal subjects."

⁸But Rehoboam rejected the advice of the older men and instead asked the opinion of the young men who had grown up with him and were now his advisers. ⁹"What is your advice?" he asked them. "How should I answer these people who want me to lighten the burdens imposed by my father?"

¹⁰The young men replied, "This is what you should tell those complainers who want a lighter burden: 'My little finger is thicker than my father's waist! ¹¹Yes, my father laid heavy burdens on you, but I'm going to make them even heavier! My father beat you with whips, but I will beat you with scorpions!'"

¹²Three days later Jeroboam and all the people returned to hear Rehoboam's decision, just as the king had ordered. ¹³But Rehoboam spoke harshly to them, for he rejected the advice of the older counselors

¹⁴and followed the counsel of his younger advisers. He told the people, "My father laid heavy burdens on you, but I'm going to make them even heavier! My father beat you with whips, but I will beat you with scorpions!"

¹⁵So the king paid no attention to the people. This turn of events was the will of God, for it fulfilled the LORD's message to Jeroboam son of Nebat through the prophet Ahijah from Shiloh.

¹⁶When all Israel realized that the king had refused to listen to them, they responded,

"Down with the dynasty of David!

We have no interest in the son of Jesse. Back to your homes, O Israel!

Look out for your own house, O David!"

So all the people of Israel returned home.

¹⁷But Rehoboam continued to rule over the Israelites who lived in the towns of Judah.

¹⁸King Rehoboam sent Adoniram, who was in charge of forced labor, to restore order, but the people of Israel stoned him to death. When this news reached King Rehoboam, he quickly jumped into his chariot ◀ Rehoboam's Reign in Judah, 931–913 BC (10:1–12:16) After Solomon's death, Rehoboam rejected the people's plea at Shechem to alleviate their heavy tax burden, so the ten northern tribes broke away from him and formed the northern kingdom of ISRAEL. Rehoboam retained control over the southern kingdom of JUDAH (which included the tribe of Benjamin). Despite Rehoboam's efforts to fortify Judah against attack, King Shishak of Egypt led an extensive military campaign against many of the towns of Israel and Judah, including JERUSALEM. The towns shown as captured are listed in Shishak's own description of the campaign (see note on 12:2-4).

son Abijah (11:22). Referring to these princes as "young" might have been a comment on the value of their advice, because the young were not viewed as being wise (see Job 12:12).

10:10-11 The words of the younger counselors corresponded with Rehoboam's disposition. They lacked the experience of the elders, but they shared Rehoboam's inclinations and preferences. They delivered their answer in metaphors and rhetoric appropriate to a royal court.

10:14 My father laid: As in Greek version and many Hebrew manuscripts (see also 1 Kgs 12:14); Masoretic Text reads I will lay.

10:16 When all Israel realized: As in Syriac version, Latin Vulgate, and many Hebrew manuscripts (see also 1 Kgs 12:16); Masoretic Text lacks realized.

• The people responded using words that were the converse of a poetic saying the Chronicler had used earlier (1 Chr 12:18); there, the people of the southern tribes of Benjamin and Judah (1 Chr 12:16) showed growing support for David.

10:18 Rehoboam came to Shechem to be anointed king but barely escaped with his life. His poor understanding of the situation was particularly evident when he sent a civilian official, rather than an army commander, to enforce conscription. • Adoniram: Hebrew Hadoram, a variant spelling of Adoniram; cp. 1 Kgs 4:6; 5:14; 12:18.

10:8 Rehoboam was forty-one years old when he began to reign (12:13), so the young men who had grown up with him were not novices. They might have been royal princes, sons of Solomon's other wives. It was natural for them to have a role in Rehoboam's government, as shown by his promotion of his

Shemaiah's Prophecy

2 Chr 11:1-4 // 1 Kgs 12:21-24

11 When Rehoboam arrived at Jerusalem, he mobilized the men of Judah and Benjamin—180,000 select troops—to fight against Israel and to restore the kingdom to himself.

²But the LORD said to Shemaiah, the man of God, ³"Say to Rehoboam son of Solomon, king of Judah, and to all the Israelites in Judah and Benjamin: ⁴"This is what the LORD says: Do not fight against your relatives. Go back home, for what has happened is my doing!" So they obeyed the message of the LORD and did not fight against Jeroboam.

Establishment of Rehoboam's Reign

⁵Rehoboam remained in Jerusalem and fortified various towns for the defense of Judah. ⁶He built up Bethlehem, Etam, Tekoa, ⁷Bethzur, Socoh, Adullam, ⁸Gath, Mareshah, Ziph, ⁹Adoraim, Lachish, Azekah, ¹⁰Zorah, Aijalon, and Hebron. These became the fortified towns of Judah and Benjamin. ¹¹Rehoboam strengthened their defenses and stationed commanders in them, and he stored supplies of food, olive oil, and wine. ¹²He also put shields and spears in these towns as a further safety measure. So only Judah and Benjamin remained under his control.

¹³But all the priests and Levites living among the northern tribes of Israel sided with Rehoboam. ¹⁴The Levites even abandoned their pasturelands and property and moved to Judah and Jerusalem, because Jeroboam and his sons would not allow them to serve the LORD as priests. ¹⁵Jeroboam appointed his own priests to serve at the pagan shrines, where they worshiped the goat and calf idols he had made. ¹⁶From all the tribes of Israel, those who sincerely wanted to worship the LORD, the God of Israel, followed the Levites to Jerusalem, where they could offer sacrifices to the LORD, the God of their ancestors. ¹⁷This strengthened the kingdom of Judah, and for three years they supported Rehoboam son of Solomon, for during those years they faithfully followed in the footsteps of David and Solomon.

Rehoboam's Family

¹⁸Rehoboam married his cousin Mahalath, the daughter of David's son Jerimoth and of Abihail, the daughter of Eliab son of Jesse. ¹⁹Mahalath had three sons—Jeush, Shemaiah, and Zerah.

²⁰Later Rehoboam married another cousin, Maacah, the granddaughter of Absalom. Maacah gave birth to Abijah, Attai, Ziza, and Shelomith. ²¹Rehoboam loved Maacah more than any of his other wives and concubines. In all, he had eighteen wives and sixty concubines, and they gave birth to twenty-eight sons and sixty daughters.

²²Rehoboam appointed Maacah's son Abijah as leader among the princes, making it clear that he would be the next king. ²³Rehoboam also wisely gave responsibilities to his other sons and stationed some 11:1-4 Shemaiah's prophetic intervention averted immediate civil war among Israel's tribes, but the summary of Rehoboam characterizes his reign as one of continual warfare with Jeroboam (12:15). Civil war characterized the first fifty years of the divided kingdom, until the time of Omri.

11:5-23 The Lord's blessing on Rehoboam is demonstrated in his building activities, the defection of the faithful priests from the north to the south, the migration of the faithful in the north to Jerusalem, and his large family.

11:5-12 Rehoboam . . . fortified various towns to defend Judah from east, south, and west, protecting the valleys leading into the Judean hill country and the important crossroads. Rehoboam's first task was to strengthen a minimal but defensible position. The defensive lines made strategic sense against an Egyptian attack, and likely began before the invasion of Pharaoh Shishak (926/925 BC).

11:9 Lachish formed the pivotal southwestern corner of Rehoboam's fortifications, guarding the road to the coastal highway to the west, a primary route that Egypt could use to attack from the south.

11:13-17 The apostasy that Jeroboam initiated in the north (see 1 Kgs 12:26-33) led those who sincerely wanted to worship the LORD to emigrate to the south. Rehoboam followed the Lord faithfully for three years, but he was unfaithful in the fourth year of his reign (12:1). God then immediately punished Rehoboam by sending Shishak to invade from Egypt (12:2-5).

11:15 Some scholars believe that Jeroboam set up the goat and calf idols as pedestals for the Lord, noting that the Canaanites believed that their gods stood on the backs of animals (cp. Exod 32:5, where the gold calf was used in "a festival to the LORD"). However, Jeroboam never specifically credited the Lord with rescuing Israel (1 Kgs 12:28), so others think he might have meant that other gods stood on the animals. Still others think Jeroboam might have adopted the practice of the Egyptians, portraying actual pagan deities in animal form (cp. Exod 32:4).

11:18-22 The numbers of Rehoboam's wives and children are probably the total from his entire reign rather than those accumulated by his fifth year. Rehoboam loved his second wife more than his first, so he violated the right of primogeniture (inheritance belonging to the firstborn son, Deut 21:15-17) by making Abijah . . . the next king in what might have been co-regency. This action secured an orderly succession.

11:20 Maacah, the granddaughter of Absalom: Literally Maacah, daughter of Absalom. Elsewhere we are told that Absalom son of David had "one daughter [whose] name was Tamar" (2 Sam 14:27). Thus, Maacah was almost certainly the granddaughter of Absalom, a possible meaning of the Hebrew. It is also possible that this Absalom ("Abishalom," 1 Kgs 15:2, 10) was not Absalom son of David.

11:23 Rehoboam's delegation of control to the royal princes extended the reign of them in the fortified towns throughout the land of Judah and Benjamin. He provided them with generous provisions, and he found many wives for them.

Egypt Invades Judah

2 Chr 12:9-11 // 1 Kgs 14:25-28

12 But when Rehoboam was firmly established and strong, he abandoned the Law of the LORD, and all Israel followed him in this sin. ²Because they were unfaithful to the LORD, King Shishak of Egypt came up and attacked Jerusalem in the fifth year of King Rehoboam's reign. ³He came with 1,200 chariots, 60,000 horses, and a countless army of foot soldiers, including Libyans, Sukkites, and Ethiopians. ⁴Shishak conquered Judah's fortified towns and then advanced to attack Jerusalem.

⁵The prophet Shemaiah then met with Rehoboam and Judah's leaders, who had all fled to Jerusalem because of Shishak. Shemaiah told them, "This is what the LORD says: You have abandoned me, so I am abandoning you to Shishak."

⁶Then the leaders of Israel and the king humbled themselves and said, "The LORD is right in doing this to us!"

⁷When the LORD saw their change of heart, he gave this message to Shemaiah: "Since the people have humbled themselves, I will not completely destroy them and will soon give them some relief. I will not use Shishak to pour out my anger on Jerusalem. ⁸But they will become his subjects, so they will know the difference between serving me and serving earthly rulers."

⁹So King Shishak of Egypt came up and attacked Jerusalem. He ransacked the treasures of the LORD's Temple and the royal

The Chronicler gives just one explanation for the continued division of the kingdom: Rehoboam and those loyal to him "obeyed the message of the LORD and did not fight against Jeroboam" (11:4). The cause of the division—the irrational response of Rehoboam to the people's request—has already been explained in the previous narrative: "This turn of events was the will of God, for it fulfilled the LORD's message to Jeroboam son of Nebat through the prophet Ahijah from Shiloh" (10:15). Rehoboam could easily have defeated the rebels, but he was deterred by the will of the Lord.

God directs people and events to fulfill his purposes in history. He has no need to explain himself, but he always has a purpose that he is working out; he guides individuals, nations, and events in accord with his will. This philosophy of history remains consistent in the Chronicles and through all biblical history. God works through human actions to bring about results that he has planned and that cannot be explained in any other way except his orchestration.

Obedience to God's will brought positive results for Rehoboam: He fortified cities; he put military leaders, equipment, and food supplies into place; loyal citizens migrated to his territory; and he had a large family. God's will was clear, and the benefit to Rehoboam was obvious, yet the Chronicler could not explain God's purposes. Readers of the book are left to ponder why the kingdom was divided.

The prophet Isaiah declares the mystery of God's ways: "My thoughts are nothing like your thoughts," says the LORD. "And my ways are far beyond anything you could imagine. For just as the heavens are higher than the earth, so my ways are higher than your ways and my thoughts higher than your thoughts" (Isa 55:8-9). Those who fear God learn not to lean on human understanding, but to follow the word of God even when it is contrary to earthly values.

of the royal family into outlying districts. This provided for a smooth transition of power and also made a revolt or attempted coup less likely. Perhaps this was Rehoboam's conscious attempt to avoid troubles that God had promised David's house (2 Sam 12:10-11).

12:1-2 The book of Kings states no theological reason for Egypt's invasion, but the Chronicler does: The Egyptians attacked Jerusalem because Rehoboam had abandoned the covenant and rebelled against the LORD.

12:2-4 Shishak, also known as Shoshenq I

(945–924 BC), ruled a reunited Egypt and founded the 22nd dynasty. His politically significant campaign in Canaan was recorded on the walls of a temple at Karnak, where more than 150 conquered towns were named. The main objectives of the attack were the conquest of Israel and Judah.

12:3 horses: Or charioteers, or horsemen. • Sukkites are not mentioned elsewhere in the Bible, but are known from Egyptian history as Libyans from the oases of the western desert. • and Ethiopians: Hebrew and Cushites. Shishak was an Ethiopian from southern Egypt.

12:6-7 Shemaiah's speech expresses the elements required in Solomon's prayer at the dedication of the Temple (7:14). The leaders of Israel . . . humbled themselves, and the wrath of judgment was removed from Jerusalem.

12:9-11 The looting of the royal treasures and of the Temple were the punishment Rehoboam received for his disobedience. The gold shields were ritually carried by the guard accompanying the king when he moved from the palace to the Temple. The royal processions palace; he stole everything, including all the gold shields Solomon had made. ¹⁰King Rehoboam later replaced them with bronze shields as substitutes, and he entrusted them to the care of the commanders of the guard who protected the entrance to the royal palace. ¹¹Whenever the king went to the Temple of the LORD, the guards would also take the shields and then return them to the guardroom. ¹²Because Rehoboam humbled himself, the LORD's anger was turned away, and he did not destroy him completely. There were still some good things in the land of Judah.

Summary of Rehoboam's Reign

2 Chr 12:15-16 // 1 Kgs 14:29-31

¹³King Rehoboam firmly established himself in Jerusalem and continued to rule. He was forty-one years old when he became king, and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city the LORD had chosen from among all the tribes of Israel as the place to honor his name. Rehoboam's mother was Naamah, a woman from Ammon. ¹⁴But he was an evil king, for he did not seek the LORD with all his heart.

¹⁵The rest of the events of Rehoboam's reign, from beginning to end, are recorded in The Record of Shemaiah the Prophet and The Record of Iddo the Seer, which are part of the genealogical record. Rehoboam and Jeroboam were continually at war with each other. ¹⁶When Rehoboam died, he was buried in the City of David. Then his son Abijah became the next king.

Reign of Abijah (13:1-22)

Abijah's War with Jeroboam

2 Chr 13:1-2 // 1 Kgs 15:1-2

2 Chr 13:22 // 1 Kgs 15:6-7

13 Abijah began to rule over Judah in the eighteenth year of Jeroboam's reign in Israel. ²He reigned in Jerusalem three years. His mother was Maacah, the daughter of Uriel from Gibeah.

Then war broke out between Abijah and Jeroboam. ³Judah, led by King Abijah, fielded 400,000 select warriors, while Jeroboam mustered 800,000 select troops from Israel.

⁴When the army of Judah arrived in the hill country of Ephraim, Abijah stood on Mount Zemaraim and shouted to Jeroboam and all Israel: "Listen to me! ⁵Don't you realize that the LORD, the God of Israel, made a lasting covenant with David, giving him and his descendants the throne of Israel forever? ⁶Yet Jeroboam son of Nebat, a mere servant of David's son Solomon, rebelled against his master. ⁷Then a whole gang of scoundrels joined him, defying Solomon's son Rehoboam when he was young and inexperienced and could not stand up to them.

⁸"Do you really think you can stand against the kingdom of the LORD that is led by the descendants of David? You may have a vast army, and you have those gold calves that Jeroboam made as your gods. ⁹But you have chased away the priests of the LORD (the descendants of Aaron) and the Levites, and you have appointed your own priests, just like the pagan nations. You let anyone become a priest these days! Whoever comes to be dedicated with a young bull and seven rams can become a priest of these so-called gods of yours!

¹⁰"But as for us, the LORD is our God, and we have not abandoned him. Only the descendants of Aaron serve the LORD as priests, and the Levites alone may help them in their work. ¹¹They present burnt offerings and fragrant incense to the LORD every morning and evening. They place the Bread of the Presence on the holy table, and they light the gold lampstand every evening. We lost much of their splendor with the bronze shields (cp. 9:15-16), which were safely stored in the huge armory Solomon had built (8:6).

12:12 When Rehoboam repented, God allowed good things to remain in Jerusalem: the repentance of the people, their resolve to seek the Lord, and the preservation of worship (see 19:3).

13:1 Abijah is called Abijam in Kings (e.g., 1 Kgs 15:1). Abijam, possibly the Canaanite form of his name, would mean "my father is Yam." Yam was the Canaanite sea-god prominent in the Baal stories (see note on Job 7:12). Abijah means "my father is Yah," the usual short form for Yahweh, the God of Judah. Abijah reigned from 913 to 910 bc.

13:2a Maacah: As in most Greek manuscripts and Syriac version (see also 11:20-21; 1 Kgs 15:2); Hebrew reads Micaiah, a variant spelling of Maacah.

13:2b-3 The ongoing conflict between Rehoboam and Jeroboam (see 12:15) carried into the reign of Abijah. Abijah might have been attempting to reunite north and south, as is suggested by his speech (13:5-12). The large numbers of soldiers on each side correspond approximately to David's census (2 Sam 24:9); Israel's double number of soldiers magnifies God's intervention on behalf of Judah (13:14-19).

13:4 Mount Zemaraim: The town of that name was on the northern border of Benjamin (see Josh 18:22), about five miles northeast of Bethel. Benjamin was a buffer and a battleground between the northern and southern kingdoms.
